Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 8, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gal. vi, 1-10—Memory Verses, 1, 2—Golden Text, Gal. vi, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The Golden Text is awfully true, even for redeemed people, that "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." We have recently seen in our studies Judas Iscariot reaping something of the reward of iniquity.

The reaping is generally more than we sow, as it is written in Hos. viii, 7, "They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind." Again, in Hos. x, 13, "Ye have plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity; ye have eaten the fruit of lies, because thou didst trust in thy way."

According to the epistle in which we find our lesson, the age is evil. The devil, who is the god of this age, has a gospel of his own and enough religion to satisfy most people.

Not until we see Christ crucified for us, made a curse for us, bearing our sins in His own body and, receiving Him, see ourselves as crucified with Him, are we new creatures (chapter ii, 20; iii, 13; John i, 12).

When we are made free from the curse and have become children of God by faith in Christ Jesus then it is our privilege to walk in the Spirit, be led of the Spirit, stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free and not do the things which the flesh that is still in us would have us do.

When we are made free from the curse and have become children of God by faith in Christ Jesus then it is our privilege to walk in the Spirit, be led of the Spirit, stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free and not do the things which the flesh that is still in us would have us do.

When we are made free from the curse and have become children of God by faith in Christ Jesus then it is our privilege to walk in the Spirit, be led of the Spirit, stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free and not do the things which the flesh that is still in us would have us do.

There is a sense in which we must bear our own burden (verse 5), "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. xiv, 12).

Mutual Benefit Column.

Its Motto: "Helpful and Hopeful." The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and hopeful.

THE HYMNS OF LONG AGO. [W. Kee Maxwell.] They tell us every little while, Those men who claim to know, The good old hymns are out of style:

Dear Friends: These letters from some of the steadfast friends of the column will be appreciated by you all. I wonder if it is correct to say "tuna fish" any more than to say "haddock fish" or "salmon fish".

Dear Friends of the Column: It is a very long time since I have written anything for this department, but not for lack of interest. My time is fully taken up in many ways and I find it difficult to spare a fragment even for the many things I would like to do.

Being one of those fortunate enough to attend the last annual gathering of the M. B. circle, I resolved anew to endeavor to be something more than just a name, as the column cannot be either "helpful" or "hopeful" unless its contributors make it so by their interest and efforts.

I have been trying some new recipes lately, and when I succeed with one I think I will send it to our column for the benefit of some one else; so with this I will send a few. If you don't succeed, be sure to try again, as often the trouble is in the putting together, too much or too little flour or some other ingredient, or an oven not just right.

My dear niece, think of that collection of Esther! Aren't the M. B.'s thrifty housewives? Your recipes are very welcome and practical. Thanks.

Dear Aunt Madge: I promised a report of my trip, so here goes. The morning after our reunion it was almost rainy, so I feared the two ladies who were going with me would not come along.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Mrs. Mann, being one of my fellow travelers in the carriage, we soon felt at home, and after a good dinner—not quite such a "spread" as the day before—I started out on business, obtained the child without any trouble—a sweet little girl, five years old, deserted by both parents.

Spent the night with Capt. and Mrs. Mann. Next morning left on the early train for the children's home at Augusta. Was met at the door by our Nell, with a smiling welcome and arms open to receive another waif into her now crowded house.

So I am safely at home awaiting the next call, which is at hand as soon as a vacant place is found for a child. Several are awaiting me now.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

A SIMPLE MEAL. DINNER MENU. Spinach Puree. Cucumber Salad. Scalloped Tomatoes. Veal Goulish. Apple Custard. Coffee.

A SUBSTANTIAL yet inexpensive dinner is outlined above. Some suggestions for preparing it are given here.

A Novel Soup. Spinach Puree.—Wash and boil until tender one pound of fresh spinach. Drain, chop fine and simmer in a saucepan in which one tablespoonful of butter has been melted. Take from stove, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of nutmeg and one tablespoonful of grated cheese. Heat one cupful each of milk and water. When boiling add the spinach and two beaten eggs, simmer for four minutes, then place, uncovered, on the top shelf of a very hot oven for five minutes. Serve with croutons.

Scalloped Tomatoes.—Season about a pint of sliced tomatoes with a teaspoonful of salt, a scant teaspoonful of pepper and onion juice. Add a cupful of finely minced celery. Butter a baking dish. First put in half of the tomatoes, then a layer of crackers. Sprinkle with two heaping tablespoonfuls of grated cheese; then add the tomatoes, sprinkle the top with cracker crumbs and bits of butter and bake twenty minutes.

A French Method. Veal Goulish.—Take about one and one-half pounds of lean fillet or leg of veal. Remove skin and sinews and cut into fairly thick slices or cubes of even size. Peel and slice thinly a fairly large onion and fry in a pan with an ounce of lard to a pale color. Now put in the meat, season with salt, pepper and paprika and allow to cook. Next dredge the meat with about a tablespoonful of flour, mix well and moisten with one-half a pint of good stock and a small glass of claret, cover the pan and allow to cook slowly for about an hour. Have ready two or three potatoes, washed, peeled and cut into cubes; add these when the meat is half done. About ten minutes before serving mix a little sour cream with the stew. Serve hot.

Apple Custard.—Take a half dozen apples, pare and grate these with the rind of one lemon. Add the yolks of three eggs, sweeten to taste and bake ten to fifteen minutes in a quick oven. When done spread over the top a meringue made by beating the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, with a tablespoonful of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Put the custard in the oven to brown.

JERUSALEM.

[By Rev. Horace B. Haskell.]

While modern Jerusalem is predominantly a Jewish city, it is also an irresponsible conglomeration of races, languages and religions. All the continents and one-half of the countries of the world are represented in its motley crowds. People in almost every color and kind of costume mingle with and jostle each other on the streets.

One day a friend and myself went out to count nationalities and languages. Within a stone's throw of the Thabor, the home of the Newman institute, we succeeded in writing down the following: Arabic, which is the ordinary language of the city; Turkish, Syrian, Armenian, Kurdish (dialect), Abyssinian, Afghani, Bukhari (Turkestan), Judeo-Spanish, Hindustani, Kutoz, Vischi, English, German, French, Russian, Italian, Spanish, Bohemian, Serbian, Bulgarian, Greek, Hebrew, Dutch, Danish, Swedish, Norwegian, Montenegrin, Roumanian, Japanese and Chinese.

Together with all these nationalities, tongues and costumes, the visitor sees all colors of skin from the blond of certain northern Europeans to the black of the Africans. The prevailing colors, however, are the malarial yellow of the Jew and the swarthy brown of the Arab.

The every-day life of these diverse races is interesting. Many calendars are in use, there are three holy days in the week, various kinds of coinage is accepted by the traders, different prices are asked for the same article, bargaining is the custom, and the first and last word the visitor hears is "bakshish".

The people do business on the Gregorian, or western time, the Julian, or eastern time, the Coptic, Israelites, Mohammedan, or some other time, as the particular persons engaged in the transactions prescribed. It does strike the Occidental as a little odd to be doing business in the year 1332 or 5675, as the case may be.

The hours of the day and time for observance of ceremonies are very different. The Arab day begins with the going down of the sun. The marriage formalities and the funeral rites are as distinct as the civilizations represented by the various religions. The holy days are Friday for the Moslem, Saturday for the Jew and Sunday for the Christian.

The French gold invariably passes for its full face value, and most of the traders prefer it to any other coinage the traveler offers as a medium of exchange. Speaking in general terms there are three prices asked for the same article of merchandise, the price named to the tourist, which is many times more than the thing is worth. It is an attempt to "fleece the traveler". The price asked the foreign resident, which is exorbitant.

In the majority of cases the would-be purchaser is expected to bargain until tired, and then to pay more than the article is worth if he takes it. Finally, the charge made the native, which is cheap enough. There are a few one-price stores, but these are owned and run, with hardly an exception, by Europeans. The prices in these stores, as a rule, are very high.

The first word a baby lips, and sometimes I have thought the last word an old man utters, is "bakshish". The visitor hears it on every side. A mother in Bethlehem, a few miles from Jerusalem, where Jesus was born, will thrust her baby's hand before the visitor's face while she pleads, and the baby imitates, "bakshish," "bakshish." In Bethany, just around the Mount of Olives, the home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, I have seen a crowd of small children literally tear a man's clothing, who was a little liberal with his metalliks in their determination to get into his pockets for more metalliks.

In Jerusalem old men, and women almost always with babies in their arms, and children playing about, crouch along the walls of the buildings of the narrow streets. Most of the lepers have been taken off the streets because their presence affects disastrously the tourists' business. A generous-hearted American told me of his attempt to care for these beggars. He purchased a house and grounds. He had the house furnished, hired servants, and made ready every comfort for his expected guests. Then he went out, and with great kindness and good promises invited the poor creatures to what he thought would be a paradise to them, and he could not, either through his own persuasion, or the persuasions of native folks, get one to accept his offer.

The bell at the gate of the Thabor rang violently one morning. When we threw it open we saw three adults running around the corner of the wall with a baby's clothes in their hands, while arched in the gateway, as in the frame of a picture, stood, entirely naked, as perfect a black, fat, round and plump, African gypsy child, three years old, as you ever saw—a beautiful cherub, crying "bakshish," "bakshish." Now that child was not hungry. The whole begging system, practically, is a matter of business, and the tourist makes it a profitable business. Beggars, beggars, everywhere! Arabs, Syrians, Jews, Africans and other races. Another interesting and ever present person in Jerusalem is the dragoman. With an occasional exception he is a very ignorant man, although able to converse in a limited manner in four or six languages. He is brought up hearing many tongues and easily acquires the use of those he needs in his business. Besides the Arabic, the native language, most of them find it convenient to speak English, German, French, and Russian, as the bulk of their employment is with people who use those tongues. Many of them present a good appearance and are more or less gentlemanly in their deportment. They easily become familiar, and are quick to learn those they can take advantage of.

The only wise thing to do is to make them severely keep their places. They know little of their beaten tracks or outside their glibly repeated stories taught by the priests or passed down from father to son in the business. The visitor will be obliged to follow and listen to the story, whether it has the Greek, Latin, Armenian, Jewish, Moslem or some other bias, according to the religious faith of the particular guide employed. Your Bedeker is right in saying that while they are found useful in the crooked Oriental streets, they are "nothing more than valets-de-place".

It is amusing to the sojourner in Jerusalem, who has made a study of the place and who has heard the stories of all these innocent, ignorant and prejudiced conductors to read a booklet, magazine or newspaper article just off the American press written by a tourist recently returned from the Holy City, who has spent a few hours with one of them and who passes the more or less incredible story he bears, on to his friends and the public. The late successful showman, Mr. Barnum, is reputed to have said that Americans liked to be fooled. We know that some of them have a fine knack of passing the joke on to others.

In answer to some recent inquiries, I may say briefly that Jerusalem is a city of Palestine, Syria—a part of Turkey in Asia and that it forms one of the political divisions of the Ottoman Empire. The Arab calls it El Kuds. It is an independent Sanjak with a Mutesarrif appointed by the Sublime Porte, and a local mayor of the city. There are two councils, called respectively the city and executive. In these councils are found seated representatives of all the more important religious beliefs—the Greeks, the Latins, Protestants, Armenians, and Jews, as well as the Moslems.

There are two regiments quartered in the city, one at the tower of Antonia, and the other at the tower of David, so-called. There are a number of interesting foreign communities in and about the city. Many nations support consuls. Some of the consulates are magnificent structures, but the American is a rented building, a poor and cheap affair compared with most of the others.

There are all kinds of shops, many banks, good physicians, and the visitor may inquire for his mail at the German, French, Italian, Russian or Austrian post-offices as well as the Turkish. The city stands on two promontories, although the valley separating them is filled up with debris, surrounded by valleys and hills. It is 2,600 feet above the level of the Mediterranean sea and 3,900 feet above the level of the Dead or Salt sea, which, by the way, is the deepest indentation on the earth's surface, being 1,300 feet below the level of the ocean.

The traveller who takes proper care of himself need have no more fear from a sojourn in Jerusalem than in any other city of the near East. The Holy City is becoming more and more one of the most important study centres of the world.

NORTH BROOKLIN.

Many of the older residents will learn with regret of the death of Mrs. Cordelia (Curtis) Grindle, which occurred at North Brooklin, Friday, Oct. 16, at the home of her niece, Mrs. W. A. Hale. Mrs. Grindle was born April, 1823 in Surry, the daughter of Jeremiah and Mary (Hamor) Curtis, and the youngest of a family of ten children, all of whom passed away before her. In her early life she was a teacher, and for more than thirty years taught in the coast towns of Hancock county. In 1878 she was married to Nathaniel Grindle, of North Brooklin, and since that time made North Brooklin her home. Early in life she united with the Baptist church, and was always a faithful and devoted member. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, Oct. 18, from the North Brooklin chapel.

FOSTERS SHEEP RAISING.

Virginia's New Dog Law Aids Wool and Mutton Growers. [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

The state of Virginia at a recent session of its legislature passed a novel dog law, which it is believed will enable that state to raise sheep successfully on a large amount of waste land heretofore idle. This law makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $50 for the owner to allow his dogs to run at large in the country.

This waste land, while entirely suitable for sheep raising, was not well adapted to cattle for the reason that winter feed in those districts was too high to make the wintering of beef cattle profitable. All that stood in the way of a profitable sheep industry was dogs, which were kept in large num-

It does not require much capital to get started with a few sheep. The percentage of increase is large, and they reach maturity at an early age. Meat production must be the foundation of the business, but with the almost certainty that the wool will be high priced there should be added inducement to handle a few of these most profitable farm animals. The black faced Highland ram here shown is a type suited to localities where hardness and vigor are necessary.

bers in the shanty settlements. These dogs, which were rarely fed at home, lived on the young game during the spring and summer and preyed on the sheep whenever they were not watched, and especially in winter.

The old dog license law merely meant that a dog was commonly $2 a year hungrier for sheep. The general law permitted a sheep owner whose flock had been ravaged to sue the owner of the dog, but commonly the owner owned nothing but dogs, and the sheep farmer could not recover. Moreover, if the sheep owner shot a stray dog on his premises the owner of the dog could sue the farmer for damages. The farmers of Virginia grew tired of having their waste land idle and finally induced the legislature to pass a new and stringent dog law. This law, when adopted by a county, makes it a misdemeanor for the owner of a dog to allow that dog off his own property unless he is with the dog. In the case of incorporated villages and towns the law permits the licensing of dogs, but makes it a misdemeanor for them to be alone outside of the incorporated limits.

The indirect effect of this law is to allow any farmer to shoot a lone dog on his property. The owner of the dog, before he can bring suit for damages for the killing of the dog, necessarily must establish proof that the dog was at large and thus subject himself to a fine up to $50.

Although the law was passed very recently, a number of counties have signified their intention of making it a county rule, and in these counties owners of waste land are already making preparation to establish flocks of sheep.

HOGGING DOWN CORN.

Saves Labor of Harvesting and Pigs Make Better Gains.

[Prepared by University of Wisconsin.] Many consider it a shiftless method to turn swine into small fields of ripened corn and allow them to harvest the crop. However, there are many advantages to be gained by following this system where hogs are being fall fattened.

Farmers as well as investigators at the agricultural experiment station, University of Wisconsin, have found that, besides saving the labor of harvesting the crop, the pigs are usually more thrifty, make slightly better gains and if properly handled there is little or no waste of feed.

Of course in "hogging down" a field care should be taken in getting the swine accustomed to the full ration of corn to prevent them from over eating at the outset. Spring pigs are best for this system of feeding. It has been estimated that an acre of corn yielding fifty bushels will feed twenty spring pigs for from eighteen to twenty days.

The Profitable Sow.

A thrifty, thin, lively brood sow with a keen appetite will do better in the farrowing pen than a fat, lazy one. Many swine growers seem to think a sow should be in condition for the butcher when she brings her pigs into the world. No mistake could be more complete. Go light on the corn and use ground wheat, rye chop, barley chop, mixed ground feeds and the like as you happen to have them on the farm. For balancing corn, barley and the like, a little oilmeal or tankage every day is good. A fourth of the sow's feed may be alfalfa hay—better for her than a pure grain feed. Make her walk as far as possible from shed to feed.—Farm and Fireside.

GOOD ROADS.

Their Benefit to Non-Abutting Property-Owners.

The road-building specialists of the department of agriculture, in bulletin N 136, entitled "Highway Bonds", have following to say about the benefit of well-constructed highway to property owners whose property is not directly on the road to be improved:

In planning the highway system or the main market roads, it will be found necessary to omit many roads the improvement of which is greatly desired by abutting landowners. The fact that such property holders must pay a tax for the bond issue is only an apparent injustice, for if the highway system is well planned the entire county will feel the benefits of the improvement. As a rule, main market roads reach the majority of producing areas, and when they are improved all land values tend to increase.

The fact that cities and larger towns are frequently taxed for bond issues to build highways outside of their own limits is sometimes made a point of debate in bond elections. It is argued that because a large part of the county wealth is within the corporate limit of such cities and towns, highway bond money should also be used to construct their streets. It is even urged that the expenditure should be made proportionate to the assessment within the city limits. If the proceeds of highway bond issues were distributed in this way, their purpose in many cases would be defeated.

The primary object of the county highway bond issue is to build county market roads and not to improve city streets, although a high percentage of the assessed valuation may be city property. It is now known that the expenditure of city taxes on country roads is a sound principle and that it is one of the best features of State aid for highways. In Massachusetts the city of Boston pays possibly 40 per cent. of the total state highway fund, but not a mile of state-aid highway has been built within its limits. New York city also pays about 60 per cent. of the cost of the state highway bonds. Some state laws prohibit the expenditure of proceeds of state highway bonds within corporate limits of cities or towns.

The improvement of market roads results in improved marketing conditions which benefit the city. Most cities are essentially dependent upon the surrounding country for their prosperity and development. The development of suburban property for residence purposes is also dependent upon highway conditions, and it is becoming evident yearly that what-ever makes for an increase in rural population must be encouraged. Since the introduction of motor traffic, country highways are used to an increasing extent by city residents. In fact, the cost of maintaining many country highways has been greatly increased by the presence of city-owned motor vehicles. The general advance in facilities for doing country business from town headquarters when roads are improved is no inconsiderable factor in the commercial life of the community.

WINTER HARBOR.

Work in the lodges is resumed with the regular winter interest.

Arthur Rand and wife are spending a few days with Dr. A. E. Small and wife in Bangor.

J. M. Gerrish and family are occupying "The Hanover" this winter, in order to be near his business.

The house occupied by Henry Young and family was destroyed by fire early Friday evening. The family was out at the time, and the fire was well under way when discovered. It was impossible to save any of the contents. The loss comes particularly hard to them at this time of year. At present they are occupying J. M. Gerrish's house. Kind friends made up a donation Saturday of dishes, groceries, etc. The house was owned by Colon Higgins, who carried some insurance.

Two ways of getting along

Which wins?

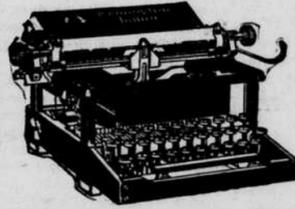

Now and then, we hear people say that they can get along without a typewriter. Yes, we believe that. Only forty years ago everybody got along without one.

So they did, a little further back, without the steam engine and the railroad train. They got along without them because there were none.

Anyone today who thinks he can get along without the typewriter because he can do his writing with the pen, is like the man who thinks he doesn't need the railroad because he can walk. In your method of writing you may be "walking" today. If so, then remember that the railroad is built and—

CITY MEETINGS.

ALDERMEN HOLD TWO MEETINGS DURING THE WEEK.

BIDS FOR POSITION AS SUPERINTENDENT OF POOR OPENED—FRANK R. MCGOWN'S BID ACCEPTED—MAYOR MAY VETO.

The mayor and board of aldermen held two meetings during the past week—the recess meeting last Thursday evening to open bids for superintendent of the poor, and the regular meeting Monday evening.

RECESS MEETING.
The full board was present at the recess meeting of the board Thursday evening. Before opening the bids for superintendent of poor, the board discussed the advisability of allowing the use of Hancock hall for basket-ball. A majority favored doing so, provided the boys agreed to make good all damage done, and posted a check for a reasonable amount as a guarantee. Ald. Stuart, Jones and Treworgy were made a special committee to make the necessary arrangements. The board then opened the bids for superintendent of the poor. Bids, it will be remembered, were asked for under two propositions—No. 1, the city to furnish all furniture, tools and machinery, and No. 2, the superintendent to furnish same. The following bids were received, the figure given being the pay asked per year for a term of three years:

Name	Proposition No. 1	Proposition No. 2
Arthur B. Mitchell,	$890	$ 650
Frank R. McGown,	800	1,000
Daniel Richardson, (to furnish own pair horses)	800	1,000
George L. Munroe,	800	1,000
Fred H. Jewell,	800	1,000
W. E. Harrington,	500	650

All bids were laid on the table until the regular meeting Monday evening, pending a visit by the full board to the city farm Monday afternoon.

REGULAR MEETING.
The full board was present at the regular meeting Monday evening, Mayor Hagerthy presiding.

J. A. McGown, Auditor.
Dated Nov. 2, 1914.

There was some discussion as to balance due from Collector John H. Bresnahan of his 1913 contract. It appears that Mr. Bresnahan paid in to make good on his old contract a personal tax assessed against C. C. Burrill, amounting for three years to $730, which the courts afterward declared was not legally assessed. Mr. Bresnahan claims the amount is due him from the city, and should be credited on his 1913 contract. Ald. Maddocks took the ground that the money having been turned in on Mr. Bresnahan's contract, the city was not obliged to return it. Ald. Moor thought the city was in honor bound to reimburse Mr. Bresnahan to the amount paid out. There was considerable discussion, but no action resulted.

SUPERINTENDENT OF POOR.
Ald. Moor spoke briefly in favor of retaining M. J. Drumney as superintendent of poor. He believed Mr. Drumney's knowledge of the pauper laws was worth more than the few hundred dollars between him and the lowest bidder, and referred to the petition in Mr. Drumney's favor signed by some 350 tax-payers and citizens. He moved to accept Mr. Drumney's bid of $1,000 under proposition No. 2.

The vote on the motion was doubted, and the roll was called, Ald. Jones, Stuart and Maddocks voting no, Ald. Treworgy and Moor yes.

Ald. Jones' motion that the board accept a bid under proposition No. 2 was carried. Ald. Maddocks moved that bid of Frank R. McGown be accepted. This vote also was doubted, and was carried by the same division as above.

Mayor Hagerthy advised the board that he would take the vote under consideration, implying that he might exercise his veto power on it.

OTHER BUSINESS.
William E. Richardson appeared before the board in regard to his bill of $115 for work on the woolen mill road. Mr. Richardson's authority for doing the work was questioned, and the bill was held up at the last regular meeting.

It seems that Henry W. Cushman, of Bangor, who has fitted up the old Joy place as a summer home, had asked that needed repairs be made on the road. Mr. Richardson says that Mr. Cushman saw Mayor Hagerthy, and that he also saw the mayor, who told him to go ahead with the work. Mayor Hagerthy says that there was a misunderstanding about it. Mr. Cushman spoke to him about a few bad places in the road, and he told him he would call the matter to the attention of the board, and he did so. He did not recall talking with Mr. Richardson about it at all. Street Commissioner Marden, who found Mr. Richardson at work on the road, told him he would not approve the bill.

Alderman Maddocks said the street commissioner understood no money was to be laid out on the road; the mayor says he did not authorize the work; he himself told Mr. Richardson the city would not pay him for the work. The question, he thought, was whether the board should allow any road surveyor to lay out $100 or more on a road without authority, and then bring the bill in and the board approve it. He said he would like to hear from Mr. Cushman.

It was suggested that a committee be appointed to see Mr. Cushman in regard to the matter, but no action was taken, and the discussion ended.

Bill of John H. Bresnahan as city marshal was read by the city clerk, and turned down by the board by the same division of the vote as above.

HANCOCK HALL AGAIN.
Another conflict of dates in the booking of Hancock hall came up. Senator Hale hose company claimed to have booked the hall for Thanksgiving eve, through the former janitor, Schuyler Higgins, and also through the acting janitor for a part of this year, G. B. Jameson. C. E. Monaghan had later booked the hall through Mr. Bresnahan. Mr. Higgins and Mr. Jameson endorsed the claim of the firemen, as presented by Chief Orrin M. Clement, and Mr. Monaghan relinquished his claim to the hall.

The matter brought up the discussion of care and booking of Hancock hall, and Ald. Stuart reviewed the action of the board during the year. He suggested that all bookings should be made by the city clerk. Ald. Moor endorsed the suggestion, but no action was taken.

Ald. Maddocks brought up the matter of fire escapes on the high school building and all other public buildings and factories in the city, and his motion that the mayor report to the board at its next meeting all buildings which should be provided with fire escapes, was adopted.

A recess was then taken to next Monday evening.

Boyd Blaisdell and family are getting settled in their pleasant new home. Edward Dyer, who has been away at sea several months, is home for the winter. Miss Etta Lunt, of Holden, was a weekend guest at the home of H. B. Bragdon and wife. Everard Cousins and wife are home from Aroostook county where they have been employed. Alfred Hanson, wife and little son, of Kingman, are visiting her parents, F. P. Gott and wife. Misses Frances Dyer and Geneva Bragdon were home from Castine a few days, returning to the normal school Monday. The grange supper, sale and Hallowe'en entertainment Saturday evening at the town hall was quite a success. The two-score lady members are active, and their semi-monthly meetings find them busied with pretty handiwork which brings ready purchasers. Clifford, youngest son of C. E. Dyer and wife, fell down the home stairway last week and was severely injured about the face, fracturing the bone of his chin, and sustaining several bruises, besides a general shaking up. He is bravely enduring his enforced quiet. The ladies' aid society is busy. A birthday observance of the organization is scheduled for Tuesday evening, Nov. 10, when they will have a musicale and literary entertainment at the Methodist church. Admission will be by passing to the doorkeeper little coin-sacks holding pennies tallying with the person's years. Numerous sacks have also been mailed to friends at a distance. A social in the vestry will follow the opening exercises, when cake and ice-cream will be served. A birthday cake with lighted candles will shed its welcome beams. Nov. 2. B.

The entertainment and Hallowe'en party given by the Helpsomehow club Friday evening was one of the best here for a long time. The hall was beautifully trimmed with hemlock, crepe paper and jack-o-lanterns. A "mysterious spectre" was at the entrance with clammy hand to greet all. There was a fortune-teller booth, where the "old witch" told fortunes, a mystery table and other mysteries. The farce, "How the Story Grew," was very amusing and true to life. The doughnut contest was won by Master Robert Jordan. The committee and others worked hard, but feel repaid by the large attendance. All hope to have another such entertainment in the near future. Advertisements. Suffered Twenty-One Years... Finally Found Relief. Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hopes of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several small ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity. Gratefully yours, MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE, Rapides Par. Echo, La. Personally appeared before me, this 15th day of July, 1911, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact. WM. # Cream of Tartar

Many New England people use cream of tartar for quick baking. They value its superior qualities and will not knowingly accept substitutes made of alum or lime phosphates, such as are sometimes offered.

But even the most careful cannot always know. The high price of cream of tartar has led to efforts to substitute alum and phosphate of lime compounds which are vastly inferior and not as healthful to use.

The easiest way in which the housekeeper can be sure of quality and economy is by using Royal Baking Powder, which is made from pure cream of tartar.

Royal Baking Powder gives perfect results, is less trouble to use, and has not been advanced in price.

Anyone who has once become accustomed to using Royal Baking Powder never reverts to home-made mixtures or any other product for raising biscuit, griddle-cakes, doughnuts, or cake.

The Farmer's Daughter

By JOHN Y. LARNED

I was peddling tinware on the Massachusetts coast, driving a pair of horses attached to a wagon on which I carried my merchandise. I stopped at a farmhouse at noon and exchanged some kitchen utensils for a dinner. The farmer's wife did the cooking, and his daughter waited on the table. Another stranger besides myself partook of the meal—a short, thickset man with a bushy beard.

We peddlers are usually gifted with a good deal of talk, which we find essential in selling our goods. I rattled on at the farmer, and he appearing to be tactful, I let fly at the stranger, who sat opposite me, asking where he had come from, where he was going, what business he followed and other questions usually attributed to the curious New Englanders. But this idiosyncrasy was assumed, I having been born and bred in Maryland. The truth is I began by asking him which way he was going, thinking that if his direction and mine were the same I would give him a lift for company's sake. He seemed to be averse to telling me of his movements, and I noticed that his reluctance interested the farmer's daughter, who at the time was standing behind him. On her account I pursued my questions till the man abruptly arose and left the table. A few minutes after this, looking through a window, I saw him riding on horseback the same way I intended to go.

Having finished my dinner and turned over in payment to the farmer's wife a washboard and a dozen tin plate plates, I got into my wagon and drove on. About a half hour after starting I heard the sound of a horse's hoofs behind me and, looking back, saw the farmer's daughter coming. She was so intent on her own thoughts as she passed me that she was not conscious that I had dined at her home. Her gait being faster than mine, I jogging along behind a pair of horses drawing a heavy load, was soon left in her rear. As I drove on I was thinking about the man I had questioned and the girl's interest in his answers, or want of answers, and wondered if her coming had anything to do with him. The anxious look on her face both in the farmhouse and on the road caused me to think that he might be bent on something she wished he wouldn't do.

I saw nothing more of either of them during the afternoon. I stopped at several houses, plying my trade, and about dark, reaching a point where the road passed within a hundred feet of the ocean, I came upon a house in which I thought I would ask for lodging during the night. But, unfortunately, I found it closed. I was about to drive on when it occurred to me to see if I could effect an entrance to the barn. I pulled out a rusty staple, thereby opening the barn door, and, driving my team in, unhitched the horses, fed them and went to the house.

I had no more difficulty in getting into the house than the barn. I was awakened in the middle of the night by a shot. I listened and heard another and another, the second and third seeming to come from directly above me. Then there was another from the outside. Next I heard the sound of a pair of heavy boots, followed by a pair of light ones, rapidly descending a staircase from the second floor and continuing down into the cellar. Soon after this the front door of the house was smashed in, and several men rushed into the room where I lay and flashed a bullseye on my face.

"By thunder!" exclaimed one of them. "If it isn't that confounded Yankee peddler!" I recognized the voice of the man I had questioned so closely at dinner the previous day.

"Are you one of the gang?" he asked. "What gang?" He told me that smuggling had been going on at some point near where we were, and they had located it in the house we were in. I told him how I happened to be there, and he believed me. Then he explained to me that my questions had annoyed him because he wished to keep the object of his presence in the neighborhood a secret. Then it occurred to me that the farmer's daughter was interested in the smugglers, had suspected the man's errand and had ridden on to warn them. I hurriedly told him of my having heard footsteps going downstairs, and the party rushed to the cellar expecting to find her quarry.

We found a lot of goods, but no living person. Opening a door, we stood in a tunnel which we followed and came to a recess in the rocks on the shore. Hearing the sound of ears, we knew that the smugglers had escaped. I said nothing of my suspicion of the farmer's daughter, since I had no wish to implicate her. The next time I went her way I stopped and told her that I was in the house when the revenue officers had attacked it. After I had won her confidence she told me that there was but one smuggler, her husband, and owing to my inquiries of the man she had served at dinner she suspected his errand and had ridden on to give him warning. She was with him at the time I entered the place and saw me come in. She had gone down the staircase and escaped with him. He had since abandoned smuggling and had gone west, where she was soon to join him.

Lawyers Helping Men Who Drink

There is no profession that knows more about the "wrecks" of men, business and property caused by the use of Drink or Drugs—none that are taking a more active interest in helping to rescue drunkards and preventing high-class men from becoming drunkards by the modern "Neal Way" than the judges and lawyers of the country. Ask your lawyer's advice.
Any man or woman who is skeptical about the Neal Treatment eliminating the poisons from the system, creating a longing for liquor or drugs, and in a few days restoring the appetite for food, natural sleep and NORMAL mental and physical conditions is urged to ask for private references to hundreds of leading judges and lawyers in this State, who personally know that it does.

In its 60 years of relieving stomach troubles, remedying constipation and biliousness, and restoring strength and appetite, "L. F." Atwood's Medicine has become practically a necessity of New England life.
Mrs. Whitcomb's letter simply confirms what thousands of other folks already know:
Hamden Highlands, Me.
"Have used your 'L. F.' Atwood's Medicine for more than 20 years. We consider it nearly as necessary as our food."

Say "Hub-Mark" Trawler when you visit the storeman. Hub-Mark Trawlers cost more than other kinds, but they measure up to the lumberman's highest needs.

Hub-Mark rubber footwear for men, women, boys and girls is so thoroughly good that a buyer never forgets to say "Hub-Mark" when he buys rubbers again. It's to those who never wore Hub-Mark rubber footwear that this advertisement is of great value.
