For the return engagement at Hancock hall, Glady's Klark, supported by the Glady's Klark Co., next Monday evening, will present "The Rosary", a play that is commended by those of every religious faith, and pronounced by many as good as a sermon. The local surgical dressings committee makes another appeal to the ladies of Ellsworth to assist in this work which is so much needed. The committee is making surgical dressings. It is simple work—in one-half hour one may fold several dozens. The committee particularly hopes that all the young girls will come to help in the work. The room in the library is open at 2 p. m. each day except Monday. The committee acknowledges receipt of a check of $5 from Mrs. Fulton J. Redman. All contributions should be sent to H. H. Higgins, Union Trust Co. The membership fee of twenty-five cents may be paid to any member of the committee.

A tame cow moose, now being entertained by Jerome Floyd at his barn in Dillardtown, West Ellsworth, has received many visitors from all parts of the county the past few days. This moose has been wandering about the Dillardtown neighborhood for some time, coming to the barns with cattle, drinking with them from the watering-troughs, and allowing people to touch her. She apparently has lost all sense of fear, and acts as if she had at some time been wounded in the head, or was sick. Last Friday Mr. Floyd came across her in his meadow. He wanted his wife to see her, and drove her up to the road. While Mr. and Mrs. Floyd and a few neighbors were examining her at close quarters, the moose turned and walked into the barn. Mr. Floyd shut the doors upon her, and later notified the S. B. and game commissioners through Game Warden Sheas.

Butler brought thirty-seven entries, while many others were not far behind.

Chief among the fruit exhibitors were, F. A. DeMeyer, James Lowrie, Fred Abbott, Stella Butler, Jesse Abbott, L. D. Butler, Leona Wilbur, W. F. Bunker, W. W. Jordan, N. F. Bunker, Percy Woodworth and Charles Wilbur.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the sister now left alone, after a close companionship of so many years. The funeral will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Pauline Frederick, one of the foremost emotional artists of the American stage, who achieved a great personal triumph in her initial motion picture characterization, in the Famous Players Film Company's superb photo-play, "The Eternal City," returns to the screen in an everpowerfully dramatic photo-production of "Sold," the great drama of woman's devotion; adapted from the Russian of George Erastov. As the wife of the poor artist, who poses for his successful rival in order to obtain funds for her husband, who detects and misjudges her, Miss Frederick is completely overwhelming in the intensity and strength of her portrayal. This stirring five-part photoplay will make an indelible impression on the minds of all who witness it.—Advt.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson III.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 15, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxv. 1-12. Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, Matt. x. 25—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The successor to Felix, Porcius Festus, seems to have been in some respects like minded to Felix, for he, too, was willing to do the Jews a pleasure...

When we consider such words as these, "Thou shalt be hid from the scourge of the tongue..." "Thou shalt keep them secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues..."

We must bear in mind that just because we are His we have the world, the flesh and the devil to contend with.

King Agrippa and Bernice having come to Caesarea to salute Festus, the whole matter was laid before them.

It is written of such in Isa. xxix. 13. "This people draw near me with their mouth and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their heart far from me..."

There is one remedy that for many years has given relief from cough, cold, croup and whooping cough...

Mutual Benefit Column. EDITED BY "AUNT MARGE". Its Motto: "Helpful and Hopeful." The purpose of this column are quoted in the title and motto...

DISCOVERING A FRIEND. By Sigur A. Gausel. If sorrow never happened and trouble never came, the only thing you'd know about your neighbor is his name...

Dear M. B. Friends: There are many who can subscribe to the truth of the above. Many have realized it in their lives.

Dear Aunt Marge and M. B. Friends: For several weeks I have expected to send a line to the column...

That was a great reunion, not only in numbers but from every point of view. Of course there were faces we missed from their constant attendance in the past...

I have a fudge cake recipe that I will enclose for the column, as it isn't quite like those that have been in of late.

Welcome indeed is your letter and more helpful this week than you can understand. You shall take your place at the head of the class for being the first to report after attending this year's reunion.

Used It Eleven Years. There is one remedy that for many years has given relief from cough, cold, croup and whooping cough...

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use."

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house."

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities."

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It will be confidential.

the other will be found with the recipe; it has been tried with success by us both. OUR SUMMER. We've had our summer and its dreams; The light now fades across the land...

RECIPES. FUDGE CAKE—One-half cup sugar, 1/2 cup coffee, 1/2 cup cocoa. Mix all together and put on stove and boil three minutes...

"WONDERFUL" MOLASSES CAKE—One cup of molasses, 1/2 cup of cold water, 1/2 cup of lard, 2 tablespoons of vinegar...

DELICIOUS WHEN SERVED HOT, WITH WHIPPED CREAM.—Mrs. S. E. AUNT MARGE. Miss Eva Elder, who has spent the summer here, has gone to Pasadena, Cal., to spend the winter with friends.

GREEN LAKE. Miss Hazel Butler is visiting in Milford. Arthur Hutchings, who has been employed on the railroad section, has moved to Ellsworth.

Willing to Be an Ex-Convict. An attorney and a judge were discussing the apparent lack of ambition on the part of some of the young men of today.

A Famous Cemetery. Greenwood cemetery in Brooklyn, noted the world over for its beauty and the magnificence of its monuments, shafts and mausoleums...

Defining a Crank. "What's your idea of a crank?" "A crank is a fellow who insists on trying to convince me instead of letting me convince him."

Stop the First Cold. A cold does not get well of itself. The process of wearing out a cold wears you out, and your cough becomes serious if neglected.

Among the Strangers. This column is devoted to the Grange, especially to the granges of Hancock county. The column is open to all grangers for the discussion of topics of general interest...

Coming in Noon. A strange way of curing is that of the Koreans. His ordinary wear word is "cosanna," or "you brute." But the Korean considers himself especially abusive when he calls a person his child or grandchild. When he wants to call somebody down the Korean demands body. "Are you not my child? And the angry retort is: 'What! I your child? You are my grandchild.' Then the first goes a step further and cries, 'You are a grandchild of my grandchild!' to which the rejoinder is: 'You conceded fellow! Have you forgotten that you are a grandchild of a grandchild of my grandchild?' When their vituperation reaches its climax the people of Chosen at last come to the point of exclaiming, 'You grandchild of a dog!'

Feathered Adversers. A most remarkable superstition of the Kenyahs of Borneo is the consultation of birds. If, for example, a Kenyah has to undertake a long journey he will not risk it without having first consulted the "fakka," a kind of hawk. If the hawk flies with its wings spread out to the right side it is a good sign, but if it goes to the left or flaps its wings, then the journey is not commenced. Next day another trial is made until the hawk gives the sign wanted. Thus the continuation of the journey depends on the flight of the birds.

Riddles. What is it gives a cold, cures a cold and pays the doctor bill? A draft. What is the difference between an accepted and a rejected lover? One misses his misses; the other misses his kisses.

What is the most modest piece of jewelry? A watch, because it always keeps its hands on its face and runs down its own works.

Her Indorsement. "I heard that you are to marry Tommy." "Yes; he asked me last evening." "Let me congratulate you. Tommy is all right; he is one of the nicest fellows to whom I have ever been engaged."—Pack.

Matrimonial Affairs. He—Woman have no real intelligence. They show the worst judgment in the most important matters. She—That's perfectly true, but I think you ought to be the last person to call it to my attention.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Suffering becomes beautiful when one bears great calamities with cheerfulness, not through insensibility but through greatness of mind.—Aristotle.

In the Dead of Night

In the dead of night, when pain was severe and doctors distant, when some loved one seemed to be threatened with serious consequences, have you ever caught up, with a sob of thankfulness, a bottle of your favorite family remedy? We don't know what you consider your favorite family remedy, but if you had a confidence inspired by the knowledge that it had been successfully serving humanity for more than 100 years, then it must be Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. And you were doubly fortified, for you had, in Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, a preparation not only powerful and penetrating in cases of bad sprains, strains, muscular rheumatism, any ache, pain or soreness, but also one you could safely and unobtrusively administer inwardly for sore throats, coughs, colds, cramps, colic, and all the ailments which necessarily have their wonderful healing and soothing qualities go direct to the seat of an internal trouble. PROMINENT MUSICIAN'S WIFE TOOK TANLAC—"GOOD RESULTS"

Mr. D. D. Carver, of 138 Forest avenue, Bangor, says a few days ago to the Tanlac nurse, "My wife was in a dreadful run down condition and had no appetite, she was so nervous that she could not sleep, and was in need of a good systematic tonic. Tanlac is certainly a wonderful tonic. It takes right hold of those general debilitated folks and puts new life into them. Mrs. Carver now sleeps well, her appetite is fine and in every way is very much improved. Over two thousand people in Bangor and vicinity are now using Tanlac, said Mr. Getter, the Tanlac Man to-day in showing a portfolio of testimonials, he has received from grateful people who have used this remarkable Tonic. Tanlac gets rid of the poison of the body, said Getter. It arouses the circulation through natural existing conditions. It gets the stomach active, this makes one have rich blood and this means health. If you are one of those who seem half dead, with no ambition, Tanlac puts a different meaning in life. It makes you feel good by assisting nature. E. G. Moore has exclusive sale in Ellsworth—Advt.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES"?

The Simple Juices Of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes Transformed Into A Medicine Which Relieves All Diseases Of Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Skin.

The value of fruit juices, in preventing and relieving disease, has been recognized for centuries.

The objections to using fresh fruit as a cure for disease are, 1st. the high cost of fruit, particularly in winter; 2nd, the difficulty of eating enough fruit to do any permanent good. Some years ago, however, a prominent English physician in Ottawa, Canada, began a series of experiments in an effort to find some practical and economical way to utilize the valuable medicinal properties of fruit.

He found that the juice is the curative part of fruit. Now, fruit juice consists of 91 parts water and 9 parts solid matter. Of the solid matter found in the juice, 1 part is an exceedingly bitter substance which is the active or medicinal agent. After exhaustive tests, this physician learned that apples, oranges, figs and prunes give the best results—that these four fruits contain all the medicinal principles of all other fruits, and contain a higher percentage of this bitter principle. He combined these four fruit juices and then forced an additional atom of the bitter substance (which he secured from the orange peel) into the juices in such a way that a new substance was formed. This new substance was many times more active medicinally than the original bitter substance.

It is this new compound—combined with tonics and antiseptics and made into tablets—that is everywhere known as "FRUIT-A-TIVES". It is the only medicine in the world made from fruit juices, and has proved its value in thousands and thousands of cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Chronic Headaches, and troubles arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is now made in the United States and may be had at druggists or general stores at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ogdensburg, New York.

The supplement to the bill gives an additional $10,000,000 to be expended at the rate of $1,000,000 a year on roads within or adjacent to federal forest reserves, the money to be repaid ultimately out of the sale of timber and from other sources of revenue. The western states were particularly interested in this phase of the question and successfully contended that the national government should protect and develop its own property.

BIRT ROADS PROBLEM.

Proper Drainage and Systematic Maintenance Are Essential.

All through the central states there seems to be at present an unexpected interest in earth roads, and there is a widespread desire to have an authoritative opinion on the field for which such roads are adapted. It is a subject on which many experienced road engineers are not willing to make any statements for fear of being misunderstood or misquoted, but the road engineer of the Illinois state highway department has recently made some comments that answer a part of this oft repeated question as follows: "The earth road cannot by any system of maintenance be kept up throughout the entire year to the usual standard of the other types. The use of the road in a wet and softened condition is what causes the trouble. Under the conditions where the earth road is a suitable type its total cost for construction and maintenance is less than that of any other type. In dry weather and when it is not too dusty the properly constructed and maintained earth road is by far more pleasant and more satisfactory to travel upon than any other road. With neglected maintenance, however, no other type of road can go to pieces and become impassable so quickly as an earth road, nor, on the other hand, can any other type be brought to a satisfactory condition for travel so quickly and so cheaply after having been impassable. From these peculiar features it will be noted that practically the entire problem with earth roads is their proper drainage and systematic maintenance. The opportunity for bettering our road conditions by properly improving the earth roads is almost beyond our imagination."

THE GOOD ROADS BILL.

Authorizes Expenditure by Government of $85,000,000 in Five Years.

The good roads bill recently passed by congress and signed by President Wilson authorizes the expenditure of $85,000,000 in five years by the federal government. This marks the beginning of active co-operation between the national government and the states in highway improvements in a country wide program.

The condition attached to the expenditure of the government appropriation is that the states shall expend an amount similar to that apportioned to them for the indicated improvement.

The bill provides that in addition to the money to be spent in co-operation with the states $10,000,000 shall be provided for roads in federal forest reserves, to be spent at the rate of $1,000,000 a year for ten years.

The co-operative plan is said to have sprung from the combined energies of the American Association of State Highway Officials and the American Automobile association. The bill is an amalgamation of what was known as the Shackelford bill of the house and the Bankhead bill of the senate.

The total federal distribution for the five years among the forty-eight states is: Alabama, $1,008,000; Arizona, $1,076,250; Arkansas, $272,750; California, $2,330,250; Colorado, $1,302,000; Connecticut, $478,500; Delaware, $124,500; Florida, $840,750; Georgia, $2,079,750; Idaho, $941,250; Illinois, $3,432,000; Indiana, $2,109,000; Iowa, $2,260,500; Kansas, $2,231,250; Kentucky, $1,500,000; Louisiana, $1,019,250; Maine, $731,250; Maryland, $682,250; Massachusetts, $1,140,000; Michigan, $2,259,750; Minnesota, $2,190,750; Mississippi, $1,371,000; Missouri, $2,033,250; Montana, $1,512,750; Nebraska, $1,690,500; Nevada, $1,004,250; New Hampshire, $324,750; New Jersey, $912,000; New Mexico, $1,235,250; New York, $3,877,500; North Carolina, $1,746,000; North Dakota, $1,176,000; Ohio, $2,905,500; Oklahoma, $1,773,750; Oregon, $1,221,750; Pennsylvania, $3,585,750; Rhode Island, $180,750; South Carolina, $1,111,500; South Dakota, $1,256,250; Tennessee, $1,773,750; Texas, $4,515,750; Utah, $869,250; Vermont, $354,000; Virginia, $1,530,000; Washington, $1,098,750; West Virginia, $825,750; Wisconsin, $1,883,000; Wyoming, $956,250.

Howard E. Stevens, formerly of Bluehill, has been appointed chief engineer of the Northern Pacific railroad, with headquarters at St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Stevens is the son of First Selectman A. T. Stevens. He was graduated from Bluehill academy in 1893, and from the University of Maine with honors in 1897. He worked for a time as draughtsman in Boston and Detroit, accepting a position with the Northern Pacific in 1900. Since that time his promotion has been rapid. He has successfully filled the positions of constructing engineer, inspector and bridge engineer. His promotion to bridge engineer about six years ago was won by a daring piece of work in constructing a temporary bridge across a flooded river in the state of Washington. Mr. Stevens was recovering at the time from an operation for appendicitis performed two weeks before, but he took personal charge of the work, and in spite of the tremendous difficulties, finished the bridge in record time.

Miss Ida Bostelmann, who is spending the winter at "Bettel's", Bluehill village, will accept a limited number of violin and piano pupils.—Advt.

A resolution favoring the raising of future State highway money by a direct mill tax, was adopted at the State-wide good roads meeting in Augusta last week.

An enormous increase in the total expenditures for road building and bridge construction has marked the development of highway work in the United States during the past twelve years. Statistics compiled by the public roads office show that the expenditures for this work increased from approximately $80,000,000 a year in 1904 to about $292,000,000 in 1915.

The activity of German war submarines on this side of the Atlantic has caused consternation among shippers, and may reopen the whole submarine controversy between this country and Germany. One submarine pat in at Newport, R. I., Saturday, and after remaining but a few hours, put to sea again. Sunday eight or nine ships were sunk by submarines off Nantucket island. So long as the submarines operate outside the three-mile limit, there is no technical difference between their carrying on their warfare on this side of the ocean or on the other side. Their proximity to our shores, however, brings the nature of this submarine warfare on merchant and passenger ships close home to us, and increases the possibility of our becoming involved. Already England has raised the question of the treatment of the submarines visiting American ports, claiming that the nature of the submarine should deprive it of the privileges accorded to other warships.

Evening Skies in Autumn.

Who knows but the stars in Night's royal crown That sprinkle the air with a golden spray. Are spiritual eyes of the glory come down Through the tangled web of the Milky Way! Maybe in that realm of the voiceless zone Of silence profound and eternal repose, Those stars are fabled of nurallings now down From beethstones, and cradles of love: Who knows! It may be Utopia where viewless babes are To give hungry hearts that are waiting below. Sweet cherubim's bidding in regions afar, But only in visions we're suffered to know. O, the home and its hearth and its warm ruddy blaze, And the music, and books, and the discarded toys, These speak unto us of the dear vanished days. And draps with their shadow the long absent joys. We see them in dreams that fade and are gone, And we wake to the truth that stings like a rod: For they sleep through the years awaiting the dawn, In a low curtained home that is builded of sod. It's only in Dreamland our spirits rejoice To glimpse the loved faces beyond the dead years: The winds fall asleep in the charm of their voice, And clouds in old landmarks are vapors of tears. —A. S. Cowden. Ogden, Utah, September 25, 1916.

THE WIND FROM MAINE.

A wind that's from the rocks and sea and scented by the pine Sweeps through the sycamores today and where acacias line The tanks of giant sentinels that guard the western slopes, The balsam of this briny breeze brings heavy hearts new hopes

The mountains and the rivers cry the message that is Maine's To men whose pride was shattered, and their desperation wanes, Again their hearts are raised to look the future in the face A For Maine has been the clarion that's heartening a race

'Twas shame that sunk the souls of us to depths we never knew In days our flag was honored in the harbor where it flew, When nations paid us homage, for they knew our hands were white, Ere blood of our own countrymen had stained them like a blight

And now again our songs we sing of deeds that we must do To make the dream that passed away come marvellously true, For the sturdy souls that breathe the pine have brought to life again The faith that fills a nation's heart that feels the wind from Maine. EDWARD S. VAN ZILE -New York Sun, Sept. 12

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

If you had two dollars to invest would you trust it to the business sagacity of Josephus Daniels? Then, why let him handle the millions that are to be spent on the new navy?

Judging by the signs of War Department activity the Administration is cunningly arranging to bring the militiamen home just in time to enable them to vote for Mr. Hughes.

A train of thought on a one-track mind has to be composed of shuttle cars.

Three years ago Woodrow Wilson was explaining that hard times were psychological, but he isn't trying to squirm out of responsibility for the present prosperity.

The disaster to the Memphis caused very little excitement, Americans being used nowadays to seeing the navy on the rocks.

This Democratic Congress has passed into history—profane history.

President Wilson's speech of acceptance could have been phrased even more succinctly in the graphic words of Boss Tweed, "What are you going to do about it?"

We see by the interviews with the Mexican commissioners that the campaign slogan this year in the Sonora bandit belt is "Thank God for Woodrow Wilson."

Mr. Wilson's eulogy of Lincoln at Hodgenville was more literary but less sincere than the one he pronounced upon himself at Shadow Lawn.

The new half dollars will have an olive branch on one side and on the other an eagle, in full flight. Wilson money.

Motto of the McAdoo shipping law: "The sun never rises on the American flag."

A Democrat's idea of an ideal watchdog of the Treasury is a Pomeranian.

Mr. Wilson is now busily engaged working the other side of the suffrage street.

The campaign agents who two years ago were busily engaged thanking God for Woodrow Wilson seem to be taking their vacations just now.

A record wasn't the only thing the late Congress broke—there's the Federal Treasury.

Congress didn't want a Tariff Commission composed of $12,000 men, those $7,500 salaries being designed for $1,200 men.

President Wilson's scheme for commissions for everything has been adroitly planned to make three jobs for deserving Democrats grow where only one would grow before.

Vice-President Marshall says Mr. Hughes is an echo of the past. Quite true. Of statesmanship, of patriotic performance and safe legislation.

First fruits of the Adamson bill: The New York street car strike.

SINFUL MUTILATION OF FAMOUS SPEECH

We notice that the editor of the Democratic campaign book, made up of samples of "Woodrow Wilson's Wit and Wisdom," has tampered with one specimen speech by omitting the phrase "too proud to fight."

This smacks of lese majeste, to say the least. The only possible excuse for this sin of omission that we can think of is that there may also be times when a haughty handbook compiler is too proud to print.

HOME OF THE BRAVE. "This is the land of the free and the home of the brave, and if it ceases to be the home of the brave it will soon cease to be the land of the free."—Charles E. Hughes in a Speech Delivered at Plattsburgh, N. Y.

Telling Tariff Points

Let these telling points on tariff and protection in the speech by Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican candidate for President, delivered in the Salt Lake Tabernacle, be fixed permanently in your mind and memory during the remainder of the campaign:

We are desirous of having strong and sure foundations of our national greatness in this pursuit of competition among the nations which is sure to follow the cessation of the present struggle.

I propose that the Republican party as the national party, according to the constitution of the United States, within the national sphere, shall proceed wherever it is practicable to build up and foster and encourage American enterprise and open the doors wide for honest American achievement.

Then came the Underwood tariff bill itself. What was the result? Enterprise halted and there was a contraction of trade throughout the land, and America, instead of going ahead, stopped. That is what happened. Three hundred thousand were unemployed in the city of New York. There was not a city in this land where the jobless man anxious and able to work did not walk the street. They were fed by our charitable organizations, which were taxed to the utmost limit to provide, for those for whom American enterprise could no longer make provision. It was a sad spectacle. Americans have not forgotten it. It is not forgotten here or anywhere. It cannot be forgotten. It is too recent.

If you are going to have the basis for prosperity in this country, if you are going to protect the American wage scale, if you are going to have American enterprise able to meet the competition which will follow the ending of this war, you must have an honestly devised, wisely framed tariff law to protect American industry.

No; the Democratic party will not be saved by the European war. If you would know what our condition will be when that war ends think of what our condition was before that war began if you think these nations are so impoverished that they cannot again turn to work. Those millions of men now fighting are better able to work than ever before in their lives. * * * Their factories are there; their plants are there; they know themselves better than ever before. They are better disciplined, more alert, keener, stronger, better physically, than ever before in the main, and they are ready to turn great national energies into the pursuits of peace to pay their war bills, to produce up to the limit, to send their goods throughout the world.

Well-Expanded Lungs Not Enough. Pure blood is indispensable to the health and strength of the lungs. The delicate structure of these organs makes it necessary. When the blood is impure the lungs lose their tone, and even if they are permitted to expand freely, they have not the power fully to perform their important work. The fact is, there is nothing more necessary in our physical economy than pure blood—the kind of blood that Hood's Sarsaparilla makes. This medicine is the good old reliable family remedy for diseases of the blood, scrofula, rheumatism, catarrh, and low or run-down conditions of the system. At this time, when coughs and colds are so prevalent, Hood's Sarsaparilla is an invaluable tonic. Get it to-day, and begin to take it at once. Accept no substitute.—Advt.

"Busy" or "Don't Answer?" WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS THAT "THE LINE IS BUSY", it is because she has taken the time to test the line called for. It would be easier for her to complete the connection than to make such a report. If the operator did not test on every call, she might plug in on a busy line. Furthermore, "Busy" means that the line (not necessarily the telephone number you have called) is in use. The subscriber on a four-party line may not be talking, but one of the three other subscribers may be, making the entire line closed to traffic, or some one of the party subscribers may have put in a toll call and the line is being held awaiting its completion. Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters often congest party lines and give cause for protests from other subscribers in common. WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS "THEY DON'T ANSWER", she has done all within her means to compel an answer to her summons. That summoning power is the ringing of a bell, a mechanical signal which says, "Someone desires to speak to you." It remains with the person called to be prompt in responding. If a subscriber is slow in responding, the calling person may hang up the receiver, assuming that the former is inaccessible. Then there is an additional inconvenience to the called person when the operator reports, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it." The operator who makes that report usually is located at a different switchboard than the operator who rang the bell, and is unable to ascertain where the call originated.

UNE FEMME. PICTURES IN THE HOME.

Have Them Appropriate to the Rooms in Which They Are Hung.

Pictures add a great deal to the beauty of a home if they are selected with taste and care. They do not have to be expensive to be beautiful. Many delightful reproductions of the works of the old masters being on sale nowadays at prices within the reach of the most modest pocketbook.

Before putting up a picture on your wall be sure that it has some meaning and some beauty. Also it should be appropriate to the room it is to adorn. For instance, family photographs have no place on the walls of a living room. They are too intimate a decoration for a room in which strangers as well as friends are apt to be entertained. Reserve family photographs for the bedrooms or a "den."

Select for the living room landscapes, reproductions of still life, ideal heads and faces and good photographs of masterpieces. Such pictures are not only instructive to the family, but they may form an interesting topic of conversation to the friends who are entertained in this room.

The music room of course should be adorned with good photographs of eminent composers and other musicians, while the library calls aloud for portraits of literary and other public men.

Among the Alps

A Singular Story of the Writing of a Picture Play

By F. A. MITCHEL

I am considered a literary woman, though I am really nothing more than a literary hack. Real literary persons usually go hungry. I have from the first made a fair living and, considering that I am a woman, a very good living. The reason for this is that I do my part in supplying that perennial flow of reading matter that is quaffed by the masses, whose literary taste is negligible. The readers of classic literature compared with consumers of everyday literary fodder are as one to a million. That is the reason why I, a person devoid of genius, am enabled to make a living.

My natural instincts are all for art, but unfortunately art requires education, and when I was thrown on my own resources for a living I had not the means to obtain an education. There are no schools of literature. Any one who possesses pen, ink and paper may scribble, and the pecuniary return of scribbling is not an index of the nature of the production. So I took up my pen and went to work. What I wrote seemed to interest Tom, Dick and Harry, and since Tom, Dick and Harry were in the market for something to read I began at once to make a living.

While these preliminary remarks are perhaps essential to my story, there is in them but one statement that the story is intended to bring out. I have said that my natural leanings are toward art. I know a thing of beauty instinctively, and I can conceive a thing of beauty. But never having been educated to produce anything beautiful, I am unable to do so. One more element in which what I am going to tell is essential. I also have dramatic instinct.

Now for the story:

One winter, desiring to take a vacation during the following summer, I worked very hard in order to produce the funds for a trip abroad. The result was that my nerves broke down under the strain. I took my vacation, but instead of traveling for enjoyment I traveled for my health. Furthermore, instead of improving I grew worse. Feeling that I needed quiet, I went to Interlaken, in Switzerland, hired a room with windows opening on several of the most magnificent views I have ever beheld and settled down to recuperate.

I had met during the ocean voyage a young woman—Ellen Trowbridge—who was trying to make an artist of herself. She was on her way to Switzerland for the hot season, after which she was going down into Italy to commence her studies. Being two lonely American women, we agreed to travel in company and took a room in the same house at Interlaken.

A few days after our arrival there I collapsed. Something seemed to give way somewhere within me, and I lost consciousness. From that time for two months I remained in an abnormal condition. A part of the time I was in bed and a part sitting up in an easy chair by a window looking out on one of the many views spread before me. From my bed I looked out upon that beautiful mountain, the Jungfrau, as it is seen from Interlaken rising out of a valley made by two nearest mountains. For months before my departure from home I had been creating stories, and they were tumbling about in my brain in confusion. After a time they shaped themselves in dreams. While lying in my bed persons were enacting parts, it seemed, on their own account, for I had no power—at least I was conscious of none—to compel them to do my bidding.

And here let me say that in fiction or plays, which are a form of fiction, a great mistake is made in supposing that the author controls his characters. It is the characters that control the author. He can force them to do his bidding, but he will spoil his story. There are grooves for the emotions as well as other things, and let him drag a character out of its groove, and it will balk at once. Then the author must get him back where he belongs or he will stand out from the naturalness of the play like a sore thumb.

During this abnormal period of mine I was conscious of Ellen Trowbridge being in the room, sometimes ministering to my wants, sometimes sitting at a table writing, sometimes at her easel sketching. These were only glimpses of her, which would come and go as figures in a dream. They were real enough at times for me to have a dim consciousness of the fact that I was fortunate in having an American companion to take an interest in me.

In the early part of my illness I was trying to disentangle the many stories I had written during a long period and keep all sorts of persons from chasing one another through my brain. Later several of my stories that had been favorites with me seemed to drive out the rest, and I found myself linking them together. It was hard work, but better than having so many tumbling about my brain. Looking out on the Jungfrau, specks appeared on its side. Then these specks, as if drawn nearer by a telescope, became dim figures of certain characters prominent in these favorite stories. Gradually they became more distinct, and I was surprised to see that they were disposed to act like reasonable beings. And, more remarkable still, they began to work out a brand new story, composed of the several different stories that had become predominant in my brain.

This unity came from their presenting themselves to me and holding my attention till the end, then beginning at the commencement and going past again. And I noticed that every time they passed they were in a more reasonable shape than the time before. Then when they had ranged themselves and acted like human beings, when there were no more incoherencies to be got rid of, they faded away, and I saw no more of them, at least not together. Now and again one of them would bob up before me—but for no purpose that I could discover—and after looking at me inquiringly, as much as to say, "Do you want anything of me?" would disappear like the turning off of a light.

One day there came a change. I was conscious of everything about me. A clammy perspiration indicated that I was very weak. I did not see Ellen Trowbridge, but a young woman in Swiss costume was sitting near my bed making lace. I called to her, and rising quickly she came to me. I asked her what had been the matter with me.

Instead of replying she ran away and called the woman of whom I rented my room. As soon as she came I asked for my American traveling companion. I was informed that she had left Interlaken a week before. I asked where she had gone and was told that she had directed her letters forwarded to America. Had she left any word for me? None except that she had been suddenly called home.

I passed a period of convalescence in sight of the beautiful Jungfrau. I remembered perfectly the characters of the stories I had concocted during my illness, moving about on the mountain side, but the combination story they had enacted I could not call up. However, I made no effort at anything, either mental or physical. I simply lay waiting for strength. This came at last and since the hot season was over I went down to Spezia in Italy, where I imbued more strength from the sea air. From there I made a brief visit to Florence and Rome and sailed from Naples to America. By the time I reached port I was perfectly restored to health.

Soon after my return I became enamored of picture plays. These plays—I refer to those of dramatic and artistic merit—called out all of appreciation for the drama and art there was in me. One day I saw an announcement of a picture play, the scene of which was laid among the Alps. I went to see it.

What was my astonishment to see the same views I had looked upon from my windows at Interlaken. Then came a view of the Jungfrau just as it had appeared to me while ill. There were the dots on its side, and when a nearer view was given they became resolved into human beings.

Here and there was unfolded the play I had dreamed. The characters did not look like those in my dreams, but they did the things I had dreamed. The play was as it appeared to me just before it passed out of my mind—that is, in a finished condition.

To say that I was wonder stricken is to express feebly what I felt. I was frightened. Was I in my senses? Was not my illness returning to me? I was about to leave the theater when I was stopped by curiosity. I must see the play to the end.

When the end came I was near collapse. That night I did not sleep a wink. How had a play which had evolved itself in my brain been transferred through films to a screen in America? No solution occurred to me that had any element of probability in it. I went to see my physician and told him what had occurred. He looked at me scrutinizingly and, despite his efforts at concealment, anxiously after some thought he gave me his theory as to the cause of what I had told him. He said that there was nothing unusual in the character of my previously written stories chasing one another through my brain. A drug would do that. But when he came to account for the formation of a picture in my brain he was staggered. As to the transference of this play to a screen in America, he could only account for it on the ground that when I went to the theater I had a temporary relapse of my illness and saw what was not on the screen. He forbade me to do any literary work and to live as quietly as possible.

The true solution came in time. One day I was surprised by a call from Ellen Trowbridge. She came to make a confession. She told me that while I was lying ill at Interlaken I was much of the time delirious. While delirious I was constructing a picture play, going over and over it time and again. Presently it occurred to her to make note of what I was saying, and she then secured an outline for the play. Then it occurred to her to paint the scenes for the play, some of which were before her; others she selected.

She had been deeply impressed with the play and yielded to a temptation to do a dishonorable act. Being suddenly called home, she took her notes and pictures with her and sold them to a film company. The result was the play that I had seen on the screen. She handed me $500, which she had received for her stolen property.

The scientific moral of this story is that my dramatic and artistic proclivities came out while I was in delirium. But how I was enabled to construct a play under such abnormal physical conditions is a problem for more artificial minds than mine to solve.

JAPAN'S FIRST GLASS.
Used in Railway Cars, the Natives Put Their Heads Through It.

That observation car would have done credit to any railroad in the world. A Japanese fellow passenger, an official in the Japanese ministry of communications, was amused at our expressions of delight.

"Of course this is all very recent," he explained. "Forty-five years ago there was not a single car nor a single mile of track in the whole of Japan. Why," he laughed, "I can remember the first jerky little trains that were run on the first line to be opened—the one between Tokyo and Yokohama. Glass was a new thing to the Japanese, and there were a great many windows broken and heads bumped during those first few weeks. Passengers persisted in trying to put out their heads without first raising the windows. Finally the glass smashing became so expensive and there were so many complaints over bruised and cut heads that the company was forced to paint a white bar on every window to teach passengers the nature of glass."

Which story we could appreciate, for we had already noticed in the corner of a railroad yard a little old car with white bars painted across the windows. Some of these cars, our companions told us, are still used as third class conveyances on newly opened branch lines, for there are still parts of Japan where the people do not quite understand glass.—Christian Herald.

Freed from Worms

Familiar signs of worms in children are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional griping pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red joints sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever. If your child shows any of these symptoms, start using Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, at once.

PACKING A TRUNK.

Here's the Way to Manage the Job to Get the Best Results.

To pack a trunk first collect every thing that is to be put into it. Fold everything as flat as possible. Evening dresses and fancy waists may be put into thin pasteboard boxes, packed in tissue paper and tied with tapes so they won't slip around. These will go on the bottom of the trunk.

Save all the oblong pieces of paper that came home from the laundry in the men's shirts and fold the shirt waists around these. Use stockings and things that will not wrinkle for filling in the small spaces that will happen, even with the most careful packing. Put collars, belts and ribbons into small boxes.

Take folding hangers for dresses and coats. Short lengths of ribbon with a safety pin at one end and a brass ring at the other take up no room at all in a trunk and will be useful for hanging up skirts.

If you have no hat trunk and are obliged to pack your hats in the tray, fill the crowns with these paper, place them in position and fasten them there with wide bands of cotton tape held to the side of the trunk with thumb tacks.

Keep always in mind that the more tightly the things are packed in the fewer wrinkles you will find at the end of the journey, provided that you have used care in packing.—New York Sun

Was Good Once.

A certain well known composer now in the full vigor of his established reputation was at one time when he was comparatively unknown engaged in writing the music for a production fathered by two managers who knew exactly what they wanted. In addition to knowing next to nothing of the musical classics. After having burned much midnight oil and worked himself into a state of semicollapse in a vain endeavor to produce a finale which would please them the composer tore up page after page of rejected manuscript and in despair took to the theater an entire section of "Faust" to which he had somehow managed to fit the words assigned to him. He played it over, and one of the managers said quite unfeelingly, "Well, Gus, the others were pretty bad, but this one is the rottenest of them all." "So?" remarked the weary musician dryly. "It was considered good when Gounod wrote it!"

She Paid Cash.

She was notorious for wanting credit and the druggist was on his guard.

"You keep soda water?"

"Oh, yes."

"And can I have it charged?"

"To 120 pounds pressure," he answered urbanely.

And then she fished up the necessary coin.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Your Postmaster

is an important man in the community. He has many things to look after, and watches the time for the arrival and departure of the mails very carefully. If he didn't follow the regular schedule, things would be in a pretty fix. But he knows the value of regularity and takes good care to get the mails off on time. In matters of health the postmaster's example is a good one to follow. Keep your habits regular, and when the stomach, liver or bowels need help, be sure to take the right remedy in time. Neglect to do this makes matters worse and harder to remedy. Many postmasters in New England will tell you that "L. F." Atwood's Medicine is a fine remedy to keep the system in order. It is a great regulator, acting promptly in cases of indigestion, sick headache and constipation.

Their United Influence

A Story For Labor Day

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

John Bryan began to support himself at twelve years of age, doing odd chores in the Pollard Manufacturing company. Johnny was an ambitious boy and a bright boy as well. He knew that if he were ever to occupy one of the mahogany desks provided for the chiefs of departments he must get some education. He had not received much schooling as yet, for he had been needed at home, and now that he was at work during the day his opportunity for study was not considerable. However, he made the most of what there was. A couple of hours a day was all he could afford for the purpose, but he used those hours regularly.

Johnny was fond of machinery, which led him to study about machinery. This led him into fields with which machinery is connected. The metals and woods of which machinery is made naturally interested him, and he studied about these and the locations where they are found and the processes of obtaining them and fitting them for use.

The different steps by which Johnny during twenty years ascended to the position of general manager are not pertinent to this story. When he was twenty-five years old he was given one of the mahogany desks that he had regarded so long as the object of his ambition, but after he attained it he found the realization not what he had expected. Indeed, he used it very little, preferring the more active work of superintending the department he managed. But as time passed and he mounted higher in the scale of the company's officers he found it necessary to remain where he could be readily reached and could communicate with any and all who relied upon him for instructions.

Bryan, on being transferred from laborer to manager, was necessarily a changed man. Not that he ceased to sympathize with the workman, but he was now in a position to see both sides of the labor question. He was no longer grimy and greasy, but dressed like a man of fashion. Occasionally on meeting men beside whom he had worked in overalls he found they regarded him as one who had become a manager had become also something of a renegade. But this was doubtless due to his own sensitiveness. Any sensible laborer knows that there are different requirements for different duties, and with such Bryan had an advantage in having been one of them.

When John was placed in a position to take sides in labor contentions, knowing as he did both sides, he always placed himself in a judicial position determined upon what was practical, even if it did not coincide with the justice—and once his mind was made up he was immovable.

Bryan had not been general manager long before a demand was made for higher wages. There had been strikes while he was manager of a department, but at that time he had not been consulted by the officers as to the stand they should take. They had been forced to yield in every instance, and now that a new demand was made it was suggested by one of them that they try John as their representative and place the whole matter in his hands. He spent a week going over the accounts of the company to learn what it could afford to do and proved conclusively to himself that if this new demand were granted it would cut off the last remnant of funds for dividends, and the capital of the concern, being unproductive, would seek other means of investment. This would take away from the operatives the opportunity afforded to make a living. When the committee were referred to Bryan they were pleased, supposing that, having been one of them, he would grant their demands. What was their surprise to meet with a flat refusal. Upon their asking the cause of this refusal he declined to give it to them, stating that it would be prejudicial to the interests of the company to do so.

This unheard of action on the part of one who had worked as they were working produced a very bitter feeling. The operatives were at once called out and the works shut down.

Miss Adeline Withers, a wealthy maiden lady of thirty, who had interested herself in the welfare of laborers, called one morning to see Bryan in behalf of the strikers.

"Mr. Bryan," she said, "I have called to see if something cannot be done to end this dreadful strike. I have visited a number of your working people and find them in distress. It is not only the fathers of families who are suffering, but the wives and what is most pitiful, the children."

"The raise asked for in this case," was the reply, "cannot be granted at this time."

"Will you tell me why?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"When the representatives of the American people ask for information of the president on any given matter which he declines to give, he says that it would be incompatible with the welfare of the nation. My reply is much the same. To make known the financial condition of this company would be to give our competitors points of which they might take advantage to drive us out of business. Indeed, to grant what the men ask or give a reason why it is refused would kill the goose that lays their golden egg."

This was not satisfactory to Miss Withers, and she told Bryan so, at the same time reproaching him for refusing to help his former fellow laborers. Upon this he informed her that he had nothing further to say on the subject, which statement she could not but consider a dismissal.

The strike continued, the mills were idle, the operatives suffered. One day Mary Boyd, one of the hands, a girl of twenty, visited Bryan in his office and said to him:

"Mr. Bryan, some of the children are literally starving. If the strike is not soon ended there will be many deaths among them."

"If I grant the demands," replied the general manager, "I shall be doing the operatives an injury."

"Why so?"

"I have refused to answer that question to others, but I will answer it to you on your promise not to reveal it."

"I promise."

"Very well. We are barely making the dividends, and so far as we can look ahead will run behind on the next season's manufacture, and there will be no dividends at all. A trust has been formed to produce our goods, and their policy is to shut down half of the mills they can get into it. They are now scheming to get possession of these works, and as soon as they do will discharge every operative. Parties who hold the majority of the stock are debating whether to sell the control to the trust or hold on, hoping for a change in the market for our manufactures. If they sell the works you have all been getting will be lost to you. Is it not better to keep what you have than get a little more for a time then lose the whole?"

"I understand," said Mary, "but since you have sealed my lips what am I to do?"

"Only one thing is practicable, tell the leaders that you have seen me, that you have confidence I am doing the best for the operatives as well as for the company."

"They will not believe me. At any rate they will not withdraw their demands."

"They will believe anything you say to them, that is they will believe that you have confidence in me."

"If you could tell them what you have told me, they would withdraw their demands for the present."

"I could not tell them all, and those who have suffered this matter do not happen to have my confidence. They would consider what I told them a bluff and would not keep the secret."

Bryan went to the safe, opened it and took out a package of bank bills.

"Take this," he said, "and make it go as far as you can in relieving distress, but do not tell that it comes from me."

"I wish," said Mary, "that they knew you as well as I. They would do anything you ask."

"I believe they will do anything you ask."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because they know you to be a noble girl."

Whether there was something in the tone of voice in which these words were spoken or the look that accompanied them a slight color came to Mary's cheek. She was a child when Bryan was passing from the workman's bench to the mahogany desk, but she had known him in both spheres and he had been her idol. Without another word she left him, resolved to make a strong effort to utilize her personal influence over the men to induce them to withdraw, for a time at least, demands that would deprive them of ability to make a living through the Pollard Manufacturing company.

She began at once, ignoring the leaders of the strike, making her appeal to certain conservative persons whom she knew to be friendly to the general superintendent. She told them that he had convinced her that in refusing their demands he was acting in their best interest. She begged them to call off the strike and wait for a more favorable opportunity to make another demand, assuring them that when it was best he would favor them.

The persons to whom she appealed talked with others, and they with others. Without their leaders' sanction they called a meeting, and Mary addressed them, repeating to the many what she had said to the few. When she had finished there was a protracted talk, the operatives gathering in groups and debating whether, first, to trust the speaker, and, second, the man she represented. Before the final adjournment the meeting was called to order and a resolution was offered:

Whereas, we have implicit trust in our former fellow workman, John Bryan, and our companion, Mary Boyd, therefore resolved that we who constitute this meeting return to work at once.

More than half the operatives of the company were present, and seven-eighths of them voted to sustain the resolution. It was carried, and the meeting adjourned with cheers for the best man and the best woman in the world. The action of these operatives influenced the rest, and the strike was ended.

That was the last strike of the employees of the Pollard Manufacturing company. One year from that time John Bryan increased his influence with them by marrying Mary Boyd, and on the day of the wedding a request for the readjustment of all wages was granted, resulting in a far more satisfactory arrangement for both sides than had ever existed before.

John Bryan is now president of the company.

Do You Like to Get Tired In the Kitchen?

The way some women hang on to their old-fashioned kitchens one would think they liked to wear themselves out doing the work. The miles of steps that they take getting three meals a day; the unnecessary trips to pantry, cellar and storeroom is drudgery that makes young women quickly grow old.

A million women in America won't submit to such slavery. They bought a Hoosier and do the same work easily and in half the time.

This Hoosier Cabinet Cuts Work in Half

The Vital Part of Your Cabinet

The picture above shows how the scientific arrangement of the Hoosier makes it a real helper. Storage space is above and below. There is plenty of unhampered room above and around the aluminum (or porcelain) work-table.

There are no useless little partitions to chop up the space and leave no room for work. Your cabinet must have big table space to work on. The Hoosier gives it.

Come and see these six exclusive Hoosier features:

- 1-The all-metal glass front four bis.
- 2-The gear-driven shaker flour sifter which makes flour light and fluffy.
- 3-Scientific arrangement—articles needed most frequently easiest reached.
- 4-Revolving caster (shown in the center of illustration).
- 5-The ingenious, big-capacity sugar bin—holds more than twice as much as most other bins.
- 6-Finally, the doors roll back at the sides of the cabinet, entirely out of the way.

Prices and Terms

There are over 1,000,000 Hoosier Cabinets in use. Enormous factory output makes our low prices, which now range from $13.50 to $35, possible.

Have the Hoosier delivered at once by paying only $1.00! You may make payments at the rate of $1.00 per week, without extra cost or interest. And regardless of the room in your kitchen, there's a special Hoosier model to fit, at a price you can easily afford.

Every Woman Has a Right to a Hoosier

When you can put a Hoosier in your kitchen today for such a small sum, don't you think it is false economy to save these few dollars at the expense of your own strength and health?

At Least Come and See the Hoosier

Have a demonstration of its exclusive work-saving features. No obligation incurred if you don't want to buy now. But at least learn why over a million women can't do without a Hoosier.

OBITUARY.
 In the death of Emma A., wife of Horatio Hardison, which occurred at 3 a. m. Saturday, at the age of seventy-two years, six months, her family lost a loving wife and mother, and the community a woman than whom none was held in greater respect in the wide circle of her acquaintance. An invalid for more than thirty-five years, and much of the time confined to the house, she kept in touch with affairs as best she was with larger opportunities. She was a great reader of the best literature, and was always sending helpful reading to those around her. Many readers of THE AMERICAN knew her as "Aunt Emma", of the Mutual Benefit column. Through long years of illness, no one ever heard her murmur, and her constant cheerfulness was helpful to all with whom she came in contact. She was a devoted Christian, a member of the Baptist church, and her daily life was an inspiration to those around her. A beautiful character was hers, content to live and do for others as long as her failing strength would permit.

 Services were held at the Union church conducted by Rev. W. H. Dunham, assisted by Miss Koch. Interment was at Bay View cemetery.
