Wonderful Exhibits From All Lands Show the World's Best Progress

From Beginning to End Magnificent Panama-Pacific International Exposition Will Abound With Superb Educational and Entertainment Features.

By HAMILTON WRIGHT.
THE construction of the vast Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco was 95 per cent completed three months before the opening day, on Feb. 20, 1915. The early installation of thousands of tons of rare and costly exhibits from all parts of the globe and the participation of forty of the world's great countries have assured a celebration that will be unrivaled in its splendor, magnitude, interest and comprehensiveness.

Francisco in a single day, and, far in advance of its opening, the Exposition had created an unprecedented interest throughout the world, and its opening was eagerly awaited.

In keen competitive exhibits there will be presented more than 80,000 single exhibits and groups of related exhibits portraying the results of the world's best efforts in recent years.

This wonderful Exposition, presented at an outlay of more than $40,000,000, celebrates a contemporaneous achievement, the building of the Panama canal, and all exhibits that are entered for competitive award will be those that have been originated or produced since the great Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis ten years ago. The possible exception to this rule will be where earlier exhibits are fare work will, for example, see in the Palace of Mines an exhibit three-fourths of an acre in extent, illustrating the manner in which the largest steel corporation in the world is caring for and plans to still further advance the welfare of its employees. In the Palace of Education they will be interested in a great United States government exhibit.

The great war in no way has diminished the prospect of attendance at the Exposition, and thousands of Americans will for the first time enjoy the educative trip across their native land. After the outbreak of the conflict the number of conventions deciding to meet in San Francisco proportionately increased. One of the most important of the assemblages will be the international engineering

THE MOTHER OF LINCOLN BEACHEY, FROM THE TOWER OF JEWELS, 435 FEET ABOVE THE EARTH, AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, WATCHES HER SON LOOP HIS ONE THOUSANDTH LOOP.

When Lincoln Beachey, a son of San Francisco, on the occasion of his homecoming after breaking all world records as a daredevil loop of 999 loops, performed two entirely new and death-defying stunts over the completed palaces of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition it was his aged mother who for the first time waved him on to fresh achievements. Mrs. Beachey held a place of honor, 435 feet up in the air, on the tiptop of the wonderful Tower of Jewels. From this aerial she was able to watch every erratic move of her daredevil son. She cried out only once. That was when he wrote the figures "1000" against the clouds, high above the two miles of completed exhibit palaces, significant of the looping of his one thousandth loop.

ama canal is today open and doing business on a far vaster scale than was predicted for it, and the Exposition, which celebrates the opening of the canal, is today revealed as the greatest manifestation of national achievement in American history. Here will be a neutral ground where even nations engaged in warfare will display on a scale never before equaled their progress in the arts, industries and sciences of peace.

Within three months before the opening of the Exposition as many as 2,000 tons of consignments had reached San shown to illustrate the evolution of the processes of manufacture—as, for example, a display of a model of the first cotton gin in connection with the marvelous equipment into which it has evolved.

Many of the displays will be especially adapted to study by the delegates to great national and international congresses and conventions, of which more than 300, embracing almost every phase of human activity, have voted to meet in San Francisco in 1915. Delegates to the congresses interested in social progress and welcongress, at which its distinguished chairman, Colonel George W. Goethals, will preside.

The foreign participation will be notable. The nations are not attempting to show everything that they produce, but will lay especial emphasis upon those products in which they excel. In the Danish display, for example, will be shown products of the Royal Danish porcelain factory at Copenhagen. Japan in her exhaustive exhibit will display priceless works of art, loaned by direction of the Imperial household and many of which could not be duplicated. From Italy will be shown historic paintings of the old masters, hitherto never exhibited in America in the originals. From China there have reached San Francisco selections of exhibits collected under the supervision of the governors of the Chinese provinces. Rare silks and satins, carvings, inlay work in the precious metals, exhibits of the transportation methods employed in the old China and the modern methods used in the awakening republic will be shown.

New Zealand will make a marvelous exhibit of its rare woods, of its fleeces, of its superb scenic charms. A large number of rare giant tree ferns from New Zealand will be found growing on the Exposition grounds.

The Argentine Republic early set aside a larger sum than any ever appropriated by a foreign nation for representation in an American exposition. The modern cities of Argentina, the schools, churches, libraries, the great live stock and agricultural interests will be extensively portrayed, and the mutual interests of South America and North America will be emphasized in almost every conceivable manner. From South Africa will be shown diamond exhibits and methods of extraction. The magnificent Canadian displays will review not only the widely known agricultural wealth, but will illustrate the scenic charms of the great Dominion, of snow clad mountain peaks, of far-reaching forest, of inland lakes in chains of silver and rushing mountain streams.

"THE END OF THE TRAIL," PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, 1915.

A common mistake of local advertisers is to estimate the value of advertising space of one newspaper by the amount asked by some other publication. It is a mistake of judgment for a business man to estimate the value of space in a reputable newspaper with a good circulation by that of some other publication which will accept business at any price and be pleased to get it.—Leavenworth (Kansas) Times.

Advertisers in THE AMERICAN are capturing the trade.

THE WHITE DEATH

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

In 1850 Mlle. Antoinette Garnier, named for the ill-fated queen of France who lost her head on the guillotine, was one of the most attractive of the younger girls of New Orleans. The Crescent City was in those days one of the gayest cities, if not the gayest, in the United States. Being a city of the French, it contained a number of emigres of the revolution whereby the Bourbon kings lost the throne, and they were of the noblesse, some of them having the right to titles that they did not use. New Orleans socially was delightful, but more foreign than any other American city.

Edwin Wentworth, a young northerner from the state of Maryland, went to the Crescent City to spend a winter, attracted thither by the reports of the unique social life. Having letters to the "best" people, he was invited everywhere. He met Mlle. Garnier, and a love affair ensued. It was arranged that when the spring came on they should be married and both go north to the groom's home.

In those days there was frequent intercourse between New Orleans and France. While desirable persons came out to the new world to make homes for themselves, occasionally one would come whose absence would have been preferable. Among these was Antoine Le Volsier, a duelist who had killed so many opponents that he had acquired the sobriquet of the White Death.

One evening at a cafe young Wentworth saw him, asked who he was and on being told remarked in a voice loud enough for Le Volsier to hear that the authorities of Louisiana should ship the fellow back to France. The result was a challenge. If Wentworth had come from Massachusetts or any northern state he might have declined it. But, hailing from a border state, in which dueling had not entirely died out, he felt compelled to fight. He was rash to have made the remark in the White Death's hearing and rash to go on the field with one who had fought twenty duels and killed ten men. Wentworth was entirely unskilled in the use of weapons, and there was no time to learn how to use them. The result was that he went out to meet his antagonist, and another murder was done.

Mlle. Garnier was so crushed by the tragedy that for awhile her life seemed to be in danger, and as she recovered her strength she showed signs of mental derangement. The social world saw her no more, and so rapid are the changes in the world of fashion that in a few months her place there seemed to have been filled and she forgotten.

It was not long after Wentworth's murder that the cholera visited America, and New Orleans was not immune from its devastations. But it seemed that nothing could even temporarily obliterate the people's desire for amusement. A masked ball was given in a large hall, and, although it was not an affair to call out fashionable society, especially at such a time, many of the bon ton went there to divest themselves of the gloom surrounding them.

The contrast within and without the hall was a fearful one. Within was a dance of life, without a dance of death. But the death from without broke in among the merry-makers. A figure entered the hall dressed in white flowing robes, the mask as white as chalk, with great hollow eyes, a grinning mouth and rotten teeth. It advanced to one wearing a Louis XV. costume and stood staring at him. The merriment ceased, and all eyes were bent on the two figures. The Louis XV. figure took off his mask and displayed the features of Le Volsier.

The reason for his unmasking was apparent. He had seen himself confronted by one dressed as the White Death and was desirous to avenge the insult.

"Whoever you are who has offered this affront you shall pay for it," he said.

"I am the White Death," replied Le Volsier, referring to a wood on the outskirts of the city where duels were fought.

"Not without a reason. For me (the White Death) to confront you, the White Death, is no insult. Take that!"

He struck Le Volsier with the back of his hand, drawing a drop of blood, which seemed to come from a ring he wore on his finger. Le Volsier paid no attention to the blow other than to say that if his antagonist was satisfied he was; that he would expect to meet the person who had insulted him as soon as they could reach the wood; then, turning, he started for an exit.

It was noticed before he had taken a dozen steps that he staggered, and before he reached the door he fell. The specter followed him and stood over him, looking down upon him. Le Volsier writhed in agony, but kept his eye fixed on his other self, the White Death. Presently the latter removed his mask and exposed the features, not of a man, but a woman. Some there were who recognized her as Mlle. Garnier, though she was much changed from the beauty she had been before her lover's death.

"You are no longer the White Death," she said to the dying man. "I have taken your place to avenge your last victim. This ring is more powerful than any weapon of yours. It contains a deadly poison."

Nothing Can Keep Fresh After It's Cut Up

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you wick it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

The merchant who says he does not believe in advertising, nevertheless places a sign over his door and decorates his window. The sign tells the passer-by where the merchant is located; the attractive window invites him in from the sidewalk. That's advertising, and good as far as it goes but it doesn't go far enough—it doesn't get beyond the sidewalk. An advertisement in the local paper carries the sign and the window to the homes of prospective customers, and pulls them from the home to the store.

Correspondence.

Augusta Letter. AUGUSTA, ME., Feb. 5, 1915. To the Editor of The American: As if aware that circumstances had prevented the usual work of the first month of legislature, the members returned yesterday with a spirit that from now on there would be action that would bring results.

It has seemed to many that business has been moving slowly, but men who have been here during past sessions, say that conditions are now normal, when it is taken into consideration that two years ago the session started on January 1, where this year it did not start till January 8. Then two weeks were wasted, as far as regular business of the legislature was concerned, in the election of State officers.

It is very evident around the state house that no one wants to "monkey" with the prohibition law. Even the democrats see there is no show of getting through any bill that smells of rum.

The printing flurry subsided when the attorney-general advised Gov. Curtis that his stand was untenable, and the last ripple disappeared when Sen. Boynton, the democratic leader in the upper branch, with fitting words quickly and decently interred the remains.

The railroad investigation promises to be double-barreled. The Maine Central railroad has issued a statement to the legislature of its condition, and asks a reduction of taxes.

The grange will be on hand in the interests of the small towns by taking a hand in the educational bills. State Master Stetson was at the state house this week, and stated that the distribution of the State school money would be one of the measures supported by the grange.

Another school act that reaches farther than at first might seem, is in regard to amending the law relative to accounting for and expenditure of school funds.

The Strand moving-picture theatre announces as a special feature for Wednesday evening of next week Sir Gilbert Parker's colonial masterpiece, "The Seats of the Mighty," in five reels, with Lionel Barrymore in the leading role. This has been pronounced by critics one of the most ambitious photo-plays in America. It is said that $50,000 was expended in producing this picture version of Sir Gilbert Parker's great book.

It is said that $50,000 was expended in producing this picture version of Sir Gilbert Parker's great book. The storming of the city of Quebec is a wonderful piece of work from a photographic standpoint, and to the spectator, it hardly seems possible that such should be merely acted.

The Strand was particularly enterprising in securing the expensive photo-play, which has never before been produced in a town of this size.

OBITUARY.

SEWELL TENNEY ROYAL. Sewell Tenney Royal died early this morning at his home on Birch avenue, aged seventy-nine years. He had been gradually failing in health for several months.

SEWELL T. ROYAL

Mr. Royal. This may perhaps be largely attributed to his activity in masonic circles, through which he kept in touch with the younger generations. Sewell Tenney Royal was born in Ellsworth February 2, 1836, the second son of the late Samuel and Lucy Royal.

William B. Peters was born in Ellsworth August 23, 1833. He married, in 1863, Martha Elizabeth, daughter of Andrew Chute, formerly of Orland, and later of Newburyport, Mass. Mrs. Peters died in 1868. They had three children, all of whom are living—Congressman John A. Peters and Charles Peters, of Ellsworth; and Dr. William C. Peters, of Bangor.

Mrs. Mary Stanwood Cousins died at the home of her son, Clifford E. Cousins, Feb. 9, where she had been tenderly cared for in her last long illness, at the age of eighty-nine years, five months, nine days.

Mrs. Cousins was born in Bar Harbor, where she lived until she was married to Reuben Cousins, of Trenton, who died in 1888. She leaves three sons, Clifford E., John Winthrop, and Charles L., all of Ellsworth.

CITY MEETING.

Veto Message From Mayor Hagerthy Comes as a Surprise. A recess meeting of the city government was held Monday afternoon. All the aldermen were present, President Maddocks presiding in the absence of the mayor.

Whereas, On February 1, 1915, it was voted by the board of aldermen that Alderman Stuart be a committee to bid in for the city taxes offered for sale by the tax collector for 1914, Charles J. Brown, and

Whereas, This action of the said board is not approved by me as mayor, I hereby return the same to you with my objections, which are, that such action is not for the best interest of the city, as the said Charles J. Brown has a contract with the city for the full and complete collection of all taxes legally assessed by said city for the year 1914, and I am constrained to object and veto the said action of the said board as above referred to.

Acting on the suggestion of the committee to which was referred the matter of insurance on city property, for the equalization of the business among the several agents, it was voted that the renewal of insurance on the city farm buildings, the present policy expiring Feb. 18, be placed through W. E. Whiting's agency.
