Elisworth people attending the Maine music festival at Bangor were pleased to find in the souvenir program a memorial reference to F. W. Rollins, together with his picture. After referring to the fact of

Mr. Rollins' long and honored connection with the festival chorus, the article spoke appreciatively of his ability as a director, and praised his enthusiasm in the untiring zeal by which he sought to promote the musical interest of his home city and to inspire a greater lovalty to the festival. The chorus from Ellsworth especially appreciated this tribute to the man who for so many years had toiled faithfully with them as their conductor.

Freeman E. Gray, of Lakewood, was arrested last Wednesday, charged with breaking into the McDonald and Woodruff cottages at the foot of Green Lake and stealing fishing tackle, ammunition and other small articles. The principal witness against him in the Elisworth municipai court was a young boy, John Garland, who said he was with him when the cottages were entered. Gray was bound over for the grand jury, which returned no indictment against him, the boy having admitted that he, and not Gray, took the articles. The youth of the boy saved him from prosecution.

right eye, being struck by bird shot fired by his brother Charles. It was one of those accidents to which any hunter is liable, and for which blame can be attached to no one.

The young men were hunting near the poor farm. Each had a dog, and they were some fifty or sixty yards apart. screened from each other by the young growth of birches. As a matter of fact, Charles supposed his brother had started for home and was some distance away.

Charles flushed a woodcock, which fley toward Fred. Charles says the bird was some fifteen or twenty feet in the air when he fired, and this is borne out by Fred, who says he could see the bird coming toward him above the trees. This being the case, the only explanation of how the shot reached Fred is that a part of the charge was deflected by the trees.

Twelve shot struck Fred about the forehead and eyes, one pellet destroying the right eye, while two just escaped the left eve. The fact that none of the shot struck his cap or clothing bears out the theory that it was part of a deflected charge that struck him, for if the charge had been aimed directly at him, the shot would have been scattered over a wider area.

Fred hurried to his home, while Charles went to the poor farm and telephoned for a physician. The wounded boy was taken the same afternoon to the hospital at Bangor, where the right eve was removed. He returned home Saturday, and is now about again. With characteristic good spirits, he counts himself fortunate to

THE REUNION.

Aunt Madge and her nieces were astir early on the morning of October 8, the day of the M. B. reunion at "Hillcrest" cottage, Surry.

The early part of the day was cloudy, and drops of rain fell occasionally, but there were blue patches in the sky, and Esther and I started on our ride from Bluehill to Surry with very pleasant anticipations.

The roadside was beautiful with the vellow and scarlet banners of the manle. and the lovely green and brown ferns in every hollow were a delight to the eye. For several miles we ignored the weather; then suddenly it began to rain. We put up the umbrells and asked a man who was shingling his house if he thought it would rain much. He said the signs were right for a regular down pour, but the blue patch in the sky still beckoned us towards Surry, and we went gaily on till the rain ceased and the sun shone, and by and by we came to Contention Cove climbed the hill to the cottage, and found several members waving a welcome from the roadside.

The owners of the cottage, Capt. and Mrs. Philip Stinson, welcomed us warmly, and we were soon in the midst of relatives and friends.

Uncle Mark, Aunt Maria and little Carolyn were there ahead of us, but Uncle Mark has a fancy driving horse and doesn't even take the dust from automobiles, while our Prince passed his twentyfirst birthday some time ago, and is too dignified to hurry.

The other members from Bluehill mo tored over, reached the cottage at 9.15 and busied themselves by working on presents for Christmas until the others came at about 11. Everybody brought a package of good things, and when the tables were set we felt glad that we were not late for dinner.

Don't say anything about it, but since that dinner Aunt Madge has been ill in bed and had the doctor for the first time in twenty-five years.

There were twenty-two seated at the tables: Mrs. Ellen Rollins, Mrs. Moselay, Mrs. George Dodge, W. H. Titus and Francis T. Linnehan, of Ells-worth; Mrs. E. W. Burrill, of Ded-bam; Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Ginn Miss Carolyn Soper, of North and Orland; Mr. and Mrs. Stinson, Mrs. Roland Bonsey and daughter Ethel, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Chatto, Mrs. Wasgatt and Miss Sadie Higgins, of Surry, Mrs. E. W. Mayo, Mrs. A. M. Herrick, Mrs. William Mason, Miss Alice Holt and Mrs. Pearl Parker, of Bluebill. Mrs. Rollins reverently asked a blessing upon the food, and then we began to eat There were dainty tea biscuit and sandwiches and the lightest of raised bread. cold chicken, shrimp salad and egg salad

(the mayonnaise dressing was prono the best ever); then there were spiced beets, olives, pickles, jelley and Aunt Maria's "Sunrise" baked apples, coffee and cream, cakes, silvery and glistening with white frosting, others dewy and brown with chocolate frosting and filling, while some were heaped with whipped cream and cocoanut, and I must not forget Aunt Madge's delicious

BAYSIDE 476, ELLSWORTH. October 14, the last two degrees were conferred on two candidates. Plans for the grange fair to be held October 27 were fully discussed. As it was late, the lecturer furnished no program.

SCHOODIC, 408, WINTER HABBOR.

Schoodic grange met Oct. 1, with only a few present. Oct. 8 a good-sized company had a pleasant gathering. One name was presented for membership. After grange closed, refreshments were served and games played.

Oct. 15, twenty-nine members were present, which was quite an increase in attendance over the week previous. One new name was voted upon and accepted. and another was presented. The first degree will be worked Oct. 22. After grange closed, the grange sold hulled-corn and milk to the members present, and they not only enjoyed the sociability but added several dollars to the treasury.

HARBORSIDE, 478, SOUTH BROOKSVILLE. October 14 forty members were present including visitors from Rainbow and Massapaqua granges. A class of nine was instructed in the first and second degrees. At the next meeting there will be work in Castine grange held an all-day session Oct. 10. Members from Highland, Narramissic and Penobscot granges were pres-ent, also students from the Eastern State normal school, about 110 in all. The lecturer presented a fine program and games were enjoyed.

SCHOODIC, 420, FRANKLIN.

Oct. 15 twenty-two members and five visitors were present. One candidate was instructed in the third and fourth degrees. M. C. Foss, worthy master, sent in his resignation, and Harry Clark was elected. There will be a Hallowe'en sociable in the town hall Oct. 31; also a chicken supper.

LAMOINE, 264.

Oct. 13, Green Mountain Pomona met with Lamoine grange. Many were present, and the day proved to be one of pleasure and profit. The topic, "Resolved, that we will make this day commemorative of those things that count for peace, and for that condition of heart and mind among all people that shall make large armaments unnecessary," was opened by the worthy master, Julian Emery, in an able manner, and a resolution showing the attitude of the grange toward world

Dyeing Rugs or Carpets.

Cheap faded rugs and carpets that are not too badly worn should be dyed all over.

To do this successfully it is first necessary to scrub the rug, then rinse it. Mix the dye and keep it well stirred in the vessel, so that the color will be even.

While the rug is still wet apply the dye with a clean whitewash brush. It colors evenly this way. If the rug is dyed on the floor place a great many newspapers under it to absorb the moisture.

It should be thrown double over a line to dry or else allowed to dry on the floor. It will shrink slightly. For a sotton rug which turns a dirty

Suffered Twenty-One Years---

Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hopes of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. 1 passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several small ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity. Gratefully yours, MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson W .-- Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 25, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxvi, 47-50; xxvii, 3-10-Memory Verses, Matt xxvii, 3-5-Golden Text, Matt. xxvi, 24, Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Here is another instance of God and the devil face to face, as in the tempration in the wilderness (chapter iv). after the baptism at the Jordan. But there it was the devil in his own person, while here it is the devil in Judas Iscariot. First the devil put the thought into the heart of Judas, and later he entered in himself (John xili, 2, 27). If we would be overcomers we must resist the thoughts that are evil. It is encouraging to know that if we resist the devil he will flee from us (Jas. iv. 7; 1 Pet. v. 8, 9). We must bear in mind that our great daily conflict is not so much with the visible in the form of people or circumstances as with the rulers of the darkness of this world, wicked spirits in the heavenlies (Eph. vi. 12), and we certainly need the whole armor of God to be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

Some one has said that as this was the greatest piece of work the devil ever undertook he could not trust it to any of his followers, and so entered into Judas himself. It was a host of the devil's followers, including the chief priests, elders and scribes, who came with Judas as their leader, for our Lord had said to them earlier in His ministry, "Ye are of your father the devil" (John vili, 44). It is written that the way in which the betrayer knew where to find Jesus was because He ofttimes resorted

"The wicked (one) watcheth the thither with His disciples (John xviii, righteous and seeketh to slay him" (Ps.

xxxvii, 32), and he seems to know our resorts and our weaknesses. Judas had told the hand of followers that he would indicate the man they wanted by kissing Him. This he did, and Jesus suffered it, simply saying, "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss?" (Luke xxii, 48.) How much He bore for our sakes, but how little we seem able to bear for Him!

Knowing all things that should come upon Him, He went forth to meet His enemies and said, "Whom seek ye?"

They answered, "Jesus of Nazareth,"

Then happened a wonderful thing, an instance of His power, an illustration of the fact that not all the sol diers on earth could take Him if He had not been willing. They went backward and fell to the ground (John xviii, 4-6). They would never have risen again if He had not permitted, but would have been like the army of Sen-nacherth, all dead men (II Kings xix, 35). He allowed them to rise up and come again and take Him. It was then that Peter in his zeal blundered with his sword and took off a man's ear, but our Lord gently rebuked Peter nortion of the record being found only here. The seeming change in Judas was when he saw that Jesus was ac tually condemned. Is it possible that, having seen so much of the power of Jesus Christ and remembering the day when He quietly slipped away from the hands of the people of Nazareth and perhaps recalling His words that no man could take His life from Him (John x, 18), he did not believe that He would ever let His enemies kill Him? He could make a little money and then fool the high priests and others by seeing Jesus take Himself out of their power.

I cannot tell what His thoughts were, but I cannot forget the words. "It had been good for that man if he had not been born" (Matt.xxvi, 24). The pieces of silver remind us of the money received by Joseph's brethren when they sold him, and also of the prediction in Zech. xi. 12. Verse 9 of our lesson is a little perplexing, as it is said there that the words about the pieces of silver were spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, yet we find them written in Zechariah, not Jeremiah. Our lesson does not say they were written, but spoken, by Jeremiah. If Jeremiah spoke them and Zechariah wrote them. that would clear it all up. Some day we will know, if necessary.

The words of Judas in verse 4. " have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood." are to my mind one of the strongest testimonies on record to the holiness of the Lord Jesus-the testimony of one possessed by the devil, who was in a sense one of the twelve and knew the inner life of the little company and would have ten any flaw in the life of the Lord esus if there had been any.

I have often wondered if he was chosen that he might leave this testimony on record. The elders and high priests seemed glad to have dealings with him when he offered to betray Jesus, but now that he seems to have changed his mind they throw him off with the words: "What is that to us? See thou to that."

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

When Bob Elliot became engaged to Kate Winston society smiled. Bob was known to be in a chronic state of betrothal, and Kate was considered the queen of flirts. Everybody supposed the affair between them to be a game on both sides and wondered which would come out winner. It was not believed that anything very serious had resulted from the escapades of either, for both had the reputation of getting out of their entanglements vithout being very much blamed.

Just what was the real intent with reference to each other of Bob Elliot and Kate Winston they alone knew. There was the usual skirmishing, with a proposal and an acceptance. Quite naturally after her betrothal Kate thus addressed her flance:

"I am much concerned. Bob, about this engagement between us. You see, It is a very serious matter for a girl like myself, who has not yet seen much of the world, to give her heart to a man. I have been told that you have been engaged many times, and if this is true you must have caused a great deal of distress to a number of innocent girls."

"How about the distress those innoent girls have caused me?"

"I thought you said I was the only girl you ever loved." Mr. Elliot, being thus thrown on his beam ends, remained silent. He had nothing more to say in his defense. "I don't think," continued Miss Winston. "that I should feel safe in announcing this engagement before sufficient time has passed to determine whether you are triffing or"

"It's the real thing." "Your flippant way of speaking of it is not encouraging."

"You have spofled my plan." "You would not have proposed such plan if your conscience had been "Kate!"

"What?" "Why don't you study law? Ton'd make a far better lawyer than nine-tenths of the men. "We women don't need to study law. We are born with enough law in our heads to serve our own purposes, and we don't want any more

"Then you decline to meet me halfway, confessing your past transgressions as well as 1?" "No; I'll confess all, but I warn you that my sins are so slight that they are not worth confessing." "I must be the judge of that."

"Oh. go on." "Well, to_begin at the beginning.

there was that Miss Fitzhugh from Virginia. She was engaged to an army officer in the Philippines. She undertook to make me believe that she had made a mistake, which she didn't find out till she met me." "The horrid thing!"

"There was nothing in that, was here?

"Of course not. Go on."

"Then followed Helen Blake, who had driven a country lad to drown himself. You wouldn't have had me hang myself for her, would you?" "I wouldn't mind if you had driven her to commit suicide herself." "That's two. A widow got hold of me with the intention of marrying me, whether I would or not. Not being in a marrying mood. I demurred. These are the only cases worth mentioning. It only remains for you to give me a 'clean bill' and proceed with your own record." "I'm awfully glad to know that there is nothing in these reports after all, and I assure you there is no more in those about me. So you may feel perfectly satisfied."

Just so, but I think I'd feel better if I had a detailed account of each one of them from your own sweet lips." He kissed the aforesaid lips several times, which doubtless brought forth the confession that followed: "Ned Bissell was the first. He played tennis with me. When we had played awhile we sat down on a bench. There was no one else there and-well. he did what he had no right to do-he kissed me."

"What did you let him do that for?" "How could I help myself?"

"How many times did he kiss you?" "How many? Why, several times." "A dozen?"

"I suppose so." "No matter, since you couldn't help it. Was that all there was to that affair ?" "Yes." "Didn't he pursue you so that you were obliged to go away for a season?" "Well, yes, he did cut up a good deal." "Never mind any more about him.

How about that young lawyer?" "There was nothing in that to my discredit."

"Didn't you force him to go away for a postgraduate course?"

"I didn't do any such"-"Hold on. I knew an intimate friend of his who told me the whole story."

"It seems that you are making my confession, not I. "Well, go on and make the rest of it yourself "There's only one more of any importance. "Who is that?"

"Dick Canfield."

"If what I have heard about his case is true it was a very important one." "What did you hear?"

For the first time in the history of the organization, the Maine State Pomological society will meet in Bangor, November 17-19 inclusive. It will offer an unparalleled opportunity for the farmers of Hancock, nobscot, Piscataquis, and Washington counties to exhibit and attend.

Prescott S. Pushaw, of Pittsfield, aged eighty-seven years, committed suicide by shooting last Wednesday. Mr. Pushaw was in good health for one of his years, and had shown no signs of mental de-rangement. The only explanation of the suicide is that he was simply tired of living.

The body of Frank T. O'Leary, a wellknown Bangor young man, was found in the Penobscot river Friday. He had been missing a week. He had been for seven years employed in Lyford & Woodward's store. The drowning is believed to have been accidental, as there was no known cause for suicide, and no evidence of foul play.

Harry T. Adams, aged twelve years, of Hampden, accidentally hung himself Saturday. He was playing alone in the barn. He had a rope with a noose in the end, with which he had been playing with his dog. The rope was fastened to a beam near a stairway, down which the boy had evidently fallen while having the noose about his own neck. His neck was broken. He was dead when found.

Two children of Fred Eaton, of North Perry, aged two and eight years, were burned to death Thursday in a fire which destroyed their home while Mrs. Eaton was temporarily absent. The oldest boy of the family of five threw two other children from an upper window and escaped himself, but was unable to save the other children.

Two fatalities of strikingly similar nature occurred in Presque Isle last Wednesday. O. M. Henderson was driving his loaded potato wagon along the road with his three-year-old son on the seat beside him. A rough place in the road jolted the child from the seat and the wheels passed over him. He died an hour later. Henry Duncan, aged fifty-six, working in his potato field, was thrown from his wagon and instantly killed when the wheels passed over his head.

Samuel L. Boardman, for many years a rominent Maine newspaper man, died Thursday at Augusta, aged seventy-seven years. Mr. Boardman, who was born in Somerset county, began his newspaper career as assistant editor of the Country Gentleman at Albany, N. Y. From there he came to Augusta, and was editor of the Maine Farmer from 1861 to 1878. two years with the American Cultivator in Boston, he returned to Augusta as editor and publisher of the Home Farm. From 1889 to 1892 he was editor of the Kennebec Journal. He became editorial writer for the Bangor Commercial and editor of the Weekly Commercial in 1895, remaining with that paper until 1909, when failing health compelled his retirement. He had since lived in Augusta.

A Skowhegan correspondent reports an interesting case recently settled in the supreme court there after being in the courts many years. The result has been that neither side wins. Several years ago a farmer claimed a set of beam steelyards that were valued at $5. The farmer owning them would not give them up, and the matter was taken into court. It first was tried in the trial justice court, and a verdict was given the defendant. The plaintiff appealed, and in the supreme court it was continued and more specifications filed. It finally reached trial. The verdict was for the plaintiff, and then the defendant appealed to the law court. It was sent back for new trial. In the meantime both men were obliged to mortgage their farms to pay exper es in the When it was again taken up in the courts, the presiding justice ordered that the case be thrown out of court and the steelyards into the Kennebec river, where they now recline. The two men are both dead, and the property of each was sold before they died to settle the costs of court and the attorneys' fees.

Now and then, we hear people say that they can get along without a typewriter. Yes, we believe that. Only forty years ago everybody got along without one.

So they did, a little further back, without the steam engine and the railroad train. They got along without them because there were none.

Anyone today who thinks he can get along without the typewriter because he can do his writing with the pen, is like the man who thinks he doesn't need the railroad because he can walk. In your method of writing you may be "walking" today. If so, then remember that the railroad is built and -

There was a solemn silence between them, during which she snuggled closer to him.

"Sometimes I think," she said at last, "that when we get older we will realize the dangers through which we have passed in youth and wonder how we could have acted so. Then we'll be very careful and not do so any more." "But we won't have any fun."

"I think this is a good time for us to reform, don't you?"

"A splendid time; we won't be tempted any more.'

"Of course we won't. We'll be wrapped up in each other and won't care enough for any one else to wish to flirt. I'm glad we have made these confessions. You see, it's an even thing between us. You have been as bad as I."

"I thought you exonerated me completely."

"Did 1?"

This dialogue took place between 10 and 11 o'clock at night. At 2 in the morning Mr. Elliot. after a dozen kisses in the drawing room, a dozen in the hall and a dozen at the door, took his departure. He wondered then how he had been able to tear himself away. Ten years later he wondered how he could have spent seven hours with one girl and what they had been talking about.

After her confession Miss Winston went to bed feeling that she had thrown off the recklessness of youth. that her sins were forgiven and that she would never do any more flirting. As for Mr. Elliot, he had known much more of his fiancee's record than she had confessed. It didn't trouble him a bit so long as he was not one of the sufferers. For them he had no sympathy whatever. It is a matter of happy record that these two sinners were blessed-far more blessed than they deserved. Their wedded life was happy, and they dearly loved each other and their children.

All of which goes to prove that those who safely pass the dangers of youth may do well later on.

The sub-marines, in this, their first actual trial in warfare, seem to be "making good", if such a term may properly be applied to operations of this nature.

The Philippine bill, which declares the purpose of the United States to recognize the independence of the islands "as soon as a stable government can be established there", passed the House last Wednesday by a vote of 211 to 59. It will not be considered in the Senate at this session of Congress.

Looks as if the revenue cutter Woodbury will be the sole guardian for the government of Portland's commerce this winter. The Andro scoggin at present, or, perhaps, as usual, would be better, is hauled out for repairs, this time at Baltimore. When she does come off the ways it is understood she will be assigned to duty in eastern waters near the Grand Banks. Just how long will the gallant old Woodbury be permitted to battle with the winter seas of the North Altantic when it is known that her more than half century of life has pretty well sapped her vitality? -Portland Express.

For the first time since the democratic tariff went into effect the foreign trade balance is turning in our favor. In the first week of October, a favorable trade balance of about $6,-500,000 was shown. This is due, of course, to the fact that many of the countries with which we do business are not producing the goods which we would ordinarily purchase and are obliged to buy the goods which we have to sell. This will materially ease the gold exchange situation and stimulate business in the United States.

The failure of Congress to pass a rivers and harbors bill at the present session has brought the members of the rivers and harbors committee face to face with a serious situation, and they are now discussing with great interest the pros and cons of a river and harbor bill during the short session which begins on the first Monday in December. Representative Sparkman, of Florida, chairman of the committee, told the correspondents the other day that it was the intention of his associates to get to work on a bill immediately after the reassembling of Congress, and have it 'I voted for him.'" days.

Bar Harbor will miss the ocean liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which has been a summer attraction at the famous resort. An order was issued by Judge Clarence Hale in the United States district court last Friday directing that the steamship be transferred to the district of Massachu setts. The United States marshal of the district of Maine, John S. P. H. Wilson, was ordered to provide the necessary convoy for the ship, and to make such other arrangements as may be required. The reason given for the removal of the ship is that it was not safe for her to remain at Bar Harbor on account of ice. It is stated unofficially that the transfer of the steamer is made with the full consent of the belligerent powers of Europe. The libel for $1,040,000, which has been filed against the steamship by the Guarantee Trust Co., of New York, has been withdrawn on account of change of jurisdiction, but another has been brought in Massachusetts, and will be filed as soon as the steamship reaches Massachusetts waters.

One on President Wilson.

President Wilson can enjoy a joke, even when it is on himself.

Col. George Harvey, the brilliant editor of the North American Review, and President Wilson were renewing old fellowships and burying the hatchet on "Peace' Sunday. It will be recalled that there was a "falling out" between the President and Col. Harvey shortly after the Baltimore convention. Mutual friends, however, got busy, and on Peace Sunday the batchet-burying scene was pulled off at the White House

"Oh, yes," the Colonel continued, "only yesterday, here in Washington, I met such an one. He was an office-seeker. He declared positively that he never had heard of Mark Twain.

"I asked him about Tom Sawyer. No. he never had heard of him, either. Nor Huck Finn? No, never. Nor Pudd'nhead Wilson? 'Oh, Lord, yes,' he ejaculated. MUSIC FESTIVAL.

"Sick of War News."

(New York Sun.) It is not easy to understand the psychology of the expression, "I am sick of war news." It seems hardly possible that any one should be so narrow in his interests, so lacking in human sympathy as to become surfeited with the details of one of the most portentous crises of humanity.

Not merely generations but centuries to come will dwell upon the present clash of nations. Libraries will be written upon it, lives spent in its study. It will be the ource of inspiration of countless millions, and thousands of the wise or near wise will deduce conclusions from it for the guidance of mankind. Imagination and motion will enrich themselves from its slightest episodes. The effects are incalculable. The physical aspects of civilization now scarred and blackened and pressently to be beautified and adorned on account of it only typify the abasements and glorifications which the soul of the world will undergo.

Yet there are people to whom destiny has granted the supreme privilege of being contemporary observers of the struggle, holders of front seats at the spectacle of the ages, sharers of its great

One day his brother was telling about a sarge cave in the ountains where some panthers lived. He thought it would be a good chance to try to get one. So one morning a few days rater be started out to find When he came in sight of it the cave. he didn't see any stir, so kept creeping

"He finally came to a path; there med to be a lot of different tracks. He began looking for a place to hide and finally discovered a ledge and climbed up and sat down to rest. Suddenly he heard a sound of cracking brush. He got his rifle up ready when down the path came an old bear and three cubs; the little cubs were playing like kittens. The old bear walked up to the cave, sniffed a few times and went in. In a few minutes she came out with a little panther, killed it and gave it to the cubs. She repeated this three times, and every one she killed would scream and the old panther would answer away off in the woods. and each time nearer.

"After she had killed them all she cuffed the cubs and sent them up a tree. Then she began digging a hole in the ground and sniffing the air. In a few minutes the old panther screamed and it seemed just a little distance away. The old bear lay down on her back in the hole she had dug. She was ready for fight. The panther came straight for the bear. She gave one leap and struck on the bear. There was a fierce struggle, with screaming and snarling, and in less than ten minutes the bear was torn to fragments. The panther walked into the cave and came right out again and gave a comm that was bloodcurdling. Just a she saw the cubs. She gave a leap and brought one down and killed it, and went after the rest and killed them

"She sniffed the air again and began coming toward my grandfather, who had been watching from the ledge above. He raised his rifle, took good aim and fired.

"That was the last he knew until he became conscious again. for he fainted as soon as he shot, but the panther was dead-he had hit her between the eyes.

"He didn't wait to pick up his lunch box, but went fast for home.

"He often says that is the most game he ever got with one bullet, but he wouldn't want to see it all over again."

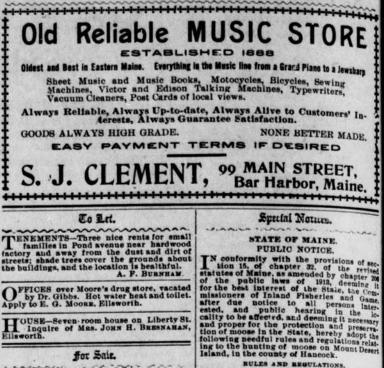

Falling Up Out of a Balloon.

If a man falls out of a rising aeroplane or balloon he will not go toward the earth, but will continue rising into the air for an appreciable time. If the air machine were stopped in its ascent at the time it could catch the man as he came down. If the airship were ascending at the rate of thirty-two feet a second the man would rise sixteen feet before beginning to fall toward the earth. Thus, by reducing the speed of its ascent, the vessel might keep by the side of the man and rescue him.

The reason why the man rises is the same as the reason for a bullet's rising when shot from a gun into the airboth the man and the bullet are given a velocity upward, and it takes some time for gravity to negative that velocity.-Glasgow News.

Degal Netters.

It is pretty generally conceded that if the democrats have control at the organization of the legislature next January, Hancock county will furnish the secretary of state in the person of John E. Bunker, the present clerk of courts of Hancock county. That's good! It's a pretty big job, and a pretty big man for the job, with just the same salary attached as to that of State auditor for which Mr. Bunker made such a good eleventh-hour fight in the democratic primaries. If we Hancock county republicans cannot have all the good things, let's find consolation in the fact that they come to Hancock county anyway, and congratulate the good democrats who get them.

Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors wear a lot of brass buttons. The civilian who doesn't care much about brass buttons anyhow may find it difficult to realize that Uncle Sam spends from $60,000 to $70,000 a years for brass and bronze buttons. The democratic tariff cut the duty on these buttons from 32 per cent. to 15 per cent. As soon as this cut was made, an English firm entered competition for the button contract, and because of cheap labor was able to underbid the American manufacturers, who had handled the contract satisfactorily for several years and had given employment to hundreds of men. New England manufacturers, naturally, made a big protest. No attention was paid to this until the protest became so strong that democratic senators and congressmen from New England saw their mistake, and urged the cancellation of the British contracts. Not until July, however, was the contract cancelled, and then it was given up on the ground that unsettled conditions made delivery uncertain.

And the Pres at's roa not diminish in the least when the colonel continued softly, " 'and,' he added, wistfully, "that's all the good it done me." "

Dairy and Seed Show.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the Maine Dairymen's association will be held in Bangor, December 8-11 inclusive. Following the custom of recent years, the Maine Seed Improvement association will unite with the Dairymen's association in olding this convention.

It has been many years since the big convention has been held as far east as Bangor, and the farmers of central and eastern Maine should exert every effort to make this the "biggest and best" of them all. The list of speakers will include Robert J. Aley, president of the University of Maine; Hon. C. S. Stetson, master of the Maine State grange; John C. Orcutt, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; S. C. Thompson, in charge of dairy manufactures, U. S. department of agriculture: Dr. Charles D. Woods, director of the Maine agricultural experiment station; E. A. Stanford, manager Pond Cove stock farm, South Portland; H. J. Wheeler, formerly director Rhode Island experiment station; Earl Jones of the agronomy department University of Maine; and many others.

emotions, who still turn away from it, not from agony or horror, but apparently from sheer blase indifference. They are sick of it. "I wish," they say, "they'd give us something else." Truly, we have here a curious frivolity, intolerance of the higher call, of world realities, of stuff of the spirit which is as strange and inexplicable as war itself.

Of course the newpapers are blamed They are the natural scapegoats for the aberrations of their readers. "Cut out the army of words," says a distinguished legislator, "just give us the information." He does not realize that there are not words enough to give the information that language is bankrupted by the facts. that it is only by heaping Ossa upon Pelion that some dim picture of the reality can be thrown before the eves of such as will read with imagination and feeling.

Will Miss the Cecilie.

Arrangements are practically completed for the removal of the ocean liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie from Bar Harbor to Boston, probably the last of this week. Bar Harbor will miss the Cecilie, especially the water company. The bill of the ship for water amounts to $40 per day. Water, however, is about the only thing which the ship buys in Bar Harbor. All ber other supplies are sent from Boston. On one trip, the J. T. Morse brought forty-two tons of supplies for the Cecilie. At present there are 690 officers and men on board the ship." Some idea of what it takes to feed this crew may be gathered from the fact that four barrels of ootstoes are required for each meal.

Coal for the furnaces and ranges on the liner is brought in by lighters.

CHASE MEMORIAL EXERCISES.

Memorial exercises by the Hancock county bar for the late Judge Edward E. Chase, of Bluehill, were held Wednesday 1991 afternoon. The following resolutions were presented by Charles J. Dunn, of Orono:

Resolved. That the bar laments, with deep regret and profound sorrow, the death of our bonored member, Judge Edward E. Chase. He was born in Bluehill, March 19, 1861, and died there February 17, 1914, having been a life-long resident of the town. Admitted to practice in the judicial courts, at this bar, or April 11, 1888, he brought to the service of the ous mistress of the law a goodly heritage of mental powers; and, always a just lawyer, he walked in his integrity.

ELMER P. SPOPFORD, CHARLES J. DUNN.

FORREST B. SNOW, Committee.

Sneakers who followed Mr. Dunn in addressing the Court with tributes to Judge Chase were Forrest B. Snow, of Bluehill; Wiley C. Conary, of Bucksport, and L. B. Deasy, of Bar Harbor. Judge King responded with his own tribute to Judge Chase, and as a further mark of respect adjourned court for the day.

ELLSWORTH WATER.

Another Analysis by Director of State

Laboratory of Hygiene. Another analysis has been made of the Ellsworth water by H. D. Evans, director of the Maine laboratory of hygiene at Augusta.

The analysis is of particular interest to the people of Ellsworth just at this time, in view of the unfounded rumors which have been floating about to the effect that typhoid germs had been found in it. It is not unusual at this season of the year, when water is low in the ponds, for the city water to have a pronounced vegetable smell; in fact, this is the normal condidition of water at this season of the year. A new odor, more of a musty smell, which was noticeable in the city water about two weeks ago, was probably due to repairs and concrete work done in the pump well about that time, or to a break in the stand-pipe main, which lowered the pressure and released water from deadends.

It is a common fallacy that impure water is necessarily accompanied by a disagreeable odor, taste or color, while the fact is that typhoid and other disease germs are frequently found in water of sparkling clearness, and with no disagreeable odor or taste.

In regard to reported cases of typhoid fever in Ellsworth, Dr. H. L. D. Woodruff, physician of the local board of health, says that no pronounced cases of typhoid fever have come to the attention of the board. A few cases showing typhoid symptoms have come to his attention, but in practically every such case investigated the patients have been using vell or spring water. The water from which the analysis here given was made was taken from the faucet at the Bar Harbor & Union River Power Co.'s office on Church street. The water was sent by Supt. L. H. Cushman at the request of the State Laboratory of Hygiene, with which an arrangement has been made to test the water every three months. The sample is sent at such time as the laboratory requests it, and not at such time as Mr. Cushman elects. In this case the request was mailed at Augusta

Oct. 9, and the water was taken the day the letter was received here, Oct. 10. The analysis was made three days later, the result was mailed Oct. 19 and received here yesterday. The analysis, the figures of which are for parts in 100,000, is as follows: Date of collection, Oct. 10, 1914; examina tion, Oct. 13. Appearance - Turbidity, 0; sediment, 0; color, 1.1. Odor-Cold, none; hot, vegetable

Residue on evaporation-Total, 2.8; loss on ignition, 1.0; fixed residue, 1.8. Ammonia-Free, .0006; in solution, .0078. Chlorine-0.26.

Hardness-1.5. Alkalinity-0.5. Iron-0.028.

> Lead-None Colon bacillus-None.

Bacteria, per c. c.-110.

In a letter accompanying the analysis

Dr. Evans says: The analysis of the fall sample of water from your public supply, sent to me on the 10th instant, shows the water to be in safe and satisfactory condition to use for all domestic purposes. There is no chemical or bacterial evidence of contact of this water The with polluting wastes of any kind. water is in normal condition for this season of the year, and is a first-class drinking vater.

Cuban Bees Cannot Sting.

The native bee of Cuba, unlike the American honeybee, has no stinger and can be handled without fear. An American apiarist in a Pinar del Rio town imported some American bees recently, says the Times of Cuba, and because of their superior armament they soon became masters of the surrounding sweetness, much to the disgruntlement of the native noney raiser. The American bees stung their rivals to death, carrying off the stored honey in triumph.

"What chance has a Cuban got against the Americans?" exclaimed one owner of vanquished honey gatherers. "They even arm their bees!"

WHY SUFFER ANY STOMACH DISTRESS

When Mi-o-na Is a Quick and Effect tive Remedy?

It's temedy? If your stomach is continually kick-ing up a disturbance, causing distress after eating, heartburn, coated tongue, gas, sour taste of food, and you feel blue and nervous, you are suffer-ing from indigestion and dyspepsia. It's needless for you to suffer, and now is the time to quickly stop the distress and regulate your upset stom-ach.

simply get from G. A. Parcher, or any drug store, some Mi-o-na tablets—a simple prescription that does more than give quick and lasting relief. Mi-o-na soothes the irritated lining of the stomach and stimulates the flow of the digestive juices so that what you eat is converted into healthful nourishment, then you are well and strong, and no longer worry about trifles or have restless nights. Do not allow indigestion to wreck your health and happiness but get some Mi-o-na tablets at once — they are cheap and harmless.

"I Never Spent Any Money

"One day a friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and soon my appetite in-creased, I slept better and now I am strong, vigorous and well and can do my housework with pleasure."-Mrs. J. F. LAMBORN, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Nervous, weak, tired, worn-out wo-men should take Mrs. Lamborn's advice and try Vinol for there are literally thousands of men and women who were formerly run-down, weak and nervous, who owe their good health to Vinol.

' It is the medicinal, tissue building elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strengthening influence of tonic iron, contained in Vinol, which makes it so efficient in all such cases.

An Opportunity for Household Economy

Adbertisements.

The great advance in price of cream of tartarwhich is derived from grapes-due to inability to care for and market the grape crop in the European countries now at war, can be made advantageous to the housewives of New England.

Housekeepers will find it more economical and much more satisfactory to use Royal Baking Powder, which is made from highly refined, pure cream of tartar. First, because the price of Royal has not been changed and it will do perfect work; second, because food made with Royal Baking Powder will be finer and more palatable; and finally, because it insures the absence of all danger from alum or similar unwholesome products.

The old-fashioned custom of buying cream of tartar and mixing it with soda, or using sour milk, may be discarded with profit. The high cost and scarcity of cream of tartar furnishes a temptation to unscrupulous dealers to substitute an adulterated product, which may be either lime phosphates or alum, that will change the baking strength and may spoil the food.

EVIDENCES OF THREE AGES OF MAN.

WALTER B. SMITH, OF BANGOR, WRITES INTERESTINGLY THE STORY TOLD BY RELICS.

[Paper delivered by Walter B. Smith, of Ban-gor, before Bangor Historical society.

Wherever man has lived since first he learned to utilize fire or to pound with a stone, there, too, may generally still be found tangible evidences of his abiding. Mixed with the sands of the Penobscot's shores and the soil of its banks are to be found, here and there, various little articles and fragments of man's handiwork-enduring objects of metal and of stone representing both historic and prehistoric times, mixed and mingled and forming component parts of the soil. Yet it is not difficult to distinguish the metal and the glass products of the white man from the stone chipped weapons of his predecessors. Nor is it hard to realize that several centuries have intervened during historic times between the lost ax of the modern lumberman and the old French and Dutch trading axes; between the recent hoe and the clumsy English hoes that Capt. John Smith tried to sell the Indians; between late cartridge shells and the gun flints of former times.

HOW RELICS ARE CLASSIFIED.

When, however, we attempt to classify, coording to age, the products of aboriginal man the task becomes far more difficult, though we are convinced that his occupancy of this valley has been many fold the three centuries of the white man. Every collector of prehistoric relics as he plods over plowed fields, digs in the ground, or assists the natural crumbling of raw-edged river banks in his search for specimens, is, in time, sure to be impressed with the fact that some articles which he finds are far older than others. It is difficult for him to explain this difference. It is not always that these objects which he considers the most ancient are less skillfully made, are buried deeper, or that invariably they look older. But to him, at least, they exhibit signs of a great disparity in point of age. And it is these "signs" and what they teach regarding the antiquity of man in the Penobscot valley that are here considered-not from the standpoint of the museum student, but rather from that of the field worker-the impressions of the more or less observing collector.

It is believed by the writer that we may recognize at least three horizons, or culture periods of prehistoric man in this valley and its contiguous territory. Without making any attempt to correlate these periods with the well-recognized divisions of the Stone Age in Europe, we will call them provisionally, and for the purpose of a local working basis:

The Algonquin period. The Red-Paint period. п.

III. The Pre-Eskar period.

ALGONQUIN PERIOD.

The Algonquin period, which is the most recent, ended with the coming of Europeans and the begining of historic times on this river. How far back it extended is of course unknown, but there are indications that it was not many centuries. The descendants of its people are with us to-day. They retain some of the legends of their ancestors, some of their craftsmanship, but the art of chipping stone and fashioning it into weapons implements and tools, has, through desire, become lost.

Nor can they add to the knowledge of the white man anything regarding the ancient uses of such objects; yet we have, no doubt, a fairly accurate knowledge of at least the commoner weapons and tools of this period, owing to their abundance hereabouts, to the rather meager writings of early observers and to stories that have many of the implements have undergone when buried many inches below the surface, prove the burials to be among the oldest yet discovered under this continent," and, "if the generally accepted theory of the comparatively recent eastward migration of the Algonquin tribes which inhabited New England at the advent of Europeans be correct, the burials in these old cemeteries cannot be at-tributed to that people." He notes the similarity of some of the polished slate implements to those of the Eskimo.

He cites the extensive use of red ochre by the extinct Beothuks, or Red Indians, whom Cartier and other early explorers found on the coast of Newfoundland, and me of their somewhat similar customs of burial, but he offers no definite conclusion as to who made these old graves in the Penobscot valley.

Mr. Moorehead states: "It is our conviction that the graves represent an ancient and exceedingly primitive culture, totally different from that of the later Algonquin tribes inhabiting the region, and "There is a total absence of the following well-known Penobscot and Abnaki types: The grooved axe; grooved hammer; pottery, soapstone dishes and ornaments; pierced tablets of the common forms; few, if any, thick celts; mortars and pestles; pipes; beads; bone imple-ments. There are very few of the small, ordinary chipped arrowheads. Chipped spearpoints and an occasional arrown are found, but most of the projectile points are of polished slate."

The implements supposed to be peculiar to this period are those long, slim, hexagonal lance-heads, and the so-called Penobscot type of long pendants. Other characteristic objects are plummets, in great numbers; gouges, celts; lenticular, slate knives or spearheads; polished slate arrowpoints; hammerstones and firestones.

THE PRE-ESKAR PERIOD.

Those long, glacial ridges of more or less stratified sand, gravel, clay, and boulders, running somewhat irregularly, but for the most part paralleling the river are generally called eskars.

They are seen to good advantage at several points between Bangor and Old Town. The very few implements here referred to this period have been found on or in these deposits. They are supposed to have been manufactured before the formation of these ridges, hence the term of Pre-Eskar for this period.

In a dozen years collecting I have found less than that number of specimens which can with any assurance be assigned to this period, but the evidence offered by a single specimen if rightly interpreted should be as convincing as a multiplicity of such objects. If read aright these artifacts denote an extremely remote time of man's existence in this region. SIGN OF AGE.

The reasons for considering them so ancient are the signs of age offered by the specimens themselves and by their location in these Eskars, the supposition being that their worn and weathered appearance has been caused by the same agencies which has rounded and smoothed and weathered the pebbles with which they are associated. Abrasion carried a little further would rob them of all recognizable marks of man's work, and their identity as such would be lost in that of the surrounding stones, some of which we may even suspect-but cannot prove-to have been used by man.

The feat, poorly-chipped blade was accidentally found in digging into the face of a bluff about four feet from its top. The material is a compact, fine-grained quartz-porphyry. It is much worn and the great extent of its weathering is well shown at the broken end.

The other specimens are either of quartz. or minerals of like hardness. One is a surface find, the other from eighteen inches below. Both were found at a height of more than one hundred feet above high water; both are worn very smooth, but that this wearing did not come from their long-continued use as weapons or tools is plain in the case of the perforator-like object, since its longago broken end, which unfitted it for tool, shows the same wear and patinazatian as the remainder of its surface. I do not claim that the Pre-Eskar period is pre-glacial, as there are some indications that the waters of the Penobscot have at some prehistoric time been held back by a natural dam, and that there may have been a rearrangement of its materials in post-glacial times. Weathering or those changes made by "the gnawing tooth of time", is an important factor in determining the relative ages of prehistoric relics. It may be said in general that the weathering of any stone artifact is a proof of considerabl antiquity, but the amount of weathering depends largely upon the exposure which the material has had to the action of sun, rain, wind and frost; to its proximity to disintegrating substances, to the effects of forest fires, etc. Some substances, such as flint, agate jasper and other varieties of quartz are so resistant to weathering that centuries of exposure produce little change except a patina polish of their surfaces. Another form of weathering particularly noticeable in those relics made of certain diorites, granite and sandstones manifests itself in a loosening or disintegration of their component particles and a consequent crumbling of the object. The most common examples of weath ering, however, are shown as surface oxidations with some changes in chemical composition. Thus, some relics made of materials containing iron become rusty In a similar manner relics made of certain eruptive rocks containing a large amount of feldspar become white. This is particularly well shown by that dense, gree ish-gray type of quartz-porphyry which is found in place of Mt. Kineo. Probably one-half of the chips, spalls, broken blades and discards of chipped tools and weapons found along this section of the Penobscot are made of this rock. It is abundant as boulders and pebbles over a fan-shaped area extending from Kineo to the coast.

ing as a newly broken surface of the rock; thers show only a alight change, while some are weathered to an extent equaling that of boulder which may have been exposed to all the action of the elements since the glacial period.

It is to be noted, however, that where these boulders or the relics made of this material have been protected by being imbedded in soil, the weathering is far less observable or nearly absent. Sphaeroidal weathering shows in the tendency possessed by a few large axes and cells made of diorite or similar rock, to peel off in successive crusts; this rounds all angles and ultimately, like excessive abrasion, removes all traces of man's work.

In the limits of a brief paper it is not possible to present this subject clearly, Indeed, one must search for, find and study these things himself to become convinced that many of the stone relice found here are far older than is generally supposed, that some of them denote a very great antiquity and have lived here before the white man became its official historian.

New discoveries and further studies will shed more light upon these questions.

The periods as outlined here may be expanded, changed, or discarded as new facts demand, but in the meantime some local, tentative, time-division of the stone age will tend to systematize observation and facilitate classifications.

When we have collected enough relics, made sufficient comparisons, traced materials to their sources, learned more of their composition and rate of weathering, carefully studied the debris of camping grounds and village sites and burial places-not overlooking the story told by even the dirt and fragments and partly made and broken things-then may we be able to see more clearly the difference between the comparatively new, the very old, and the extremely ancient artifacts of prehistorio times, and to better comprehend the long, long time that has passed since man first wandered or dwelt in the Penobscot valley.

Luther H. Clifton, for seventeen years postmaster at Blades, Del., recently received word from the postoffice department in Washington that he would be prosecuted if he did not pay a shoringe of one cent. He settled and escaped trouble. The affair was peculiar. Clifton was ucceeded as postmaster last November by Caleb R. Cannon. The accounts were gone over by an expert when the transfer was made, but it was impossible to learn the amount of cancellations, this being the basis upon which the postmaster's salary is fixed.

The report of the expert finally was that the government owed the retiring official one cent. However, the department sent word that the debit was the other way about, and threatened prosecution for non-payment. Clifton paid the money to his successor and got a receipt.

"What are you doing in there?" he said, on discovering the saturated one. "Here, give me your hand!" "Nev? mine me, capt'n! KINDS OF TOOLS.

Of the many forms of stone artifacts made and used by the people of this period, perhaps grooved axes, arrowpoints, spearheads, knives, scrapers, hammerstones, celts, pestles, pipes and pottery are the most characteristic, although gouges, plummets, ornaments and ceremonials were not unknown.

Some of their ancient cemeteries have been found and the methods of their burials studied. This is of importance in differentiating this period from that which preceded it.

RED POINT PERIOD.

What people occupied the area under discussion during this period is unknown. If they were Algonquin, their descendants did not continue their burial methods nor the manufacture of some of their most gracefully shaped implements into that time which we have here called the Algonquin period.

The reasons for considering this period distinct from the Algonquin are based upon C. C. Willoughby's explorations of incient cemeteries at Bucksport, Orland and Ellsworth in 1892 and 1894; upon Prof. Warren K. Moorehead's explorations of similar cemeteries at Orland and Passadumkeag in 1913; upon the latter gentleman's lecture before this society last spring, and upon the writer's investigation of like burials at Ellsworth Falls, his examination of weapons from the Parker's Point find, from Old Town graves and from his field work along the river for many years.

HOW NAME IS DERIVED. Prof. Moorelfead's excellent paper, "The Red-Paint People of Maine," has suggested the name for this period.

Both gentlemen found large -quantities of red ocher deposited with the many implements which they secured; both have described the difference between some of these implements and those of the ordinary Algonquin type.

Mr. Willoughby says: "The complete decay and disappearance of the skele-tons, the disintegration of the firestones
