At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Royal, Sept. 10, their daughter, Miss Grace Dorothy, was married to Pearley H. Benson, of Haverhill, Mass., Rev. R. B. Mathews performing the single ring service. It was a quiet home wedding, attended only by relatives. The couple was unattended. The bride was gowned in white chiffon over white silk, with lace and pearl trimmings. Following the wedding, refreshments were served. Many beautiful and useful presents were received by the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Benson will remain at the home of the bride's parents for the present Mr. Benson is head cutter in the Mutual Shoemakers' factory.

The September social of the Three B class of the Baptist Sunday school was held at the home of Mrs. C. I. Staples Thursday evening. A large number was present. Miss Alma Wilson and Henry W. Sargent joined with Mrs. Staples in arranging for the social, and there were no dull moments. In place of games there were contests, some of which provoked a good deal of merriment. The advertisement contest was a star feature, and was well gotten up. In the geographical contest, New England proved to be a most unfamiliar region-for some -while books and authors got a trifle mixed in the closing contest. Refreshments, dainty and delicious, were served. The company broke up at a late hour, expressing their hearty appreciation of the good time that they had enjoyed. Besides the regulars, there were present Miss Marion Wyman, Miss Frances Fernald, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Bessie F Austin, of Sparks, Nev.

NORTH ELDSWORTH FAIR.

Good Exhibition and Good Time Promised for Next Week.

The only Ellsworth fair, that of the North Ellsworth Farmers' club, will take place Wednesday and Thursday of next

Ellsworth people will turn out in force to patronize this fair, which is accom-plishing so much for the advancement of agriculture in this section. Some of the farms and orchards of North Ellsworth would be a revelation to many right here in Ellsworth, who have little idea of the advancement made in agriculture in that section in the past few years.

The fair, which has been largely instrumental in this development, will reflect the work of these up-to-date farmers by an excellent exhibit.

This year the horse-racing is cut out of the North Ellsworth fair. It will be a purely agricultural fair, but with amusements and attractions for all outside of the agricultural exhibit.

On the second day of the fair, an oldfashioned New England dinner will be served. The fair will close with a dance Thursday night.

There will be reduced fares on the railroad both days. Teams meet all trains.

WELCOMED HOME. Dr. Charles W. Campbell and Bride

at Nanton, Alberta. The News, of Nanton, Alberta, prints an extended report of a reception given to Dr. Charles W. Campbell and his bride (Miss Marion Joy) on their arrival at their home there. The News says in part:

Wednesday evening | Sept. 31 a very suc cessful surprise party was held in the Baptist church. The members of the party most surprised were Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Campbell The church was beautifully decorated with sweet peas and flowering plants and the large company of Dr. Campbell's friends and patients spent a right happy time. After re-freshments had been served, a musical and elocutionary program was delivered. Rev. Don Campbell, who acted as chairman. spoke of the appreciation in which Dr. Campbell was held in town, and gave a hearty and sincere welcome to his bride. He then sprung the greatest surprise of the night on them by requesting Miss Lillian Kopas to present the bride with a more tangible proof of their appreciation and welcome, in the shape of a silver bake-dish, which had been subscribed for by Dr. Campbell's patients and friends. The doctor made a brief speech in

Killed by a Fall.

The body of Lewis H. Fernald, whose death by accident at Mathis, Ga., Tuesday, Sept. 9, was briefly reported in THE AMERICAN last week, arrived here Monday. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the home of his parents, William H. Fernald and wife, at Elisworth Falls, Rev. P. A. A. Killam, officiating. Interment at Juniper cemetery.

Further details of the manner in which Mr. Fernald was killed have been received by the parents from the Hardaway Contracting Co., by which he was employed on dam construction work.

Mr. Fernald fell from a concrete form which had been hoisted about forty feet, striking on the dam.

"Harry," said Bess, "I've been think ing what an awful thing it is for a girl to trust her whole future to a man, pot knowing whether he's going to make a good husband or a horrid one. I've a good mind to break our engage-

"Strange, isn't it? I was thinking the same thing about a man's tying himself up for life to a woman. My uncle says a man runs an awful risk when he marries.'

"How should be know? He's never been married."

"I've no doubt that your aunt, who is an elderly maiden, put all this distrust into your head. I've often heard her say she wouldn't marry the best man in the world."

"Aunt Martha has a very clear idea of men's faults."

"So has my Uncle Jim of women's shortcomings. But, as I said a moment ago. I've been thinking myself that it's like taking a cold plunge to be married. If you think you don't care to risk it perhaps we'd better

She wouted at this and bent her eyes down on a locket she was toying with. "Uncle Jim says," he continued.

"that marriage is all very well so long as the spooning lasts, but just as soon as a couple come down to the real thing the girl discovers that she basn't got exactly what she wanted, or the fellow finds he's made a bull, or both do, and the fracas begins. Now, suppose we stop spooning and treat each other in that friendly way married people do. We'd find out the cause of future dissatisfaction and could make up our minds with deliberation whether we'd better risk it or not."

"That's a good idea. When shall we begin-now?" "No; the next time we meet."

He didn't care to begin now, because it was only 11 o'clock at night and he was quite sure he would wish to spoon till 1. So they sat locked in each other's arms till 2, when they made preparations for parting, which required half an hour more, and finally succeeded in dragging themselves away from each other at 3. They were to begin their humdrum matrimonial treatment at their next meeting, and in order to be well prepared he was not to call again for three days. When the time was up he had nerved himself to act like a man who had been married ten years. He gave her a perfunctory kiss and, throwing himself into an easy chair, asked if anything new had turned up since he saw her last. She gave him a scorn ful glance, made no reply and, taking a seat in another part of the room. took up a book she had been rending.

He yawned and, taking a cigarette

"Been to your aunt's today?" he asked. "No. Is your uncle well?"

Another silence, during which he took up a magazine from a table, turned over the leaves and threw it down Then he glanced in her direction and saw that the book she was reading, or, rather, pretending to read, was upside down, pictures and all.

"I don't believe this test plan is at all necessary." 'I-don't- think so."

'I'm sure there are no disagreeable features about you that would cause me to wish myself unmarried."

You won't treat me badly, will you. Harry, dear?"

The promise was sealed with a kiss. "Must you go so early?"

The purposes of this column are succincily stated to the title and motto-it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and hopeful. Bookkeeping's easy work; Being a cook is biuffing;

It's a cinch to clerk; Art isn't work-its floffing. A factory job? That's play-

Like shoving a baby carriage; But the woman who earns her pay Is the woman who works a marriage.

Bookkeeping day and night; Cooking without cook's wages; Clerking without the right To stop at the dead-tired stages;

Treading her own machine, Urging her feet to hurry;

Using her art to screen

Dreaming of work in bed, Serving her brood at table;

Always seething ahead Alert, for she must be able

To waken at stranger sounds. To waken at sudden entry— To startion her endless rounds-

A feminine life shift sentry. Man with his subtle wit Praises his wife's vocation;

He'd better, for if she'd quit Picture his consternation Lords of the earth, beware;

For we who have struggled through it, We of the clan can swear

Dear M. B. Friends:

As the rain Thursday morning caused the postponement of our M. B. reunion to Friday, the report of the gathering does not appear this week; but a member of the was unanimously elected to the privilege of describing the various pleasures and enjoyments of the day.

The following remembrances were read at the conclusion of the dinner:

WINTER HARBOR, Sept. 8. Dear Aunt Madge:

I would like to be with you at Contention Cove Sept. 11. It would be a long distance to carry dishes, but I could eat my bread and butter, without any for the sake having

"more time to talk".] |||I send_greetings to the sisters and their Johns, hoping that conditions will be favorabie for aldelightful time for all, and that Aunt Maria will be able to meet with you. She wrote to me sometime ago that her hand was getting much better. You may be assured that I shall be with you in spirit if not in body on reunion day. Sincerely yours,

WEST LYNN, MASS., Sept. 15.

Dear Aunt Madge: Sorry to say my vacation will be one week too late for the reunion. Shall always cherish the pleasant memories of the one held last year. Was sorry to learn of Aunt Maria's meeting with an accident; hope she and Uncle Mark and Carolyn and the rest of the cian will be present and be favored with pleasant weather.

Have thoroughly enjoyed the column this year, but not alone, for a neighbor frequently asks for the loan of the paper and appreciates the "benefits" derived from it. Hope the sisters will not leave you to fill the space this year, as they have in the past, not because you are not equal to the occasion, but it seems it is the duty of each sister to do her part. Do as you think best with poem and hints. Best L. E. T.

DEDHAM, Sept. 11, 1918.

Dear Aunt Madge: As I fear I shall not be able to meet with the others at the Wyman cottage, I am sending a little machine-made verse. It is so late it may not reach you in time to be used, but if so, nothing will be lost.

Dear friends, who in gladness are gathering to-day In the spot where fond memories ever hold 'Neath the shade of the trees, in the sound of the sea. In the place of first meeting, my heart is with thee.

In spirit I see you as hand claspeth hand, In welcoming each of the "Mutual" band. I hear the gind voices, the laughter so free, And wish in your circle I numbered might be.

Yet a feeling of sadness will temper the joy. As you think of the hostess, once wont to employ Hospitality's acts, all so boundless and free,
And the others, whose faces no more we shall

"Tis sad that these links must be missed from the chain; But echoes still come from their far-away plane; We lose but the faces, the touch of the hand, Though invisible, yet numbered are they with the band.

May the fates be propitious, the sky cloud-The number be great and the hearts be all true, reusion again be enjoyed as of yore, when cluner is over, none need to cry 'more''!

With heartiest wishes for the best meeting yet, and greetings to all, from

This concludes the written greetings from those who could not attend, but if all of you absent ones could have heard the applause with which they were received and the inquiries for and mention of those not there, they would certainly send words of greeting and remembrance when not atle to meet with the clan.

On my return from the reunion, I found the following card awaiting me: Dear Aunt Madge:

Just a line: I am on my way to Bar Harbor hospital. I hope I will get some cheery letters and cards while there. My address: Mrs. Frank E. Swett, Bar Harbor hospital, Bar Herbor. Lovingly, JENNIE.

Homen Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from some form of feminine disorder is told that an operation is necessary, it of course

The very thought of the hospital operating table and the surgeon's knife strikes terror to her heart, and no wonder. It is quite true that some of these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but thousands of women have avoided the necessity of an operation by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This fact is attested by the grateful letters they write to us after their health has been restored.

These Two Women Prove Our Claim.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely staighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work possible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an opera-tion. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appe-tite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine." —Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Me.

Charlotte, N. C .- "I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. If I even lifted a chair it would cause a hemorrhage. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetato take Lydia E. Pinkham's vegeta-ble Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health and am the mother of a nice baby girl. You can use this letter to help other suffering women."—Mrs. Rosa Sims, 16 Wyona St., Charlotte, N. C.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman submit to a surgical operation without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others-why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for fe-male ills. No one sick with woman's allments does justice to herself if she does not try this fa-mous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

solved through the stained part. To remove shine from black clothes, use one ounce rock ammonia, one-half ounce castile soap in a pint of hot water; when dissolved, dip a small sponge into the mixture and gently rub over the spots.

Home-made clothes-drier for kitchen; Remove the cover from an old umbrella and enamel the frame white to prevent rust. Suspend the frame from the ceiling near the range. On ironing day it will be found useful for small articles. When not required, the frame can be shut and unbooked from the ceiling, and will take up no room.

RECIPES.

BOILED FRUIT CAKE — One-half cup of lard, one each of sugar and water, one teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, two cups seeded raisins and a pinch of salt. Boil for two minutes, set aside to cool and when lukewarm add two cups of flour, and one teaspoonful soda; flavor with vanilla, and bake in a moderate oven. -Alexia.

EDEN FAIR.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITS THE FINEST EVER.

GOOD RACING - EXCELLENT EXHIBITS OF STOCK - GOOD TIME GENER-ALLY - PREMIUM LIST.

Every fair given by the Eden agricultural society seems to be an improvement on its predecessor, and the twenty-fourth fair, held last week, seems not to have broken the rule.

For the only drawback this year the weather, not the management, was responsible—the second day being postponed on account of the threatening

This year's fair had the usual featuresincluding side-shows, fakers, merry-goround. The hall exhibits were of intense Handsome vegetables and tempting fruits were displayed on all sides. The big seventy-pound Jumbo pumpkin exhibited by E. P. Higgins, of of Indian Point, attracted unusual attention, while the display of preserved fruits, beans, peas and pastry cooking could not escape the eye of any. A section of the hall was given over to an exhibit of fancy work and embroidery.

Poultry and livestock were exhibited. there being some fine birds and animals

The weather on Friday was all that could be desired. The attendance was a record-breaker, and the fair officials were greatly pleased with the interest shown by people from all over the island. The grounds were filled during the afternoon, and the fakirs, refreshment tents and amusement places reaped a golden harvest from the happy throng.

The problem of feeding the crowd was serious one, but was well met, for besides the numerous refreshment tents, the spacious dining-hall, in charge of Mrs. A. M. Thomas and Mrs. Flora Allen, provided excellent chicken dinners.

The fair closed Friday with a dance in the evening.

The officers of the society are: President, Charles L. Shand, Bar Harbor; secretary, Leon L. Smith, Salisbury Cove; treasurer, Charles F. King, Eden; directors-C. L. Shand, P. R. Leland, A. S. Bunker, J. Lee Fogg, Lester Alley, George Fogg, J. E. Bunker, J. H. Stalford.

THE RACES.

There was good racing both days of the fair. Charles H. Leland, of Ellsworth, acted most efficiently as starter.

WEDNESDAY S RACES. Colt Race. Purse $50. S E Todd, E H Greely, Ellsworth..... 1 1 Time, 2.55, 2.52, 2.48.

Three-minute Class. Purse, $76. Jack Vassar, C H Shuman 1 1

The farmer's race, for a mile nearest to four minutes, brought out six starters. J. L. Fogg, last to come under the wire, won first money, his time being exactly four minutes. L. E. Smith was second; time 3.59. John Renwick, third; 3.58.

The peg race, unharnessing, harnessing and going one-half mile, was won by George Cleaves; J. L. Thom, second; Waiter Sargent, third.

FRIDAY'S RACES.

There were three races on the card for

Friday. The results were as follows: Free-for-all: Won by Baby Lawrence, wned by Marion Newman, of Southwest Harbor and driven by Fred Wescott; M A Greely's Daniel O'Dell, second; George Cleaves' Frank C, third. Best time, 2.31 1/4.

Artificial Ears.

Artificial ears are so skillfully made that they may with difficulty be distinguished from natural ones, it is said. When the person who has lost an ear applies to the manufacturer for a substitute there is made a mold of the remaining ear. If there be left any part of the other a mold of that part must be taken to assist in the fitting of the artificial. Manufacturers assert that no two ears are alike and that it takes a skillful workman to prepare an ear from the mold or molds. When finished, says Harper's Weekly, the new ear is pasted on the stump or simply set in the position of the lost ear. It is really only the first artificial ear that is expensive, the chief cost pertaining to the making of the mold. Vulcanized rubber, which can be bent and twisted, has been found to constitute the best material for the making of artificial ears.

The Two Fine Things of Life.

Because it is an elementary thing to do it requires courage to buy or build a house. Buy? Build? The universal head becomes a pendulum of warning. There are just two fine things open to most of us between the cradle and the grave. One is to marry and the other is to acquire a home, and the modern answer to both proposals is the same, "Don't," so greatly do men fear life, so exorbitantly do they purpose to enjoy it. Philip Gilbert Ham-erton, in "The Intellectual Life," pointed out that the invention of railways had resulted in a return to one of the most marked phases of barbarism, a nomadic life. Since he wrote we have invented the motorcar and the flat. and fixity of residence, which is a distinctive mark of civilization, has become its derision or despair.-London T. P's Weekly.

A Coaxer For Recruits.

Nowadays the authorities do not advertise so alluringly for recruits as they did in the past. A notice issued in 1801 by British authorities calls on men to join the light dragoons, in which regiment, they are informed, "you will be mounted on the finest horses in the world, with superb clothing and the richest accouterments; your pay and privileges are equal to 2 guineas a week; your society is courted; you are admired by the fair, which, combined with the chance of getting swished to a buxom widow or brushing with a rich heiress, renders the situation truly enviable and desirable. Young men out of employment or oth erwise uncomfortable, there is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads to fortune. Nick it!"

A Real Lottery of Marriage

By MARY T. BRYCE

I grew up with a full realization of the great risks attending marriage. I wished that a husband might be selected for me, as marriages are made in foreign countries, especially among If, however, I had left the matter to my parents both of them would have died leaving me an old

And being an old maid was a horror to me. I wished to be a wife, the mother of children, the feminine head of a home. My trouble was to make a se lection of the man to be the masculine head. This may sound amiss, but the truth is there were several men who had proposed to me. They were all good men, but I dared not risk matrimony with any of them.

"I know what's the matter with you," said my friend, Mrs. Seamon. "You have never met a man of your own caliber-one who, the moment you saw him, you would wish to possess."

"It wouldn't make any difference," I replied. "I would not marry him. The only way for me to marry is not to know who the bridegroom is to be and be married in the dark. Once tied I would have to get used to it, I sup-

"I am not sure but you are right. know such a man as I have described to you. You might be married to him, just as you say, in the dark without ever having seen him. He has never seen you and was only yesterday making the same plaint you have made.'

To make a long story short, I became engaged to John Chesborough, knowing only his name and what Mrs. Seamon had said about him. We were to be married in a dark room with not a ray of light in it. As soon as the knot was tied the lights (electric) were to be all turned on at once, and after a few moments' conversation we and a few relatives who would be present were to adjourn to another room and partake of a wedding breakfast. Then we were to part, not to come together again until mutually agreed. It might be a month, a year or never,

Had I been about to marry a man I knew and was to live with him from the day of our marriage I should have during the engagement been on the border of nervous collapse, especially on standing up to be married. As it was, it seemed to me that I was waiting to make a trip or sign a deed to a piece of property or something like that. And when I went into that dark room and my father led me to the spot where I was to be married I was perfectly indifferent as to what I was about to do.

Perhaps this does not correctly express my feelings. I felt a pleasure akin to gambling. I was like one who expects to draw a prize or a blank. How I did hope I would draw a prize! And, if I should draw a blank, what then? Simply this: If I didn't fancy him I would not live with him. The advantage in the plan was that there was something strong enough to bind us together till we might begin a weld-

Having been put in position, the clergyman began the services. At that art where he placed my hand in that of the groom I knew that I should like him. How? There is something in the clasp of a hand that draws us to another or repels us. I felt that the hand clasping mine was a hand of vigor and tenderness combined, and the moment I clasped it I felt a current passing through it and up my arm, distributing Itself through my being.

From that moment I was so absorbed that I forgot to make the responses, and the clergyman was obliged to wait till I had done so before proceeding. When the end came and I heard the words, "man and wife" pronounced I was in a delirium of anxlety. For the first time I dreaded disappointment, but I had no time to indulge my emotions. In an instant every light was turned on at once. I turned and looked up into a handsome, manly, kindly face that looked down upon mine with an encouraging smile. A clapping of hands sounded in my ears, but since my whole being was engrossed in what I believed to be a prize I had drawn in the lottery of marriage it seemed to me in some faraway theater. My husband offered me his arm, and we led the little procession of attendants to the adjoining room, where the breakfast was served. It had been agreed that there should be no congratulations, since they might be painful. But we were no sooner seated at the table than some one proposed a toast to "the first and second prize, the former drawn by the groom, the latter by the bride." I tried not to show my relief and happiness, but in spite of all my efforts a continual smile hovered on my lips and a blush burned in my cheek at every happy word spoken to me. Our breakfast lasted till early afternoon, when one by one the others withdrew, and presently we found our selves alone. My husband rose.

"The contract, I believe," he said, "calls for a parting immediately after the breakfast."

"Immediately?" 1 said, looking I know not where to avoid his gaze. "I leave you to name the exact

"Then let it be later. We will visit awhile in the drawing room.' The only part of the contract that was not carried out was the parting.

I do not recommend the plan of my marriage to others, but for me it was an instantaneous and I may say, a lifelong success.

It Is Cut Up You can't expect the chopped-up tobacco that comes in packages to be fresh, because it has been chopped up too long a time. Most of the natural moisture and flavor escapes from the small particles of tobacco before they are put in the package. By the time you smoke them, they are so dry that they burn fast and bite your tongue.

All the flavor and fragrance of the tobacco is pressed into the Sickle Plug and held there by nature's own covering-the natural leaf wrapper. When you whittle a pipeful off the piug you get fresh tobacco - slowburning, cool-smoking, rich and sweet.

You don't pay for a package—don't waste any tobacco—and get more tobacco for your money. Buy some Sickle at your dealer's today. You'll find the Sickle way is the only way to get a satisfying smoke.

A Change of Heart?

One would hardly believe that s change of heart could be so suddenif there has really been a change; yet, in less than a week after election we find the Lewiston Journal devoting almost a page of space to Congressman-elect Peters.

For months past, and especially during the past eight weeks, have the columns of the Journal teemed with characterizations of the candidate it was fighting that must sound as queer to itself how as it did to right thinking men when they were printed.

As none of its ante-election predictions came true, and as now the fight is over and its dearest foe is elected, the flop may not be so very hard to make. After charging Mr. Peters with having committed about all the possible crimes in the political calendar; after declaring him to be opposed to all the things that he isn't; after saying that he stands for a whole lot of things that he doesn't, it sends its most delectable staff correspondent to Ellsworth, to interview the Congressman-elect.

And here is a part of that interview:

Among the things which can be said of the new Congressman by both friends and enemics, political and otherwise, is that he endeavors to pass judgment fairly. It will be recalled that during the week of impeachment proceedings which marked the close of the session of 1913, he was constantly called upon to rule upon points of const quence. These ruiings were clear and fair.

Throughout the campaign he declared that stood for progressive measures; that he fully understood the day had come when the republican party must move forward. He does not, in discussing the future of the party or the attitude which he will assume when seated in the national house of representatives, refer to progressive republicans. He uses a different term. Liberal republicans he calls them. This, he says, to his mind describes them best.

In his speaking tour and in his platform Mr. Peters declared it to be his intent to work for the following measures:

Workman's compensation.

Abolition of child labor.

A national eight-hour law for women. A minimum wage for women. A tariff commission onservation of national resources.

Direct presidential primaries. All other sensible reforms.

To-day he makes the same assertion. He declares it to be his belief that the people are demanding those laws. That being the case, he feels laws should be so made as to give them what they want. 'Workman's compensation, abolition of of child labor, eight-hour law for women, minimum wage for women." he says, "are statutory law, not constitutional. They can be tried and if found failures be repealed." Journal office who knows Mr. Peters, tent, they must acquire at least 75 to 90 day. knew long before the campaign per cent. of the republican party. opened that he was one of the most progressive of public men; his speeches throughout the campaign reflected it, and yet he was charac-

leader of a moribund minority, and by other equally missfitting epithets. Whether the Journal believes of Mr. Peters things that it claimed it didn't Leaders and rank and file are ready to believe before election, we don't know, but it is to its credit that it permits in its columns Mr. Peters' own statement of his attitude towards great public questions.

What of the Future?

Had the progressives won in the election last week, or had they even secured second place, there would have been an end of the republican party in Maine-or at least the beginning of the end. In the light of the result, what of the progressives? Will they continue as a separate party, or will they disintegrate? That no third party can long exist history has demonstrated again and again. It becomes first or second, or dies. The liberal republimost of them going to the democan movement of '72 ended after the presidential election of that year, crats; the greenback movement of the late '70s soon died; the mugwumps of '84 protested Blaine, defeated him and died. Democrats who couldn't stand the Byran heresy in '96, formed the gold democratic party, and disintegrated after the election, most of them going to the republican party. Rooseveltians protested Taft, and Wilson was elected. All the oratory -and it was great-which the progressives used in the campaign just principal of the Middlebury college. closed in attempting to show that

The Ellsworth American there are fundamental differences between the republicans and themselves resulted in less than 50 per cent. of their last November vote standing by Lawrence.

> We do not recall that a single progressive orator attacked the republicansplatform, or even the republican party, but rather the management. At least half of them in this district who voted for Roorevelt last fall indicated by their votes this fall that they preferred their chances with a good party badly managed to a bad party however well managed.

What about the rest? This is what the Lewiston Journal reports the Congressman-elect as saying:

With the greatest confidence, Congress nan Peters leoks forward to the future. believes the progressive and republican parties will reunite under some form of a merger. This, in his opinion, will be worked out through the action of the republican numbers of Congress during the remainder of the present session and, possibly, in the next, although be hopes to see the problem solved between now and next summer.

The lesson of 1912 has borne fruit, is his dea. He thinks that it has been impressed apon the minds of all republicans, who remain in the party, that the party must go for-ward; that it must become more liberal; that the stand-pat element must cease to control.

The carrying-out of those theories, he feels, will rehabilitate the republican party and in the future, the younger and progressive, or as ne words it, liberal element will control; that hen there will be but two parties, the repubican and the democratic.

lepends on your attitude? "I do," said he. Col. F. H. Parkhurst, chairman of the republican State committee, the morning after election, made this

"Do you understand," we asked, "that much

"I appeal to those progressives who voted for Mr. Lawrence to come back into the republican party and join us in an earnest effort to guide our party in support of the advanced and liberal policies for which it stands. I believe that the republican party is the best instrument with which to give effect to the broad policies, or uplift, that must be a part of future governmental action." On the morning after election the Boson Herald had this to say:

It has been commonly observed that just as the progressive movement made its start in the West, gradually moving eastward, so the paralysis of death seemed to be creeping over it in the same geographical course. Everybody has known of the collapse of the third party in the West. It has remained stronger in Maine and Massachusetts, by ommon observation, than anywhere else in the Union. Maine had an election yesterday which disclosed how hollow, however, are progressive hopes in these last of its strong-holds. The collapse of the progressive party in Maine is little short of pitiful. Only last November its vote exceeded that for Taft by nearly two to one. Yesterday its vote was less than half that cast for the republican nominee. Political history may be searched in vain for an exhibit of so rapid a disin-

(Kennebec Journal.) Progressives have now no possible hope of drawing strength from the ranks of democracy. If they were ever to win or to be more than a small and ineffective party Of course everybody outside the of opposition, denunciation and discon-

What, then, is the advantage of a change of name? Why not take possession of the republican party, if they have the votes, and by these votes and voice control? Why not name the candidates in the primaries and dictate legislation?

The republican party has once more demonstrated its power to "come back" and its friendliness toward progressives, meet their former brothers on any fair and sensible ground. They are ready to be progressive; they are progressive. They are ready to share the honors; they are willing to take the firing line in any contest with the common enemy.

The second annual Saunders reunion was held at the homestead of the late Darius Saunders, West Surry, Sept. 6. The day was perfect. By noon fully 100 people

Members of four generations were present, representing six towns in Hancock county. Many new faces were warmly welcomed.

Tables were spread under the apple trees, and soon the call for dinner was passed along. After the tables were cleared away, pictures were taken, followed by a business meeting called to order by the moderator, George Nevells, of Bluebill.

The same officers were elected for the ensuing year, and Elsie Saunders, of Bucksport, was chosen a committee of entertainment to act with the committee appointed last year.

The records of last meeting were read and adopted. The historical sketches of the Saunders family by Mrs. J. A. Chatto, followed by Robert Carlisle, were very interesting. They were noted and placed on file by the secretary, who at a future date plans to prepare a paper on the history of the early descendants of this family.

The president, Granville Saunders, an nounced the following program: Prayer, Mrs. J. A. Chatto; singing, audience; recitation, Austin Nevells; reading, Nellie Nevells; recitation, Minerva S. Jordan; reading George Nevells; remarks; sing-

From the records of the year just past are these items:

Born - A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Saunders, Surry. A son to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Torrey, Surry. (Mrs. Torrey was formerly Miss Ethel Saunders.) A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Kingman, Waltham. (Mrs. Kingman was formerly Miss Lenora Jordan, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Saunders Jordan, Ellaworth.)

Died-Aphia, wife of Albion Saunders

The next reunion will be held at the same place the first Saturday in September, 1914; if stormy, the first pleasant Satur-

County Teachers' Convention. A convention for the teachers of Hancock county will be held at Northeast Harbor, Friday, Sept. 26. The program promises to be unusually strong. Ex-President Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard, is to speak on "The Education Which Will Contribute to the Earning of a Livelihood". Prof. Sedgwick, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will give a talk on teaching science. Dr. Henry VanDyke, of Princeton, and Prof. Arthur Norton, of Wellesley, will take part in the meeting.

At the evening session an address will be given by Dr. A. E. Winship, editor of Journal of Education, Boston. The program will be full of interesting features, and it is expected that a large number of

ORRIN W. TRIPP. Orrin W. Tripp, one of Ellsworth's best-known citizens, died Thursday night at his home on Elm street. Mr. Tripp had been in poor health for some months, suffering from a heart trouble, but he was out as late as Monday of last week. He was taken ill while at the polls to vote, and was taken to his home. He failed rapidly until the end. Mr. Tripp was born in Cutler, April 4, 1846, the son of Daniel L. and Sarah Tripp. He came to Ellsworth with his parents when a boy, his father being employed tor years on the William Black farm on High street.

As a young man he entered the employ of John M. Hale & Co., at their Franklin stable, later driving the stage on the Ellsworth-to-Cherryfield shore route for E. H. Greely, and afterward on the same route for the Hales. Later he drove on the Bangor-Ellsworth day route. He was the Ellsworth agent for F. O. Beal on the latter's Bangor-to-Bar Harbor route. With the coming of the railroad and decline of the stage business, Mr. Tripp engaged in the livery business with Andrew P. McFarland, under the firm name of Tripp & McFarland. Later he for several years conducted the American house

Mr. Tripp had always taken an interest in public affairs. He had served the city two terms as alderman, and two years as collector of taxes. He was a me Esoteric lodge, F. and A. M., Acadia chapter, R. A. M., and of Dirigo lodge, N. E. O. P.

He married in 1872, Miss Susan E. Thompson, of Cherryfield, who died August 1 of last year. He leaves one son Morey W., of Somerville, Mass., and four daughters-Mrs. Fred E. Scribner, of Bangor; Mrs. R. J. Goodwin, Mrs. Laforest Richards and Mrs. Walter H. Cushman, of Ellsworth. Of his own family, two brothers survive - Isaac, of Bar Harbor, and Ephraim C., of Steuben.

The funeral was held at the home Sunday afternoon, Rev. P. A. A. Killam officiating. The bearers were A. W. Curtis, Charles B. Moore, D. L. Fields and Austin H. Joy. Interment was at Woodbine cemetery.

DEMOCRATS AND PROGRESSIVES VIE WITH REPUBLICANS - RED FIRE, MUSIC AND ORATORY.

It was not a party celebration, but a Peters celebration, that filled the air of Ellsworth with flame, smoke and oratory last Thursday evening. Democrats and progressives vied with the republicans in joing honor to their townsman who had been chosen by the people of the third district to represent them in Congress.

Early in the evening a huge bonfire was kindled in post-office square, and young America, to whom all celebrations are the same, kept it well supplied with fuel. The square was packed with people. The Ellsworth band, after a few selections in the square, marched to the Peters club headquarters on Main street, where a torchlight procession was formed.

The procession marched to the Peters residence, and escorted Congressman-elect Peters to the ball. The march to the ball was through a double line of red fire and cheering crowds on the sidewalks. Many business places were illuminated.

AT THE HALL.

The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion, the stars and stripes predominating, a general red, white and blue scheme being carried out. Fall flowers and evergreen, cut flowers and potted plants bedecked the front of the stage and the front of the balconies

Long before the head of the line entered, the galleries were packed, and the floor, from which the settees had been removed, except a row along the walls, was nearly

The entrance of the Congressman-elect was the signal for a demonstration rarely, if ever, seen before in Hancock hall, and it lasted several minutes. Making his way through the crowd, Mr. Peters went to the ante-room, and then to the platform, accompanied by a group representing nearly every county in this congressional district, and some from outside the

Among them were: Col. H. E. Hamlin, Dr. A. C. Hagerthy, of Ellsworth; Col. F. H. Parkhurst, chairman of the republican State committee, of Bangor; Hon. L. B. Deasy, of Bar Harbor; Boyd A. Blaisdell, Franklin; Fred R. Page, W. C. Conary, E. L. Warren, Bucksport; W. F. Campbell, Charles Stewart, Cherryfield; 4.15 The Christian Civic League. Charles H. Wood, B. E. Clark, A. H. Lynam, H. M. Conners, C. E. Marcyes, L. P. Carter, A. S. Rodick, Ralph Kingsley, E. J. Morrison, J. G. Higgins, Bsr Harbor; Dr. W. L. West, Belfast; B. F. Colcord, H. E. Bangs, A. H. Nichols, Searsport; Percy L. Aiken, Sorrento; Capt. O. W. Foss, Hancock; Henry W. Cushman, Sheriff J. F. O'Connell, Bangor; Albert Greeniaw, Herbert Kilby, Eastport; E. M. Frye, Dr. G. L. Bird, Harrington; Judge F. B. Snow, E. E. Chase, jr., S. G. Hinckley, A. T. Cousins, Roscoe D. Long, H. A. Saunders, Bluehill.

Conspicuous among those on the platform were Mayor J. A. Cunninghan and ex-Mayor Charles H. Leland, both democrats, whose pre-election partizanship did not prevent them from participating in a post-election demonstration complimentary to the successful candidate.

THE SPEECHES.

At 8.55 Col. Hamlin called the meeting to order. He spoke substantially as fol-

"We are here to extend our congratulations and pay our respects to the newly-elected Congressman, and it is most gratifying to see so many representatives of different po-litical organizations. No such campaign has been fought since 1896 when Eugene Hale was our standard-bearer."

After paying a high tribute to Mr.

"Although elected by a party, Mr. Peters is now the representative of the whole people, and he will look after the entire district with the same fidelity which has characterized his

Hon. L. B. Deasy, of Bar Harbor, was first called upon, and made one of his brief but characteristic speeches. The victory achieved he deemed significant because of the character of the campaign, starting as it did with the odds wholly against the republicans. The result was due to the deep-rooted conviction that the protective policy was right, and must be maintained. Then, too, the republicans had the advantage of a candidate on whom the flercest light reveals no blot.

Then, too, there was the superb leadership of Parkhurst, who tore out of the dictionary the leaf which contained the word "defeat". Henceforth all who think alike must act together; by that sign the republican party will come into its own.

Great applause greeted Col. Parkhurst when he was introduced as the next speaker. While Penobscot was not in this district, it shared in the interest and enthusiasm of the fight, and did what it could to help win, and it extended its congratulations to the successful candidate and to Hancock county.

While the State committee and all other committees did all they could, the victory after all was due more to the personality of the candidate than to the organization "As you here believe in him, so has all the district come to believe in him. I hope he will long be kept at Washington. No one will appeal to him in vain; no interest of the district or of the State will go without his attention."

Congressman-elect Peters was the last speaker. As he arose he was greeted with another outburst of appleuse which, while doubtless gratifying, was also somewhat embarrassing. He thought, he said, there must be some mistake; "it is I who ought to be greeting you; not you me."

It was a big fight and a great victory; now for peace. Champ Clark said it was the biggest fight since 1789, and now that it is over, let us all look to the future.

He reviewed briefly the story of the campaign, and while he was profoundly thankful for the support he had received in other sections of the district, he was doubly thankful for the support he had received from his home county and his home town, whose majority was practically the majority of the district.

Especially gratifying to him was the presence on the stage of the present mayor of the city, and of other representatives of opposing parties. Throughout Mr. Peters spoke with intense feeling. His plea for peace and his assurance that he now represented not a faction, not a party even, but the people of the whole district, were received with evident satisfaction. Mr. Peters' address closed the speechmaking. An informal reception followed, and then a dance, the grand march being led by Mr. and Mrs. Peters. The Ellsworth band furnished the outdoor music; that for the dancing, which was kept up until a late hour, was furnished by Monaghan's orchestra.

Printing Unpopular In Persia

Type printing is unpopular in Per The straightness of the lines offends the Persian's artistic sense, and he feels that in printed books the character of the letters is lost. Persia is today entirely dependent upon lithography for its own production of books. Naturally these are very rare. At the beginning of the nineteenth century a press with movable types was set up in Tabriz, and a certain number of books were printed. The effort met with no encouragement, however, and had shortly to be abandoned. The same taste which makes a Persian esteem so highly the great calligraphists makes him deplore the absence of character in a type printed book. What most delights him is well written manuscript, and he takes the same delight in the copyist's work that we take in an old master. Failing this, be contents himself with a lithograph, which is usually a facsimile of the writing of some fairly good scribe.

A Wandering Scot's Tribulations. A Glasgow man who recently took up residence in London, says the Glasgow News, selected from the people answering his advertisement for rooms a landlady boasting the name of Mac-That name, even without the lady's protestations, convinced him that he was going to a "home from On arriving, his pleasurable anticipation was increased when he was informed that it was "taken for granted" he would have porridge for breakfast. He was astounded, however, to find the oatmeal served cold and solid and profusely sprinkled with parsley. Something approaching a scene occurred when he intimated to the lady that he required the dish brought hot and fresh and without vegetable embellishment. With a gesture of despair she led him to the kitchen. where on the shelf was a row of bowls containing his weekly supply of parsley decorated porridge!

Our Musical Nerves.

Everybody who has been to the dentist's knows only too well that the teeth have nerves connected with them. These nerves lead to certain knots of nerve tissue called ganglia, from which also proceed other nerves that pass to the auditory chambers of the ear. If you grind your teeth ever so slightly you will find that you hear the sound very distinctly. The vibrations caused by grinding are conveyed to the auditory chamber, where a series of prya-mid cells of varying lengths are so arranged as to operate like keys of a piano. These cells, each of which re-sponds to a particular note, are connected by nerve threads, like plane wires, with the main nerve of hearing -a complex and beautiful arrangement to which we owe our power to appre ciate the exquisite harmonies of music.

Starved Himself to Death.

Hunger strike records were broken some years ago by a Frenchman named Granie, who was arrested for murder in circumstances which left no doubt as to his guilt. He determined to starve himself to death in order to escape the guillotine and from the day of his arrest refused to eat, in spite of every effort on the part of the prison authorities, who first tried tempting him to eat by placing the most dainty meals in his cell and when that failed attempted forcible feeding. Granie held out for sixty-three days, at the end of which time he died.

A Renewed Struggle. "My old barber has left the city." "You seem very regretful."

"Yes; he had been trying to sell me a bottle of hair tonic for the past fifteen years, and so far I had succeeded in standing him off. Now I shall have to start the battle all over with a new man."-Louisville Courier-Journal,

A Grave Danger.

"Madam, your pet Pekinese spanlel bit one of the children on the street in the face this morning."

"Good heavens, my poor little dog! I know none of the children about here have their faces antiseptically washed."-Baltimore American.

RIFLES

The Little Rifles-Big in Quality OU are going to buy a .22 calibre rifle, single shot or repeater-you'll find that many well known crack shots started with a Remington-UMC .22. Their advice now would be "By all means, get a Remington-UMC" because they know that there is a tendency in some quarters to look upon these models as only "a small quarters to look upon these models as only boy's rifle" and to cheapen them so that they can be

You have just as much right to expect full shooting value in your .22 calibre arm as in your $75 big game rifle.

You want the Remington-UMC single shot at from $3 to $6, .22, .25-10 or .32 calibre, made by the same people who make the famous Remington LIMC Autologding Rifles.

Remington-UMC Autoloading Rifles.

Or. if you prefer the repeating rifle, the Remington-UMC slide action .22 repeater with its easy take-down and special safety features, shooting .22 short, .22 long or .22 long rifle cartridges, at $10 and up, is your arm. More than this, they are liable to jump from A. J. Conary and daughter Mae, of Portterra firma into water altogether too deep for them

One of the new departures of the present day is a dissatisfaction with marriage as we in America have known it. Kent Blakeman's father mother had lived together comfortably, bringing up half a dozen children. Kent at twenty-five discov ered that they had taken a great risk in binding themselves so closely together that there was no easy way for them to break the chain. In their case fortunately they had not wished to break it. But, as for him, he did not intend thus to tie himself up. He believed in experimental marriage. he married he would reserve the right to leave his wife as soon as he ceased to love her, and she should have the same privilege with regard to him.

Miss Estelle Woodruff, being about the same age as Blakeman, also grew up in the same atmosphere of hysterical reform. She heard persons talking about the frequency of divorce, martiage being a failure and kindred subjects, and her mind was very susceptible to absorb new theories. Blakeman found few women to sympathize with him in his notions about marriage-most reforms begin with a paucity of numbers-and when he met Miss Woodruff and made an easy convert of her he was much pleased with with himself for having struck into a new path-and considered the girl above the ordinary in that she had appreciated his ideas.

There is an infinite variety of mental structure among human beings. Blakeman, who married Miss Woodruff, was of a different brain. He kept on developing in his anti-marriage theories, while she, with the coming of children, ceased to take an interest in them and at last turned against them.

Perhaps it was the discovery that he had been mistaken in his wife's mental caliber that started him in his idea that they were not fitted for each other. Their union had lost its romance and was becoming humdrum. It seem ed to him that the connubial kiss morning and night had lost its zest. He had asserted when a bachelor that the honeymoon should last always and that when it had completely waned it was Mrs. Eliza A. Chase has gone to Bethel time for the couple to separate and each find a new mate.

Time came when Blakeman concluded to "be true to himself," as he put it, and claim the privilege he had reserved for himself when he married. He made several attempts to get his courage up to a point where he could tell his wife that she was not his affinity and that he proposed to free himself from her and make another trial to find a real and lasting mate. At last he succeeded. Between a passing influence in youth and a woman who had been made over, to speak, by the possession of two little children—a boy and a girl—there was an enormous difference. She was not only surprised by her husband's announcement; she was thunderstruck. But if she had not developed she had insensibly horse sense. To attempt to argue her husband out of his nonsense she knew would be futile. To oppose him would be equally so. Moreover, she remembered that at the time of her marriage she had coincided with his views. was he who had been consistent, she who had changed. It had been mutually agreed that when either wished for freedom it should be granted. She held to her agreement, though she recognized the outcome as a great misfortune. But she was a plucky as well as a proud woman and gave no sign of what a blow she suffered. prenuptial agreement gave the children -if any came-to the mother, and this was, of course, a godsend to her. wondered as she looked back when the provision was made that she had very nearly assented to a conditional proposition to divide the children between husband and wife.

When all preliminary arrangements had been made Mrs. Blakeman and her children-the little ones being igno rant of the separation of their parents -took a train for the mother's birthplace, where they expected to live. Blakeman saw them off and as the train was starting kissed them all and

He stood on the platform, looking after them as they rolled out of the station, and all of a sudden a great light broke in upon his brain, and he said to himself;

"What an addle pated ninny I have made of myself."

Going to the ticket office, he bought a ticket for the next train to follow them, and the same noth, when the mother was ruefully hearing the children say their prayers, the father swooped down on them like a cyclone and took them all in one embrace.

Has Blakeman given up theory? Never! His theory now is that the family is all there is in the world worth living for, and hereafter be proposes to live for his family only. Since his theory is sound all are happy.

Snatched From The Burning

An Old Time Romance

By F. A. MITCHEL

Carrie, my niece, has asked me to put the story of my life in writing. She says that it may save many a girl who is disposed to turn aside warnings of those who are older than she from yielding to a love which they can see is not for her good and may be for her ruin.

It is an old fashioned story, for it occurred in an old fashioned time and in an old fashioned country. The state where I was born-Georgia-was then slave state, and conditions were adapted to that institution. There were three distinct classes-the planters, the poor whites and the negroes. My parents sprang from the poor white class, but my father was a very industrious man for one living in an enervating climate and accumulated enough means to buy a small plantation and a few Consequently I grew up between two classes. We were above the poor whites, but were not received

It was said that at seventeen I was a beauty. Alas, no one would think it to see me now, a shriveled old woman with thin snow white hair. They did not tell me so, and I was unconscious of my good looks. Social life in those days was very different from what it is now. I suppose human nature is always the same, but it seems to me now that good persons-I refer to the higher classes-were better than now and the bad were worse. This was especially so with our young men. Many of them-most of them, I should say-were imbued with noble senti-With them to be a gentleman was to be honorable. But there were bad ones, who were especially unscrupulous in their dealings with we men-men who regarded it the part of a gentleman to make a conquest even to the ruin of the object of his attentions. The atmosphere of that period has completely passed away, the good and the bad having been fused between the two. There are now few, if any, young men with the noble impulses of the typical gentleman of that day, nor are there any such evil characters as were portrayed by the novelists of that period.

It fell to my lot to be caught between two men who were representatives of these two classes. They were both gentlemen, the one of a kindly nature, who would consider that a mean or dishonorable act would not only disgrace him, but his family even back to generations long dead; the other without any conscience whatever.

When I was fifteen years old my father one day sent me with a note to Colonel Carroll, one of the wealthiest and most respected planters of our region. On the veranda sat a youth of about twenty at a table with books He was Courtney Carroll, a recent graduate of the Univer-sity of Virginia. As I ascended the steps he looked up at me and I saw admiration in his eyes. He rose and advanced to meet me, and I handed him the note. He called a negro, told him to take it to his father, and selecting a comfortable chair handed it to me. He refrained from his books while I waited, seeming to consider it incumbent upon him to entertain me while I waited for an answer to the note. Colonel Carroll brought it out to me himself and apologized for not sending one of his negroes with it, courteously thanking me for con ing to be its bearer.

Naturally I, a girl still in short dress. es, was much impressed with so much consideration from such high grade persons. How remarkable that one whose father had but recently emerged from the poor white class should be an object of attention from those who owned a thousand slaves.

When I was seventeen years old I met another of the aristocrats of that day, who turned out to be the re-verse of a Carroll. I was leaning on the fence of my father's plantation one day when a gay party of hunters came galloping by. They disappeared down the road, and presently a young man, also in the scarlet coat of a huntsman, came along and, reining the others. I told him they had just passed and if he rode on he would dent from the way his eyes were fixed on me that he was disposed to turn from the game he was pursuing to a different kind. I remember that my eyes dropped before his gaze and 1 felt a warmth in my cheeks.

This young man was Harry Du Bois, who had by the death of his father just come into possession of a large plantation. He asked me a number of questions, evidently for excuses to talk with me instead of riding on, and presently, on pretense of tightening his saddle girth, he dismounted and stood near me on the other side of the feace. chatting glibly and paying me complihad told me that I was beautiful, and It gave me a thrill I shall never forget. It was the second time I had noticed dmiration in a young gentleman's eyes, but young Carroll had not paid me a single compliment. Since my visit to the Carroll plantation Courtney had dominated my thoughts, but now he was superseded by Harry Du Bois. The former seemed cold beside the latter. Besides, Carroll did not seek me, while Du Bois rode by our little plantation frequently and, if I was within hearing, would always stop to chat. These meetings were at once noticed by my dear parents, and I remember with pain their troubled looks whenever I had been talking with Du Bois. Then mother spoke to me about the matter, telling me that when a gentleman became de voted to a girl beneath him in station only trouble would come of it. But I turned a deaf ear to what she said, so infatuated was I with the man who was charming me as a snake will charm a bird.

I can only refer without particulariz ing to the courtship. I have wondered since that at so tender an age I should have resisted one so persuasive. Perhaps this was due to the influence of my mother, who, if she could not induce me to break with my lover, at least convinced me that if he was sincere he would ask me to be his wife So at last he did, but said that his mother, who was living, would not consent to the alliance. She was very feeble and could last but a short time So Harry persuaded me to marry him clandestinely.

When I remember that I was to be made the victim of a mock marriage I realize how far I am now removed from that age. Such weddings were then a common method of victimizing innocent girls. Now they are unheard The little church where I met Du Bois is still standing, though the persons who worship in it are much changed. The ceremony was to take place at night, for I was pledged to keep it a secret from my parents. I remember that I passed through a se vere mental struggle before I could bring myself to deceive them, but I tried to think of how proud they would be when I was acknowledged as the wife of a wealthy and aristocratic planter. Yet in my heart I knew that I did not confide in them, for they would surely prevent the marriage if they knew it was to take place.

It was near midnight when I got out of my window on to the veranda and descended by the limb of a magnolia tree that overhung it. I can see now in the moonlight the manor house, the negroes' white cabins flanking it, the double row of moss covered trees leading to the gate. I had scarcely reached it when Harry clasped me in his arms. My legs seemed about to give way be neath me and he carried me to a two wheeled caft, placed me in it and drove me to the church. It was dark, the reflected light of the moon only shining from a pane of glass.

Some one opened a side door and I the moonlight streaming through gothic windows, to the chancel. There stood a clergyman in his vest-A lamp such as is used to throw a light on a sermon alone was burning low. He turned it up, its light falling on a prayer book. Then he began to read the marriage service. He seemed to be unfamiliar with it and constantly stumbled. But so far as I was able to take cognizance of this I attributed it to haste. He came to the part where an opportunity is given to enter a protest against the marriage. when a voice from behind said:

"Don't make a noise, gentlemen. I got word of your scheme this afternoon. You talked too loud at the St. Leger tavern. On the young lady's account this affair must be kept quiet. Du Bois, you are a villain of the deepest dye. As for you, Markham, you are beneath contempt." These words sounded in my ears as if they came from a distance. Others were spoken, but I don't remember them. Then the same voice spoke to me, the light fell for a moment on the speaker's features, and I saw Courtney

"Will you permit me to get you home? I will try to do so without your return being known

I knew now that I had been tricked and that I had been saved. I put my trembling hand on Carroll's arm and left the church with him. When I got home I was too weak to ascend to my room as I had come down from it, and Carroll climbed the magnolia, went into my room, stepped downstairs and opened the door for me. I reached my chamber without arousing any one.

The next morning I deferred going downstairs till all had breakfasted. When I entered the dining room, pale and trembling. Susan, the servant, said

"Laws a-massy, Missy Alice, hab yo' hearn de awfui news? For heaven's sake, what is

"Dis mawnin' about sun up Marse

Courtney Carroll lingered for several days, then died. Shortly before his death he sent for me to come to him. I was carried there in a benumbed state of feeling and received by his father. I can see to this day on his face the look of loving sympathy and distress at his approaching loss. He led, or rather supported, me to his son's chamber and left me there, all others having gone out at my arrival. "Pardon my interference in your afhe said. "Had I not known you were to be made a victim I would have left you to do as you liked. I have sent for you not only to apologize for my interference, but to confess to you that ever since your com-ing here two years ago I have been battling with a desire to become a suitor for your hand. Why I was de terred from doing so need not be mentioned. I was about to yield when learned that Du Bois had stepped in

MARIA'S MONEY

She Drew Too Much on Her Imagination

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Maria Bevis dusted the glass showcase in her little store, piled the bolts of percale and gingham neatly on the shelves, hung some imitation lace collars in the window and unlocked the door for the day's business.

Behind the store, which was the front parlor of her house, were the rooms where Maria lived.

As she sat at the window waiting for customers she saw a girlish form hurry past and enter the grocery store. Maria Bevis smiled sourly.

"Shiftless," she muttered, snatching irritably at the red yarn of her ball. "If that ain't just like Amy Lane. Probably just got out of bed and gone to the store for something for breakfast! I never could believe Cousin Sam's daughter could be so different from me! Bevises have always been thrifty and hardworking. Somehow Amy Bevis was different; then she went and married Howard Lane, and everybody knows it's starvation business running a country newspaper. But"-

The door swung inward with jangling bell, and a little, black eyed, white haired woman hopped in like a sparrow and perched on a chair.

'Well, Maria, how goes it!" twittered Ida Ramsell girlishly.
"I'm all right, Ida," returned Maria dryly. "Going out to sew today?" "Yes-up to Mrs. Bremer's. 1711 want two yards of slate colored silesia and two spools of black thread No. 60, I guess. Just saw Amy," remarked Ida.

"So did I."

"Amy looks sick, Maria."

"Probably she eats too much pastry. I hear she lives out of the bakery, sniffed Maria, squinting nearsightedly into a box of thread.

"They are having a hard time to get along," murmured Ida kindly.

"Humph! Howard better go work and do something that will bring in real money. I never dreamed when I lent that money to Amy's father that he would die without a penny. I spoke to her about it she and Howard up and promised to pay every cent, with interest."

"I heard they said they would pay compound interest."

Maria flushed. "You do hear a lot of trashy talk, Ida! Howard did say that. but it's all talk. They've never made but the one payment on the interest. I never expect to get the rest.

"I expect it's a good deal for you to lose," suggested Ida inquisitively.

"That's a personal matter," returned Maria stiffly. "It's enough that I lent it to Cousin Sammy, and he gave me the note for it payable on demand. Amy and Howard have promised to But, land, I've given it up!

"Folks say you don't speak to Amy and Howard new," ventured Ida Ramsell as she arose to go.

"For once folks are right. I told 'em I didn't hold to keeping acquaintance with cheats.

"Maria!" For once Ida's sharp voice was warmly sympathetic for young Howard Lane and his wife, Amy. Swiftly she changed the topic. Busby told me to tell you that you was appointed one of the delegates to the convention at Ripple River. sented. Mrs. Bremer's another. suppose you'll go?"

"Go nowhere!" cried Maria bitterly. "I can't afford to. Ida. If Amy would pay me that money I could go.

"Well, I'm sorry. Goodby," said Ida hurriedly, and the door jangled after her, "My," she breathed as she skipped down the street, "Maria must have lent them a lot of money! When I think of all the things she's wanted to do and couldn't because of the money tied up in that family loan I feel's if she was a martyr."

Ida Ramsell repeated that remark the next afternoon at the sewing soclety, and a buzz of laughter went around the group of busy women.

"It must be thousands of dollars." observed Mrs. Bremer quietly, "although I never could understand how Maria Bevis could get hold of very much to I remember, when I went into black for Mr. Bremer, I offered to sell her my new garnet silk, but Maria said she couldn't afford it just then; she'd lent every penny to Sammy's folks and they hadn't paid her back

"Too bad of her to talk 'so much about it," said the minister's wife. Family affairs are best kept in the

"That's what I'm always telling Maria." chirruped Ida Ramsell, sewing jerkily. "But she will gabble about Does seem's if her milk of human kindness was turned to vinegar and she just rejoiced in gettings slaps at Howard and Amy. "I wonder how the baby 'is," murmured Mrs. Busby, the minister's wife. "Better, so Amy said when I ran in there yesterday. Seems they had trouble with the milk from Long's. Howard wants to buy a cow, but I guess he doesn't dare to until they pay

That same night Amy and Howard Lane sat in their garden and talked of the future and played with Joyce, who seemed much better. From a tent on the green came sounds of laughter and

Howard's arm was around Amy's waist. "Dear, if you hadn't married me you might have been over there enjoying yourself," he said, a little bitterly. "Now you are ashamed to go because you haven't got decent shoes to wear and because if you spent a penny Cousin Maria would frown and

"Cheats," finished Amy, with a little laugh. "Never mind, Howard. I've farmer boy. His father died when been to lots of fairs, and I've got you Jim was very young, and the boy was and baby, and that's enough for any girl. Only I do wish we could pay Cousin Maria's note."

They started to go into the house when a man entered the front gate and came briskly toward them. and Mrs. Howard Lane?" he asked

"Yes," said Howard.

"I'm Tobias Bevis-Maria's brother. Guess you've heard of me from your father. Amy, ain't it? You was a little girl when I went away. Your father, my Cousin Sammy, mortgaged his house for $1,000 to send me to California to get back my health. Well, I got it back and went to Australia, and I've been making money. I've brought back Cousin Sammy's money with compound interest. It's here in this packet. I'm sorry I couldn't give it to him direct. He was one of the best men in the world." The man's voice trembled as he finished speaking.

Without questioning why this long delayed loan was only now being repaid, Howard and Amy ushered Tobias Bevis into the house and listened to his story.

"I came here first. Maria wasn't home, and I went to the minister, Mr. Busby, and he gave me the particulars of Cousin Sammy's death. I'm sorry, Amy, that your father lost his home on account of me, but I'll make it up, if I can, to this little girl of yours. Did you say her name was Joyce?"

He played with the baby while Amy and Howard counted the money with trembling fingers and unbelieving eyes. Twenty-two hundred dol-What wealth! Perhaps there lars! would be enough left after Maria's awful debt was paid to give them a fair start in the world. Paying the interest had always kept them

"We must go tonight." whispered Amy, and Howard nodded assent.

Tobias promised to care for the baby until their return, and the bappy pair bastened to Maria's house, where they found that spinster in a state of perturbation over the discovery of a man's leather suit case on her front

"What in time has happened?" she asked tartly as she ushered them into her sitting room.

"We've come to pay the note," said Amy proudly, "Will you please bring it at once, Cousin Maria? We must get it off our minds."

"With compound interest," added Howard.

Maria looked at them blankly. She had never expected the note to be paid, and she had not looked at it for years. Slowly she walked to the china closet and took down a large blue china tea-She thrust her hand in the top and drew out a bundle of yellowed papers.

Her spectacled eyes selected one and brought it to the table and laid it on the red cover. "There it is," she said skeptically. "Do you want to pay the whole of it?"

"I hope it isn't over $2,000," whispered Amy prayerfully as she turned over

She stared uncomprehendingly at it and gave it to her husband. does it say?" she whispered tensely. Howard read and his face flushed.

"Cousin Maria, do you mean to say that this note is only for $25-that that s all Father Bevis borrowed from you?" be demanded hotly. Maria nodded dazedly. "I guess that's right," she said sheepishly. "Somehow I got to thinking how many things I could do with that money. It got to seem like a whole lot. I-I"-She paused helplessly, while Howard counted out $30 and pushed it across the table. Then he caught up the note and set a lighted match to it. When it crumbled to ashes he looked across the blacked fragments on the red cloth into Maria's scared eyes. "Maria Bevis," he said gravely, "you've spoiled the three years of our married life, all for that paltry little sum. It is paid in full. How are you going to pay us back for the agony you have caused us? You have made us the laughingstock of the village and"-"Don't Howard," said Amy softly.

"Please don't. She is sorry.

"What would Rippledale say if it knew how much we really owed you?" Howard added remorselessly. Maria's head dropped into her hands.

Tell 'em." she sniffed miserably. "I fon't blame you one mite!"

There was silence. Then Howard spoke abruptly. "We won't tell a word, Maria. People may think what they please about the amount, but it is your place to inform every one that the note is paid, the debt is canceled. Will you

"Yes," cried Maria fervently, "I'll tell 'em tomorrow at the missionary meeting, and I don't suppose you'll ever have much to do with me again." "Nonsense," said amy brightly. "I'm coming over tomecrow morning with baby to buy son athing for new little resses and we will have a cozy chat." But Maria Bevis punished herself in her own way. When her brother To bias came in and surprised her by his sudden arrival she told him the whole story, and any one who knew Maria Bevis and realized how she worshiped this young brother might understand that Maria Bevis was not too old to learn a lesson.

A MOCK ELOPEMENT

By MARTHA BILLINGS

Jim Dunlap was a hardworking farmer boy. His father died when obliged to scratch early for a living. He worked hard and studied nights. for there was ambition in Jim, though no one would have suspected it. Nevertheless he seemed content with hard work and not inclined to take a stand above mediocrity.

May Stanley was the belle of the village. The moment Jim Dunlap saw her he fell in love with her.

Now, while Jim Dunlap was a plodder, with nothing brilliant whatever about him, May was a little witch. was witty, droll and much inclined to mischief. Her face was a mirror for her thoughts. Nevertheless if she had a preference for any of the young men of the village-there were no newcomers-none of her friends could discover it. But a girl, be she ever so communicative on other subjects, may keep that one secret deep hidden in her breast. As has been said, there was one young man with whom she was never associated in the minds of her friends. That was Jim Dunlap. Indeed, she had been heard to very unfeelingly apply to him the name of

While Jim was plowing by day and a student by night, a gangling, awkward man of twenty, Walter Swift, the son of a neighboring well to do farmer, was getting ready to leave college with a degree. He came home with a good deal of eclat, with a fraternity badge on his chest and a reputation for scholarship. The girls l ed for him to take an interest in May Stanley as the only one of their number capable of attracting one who had a university cut about him and more citified manners than any of the rest. But some of them declared that he wouldn't look at May even. These latter he disappointed by not only looking at her, but looking at her with longing eyes. There was that in her that attracted both sexes-a reckless, helter skelter, devil-may-care way she had, which is always fascinating in young persons, especially to young per-

Swift's appearance fresh from college tended to put Jim Dunlap by comparison only further in the background. His joints seemed larger, his hair red-der, while his freckles seemed like brown auturn leaves that some one had tramped all over his face. Not that he appeared to feel any inferiority, for he plodded on in the same awkward way as before. It was rather a feeling in those who saw the two young men in contrast.

That winter after Swift's coming home was a gay one among the younger set of the village. It isn't every small town that can number a full fledged college graduate among its social attractions, and Swift, who had pony and broke his arm, is doing nicely. Sept. 15. university, originated a good many methods of amusement. When the winter was drawing to a close and Lent was coming on the boys and girls were wondering what they would do by way of a carnival. One of their number suggested that they have a fancy dress | the hospital. ball, but they had had one the year before and wanted something newer. Swift came to the rescue by proposing an elopement.

"An elopement!" all exclaimed at nce, "What do you mean by that?"
"In colonial time"," he said, "when a couple were married it was the custom for the bride and groom to race with the guests for a tavern, the party reaching the goal last to pay for a supper. I propose that we select a couple to elope (for fun, of course) and run for the Beaver inn, the rest to follow, the supper to be paid for as in colonial times.

The idea was accepted with enthusiasm. May Stanley was just the girl to play the part of the bride, and the proposer of the scheme was the man for the groom. May was chosen, but Swift was not. While he was the admiration of the girls, the boys were in clined to be jealous of him. But the boys couldn't settle upon one of their own number-each desiring to be the eloper-till some one in jest pominated Dunlap. All laughingly assented, and it was considered that there would be more fun with him for groom than any of the others. He would make the affair more ridiculous Tuesday night before the opening of Lent Jim saddled two horses, one with a woman's saddle, and at 10 o'clock pulled up under May Stanley's window. She jumped down into his arms, he put her on one of the horses, and away they galloped.

At the same hour and minute the rest of the party started from an equidistant point, both making for the Beaver inn. Jim and May stopped for twelve minutes by the way; but, having been given the advantage of the best road and Jim making a cut across fields, the elopers arrived first.

"My friends," said Jim, "Til pay for the supper, for this is the happiest night of my life. May and I stopped by the way at a parson's just long enough to be married."

No one considered his words in earnest, and all set up a shout, but May produced a certificate that was passed around among the girls, and at last it began to be understood that the pair were married.

"For heaven's sake, where and when did they do their courting?" was the universal question.

Is Sound and Logical.

Both by day and by night it is necessary to have enough oxygen from fresh air to keep the blood pure and in best condition to repair waste and so maintain life. If confined by day, sleep in open air at night, well protected of course by suitable clothing. If the liver or bowels become slugish take a proper dose of "L. F." Atwood's Medicine occassionally to prevent congestion. It is a safe old family remedy.

"L. F." MEDICINE CO., Portland,

A common mistake of local advertisers is to estimate the value of advertising space of one newspaper by the amount asked by some other publication. It is a mistake of judgment for a business man to estimate the value of space in a reputable newspaper with a good circulation by that of some other publication which will accept business at any price and be pleased to get it .- Leavenworth (Kansas)

The newspaper which has no uniform rate for advertising space, and is satis-fied to take what it can get for it, is a cheap advertising medium, and the advertiser need expect nothing but cheap results.—Lawrenceburg (Ind.) Press.
