UNDER A VOLCANO
A Town That Lives in Perilous
Dread of Destruction
COLUMBUS IN CRATER

It is a portion of the United States that lives in a state of constant dread of destruction. When the day of the eruption comes, when the lava flows for the first time, the town is doomed. The people are either killed or driven from their homes.

The town is built on a volcano, and the people live in constant fear of the day when the volcano will erupt. They have built their homes on the edge of the crater, and they know that at any moment they may be engulfed by the hot, flowing lava.

In the town, the streets are narrow and winding, and the buildings are close together. The houses are built of wood and are not fireproof. The people are without water and food, and they are without shelter.

The town is surrounded by a wall, and the people are unable to leave. They are cut off from the rest of the world, and they are unable to get help.

The town is doomed, and the people are helpless. They are in despair, and they are in pain. They are in a state of constant dread, and they are in constant fear of the day when the volcano will erupt.

The people are without hope, and they are without help. They are in a state of constant dread, and they are in a state of constant pain.

The town is doomed, and the people are helpless. They are in despair, and they are in pain. They are in a state of constant dread, and they are in constant fear of the day when the volcano will erupt.

Progressives take strong stand in Maine

The progressives in Maine have taken a strong stand in the state. They have denounced the policies of the liberal wing of the Republican party and have declared their intention to fight for the adoption of new political principles that will be in keeping with the needs of the times.

The progressive movement in Maine has grown out of the dissatisfaction with the old political parties and the desire for a more effective government. The progressives believe in the necessity for a more efficient and democratic form of government, and they are working for the adoption of new political principles that will be in keeping with the needs of the times.

The progressives in Maine are working closely with the progressives in other states, and they are determined to carry their movement forward throughout the country. They believe that the adoption of new political principles will be in the interest of the people and will lead to a more effective government.

For the TYPHID FLY

A Warning Preventing its Breeding

Prevented by the Maine Department of Agriculture

To stop the breeding of this dangerous insect, the department of agriculture has conducted an investigation of the condition of barns, stables, and other buildings in several localities. The department has found evidence of the presence of the fly, and has taken steps to prevent its breeding. The investigation, which included checking barns, stables, and other buildings, has resulted in the finding of a large number of places where the fly was breeding. This was brought to the attention of the department, which has taken steps to prevent the breeding of the fly. The department has recommended that barns and stables be kept clean and free from accumulations of debris, and that they be kept in good repair. The department has also recommended that the use of fly-traps and other devices be increased. The investigation has been conducted in an effort to prevent the spread of the fly, which is a carrier of typhus fever.

Another link with our neighboring town of Ellsworth Falls is provided in the following general and generous statement made by Mrs. Sarah L. Jones, a member of the community, to the editor of this paper:

Mrs. Jones said: "I am pleased to see that the community is taking an active interest in the preservation of the old Ellsworth Falls. The falls are an important feature of the town, and should be preserved for future generations. I am proud to see that the community is taking steps to preserve the falls."

End of War Bonds

Buckingham National Bank

The end of the war has brought about a change in the way in which bonds are purchased. Bonds are no longer bought in large quantities, but are purchased in small amounts as needed. This change is due to the fact that the war has ended, and there is no longer a need for large amounts of money.

Cream of Tartar

Many New England people use cream of tartar for quick baking. They value its superior qualities and will not knowingly accept substitutes made of alum or lime phosphates, such as are sometimes offered.

But even the most careful cannot always know. The high price of cream of tartar has led to efforts to substitute alum and phosphate of lime compounds which are vastly inferior and not as healthful to use.

The easiest way in which the housekeeper can be sure of quality and economy is by using Royal Baking Powder, which is pure cream of tartar.

Royal Baking Powder gives perfect results, is less trouble to use, and has not been advanced in price.

Anyone who has once become accustomed to using Royal Baking Powder never reverts to homemade mixtures or any other product for raising biscuit, griddle-cakes, doughnuts, or cake.
