SIDELIGHTS ON BRAZIL

As Furnished By a Rockland Man Who Is Chief Engineer
Of a Myriad Of Electrical Plants There

A Rockland boy who was transplanted in Brazilian soil three years ago, and who is frank to say that he finds his new surroundings very congenial, is spending part of his vacation at the home of his father, Mr.
Thomas, on Spruce street. His liking for the America to the southward is fostered doubtless by the fact that he has there achieved success which would not have been easily possible in the more limited field in North America.

Lucian Thomas is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Thomas, a product of the local schools, and a graduate of University of Maine, where he studied electrical engineering to such effect that he is today chief engineer for the Empresas Electricas Brasileiras, a subsidiary concern of the Electric Bond & Share Co. of New York, and having its main office in Rio de Janeiro.

It supplies light and power for electrical plants scattered throughout Brazil, which, while it has a population hardly more than one-third as large as the United States, is a little larger geographically than this country, minus Alaska.
The principal electric plants controlled by Mr. Thomas' company are at Port Alegre, a city of 250,000, where there is a plant of 15,000 kilowatts; Bahia, a city of 300,000, and having a present plant capacity of 9,000 kilowatts, but which, with the new dam completed, will be increased to 18,000; and Pernambuco, a city of 400,000, with a plant of 14,000 kilowatts.

The system includes also 200 smaller towns. All of these plants are under the supervision of this young man who was learning his
A.B. in the Rockland schools not so very long ago. From the most northern point of his jurisdiction to the most southern point stretches a distance of 2,000 miles a five-day journey by boat when Mr. Thomas starts from Rio.

But Lucian does not always travel by boat or rail. Last summer, when he wished to visit the plant in Port Alegre, 1,000 miles away, he boarded a tri-motored seaplane. On the return journey he flew part of the distance in a single motored plane and part of the distance in a bi-motored plane, enjoying the whole trip immensely.
By way of digression it may be stated that while Mr. Thomas was navigating South American skies, his

RUTH BLODGETT'S FIRST BOOK

"Birds Got To Fly" Written By Thomaston's Well-Known and Brilliant Summer Visitor

The present summer has again numbered among Thomaston's visitors Miss Ruth Blodgett—again, for as she herself says: "Part of each summer or autumn I spend in Thomaston, which is the town from which my mother came, and where there are still many sentimental ties."

This summer may be particularly marked by reason of the appearance of Miss Blodgett's first book, "Birds Got To Fly," brought out by the well-known and other leading magazines in this country and in England.

It is to be expected that the successful writer of short stories is eventually to blossom into the novel of length. "Birds Got To Fly," a novel in six parts, is a good "first" that gives promise of still further achievement between covers. Miss Blodgett has a keen insight into character, commands a good easy style and tells here a story of life as a New York girl found it, brought as a bride to the shoe-manufacturing town in

MISS RUTH P. BLODGETT

Prominent Short Story Writer Whose Novel, "Birds Got To Fly," Just Brought Out By Harcourt, Brace & Company, New York, Is Receiving a Highly Favorable Reception.

known New York publishing house of Harcourt, Brace & Company.

Miss Blodgett has had a busy life of it. Growing up in Brookline, Mass., and attending public schools there,
she graduated from the high school into Smith College. This was followed by study of music and a Harvard Extension course and a connection with philanthropic work, during which time she was serving an apprenticeship in what she alludes to as "the writing game of a more or less humble nature."

The first year of the War saw Miss Blodgett engaged with the American Red Cross, doing home service work among soldiers' families, through the Boston Metropolitan Chapter. Going overseas with the Y.M.C.A. she acted as welfare secretary to the 38th Regiment of the Fourth Division in the Army of Occupation. Following this she worked with the New England division of the Red Cross for two years, acting as field representative to the small towns and cities of Western Massachusetts in post-war work.

Then Miss Blodgett crossed the continent with view to engaging in social work in California, but feeling again the urge to turn herself seriously to writing, which since leaving college had repeatedly for brief periods engaged her attention, she took at Columbia Extension a course under Blanche Colton Williams. All this presents a background of preparation that could scarcely fail to be followed by real achievement, and her next four years of industrious short story writing saw its fruit in the pages of Scribner's, McCall's, Mun-

Massachusetts. Young and self-confident (we quote from the book jacket) Rosanne is transplanted from her native New York to New England.
She has married into the Porter family, and with good-natured curiosity she examines her new relatives—sound New England stock from north of Boston, whose reliability and well-being are explained by the family shoe factory, founded by "Gran" Porter in the early days. But their stiff-necked ways are not her way, and after the first shattering ecstasy of her love for Alec has subsided, she decides to do something about it.
Too late the Porter family realize what is going to happen; helplessly, they stand and watch. Rosanne, un-dressed, direct, and young as ever, does what she wants to do "exactly the way she wants to do it." It is a story out of which the reader of the book will take much entertainment.

For the past five years Miss Blodgett has spent her winters in New York
but her permanent address is Beach Bluff, Mass., where she has a summer residence—but always she finds time for this Thomaston visit, because of those "many sentimental ties" and where because of her brilliant mind and engaging personality she is always assured a warm welcome from an extended circle of friends and admirers.

The portrait which accompanies this sketch is from a recent photograph, true enough so far as it goes,
but giving no suggestion of the life and brilliancy of countenance which distinguishes Miss Blodgett in conversation.

ST. GEORGE ROYAL HOST

Membership Meeting of Fish and Game Association Was a Record Breaking, Stormy Night Affair

The Knox County Fish and Game Association held a membership meeting at Tenant's Harbor Thursday night and hung up several new records in the history of the association.
The night which marks these gatherings.

One of the new records was for attendance, there being nearly 175 members and guests; another was the banquet—and it is no disparagement to other feasts to say that this was the best which has yet been provided for the hungry sportsmen. The menu included lobster stew, scalloped clams, black duck with the accompanying vegetables and other delicacies. This feast was served by the Ladies Aid of the First Baptist Church, with a system which was letter perfect and which earned the sisters no end of richly deserved compliments. Mrs. Mildred Silsbys was in charge.

The banquet was served in Odd Fellows hall, and is said to have been the largest affair of the kind ever put on there. The word "Welcome" tastily done in autumn leaves, was conspicuously displayed on all of the dining room walls, and out of deference to the nimrods and the Izaak Waltons there were deer heads, pictures of fish, birds, etc.

An orchestra consisting of Fred Smalley, violinist; Norma Hocking, pianist; and Russell Monaghan, trums, discoursed popular airs during the supper and Director Smalley was forced continually to bow his acknowledgment to the storm of applause.

On the entertainment program also were John Reid and Theodore Johnson, who were exceedingly clever with accordion and mandolin (the latter in black face) and the Scotch male quartet, comprising James Cant, Gilbert Austin, William Umlich and John Reid, with Miss Alice Pullen at the piano. It was a program which would put to shame many of the professional entertainments which have been offered in Knox County in past years, and to say that the fish and game were delighted with it, is stating the matter very meekly.

When the applause had finally died away Col. Walter H. Butler, president of the Association, called the meeting to order, and stated the position of the Knox County Fish and Game Association very clearly and concisely.

"In view of some criticism of our Association, its aims and activities, that has come to my attention recently, it seems wise at this time," he said, "to restate our position in order that there may be no misunderstanding either in or outside of our organization."

"Naturally, we still have many problems to work out in this State

FOR FORTY YEARS

Has Local Society Continuously Read Shakespeare—Anniversary Coming

The Shakespeare Society, which on Monday evening celebrates its 40th anniversary with a banquet and a general good time at the Copper Kettle, claims distinction of being not the oldest club in Maine, not even the oldest so-called "Shakespeare Club," some of which study current events and literature and civics, but the only club in Maine which has studied Shakespeare's works every year continuously for 40 years.

The society has read every play of Shakespeare at least once, and some as many as four times. It has staged Macbeth, Othello, Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, Antony and Cleopatra, Richard Third, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, Two Gentlemen of Verona (the two last named have been given recently in practically complete form) and others.

In addition, the society has read plays of Ibsen, Shaw and other modern dramatists, and last year gave not only a remarkable performance of Two Gentlemen of Verona, but a dramatic presentation of Josephine Preston Peabody's "The Piper." The society has sponsored a large number of lectures on Shakespeare and kindred subjects, including an extremely interesting occasion in 1891,
when Prof. Henry Leland Chapman of Bowdoin College gave a dramatic reading of Macbeth in the afternoon and a lecture on the play in the evening, followed by a reception. The whole session is still regarded as one of the finest efforts of the society, and the hope has been frequently expressed that a similar affair might mark some future date.

The society was organized in October, 1889, with 10 members, eight of whom are living. The list of charter members bears these names: Grace
Cliley Tibbets, Lulu Erskine, Mabel
A. Edwards, Elvira Wood Haley, Mabel Spring, Ella S. Wood, Helen Snow Bain, Caroline Achorn Merriam,
Annie P. Wight and Martha C. Wight.
Grace Cliley (Mrs. Tibbets) was the first president, serving four years.
Others who were president prior to 1900 were Ada Simonton Blacking-ton, who also served four years, Miss Annie Frye, Mrs. Jennie Cobb Butler,
Mrs. Lillian Mortland and Miss Jane Fales.

June 2, 1891, a very remarkable performance of The Merchant of Venice was given in Harmony hall before an audience of 300 invited guests.
This was coached and staged by the late A. Ross Weeks, with this cast:

Duke of Venice, Miss S. May Wood	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Bassanio, his friend, Miss Grace Cliley	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Salanio, friends to, Miss Kitty Lawry	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Antonio, Miss K. Moore	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Gratiano, Bassanio, Mrs. W. M. Kimmel	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Lorenzo, in love with Jessica, Miss Annie Wight	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Shylock, a Jew, Miss Addie Maynard	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Tubal, a Jew, his friend, Miss Nancy Burbank	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Launcelot Gobbo, a clown, servant to Shylock, Miss Fannie Dennis	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Old Gobbo, father to Launcelot, Miss Burbank	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Leonardo, servant to Bassanio, Miss Helen Snow	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Balthazar, servant to Portia, Miss Louise Hunt	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Page to Portia and Court Messenger, Miss Martha Wight	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight

Nerissa, her waiting maid, Miss Jennie Weeks	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Jessica, daughter to Shylock, Miss Annie Frye	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight
Magnificoes, lawyers, etc.	Shylock, Miss Annie Wight

The names in the above cast, given in the original, have undergone a vast change in the years between 1891 and 1929, many of these members having been married, moved out of town, or died.

The present season's work, as outlined, embraces the study of Macbeth and the Taming of the Shrew, several of the sonnets, and the presentation in full of Macbeth at the annual meeting April 14, 1930, with Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood and Mrs. Angelica Glover taking the parts of Macbeth and Lady Macbeth respectively.

The officers for 1929-30 are: President, Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood; vice president, Mrs. Nina Beveridge; secretary, Mrs. Eva Heller; treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Moor; program committee, Mrs. Harriet Silsbys Frost, Miss Alice Erskine and Mrs. Elizabeth Otis.

A NOTED SPEAKER

Dr. Blaine Kirkpatrick of Chicago To Address the Methodists

Methodist young people of the Rockland group, including Rockland, Rockport, Camden, Union, Thomaston, Friendship and Widdoburn, will gather at the Pratt Memorial Methodist Church next Tuesday evening to listen to Dr. Blaine Kirkpatrick of Chicago, the executive head of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Miss Harriet Louise Perry, Conference Director of Religious Education and Young People's work, will also be present.

Supper will be served at 6 which will merge the young people's rally with church family night. Dr. Kirkpatrick and Miss Perry will be introduced and respond with five minute speeches. The prayer service and Bible study will be illustrated by a number of lantern pictures. This is the beginning of a serious study of "The Life of Christ." The theme of this first study will be "When Was Jesus Born?" At 7.45 Dr. Blaine Kirkpatrick will address the young people.

EARTH BOUND

They think because I see and bake
And sweep a white pine floor
I never think of winding roads
Somewhere beyond my door!

They think me deaf to messages
Of winds in trees that bend
And sway in their abandonment,
While all I do is mend!

'Tis true, my body dwells at home
While a white shoreline calls
The roving heart and soul of me
Beyond these humble walls!

And so I sing and bake my bread
And bake my narrow seams,
But while I put my loaves in pans
My heart is light with dreams!

ROCKLAND, ME.

The Courier-Gazette

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Me., Oct. 15, 1929.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydell, who on oath declared that he is Pressman in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of Oct. 12, 1929, there was printed a total of 6228 copies.
Before me, FRANK B. MILLER, Notary Public.

I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.—2nd Timothy 4:7.

There is another side to this golf business as viewed by some—George L. Markland, for instance, a Philadelphia manufacturer, who assured the thousand delegates to the National Association of Manufacturers that fundamentally business is sound and getting better, but added that too many business men are afflicted with golfitis. The country, he said, is in the throes of a mad race for pleasure. Golf, the movies, radios, world series, big football games, dancing—everybody thinking of how to have a good time and not enough thinking on how to use their hands and their brains. For a long period of years, he added, while building up his business, six o'clock in the morning found him at work.

"Where do you find business men now at 6 a. m.?" he inquired. "On the golf links. One day a week for golf isn't enough any more. It's every day. And a lot of these business men can't stand it, physically. It's tiring them out. They're all in when they reach their offices."

There is a good deal in what the gentleman says. It is true in this as it is true of the radio, movies, baseball and other superfluities, when business begins to interfere with them something has got to be done about it.

At one time—that was when the granite quarries of this coast region did a roaring business and numbered their workmen by the thousands—there ran in the veins of many of those hardy men a strain of Scottish blood that thrilled to any mention of Old Scotia. The chief part of them indeed came here direct from the mother country. As one manifestation of their fealty to the old home there was each recurring year recognition given to the birthday of Scotland's immortal poet, Robert Burns. This was true notably of Vinalhaven, where organized meetings were held to celebrate with song and speech and Scottish dancing the memory of the people's bard. Did the custom lapse through the passing of the older generation? Might it not profitably be restored? It was in the little town of Ayer, in the humblest of cottages, which has become a literary shrine, that Burns, in 1759, was born. The day was January 25, which falls happily for celebration in the midst of the winter season. We should be glad to hear of a revival of the custom.

Arthur Staples shows what he thinks of hospitals by devoting one of his daily double-column essays in the Lewiston Journal to the Central Maine General's campaign to raise a fund of $300,000 to build a new wing with a maternity ward. Modern life, he says, demands hospitals. They must meet expenses, they must pay their bills; and he adds:

Suppose the Central Maine General Hospital and other hospitals in this region were suddenly wiped away. We have discussed that possibility several times. Each time the size of the imagined catastrophe has grown and grown until it has become inconceivable. Modern life simply can not exist without hospitals. Discuss them as you please; say this or that or the other thing about them; society is at a stand-still without the general hospital.

We encounter no form of in-door sport easier to engage in than the captious criticism of hospitals and their management, but the essayist is emphatically right when he declares that no community can exist today without a general hospital.

THREE ENGINES DREW IT

Fifty-One Loaded Freight Cars Constituted Record Train On Knox & Lincoln Last Night

Three locomotives sped across Knox & Lincoln counties last night, their clouds of black smoke trailing over the longest train which ever left Rockland. In it besides the three locomotives and caboose, were 51 freight cars, all heavily laden, the total freight tonnage being estimated at 3,000 tons.

The contents of the cars were typical of Knox County's chief industries—there being 24 carloads of cement, 20 of lime and limestone, four of granite and three of sardines. Twelve of the 20 lime cars, were carrying agricultural lime into Aroostook County.

The locomotives were numbered 519, 503, and 368, the engineers being Marshall Saunders, Thomas Hunter and Warren Noyes. Anson M. Giffen was conductor and Hector B. Staples and Mr. Guigley were brakemen.

The destination of the freight was Brunswick, where the train would be broken up and the cars attached to various other trains.

Double-headed freights have been running out of Rockland all summer but this is the first to go over the division behind three choo-choos.

Yard Clerk Earl U. Chaples put in a busy day, incidentally.

Another souvenir for the General Knox Memorial comes into possession of this paper—a wide strip of silk ribbon once worn on the bonnet of Mrs. Knox, a quaint reminder of those ancient days when, as much the case now, our feminine population looked to Paris for their styles. The ribbon comes with full authentication through the hands of Thomaston people now deceased—Mrs. Lucinda Combs, her nephew Charles Combs, his cousin Mrs. Mary Stanley, and from her to a niece, Mrs. Leonard Snow of Ingraham Hill. It now goes into possession of the committee.

RECALLING THAT OLD-TIME CONCERT

In the story appearing in a recent issue of this paper, carrying the program of a singing school concert given in Atlantic Hall in 1859, the question was raised as to how many might today be living who appeared as children on that occasion. Two have been heard from—Clara Stover, who is now Mrs. Clara Lee, and Mary Adelaide Clark, now Mrs. Allen. And

Mrs. James Wight (Emma Burpee) writes: "Wasn't it a tremendous affair—and all for fifteen cents. Those were great days, when everyone was willing to help. There are names in that list that I hadn't thought of in many years and so many pianists! I can see 'Sis' Libby with her two flaxen braids hanging down her back. The Libby family were considered great when they sang. I heard Annie Lisle for the first time at that concert. I thought it a lovely thing then and I think so still—there is something teaching in the music."

UNION

Everyone should attend the last great day of the Feast. Sunday closes the special meetings at the Church of the Nazarene with Rev. Mr. Manning of Nahant, Mass., evangelist. There will be communion service at 11:30 following the Sunday school hour, preaching at 2:30, and the closing service at 7:45. You will enjoy Miss Manning's singing. Some one has said, "the church is the powerhouse of religion." Come and see what great things the Lord has in store for you.

LOOKING AFTER DELINQUENTS

Under the direction of Lieut. Arthur W. Cushman of the Maine State Police, District 3, an extensive campaign against glaring headlights, one-lighted automobiles and those without tail lights will be carried on throughout the entire district. Sergeant Robert B. Watts will be detailed by Lieut. Cushman to take charge of the southern part of the district, and Lieut. Cushman will personally conduct the campaign in the northern part.

One headlight and tail light out at the same time will be deemed sufficient cause to invite the operator of the car to attend court the next morning. Also, when the equipment shows that by reason of neglect or carelessness that a light has been allowed to remain out for two or three weeks the operator will be again held responsible.

PUBLIC SOUND TRAIN HERE

The Public Sound Train came to Rockland yesterday and all who saw the beautiful motor equipage were agreed that its merits had not been exaggerated. The "train" was due in Rockland at 11 a. m. but in another part of the State it had encountered a sleet storm, and Manager "Bill" Powell declined to exhibit the car before a Rockland audience until it had been nicely dolled up at the Fireproof Garage. When it finally appeared in front of Strand Theatre it was officially met by Manager Dondis, Mayor Carver, Supt. Toner, and press representatives.

The $25,000 outfit includes a radio broadcasting outfit, and a short concert was given on the street while Waldo Tyler was making snapshots of the handsome car and the attractive citizenry lined up alongside.

During the afternoon a visit was paid to the High School grounds, where it was admired and acclaimed by a small million of kids.

Today the Sound Train will invade the nearby towns.

The farm of Charles A. Thurston in South Union produced some wonderful potatoes this fall but none so strange as the giant tuber which resembled a crouching animal, with four legs, and a head which had eyes, nose, mouth and ears. B. C. Perry brought the potato all the way from Union in order that The Courier-Gazette might have a look at the curiosity.

HEARING NEXT TUESDAY

Concerning Construction Work On Route 101, Cooper's Mills and Union—Requested By Union Man

Continuous of construction work on Route 101, the designated State highway between Augusta and Rockland, is the matter for discussion at an informal hearing to be held before the State Highway Commission at 11 a. m., next Tuesday, at its offices at the State House. This hearing will be held at the request of H. L. Grinnell, chairman of the board of selectmen of the town of Union, and it is expected that there will be a good attendance of citizens from the towns along the route as well as from the city of Augusta.

This road was designated as a State highway by the State Highway Commission in 1914, connects Augusta and Rockland, passing through Chelsea, Whitefield, Windsor, Somerville, Washington, Union and Rockport, the distance being about 46 miles.

The State Highway Commission voted July 17, 1926, to discontinue a portion of the route, from Cooper's Mills to the town line between Washington and Union, Nov. 9, 1927. The commission redesignated the section that had been discontinued, with the understanding that all of the towns along the way should continue to expend their State aid appropriation on Route 101 until the State should be financially able to undertake construction.

The section has already been built from Augusta to a little beyond Cooper's Mills, a distance of about 15 miles, and construction work is now being carried on in the town of Union, which work when finished, will complete the section from East Union to West Rockport, a distance of about six miles. Contract was awarded by the Highway Commission, Oct. 11, last, to Manzie L. Roberts of Bangor for the construction of a three and a quarter miles section of this route, beginning at West Rockport and extending toward Rockland.

The informal hearing set for next Tuesday before the commission will pertain to the extension of the construction work on this route between Cooper's Mills and Union.

HIGHWAYMAN IN CAMDEN

Russell Chandler, 18, Gives Ride To Stranger—Awakens Minus Cash But With Lump On His Head

What appears to have been a bold highway robbery occurred on the Hosmer's Pond road, Camden, last night, in the vicinity of the portable mill.

The victim was Russell Chandler, 18, son of James Chandler. Bound from his cottage at Hosmer's Pond early last night, Orville Gross saw an overturned car in the gutter and lying in it, unconscious was young Chandler. Mr. Gross took the boy home where an examination by Dr. Hutchins revealed a bruise on the back of his head, but no other signs of violence.

Chandler remained in a daze last night and it was the opinion of the attending physician that he might continue in that condition several days.

Local football fans hope there is foundation for the rumor that the Army and Navy will resume relations this fall. They have already sulked too long for grown men.

The annual meeting of the Past Matrons and Patrons Association of the Eleventh district will be held in Rockport Tuesday, Oct. 29, and not next Tuesday as newspaper headlines might have indicated.

"Law Enforcement" will be handled tomorrow night by Mrs. Jeannette Mann, National W.C.T.U. speaker, under the Women's Educational Club auspices, next Wednesday evening at Mrs. Elizabeth Morton's picnic at The Highlands.

(Spear) Foster of this city and during the years of his boyhood and young manhood lived here. He was a brother of the late Mrs. George Gay (Addie) Foster and was the last surviving member of his immediate family. He is survived by his wife, Ada J. Foster. Burial was at Champlin, Minn.

There were high-jinx and much fun last night at the Capital Lunch when Gene Hardy, manager of the meat department of the A.P. store came in for supper and found 10 friends assembled at a gaily decorated table in his honor. A delicious feed was followed by handshakes and "good lucks" for Mr. Hardy is leaving immediately for Los Angeles, where he is to manage a large market. He has been here since the opening of the new store and has built up a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Nancy A. Flint of Old Town has been advanced from vice president to president of the Rebekah Assembly of Maine, I.O.O.F. which on Wednesday completed a three days' convention in connection with the Grand Encampment and Grand Lodge in Portland; Mrs. Nina H. Davis of Rockland was appointed district deputy president for District 16, and Shirley E. Bowley of Warren was appointed for District 15. Clinton took interestingly their recent trip to Atlantic City, and other numbers on the lecturer's program featured the apple, appropriate selections being given by Charles E. Gregory, Margaret Maxcy, Lloyd M. Richardson and Lizzie E. Gregory. An apple paring contest was won by Mrs. Minnie Miles by a narrow margin over Charles Wooster of Camden. Several others participated. Other numbers not scheduled on the program were reports of a recent Southport trip by patrons who visited the Lincoln County Pomona session at that place and remarks or readings, former State Master Gardner, Miss Frances Muldrett, Charles Wooster and Nathan B. Hopkins, visiting members, Mr. Gardner, Lizzie E. Gregory and Mrs. Charles Wooster were the judges in the apple paring contest.

When he regained consciousness it was to say that he had stopped to give a ride to a man whom he thought he knew, but who proved to be an utter stranger. The next he knew was when he awoke at home with a pain in the back of his head.

His pockets were empty. Young Chandler was sent to a Camden bank by his father during the afternoon to cash a check for $50. He attended to the errand, and after making several small purchases in Camden stores, departed for home.

The Camden police notified Sheriff Harding, who has been making an investigation, the effectiveness of which is greatly handicapped by the small information which the boy has thus far been able to offer.

MEN CAN HELP BOYS

Rockland Rotarians Urged To Lend Practical Aid To Local Boy Scouts

Rotary had an interesting visitor at yesterday's noonday luncheon in the person of George S. Felker, deputy regional director of the Boy Scouts of America, who being in Rockland on a tour of inspection of New England scout activities was glad to say a word about his work. And because it was in the Rotary Club that the first move was made that resulted in the establishing here of the Boy Scout work he had an audience naturally sympathetic.

What Director Felker wants of Rockland men is that they shall organize themselves for contact with boys. Statistics show that one-third of a boy's time is open for recreation. What does he do with it? Here is where a man in whom a boy has confidence can give him good advice, if he is to become the kind of a citizen that fathers want to see. There are 200,000 business men in the United States giving time to the Boy Scouts. These boys need the man's help. There is a call in Rockland for man power. "You need to show yourself in the presence of boys," he said. "Go around once a month and talk to them. The value of the reward to them and to yourself can't be measured. Chum with them."

The speaker's practical talk was highly appreciated. H. P. Blodgett illustrated with a story of a Rockland boy who said to his mother: "Who would you rather be, George Washington or Abraham Lincoln?" "Oh, I don't know," the mother answered. "Who had you rather be?" "I'd rather be Bert Jameson," the boy replied.

This story was followed by applause, which was repeated when Governor Cobb said: "Mr. President, I regard that as the finest compliment that a man can be paid."

Besides the speaker guests of the occasion were Scout Executive John W. Thompson, R. S. Sherman and Lucien Thomas of Rio de Janeiro and Rockland; and Rotarian visitors were Dr. Archie Green and Dr. C. H. Jameson of the Camden Club.

A new Viking, eight cylinder sedan, property of John A. Black, 61 Talbot avenue, was stolen last evening when parked in front of the house. It is a large car, black in color with a green panel stripe and natural wood wheels. The number plate when taken was 40-9058. There are only a half-dozen cars of this model in Maine. Any information should be telephoned to Police Station or Mr. Black.

Rumor has busied itself this week with the reported change of a Main street business property. The story arises out of the fact that the Johnston drug store in Coakley block corner of Main and Spring streets is soon to have another tenant. Beyond this, W. J. Coakley, owner of that portion of the block, declined to make any statement.

Knickerbocker Class of the Universalist church is to be addressed at its noonday service Sunday by Rev. J. S. Laughton, field secretary of the Maine Council of Religious Education.

Mr. Laughton who was formerly captain of the mission ship on the inland sea in Japan has had a full and varied life. Born in China of Scotch parents, he was educated in Scotland, and has lived the greater part of his life in Japan, speaking that language as fluently as he does the English language. He lectures extensively, particularly in Maine where he is in great demand for clubs, universities, normal schools, religious organizations, etc. He has spoken in Rockland on several previous occasions, before the Rotary Club, the Baptist Men's League and the Chamber of Commerce.

WILLIAM A. ANDERSON

The remains of William A. Anderson, who died suddenly in Detroit, arrived in this city yesterday and were met at the train by an escort of World War veterans belonging to Winslow-Holbrook Post. The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence 47 Camden street.

The deceased was born in Somerville, Mass., Oct. 4, 1897, son of Sarah J. and William L. Anderson. He came to Rockland at the age of 12, and entered the High School, where he graduated with the class of 1914. The following year he took a post graduate course before entering college. When the war broke out he came home and enlisted with the 11th Central Postal Directory, United States Army, and served in various capacities with this unit and later to France with the A.E.F. After the armistice was signed Mr. Anderson attended school in France while waiting for the regiment to be ordered back home.

Arriving in this country he entered the Carnegie Institute of Technology from which he graduated with honors June 23, 1923. He was a member of the American Legion, Alpha Tau honorary society, Acadia fraternity, Rockland Lodge of Masons, and was a 32d degree Mason, affiliated at the time of his death with a lodge in Pittsburgh. He was married May 15, 1923, to Miss Eulalia D. McClarin of Pittsburg, who, with his mother, Mrs. Sarah J. Thomas of Camden street, survives him.

Mr. Anderson was held in most affectionate regard by all who knew him here. Death cuts short a career which held much promise, as he was a young man of exceptional ability and ambition.

Rev. E. O. Kenyon will officiate at the funeral. The interment will be in Achorn cemetery.

A well trained horse, small, suitable for riding or driving will be sold at very low figure. Owner, summer resident, leaving next week. Phone 10 ring 12, Foothills Farm, Union—adv.

IN THE CHURCHES

SERMONETTE

The Grand Army

And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, a great company and a mighty army.—Ezekiel 38-16.

Those who were privileged to see the veterans who saved the Union in '61 to '65, as they met in Portland, will never forget the experience. Not until we see the mighty hosts upon the ramparts of Heaven itself, marching at the end of time, will we behold a similar spectacle.

Down the street came these men, 82 and 97 years of age, 2500 strong, marching bravely with banners flying. Drums and life and drum how they marched! Vermont, Nebraska, Massachusetts, Illinois, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Maine, Louisiana (all black), Maryland, Delaware, Missouri, Kansas, Rhode Island, Connecticut and all the others.

"Onward Christian Soldiers," "Star Spangled Banner," "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," "Battle Hymn of the Republic." No matter what the bands played, they marched sturdily in the clear sunshine of a September day.

Cheers and tears equally greeted them as their Commander, the Governor and the city officials reviewed them.

"We are coming, Father Abraham." Aye, soon indeed. They are marching home, one by one as God calls them, black and white.

BELFAST LOSES IT

Radio Station Which Was First To Hear "Big Ben" Closes

The Radio Corporation of America at Belfast, covering many acres and representing a large investment, was closed down yesterday and its engineers ordered to Riverhead, Long Island, N. Y. This will remove several families from Belfast and the closing of the big plant is regretted. No reason can be learned at the station as to why this has taken place, but as the equipment is for a long wave-length and today practically everything is a short wave-length, this may have something to do with the change.

The Radio Corporation of America came to Belfast in 1923, built a small plant and started experimental work. It soon began to branch out, bought acres and acres of land in Congress street leading far into the woods on either side and built a number of buildings to house its apparatus and offices. This point was said to be the nearest to the ships as they turned into the lane crossing the Atlantic and the experimental work went on.

When this station a few years ago was known as XAO it picked up the first European broadcast from England relaying it to New York and other points. It was then that for the first time Big Ben was heard tolling the midnight hour in London, while it was 7 o'clock on this side. The broadcast picked up at Belfast went over the country and gave the little city on the Penobscot a nice bit of advertising.

In 1927 the station began to do commercial work and that has continued up to the present time, the code from Europe picked up and translated and telephoned to New York over leased wires direct from the station. During the six years the station has been in operation, probably 75 or more engineers have been there from time to time, many of them with their families, fine citizens, whose departure is deeply regretted. While there have been times when a dozen or more men have been there at one time, when the station was closed there were but four engineers on duty.

Hedley Morris, who has been in charge for sometime, was ordered to Massachusetts a few weeks ago, and J. W. Ashmore has since been in charge and will close the station. He will be there for a week or two longer closing up, after which with his wife and children will go to Riverhead, as will John H. Mundo and family, J. H. Walker and family and C. W. Erickson. One man will be left as caretaker, Frank L. Smith, a local man. Belfast has been rather proud of the big station said to be at one time the largest receiving plant in the country and it is hoped that it will not be entirely abandoned.

MAINE mother proves her idea is right . . .

"My little son was bilious and upset," says Mrs. Mary Smith, 121 Grant Street, Portland. "He had no appetite, his breath was bad, his tongue was coated, and he was nearly always tired and sleepy. It seemed to me that he had a cold, but it was not a cold, and I had an idea California Fig Syrup would help him. He brightened up marvelously with the first few doses. At the end of a week, he was a different boy. I have used California Fig Syrup with him every time he has had a cold or upset, and I give it to him for his wonderful condition."

California Fig Syrup never fails to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, feverish or constipated children, quickly and gently. It never gripes or sickens. Children love its flavor. A pure vegetable product with the highest endorsement of doctors. It helps Nature give tone and strength to the stomach and bowels.

Waldoboro Boy Who Is Making Good In the National League

Clyde Sukeforth, the Waldoboro boy, who has shared with Johnny Gooch, the catching duties of the Cincinnati Reds this waning season, is considered one of the outstanding players of the younger crop of stars being developed in the National League.

Sukeforth happened to come along just about at the right time. Last spring, Eugene Hargrave, wearing of major league ball and at a stage in life when he was looking for a chance to break in as a manager, stepped out. Then, with Hargrave gone, Val Picinich, who has been a second string receiver, decided he was worth a lot more money than the club was paying him and he joined the ranks of the hold outs. Inasmuch as the club's holds did not jibe with his, he was traded to the Brooklyn Robins for Johnny Gooch, a catcher, and Ray Eburhardt, a pitcher.

This gave Cincinnati an experienced receiver and from the possibilities, consisting of Sukeforth, Lee Dixon, Hugh McMillen, Johnny Schulte and Tom Hart, Sukeforth was chosen to assist Gooch. Sukeforth has shown plenty of ability, in fact he had to from the start in competition with Dixon, McMillen and Schulte, all of whom have had previous major league experience and considered as assistants to Gooch. Sukeforth it was even thought that Sukeforth had a chance to remain with the club.

Sukeforth's major league career is interesting. He first attracted attention while catching for Georgetown and after leaving college he played for Manchester in the New England League in 1926. He was scouted by the Reds and bought for the 1927 season. His first year in the majors, he caught in 38 games and batted for .132. Last year he took part in 33 contests, his batting average dropping to .132.

Those that know Sukeforth intimately, major leaguer and the club retained him for this season. That no mistake was made is seen in the fact that he has caught more than half the games for his club and has a batting average of .362, according to the figures available when this story was written. His is a good mark, 40 points better than Mickey Cochrane's average, and Cochrane is supposed to be the best catcher in both major leagues, on both the offense and defense.

Those that know Sukeforth intimately, as either a player or off the field, describe him as "admirable young fellow, smart and sensible and endowed with a lot of baseball ability and catching sense." He certainly has something, this youngster, to be in there day after day, handling such stars as Ad Lague, Eppa Rixey, Pete Donohue, Ray Kolp and Red Lucas. They usually don't call on beginners to handle such pitchers as these.

One of Sukeforth's best days of hitting this season was during the afternoon game on Sept. 2, Labor Day, against Pittsburgh. The game went 13 innings and Sukeforth got four hits, three singles and a double. Last winter Sukeforth was a sales- man in Cincinnati and he made many friends through his contact with the public, many members of which were baseball fans and followers of the Reds. Cincinnati is friendly towards its players and has maintained this atmosphere during the season despite the reverses of the club. However, these friends that "Suke" made stood firm in good stead as he is popular with the folks that attend the games and with the players with whom he works.

A FEDERAL PRISON?

One May Be Located In Kennebec or Somerset County 'Tis Said

Possibility that a Federal prison may be located in either Kennebec or Somerset County seems probable in the instructions recently given the Federal Business Association of this district to make a survey of government owned land, whether with or without buildings, with that object in view.

The Federal Business Association, which is composed of the heads of the various Federal divisions in this locality, will begin at once to list the available land and buildings owned by the government in these two above mentioned counties. The Federal government, contemplating the establishment of a third Federal prison in the United States, is asking the co-operation of all Federal departmental heads, the country over, for the purpose of getting facts and figures relative to the feasible location of the prison.

It's easy to see from his wonderful condition that this little fellow's mother knows what to do when his stomach or bowels go wrong. No drugs for her! Nothing but pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. At least a million families are never without a bottle of it in the home!

A FAMOUS FARM

Butler Orchard At Montsweag Is One of Maine's Show Places

The famous apple orchards at Montsweag Farm, owned by Charles Henry Butler, are expected to bear approximately 3,000 bushels of fine apples this season, a portion of which have already been gathered and shipped.

Considering it's an off year for Baldwins and Spys combined with the frosts of the spring, this production compares favorably with last year's 4,500 bushel production. Driving by the beautiful farm, one might wonder just how many apple trees there are in the dipping orchards, north of the State highway. One hears various amounts, but according to the expert that Mr. Butler employs to care for the orchard there are 3,000 trees.

Thus if the production hits 3,000 this year it will be an average of a bushel to a tree, which is quite remarkable, when one stops to consider that only 150 of the 3,000 trees in the orchards are bearing, which increases the average to a couple bushels per tree.

Mr. Wooley, orchard expert, who supervises the growing, harvesting and disposal of the apples, explained that it was an endless battle throughout the year. From where he stood in the huge grading and packing building, he pointed to a section of the trees, showing where frost had claimed its victims in the spring, skipping one tree and taking one next to it.

Up to last week approximately 900 bushels of apples have been shipped. These have been Wealthies, one of the first of the fall apples. The majority of the shipments have been to the Commercial warehouse in Portland, where they are stored by an individual purchaser. Apples that are marketed by the farm or sent direct to customers, are packed in cartons, varying from nine to 125 apples per carton.

Not only is Montsweag fast becoming famous to thousands of tourists as well as State of Maine people for its apple orchards, but it is acquiring fame as one of the show places of this vicinity.

Mr. Butler's experiments in the horticultural line have been as successful as his apple raising, and the spacious grounds of the Montsweag mansion are colored with flowers and growths of every nature. Among the latest additions to Mr. Butler's flower gardens is a Koolha of the "McKillop Bloom," a Burbank Amaranth, Blue Acote of Autumnal variety, which withstands the frost and various other specimens not as rare as the above.

The past year has seen the south-east corner of the beautiful home gusher forth with a new lily pond. Where there was once an old entrance to the cellar of the house, there now flows an endless spray of water, that forms the latest addition of interest to the grounds, the lily pond.

Next year it is highly probable that this show spot will be further removed from the main highway, or perhaps better, the main highway will be further removed from the Montsweag Farm. For surveys have been made by the State Highway Commission for the purpose of shifting the State highway to the south, which will do away with the winding curve that goes by the farm at present, and when this new road comes it is understood that the railroad crossing just before reaching Montsweag, traveling east, will be eliminated by an overhead bridge near the present one over the old highway running south of the Grange hall—Bath Times.

TO KEEP HANDS OFF

W. C. T. U. Members To Exercise Individual Choice In Senatorial Primary

Members of the W.C.T.U. will exercise their individual wishes in the coming Republican primary for the nomination of candidates for the position of United States Senator. They will not be bound as an organization to support any one candidate. Writes Sam Connor in the Lewiston Journal.

No definite action has been taken to this effect; none probably will be. It is the sentiment one hears around the convention and it was voiced to the delegates in attendance at the opening meeting on Wednesday by the president Mrs. Althea G. Quimby.

Mrs. Quimby made it clear that at the present moment there was nothing to warrant the W.C.T.U. as such in making a choice of candidates, but that each member should exercise her own individual judgment.

This condition will continue as long as the political situation remains as it is, with but two prospective candidates in the field. Should a third or fourth enter the contest there might come a change. That would rest entirely upon who the third or the fourth candidates were. Were one or both regarded as inimical to the prohibition cause the organization may feel it wise to solidify its support to one of the candidates friendly to its cause.

The White Ribboners at this time feel that the senatorial contest will be between Representative White of the Second District and ex-Gov. Brewster, for while the latter has not made a public announcement of his candidacy friends of his have said he is going in and he has intimated to many that he is.

There is no grievance against either of these candidates on the part of the W.C.T.U. Its members regard both as their friends. As Governor, Mr. Brewster demonstrated to their satisfaction his friendship for the cause of prohibition. They feel that they have no cause to expect a change of heart on his part should he go to the Senate.

Mr. White has always been a friend of prohibition. That is well known to the members of the organization. He voted for National prohibition in Congress and they are sure he can be counted upon to stand that way no matter what the condition may be in these come another vote on this question in Washington.

Under these circumstances members feel that there is no reason for them to throw the support of the organization for or against either. Instead they believe that the proper thing to do is to let each member exercise her own individual choice at the ballot box. Mrs. Quimby said:

"The Women's Christian Temperance Union is in politics, particularly in Maine, but when one candidate is dry and the other wet, we believe it to be our duty to support the dry."

Those words epitomize the attitude of the organization in the coming campaign. If the candidates continue as now seems to be evident they will.

THE CORN BORER

Part of Knox County and All of Lincoln County Reported To Be Infested

Frank P. Washburn, State commissioner of agriculture, says that a considerable spread of the European corn borer has been found in Maine this year as the result of a scouting campaign which has been in progress for the past few weeks.

The scouting has been done by the State and Federal departments of Agriculture working in cooperation and has disclosed corn borer infestation in 30 or 32 towns in addition to the area already under quarantine. Commissioner Washburn said:

"The new area of infestation includes all of Lincoln County, a large part of Knox County, a part of Kennebec County, several additional towns in Sagadahoc County and, two in Cumberland."

"Considering the difficulty of keeping this insect out of the State," said Mr. Washburn, "I have observed the work of our inspectors in Portland where during the past two weeks they have been taking on some days as many as 50 borers from sweet peppers brought in from other New England States. This product is now being gone over carefully at all distributing points and all infested peppers are being destroyed."

"Undoubtedly the large increase in the infested area along the coast is the result of shipments to summer colonies, either by express, mail or through transportation by yachts and boats, and this last is a very difficult matter to inspect."

Commissioner Washburn said that all the newly infested towns will be held subject to the fall plowing regulation of his department, hitherto enforced in the quarantined areas in York and Cumberland counties, namely, that all corn lands must be carefully and deeply plowed in the fall.

The present quarantine includes all of York County, part of Cumberland, one town in Oxford and a few towns in Sagadahoc. Quarantine will be extended to the new areas of infestation shortly.

IMPROVING THE BRIDGE

Carlton Structure Nearly Two Years In Commission Has Behaved Nicely

Machinery has arrived from the McClintock-Marshall Co., with which minor alterations of the upper structure of the Kennebec bridge are being made. The Wardell & Hardesty Co., Engineers, are handling the work. This work is not in the way of repairs, but comes as improvements, says the Bath Times. The bridge has been in operation nearly two years, having been opened Oct. 25, 1927.

Among other things, the stairway at the draw is being changed for convenience sake, while the main counterweight guide is being straightened. In the two years the bridge has been in operation it has stood up remarkably well, according to the engineers, who are in charge of the alterations. The next big job on the structure will be the painting of the entire bridge.

Pleasant Valley, Conn., Oct. 13.—Sherlock Holmes, Arsene Lupin, the Inspectors of Scotland Yard, and even Grover Whalen's most astute detectives of crime must now look to their laurels. Two new detectives have entered the field—and how they can detect!

Take this mystery of the missing melons. For instance. Never was there anything more baffling, not a shred of evidence nor a clue in sight; a whole community puzzled. Every-one suspecting his or her neighbor—why even Aunt Samantha Prior, who never gossiped in all her eighty years, not even at sewing bees, was all let down and bothered. She thought it was the new foreign family that just moved into the shack down by the car tracks; and as for the Reverend Smith, why he has prayed and exhorted for the past three Sundays and still, despite his eloquent urgings, the criminal has not come forth. The Arnold Rothstein mystery has not created half as much fuss in New York as has that of the Disappearing Melons in the village.

The next town meeting is going to be hot, and some of the officials will lose their jobs unless the crime is solved. Indeed the case has reached such proportions that an attempt will be made to enlist the radio in its solution. The details will be broadcast over WTIC, Hartford, (wave length 282.8 meters) tonight at 7.30 in an effort to arrive at some clue, for the professional detectives of Pleasant Valley are all at sea.

BASEBALL ECHOES

New World's Champions Get Nice Bit of Pocket Money—Other Diamond News

Each member of the Philadelphia Athletics receives $5821.30 as the result of that team having won the world's championship. A good week's work, that, but it was a mighty fine piece of work.

The Chicago management refunded $210,000 to holders of sixth game tickets. Which once more refutes that old worn eaten and senseless argument that the games were being strung along to make money. And yet next year there will be the same senseless, worn-eaten arguments.

The first step to rebuild the Cincinnati Reds for the 1930 pennant race was taken Tuesday by the club's new president, who announced Dan Howley, present St. Louis Browns' manager, would pilot the team all year and that Harry Heilmann, hard hitting Detroit outfielder, had been purchased outright from the Tigers.

Connie Mack's team looks good for another pennant year, but so did the New York Yankees last spring. The only change likely in the lineup is the replacing of Boley at short. Quinn and Ethme probably will not go much farther on the baseball journey but the other stars of the pitching staff are in the prime of their athletic lives and Bill Shores and Bill Breckinridge are mere youngsters, waiting for their chance.

The Union Ladies' Aid will give another of their excellent suppers at the Baptist Church, Thursday evening of this week. The Aid is doing a grand work under the leadership of its efficient president, Mrs. Lottie Pitcher, together with an enthusiastic corps of assistants and members.

Proper signs have been placed near the schoolhouses in this section of the town, yet they do not prevent "autoists" from "speeding" when driving past, especially at the recess hours. Something definite should be done.

Services are now held at the Baptist Church every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock instead of 7:30 as formerly. "Let us not forget the assembling of ourselves together."

An erroneous report has been circulated that services are to be held only every other Sunday evening at the Baptist Church. The services are every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, unless otherwise stated in the columns of this paper or notices given by the proper authorities.

BARRON HATS
Fall Vogue Is Carefully Exemplified At Model Show Rooms

With the arrival of crisp autumn weather, Dame Fashion ushers in the new mode of the season with fresh, new colors and styles. In hats she places before her public the results of the labors of artists who have interpreted the spirit of the season in the most appropriate color and designs in women's millinery.

The thrill of the football field, the sting of brisk fall winds and the odor of autumn leaves, dying and falling, covering the ground with a blanket of brilliant reds and browns, are all a part of the season. But, with all of nature's changes, the changing of the mode cannot be neglected, for it, too, is a part of the spirit of the autumn season. The bright freshness of matching colors and new styles bring an added thrill for the fall season to women.

One of the first items of dress to which women give attention is the hat. They know that no other portion of attire so greatly affects the general appearance, for it is the hat that sets off the features, gives a graceful, beautiful background for feminine beauty that is one of the major points of good dress.

Women who are particular in their choice of hats can achieve the style and color they desire at D. L. Barron's, 578 Main street. The newest hats of the season, interpreting its every mood, are to be found at Barron's.

BATTERY VALUE
Alfred P. Condon Delivers the Goods With the Willard Batteries

Willard quality is forced to measure up to the standards established by the most exacting buyer in the market—the automobile engineer. With the leading car builders, Willard daily passes continuous speed tests, heat tests, cold tests far more severe than the battery endures in actual service. In a typical 10-hour endurance test it was estimated that a Willard delivered over 4,000,000 sparks. The tests mentioned are only a few of the "hurdles" Willard jumps successfully. There are 69 in all.

Few batteries can stand up under these battering, draining tests. Willard succeeds because Willard quality is built-in by 32 years of experience. In this time 20,000,000 Willards have not only met the car builder's acceptance but have won the good-will of the world besides.

These millions of Willards whether bought by the car builder for original equipment or by the owner for replacement, are one and the same quality in every way—Willard quality through and through. There is only this one quality leaving the Willard plant. The battery you buy at Alfred P. Condon's, 75 Park street, Rockland is a known value.

Factory economies have put the Willard price all the way down to the safety point—the very lowest point at which uniform Willard quality can be maintained. At this safety point the average buyer obtains more for his dollar with a Willard of correct electrical size than he can obtain with any built-for-a-bargain battery. More Willards are, therefore, sold to car owners than any other make of battery.

Mr. Condon not only sells Willard batteries but maintains a service station for them. He has a complete equipment for repairing and recharging batteries. He can charge 40 batteries at one time and maintains a delivery service car and will return your battery to you, much improved.

HARVEYS ARE BEST
C. W. Livingston Tells Why These Famous Springs Are So Good

To make a spring that will be uniform and have that quality of giving satisfactory and lasting service requires that every leaf must be of exactly the same temper and must be submitted to the same treatment as all other leaves of that particular spring. To determine the treatment necessary to give this result, experiments and tests are essential.

While the skill and ingenuity of the spring maker is relied upon to a certain extent in manufacturing Harvey springs, they are not depended upon entirely because there is always a chance for errors. To eliminate as far as possible any opportunity for lack of uniformity the Harvey forming and tempering machine was designed and patented after years of experiment and research.

This machine is so designed that every leaf of every Harvey spring is evenly and uniformly tempered. Each leaf is heated to exactly the same degree in furnaces regulated and controlled by pyrometers. The leaves are removed one at a time and placed in the machine, which shapes the leaf to the exact form required and automatically trips and plunges it into the tempering oil where it is held firmly gripped so that it has no chance to lose its shape or ways during the tempering process. The result is a perfectly shaped and tempered leaf. The next leaf will be exactly the same with no possibility of variation.

Each leaf must and will conform to the next leaf in perfect fitting and shape. The Harvey process assures perfect springs which function as a spring should and which give that lasting and satisfying service that eliminates spring troubles. C. W. Livingston at 148 South Main street can furnish just such springs as described.

Two Scotchmen took dinner together in a restaurant. After dinner the waiter brought the check. The two sat and talked for a couple of hours, after which conversation failed, and they merely smoked in silence. At 1 a. m., one of them got up and telephoned to his wife.

"Dinna wait up any longer for me, lass," he said, it looks like a dead-lock."

Try this gas... and stop those knocks

WHEN your motor knocks and thumps half way up a hill—when you have to shift to "second" before you think you should—there is probably nothing wrong except your gas... Try Colonial Ethyl.

Of course there are many other "ethylized" gasolines on the market. But only Colonial Ethyl has Colonial Gas as its base. Only Colonial Ethyl has behind it all the old Yankee principles of "dollar value for dollar received." BETTER CITIZENS

And a Stronger Nation Are Created By Life Insurance Says Mr. Coolidge.

Former President Coolidge in a letter prepared for presentation before the American Life convention in Cincinnati declared that he had inherited his interest in insurance "as both my father and grandfather bought protection for themselves and their families by this method."

Mr. Coolidge, who became a director of the New York Life Insurance Company upon his retirement from the Presidency, described himself as a policy holder for nearly 40 years.

"Insurance," he asserted, "creates the individual citizen, and a stronger nation. Those who are engaged in this great enterprise whether as policy holders or insurance representatives are performing a public service of a value that cannot be estimated."

Day of Inspiration Furnished by Conference of the Lincoln Association

Tuesday, an all day session of the Woman's Missionary Conference, of the Lincoln Association met with the First Baptist Church this city. Mrs. H. M. Purrington of Warren, president. More than 90 ladies were present.

The morning meeting was opened by a short song service, and Mrs. J. C. MacDonald led the devotional exercises. Mrs. Kilborn of Thomaston, secretary and treasurer of the conference gave her report which showed the conference to be in a successful condition. Reports from the different societies, showed that they were progressing well in all their various activities, doing White Cross Work, sending boxes of clothing, or hospital supplies, etc. to home and foreign stations, thus gladdening the hearts of the workers in those fields. Miss Alice M. Purinton, of Waterville, secretary director of Eastern Maine, gave a talk on her work. Miss Martha Howell spoke briefly of her labors in Porto Rico.

The noon hour was given over to the discussion of a fine lunch provided by an efficient committee, and to a period of sociability. The first period of the afternoon was devoted to business. These officers were elected: Mrs. H. M. Purrington, Warren, president; Mrs. E. M. Holman, Camden, vice president; Mrs. H. S. Kilborn, Thomaston, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. H. R. Hatch of Fairfield spoke on "Missionary Education," advocating the reading of the books provided in the reading conference, and the "White Cross Work." She showed samples of what could be done by the children as well as older folks. She was followed by Miss Martha Howell of Rio Piedras, Porto Rico. In introducing Miss Howell Mrs. Purrington gave a short sketch of her life. Miss Howell was born in Indiana. She was located at one time in Central America. Before going there she was at spellman. She talked interestingly of the country and much of her work, among that Spanish speaking people. She sang one verse of a hymn in their language. The meetings were interspersed with several selections by Mrs. Hughie of Rockport, Mrs. Barton of St. George and Mrs. Washburn of Thomaston with Mrs. Lillian Joyce at the piano. It was altogether an edifying and inspirational session. The conference was invited to meet with the Camden church next year.

BIRDS ON THE WING

The Little Chaps, On Southern Flight, Stop Momentarily For Refreshments

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—A long walk, just off the highway, through the mellow light and sunshine of an October day, revealed myriads of birds feeding on the berries of mountain ash, roadside shrubs and plants, fortifying stout little bodies for the long flight to the south. It is the autumn migration of the later birds. Urgent calls have been coming to the feeding station from white-crowned, white-throated and song sparrows for grain which could be quickly consumed. The garden has been vocal with calls from chickadees, but larks and goldfinches, as a goodly supply of sunflower seeds, swaying on tall stalks in the crisp morning sunshine furnished food greatly prized.

The rare chance to see and hear a meadow lark and a visit from the alder fly catcher were high lights of the past season. The we fly catcher was apparently blown off his course as he is common in parts of Vermont. He was quite exhausted when he found food at the station and for three or four days identification was impossible, but after a period of rest the markings of his family were plainly seen.

As the summer birds leave us for a brief span, I feel sure the kindhearted people of Rockland, who have provided houses and food for their comfort and safety, will join me in saying:

"Bon-voyage, say little citizens of the air! God speed you and good bye. Ada C. Burpee Rockland, Oct. 16.

PARK THEATRE

A number of Broadway's outstanding entertainers in the realm of musical comedy are featured in the Warner Brothers all-talking, singing and dancing comedy, "Gold Diggers of Broadway," coming Monday for three days' engagement.

Heading the cast are Winnie Lightner, the star of "Gay Paree" and "George White's Scandals," Nick Lucas, the "crooning troubador" of the radio and famous recording artist; Ann Pennington, nimble dancer of the Ziegfeld Follies; Nancy Welles, last seen in the Joe Cook musical comedy, "Rain or Shine;" and George Price, considered by many to be one of the finest dancers on the stage today. In addition to these stars of the musical comedy stage are Conway Tearle, Lilyan Tashman, William Bakewell and Helen Foster, all of whom are engagingly cast in comedy roles. Photographed throughout in beautiful natural colors, this latest Warner production has rapid-fire pace, lilting tunes, melodious, hilarious comedy, unusual stage sets and some of the fastest and cleverest dancing seen in many moons. In many ways "Gold Diggers of Broadway" is even more entertaining than its predecessor, the widely acclaimed "On With the Show." For the story of "Gold Diggers" holds together; there is a genuine dramatic situation which in its entirety, lends itself well to musical comedy interpretation. Most of these songs are already hits of the season, as dance orchestras are testifying to throughout the country.—Ad.

MAINE TEACHERS Looking Forward To Three Big Days In Portland

The convention of the Maine Teachers' Association takes place in Portland Oct. 23-25, with a program of extraordinary strength promised, including addresses by speakers of national and even international reputation at the larger group sessions and messages from no less than 25 educational experts from out of State at the 32 departmental demonstrations.

Among the outstanding speakers will be Dr. William J. Cooper, United States commissioner of education; Dr. George D. Strayer of the Teachers' College, Columbia University; Dr. A. O. Thomas, president of the World Federation of Educational Associations; Dr. Franklin W. Johnson, president of Colby College, and Commissioner Bertram E. Packard of the Maine Department of Education. An informal reception for the new Maine commissioner of education, Bertram E. Packard, and Mrs. Packard, has been arranged as a pre-convention feature, to take place Wednesday evening in the ball room of the new Chamber of Commerce building under the auspices of the Portland Teachers' Association. Following the reception there will be entertainment, dancing and refreshments.

The first meeting of the representative assembly, the new legislative body of the Maine Teachers' Association, on Friday afternoon, will be of much interest and importance. That evening there will be an entirely new feature, consisting of a series of assembly programs, in part and in full, actually used by the Lincoln Junior High School of Portland, and to be presented for the benefit of the association and to demonstrate a program which could be used by rural, grade, junior or senior high school teachers. Historical events comprise the settings for these dramatized assemblies.

Thursday morning will be devoted to two large division meetings, each commencing at 8:30. Group Two in the Nectro State Theatre, Congress street, will have Supt. E. L. Toner of Rockland, vice president of the Maine Teachers' Association, in charge. In the afternoon there will be meetings by the following departments of the association with messages from educational experts and discussions of modern and pedagogical problems: Primary Schools and Kindergartens, Rural Schools, English, History and Civics, Classics, Mathematics, Secondary School Agriculture, Deans of Women and Advisers of Girls. A general session will be held at 8 o'clock in the City hall auditorium.

Other department meetings will be held Friday morning, with the first annual meeting of the Representative Assembly scheduled for 4 p. m. in the assembly hall of the Portland High School.

The closing feature of the convention will be the general session at 8 p. m. Friday evening, at which historical facts will be presented in a concrete and dramatic manner by pupils of the Lincoln Junior High School, Portland, these assembly programs prefaced by an address by Principal Roland E. Stevens of that school on the subject: "The Assembly as an Extra-Curricular Activity."

E. L. Toner, Rockland, is first vice president of the Maine Teachers' Association. Many colleges and normal schools alumni associations will hold reunions in connection with the convention. There will be a dinner of the Maine State Music Supervisors' Association and former students of the Teachers' College, Columbia University.

LATE OCTOBER
[For The Courier-Gazette]
The leaves are changing colors. Jack Frost has been this way, And a million fancies, haunting, Are busy night and day.
The hillside gives surprises, So changed by brilliant dye, And the lowland glades with colors, To please the passer-by.
There's sunlight in the yellow, Fire's warmth shows in the red; In the brown the end of harvest, Soon white will be earth's bed.
The landscape's most completed, The artists' work near done— And the touch of airy brushies, A miracle has won.

STRAND THEATRE

Now playing, "Illusion," with Nancy Carroll.
"The Cock Eyed World," appropriately enough, has been called the "What Price Glory?" of the talking screen. For this latest all-talking production is the hilarious comedy sequel to that famous screen epic of the World War, relating in racy, boisterous fashion, the peace-time adventures of those two friendly enemies, Flagg and Quirt. Leather-neck rivals in love and brawls.

Following up one howling sequence after the other, as they battle all over the map for the favor of alluring young ladies who come and go with delightful frequency, these popular stars can amuck, wise-cracking, fighting and loving with an abandon that is a delight to behold. Somehow their easy flowing humor is infectious for they do get themselves into one tight squeeze after the other. Of course, they always get out of them but not until audiences are supplied with many hearty laughs. The principal feminine role is played by Lily Damita, the beautiful Parisian actress, who seems made to order for the role of the exotic Marianna. Vivacious, alluring and often stunningly beautiful, this comely young actress, last seen with Ronald Colman in "The Rescue," acquires herself in excellent fashion, proving to be an ideal selection as the third hand of the McLaglen-Lowe party.

"The Cock Eyed World," comes Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.—adv.

WORDS from a WANDERER by Harry A. Daniels

While we live in New England, an industrial section of the country, and give little thought to the west, it may be interesting at this time, the harvest season, to take a glance out there and note what the folks out there are doing to gather in the dollars.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas knows more about this subject than any other citizen in the United States. Not because he is a senator from a farming state, and has been there many years, but because he has the confidence of all the farmers in the great west, and they bring their problems, their troubles and their successes to him. He cannot be reached by the lobbyists. He is true blue, a yard wide, and he is for the farmer first, last and always.

He reaches the farmers and they reach him through his six publications. He has daily, Sunday, weekly and monthly papers, and they have made him a very rich man because the farmers know they can believe what he tells them, and they subscribe for and advertise in his papers. For a single example take just one publication, of the six, and we find it has a circulation of 845,000 copies each issue. The advertising rate is $4.50 a line, and as there are about 11 lines to an inch in newspaper, that is $49.50 an inch. In a newspaper with 29 inches to a column that is only $960 a column. His papers have a combined circulation of 1,593,271, and he therefore talks to that many people interested in agriculture.

His farmers tell him—and he publishes many columns of their letters—that the American farmer has gone tractorwise. Every farmer is buying one and those that have had them say they could never again get along without one. They are doing away with their horses entirely; doing away with extra farm help. With their tractor they saw the winter wood, plow, disk, drag, harrow, spread lime and fertilizer, grind feed, crush stones, pull stumps and trees, haul rocks, move buildings, fill silos, run the threshing machine—and when the tractor is not at these things it goes on road work and works out road taxes. Then, too, they use them for cultivating, seeding, cutting hay and hauling it and pulling it into the mow with a fork; they cultivate the orchard, the garden, the raspberry patch—in fact, the tractor does about everything there is to do on the farm.

The manufacturers of these machines have kept abreast of the times to the extent that an up-to-date tractor today will haul three plows, disks, drills and a packer—and plow, disk, plant and pack down the soil all in one operation. Doing away with hired help and 12 horses, the owner of the farm plows and plants 10 to 12 acres a day, all by himself, at a cost of $3.50 for gasoline and oil.

Just now at harvest time he attaches binders and reapers, and combines, and corn harvesters, and these machines do all the harvesting while the owner runs the tractor. A new corn reaper will handle three rows of corn at a time, cut the stalks, pull off the ears, husk them, shuck the corn, dump it into a bin, and take care of the cobs and the fodder all in one operation. All you have to do is attach the tractor to this machine and start off.

Other machines equally complicated and effective are constantly being devised so that a farmer can do most everything there is to do on a farm with gasoline and kerosene. Then with electricity they milk the cows, churn and separate the milk, and the housewife has her electric washer, electric iron and Hoover sweeper.

These labor-saving devices are not beyond the means of the farmer. For one tractor saves 12 horses, and one man with a modern tractor can work 300 acres of land to advantage without any outside help at all.

A farm in the west is not complete without all these attachments, in addition to the radio, the motor car, and other modern conveniences—and that probably is the reason that the farmer needs "relief."

And it is up to the manufacturers of these things to see that he gets it—if they want to keep on selling him.

MANY DEER SEEN

Com'r Stobie Regrets Close Time On Moose In Southern Counties

Although expressing his disappointment that there is open season on moose in any counties of the State this fall, Commissioner Stobie of the State department of inland fisheries and game expressed his belief that such open season should be in the southern counties of the State rather than in the northern counties.

"It is in the populated sections of the State and not in the big woods that moose are causing the trouble," said the commissioner. "In the big woods or the northern part of the State there is not more than a fair breeding stock for the future."

The hunting season for moose commences Nov. 25 and closes Nov. 30 in the counties of Aroostook, Hancock, Knox, Lincoln, Penobscot, Waldo and Washington, the season limit being one bull moose to a hunter.

"Deer are reported by the wardens to be quite plentiful all over the State," continued the commissioner. "They are more plentiful than last year. It is also reported that deer are carrying larger antlers this year due to an early spring and good feeding."

"Bears are reported plentiful in nearly all sections of the northern part of the State. The beech nuts are plentiful meaning that the bears will be found this fall mostly on the beech-nut ridges. This also means that the bear will probably den up later than in former years due to the fact that there is plenty of food."

Commissioner Stobie related an interesting story concerning an extra large bull moose which for the past few years had ranged the Ripogenus road from Ragged Lake to Cheesunog Lake, had proved his worth in battle and had been "king" of the realm. Wardens now report that there is every evidence that the animal has met his match for his body is covered with scars and one horn is broken. Other evidence is noted in the fact that the animal has lost his fighting instinct and his air of superiority and now represents meekness itself.

relating to fish and game administration and conservation. But it must be remembered that the sportsmen of Pennsylvania, that Pioneer State in Conservation, to which the sportsmen of the whole country look, took seven years to solve their fish and game problems, and we may well take pride in our accomplishments in less than two years of concerted endeavor.

"Let me touch briefly on certain principles of conservation at which some criticisms have been directed.

Sanctuaries

"The two primary purposes of this Association are:

"First: To make better hunting and fishing in this county for our own people.

"Second: To make the county, through our efforts, more attractive to our out of state visitors, in order that we may obtain for the people of the county a larger share of the $100,000,000 that they leave in our State each year.

"To carry out these plans we have attempted to improve our fishing through our efforts, more attractive to our out of state visitors, in order that we may obtain for the people of the county a larger share of the $100,000,000 that they leave in our State each year.

"We have one of the best sanctuaries in the State in our Knox Lake. It is a preserve, in spite of its restrictive shooting during the past four years game has increased, within its limits, many fold. The Legislature of 1929 made of this preserve a real sanctuary, eliminating all hunting and shooting in its confines and now that it is entirely closed we plan to introduce pheasants, and in the spring to plant game feeds of various sorts with but one thought in mind, namely, that the surrounding territory may soon produce the best hunting ever known in this county.

"However, there are still those who for their own selfish convenience, without a thought of the welfare of the boys of the next generation, would repeal every sanctuary law in the game code; they would catch the last trout, kill the last deer, shoot the last seed bird with utter indifference. We cannot understand their view point. I fear they will never understand ours.

Sunday Hunting

"In years gone by little effort was made in this locality to enforce that section of the game law that prohibits Sunday hunting. Two years ago when the State Department informed the officers of this Association that the wardens had been instructed to enforce this law, all of us seriously and earnestly argued with the assistant commissioner that a strict enforcement of this law would work a hardship on the sportsmen of moderate means, who had no other day in which to enjoy his recreation.

"Looking at the problem from an honest point of view it seems difficult to understand why one class of men can fish, play golf, or seek recreation through the use of motorboats, automobiles or airplanes, and hunting should be prohibited, but the answer, now at least, is obvious. It is the law of the State, it is being enforced elsewhere and we as an Association are obligated as good sportsmen and under our Constitution to assist in the enforcement of all Fish & Game Laws.

Without any doubt the abuse of the day by a certain class of hunters has had much to do with the present strict enforcement of the law. However, a commission is now working on the general Sunday Law and it may be possible in the future to work out a solution that will be satisfactory not only to the hunters, but also to those who have heretofore been seriously imposed upon in their worship by hunters and their hounds.

The Farmer

"We want the farmer to be our friend, for without his co-operation we would have no public shooting grounds in America. If the farmers as a whole should deliberately close their property we would be no better off here in America than they are in England, where only the great landed proprietors have their own private shooting preserves and the poor man goes without the recreation that he enjoys.

"It has always been one of the primary aims of this Association to work for a better understanding between land owners and sportsmen, the one to provide shooting grounds and the other to destroy vermin and preserve such birds as are friends to the farmer in his agricultural pursuits. Some day I hope this Association may be in sufficient funds that we can offer a reward for the detention and conviction of any, so called, hunter or fisherman who commits any act of vandalism on any farmer's property within our territorial limits.

Licenses

"Since our inception we have stood four square for a resident's license. The proper administration of our fish and game department costs a great deal of money. Either those who seek their recreation afield or astream must bear the burden or the money must come from taxation. Personally I could never understand why we should ask those who never hunt or fish to help pay for our sport. They do not ask us to help pay their golf bills or any other similar recreational expenses. No one will seriously argue, I think, but what the non-resident pays his full share under the non-resident license law. As a matter of fact in one phase of the non-resident's license law, I believe in fairness, an adjustment should be made.

"Prior to 1929 children of non-residents under 14 years of age were permitted to fish without a license. Under the new law enacted last winter, however, every non-resident of whatever age must now pay a license of either $3.15 for a month or $5.15 for the season. You can appreciate the burden that this has placed on the many boys' and girls' camps in our state. They are not only performing a great service in the development of the youth but are bringing large sums of money yearly into our State. The children in these summer camps who only catch a few perch during the summer must now pay each a license fee of $5.15. This seems almost an imposition for the burden in a great many instances must fall upon the camp owner himself. It is my opinion that either the old law should be put back into effect or a blanket license issued to summer camp owners covering 25, 50 or 75 boys and girls in a definite classification.

"All of these problems can be worked out satisfactorily to our people and for the benefit of our State by honest efforts on our part, keeping in mind always the rights of others, particularly the farmer and land owner and with a willingness to make some personal sacrifice for the benefit of the whole."

Following custom President Butler called to the chair the resident member of the executive board, Alfred C. Hocking who got the ovation that a man is entitled to after personally arranging such a successful meeting, with the banquet and entertainment already alluded to. Mr. Hocking extended a most cordial welcome to the members of the dental profession to the drive for black ducks caused much laughter. Full credit was given to Harry Booth who provided the bulk of the material for this portion of the menu. Mr. Hocking was inclined to think that the ducks turned in by Dr. Walter Conley did of fright, and that those shot by E. M. O'Neill and David Goldberg belonged to the decoy flock.

President Butler stated that the next membership meeting would be held in Union in November and the presence of a smiling quartet, consisting of Fred E. Burkett, Clarence Leard, R. M. McKinley and Frank Gordon, rather indicated that Union will be heard from in fine style.

Frank A. Tirrell told of the proposed new sanctuary on the western side of Megunticook Lake and said that a bill was being drafted for presentation at the special session of the Legislature.

President Butler directed attention to the Thanksgiving turkey, shoot which will be held at Oakland Park commencing at 9.30 a. m. No guns larger than 10-bore may be used, and ammunition may be obtained on the ground.

The attitude of the Camp Directors' Association toward the fishing license imposed on non-resident juveniles was explained by Mr. Webster of the Belgrade Camps, speaking in behalf of Frank E. Poland, proprietor of the Medomak Camps, and president of the New England Division of the Camp Directors' Association. Mr. Webster made an excellent impression and the weight of his arguments was felt. He said the license fees meant a small increase in State funds, but had created a vast amount of unfavorable comment. He expressed the Association's willingness to co-operate with any fair legislation, and suggested a graduated license scale—$1 for children from 10 to 12, $1.50 for children from 12 to 15, and $2 for children from 15 to 18.

Chief Game Warden F. H. Smallwood spoke of the criticism which had been caused by an arrest for Sunday hunting, but said that he had been asked to enforce the law not only by the department, but by the owners of land.

George J. Stobie, the new commissioner of inland fisheries got a fine greeting from the organization which was first to endorse his candidacy. Speechmaking is not his forte, but he knows the department's work from a to z and is not a bit afraid to express his opinion. He said that the warden's force has been increased to two superintendents, 12 chief wardens and 76 deputy wardens.

The audience was somewhat agitated at his statement that the Camden hatchery is fit only for the hatching of eggs, and that fish liberated from it are not all fish. This is due in the main to the fact that the temperature of the water in summer runs as high as 70, while in winter it drops to freezing. Supt. Libby used 10 tons of salt last year to remove fungus growth. Fish grown in spring water will develop twice as rapidly. The hope for the Camden hatchery, in the opinion of the officials lies in the proposition of digging artesian wells.

The department will spend $400,000 on fish and game this year.

Superintendent Joseph Stoney showed three reels of motion pictures pertaining to the department, and revealing several local sportsmen.

WILSON MAY RUN

Possibility that Mayor John Wilson of Bangor would oppose Gov. Gardner in the primary election next June for the Republican gubernatorial nomination loomed Thursday on the heels of his announcement that he would not seek his fourth mayoral term. It was understood in Bangor that Mayor Wilson had the possibility of his candidacy under advisement. Mayor Wilson was an active opponent to the surplus water power export proposal contained in the recent special referendum.

BIG DENTAL MEET

New England Society To Have Noted Speakers At Tufts College

Dentists from all over New England will meet in Boston Oct. 31 to attend the annual meeting of the New England Dental Society. This meeting will be of three days duration at the Tufts College Dental School.

The three-day session will be given over entirely to a series of dental clinics presided over by eminent leaders in various branches of dentistry. Among the visiting dentists from outside New England who have a prominent place on the program are Dr. E. H. Hutton of Chicago, Illinois, and Dr. Carl Grove of St. Paul, Minnesota, two outstanding dental authorities in their respective sections of this country. Dr. Leroy M. S. Miner, Dean of the Harvard Dental School, will also give an address.

The New England Dental Society has done a great deal to supplement the activities of the various State Dental Societies and has brought the members of the dental profession in the several New England States in closer touch with each other. Presently an organization devoted to scientific study, its annual meeting brings together hundreds of dentists each year for three days of intensive educational work.

To become a member of the New England Dental Society, one of the requisites is that the member also be a member of his State Society. In this way and through co-ordination of purpose and effort, the New England organization and the various State dental societies are becoming a powerful influence for good and are doing a great deal for the advancement of dentistry. The public too is benefiting in no small measure from a more highly trained and responsible dental personnel.

Drs. Ralph W. Blackford, Emory B. Howard, Edward W. Peaslee and J. E. Tibbets are members.

DEASY SWORN IN

New Chief Justice Will Set In Motion Revised Court System

Associate Justice Luere B. Deasy of Bar Harbor on Saturday became chief justice of the supreme judicial court of Maine, succeeding Scott Wilson of Portland who resigned to accept appointment to the United States circuit court of appeals. The oath of office was administered to Justice Deasy by Gov. Gardner in the presence of the executive council.

Upon Chief Justice Deasy will devolve the duty of setting in motion the revised court system of the State, authorized by act of the 1929 Legislature, to become effective January 1, 1930. Under the act the supreme court becomes a court of law to hold eight terms a year, and as vacancies in its personnel occur they shall remain unfilled until the court consists of a chief justice and five associate justices instead of a chief justice and seven associates, as at present. The number of superior court justices has already been increased, by virtue of the act, from four to seven, and the jurisdiction of the superior courts henceforth is extended to all counties.

Judge Deasy has been a member of the bar since 1884 and was first named to the supreme bench in 1918. He was born in Gouldsboro, Feb. 8, 1859.

POULTRY ACCOUNTS

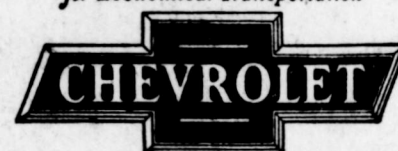

Twenty-six Books Being Distributed In Knox and Lincoln Counties

Many requests are being received by County Agent Wentworth for the new 1930 poultry account books that are to be sent all poultrymen the last of this month. There are a total of 26, divided into communities thus: Warren and Waldoboro four each, West Arns three, Dresden, Danville, North Edgecomb, Friendship and Whitefield two each, and Camden, Eurekafield, Hope, West Rockport and Thomaston one each.

These books are furnished free by the Extension Service to any poultryman in the county who requests one. At the end of the year the books will be balanced and summarized and a county summary will be made up. This is very valuable to the poultryman for it gives the individual a clear understanding of his year's work. It is a service that many business organizations spend thousands of dollars each year to obtain.

During the next few weeks many more requests are expected. Last year 160 books were kept throughout Knox and Lincoln Counties.
