Leonard J. Hongkins died Sanday at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. George Murch, at Bayside. Mr. Hodgkins was born in Trenten eighty-six years ago. He was a caulker by trade, and worked in the shippards of Ellsworth for years. He leaves two sens – Leonard C., of Ellsworth, and Henry D., of Bangos, and two daugh-ters – Mrs. Preston Hodgkins, of Bangor, and Mrs. Reuben S. Hulbert, of Franklin. The funeral was held at the home yesterday, Rev. P. A. A. Killam officiating.

As the giant Cunarder Francouia, one of the finest liners in the world, was lying at her East Boston berth, the fifty-year-old conia, was towed in and tied up alongside her big sister, says a Boston paper. The contrast between the steamer and the schooner was so marked that hundreds commented of it. The schooner could have been hoisted to the top deck of the liner, and would scarcely have been noticed there. The Cunarder is just out of the builders' yards, is 625 feet long and has a tonnage of 18,150. The schooner which was built when the Civil war was ending, is just ninety-two feet in length Her gross-tennage is 130. The schooner Franconia was hauled alongside the steamer Franconia to take on some cargo out of the Cunarder which the two-master will carry down east.

The menthly social of the Berean Baptist bible class was held in the vestry par lor last evening, and was well attended were enjoyed and the social hour sed very pleasantly. The refreshments had their full share of attention, and being excellent, brought forth many words of appreciation. The president, Henry W. Sargent, called the class to order for a business session, and plans were suggested for the work of the class in the future. Three mottoes were presented to the class for a finally adopted. It was also voted that the class secure a charter, and the regular international pin was adopted as the emblem of the class. The committee for the next social are Miss Cora Anderson, Miss Amy Bellatty and Lloyd DeBeck. The class starts its career with a charter mem bership of twenty-three.

S. A. McGraw, of Surry, met with a serious runaway accident last night, on the Surry read. Near the watering trough at the Cushman place the horse became frightened at an automobile, and ran away, throwing Mr. McGraw out. In a dazed condition he walked back to the Hancock house, where Dr. Lewis Hodgkins attended him. No bones were broken, but he was suffering from severe bruises and a shaking up. Later he was taken to his home, where this morning he was reported as doing well. Harry M. Bellatty, on his way to his home on the Surry road just before 11 o'clock at night, near W. H. Butler's place, stumbled over thing across the sidewalk, which prove to be the ferelegs of Mr. McGraw's orse. He summoned Mr. Butler, and together they got the horse clear of the wrecked wagon and harness and into Mr. Butler's stable. LOST HIS LEG.

Bar Harbor Man Fell Under Train

at Ellsworth Falls. George Brown, of Bar Harbor, lost his by the train arriving at Ellsworth Falls at a little before 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Brown was a painter, and had finished the season's work at Bar Harbor. He was on his way to Bangor to find work there. He got off the train at Ellsworth Falls for some reason, and after the train had started, and as he was running alongside and about to jump on, misjudged the distance, and went down between the car and the platform, his left leg falling across the rail. Bystanders pulled him out as quickly as possible, but not until the leg had been nearly severed midway between the knee and ankle. Dr. L. W. Hodgkins was called, and accompanied the injured man to the Bar Harbor hospital, the western train being held at Ellsworth Falls for a time while the necessary arrangements were made. The leg was amputated just below the knee and the patient is getting long well.

Mr. Brown lived in Ellsworth for a time, about ten years ago, and has since lived in Bangor and Bar Harbor. He has a son living in Bar Harbor.

DIED OF EXPOSURE.

Former Ellsworth Man Found Unconscious in Dedham. George E. Googins, of East Hampden, formerly of Ellsworth, was found lying unconscious beside a road in Dedham last Thursday morning by Ervin Merrill, of Green Lake. He was taken to the home of W. S. Crockett, and Dr. A. C. Hagerthy, of Elisworth, was summoned. The man's identity was not at this time known. City Marshal Stuart and Mayor Charles H. Leland accompanied Dr. Hagerthy to Dedham. Dr. Hagerthy found the man suffering from exposure, with pneumonia well developed. He was cared for at the home of Mr. Crockett, where he died Saturday. Emerson Googins, of Ellsworth. He left Ellsworth some twenty-five years ago. He spent a few days here recently with the Monday before his death with the intention of walking by easy stages to Bangor. FIRE AT HAPPYTOWN. Farm Buildings of Lester Crocket

Destroyed Yesterday.

The farm buildings of Lester Crockett at Happytown, were burned yesterday afternoon. The fire started from a burning chimney. The chimney had burned out in the morning, and it was supposed the fire was out. About noon Harry Wheelden, the R. F. D. carrier, as he eached the Crockett place, noticed smoke oming from the roof of the house. The attic was found to be in flames.

There was no water available, and the fire spread rapidly, reaching the barn and destroying it before much of the contents could be saved. Mr. Crockett lost farm-ing implements, about eighty bushels of oats, sixty bushels of potatoes, four pigs, and a lage quantity of hay. Some of the furniture was saved from the house.

There was a small insurance through the grange. The loss is a severe one to Mr. Crockett, who has the sympathy of neighbors and friends.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 19, 1911.

Topic.—A missionary journey around the world.—XI. Missions in South America.— Acts xix, 13-30. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

South America is more and more attracting the attention of the leading nations of the world. In the vast empires of this continent Germany is increasing colonization, trying to find a desirable outlet for her overflowing population. The greatest business concerns of England and of the United States are becoming more and more interested in the material development of Brazil and other South American states. Foreign and domestic trade is rapidly increasing. Immigrants are arriving in enlarged numbers, and foreign capital is being invested on a large scale. The recent advance in railways has been most marked. The coast states have been united by rail, and the road that is to connect the tributaries of the Amazon is being rapidly pushed forward. In connection with all these efforts for the physical development of South America there should be correspondingly vigorous efforts to improve the moral and spiritual conditions of the people. This duty rests upon the Christian church, and it'should not be neglected. The missionary opportunities in South America today are greater than ever before. Under the influences of material development the people are becoming awakened to a sense of their rights and duties and led to aspire to and spiritual standards and ... The way is thus being prepared for the most aggressive and effective Christian work, and the opportunities thus being provided should be taken advantage of by the church of Christ to the fullest possible extent. But notwithstanding the increasing favorable conditions Christianity and Christian institutions will not be established in South America without a struggle. The old foes of Christianity are still most active. Superstition of the lowest character generally prevails. Ignorance abounds among the masses of the people. Priest-craft has largely lost its terrors for the male population, but the men have turned from superstitions faith to outright skepticism and pronounced infidelity and atheism. Such conditions are most deplorable and furnish a sitnation that only the most earnest and faithful presentation of the gospel can finally overcome.

prayers and faithful support of all Christian people. The children and youth need to be educated. The numer of missions and missionaries should be greatly increased. The Christian people of the United States should through the doctrine of Christ do all they can to give to them freedom from ignorance, superstition and vice.

THINGS THAT MONEY CANNOT BUY. [By Mary Ella Lawrence.]

[By Mary Ella Lawrence.]

We have often been told of what wealth would bring.
Or the loss of it take away;
And we know that its value is great indeed.
In our struggle with life each day.
But happy and blest is the man, I ween.
Who can say, without sorrow or sigh.
That he holds the key to the treasures rare,
Things that money cannot buy.

What depth of purse can procure the love That we crave in this land of strife; Or bring us the calm, contented mind That we crave in this land of strife:
Or bring us the calm, contented mind
As we journey the path of life;
Or the buoyant health which gives a zest
To the pleasure our hearts desire;
The crown of happiness, friendship true,
Or the love which will never tire?

If I sought to exchange with one who lacked of these gems of worth, the key.

Though he thrive in the midst of wealth, ho

Though no tarte is much would their maket value be?
Would their maket value be?
That money has power, we say with truth;
To be generous each should try,
But the choicest blessings from heaven are Things that money cannot buy.
—Selected by Alexia.

Dear M. B. Friends:

The things that money can buy, no doubt, have been the cause of much envy and jealousy; more than that, the cause of theft and deceit. There is an anti-dote in the poem for those troubles. It doesn't pay to make one's own life or the lives of others miserable because some friend or acquaintance has some article of household use or ornament or wearing household use or ornament or wearing apparel which money has bought, and which the first party, being minus the money, cannot easily obtain.

No lengthy sermonettes this time, for Aunt Maria comes in right here with one of her letters, which are always a sure cure for the blues: Dear Aunt Madge and M. B. Friends

Dear Aunt Madge and M. B. Friends:

Good evening. This sleep time, but I'm going to speak to you. Can you smell my pumpkin cooking? This smellful and sociable. I am making Carolyn's nightdresses, and I've got a new big apron. Oh, yes, my tomato mince meat is fine and tasty, but when I make my next mock-mince pies, I shall use sweet appies for the tomstoes and sour apples for the vinegar and less spice, then thare II be no draining, no seeds and one cooking less, and it all counts in the day's work.

I'spose lots of you are saying that I'm not living up to my word—that I'd write often. But our baby Carolyn has been very ill of the croup, spasmodic, and she had it four days and nights, and after she got over the fight for breath, was in need of tender care and had to be amused for some time. She's all right now and full of piay and is the light of our home. Then there's been so much extra work, so many meals to serve to work folks, jelly to make and marmalade—yes, and the pickles,—and in the meantime, we've taken in the Orland fair, and that means lois of cooking, for we always have picnic dinners in crowds. Tis great fun and you see all hands and shake hands. I saw N. L. H. of our column, and we had a good little chat. You think! She's beaten me—has two great-grandchildren; but you wait; I'll catch up some day, then I'll crow.

I've got my plants started for winter, and erow.

I've got my plants started for winter, and I've two new ones—a Jerusalem cherry tree and a McKinley flame. I also have a pot of carnation pinks, and they are budded. My Christmas cactus is full of buds and I've an ivy geranium in full bloom, so I'm sure of blossoms.

ivy geranium in full bloom, so I'm sure of blossoms.

Then we have three kittens—such "beauts"—and they have pretty names, too—Frisky-dede, Tansylee and Peterkin. You think of a baby and three kittles taking over the house, and you'll see we shall be amused all winter. Now I want to praise that apple custard pie. This fine, and so easy to make, and everyone thinks 'tis lemon pie, so we'd best rename it mock lemon pie. And that salad; it's the best I ever ate, and keeps so we'll, too.

Oh. our column is such a help! I was so glad that Aunt Madge spoke of Christmas presents and of our valuing the humble presents. How very true that is. Don't I wish our Christmas day and time was as it used to be. Now 'tis the costly present in most cases, and leaving the buying 'till Christmas time. Then 'tis hurry and bustle and such a trial to those who stand behind the counter. Take it all in all, to most people 'tis a tiresome, extravagant time, and its time to call a halt and begin over again, with love, gifts and best wishes. See!

DEER ISLE, 296.

Deer Isle grange met Nov. 6. After business, a recess was called and all took part in an old-fashioned candy pull, which was greatly enjoyed. After grange was called to order, the lecturer presented a program of readings, recitations and conundrums. Remarks were made by several brothers. In spite of the heavy rain, there were sixteen members present and ten visitors from Seagirt grange. After grange closed, coffee and crackers were served.

Brooklin grange held a regular meeting Tuesday evening, Nov. 7, with Past Master Dr. F. S. Herrick in chair and twenty-six members present. Grange voted to have Hancock Pomona grange meet here in February. Sister Marie Jordan was appointed to give address of welcome.

HANCOCK POMONA, 13.

HANCOCK POMONA, 13.

Narramissic grange, No. 224, entertained this Pomona Wednesday, Nov. 8. All of the newly-elected officers were present with the exception of the three lady officers. Bro. A. B. Hutchins, the worthymaster of the host grange, gave an able address of welcome, which was well responded to by John B. Wilson.

An executive committee was elected by written ballot as follows: H. J. Harriman, chairman; J. Wesley Bowden and Thomas Grieve. The chair a minted E. E. Gross, J. B. Wilson and A. 1. viills as the finance committee.

The tonic for discussion was: "Why man, chairman; J. Wesley Bowden and Thomas Grieve. The chair a "inted E. E. Gross, J. B. Wilson and A. I. sillis as the finance committee.

The topic for discussion was: "Why does the grange favor the election of U. S. senators by popular vote?" This was opened by J. B. Wilson, followed by Thomas Grieve, J. Wesley Eldridge, A. B. Hutchins, Dr. Brown and A. L. Saunders. As the noon hour approached, further discussion on this topic was tabled until after dinner. At this point all did full justice to the good things that the sisters had prepared in the lower hall.

After resuming work in the afternoon, the discussion of the topic was resumed by Hadley Burrill, who was followed by H. J. Harriman. This topic was especially interesting, and each speaker seemed to have something to add to it.

As there were only a few who wished to take the fifth degree, the grange voted not to confer it at this meeting.

The absence of the State speaker was due to the fact that there was none available for this date, but the worthy lecturer, Sister Bowden, was equal to the emergency, and promptly instituted a question box which proved very instructive. Among the things discussed was "woman suffrage" and: "Who should hold the family purse; the man or the woman?" The latter question was participated in by many of the brothers; then the sisters had something to say, and for awhile the discussion waxed warm. Sisters Colby and Cowing each gave a recitation, and both were thoroughly enjoyed.

The rew was a good crowd out and each one will look forward to the time when this Pomona will again meet with Narramissie grange.

Green Mountain Pomona grange met with Mariaville grange Saturday, Nov. 11, with a large attendance. The grange opened in form, with Worthy Master A. I. Foss in the chair.

Many questions were ably discussed by Brothers Foss, D. G. Hall, Milton Heckwith, Roy C. Haines and others. There was a bountiful feast, and the fifth degree was conferred upon a large class. All enjoyed the day very much.

Mariaville grange held its regular session in the evening with seventy members and one hundred visitors present. A fine program was well carried out, and many good suggestions were offered by the visiting members.

The members of Mariaville grange hope that all went home feeling that the day and evening had been a success and well spent. By the Mariaville grangers it will long be remembered as the first time they have had the opportunity to entertain Green Mountain Fomons.

Fire at Monson last Wednesday night caused the loss of one life, and a property loss estimated at above $50,000. The gason lene fire engine, used for the first time, saved the village from being wiped out. The fire started in a stable at the rear of a building owned by Fred Spencer, on Main street, and spread both ways. The buildings burned beside the Spencer block include Masonic hall, the grocery stores of Harry Dorr and A. F. Jackson, house and storehouse of A. L. Brown, the Hescock block, in which was located the postoffice, Gilbert's dry-goods store Hescock's drug-store and offices and apartments; and the building owned and occupied by Joseph Davidson, undertaker. F. T. Flint, a cripple, who occupied apartments in the Spencer block, was burned to death.

Secretary of State

The Governor's Blunder. Zion's Advocate.

The governor has evidently made a mistake; a pretty serious one, and one that will beyond doubt be disastrous to his personal hopes and that may somewhat affect his political future. . . It seems that what Maine voted to have is not just exactly what the governor of Maine thinks she ought to have. So the legislature is to be called together again and asked to pass a resolution submitting a new to pass a resolution submitting a new amendment to the constitution providing for local option and license in the cities, even while the present amendment continues to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in rural sections of the State.

It would be difficult to conceive of a greater blunder from any point of view considered. For one thing the position taken by the proposition is absolutely untenable. The prohibitory amendment covers the entire absolutely untenable. The prohibitory amendment covers the entire State, urban as well as rural. To say that all the State shall not sell intoxicating liquors, but that parts of the State may, is a contradiction in terms. Such a proposition might more reasonably be expected to emanate from the stone building on the east side of the river at Augusta than from the executive chamber at the statehouse. Maine has said her say on the prohibitory amendment question. Not so loudly and emphatically as we could have wished, it is true. But she has said it. And she is not likely to be obliged to say it over again right away just because what she said was not quite pleasing to cortain gentlemen high in authority, or to those interested in a financial way in the things against which she has spoken.

Mrs. Stevens Optimistic.

Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, State and national president of the W. C. T. U, has no fear of the outcome of another vote on resubmission. From Evanston, Ill., on hearing of the probable special session of the legislature in February, she writes to a friend in Rockland:

"Even if a special session of the legislature is called. I do not believe that the members is called. I do not believe that the members is all the fact of the court of the court

"Even if a special session of the legislature is called. I do not believe that the members will vote for resubmission. But if another eampaign is forced upon us, we will again do all within our power to prevent the liquor trust of the nation from securing the legal privilege to establish saloons in Maine, and I am confident that we should win by a greatly increased majority over that of Sept. 11, 1911.

"The Maine W. C. T. U. and the National W. C. T. U. stand unqualifiedly for state and national constitutional prohibition, and were

"We know that local option is unantisfactory as a temperance measure, and moreover, the restrictive features of the local option license law are violated more frequently than in state-wide prohibition."

Witches Visit the S. J. Treworgy Cottage at Contention Cove.

On the evening of Nov. 4, Capt. and Mrs. S. J. Treworgy entertained a few friends at their pleasant cottage, San Toy. Old and young met together for one gran frolic, and a very pleasant evening was passed. It was rather late in the week for party of this kind, but the witches were here just the same.

The decorations were very pretty and tastefully arranged, the young people going in the afternoon and trinming the cottage in the beautiful evergreen boughs, and with flags and the dim lights of jack-o'-lanterns made everything look just like night when witches flit about on broomsticks, when fortunes are told and mystic projects tried. There were jack-o'-lanerns hung up on trees to light guest s along the avenue leading to the cottage, and on entering they were greeted by our conspicuously draped over an arched doorwith evergreen boughs. It was a sure to note that the young people had thus given honor to their country.

A collation was served, being passed round by two young ladies, and then tea was served to the elderly ones, which was very unexpected, but very gratefully re-ceived. Then cups were turned and fortunes told to the young. Every one seemed in the best of spirits, and did everything to help along the good time.

If any one wants to have a good time, just go to East Surry and be entertained by Capt. S. J. Treworgy and his genial wife and family.

The death of Capt. Eugene O. Churchill removes one of our best-known and most highly-respected citizens. Capt. Churchill was born in Montville fifty-eight years ago, the son of Otis Churchill. He came to Orland about forty-five years ago. From an early age he followed the sea, and when a young man worked his way up to captain of the Elizabeth Foster on a Grand Banks trip. captain of the Elizabeth Foster on a Grand Banks trip. Later he commanded many vessels, among the last being the Irving Lealie, Laurel and Edith McIntyre.

After retiring from Grand Bank trips, he was engaged in island fishing for several years, and for two seasons carried on a fish merket in Bangor at the ferry slip. In whatever business he undertook he made many friends, and by his strict honesty and pleasing kindness he kept the friends he so easily made.

honesty and pleasing kindness be kept the friends he so easily made.

He married Miss Ida E. Hagerthy, who, with two sons—Howard E., of Owl's Head, and H. Neil, of Orland, survive. One son, Frank L., died twenty-seven years ago. Last May Capt. Churchill broke his right arm, and since then had suffered from rheumatism. About three weeks ago he was stricken with typhoid fever, and being weakened by the sufferings of the last few months, his condition became at once serious. Although his desth came as a shock, it was not altogether unexpected.

All that a devoted wife and loving sons could do was done to alleviate his intense sufferings. Dr. Brown proved himself a friend in time of trouble and with untiring kindness did he minister to the sufferer. Dr. Rutus Hagerthy, of Sedgwick, brother of Mrs. Churchill, also came to render aid if possible, but of no avail. Blowly but surely did the disease do its deadly work, and Tuesday, Nov. 7, the end came.

SEMINARY PROJECT.

RILSWORTH'S PROPOSITION WAS TURNED DOWN.

MATTER WILL PROBABLY BE TAKEN BEFORE EAST MAINE CONFERENCE AT MEETING NEXT APRIL.

The proposition for the removal of the East Maine Conference seminary from Bucksport to Ellsworth favored by some of the trustees of that institution, was turned down at a special meeting of the trustees in Bangor last Thursday.

Hon. John A. Peters, C. L. Morang and Becretary Roy C. Haines, as a special committee from the Ellsworth Merchants' association, appeared before the meeting in Bangor. Mr. Peters presented the claims of Ellsworth clearly and forcefully. The Bucksport members of the board of trustees had been doing active campaign work in the interests of Bucksport, and it was evident that any proposition Ells-worth could present would be turned down

Following is the text of the proposition se submitted to the trustees of the semi-gentlemen: The undersigned, as secre GENTLEMEN: And the Merchants' associators, of Ells worth, to which was added a committee of the board of mayor and aldermen, a ttee of the school board and one fro committee of the school board and one from the citizens at large, respectfully submits the following as the conclusions of this commit-tee in relation to the project to establish your seminary at Elisworth, and asks that the ame may be duly considered by you.

It should be said at the outset that the citigens are very much interested in the propo husiastic over the prospect a will co-operate in every way now and here-after towards the success of the plan and of the institution. Representatives of your body have been here and are able to describe to you the natural advantages of this location your seminary. We realize, however, that it is necessary to our patural advantages in order to obtain a change of location, and we have canvassed the ation with a view of formulating a proposition which we hope will be satisfactory to your body. We believe that once your in-stitution is located here, from that very fact it would receive in the future considerable cial assistance from citizens of Ellsworth and others, former citizens of Ellsworth, or otherwise, who are interested in the future of benefactions cannot be know in advance, but we believe (and our belief is based on expressions of opinion by people of means, who have friendly designs in connection with your seminary in case it is located here) that those benefactions would be both large and con-

You are aware that we have already selected and have options on a large tract of ground, which your committee has seen, and which believe to be especially well adapted to your needs. We have obtained options on this tract for the purpose of giving title to your association in case you locate here.

The school board of this city has already taken up the matter of tuition to be paid the seminary if it should locate here, and we feel safe in saying that $30 per pupil per year will be given by the city to the seminary in lieu of our present high school privileges. We should expect that our present high school would be discontinued, and that upon making satisfactory financial arrangements the seminary would furnish high school facilities adequate to our needs. It is probable that our annual contribution in the way of tuition in this way would be from $2,500 to $3,000 and probably more in the future.

In regard to a direct money contribution in aid of the erection of any new building, we have canvasced the situation quite thor-oughly and feel that we should be able to raise about $15,000 for that purpose. We will certainly use our best efforts to that end. If you will indicate to us as to whether this method and degree of assistance are satisfactory, we will at once proceed with our en-deavor to raise the funds, secure title to the property and carry out other details that may be satisfactory to you and agreed upon be-tween us, to the end that the seminary may be located here as soon as circumstances will Yours respectfully,

The final disposition of the proposition at the special meeting of the seminary trustees in Bangor came on a motion to refer the matter to the East Maine conference, which was lost. The motion came in such form, as an amendment to previous motions, that it was virtually a rejection of the Ellsworth proposition by the

It is probable that in spite of the refusal of the trustees to refer the matter to the conference, the proposition in somewhat amended form will be presented to the conference at its meeting next April.

Ellsworth has advanced its proposition in perfect sincerity, and the dignified and clean manner in which its claims have been presented has won friends for Ellsworth among the trustees. The desirabili-ty of Ellsworth as the location of such an institution is recognized, as well as the fact that the people of Ellsworth would heartily welcome and warmly support the seminary if located here. If the matter is taken to the conference, it is certain Ellsworth will have some earnest workers in its behalf and some warm friends within that body.

MAINE CORN CROP.

An Increase in Acreage Would Prove

Prom the Portland Board of Trade Je

The marvelous diversification of Maine soil conditions and the peculiar adapta-bility for growing such a variety of crops is a fact not appreciated, a condition calling for prompt recognition. New England was the home of the flint corn and in New England climate it has thrived whenever man has given it opportunity. People have, in years past, come to rely on the prairie, or bottom land of the West, for heir corn supply, simply because, in that new territory, large acreage produced such a volume as to drop the price where east-ern lands could not be allowed to compete. The failure to realize possible crop yield here added its restraining influence. New England has always led in yield per acre, but the standard has been so low as to be discouraging.

To-day it is well established that, instead of forty bushels, it is comparatively easy to grow eighty and that one hundred elicits no surprise. It has been demon-strated over and over again that flint corn can be grown at from 25 cents to 40 cents per bushel, and, when actual food value is reckoned, the cost is materialy reduced.

Successful and permanent agricultural development rests upon some form of stock husbandry, and this is made possible today only by the production of home grown crops. Because of its adaptability and utilization, the corn crop ranks first with the stock-grower.

Within the past few years a decided in crease in acreage, in yield and in food value has been witnessed in all parts of New England. That this is to increase is a certainty, and that this will lead to the multiplication of live stock is also reasons ble. Following this will come a more decided and aggresive agricultural senti-

As elsewhere, that increase will com through more thorough preparation of the land, closer attention to principles of fertilization, more frequent and continued cultivation and the system of seed selection which will insure greatest vitality, increasing size of stock or ear, and, with these, a general adding to the food value

The lesson of preparation has been presented already; that of frequent light cultivation must be emphasized. By the time the shoots are six to eight inches high the roots which never go very deep, will have well nigh met between the rows To continue deep cultivation after this period would be to destroy these roots. As the feeding rootlets are always at the extremities, the necessity for the preservation of every one possible is clearly manifest. To neglect cultivation will increase evaporation of moisture and decrease the available plant food in the soil, simply for want of a vehicle for liquefac-vironment as corn and the low average production tells of poorly prepared or indifferently fertilized land. The significance of seed improvement through selection can hardly be realized even by the most enthusiastic, but to fix desired characteristics, that prepotency may be established, requires systematic work, and in this there lies the opportunity to materially increase crop yield and also food value. This cannot come by selection of seed at husking time, but requires the testing of ears and selection from those giving heaviest yield of seed ears.

In Maine, in 1910, by this test, the seed coming from one field, selected at husking time with sole reference to promised value, gave a yield, in row tests, varying from 127 bushels of seed ears to two, and from eighty-seven to none per acre.

The elimination of poor seed would add from fifty to seventy-five per cent. to any

How can this be done?

By taking ten carefully selected ears, and, when land is ready, planting two hundred kernels from each, marking row and ear that full record may be kept. This proposition was accompanied by a Give good cultivation, removing all side shoots and, later, all non-bearing stalks. committee on the seminary proposition, Detassel every other row before the pollen matures, top the stalks as ears begin to glaze and then select seed for next year from that detasseled row giving highest average of good sound seed ears.

Doing this, one will grow the next year an acre for seed which came from one ear. Continuing this a few years, there will be established a strain superior in all essentials of yield and food content. No man can afford to send far from home for seed, the danger of failure being too great. Better take what you have and develop as

Except in the southern portion, New England cannot afford to spend time improving dent corn. The final analysis proves the flint more valuable as food, so that the balance is in its favor.

In the arbitrary show requirements there is danger of positive injury to crop-producing power; hence growers will do well to cling to the strong, vigorous, good length ear, well-filled with large, fullrounded symmetrical kernels, and not magnify the attractiveness of cylindrical, fully tipped ears. Having one purpose, the growing of the maximum crop, the standard of utility alone can govern.

Selecting long ears, made up of large kernels, it is possible to add one inch to the length and 1,000,000 kernels to the crop per acre. In seeking this, the location of the ear on the stalk becomes of importance, the low-down ear tending to shorter stalks and smaller ears in a briefer period, the ears highest on the stalk, the larger ear, greater growth of stalk and, unless guarded presage, a crop which very soon will not mature in our climate. An ear occupying the middle ground, on a stalk large at the base, tapering to the spindle, with an abundance of large, broad

Another phase of this subject, pr substantial returns to every grower, is the sweet corn industry. In 1910 the pack of Maine alone exceeded 28,000,000 cans, the farmers receiving 2 1-4 cents per pound, with an average yield, at some factor of 3,200 pounds of cut corn per acre, and, in individual cases, from 5,000 to 6,000 pounds.

As this leaves the cobe, hueks stalks, as well as immature ears, in the best possible condition for the silo, the value of this crop will be appreciated.

It is coming to be one of the great cash crops in the territory covered and, with demand steadily increasing and superior quality insured, because of climatic conditions, Maine can readily supply the world with the choicest grade of canned sweet

Scattered throughout Maine are grand openings for live men, at moderate cost, where the lower levels will produce hay in abundance, corn or potatoes in increasing quantity and the hillsides made to yield a rich yearly harvest of choice fruit. The openings of the century lie in Maine, richer than copper mines, more certain than far-away wheat fields, waiting only the honest efforts of thinking men, ready

No state in the Union will give, under like treatment, the returns in cereal erops to be obtained on Maine acres. This holds true of wheat, rye, barley and oats. lds true of wheat, rye, barley and oats.

Better still, the entire area of the State capable of cultivation, responds promptl to a grain crop. Maine might easily produce its entire wheat supply and export great quantities of oats. The yield of fifty-five bushels of oats per acre [shown in an illustration] is exceeded so often that its value lies only in indicating the crops certain to follow fair treatment.

Prune Shortenke.

Make a shortcake, using regular biscui rust or a shortcake batter. For the prune filling wash a pound of prunes, thoroughly cover with cold water and let soak for twenty-four hours. Then put prunes in double boiler, water and all, and let cook slowly until perfectly tender.

Slice a couple of lemons very fine and add to the prunes when half done. Drain off the juice, add half as much sugar and boil to a thick syrup. Put the pruner into a colander and mash with a potato masher so that the pulp will go through and the stones and skins remain. Add syrup and spread over cake while both are warm. Serve with or without cream.

Potato Puffs.

Peel and slice some white potatoes, boil them in salted boiling water and then drain and mash them; to each pint of potatoes allow four scant tablespoonfuls of outter and lard mixed, a tablespoonful of salt and half a cupful each of milk and liquid yeast; add a pint of flour and set the dough so made to raise in a moderately warm place, covered with a towel, for three hours; then kneed the dough for five minutes, make it into little rolls, place in a buttered baking dish, cover keep warm and allow to rise to twice their original size; when their volume is doubled, bake for twenty minutes in hot oven; serve hot.

A banana mold is made by putting six ripe bananas through a vegetable press and mixing with the pulp the juice of two large oranges, grated rind of one, a little salt, tablespoonful of powdered sugar and tablespoonful of gelatine dissolved in hot Stand on ice until nearly thickened, then add stiffly beaten whites of eggs, chopped pecans and maraschino cherries. Serve cold with whipped cream.

about his work until Thursday, when he was obliged to give up.

Mr. Colson was sixty-five years of age. He was born in Castine, and had spent his entire life in his home town. Thirty years of his early life were spent working in the brick yards, which used to be running at Hatch's cove, after which he had employment with J. W. Dresser in the line factory for fifteen years, it then being situated on Pleasant street. He was employed by E. H. Carpenter, Mr. Dresser's successor, up to the time of his illness last Thursday.

Mr. Colson was an esteemed citizen.

Mr. Colson was an esteemed citizen, a loving husband and a kind father, and will be greatly missed by his many friends. He leaves a widow and three children—Mrs. Robert Conner and Levi Colson, of Castine, and William, of Winter Harbor; also one brother-George Colson. The family have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

The funeral took place at the home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Douthet, of the Unitarian church, officiating.

ing, November 8.

Mr. Mayo was born at Southwest Harbor sixty-seven years ago. He .married Miss Sarab E. Gilley, of that pigcs. No children were born to them, but they adopted a little girl from the Portland children's home seventeen years ago.

In the early years of Mr. Mayo's life he went mackerel fishing and taught school winters until he was appointed store-keeper for the Brooklin grange store, which place he held five years, winning many friends. From this place he went into the shipping-room of the sardine factory, which place he held until his death.

Mr. Mayo united with the Brooklin Baptist church with ais wife thirty-three years ago. He was made a Mason at Southwest Harbor forty-three years ago. When the lodge was instituted here he was transferred, and he held the office of marshal here over twenty years. He was a charter member of Brooklin lodge, I. O. O. F., and Center Harbor Rebekah todge. He was a member of Minnewaukon Royal Arch chapter of Sedgwick and of the Rockland council.

Mr. Mayo was a man of fine disposition, genial to meet and obliging as a neighbor and friend, honest in all his dealings, and of a kindly heart. His death is a distinct loss to the church, which he never neglected to attend. He always had some helpful word to say to his pastor, whom he always upheld. In the lodge-room, where his genial presence made all gatherings a pleasure to attend, he was ever ready with his ready wit when called upon to speak. In his work, his fellowworkers will miss his pleasant talk. To his neighbors and friends, who have never called for help from him in vain, among the children, where, "Uncle Ike" was a universal favorite, and to the widow, daughter, brothers, sisters, nieces and nephews, who have always looked to him as a wise counsellor, his death brings great sadness.

Proprietary Medicines Prove Efficient and Economical.

Wealthy families do not feel obliged to consider the matter of expense in medical treatment is needed. They can afford to consult physicians, to get prescriptions and to have medicines specially put up for them. Most families, however,—and they are the bone and sinew of the country, intelligent, prudent, economical men and romen,-have so little to go and come on that professional services are out of the question, except where they are absolutely necessary. These families, trese millions of men and women of only ordinary means, regard it as only ordinary means, regard it as "common sense in medicine" to avail themselves of the leading proprietary medicines, which are so remarkably effective and so easily obtainable.

The makers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are justified in saying that for all the diseases and ailments for which this great medicine is recommended thousands of families have found it entirely satisfactory. It is unquestionably the leading proprietary medicine for impure blood, lack of strength, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, and for severer troubles, such as rheumatism, eczema or salt rheum, catarrh, bloodpolsoning, bad sores, scrofula and other diseases.

poisoning, bad sores, scrofula and other diseases.

It has effected more cures than any other medicine.

Harry D. Frink, Gloversville, N. Y. says: "I had a large bunch on my neck, which appeared to be scrofula. I have taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the bunch has entirely disappeared." Any preparation said to be "just as good" as Hood's Sarsaparilla is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit. Insist on having Hood's and get it today in usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs.
