The federal inspector who has been making a thorough inspection of Maine for the white pine blister rust, reports that the disease has gained a wide foothold in the State, the infection spreading from the New Hampshire line to New Brunswick, and as far north as Millinocket, with little doubt that it extends still farther north in the pine forests, and possibly to Canada. Of Hancock county, he says in his report: “The territory around Ellsworth was found to be infected as well as the island of Mount Desert, especially in the vicinity of Bar Harbor.”

The many Ellsworth friends of Rev. P. A. A. Killam and family, of Oakland, will be pleased to know that the injuries of the youngest son, Oliver, though serious, are not so bad as reported here last week. Mr. Killam writes under date of yesterday that the boy has improved beyond what they at one time dared hope. Oliver struck on the point of his chin, fracturing the jaw at that point and putting the lower teeth out of alignment. There is also trouble on the left side of the jaw, and it is expected to have an X-ray examination made in Waterville to-day to determine the nature of this injury. A severe wound in his right leg, where the projectile, top iron just back of the forward seat of the automobile tore an ugly gash to the bone, is healing nicely.

Sudden Death in Camp.

Ansel Leland, a prominent citizen of Hull's Cove, died suddenly last Thursday morning in the camp of E. F. Robinson, Jr., at Branch pond, which he was occupying with a party of relatives and friends. The party reached camp Tuesday.

Mr. Leland, who was nearly seventy-seven years of age, had been subject to severe heart attacks for some time. Last Wednesday evening he complained of not feeling well, and his daughter, Miss Clara E. Leland, who was in the party, attended him, and he soon felt relief, and retired, apparently comfortable. In the morning he was found dead. Dr. Lewis Hodgkins, medical examiner, who was summoned, found death due to natural causes.

Capt. Leland had been a resident of Eden all his life. For many years he followed the sea, retiring about fifteen years ago. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Henry Woodworth and Miss Clara E. Leland, both of Bar Harbor, a sister, Mrs. Millard A. Hamor, of Bar Harbor, and a brother, George Leland, of California.

Investigating Burglaries.

There have been no new developments in connection with the recent burglaries in Hancock county, reported in THE AMERICAN last week. A detective is now at work on the Cranberry Isles case.

No trace has been found of the motor boat party of four, missing from Bar Harbor since Saturday, Oct. 25. Hope of finding them alive has been given up. It is believed the boat went to the bottom, and that the bodies have been carried to sea.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 5, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxvii, 38, to xxviii, 10—Memory Verses, 42-44. Golden Text, Ps. xxxiv, 22—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Part of Paul's message was that the ship would be lost and that they would be cast upon an island (xxvii, 22, 26). And about midnight of the fourteenth night of the storm the shipmen deemed that they were nearing some land and, taking soundings, found it even so; therefore they cast out four anchors and longed for daylight. It was while they were thus anchored that Paul persuaded them to take some food (xxvii, 27-38). When it was day they saw a creek with a shore where they might possibly run the ship aground; so, cutting off the anchors and heaving the mainmast, they made for the shore; the fore part of the ship struck fast, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves, yet all got safely ashore, either by swimming or on broken pieces of the ship (xxvii, 30-44), as God had told Paul by the angel.

Notice in verses 30, 31, 42, 43 how some might have hindered the purpose of God to save them all. Concerning the great salvation, God has provided it for all and will have all to be saved and is not willing that any should perish (I Tim. ii, 4; Tit. ii, 11, margin; II Pet. iii, 9), but if any will not accept God's way they must perish, not because He wills it, but because they decide against Him, or, as He said, "Ye will not come unto me." "I would ye would not." "Israel would none of me" (John v, 40; Matt. xxiii, 37; Ps. lxxxi, 11). When they reached the land they found that they were on the island which we now call Malta, and they received much kindness from the people, who because of the rain and cold kindled a fire and welcomed them. They are called barbarous people, but many who are so called have often shown more kindness than those called Christian. It is deeds that tell, not words or names.

A few years ago the world was shocked by the atrocities of the Boxers in China, but now the civilized nations of Europe are far ahead of all barbarians in monstrous and indescribable atrocities, and the end is not yet (June, 1915). The words in xxvii, 30, "When it was day" and the change from being exceedingly tossed on the sea by a great tempest to being aground on the land, make us think of one night when, until the morning watch, the disciples toiled in a boat against a contrary wind, and He saw them, yet not till the fourth watch did He come walking on the sea, but when they received Him into their boat they were immediately at the land (John vi, 15-21). We are certainly in the worst storm our poor earth ever saw, and men's hearts are falling them for fear, because of the distress of nations with perplexity, but the day will dawn, a morning without clouds, and we will not be shipwrecked, but caught up to meet Him in the air, whose we are and whom we serve (Luke xxi, 25, 26; Rom. xiii, 12; II Sam. xxiii, 4; I Thess. iv, 16, 17). Our God shall come and shall not keep silence; though He tarry we will wait for Him (Ps. i, 3; Heb. x, 36, 37).

Paul gathered sticks to help make the fire burn, then came the viper, and again he is misjudged and thought to be a murderer, but when he shook off the beast and felt no harm and did not fall down dead they changed their minds and said he was a god (xxviii, 3-6), just like the people at Lystra (Acts xiv), but in the reverse order, for they first worshiped him and then stoned him. Such is poor human nature that judges by appearances. But let us lay to heart some lessons, thinking just for a moment of Peter, who warmed himself where he should not have been and brought upon himself a lot of trouble, for the viper, the old serpent, took hold of him and would scarce let go. Consider your prayer meeting the place where you ought to go to get warmed up. Have you ever thrown on a stick or two to help make the fire burn? A word of praise or prayer to magnify Him. Then did the viper light on you as you overheard some one ridicule your testimony? Well, what did you do—fall down dead and never speak in meeting again, or did you shake off the beast and feel no harm?

God had another handful for Paul and his companions by making them welcome in the home of the chief man of the island, and then He had a reward for Paul by healing his father by the hands of Paul. That led to many coming to be healed, and more handfuls for Paul in the form of many honors, and when they departed they were loaded with all that they needed. During the three months that they remained on the island Paul would not fall to do as he always did and preach Jesus and the resurrection, and though it is not so recorded, we shall surely hear of it and its results in the kingdom. Not all the things that our Lord Himself said and did are recorded (John xx, 30, 31; xxi, 25), and if some of ours are not written on earth all His through us are written in heaven, and not even a cup of cold water given in His name shall lose its reward.

Many thanks to L. E. T., my one helper for the present week.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MADGE".

Its Motto: "Helpful and Hopeful."

The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and hopeful being for the common good. It is for the common use—a public servant, a purveyor of information and suggestion, a medium for the interchange of ideas. In this capacity it solicits communications, and its success depends largely on the support given it in this respect. Communications must be signed, but the name of writer will not be printed except by permission. Communications will be subject to approval or rejection by the editor of the column, but none will be rejected without good reason. Address all communications to THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me.

Dear M. B. Friends:

There are times and there are persons, that seem to think the change of seasons has occurred so many times, nothing new can be said or written relating to the contrasts in nature which these transitions from one season to another present. "Spring, gentle spring," is referred to as a joke, often-times; and is considered the time when budding genius aspires to poetic fancies on that subject; and it is supposed editors are nearly buried under reams of foolscap covered with stanzas giving spring once more a glorious welcome.

Autumn to some is but the falling leaf, and a signal to prepare for winter. Shall we follow the poetic, or, shall we look for new visions which may be discovered in the old paths we have trodden many times before?

Let me quote some thoughts from the Woman's World for November, 1916:

The end of the season comes again. It comes as it has always come in that marvelous, glorious attire—those wonderfully radiant yellow and golden hues, magenta, vermilion, silvery grays, greens and blues in many shades, in amazing varieties and richness.

"The melancholy days are come," so sings the poet, and we, even in the face of these beautiful things, are thoughtlessly inclined to join hands with the rest, and bow in silent, sober and perhaps sorrowful meditation. But it isn't quite the right spirit. It adds nothing to the pleasure of life and it takes away a good deal.

Autumn should be the happiest time of the whole year. It is the season of harvest. It is the period of compensation, when the earth yields up her bounty to the noblemen of the fields. The golden grains are hanging from the corncrib. The extra boards top the full granary. The hay is checked back to the very apex of the barn roof. The very air is tingling with frost. It is the season of all seasons in the year that should bolster up man's faith in his Creator, his country, his fellow creatures and himself, and be happy in so doing.

That is a sermonette worth reading and remembering. I commend it to our grange sisters and brothers as a brief but comprehensive selection for a reading some evening when you meet to discuss the many problems of life. I always look at your topics for discussion, and though not a "patron" myself, I realize the grange has accomplished and is accomplishing a wonderful work in its broadening influence, in its development of new methods and plans, and its interchange of thought and sociability.

Some of you may think I have wandered from our column over that line fence which separates the grange column from ours in THE AMERICAN, but even if I have stepped over the line I shall find some of the nieces and nephews of mine among the "patrons."

Times have changed so much in the world in many things, one may be almost safe in saying in everything, that it is quite natural for older persons to make comparisons. I'm not going to do that now to any extent, but just allude to the articles many of the magazines are presenting on persons who have accomplished something special.

Among others mentioned in Everybody's for November is William B. Walker, the man who coined the word "thermos". He began his adventurous career in a box-car shunted on a siding at what is now Cheyenne, Wyoming. At the age of twelve, he had taken notice of the fact that tourists were mightily interested in prairie-dogs. He got the use of two horses, a wagon, and half a dozen barrels. He employed the barrels to drown prairie-dogs out of their holes, nabbed them as they came out and sold them to Easterners.

Next he collected buffalo bones on the plains; he made quiet inquiries as to what "second-hand" bones could be used for. Presently Billy was shipping bones by the car-load to a New Jersey factory town. Then he became a cow-boy for three years, followed by running a little chain of general stores, but manufacturing appealed to him, and finally while visiting in Boston, nine years ago, he met a glass manufacturer who mentioned that he was thinking about a field or hunting flask that would retain the temperature of its contents for several days. "It's merely a little problem in physics," Herr Brugger added. This theory of physics proved sound; the bottle was a success. To-day, "thermos" goods are being carried in stock by more than a hundred thousand dealers in every civilized country.

Another former member of our M. B. circle has passed away, Mrs. Jennie Sowie Gray. Sometime before her marriage, over the signature of "Elma," she furnished many helpful thoughts and suggestions for the column, and in later years we heard from her occasionally. It was with sincere regret I read of her removal from her family and many friends.

Many thanks to L. E. T., my one helper for the present week.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice.—It will be confidential.

For more than forty years he was leader of the choir in the Unitarian church. In 1856 he married Miss Sarah Perkins, of Castine, who survives him, with one son, William H. ETTA YORK COULD NOT EAT WITHOUT SUFFERING PAINS; TELLS OF STOMACH REMEDY

"I suffered from indigestion for a long time. I tried many things in my endeavors to find relief but nothing seemed to do me much good until I took Tanlac," said Etta York, Upper Gloucester.

"I also had a great deal of trouble with my kidneys.

"Since taking Tanlac my digestion has improved so much that I can now eat any food without discomfort. My kidneys are much better, too, and I really marvel at the good it has done me."

The above example is another instance in which Tanlac scored an eminent success. Day after day people who have been troubled with indigestion, dizziness, impure blood, backache, headache, poor circulation, premature old age and other ills which arise from a general run-down condition of the system, continue to praise Tanlac for the relief it has given them, until now there is scarcely a person in this city who does not have some friend or relative grateful for this new tonic.

There is an old saying that "The proof of the pudding is in the tasting." When people try Tanlac they generally tell some other person about it. No greater evidence could be offered of Tanlac's merit.

Tanlac is now being introduced in Ellsworth at E. G. Moore's drug store.—Advt.

OUR DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

Its Father and First Secretary Was Robert R. Livingston.

Our first secretary for foreign affairs was Robert R. Livingston of New York, a statesman and jurist who ranked high among the giants who ruled the Continental congress and carried the country through the Revolution. He created the department in the face of difficulties which would have driven a less courageous man away from his work, for in the congress there was a general fear of government and a general disinclination to depute any governmental powers. So the executive departments which were created were kept in leading strings and were not allowed to go beyond reaching distance of congress, their mother and master.

The department of foreign affairs was created in 1781, and Livingston was put at the head of it. He resigned in June, 1783, and the department was suspended until John Jay was made the secretary in September, 1784. Since then it has had a continuous existence, having been expanded into the department of state in 1789.

Livingston had charge under congress of the conduct of the country's foreign affairs; he gave advice and information to congress; he was the medium for instructing our ministers abroad and of communicating with the French minister in this country; he had an office with assistants and clerks and a systematically organized executive department.

Let the editor of the Diplomatic Correspondence of the American Revolution, Dr. Francis Wharton, describe the father of the state department: "Livingston," he says, "though a much younger man than Franklin, possessed in his dispassionateness and his many-sidedness not a few of Franklin's characteristics. From his prior administrative experience as royalist recorder of New York he had at least some acquaintance with practical government in America; his thorough studies as scholar and jurist gave him a knowledge of administrative politics in other spheres. As secretary of foreign affairs in 1781-83 he did more than any one in the home government in shaping its foreign policy. But the system he indicated was * * * not the 'militia' system of unsophisticated impulse, but that which the law of nations had at the time sanctioned as the best mode of conducting international affairs. His course as secretary was based on the law of nations as thus understood by him."—Gallard Hunt in Harper's Magazine.

The GYPSY'S CHARM A Halloween Story By CLARISSA MACKIE

Molly Ditson looked out from the farmhouse on the hill, shading her eyes with her hand. She saw a wagon lumbering along the road loaded with camp equipage and human beings.

"I do believe they're gypsies," said Molly.

She watched them till they turned off the road and encamped on the edge of the old field woods.

A man's figure was walking in the road. Molly watched him, too, and saw him stop and look at the gypsies unloading their camp furniture. He spoke a few words to them and passed on.

"Joe Morton," remarked Molly to herself. "I wonder what he said to them."

Molly descended the hill and, entering the wood, saw a gypsy woman approaching her.

The slender, dark eyed nomad carried a shawl wrapped bundle that proved to contain a sickly infant. The young mother's sad face brightened when she saw Molly's friendly smile.

"Lady," she pleaded, "my little baby so sick. I can get no good milk. He will die!"

"No, no!" protested Molly. "No baby shall starve for milk in Oldfield woods! Sit down here on the leaves, and I will go home and get some milk for you."

"You are very kind, beautiful lady," murmured the weary mother as she sank to the ground and laid the whimpering infant on the soft leaves.

"Peoples say: 'Not give to gypsies, they steal enough!' But, lady, my peoples no steal!"

Molly smiled at the woman's head nodded once or twice and then settled into repose beside that of the little child.

"I mustn't tell Hannah that the milk is for a gypsy," she thought as she turned into a steep path that led directly up to her father's orchard.

"Hannah does detest the whole tribe, but that baby is starving for milk, and he shall have it. The very idea of refusing milk when Hannah feeds it to the pigs every night!"

In spite of her defiance of Hannah Mix, the elderly housekeeper, Molly was wary enough to approach the milk house by the back way. She opened the door and stepped within its cool shelter. A little stream trickled under the stone floor, and Hannah had her jars of milk and crocks of butter set in the water.

Molly lifted down a shining pail, filled it half full of rich morning's milk and escaped with her booty to the wood. As she approached the gypsy she noted that the woman was sitting up, wide awake, staring after the disappearing form of a broad shouldered man.

"Who was that?" asked Molly sharply.

"A prince," said the woman, displaying two silver half dollars in her brown palm.

"A prince!" mocked Molly. "That was only Joe Morton."

Fifteen minutes later Molly was bidding the gypsy woman and the smiling baby farewell. The woman carried the pail of milk, and her dark eyes were very grateful.

"Wait, lady," she called suddenly. And, setting the pail on the ground, she fumbled in her gay calico pocket and finally brought out a little box. From the box she extracted a gold ring, whose sole ornament was an extended hand.

"Wear this ring, lady," said the gypsy solemnly. "Some day will come a handsome stranger who wears another ring like it, and the hands on the two rings will fit together in a clasp. It is a charm that never fails to work. The handsome stranger will be your husband."

Molly slipped the ring on her engagement finger, kissed the baby and then lifted mirthful eyes to the earnest face of the woman.

"I thank you for the beautiful ring," said Molly sweetly. "But I am never going to marry. What then?"

"You cannot help it, wearing the charm," the woman nodded wisely.

Molly tucked a silver coin in the brown fist of the baby, and promising the woman that she would leave another pail of milk at the top of the path on the following morning, they parted.

At supper time the telephone rang, and a merry voice informed Molly Ditson that as this was All Halloween it was proposed that the young people of the neighborhood should descend on the Ditson house for the evening.

"Good!" cried Molly as she hung up the receiver. "Hannah Mix, have you got anything in the house to feed fifty hungry folks?"

a wonder Molly wouldn't take up with Joe Morton," she commented. "Molly ain't never going to get married, so she says," cackled Miss Susan Libby.

"Humph! If I was a girl I wouldn't be putting on any airs about being a man hater, not when there was such a fine young man as Joe. Good evening, Molly. We were just wondering when you were going to settle down and get married," said Mrs. Bunce as Molly passed before them.

"Molly wrinkled her pretty nose. "You know I am going to become a dear, delightful little spinster like Susan Libby," she protested, dropping a light kiss on the offended Susan's ear.

"Dear, delightful little sauce box!" snapped Susan as Molly darted away.

Joe Morton came along, humming a tune under his breath. He smiled in his large, friendly way upon the two good gossips.

Mrs. Bunce put out a freckled hand. "Joe," she said, with heavy humor, "Susan and I are wondering when you're going to get married and settle down in that new house you built last spring."

"So am I," was Joe's noncommittal reply, and his dazzling smile took the sting from his answer. He moved away, still smiling and his eyes dreamily fixed on Molly Ditson's white clad form in the distance.

"That's right; follow the butterfly!" muttered Mrs. Bunce darkly.

While the older people discussed neighborhood affairs youth was making merry in the rambling old place. In the kitchen some were bobbing for apples, while others tested fate with melted lead or roasting chestnuts.

Joe Morton followed the lead of his friends and entered into all the games with an amusing gravity. When his dark head emerged dripping with water from a tub, there was a great red apple held in his strong white teeth.

"Joe always gets what he goes after," said Oliver Bunce approvingly.

Joe Morton heard the words, frowned for an instant, then, shaking the drops from his head, smiled grimly.

"If that is the case," he muttered, "I might as well go and get what I want now. This Halloween tomfoolery isn't necessary."

He picked up a towel from the snowy pile Hannah Mix had provided, dried his hair and face and went out of the kitchen into the back porch.

He had noticed that Molly went out that way.

In the midst of the revelry Molly suddenly remembered the milk she had promised the gypsy.

"I shall be so sleepy in the morning I can never get up in time," she thought. "Suppose I slip out to the milk house now and take it to the path! I can be back in time for the mirror tricks. It's only a quarter to 12 now."

So Molly disappeared from the kitchen and tripped down the winding path that led through the kitchen garden to the milk house. The moon was shining brightly, and the pumpkins were glistening with frost. The little stream murmured its way among the stones.

The moon shone directly through the uncurtained window of the little stone floored room, and the glistening pails and pans gave back subdued reflections.

Molly reached for a pail and dislodged a great new milk pan. It fell into her outstretched hands, and its shining surface reflected her charming face.

At that very moment a church clock in the village struck the hour of midnight, the magic hour of the entire year for all believers in charms. And who is young that does not believe?

And in that witching instant a shadow stole across the milk pan mirror, and Molly noted with freezing blood that another face was reflected beside her own. A warm breath mingled with hers; there was the not unpleasant fragrance of tobacco; a pair of strong arms encircled her shoulders and two hands clasped hers so that the pan fell clattering to the ground.

Molly stared down at the hands. They were strong and brown and well shaped, and on the little finger of one hand gleamed a small gold ring on which was a tiny left hand—extended as if to clasp another.

And the other ring and tiny hand was on Molly's engagement finger!

What about the gypsy's prophecy and the gypsy's charm?

"Oh-h-h!" breathed Molly suddenly. "Molly, darling!" murmured Joe Morton's voice.

"Joe!" she cried faintly, and it is significant that she did not withdraw from his embrace. "Where did you get—that?"

She touched the little ring on his hand.

Then he saw the one on her finger and marveled.

"The gypsy woman gave it to me," he admitted. "I gave her a little silver for the kid, it looked so sick, and she—said my future wife would wear the mate to it—and is—she Molly?"

"I am sure she is, Joe!"

And Molly, the man hater, nodded shyly.

A delightful time was enjoyed by all who attended the hallowe'en social at Richardson hall Friday evening. This was given by the B and C classes. The party was announced at supper-time by a weird, ghostly figure. The students assembled nine minutes before eight, and began the ghost march. Sports and fortune-telling followed. Before leaving, the party gathered about the open fire and had refreshments of apples, popcorn, cake and marshmallows, while ghost stories were being told.

All the teachers except Miss E. Lucile Royal, of the household art department, and Miss Marion Russell, of the training school, attended the State teachers' convention in Portland last week. Harvey had charge of the department of the drawing, and Miss Mary S. Coombs, whose change to a new field of labor has been keenly regretted by her many friends here, gave a paper entitled "What Domestic Science Means to a Girl." The Ellsworth American

LOCAL AND POLITICAL JOURNAL PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON AT ELLSWORTH, MAINE. BY THE HANCOCK COUNTY PUBLISHING CO. W. H. TITUS, Editor and Manager.

This week's edition of The American is 2,350 copies.

Average per week for 1915, 2,500

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1916.

A Belfast high school girl, Miss Emma Slipp, has set a new mark for a member of boys' and girls' agricultural clubs, clearing $226 for her season's operation of four-fifths of an acre of land.

Dr. George A. Phillips, of Bar Harbor, who was defeated for representative in the Eden class, on the face of the returns, by twelve votes, has applied to the secretary of state for an inspection of the ballots.

Sinking of the British steamships Marinda and Rowanmore, with the loss of American lives, presents another delicate situation in the relations of this country and Germany. Preliminary reports indicate that the ships were sunk by German submarines, without warning, but until detailed information is forthcoming, no action will be taken by this country.

A Calais man has got himself into a peck of trouble. He went out one night last week hunting deer with a jack-light, which is against the law. He shot a man's horse, which is expensive. His excuse was that he thought it was a moose, which shows further lack of appreciation of the game laws, which forbid the shooting of moose. He has promised to settle for the horse. The fish and game commissioners promise to settle with him.

The law court has sustained the contention of Dr. Will S. Payson, of Castine, that he is still a member of the State board of dental examiners, and that Henry Gilman, of Portland, who was appointed by Governor Curtis, and who has been filling the office for two years, is not. If Dr. Payson has been a member of the board all this time, of course he is entitled to pay, while Dr. Gilman, who has been performing the duties of the office, and presumably drawing the salary, will expect someone to pay him. Who will pay for this blunder made by Governor Curtis in his desire to furnish places for deserving democrats?

Next Tuesday the presidential election will be held. Political forecasters have been somewhat at sea because of the realignment, one way and the other, through the elimination of the progressive party, and new issues occasioned by the European war and the Mexican tangles. Both democrats and republicans seem confident of victory, but New York state is generally conceded to Hughes, and it is hard to see how the democrats can win without it. Maine, of course, will be carried by the republicans. In this State, the presidential campaign practically closes with the State election, and we approach the national election without excitement, but the republicans of Maine, who consider it a sacred duty to vote at the presidential election, may be depended upon to roll up a good majority for Hughes.

SEAWALL. William Moore spent the week-end with his grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Moore.

Mrs. Amos Dolliver has returned from Allston, Mass., where she went to attend the wedding of her nephew, Herbert Morang.

John Ward, who for two summers has served as quartermaster on the steamer Hangeley, left Monday for New York to take the position of quartermaster on one of the southern coastwise lines.

James Fernald, one of the oldest citizens of this place, died Sunday morning. Mr. Fernald had been road commissioner for the town of Southwest Harbor for some years, and though in poor health, he always took an active part, and was on the road with his men until September. Since that time he failed rapidly. He leaves a widow and one son, Waldens, of this place, and one grandson. He was a member of the masonic lodge. He will be greatly missed.

COUNTY GOSSIP.

George Hamilton, employed at Sena for Hale's place in Ellsworth, sends to THE AMERICAN office a field daisy picked today. Another Ellsworth man found daisies, blueets, buttercups and bunchberry blossoms last Sunday.

Since the State has repealed the law for a bounty on bears, these animals have increased rapidly in Hancock county, and hunters this fall report more than ever. Many are being brought in by deer hunters, especially in the up-river section of the county. In many sections the bears are getting bold, and flocks of sheep have suffered. Harry Rowe, of Aurora, recently lost three sheep, and decided to capture the marauder. With the carcass of one of the sheep which he found he baited a trap and the first night caught a 200-pound bear.

FARM DEMONSTRATIONS.

News of interest to Hancock County Farmers.

[From the office of the county agent, G. N. Worden, Ellsworth.]

In last week's AMERICAN, the age of Frances Lowree, whose story was adjudged the best in the garden and canning club contest, was given as fifteen years, instead of thirteen.

WORK AT EASTBROOK.

The extension service committee of Greenwood grange accompanied the county agent on his first visit among the farmers of Eastbrook last Thursday and Friday, and the first year of demonstration work in that town met with a promising start. F. A. DeMeyer, R. B. Lowrie and Jesse Abbott were chosen to carry orchard demonstrations, A. S. Goggin potatoes, L. D. Wilbur oats and Harold and G. V. Butler poultry. In addition to this eight men will carry co-operative orchard work, and assistance will be given as many others as desire it and time will permit. Beside its active support of demonstration work, the committee plans to circulate a petition for an extension in poultry to be held early next year, and will also endeavor to organize a boys' and girls' agricultural club. This committee is composed of L. D. Wilbur, chairman; Grafton S. Goggin and Vernon G. Haslam, and their plans for 1917 and hearty co-operation with the county agent are appreciated.

It is hoped that all other granges which do not already have extension service committees will soon fall in line and make 1917 a record year for accomplishment. One thing alone will bring such a year to any grange, and that is the organization and support of a good live boys' and girls' agricultural club.

EXTENSION SCHOOLS.

All petitions for extension schools must be made not later than January 1, but as yet not a single one has been received from Hancock county. Surely it is not because they are not wanted. Remember that schools will be offered in soils and fertilizers, farm crops, poultry, animal feeding, apple packing, orchard renovation, household management and foods, preparation and serving.

Descriptive circulars and application blanks may be secured from the county agent, Ellsworth, or the extension service, College of Agriculture, Orono.

Ancient Squash Seed.

Hivalling the discovery of the Aztec bean nearly fifteen years ago, seed has been found in the prehistoric cliff dwellings of Arizona along the Verde river that has been planted and has grown into a huge green, extremely warty squash, which has been named the "Aztec". The squash was named from a seed hundreds—perhaps a thousand—years old, and in the Verde country is considered a wonder of the age.

The discovery was made by John G. Allen, of Cherry, Ariz., and in a most novel manner. Allen was fishing along one of the tributary creeks of the Verde, and his skill with the rod seemingly failing him, he decided to see if he could not make his trip a profitable one by hunting the ruins for pottery left by some prehistoric tribe.

Making his way into one of the larger rooms of the cliff dwellings he noticed a portion of the wall that appeared as if some time or other it had been closed up. Further investigation proved that he was right, for he easily broke through the wall at this place and discovered a small room or recess which contained pottery, corn cobs and about a dozen seeds that resembled ordinary squash seed. The room had been sealed so tightly that not even a mouse could make its way into it.

The seeds were planted last year. Of the twelve seeds, but one came up, and the plant from it carried one squash which weighed twenty-five pounds.

BUCKSPORT.

Miss Katherine Ball died Sunday, at the age of sixty-four years. A year ago Miss Ball sustained a fractured hip, from which she never recovered. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Annie Kittridge and Miss Alice Ball.

King Alfred's Bugle.

The most interesting of all bugles is the famous "blowing stone," first used by Alfred the Great to signal his troops on the field of Ashdown. It is in the historic Vale of the White Horse, in Berkshire, England, and is a mass of sandstone so curiously pierced with holes that when blown it emits a loud, clear call. The sound travels over the green meadows, through the woods of the river Ock, echoing among the White Horse hills and down to King Alfred's camp on the southern slope and back to Wayland Smith's cave, where the smith lived, whom no one ever saw, who shod the travelers' horses left at his door.—London Spectator.

The Moot Savage Fish.

The green moray of the Bermuda waters is said to be the most savage of all fishes.

AT THE STATE PRISON.

Work on the New Wing Progressing Favorably.

[Rockland Courier-Gazette.] With some twenty-five convicts aiding in the work, good progress is being made on the new wing of the State prison. The walls have nearly reached their full height, but the snow will be flying before the roof is added, and June roses will be in bloom before the new quarters are ready for occupancy.

The new wing is seventy-five feet long and fifty-five feet wide, and will contain two rows of cells, three tiers high, one row facing north and one south. These cells will be 6x10 feet in size, and will be built of reinforced concrete. Each will have toilet accommodations and will be piped for running water. A recreation corridor, twenty feet in width, will run the entire length of the wing on the northern side. There is a trench corridor between the two rows, in which will be laid the water and sewer pipes.

The new wing has brick walls laid on granite foundation, and granite trimmings. On the inside the walls are lined with white enameled brick, costing $60 a thousand, the effect being to give better light and the best possible sanitary conditions. These walls can be washed at will with the use of hose.

The flat roof will pitch toward a common center, to care for the water, and to correspond with it, the prison commissioners will doubtless have the old roof of the east wing rebuilt.

The State appropriated $50,000 for this enlargement. The present number of convicts is 223, which is an even score less than the maximum number last summer, when it was necessary to provide bunks for some of the prisoners in the hospital and school room.

The pretty hallowe'en entertainment given Friday evening by Miss Erma Jordan, the teacher, and pupils, was a novelty and a success, demonstrating Miss Jordan's ability as a playwright in the decorations and cast, as well as in the careful training of the pupils. The schoolhouse was transformed by the weird and mystic symbols of witchcraft—dark lanterns, goblins and ghosts. The pupils took their parts with ease, while their teacher, who is an accomplished musician, presided at the organ. From the sale of refreshments after the entertainment, $9.50 was realized. School closed for a week's vacation.

POLITICAL PICTURES.

Hughes and Roosevelt, in Present Campaign, at the Davis.

The people of Ellsworth will have an opportunity to see Hughes and Roosevelt in moving pictures at The Davis Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings of this week. There will be two reels, given in addition to the regular program.

The pictures open with views of Gov. Hughes and his family at home. Then follow pictures of Gov. Hughes, accompanied by Mrs. Hughes, on one of his campaign tours, which will present many interesting views of the republican presidential candidate, and some fine scenery. Governor and Mrs. Hughes at Niagara Falls, the greeting at Detroit, a scene at one of the big league ball games, with Gov. Hughes shaking hands with Hugh Jennings and Ty Cobb, the famous baseball stars, and Gov. Hughes speaking at Detroit, will follow. Among the interesting scenes will be a visit to a mine, the San Diego exposition, and Gov. Hughes at Estes Park, Cal., one of America's most beautiful garden spots. Here he will be shown at rest, playing golf in the picturesque valleys of the west. This series will close with pictures of Gov. Hughes speaking at the exposition grounds at San Diego.

Scenes in connection with our affairs with Mexico will next be shown. There will be pictures of United States battleships, refugees from Mexico leaving the ships at Galveston, troops assembling and marching, United States marines at Vera Cruz, and soldiers fighting.

Ex-President Taft and Gov. Hughes will be shown at Gov. Hughes' summer home at Bridgehampton, N. Y.

The pictures will come more closely home to Maine in the views of ex-President Roosevelt on his campaign visit to Maine this year. His arrival at Lewiston, his greeting there and a picture of him speaking will be shown.

Col. Roosevelt will also be shown at his home at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, entertaining members of the republican national committee.

Of course while this is a partisan picture, intended to arouse interest in Gov. Hughes' campaign, just as the democratic pictures shown here some weeks ago were in the interest of President Wilson's campaign, the pictures are of general interest to all interested in public affairs and men.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARIA BLACK PERRY.

Maria Black, widow of Charles J. Perry, one of Ellsworth's most estimable women, died Saturday morning at the Black homestead on State street. Death came suddenly and peacefully, without disease or suffering; a slight cold for a few days, a weakened heart from advanced age, and sleep.

Mrs. Perry was born in Ellsworth April 19, 1835, the oldest daughter of William H. and Abbie (Little) Black. She was married on December 18, 1860, to Mr. Perry, who died October 28, 1903—thirteen years to a day before his wife's death. Except for a residence of a year or two in Raleigh, N. C., shortly after the Civil war, Mrs. Perry's home had always been in Ellsworth.

She is survived by three sisters—Mrs. Cecilia C. Dickey of Greene, Mrs. Harvard Greely and Miss Mary H. Black, of Ellsworth.

The funeral was held at the home Monday afternoon, Rev. R. E. Mathews officiating. Mrs. Dickey, her son, Charles B. Dickey, of Portland, and another nephew of Mrs. Perry, Harvey D. Black, of Wollaston, Mass., were here to attend the funeral.

MRS. ABBIE K. FORD.

Abby Kelliber, widow of Thomas Ford, died at the Ford home on Bay View street, last night.

Mrs. Ford was born in Ireland March 15, 1830. She was married in 1851. Of this union eleven children were born, of whom five are living—James E., of Hallowell, Mrs. Jeremiah Hurley, Mrs. Dorephus L. Fields, Mrs. Edward E. Doyle and Mrs. James A. McGown, of this city. There are thirteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Ford retained all her faculties until her death. She was tenderly cared for by her daughters.

The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 8.30 o'clock at St. Joseph's Catholic church.

DECISION AGAINST GOVERNOR.

Dr. Will S. Payson, of Castine, Wins In Case Submitted to Law Court.

A decision was handed down by the law court last week in which the claim of Will S. Payson, of Castine, that he is rightfully a member of the State board of dental examiners in place of Henry Gilman, of Portland, who has been performing the duties of the office for the past two years, was sustained.

The decision is important, as it involves the right of a retiring governor to make appointments to offices the terms of which expire with the calendar year. Dr. Payson's term expired Dec. 31, 1914, and he was reappointed by Governor Haines. Governor Curtis, who succeeded Governor Haines, claimed that the power of appointment was vested in him, and named Dr. Gilman, who assumed the duties of the office.

Equity proceedings were begun by Dr. Payson, contesting Dr. Gilman's claim. The court holds that the term of Governor Haines expired with the political year, in this case on Jan. 7, and that he was, therefore, qualified to make the appointment. The term is for five years.

Song Recital by Miss Purdy.

A rare treat was afforded music-lovers of Ellsworth in the song recital given by Miss Constance Purdy Sunday afternoon, at her summer home on Bridge hill. It was the first opportunity the people of Ellsworth had enjoyed of hearing Miss Purdy, and all were delighted with her voice. It is a rare contralto, rich in tone and sympathetic in quality. Her program was as follows:

- Youth Comes Dancing..... Bauer
- Swing Low..... Fisher
- A Fragment..... Hartmann
- The King..... Foster
- Pussy-willows..... Grechaninov
- The Gnomes..... Grechaninov
- The Goat..... Mousorgsky
- The Chinese Lady..... Rebikov
- The Belle..... Kalinikov
- Waters of Spring..... Rachmaninov
- My Heart at Thy Dear Voice..... Saint-Saens
- Who is Sylvia..... Schubert
- Under the Greenwood Tree..... Busch
- The Sapphic Ode..... Brahms
- Romance..... Debussy
- The Land of the Leal..... Foote.

The generosity of Miss Purdy in giving of her services in aid of the Surgical Dressings committee work is deeply appreciated. H. C. Austin & Co. furnished the chairs free. The receipts, $60, will greatly aid the work here.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION.

ELLSWORTH BOY BECOMES NATIONAL FIGURE IN EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES.

Boston, Oct. 24 (special)—With the opening of the fourth year of the College of Business Administration of Boston university, Everett W. Lord, an Ellsworth boy, becomes a national figure in educational circles, where his work is justly regarded as one of the most remarkable achievements in many years.

This college, which he organized and of which he is the head, has in four years become the largest of its character in America with only two exceptions—the business departments of New York university and of Northwestern university of Chicago; and, by reason of the acquisition of the 1,100 students in the new department, Boston university is now surpassed in size among New England universities only by Harvard and Yale.

One of the first tasks that Dean Lord faced was that of finding seventy-five Boston business men who would agree to become financially responsible for any deficit that the new college might have to meet in its early years. He found his guarantors, and at the end of the first year he asked them to contribute $7 each. At the end of the second year their assessment went back to them. The college was paying its way.

President Murlin, of the university, has heartily supported Dean Lord; and this fall the trustees voted him a sufficient appropriation to remodel and equip the Walker building, formerly occupied by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at the corner of Boylston and Clarendon streets. This is one of the finest locations imaginable.

To-day the College of Business Administration is the fastest-gaining and timeliest educational institution in America. From all over the country come requests for Dean Lord's advice and as-ism, advertising, salesmanship and the teaching of commercial subjects. Its graduates receive the degree of Bachelor of Business Administration. There are both day and evening classes.

Dean Lord is the youngest son of Mrs. Samuel Lord, who now resides in Gardiner. Since leaving Ellsworth, where he was for a time superintendent of schools, he has been superintendent of schools in Bellows Falls, Vt., assistant commissioner of education in Porto Rico, secretary of the National Child Labor committee, and istance in starting similar schools. Several universities have asked him for a complete outline upon which to establish a college of business administration. Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield declares that Dean Lord is "solving a vital commercial and educational problem."

The college prepares directly for accountancy, banking, insurance, journalistic secretary of Boston university, which position he held when he organized the new college. He was graduated from the University in 1900 and received the A. M. degree in 1906.

Dean Lord has written a number of text books and economic essays, and his courses in commercial development and foreign trade are the most popular of all in the curriculum.
