A ball game was played last Friday between the West Side and the Baptist Sunday school, the West Side winning 17 to 5. The batters were: Baptists, Goodwin and Killam; West Siders, Fortier and Barron. Parker and Fortier made home runs. Umpire, John Whitney.

Rev. T. S. Ross, the new pastor of the Methodist church, was greeted by large congregations at both morning and evening services Sunday. In the evening Rev. P. A. A. Killam, of the Baptist church, did a courteous thing, dismissing his own congregation, and going with them to the Methodist church.

A spark from a chimney set fire to the roof of E. A. Lermond's house on Third street yesterday noon. An alarm of fire was turned in, but the fire was extinguished by Mr. Lermond, with the assistance of neighbors, before the firemen arrived. The damage, which was slight, is covered by insurance.

The Ellsworth high school baseball team played two games last week. At Holden Thursday it was defeated by the Holden team by the score of 19 to 14. At Wyman park Saturday the Ellsworth boys lost to Bluehill academy by a score of 10 to 4. The Ellsworth boys are steadily improving, and with the same "sticktoitiveness" in the face of defeat that characterized their basketball season, they will be putting up a good game before the baseball season closes.

Bids for the building of C. L. Morang's new garage west of the Main street bridge were opened Saturday. P. H. Stratton, of Bangor, formerly of Ellsworth, was the successful bidder. Work will begin at once. The building will be 76.85 feet in size, of wood and steel, with stucco finish. It will have all modern equipment.

Word has been received from Washington, through Roy C. Haines, Congressman Goodwin's secretary, that Ellsworth can have warships in the bay on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 21, 22 and 23. The Merchants' association will now make arrangements for a combination anniversary celebration and carnival for those days.

Edmund E. Brady, who received the appointment to the United States naval academy, left last Wednesday for Annapolis, Md., accompanied by his father, Edward E. Brady. Young Brady has successfully passed both the mental and physical examinations, ranking first in the former. This is a high compliment to the Ellsworth high school, of which he was a member of this year's graduating class.

Arthur Everett Smith, of Gardiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Smith, formerly of Ellsworth, and Miss Avis Louise Parento, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Parento, of Saco, were married at the home of the groom last Saturday afternoon, by Rev. Langdon Quimby, pastor of the Congregational church. The bride and groom left on a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 37 Brunswick avenue, Gardiner.

The Methodist Episcopal society of Ellsworth has purchased the George Porter Smith place on Franklin street, formerly the A. W. Cushman place, for a parsonage. District-Superintendent Palladino was in Ellsworth yesterday, looking after the business of the transfer of the property. He considers the Ellsworth society particularly fortunate in securing so desirable a house at a location adjoining the church property. The lot joins the church lot at the rear, and gives the society a lot running through from Hancock to Franklin streets. The house is in good repair, and Supt. Palladino said yesterday that there was not a more desirable parsonage in the conference. Rev. T. S. Ross, the pastor just appointed to this church, will move in at once.

Cyril Harper, a boy of seventeen years, drifted from his home in Providence, R. I., down to Bangor a few weeks ago, and thence into the upper part of Hancock county, working at odd jobs for little or no pay in camps or on farms. Last week he landed in Waltham, and found employment at Mrs. Gilman Jordan's. Homesick and without money, when the temptation offered, he stole about $30, walked to Ellsworth Falls, and was about to buy a ticket for his home when Sheriff Silsby arrested him. Practically all the stolen money was recovered. The boy pleaded guilty, and told Judge Hall a straightforward story when arraigned this morning. Judge Hall assumed jurisdiction in the case, and instead of holding him for the grand jury, as is usual in such cases, sentenced him to thirty days in the county jail.

NEW INDUSTRY.

Creamery to be Established Here by an Ellsworth Boy.

Ernest L. Smith, son of Vin Smith, of West Ellsworth, is soon to open a creamery in the Odd Fellows block. The necessary machinery, all of modern type, has been purchased, and Mr. Smith expects to be ready for business in a few days.

Mr. Smith, as an Ellsworth boy, will have the confidence of all who know him. He asks no financial assistance in his business venture, but does need and should have the co-operation of the farmers of the vicinity. He realizes the present shortage of cows, but hopes gradually to increase the business and the size of dairy herds in Hancock county.

It has long been believed that a creamery, properly conducted, could be made successful here. The one essential thing is the co-operation of farmers, and in giving this and making the creamery a success, they are also adding to their own profits. The opportunity of doing business with "one of themselves", rather than with a stranger, should insure a larger share of this co-operation.

The people of Ellsworth will welcome the creamery both as a new industry and as an affording opportunity to purchase creamery products at home.

Suicide at West Ellsworth.

Mrs. Winfield S. Severance, of West Ellsworth, despondent because of long-continued ill health, on Monday forenoon, in the absence of other members of the family, made deliberate preparations for death, and drank carbolic acid.

The sad death of Mrs. Severance was a shock to the community in which she lived, and to her family. Though in ill health a long time, her mind at times being affected, she seemed better than usual for some time before her death, and was bright and cheerful Monday morning.

Mrs. Severance was in the sixty-third year of her age. She had been twice married. She leaves, besides her husband, one son, Howard Dollard, by her first husband, and a daughter by her second husband—Mrs. Wynne Libby, of Bangor; also a sister and two brothers.

DOLLARDTOWN.

Charles Bonsey, of Bucksport, visited his brother here a few days last week.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For Week Beginning May 11, 1913.

Topic.—"Love not the world."—1 John II, 15-25. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The command of the apostle John, "Love not the world," must be rightly understood before it can be properly obeyed. It cannot mean that we are not to admire the beautiful things in the physical world which God has made, for they speak of His existence and His glory, nor does it mean that we are not to be interested in the affairs of the world, nor in its people. We are enjoined to be "not slothful in business," and it is declared that godliness has the promise of the life that now is, as well as of that which is to come.

It is the kingdom of the world which is sinful as opposed to the kingdom of God. It is the carnal world which demands a supreme love, one that even excludes love for God and all that is pure and holy and right. There is a proper love for the world and a false love for the world. It is against the latter that John warns all Christians. We are not to make a god of worldly pleasure, of worldly ambition, of worldly business, and to devote our lives to any one or all of them to the exclusion of love for God and love for humanity.

The "love of the world" is incompatible with the love of God. "If any man love the world the love of the Father is not in him." John is the apostle of love, and he rightly assumes that we must and will love something. This is characteristic of the human heart. But there can only be one supreme love in each heart and life. If we love the world supremely we cannot rightly love God, for He demands supremacy. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." No more can you love God and the world.

The heart surrendered to the foibles and tinsels of the world of sin can have no place in it for love to God. Yet there should be no question as to the location of our affections. Can the love of worldliness compensate us for the loss of love to God, who created us and loves us and has redeemed us by the precious blood of His only begotten Son?

"The love of the world" is forbidden on the ground of its transitoriness. "The world passeth away and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." We leave the world or the world leaves us. It is transitory, but for a day. The man who panders to the lusts of life comes to a time when they fall upon him.

He becomes sated, and his heart becomes cold and barren, and love is crushed out, a deplorable condition—a human heart with no power to love and no place for love! How different with love to God. It increases as life advances; its blessings ever become greater, and it abides forever! At death we cannot take the world with us. It becomes a shadow and a vanity. But at death God takes us to Him, and in perfect love we abide with Him forever. Since we must love God or the world, there should be no question as to our choice, since such tremendous and eternal issues are involved in our choice. "Love not the world," but "love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength."

The young especially must ever be warned against the seductive influences of worldliness. Many hopeful beginnings in the Christian life are marred and blighted by the insidious influences of the world. This warning is especially necessary today when the line of demarcation between the church and the world is not so decided as it once was.

The church is in the world and the world in the church as never before. But there is only one course for the true follower of Christ. Worldliness must be avoided, even at the sacrifice of seeming pleasure, desirable associates and temporary gain. The Christian cannot afford to compromise with the world to the slightest extent, else he will soon find that he is a worldling and not a Christian.

In Egypt.

The baby Christian Endeavor society in Egypt is at Port Said. It is only a few weeks old, but is a lusty infant. Now from Port Said to the Sudan nearly a thousand miles up the Nile, Christian Endeavor dots the cities and villages of this ancient land. Port Said used to have the reputation of being the wickedest city in the world. It is now one of the most law abiding. May Christian Endeavor hasten its regeneration. Miss Roxy Martin is now the president.

Welcome the Stranger.

Many strangers receiving the following card from some member of the lookout committee of Bethany Presbyterian society, Philadelphia, Pa., are persuaded to make the society their spiritual home. The invitation reads: "You are cordially invited to attend the prayer meeting of the society, held every Sunday evening at 6:30 in the Endeavor room. Come and enjoy the meeting with us, feeling entirely at liberty to participate therein."—Lookout Committee.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MADGE". Its Motto: "Helpful and Hopeful."

The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and hopeful. Being for the common good, it is for the common use—a public servant, a purveyor of information and suggestion, a medium for the interchange of ideas. In this capacity it solicits communications, and its success depends largely on the support given it in this respect. Common to the support given it is the name of the writer will not be printed except by permission. Communications will be subject to approval or rejection by the editor of the column, but none will be rejected without good reason. Address all communications to THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me.

READY IN A MINUTE. On the evening of the show, when it's really time to go.

When your wife is upstairs dressing and you're waiting down below: You are sure to hear her call From the distant upper hall: "Can you help me just a minute? This mean gown, I can't get in it. Do you hear me down there, Jack, dear? Come and hook me up the back, dear, That's the only thing I lack, dear. I'll be ready in a minute!"

So you toss aside your book and you struggle hook by hook Till the final one is fastened and she takes another look.

Then she says: "Please get my hat. I'm all ready now but that O, dear me hold on a minute! This mean collar, help me pin it. Mercy, see the shoes I'm wearing!" Then you tear your hair, despairing. "John, there's no use in your wearing. I'll be ready in a minute!"

And it's always just that way while you're losing half the play; And you fret and fume and fidget, and you feel your hair turn gray.

When at last you get outside, Then as sure as time or tide: "O, my handbag. Wait a minute! With my opera glasses in it. If I leave it I'll regret it. I must run inside and get it. Let me see, where did I set it? I'll be ready in a minute!"

On the resurrection morn, when the hosts are newly born.

She will keep the whole line waiting while she chooses sharp and horn. With some moonshine for a glass She will stand where all must pass; "O, St. Peter, just a minute! This mean robe, I'll have to pin it With a star so make it neater. Now which crown of glory's the sweeter? Do be patient, dear St. Peter. I'll be ready in a minute!"

Dear M. B. Friends: Here is the poem sent by D. I. D. last week, and it will be appreciated by those who not only wait, but are called on to render aid—first aid and necessary aid—in "hooking" up the back.

Dear M. B.'s: C. and I have had a very pleasant visit today from Aunt Madge and Narcissus. At dinner Aunt Madge asked me to write to the column and send a receipt for a pie we had, so I write now while the "receipt" is still in mind.

What kind of a pie do you ask? I am sure I do not know what to call it. Let me tell you about it. We had planned to have a lemon pie, and the crust was made and baked before I went to the store for a lemon. Not a lemon to be found in the city! We were, indeed, "Ten Miles from a Lemon." I told the clerk at one store that I had the crust all baked, and asked what I should put in. I was buying bananas, and he suggested that I put bananas in. I got some oranges and decided I would try a pie, using an orange instead of a lemon.

I had started to make it, when C. came into the room, and was horrified when I told her there was not a lemon in town and I was going to put in an orange. She said it would not be good, and did not know why I was always trying experiments when we were going to have company. I told her I thought it just the time to try experiments, and surely with Aunt Madge and Narcissus, it would be all right; they would like my experiments.

I started with the receipt given on the box of cream cornstarch, taking the yolks of two eggs, three-quarters of a cup of sugar (instead of a full cup as when a lemon is used), two tablespoonsful of cornstarch dissolved in cold water, and a cup of boiling water. This I put into a double boiler and cooked until thick. Then I added (after taking from the stove) the juice and grated rind of an orange. Not flavor enough, in C.'s opinion (the orange was not a large one), so I used about a teaspoonful of orange flavoring (bottle-made from orange peel). Some of the nicest flavors are blends of grapefruit and I added a little almond extract, put the filling in the crust, adding this slice of banana, covered it with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs and sugar, and put the pie into the oven to brown.

After browning, I decorated the top with thin slices of banana, and in the center of each slice a bit of jelly. Artistically! Certainly. The pie was pronounced "delicious" by Aunt Madge and Narcissus, and of course you all know they are good judges. You may be sure I was delighted when Narcissus discovered the delicate almond flavor. C. admitted that "it was better than she thought it would be." What kind of a pie was it? Try it, and name it, please.

The four M. B.'s who partook of that artistic and delicious pie can testify that it was a thing of beauty and a joy in the memory. Thanks to H. for complying with the request that the receipt be sent to the column. She might have kept the particulars of its construction all to herself and taken out s'p'nt on it. I hope you will try it for yourselves.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., April 19, 1913.

To the M. B.'s: Aunt Madge in a few gentle words seems to hint that others in California might write a few lines for the column which we all enjoy so much. There are many things to write, but will anything I can write be of interest? When here on a previous visit, I think I wrote of Santa Barbara, of this wonderful old Spanish town, sitting on the foothills, with its back leaning on the mountains and its feet in the ocean, unlike any other city in the country, especially noted for its delightful climate, luxurious vegetation, charming views, miles of ocean, flowers all the year and

HUSBAND NAILED RUBBER ON GATES

Wife so Weak and Nervous Could Not Stand Least Noise—How Cured.

Munford, Ala.—"I was so weak and nervous while passing through the Change of Life that I could hardly live. My husband had to nail rubber on all the gates for I could not stand it to have a gate slam. "I also had backache and a fullness in my stomach. I noticed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was advertised for such cases and I sent and got a bottle. It did me so much good that I kept on taking it and found it to be all you claim. I recommend your Compound to all women afflicted as I was."—Mrs. F. P. MULLENDORE, Munford, Alabama.

An Honest Dependable Medicine is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A Root and Herb medicine originated nearly forty years ago by Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for controlling female ills. Its wonderful success in this line has made it the safest and most dependable medicine of the age for women and no woman suffering from female ills does herself justice who does not give it a trial.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

many other attractions to prove that, as far back as 1868, Cabrillo and Drake were not entirely wrong in thinking it a paradise. Could they look upon the land and ocean today they would know they had indeed found a shorter route to Asia.

I have just returned from Los Angeles, one hundred and ten miles from here, where I visited friends and had a very enjoyable visit. My pen cannot describe this immense city growing more rapidly than any other on our continent, reaching out to the ocean until we read of "port Los Angeles" as if it were really a seaport of itself. The Pacific can never come to this city, but the city will fit in to go to the ocean.

While there, it was my pleasure to visit "The Mission Play" at San Gabriel. Probably many of you have read of this, as it is well advertised in the East. San Gabriel is a suburban village about forty minutes' delightful ride from Los Angeles, through Alhambra, among beautiful homes, orange and lemon groves and ever-blooming flowers. The "Mission Play" is to California what the "Passion Play" is to Oberammergau. It is a pageant drama, a fascinating story of the early mission days, building of the missions, Christianization of the Indians, and the ruins, Indian and Spanish songs and dances, where one can learn much of the early history of California.

The play was written by John Steven McGroarty, and portrays the rise and fall of the Franciscan enterprise in California from 1769-1847. The building in which this play is given was built by the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. On three sides of this building, outside, is what is called the King's highway—a walk representing "El Camino Real", beginning with San Diego, leading north to San Francisco, following the line of the missions, and these are here represented by small buildings of cement, in form quite like the old missions—said to be correct miniature reproductions of the twenty-one missions on the coast of California.

The question arises, "Why is such a play given?" McGroarty may wish to show to this generation the sufferings these early missionaries endured to bring the light of Christ to the Indians, and certainly it is of great educational value. Again, by some it may be looked upon as a financial enterprise for the benefit of the great Southern Pacific. Whatever may be the object, honor should be given the man who can place before the public so forcibly the simple, pathetic piety of the early padres.

Junipero Serra was the founder of all these early missions. He was born in Petra, Mallorca island, in 1713, came to Mexico in 1749, from there to Monterey, where the first mission was built. He was a learned man—ambitious and persevering, accustomed to manual labor and an eloquent preacher, and his sole ambition was the advancement of his religion and the welfare of the Indians.

In one act of the play the interference of the Spanish military authorities was forcibly shown and the old priest's heart was nearly broken, but he would not give up his labors. One act showed what the Indians had learned to do in the fifteen years after the missionaries came. In this the 160 Indians connected with the play passed in line before the old padre and received his blessing upon the articles which they brought, such as wheat, pumpkins the size of which even the Hancock county fair could not produce, fancy work in bright and gorgeous colors, mission chairs quite in style at the present day, all sorts of pottery, roof tiles, used even now on many old buildings here—all of these, besides the costumes, so changed from the feathers and blankets of the painted Indians, such as he found when he first came here.

But time and space is your column will not allow me to write more. Junipero died in 1784, justly called the "Apostle of California". One of his last prayers was: "Bring to the foot of Thy cross, these wild Gentiles of these plains and hills, and bless California now and in the centuries to come, when newer peoples shall crowd her golden shores." East.

This letter from East, who is now at the West, will be very much enjoyed by the members of the clan and by the many personal friends of the writer. It gives us all an opportunity to take a trip to Wonderful Skin Salve.

Southern California, right in the house-cleaning time.

How far we travel by these letters! Last week Washington state, where we could almost hear the bluebirds sing; this week, California, with its glimpses of the past. And so through the year we gather in pictures of many places, hear music furnished by artists, catch views of nature's beauties, greet friends the width of a continent away, try each other's receipts, share each other's joys, sympathize in each other's griefs, and keep an open ear and an open heart turned toward the column. This is the significance of the letters, M. B., as considered by AUNT MADGE.

Among the Grangers.

This column is devoted to the Grange, especially to the granges of Hancock county. The column is open to all grangers for the discussion of topics of general interest, and for reports of grange meetings. Make letters short and concise. All communications must be signed, but names will not be printed except by permission of the writer. All communications will be subject to approval by the editor, but none will be rejected without good reason.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS OF SOILS.

News Letter from College of Agriculture.

[L. H. Merrill, Professor of Agricultural Chemistry.]

Since crops derive so large a proportion of their food from the soil, it is quite natural that we should come to think of the chemical composition of the soil as the correct measure of its fertility.

The university is frequently asked to make soil analyses, and for some reason requests of this nature have been unusually numerous during the present spring. In many instances samples of soil are forwarded, and specific information is asked for, the writer stating perhaps that he grew potatoes last season, and wishes to sow oats this spring. The analysis in such cases is supposed to be a trustworthy guide in the selection of a fertilizer. In other cases the writer merely states that the soil in question failed to give good returns last season, and he looks for an analysis to suggest a remedy.

A great many soil analyses have been made, and the published results deserve close study. One of the most interesting facts which such investigations have brought to light is that nearly every soil, even those incapable of producing good crops, contain a store of plant food far in excess of the needs of the very crops they fail to produce.

A plant is able to take its food from the soil only in soluble forms, while by far the greater part of the elements needed by crops exist in the soil in the form of insoluble compounds, which are consequently not available. A chemical analysis simply shows that they are there.

Up to the present time the chemist has not devised a reliable method by which he can measure the availability of these materials to the plant. Even if he succeeded in determining the availability for a certain crop, he would have made but little progress, since he might find it necessary to establish a different standard for every other crop. The roots of plants take an active part in dissolving plant food, and no two kinds of plants possess this power in the same degree.

The importance of the quality which we call "availability" may be illustrated thus: Soils frequently carry over 1,000 pounds of phosphoric acid in the upper six or seven inches of an acre, yet fail to produce goods crops for want of this very compound.

Supposing now, we add to such a soil a fertilizer carrying 10 per cent. available phosphoric acid, applying it at the rate of 1,000 to the acre, and working it into the soil to the depth of seven inches. The half-ton of fertilizer carries 100 pounds of available phosphoric acid, which has become mixed with 2,000,000 pounds of earth.

A little calculation will show that we have added phosphoric acid to the extent of one-half of one hundredth of one per cent.

If such a soil were analyzed before and after such an application, an ordinary chemical analysis would not detect the difference. Yet in spite of the fact that the soil may already contained two or twenty times this amount, the crop knows the difference. There is but one way to learn the fertilizer requirements of the soil, and that is by close observation and careful experimentation on the part of the man who tills the soil. If the application of potash salts alone produces satisfactory results, nitrogen and phosphoric acid should not be used. The indiscriminate use of a "complete fertilizer" is fairly certain to increase the crop, but the practice is in many cases a wasteful one.

The university holds itself ready to aid the farmer in every way within its power, but for the reason stated it cannot undertake soil analyses.

PROF. EMERY ON TARIFF.

Advantage of European System of Scientific Investigation. That tariff schedules, on which the prosperity of so many employers and employees often depend, are the result of guess-work in many cases; that Congressmen are more or less "at sea" during a session such as is now going on; that the conditions of labor and industry here and abroad are buried at our legislators in such volume and in such haste that they cannot digest the facts and remove the lies; that our system of tariff-making, in other words, is wrong, and needs a change, were some of the statements made by Prof. Henry C. Emery, son of former Chief-Justice Emery, of Ellsworth, and former chairman of the national tariff board at an assembly luncheon of the Boston Chamber of Commerce recently.

There was a large gathering of members to hear Prof. Emery, probably because they realized that anything he had to say about the tariff problems would be authoritative and gathered from knowledge of actual work in Washington. Prof. Emery, who is now at Yale, told of the death of his commission because it became a partisan issue. He said that the tariff would always be a partisan issue, in so far as the making of schedules. Nevertheless, he pointed out the advantages of the European system, and made a plea for a non-partisan body, which could lead the industrial facts for the overworked and overwhelmed Congressmen, so that the making of schedules would not be based on the mass of untruths and misstatements and misrepresentations of biased parties such as come forward in Washington whenever the tariff is about to be changed.

"Such dissatisfaction had been felt," said Prof. Emery, "with the system of hasty legislation without adequate knowledge of industrial facts, based only on a compromise between the conflicting statements of interested parties. The result was an agitation for a non-partisan tariff commission. Such a body was never formally created by Congress, but an experiment of this nature was made by President Taft in virtue of certain rather vague powers vested in him by the act of 1908. That act had been framed according to the old method, and it was the hope of many business men that a change might be effected for the future."

"Unfortunately, under the exigencies of the political situation, this tariff board became itself a partisan issue, and was abolished about two years after it had begun its investigations of the domestic tariff. Since then the new party in power has proceeded to outline a tariff policy of its own and to prepare a complete tariff bill, relying, as had the republican Congresses before them, on the old methods of securing information, only acting with even greater haste.

"I am here to show that the interests of all classes of the community require the establishment of some improved method of securing that knowledge of facts which must be the prerequisite of any satisfactory tariff legislation. Please notice that the new method will be simply a method of increasing knowledge, and nothing else. Much has been said about 'taking the tariff out of politics' by means of a tariff commission. Obviously, no such thing is possible.

"The interests of different economic groups in tariff-making are divergent, and there will always be difference of opinion on the broad problems of tariff policy. Consequently, the tariff must always be a party issue. And the representatives of the people in Congress must, of course, determine the policy to be adopted, and the rates, according to the mandate given them by the voters.

"What can be taken out of politics, however, is the investigation of the facts themselves. These can be established through the investigations of an unprejudiced body without party affiliations; and, what is more, they can only be established by continuous and patient investigation of the details of business conditions.

"The trouble with much tariff debating in the past has been that it has been theoretical and general. It has been maintained, on the one side, in sweeping terms, that higher wages in this country mean higher labor-cost and a consequent handicap on the domestic consumer. On the other hand, it has been maintained with equal vigor on the other side that these higher wages are more than offset by the higher efficiency of American labor, by better machinery, or by greater advantages in the way of natural resources.

"The trouble with all such arguments as these is that there is no general rule which can be applied to all industries, or even to all branches of the same industry. In some cases, American labor is more efficient; in some cases, American manufacturers have better machinery; in some cases, they have better natural advantages, but in many other instances this is not the case at all.

"No sweeping general assertions can be made which are not a sheer waste of time on matters of this kind. It must be settled, as a matter of fact, in each individual case. A great deal has been said about the more intelligent methods of tariff-making adopted by foreign countries, although our whole theory of legislation is different from theirs, and we cannot adopt European methods outright. In Europe the system of cabinet government prevails, under which all measures of importance are first framed by the government. In this country bills originate in congressional committees, and I do not know that anyone would advocate, as a practical measure, a change of this system. It is only a question whether we cannot add to it some new machinery by which such committees will be better equipped to handle the problems which confront them.

"The advantages of the foreign system is that it provides for a permanent staff of trained experts in the different departments, who make a life study of the problems involved in such legislation, and acquire an accumulated knowledge of industrial conditions which is constantly at the service of their superiors, whether in the administration or in parliament. These government officials are not legislators concerned with many other affairs, are free both from the pressure of local business interests and from any political bias. They do not have to consider the effect of the conclusions either upon their own tenure of office or upon the success of any particular party. The hearings are not crowded into a space of a few months, so that an overworked committee is not swamped with material which it cannot fully understand.

"In this country no such body exists. Veteran members of the ways and means committee have acquired a wide familiarity with the details of the subject, but even they are hampered by the fact that they have many other problems on their hands. They are dependent mainly on the conflicting testimony of prejudiced and interested parties. Furthermore, every change in party control means that the work must all be done over again under the pressure of public clamor. The leaders have inevitably in the past been more concerned with opposition as a minority than with constructive legislation. However great their ability, however good their intentions, they inevitably find themselves very much at sea. Recent tariff bills reflect this condition clearly. Despite the conscientious work of a few majority members of the ways and means committee, the various bills have been full of inconsistency both as to classifications and rates which are justified on no principle, but are clearly the result of haste and inadequate information.

"In view of the fact that the welfare of producers, merchants and consumers are so much affected by technical problems, and the interests of all these classes are so dependent upon the mere guesses which are made in many cases as to classification and rates, I believe that the business men of the country will continue to demand some addition to our administrative and legislative machinery by which problems of this kind shall be settled on the basis of unprejudiced, nonpartisan investigation.

"Such a policy does not mean that the power of Congress in the matter of tariff-making would be decreased in any way. In fact, it would be increased, as power is always increased through additional knowledge. I personally believe that these results can best be obtained by an independent commission, but the essentials are continuity of action, independence of tenure, broad appreciation of business and economic problems, and close co-operation with the ways and means committee."

KITTERY TO CARIBOU.

John Kelley, seaman, aged sixty-four, of Calais, committed suicide by drowning in Portland harbor Thursday. Ill health was the cause.

United States Marshal Henry W. Mayo has appointed Arthur F. Buswell, of Stetson, deputy United States marshal to succeed Ferd E. Stevens, of Lewiston, resigned.

Fred L. Means, aged forty-eight, master mechanic of the Pepperell mills at Biddeford, was instantly killed Saturday, when a block of granite weighing a ton, which was being lowered from a window, fell upon him.

Two more democratic postmasters for Maine were appointed Thursday. One is E. Frost at Pittsfield, where a hard fight was made to keep in the republican incumbent. The other is Frank T. Clarkson, at Kittery Point.

Martin P. Townsend, aged fifty-eight, of Newport, was instantly killed Friday in the Newport Box & Novelty Co.'s mill. He was attempting to shift a belt on a moving pulley with a stick, when the stick caught, the free end striking him over the heart, killing him instantly.

Two farm fires, both attributed to traps, occurred near Pittsfield last Wednesday night. The buildings of Ellery Jones, on the Canaan road were burned, with two horses, eight head of cattle and a large flock of poultry. The second set of buildings destroyed was on the Carr place, on the Smyrna road, owned by J. Manson Brooks.

The Maine Central railroad has forbidden all its agents to accept for transportation shipments of intoxicating liquors, which they have reason to believe are intended for illegal sale, and in order to make the embargo on such goods the railroad given further orders to its agents forbidding them to deliver at destination any shipments of this nature, known or suspected to be for illegal sale.

What is planned to be the largest parade yet held in the interest of woman suffrage will take place in New York city May 3.

STATE OF MAINE.

A PROCLAMATION.

In compliance with a recent and well-established custom, based upon a modern statute of the State founded in a feeling of appreciation of the return of spring, I do hereby appoint

Friday, the sixteenth day of May, as Arbor day, and recommend that it be observed by the people of the State, especially by all teachers and students in our common schools and other institutions of learning; and by our benevolent and charitable institutions; and by the family in the home as a day for the planting of trees, shrubs and vines, the setting out of flowers, and the sowing of seeds for the adornment and beauty of the State, thus making it more attractive to all our people.

WILLIAM T. HAINES, Governor.

Judge Emery's contribution to Hancock county history, reciting the part it took in adopting the constitution of Maine, printed in another column, will be read with interest.

And now to Ellsworth's hardwood factory, knitting mill, foundry and machine works, carriage factories, snow-plow factory, shoe factory, lumber mills, paper-box factory, glove factory, garages, is to be added a creamery. Next!

A most interesting article relating to the work of Rev. Albert J. Lord, of Meriden, Conn., may be found elsewhere in this issue. Mr. Lord is an Ellsworth boy; Mrs. Lord is the daughter of Hosea B. Phillips, of this city. Their friends are always pleased to hear of their success.

The sketch on tariff-making by Prof. H. C. Emery, chairman of the late tariff board, in an address recently before the Boston Chamber of Commerce, contains views which will meet very general approval, although it is hopeless that they will be considered or acted upon in the bill which is now being steam-rolled through this democratic Congress.

Bar Harbor has adopted auto-speed regulations, and what is more to the point, is enforcing them. Ellsworth has speed regulations, but stops there. Autos are driven much beyond the speed limits in Ellsworth every day.

COUNTY GOSSIP.

Friday, May 16, has been designated as Arbor day by Gov. Haines.

Hon. Elmer P. Spofford, of Deer Isle, has again been elected grand master of the grand lodge of Maine, F. and A. M.

Eleanor, Frederick and Alton Donnell, the children of Walter Donnell and wife, of Ashville, boast of nine grandparents and great-grandparents.

With the admission of autos to Bar Harbor, the Mt. Desert toll-bridge is experiencing a revival of business which smacks of the ante-railroad days.

By legislative act at the recent session the town of Mt. Desert was given the right to vote upon the question of admitting automobiles. It seems to be practically decided that no special town meeting will be called for the taking of the vote until fall, many of the residents of the town believing that it will be wise to wait and see how Bar Harbor prospers under the admission of motor vehicles.

Indian relics have been found at Parker point, Bluehill, recently. Last year Prof. J. W. Hill sold his property to Coburn Haskell, of Cleveland, O., who has had the foundation laid for a large cottage to be built this season. In digging drains, the men unearthed Indian relics. The articles number about forty, and include tomahawks, arrowheads, knives, a stone hatchet and other things. They were found at a depth of from twelve to fifteen inches.

Ermine B. Spear, who says her maiden name was Clinkard, and that she was born in Tremont, claims to be the widow of Daniel Howard Spear, a former mayor of Bath and prominent shipbuilder. She says she met Spear in Boston in 1908, and married him in New York city in May, 1909, a month after his first wife's death. The marriage was kept secret, she says, because of the short time that had elapsed after his first wife's death. She failed to establish her claim to the satisfaction of the judge of probate of Sagadahoc county at the hearing yesterday, and her petition for an allowance for herself and her child was denied.

The 108-year-old schooner Polly, with her historical record familiar to the whole New England coast, has been purchased by Alfred Johnson, of Boston. Mr. Johnson has acquired the stout little vessel because of a mixture of reverence for antiquities, fondness for boats and civic pride. Although he is a member of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, Mr. Johnson has bought the Polly, not as the representative of any society whatsoever, but simply as an individual—a respecter of ancient things, with a desire of caring for them and preserving them. Thus the old Polly has fallen into good hands.

For a good many years on the Bar Harbor branch of the Maine Central railroad, where a great many go on outings during the summer, excursion rates have been in force. It is now said that these have been discontinued. Passengers between Bangor and Bar Harbor on Sundays for many summers have had the privilege of purchasing tickets, good for the day only, at $1 the round trip. Originally trip-tickets across the ferry from Mt. Desert Ferry to Bar Harbor were 25 cents each way, but for the last few years the single fares have been 50 cents, and a ticket good for both ways 75 cents. Hereafter, it is reported, the charge for tickets across the ferry will be a flat rate of 50 cents each way, and no return tickets at a reduced price.

It is estimated that 700 salmon have been taken from Green lake since the ice went out three weeks ago! By the way, we haven't this year seen that stereotyped Bangor story about the fishing at Green lake being ruined by the fish hatchery. This year the frequenters of Branch pond are complaining, one argument being that the German trout have driven the salmon from the lake. To ease their minds, let us quote from THE AMERICAN of last year, when the Branch pond fish were biting and the Bangor-Green Lake colony were holding a convocation to find out why the fish did not bite in Green lake. At that time the Gossiper said: "Every fisherman knows that there are good days and bad days for fishing, and good years and bad years for certain ponds. While fishing in one pond is good this year, fishing in another near-by pond, where all conditions seem the same, is poor. The man who can tell why fish bite on one day and not on another or one year and not another, has never been born."

"Break" on the Wire.

Two telegraph operators were seated in a downtown cafe recently when an athletic young man and an exceedingly pretty girl entered. They were placed at a table opposite the "key" men, who were sitting side by side in a position facing the girl. As is the custom of the craft when wishing to discuss someone in a public place they telegraphed to each other, using their knives on the plate.

"Peacherino, isn't she?" one ticked to the other. "A tree full," came back the tapping reply. "Wonder who the sack is with her?"

"Search me—looks like a boob tied up with a wren like her." "But they aren't married. If they are, all she needs to do to get a divorce is to exhibit that map of his in court." While the two men were enjoying a huge laugh over their silent joking they were surprised and somewhat alarmed to hear some more "table-knife telegraphy". The "peacherino" was doing it, and she did not look at all pleased, either. "You two would better look out while you are all together," carefully ticked her knife blade while she listened to something her companion was saying. "This sack and boob, as you called him, with the divorce nap, is my husband—boiler-maker by trade. He eats fresh little boob."

A CHURCH NURSERY.

Remarkable Success of Plan Originated by Rev. Albert J. Lord.

Rev. Albert J. Lord, an Ellsworth boy, pastor of the First Congregational church of Meriden, Conn., is the originator of the "church nursery" idea, which has accomplished so much among the young people of his own parish. The Record, of Meriden, tells the story of the origin of "the nursery", and now styled "the beginners' department", and its extension. The article follows:

Rev. Albert J. Lord, pastor of the First Congregational church, has accomplished a great work among the young people of his parish. The congregations on Sunday morning are an object lesson in what can be done among the Sunday school scholars if a pastor sets out to do his work well. Mr. Lord, since October of last year, has seldom stepped behind his pulpit and looked about the church without noting from ninety to 150 young people, all members of the Sunday school, from seven years up to twenty years, in his congregation.

For the past six years or more there has been a class for little tots, from four to six years, in the Sunday school rooms during the morning service in the church. This was arranged by Mr. Lord for the convenience of parents who hesitated to attend church service because of the little folks. Competent teachers have been engaged, and now while parents are enjoying the sermon, the little ones, too, are having a good time, and incidentally acquiring a love for the Sunday school.

This class for children was originally called "The Nursery". Later Mr. Lord gave it its present title, "Beginners' department." Not long ago a New York paper berated a pastor in New Jersey as the first preacher to inaugurate the nursery plan in the church, while, as just stated, Mr. Lord inaugurated the plan six years ago.

Always interested in the children, Mr. Lord believed that they should become attendants at church, and so took the matter up with the church committee. This conference resulted in his starting last October a church service at 4 o'clock in the afternoon for children from seven years upward. The first meeting had an attendance of twenty. Mr. Lord at this meeting recited the plans he proposed for having them attend a church service, and the children entered into the spirit of the occasion with earnestness. He taught them several of the old hymns that are sung in the church services, and a prayer to say when they bowed their heads upon entering church.

So fascinated did the children become with this afternoon church service that the attendance increased with leaps and bounds; first to fifty and then to 100.

When the attendance at the afternoon service passed the 100 mark, Mr. Lord placed them all in the church attendants at the regular morning preaching service. He instructed all who came with their parents to occupy pews with them, and arranged seats for those whose parents did not attend. He discovered in this way that there was fully 50 per cent. of the children whose parents were not attendants in the church; they came to the service alone.

When it became necessary to divide the juvenile congregation, Mr. Lord took the children from seven to thirteen years of age and formed the junior congregation. This has now reached a membership of 140. A plan was formulated whereby it was possible for the pastor to keep a complete record of the young people who attended the morning service.

Each juvenile attendant has a number, and this number is transmitted to the helpers at the door by the children when they enter the church in the morning. By this means Mr. Lord knows at the end of the service just who and how many attended. The attendance has been most satisfactory throughout the weeks that have followed since this plan was put into operation. The attendance is never below ninety and usually reaches 110 children.

Another group of children, from fourteen to twenty years of age, is designated as the church-going league. This is composed of 180 members. It is made up of the scholars from the Sunday school, not including the intermediate department; in fact, the entire attendance of the young people is from the regular Sunday school. Mr. Lord has furnished the junior congregation with a sermon book. In this they write the text, subject of the sermon and the number of minutes each sermon consumes. These books, when filled, are turned over to Mr. Lord.

That the pastor and his wife may keep in close touch with the children, a social is held on certain days from 4 to 6 o'clock, when the pastor gives a talk on religion, games are played and refreshments served. These socials are enjoyed alike by the junior congregation and the church-going league. The socials for the latter are held in the evening.

Mr. Lord has found that his work among the children has netted great results. Not only has it brought unheard-of interest among the children, but has, also, been the means of bringing many parents of the children to the morning service.

In speaking of his work Mr. Lord said that what he had done could be done by any pastor who was willing to make room for the children in the church. The sight of the happy, smiling faces at the morning services would, he believed, repay any pastor for the added work entailed.

Counting Uncle Sam's Money. The greatest count of money and securities in the history of the world began at the treasury department on April 1, when John Burke took the oath of office as treasurer of the United States, succeeding Carmi A. Thompson.

Uncle Sam requires that the retiring treasurer's record of the transfer of funds be verified by a count of notes, coin and securities in the treasury. It generally requires two to five months to make the count. A government mathematician has figured out that it would take one person 300 years to verify Mr. Thompson's records. Ordinarily every note, bond and other security is counted. Unless a shortage or error is discovered, the gold and silver stored in bags containing $1,000 each, usually is weighed, a test bag being balanced against all others for verification. Armed guards stand over the counters and workmen.

Correspondence.

Hancock County and the Constitution. ELLSWORTH, May 2, 1913.

In reading of the formation and adoption of our Maine constitution, I note the following items which may be of interest to the people of Hancock county:

The convention to draft a constitution for proposed new State met in Portland Oct. 13, 1819. The delegates from what is now Hancock county were as follows: From Castine—William Abbott, who was made a member of the committee on credentials and also of the committee on the style and title of the new State. He was a graduate of Harvard, a lawyer, and register of probate for sixteen years. He was the first representative from Castine in the new legislature, and again in 1823, 1826 and 1827.

From Bucksport—Samuel Little, a lawyer. He served in the legislature in 1821 and 1826. Samuel M. Pond, also a delegate from Bucksport, was a lawyer. He was afterward representative to the legislature for six terms, and was State senator in 1826.

From Bluehill—Andrew Witham, merchant and shipbuilder. He was State senator in 1820, 1821, 1823 and 1829, and representative in 1831.

From Ellsworth—Mark Shepard, merchant and shipbuilder. He built and did business on "Shepard's wharf", so-called, down on the west side of Union river. He was representative to the legislature in 1822, 1823 and 1824.

From Surry—Leonard Jarvis, who was a member of the committee to draft the address recommending the constitution to the people.

From Trenton—Peter Haynes. From Sullivan—George Hinman. From Deer Isle—Asa Green, for many years constable and deputy sheriff; also Ignatius Haskell, merchant and shipbuilder, and said to have the busiest and richest man in his town. He built with his own funds a meetinghouse and sold pews to such as desired to purchase.

From Gouldsboro—Samuel Davis. His seat was contested on the ground that he had left town after his election, but the convention allowed him to retain his seat. The votes of the Hancock county towns on the acceptance of the draft of the constitution may be of interest, and I give them below:

Table with 3 columns: Towns, Yes, No. Rows include Bluehill, Brooksville, Bucksport, Castine, Deer Isle, Eden, Ellsworth, Gouldsboro, Mt Desert, Oriand, Penobscot, Sedgwick, Sullivan, Surry, Trenton.

It seems that Bluehill and Brooksville were heavily against adopting the constitution, and that Sedgwick was against it by one majority. The smallest of the vote is also noticeable. Evidently the people were giving more thought to getting a living than to making constitutions.

Yours truly, LUCIUS A. EMERY

OBITUARY. FRED B. M'GIVERIN. Ellsworth friends of Fred B. McGiverin will be grieved to learn of his death in Holyoke, Mass., on Tuesday of last week. He was the son of James J. McGiverin and wife, formerly of Ellsworth. For many years, until last summer, he had spent his vacations here, and had made many warm friends.

Young McGiverin had been in poor health for the past year, but his condition had not been considered really serious until the Saturday before his death, when he was stricken with meningitis. He had been a most valued and popular employe of the T. S. Childs shoe-store for many years up to the time of his illness a year ago, and while in the employ of the store he made many friends throughout the city of Holyoke.

He was a young man of sterling character, with a pleasant and cheerful manner which made him a general favorite. He was a popular member of the Knights of Columbus.

Besides his parents, he leaves one brother—James H., and a sister—Miss Elizabeth C. Dorsey, a well-known nurse; also an aunt—Mrs. Mary Goggins, of this city.

Made Fatal Mistake. Rufus E. Page, of Augusta, a native of North Sedgwick, aged sixty-nine years, died Saturday forenoon, as a result of drinking a small quantity of disinfectant which he mistook for medicine.

Mr. Page had risen at 4.30 to get breakfast for his son Edwin, who left for his work about a half hour later. After his son had gone, Mr. Page, not feeling well, took the disinfectant, thinking it medicine. Shortly afterward he aroused his wife, saying: "I guess I've made an awful mistake. I guess I've killed myself. I've taken that stuff of Mabel's." Physicians were summoned, but the man failed rapidly, and died about 10 o'clock.

Mr. Page was a veteran of the Civil war, in which he saw hard service. He leaves a widow and eight children.

CITY MEETING.

PETITIONS FOR THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER.

TO EXPERIMENT WITH OIL FOR SPRINKLING STREETS—ROLLS OF ACCOUNTS.

At the regular meeting of the city government last evening, the full board was present, Mayor Cunningham presiding.

Petitions for street light, street sprinkling, sidewalk, and road improvement were present.

Rolls of accounts were passed as follows:

ROLL OF ACCOUNTS NO. 3. Table with columns: Fund, Name, Amount. Lists various departments like Police, Fire, School, and their respective expenses.

STREET COMMISSIONER'S ROLL. Table with columns: Item, Amount. Lists highways, sidewalks, bridge, and rock crushing costs.

TEACHERS' SALARY ROLL. Table with columns: School, Amount. Lists salaries for common and high schools.

OTHER BUSINESS. It was voted to allow $50 to Wm. H. H. Rice post, G. A. R., for Memorial day expenses; also the free use of Hancock hall for the union service Sunday evening, May 24, and for the Memorial day exercises.

gor road, from Oscar Staples' place to George E. Maddocks' place, was referred to committee on highways, with power.

The committee on streets was authorized to build a drain or sewer from the foot of Dean street, across Water street to the river.

The resignation of E. J. Walsh as auditor was accepted.

Bill of Superintendent-of-Schools Clara O. Hopkins, for $25 for taking school census, was laid on the table.

The finance committee was authorized to negotiate a temporary loan of $4,000.

Petition of tax-payers and business men of Ellsworth Falls for the sprinkling of streets in that section brought up discussion as to the use of oil for sprinkling the State road, at least, over which automobile travel is increasing yearly.

To sprinkle the streets at Ellsworth Falls with water would necessitate the purchase of another sprinkling cart. Two applications of oil a year, it is claimed, would keep the road dustless and save it from the wear and tear of automobile travel.

The mayor was instructed to purchase about 1,000 gallons of oil for use on a section of the road as an experiment.

Bill of W. H. Butler, $20, as inspector of buildings for 1912, was allowed.

George Hamilton, who has been driving one of the fire teams on trial, was confirmed by the board as a regular driver.

William Nevelis again appeared before the board to present his claim for damages for injuries to a horse because of alleged defect in the highway near the woolen mill in November, 1911.

The mayor and Ald. Moor were chosen a special committee to ascertain the status of the claim, which has several times been before the board.

The committee to which was referred the petition for sidewalk on the Shore road, at the last meeting, reported that about one-half mile of walk had been built, from Parker Grindle's place north.

The committee to which was referred application of C. S. Johnston for permission to construct wagon scales in front of his house on Hancock street, recommended that the permit be not granted. The report was accepted.

Red Squirrel the True American.

"If the red squirrels do not have an actual game of tag, they have something so near it that I cannot tell the difference," writes John Burroughs, in Harper's Magazine. "Just now I see one in hot pursuit of another on the stone wall; both are apparently going at the top of the speed. They make a red streak over the dark-gray stones. When the pursuer seems to overtake the pursued and becomes 'it', the race is reversed, and away they go on the back track with the same fleetness of the hunter and the hunted, till things are reversed again. I have seen them engaged in the same game in tree-tops, each one having his innings by turn."

"The gray squirrel comes and goes, but the red squirrel we have always with us. He will live where the gray will starve. He is a true American; he has nearly all the national traits—nervous energy, quickness, resourcefulness, pertinence, not to say impudence and conceit. He is not altogether lovely or blameless. He makes war on the chipmunk, he is a robber of birds' nests, and is destructive of the orchard fruit. Nearly every man's hand is against him, yet he thrives, and long may he continue to do so!"

For Spring Humors

And tired feelings I heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I have used in my family for years and think a very fine medicine. I had salt rheum badly on my face, and humors that seemed to come from or be developed by vaccination. I knew my blood must be in very poor condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I took a few bottles. The humor entirely disappeared, and I have had no trouble from it since. I cordially recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to my friends and neighbors and to the general public." Mrs. Bertram

WEST FRANKLIN.

The stone-cutters are on their annual strike. The tent caterpillars are unusually plentiful this spring. Caleb Bradbury has moved his family into the Lewis house. Mrs. Janie Stanley was called here Wednesday from Holden by the death of her grandfather, W. F. Cousins. The noon train has set two fires of late, the first one burning over George Coombs' field and considerable young growth belonging to Shirley Dunbar. The other, on Saturday, burned over Shirley Dunbar's field and destroyed the cemetery fence. Had it not been for the timely arrival of two men, there would have been a serious fire. The fire had reached the woods before it was subdued. Section hands should follow the trains until the danger of starting fires is over.

OBITUARY.

William F. Cousins, whose death was briefly mentioned in last week's AMERICAN, was born in Ellsworth seventy-seven years ago. Fifty-five years ago he married Miss Augusta Stanley, who survives him. Six children were born to them, four of whom are living. He is survived also by two brothers—Lorenzo of Bath, and Frank, of this town; and two sisters—Mrs. Mary A. Bragdon, of Franklin, and Mrs. Etta Dyer, of Brockton, Mass. Mr. Cousins was a veteran of the Civil war. He was a good citizen and neighbor, and had been a resident of this town for nearly fifty years. He was engaged in lumbering, and was in California among the mountains for a few years. For the past few years Mr. and Mrs. Cousins have lived with their youngest daughter, Millie, wife of Alonzo Wilbur, who have been untiring in their efforts to make life pleasant for them.

He had returned to his native Bluehill on a visit, and she accompanied him on his return, via the isthmus route, in May, 1858, to Larkins' Landing, in Washington township, where he had taken up a ranch near Mowry's. On this ranch they lived the life of pioneers until 1861, when they moved to Irvington, where she had resided continuously until her death, March 28, 1913, surviving her husband twelve years. I am improving fast, feel better and am getting my flesh back again. Vinol has done me a world of good." Forty years ago people did not know what a telephone was.

Today, in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, alone, there are over 475,000 telephones in daily use.

You Realize the Need and Convenience.

Why not install a telephone of your own instead of bothering your neighbor by using his every time you want something?

Wage Earner's Problem

The wage earner is constantly facing this problem: "How long will my present job hold out, or how can I better my present condition?" An unsettled business policy is responsible often for this uncertainty.

Advertising eliminates to a great extent the need of this feeling. It standardizes a name, a product and a business; it shapes a definite policy for the manufacturing concern; it constantly increases the sales; it makes for uniform prices; it steadies the trade, and, Mr. Wage Earner, advertising makes you surer of holding what you have, and as it develops a business, gives you greater opportunity for advancement.

It is the aim of the Pilgrim Publicity Association to forward BUSINESS PROMOTION and HONEST PUBLICITY in every way possible. Facts and statistics relating to New England business or New England conditions will help.

Communications will be very welcome.
