Lesson XII.-Second Quarter, For June 18, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvi, 19-34. Memory Verses, 33, 34-Golden Text, Acts xvi. 31-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

In verses 16-18 of our lesson chapter we read of an evil spirit possessing a woman who, as she followed Paul and his friends, cried out, "These men are the servants of the Most High God, who show unto us the way of salvation." She continued to do this many days, but Paul, being grieved by even so good and true a testimony from such a source and knowing her to be controlled by an evil spirit, commanded the spirit to come out of her in the name of Jesus Christ, and he did. It was certainly strange to hear such a testimony from such a source, but an evil spirit in the synagogue at Capernaum one day when Jesus was present cried out, "I know thee who art, the Holy One of God!" And Jesus commanded the spirit to come out of the man (Mark 1, 23-26).

Truth may be talked without being known in the heart, but the Lord reads the heart and does not want testimony from His enemies. Knowing the truth about the Lord Jesus does not save any one, yet it may be that many think they are saved because they be lieve that Jesus lived and died and rose again and that He is the Son of But it is he that hath the Son of God that hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. Only such as receive Him become children of God (I John v. 12; John

When those who employed this woman and made money by her saw that this source of income was taken from them they incited a riot against Paul and Silas and had them beaten and cast into prison, and the faller, having received a charge to keep them safely. put them in the inner prison and made their feet fast in the stocks (verses 19-24). There are some things right on the surface of this record, and one is that people are apt to grow very angry if they are making money wrongfully and their business is interfered with. Compare the riot of the silversmiths at Ephesus in chapter xix, and then think of the opposition of the liquor dealers and all who dishonor Jesus Christ to the work and teaching of Rev. William Sunday and all true evangelists; also the opposition of those who profit by graft to those who desire righteousness.

Then notice that if you won't let the devil help you be will take pains to show you how he can hate you and persecute you. Compare in Ezra iv. 1-5, the decided opposition of those who were not permitted to help in the work. There are still those who are ready to belp in many a good work if they may belong to the devil while they do it. But if asked to renounce the devil and to receive the Lord Jesus and put their trust in His great sacrifice as the Son of God, then one is apt to witness the enmity of the carnal mind against God.

How grand was the victory of faith in these men of God, who, with sore and bleeding backs and feet in the stocks, could praise the God whose they were and whom they served and talk with Him in heaven from their prison! Not only did the other prisonir them praising God, but they were heard in heaven, and suddenly the earth was shaken, and the prison, too; prison doors were opened and ev bonds loosed (verses 25, 26). Oh, how great and wonderful is our God, the God of Israel, who only doesn wonders! (Ps. lxxii, 18, 19.) As some one has said, these men had not influence enough on earth at Philippi to save them from this shameful treatment (I Thess. II, 2) and from prison, but they had influence enough in heaven to shake the earth. It was midnight when they prayed and sang praises, but the God of Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps; He watches over His people night and day (Ps cxxi, 4;

Not only was the prison shaken, but the keeper was so shaken when he saw the prison doors open that he would have killed himself if Paul had not cried out, "Do thyself no harm for we are all here!" He was shaken deep down in his soul, too, for, falling down trembling before Paul and Silas he brought them out and said, "Sirs what must I do to be saved?" Then did Paul at this unexpected midnight service speak to him and to his house the word of the Lord, and they be lieved—that is, they received the Lord Jesus Christ—and, being saved, they sed Christ in baptism and were all filled with rejoicing. The second saved household at Philippi (verses 14, 15, 27-34).

Isa. xxvii. 3).

Reading of saved households, I always think of the Lord's word to Noah, "Come thou and all thy house," and I find great encouragement to believe that the Lord still loves to save households. It would seem that be fore the baptism those poor scarred backs were made more comfortable. and then what a love feast they mus have had in the jailer's house, and what joy there was in heaven as well as on earth! Next morning those who had imprisoned the apostles wanted to let them go privily, but Paul insisted upon a public acquittal, which was granted them, and after a call upon Lydia they departed. Last week I attended our local union at Elisworth, and laid off another office, that of local president. June 1, I went Fullerton. Went to Verous by automobile to look after a family of seven children. Brought away four of them: the others to follow soon, the father and mother concluding to break company, each promising to help care for the children. The father promised never to drink again. So many good subjects have been suggested by one and another during the year, and I have written (mentally) long letters on each of them, but many things have hindered any other expression. In these busy times there seems no leisure for the many things we would enjoy. We hurry even in our pleasures, feeling that we must get time for this and that and the other thing, and it often seems to me we lose, in our hurry, much that would be more worth while. How can we MARIAVILLE, 441. Mariaville grange met June 3 for a mother's day meeting. There was a fine program, including an address of welcome by the worthy master, songs, readings and an interesting talk by Sister Mary B. Aiken, lecturer of East Piscataquis Pomons grange, all of which were very ap propriete for mother's day. Many mothers, with their children, were present. A bountiful feast awaited all, in the dining room at noon. There were only eighteen visitors present, but the day was well spent.

HANCOCK POMONA. Hancock Pomona grange met with Floral grange, Bucksport Center, June 6. The threatening weather prevented the usual attendance, but still many braved the showery morning and were rewarded by a most enjoyable session. An interesting and cordial address of welcome was given by Mrs. G. A. Washburn, and response was by Mary M. Burrill, of New Century grange.

The topic for the morning related to the care of the exterior and interior of grange halls. For the afternoon the food value of fruits was considered, and whether farmers get as much enjoyment out of life as their circumstances warrant.

An excellent dinner was served at noon and supper at the close of the session. Messages of sympathy and appreciation were voted to Sisters Hattie men and Maria Lowell who were unable, secause of ill health, to be present.

The address of welcome of Mrs. Washburn follows:

Floral grange extends a most cordial greet ing to you all to-day, and is truly glad to welcome so many patrons. One of the best featres of rural life in the old days in New Engwas the habit of going visiting. pitality was one of the prized virtues then and it was practiced almost daily, not only by the well to do, but also by those who had to

For a time that good old custom fell into disuse: and because it did life on the farm grew gray and dall. Now with better roads comes more travel, and we are getting better This touches the grange intimately, because through its influence it has helped to keep alive the social life in our little communities by having good times, getting more pleasure out of life and looking on its brighter side.

It seems fitting to give a short history of Floral grange at this time. It was organized July 9, 1875, and is the oldest grange in Hancounty, being forty-one years old next members, of whom but three are now living-Mrs. Deborah Houston, Mrs. Maria Lowell and Mrs. Eugene C. Parker.

The first master of Fioral grange, No. 188, was Rev. Zebulon Davis, who was pastor of the Methodist church at that time. The national master was Dudley W. Adams, and the secretary, O. H. Kelley, who is called the of the grange", while the State master was Nelson Ham.

Fioral grange was organized by Mr. Clements, of Monroe, at the little schoolbouse at the Centre. The first meetings were held in the hall of the Curtis farm, where spelling bees and singing schools were also held. This

The grange was organized following the Civil war, when its founders recognized that agriculture was a thing in which North and uth alike could unite in a common interest. fective manner. The program: most consideration.

Maine owns more grange halls than any moting a more progressive agriculture, bet-ter educational facilities and greater mora uplift of our people. Thus may we go for and inspired hope for the future, that Hancock Pomona grange may live, grow and prosper, that through it may be instilled the noble principles of our order not call in principles of our order, not only in the but of those yet to follow the untiring efforts of our worthy master George W. Chipman, and we should all recog-nize the interest and devotion he has always shown for its welfare.

LAMOINE, 264.

At the last meeting, it was decided to build a grange hall of one story, with basement dining-room. Plans were also discussed for having a fair this summer.

Miss Nicholas, formerly of Cuba, was here, but on account of illness was unable to speak, and was obliged to return to her home in Providence, R. I. Mrs. Holt, of Lamoine, gave a beautiful solo. At the evening session the Pathfinders, of Sedgwick, gave their ceremonial very impressively.

OBITUARY. After a long and painful illness, Mrs Alma R. T. Small, of Sedgwick, passed to rest Wednesday morning, June 7, at the age of fifty-four years, four months and eleven days. She was born in Tremont one of nine children. At an early age she was taken by her parents to Tinker's island, and at the age of 12 to Sedgwick, where she had since resided.

She was married in July, 1883, to Henry A. Small, and for several years conducted millinery store in Sedgwick village. For a longer time she was telegraph operator there. Later they kept a hotel, and she managed the house, working early and late. After the burning of their home, Mr. Small secured the appointment as postmaster, and she became his assistant and took full charge of the office, retiring from the position in October, 1914.

Since that time, failing health, and serious operation, followed by her last illness, kept her quite closely confined to her home, although she was permitted to go out and visit friends occa sionally. The last time she was outside her own home was on January 23, when she attended the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Amanda Tinker, whose care she had to relinquish to her sister several years

Mrs. Small was a charter member of the local chapter, O. E. S., of which she was the first conductress, and had held other offices, including two years as worthy matron. She had also been district deputy and grand warder, and for two years grand representative to North Dakota, her commission expiring in January, 1916. For several years she sang in the choir of the Baptist church, of which her mother and sister were members, and had also served at times as organist. While not a member of the church herself, she was a Christian, and interested in the welfare of the church and community. Her mind dwelt naturally on religious subjects as many of her poems indicate.

She was a great lover of flowers, and even during her last illness, when racked with pain, she enjoyed looking at and handling, one by one, the flowers that were sent to her. She was especially fond of carnations, a fact not forgotten by her her illness and provided others for the funeral service.

Mrs. Small was a woman of great strength of character and breadth of vision. She had great will power, and seemed able to put aside the pains she suffered, while she talked interestingly or a broad range of subjects. She was well informed and highly endowed by nature, having not only the gift of song and skill as a musician, but a genius for expression and artistic talent as well. She has left many verses and short poems written for various occasions or for her own satisfaction, many of which show a deep religious spirit and marked poetic talent. hard worker all her life, but she found time amid busy cares to cultivate her taste for music and art and to make friends; and she seemed to take pleasure in keeping her hands employed to the very last. A large circle of friends far and near will be saddened by news of her death. Besides her sister, Mrs. Vergelia Smith, of Sedgwick, she leaves a husband, Henry A. Small, a daughter, Madella H., who has cared for her during her illness, and a son, Jay F. Small, of Haverhill, Mass.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. D. W. Kimball, Friday afterpastor, Rev. D. w. Kindani, Priday action noon, at the home. The O. E. S. attended in a body, and many other friends were present. Beautiful flowers were eloquent of the esteem and love in which she was held, and the family felt deeply their appreciation of the kindness of friends at this time, and during her illness. June 12.

Reports from all sections of the State show a decided trend in favor of the nomination of Col. Parkhurst for governor. In Hancock county, where Mr. Parkhurst refrained from making a personal campaign while the county had a candidate, his strength is growing daily. Hancock county owes much to Col. Parkhurst for his activity in past campaigns, and is not likely to forget.

Hughes and Fairbanks.

Charles E. Hughes, former governor of New York, and associate instice of the United supreme court. is the republican nominee for President, and Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, vice-president with Roosevelt in 1904, will again occupy the second place on the ticket.

Col. Roosevelt, nominated by the progressives for President, has paved the way for peace by a straightforward letter, declining to accept until the attitude of Mr. Hughes on the vital questions of the day is known. He suggests that his conditional refusal to run be placed in the hands of progressive national committee. "If Mr. Hughes' statements, when he makes them, shall satisfy the committee that it is for the interest of the country that he be elected, they can act accordingly and treat my refusal as definitely accepted."

And Mr. Hughes has spoken. Anent of his nomination was immediately followed by his resignation from the bench of the United States supreme court, and he then telegraphed to the republican national nomination, with a statement of his position which seems to answer all the questions asked during the past seks as to his attitude on the vital issues of the campaign. He fully endorses the platform adopted by the convention

His statement in full we publish elsewhere. It meets equally the demands of the republicans and of the progressives as expressed in their latforms, which are almost parallel, and insures a united republican party in the coming campaign.

Unices all political signs fail,
Hughes and Fairbanks will sweep the country next November.

When Rogues Fall Out.

"When Rogues Fall Out" is the title of a little comedy enacted by Ellsworth and foreign talent last week. An Elisworth man financed the production. Foreign talent appeared in the person of one calling self H. Felds, alleged salesman for a Chicago millinery house, stage name "David". Jack Leighton, dog constable and all-around handy man of Ellsworth, furnished the local talent. The plot opened in Ellsworth, when Mr. Felds, ecuring the confidence of Patrick Bresna han, at whose hotel he stopped while here got Mr. Bresnahan to endorse a check for 197 made payable to Mr. Felds by his Chicago house, and to identify him at the

Then the scene shifts to Bangor, where Mr. Felds, accompanied by Leighton, went by automobile, incidentally borrowing an overcoat belonging to Mr. Bresnahan. The scene discloses the interior of a clothing store. Mr. Felds is investing in a bran-new suit of clothes.

A pleasing bit of comedy is worked in here, in the dicker between the two principals, for Mr. Felds' old suit, for which Leighton finally agrees to pay $5. Mr. Felds retires to the dressing-room and puts on his new suit. Incidentally he eaves his wallet in the dressing-room with his old suit. He sends Leighton to the dressing-room to get the old suit. Mr. Leighton retires to the dressing room, and then retires from the scene altogether. So does the wallet, containing the forty odd dollars left after Mr. Felds had paid for the automobile and the new suit.

Then come a few "set ins", as the m ing-picture trade would have it. Mr. Felds telephones to Ellsworth to look out for Leighton. Elfsworth telephones to Bangor to look out for Felds, Mr. Bresnahan having discovered that the check for which he had become responsible was no

The dog constable has not yet returned to duty in Ellsworth. Mr. Felds sucseeded in cluding the Bangor police until Saturday, finding employment in Kane's livery stable. Then he helped himself to horse and carriage, and drove to Passadumkeng, where he left the horse with farmer, saying he would return for it later. The horse and carriage were re-

The Blood and the Brain

Among the many important physiological facts that should be as well known by people generally as they are by physicians, is the de-pendence of the brain for its proper action on be vitality of the blood. If this is impaired. the blood affords an imperfect stimulus brain, and, as a necessary consequence, lan-guor and inactivity of the entire nervous system follows, and a tendency to headache or faintness makes its appearance. It is probable that no other medicine ever produced has done more in the way of revital-iring the blood, making it pure and rich, than Hood's Sarsaparilla, which should certainly be given a trial where there is any reason to believe that the blood is defective in quality or deficient in quantity.—Advi. DOLLARDTOWN.

Gives Advice to People Run Down in the Spring, or After the Grip, Etc.

The best treatment I know of for those run down or exhausted by the grip or fevers, and cannot seem to ecover strength, is this: Get a bottle of that standard bloodpurifier. Hood's Sarsaparilla, and a box (200) Peptiron Pills; take one teaspoonful Hood's Sarsaparilla before meals, and two pills after meals

What are these medicines made of? Why, I understand the formula for Hood's Sarsaparilla is similar to prescriptions that come every day for blood impurities, scrofula, rheumatism and such complaints, for of course Hood's expert chemists know as much as any of the regular profes sion about ingredients indicated in such troubles. And Peptiron Pills are a new combination of pepsin, iron, manganese and other blood tonics and strength builders. Iron is great to increase red corpuscles in the blood and give it health power. Get the medicines from any druggist.

OBITUARY.

O. Calvin Havey died Tuesday, June 6, after an illness of only a few months, aged forty-three years. Mr. Havey was the son of the late William A. Havey, well known in the granite business in Franklin and Sullivan. Mr. Havey seemed naturally a strong man, and it was a shock to his friends when it became known that he was afflicted with Bright's disease He went to a hospital in Lewiston, and was treated by Dr. Haskell, but it was impossible to check the disease, and he failed rapidly.

He was of jovial disposition, and will be much missed around the village where he spent the most of his life. He was the last of the family. His mother and brother Henry died many years ago, his sister Cora, several years later, and his father about two years ago. He leaves a wife, Lucy Goss Havey.

Homer sang in a very impressive manner "Nearer My God to Thee" and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought". The bearers were Fred Donn. F. L. Swan and H. l. Fickett.
