Old Union 2 of Elisworth Recently Local Board Has Not Yet Received Orders for More Men.

The local board has not as yet received orders when to send to camp the last quota of men'in the first draft. To the last fifteen per cent. will be added thirteen so far rejected on physical examination after reaching camp, which will make about fifty men to leave in this last quota.

It is expected that the new draft regulations will be received next week, and soon thereafter the list of questions will be sent out to all registered men, and the division into five classes made preliminary to the call for examination.

Frank A. Hodgon of Center, who was in order for call, has enlisted in the med-

Lesson VII.-Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 18, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Neh. ii, 1-11-Mem ory Verses, 5, 6-Golden Text, Matt. vii. 7-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns

Continuing day and night in prayer to God (i, 6) and watching for an opportunity to speak to the king, it must ly came. It is so much easier to reach the King of kings than it is to gam accase to or obtain a hearing from some earthly poten ate, yet that uses human instrumentating in His stea time and way. The matter was so heavily upon the heart of Nehemiah that he could catches as complaintin' not, after some months of waiting, res his sadness even in the presence of the king for he was the king's cupbearer (i. 11; ii, b. The king observ ed it and said: "Thou art not sick. What is this sorrow of heart?" He replied that he could not help being sad when the city of his fathers was waste and the gates consumed with fire. Isniah had written long before: "Zion is a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolution. Our holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised Thee, is burned up with fire, and all our pleasand things are laid waste" (Isa. Ixiv,

Now that the captivity was over and many had returned and the temple had been rebuilt and dedicated the wall was still in rulns and the city desolate and a reproach, and this was the burden upon the heart, of Nehemigh. When the king asked him what he desired, in the same moment spoke to God in heaven and to the earthly king before whom he was standing (verses 4, 5). This we can all do, and if we always talked with God before talking to people how different our words would often be! He asked the king to send him to Jerusalem that he might build the city (verse 5). The king asked him how long he would be gone and when he would return, and when Nehemiah set a time it pleased the king to send him If the queen sitting by the king was Esther, as is probable, it will bely us to understand many things. Yet we do not need to under good hand of God upon him in grant ing his request and providing the wherewithat to rebuild the city (verses 7, 8). I am reminded of two of my favorite texts in Phil. ii, 13, and Isa. lxiv. 4. R. V.

"It is God who worketh." "A God who worketh for him, who waiteth for him." The Journey to Jerusalem, which took Ezra and his company four months to accomplish, is not consider ed nor referred to, except that the king sent captains of the army and horsemen with him (verses 9-11). This does not seem to me to indicate any less faith on the part of Nebemiah than on the part of Ezra, but Ezra had said something very strongly about Gal's care of His own without human aid, and he felt that he had to prove it, and he did, and the Lord honored his trust. Nebemiah was just as much a man of God as Ezra, but be had made no boast that he felt com

each for himself have faith in God and prove it. Like Ezra, after be reached Jerusalem, so Nehemiah spent three quiet days before he did enything (verse 11; Ezra viii, 32). There are different interpretations of the saying. haste" (Isa. xxviii, 16), but there are surely times when we must go slowly and very prayerfully. Without telling the priests or the nobles or the rulers what was in his heart to do he and some few men with him went out by night to look the matter over and get a correct knowledge of the real condi tion of affairs (verses 12-16). Then he laid before the rulers the reproachful condition of things, told them of the good hand of God upon him and of the king's commission and provision. So they said, "Let us rise up and build," and they strengthened their hands for the work (verses 17, 18). As in the story of Exen there are always some outsiders who seem to want a share in elp will do all they can to hinder. we have the Horonite, the Ammonite and the Arabian exceedingly grieved because some one had come to wek the welfare of Israel, and they despised and laughed to seorn Nehe miah and his party and accused them of rebelling against the king (verses Nehemiah said to them. "We are servants of the God of heaven and will arise and build, and He will prosper us, but you love no part in this work or in this city (verse 20). So they set to work priests and rulers and people, men and women, merchants and apothe-caries and godsmiths, each one over against his house (iii, 8, 12, 17, 22, 23, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32), and I like to notice that they began and ended at the sheep gate (iii, 1, 32), for that reminds me of Him who is the Lamb of God, a mb for slaughter and a sheep dumb before his shearers, who said to His disciples, "I send you forth as sheep Isa. IIII, 7; Matt. x, 16). Whatever is begun in Him, on the ground of His sacrifice, will surely go through. Some would not help in the work (iii. 5). but He cannot fail, whether folks help or hinder, for He shall not fail nor be discouraged (Isa xHi, 4)

- Selected by an M. B.

There is one short sentence in the poem that could be well applies any time the weather is found fault with-that is, "we couldn't live without it." It would be a good idea for most to keep that in mind, for use when they are inclined to com-plain of "early snow," "late springs," "too much rain," "never sa v it so hot," and variations, in which the familiar air of "not the right kind of weather to suit me' is easily recognized.

By the alip of a vowel 1 st week, a wrong impression of the kind of poetry one reader asked for might be taken. It was "strong" instead of "string" that was desired.

If Anon should read this, I want her to know, I sent a personal letter to her home address, which was remailed from there, but failed to find her in New York and was returned to me.

Upon farms where stock is kept, a well-broke collie dog is an unfailing source of help and satisfaction, while an unbroken, untrained dog is a conwith a dog, it is important that the dog be well trained, and that great care be exercised while the animals are getting used to being managed by him. When these two conditions are fulfilled it is surprising how easily and economically stock can be taken care of. The first essential in breaking a dog any purpose is to teach him to mind. ### RIGHT WAY TO CATCH SHEEP

Take Animal Either by Hind Leg o Put Hand Under Jaw-Never Grab It by Its Wool.

An experienced sheep breeder and flock master says never catch a sheer unnecessary pain. But this is pot all. When you catch the sheep by the wool you are likely to pull out the wool, thus leaving a bruised place in the flesh of the animal. If the sheep is to be sold for mutton the flesh will show this bruised condition.

The proper way to catch a sheep to take it either by the hind leg just above the gambrel point or by putting the hand underneath the lower jaw or neck. In using a crook it is in tant that the sheep are not caught be-low the gambrel joint, as injury to the leg is liable to result from this.

POPULAR BREEDS OF SHEEP

Shropshire Combines in Fairly High Degree All Qualities Sought by American Breeders.

Sheep die easily sometimes, especially so for the man who is inexperienced ith them. It may be said that the larger the breed the less hardihood they exhibit. Internal parasites kill more sheep than all other causes coubined. Pneumonia, however, is quite common among the large English breeds.

The Merino is the hardiest of all reeds, and the Southdown of all the English breeds. But the Shropshire is perhaps the most popular sheep in America today. It combines in a fairly high degree all the qualities that are sought in a sheep. However, there is a difference in the hardiness of individual sheep just as there is with men. Some families of men break down and die young as compared with others. Similarly, some families of sheep die more easily than others. Selection. breeding and care and management are also factors in determining the health and vigor of sheep.

Pregnant Brood Sows Do Well on Clover or Alfalfa Forage and Ear or Two of Corn Daily.

Clover was worth over $100 per acre in replacing corn in the hog ration in one test conducted at the Ohio experiment station, when corn was valued at $1.68 per bushel. Other forage crops proved almost as valuable. Are you cheapening pork production by the use of such crops? There is no cheaper feed up to a certain point. Pregnant brood sow will do well on clover or alfalfa forage and an ear or two of corn daily. Young pigs and shotes must have more grain, of course, but they relish someoforage. Fence off a they relish someoforage. Fence off a part of that clover or alfalfa field and give the bogs a chance at it if you have not already done so.

Also Return Fertility of Soil in Form of Manure—Graze With Cat-tle Very Nicely.

Roadsides, lanes and fence corners may be kept clean and tidy by a flock of sheep. Not only will sheep rid the fields of weeds and turn them into a marketable product, but they will return the fertility of the soil to the land in the form of manure. Sheep will graze with cattle nicely where grass is abundant, and will eat the plants the other stock leave.

Most farms have feed lots and vards which annually grow-up to unsightly weeds. By sowing rape in these places and pasturing sheep on it, the appearance of the farm would be much improved and money would be made.

Volunteer Describes Havos Wrought by Shell Dropped Amang Stretcher Bearers.-Two Hit While Helping Wounded.

New York .- Some of the American college boys who went over to France last May as ambulance drivers for the excitement of the work behind the firing lines are returning home because the ambulance work has been taken over by the United States army and will be done by regular enlisted men. The following is an extract from a letter written by a Williams boy two weeks ago, who went over with his college unit to drive an ambulance at the

The last six weeks we have been serving in the Verdun sector with our base at Blercourt, which is eight miles from the town of Verdun. There are two front posts for the ambulances Mort Homme hill and Hill 304, which have figured in the news of the new battle of Verdun. For two weeks the French were preparing for the attack, and the roads were only passable at night. The communication trenches were awful to get through, and were made worse by the heavy rains. One night last week two of the boys got lost in the darkness and could not find their way with their ambulance to the post. Finally they sighted two dark objects, which resembled French soldiers walking along with their big overcoats on. After jabbering their peculiar brand of French for 15 minutes without receiving any reply the lost ambulance drivers discovered that the dark moving objects were two American army mules, unable to speak or understand a word of French.

Hit While Helping Wounded. "Two of our chaps were badly wounded at one of the first-aid stations while helping to load wounded men into the ambulance. One was blown right through the door of the shelter hut and was discovered lying uncon scious beside three dead French soldiers. The boys who got them out had to go through a gas attack and a barrage fire. Two of them-each ambulance has two drivers-had no time to get masks and were very sick after it was over, but they were going so fast that there were no fatal results from the gas.

"'Mac,' one of our fraternity, has been wounded in eight places. lost his right leg and two fingers, while his companion, 'Vet,' will have a stiff leg all his life from the effects of his wounds. They have both got the War Cross and military medals.

"The worst experience of all happened to two of our college boys—Jim Alexander and Taffy Young. While they were driving along a road lined with batteries, which the Germans were trying to locate, with a wounded man lying in the ambulance, a shell burst right beside them.

"Just before that the wounded man sat up and asked for a cigarette, and the shrapnel passed through the car where his head had been resting a few seconds before and struck the stretcher bearer, who was looking out to see where we were. He died that afteroon. Had Jim not ducked he would have lost a leg, and if Taffy had ducked he would have been badly wounded. The ambulance was shot to pleces by the shell, and they had to hold up the dying man for three hours until assistance came. During the attack we had about twenty-four hours sleep out of 184 hours, which was a fair average for all the ambulance drivers in our sector. During the German air raids one shell burst within twenty-five feet of our camp at Blercourt at midnight. The roads are nearly impassable now for automobiles. We have been treated very nicely by the French colonel in command of the branch depot, who feasted our unit with champagne, cakes and cigars, and has given us seats for all the shows gotten up by the French soldiers.

Volunteer Spirit Gone. "Several colonels and majors of the American Red Cross have visited us to see what we are going to do now. They all admitted that we could do more for our country by enlisting in the regular army in Paris. This is, for all the able-bodied men in the ambulance service. We were asked to enlist, if we preferred, in the ambulance service for the duration of the war, but it would not be the same. Most of the boys declined, and we are going to Paris to join up, including my-The old volunteer spirit in the ambulance corps has gone forever—so now for the United States artillery or air service in search of adventure.

TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing kidney and bladder disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Ellsworth Falls evidence—doubly proven. Mrs. R. I. Moore, North St., Ellsworth Falls, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for several years, when suffering from attacks of backache and other troubles caused by my kidneys not doing their work right. In the winter of 1903, after an operation I was miserable and didn't see n to regain my strength. In 1904, I was taken down with a severe attack of kidney trouble and the pain in my back was almost unbearable. Doctors treated me but didn't help me and finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They brought almost immediate relief and not only cured the backache but corrected other signs of kidney trouble and helped me in every way."

Mrs. Moore gave the above statement in February, 1905 and on December 4, 1916, she added: "I think even more highly of Doan's Kidney Pills to-day than when I first recommended them. The cure they gave at that time has been permanent."

The Y. M. C. A. drive for a fund for work among the boys of the army and navy is on. This great organization is doing a wonderful work for the men at the front and in the training camps, supplementing the work of the Red Cross in caring for the physical welfare of the boys by directing its efforts largely to their moral welfare. The appeal for funds should meet with generous response.

More than 8,000 Hangock county families have now pledged them-selves to the support of the government in its food conservation program. Frugality is twin sister of the thrifty Maine housewife, and in few Hancock county homes will the full observance of the food administration program mean any great selfdenial, but as a demonstration of loyalty to the government, the almost unanimous response from this county loses none of its force.

The report of J. C. Hamlen, Maine fuel administrator, as to the coal situation in Maine, is not encouraging. "New England is several million tons of soft coal short of its needs," he says, "and while the hard coal supply was. reasonably satisfactory two months ago, there was a falling off of receipts during September and October, so that there is not enough now coming forward to meet the increased uses. The outlook for any improvement in future deliveries for New England is unfavorable." The administrator urges personal and community prudence and patriotism, and the utilization as fully as may be the native cordwood supply. The cut-acord-of-wood campaign is thus inaugurated.

A War-Time Thanksgiving. The proclamation of President Wilson formally naming Thursday, Nov. 29, as Thanksgiving day, is of pecu-liar interest and significance at this time when this country, in common with nearly all the civilized world, is engaged in war. The horrors and sorrows of war seem in ill accord with any spirit of Thanksgiving, but, with the broader view obtained from the high purpose with which this nation has entered upon the war, the President sees, even in it, a cause of thanksgiving. He says in his procla-serenaders were invited in and were

In this day of the revelation of our duty not only to defend our own rights as a nation but to defend also the rights of free men throughout the world, there has been vouch-safed us in full and inspiring measure the resolution and spirit of united action. We have been brought to one mind and purpose.

A new voice of common counsel and common action has been revealed in us. We should especially thank God that in such circumes, in the midst of the greatest enterstances, in the midst of the greatest enter-prise the spirits of men have entered upon, we have, if we but observe a reasonable and practicable economy, abundance with which to supply the needs of those associated with us as well as our own. A new light shines about us. The greatest duties of a new day awaken a new and greater national spirit in us. We shall never again be divided or wonder what stuff we are made of.

And while we render thanks for these things, let us pray Almighty God that in all humbleness of spirit we may fock always to Him for guidance, that we may be kept constant in the spirit and parpose of service, that by His grace our minds may be directed and our hands strengthened; and that, in His good time, liberty and security and peace and the comradeship of common justice may be wouchsafed all the nations of the earth.

Our Sunset correspondent, Mrs. A. T. Small, writes: "I saw in a becent issue of THE AMERICAN the death of Eben Allen of Brocklin, aged ninety years. I was not personally acquainted with him, but heard of him through his granddaughter. When I wrote, a few years ago, the story of the burning of the ship Royal Tar many years ago, he read it, and had his granddaughter write to tell me that he saw the steamer when she came through York narrows and into Deer Isle thoroughfare. He, a boy of ten years, was on Pond island, and remembered the incident distinctly, as it was the first steamboat he ever saw.'

PATRIOTISM.

A Four-Minute Speech by Dr. George A. Phillips of Bar Harbor.

When I think of the peril of this wa when I think of Germany's foot on the neck of Washington and Lincoln, of its cruel, devil's claws on the throat of our nation, of our beloved stars and stripe scorned, gibed at, spit upon-then I know what hate is, hate of that blood-made emperor, that monomaniac and the scur-rilous men who stand with him behind two pictures: One, war with its horror its tumult of disaster, its awful suspense its fiendis h cruelty, its empty chairs, its awfully lonely living, its terribly lonely

no stars and stripes, no peace -all that is great and grand wrapped in the barbed wire of a nated nation; independence Better the grave, better the fagots an the stake, then a nation broken, alle-giance to another flag, governed by other owers-and war with all the blackness and borror is white, white as an angel's ving, beside peace at such a price. My God! Why can't we see the peril! Why can't we see that unless we beat, we shall be beaten; unless we crush, we shall be crushed; unless our flag floats in victory, it trails through the mire under the feet of our foe.

May God in heaven give us a man, or show us the way that shall awaken us out of this opiate coma, this death slumber, and pound us into life once more.

Any man who withholds his devotion. his services, from his country in its present hour of extreme peril, is honestly blind, or a dishonest coward-the meanest thing that crawls.

Without this devotion of a people, no nation is fit to live in, nor can it long endure. Wendell Phillips, when he en-tered upon his life work, said: "I love inexpressibly these streets of Boston, over which my mother led my baby feet, and if

Let us echo this splendid sentiment and say: "We love inexpressibly the stars and stripes that float over our nation to-day, and if God gives us time enough we will make it too strong and too pure to be scorned and trampled by a foe.'

CAPT. J. W. KANE DEAD.

Well-Known Bluehill Captain Had Eventful Career.

BLUEHILL, Nov. 10 (special) - Capt John W. Kane, well known in Ellsworth and along the coast of Maine, died Thursyears Capt. Kane sailed deep-sea vessels and after a few years ashore, he bought dred May, which he sailed as long as his health permitted.

Capt. J. W. Kane was born on Long island, Bluebill, Oct. 28, 1847. He went to sea at the age of fifteen years, and was master of the schooner Catherine Jane of Ellsworth, when only eighteen years schooner Fanny Keating, he was wrecked in a burricane in the Gulf stream and with the crew spent five days lashed to the wreck, without food, until rescued by the brig Ontoland.

He afterward bought a third interest, in the brig I. W. Parker, and twelve years later was wrecked off the African coast by collision with sunken wreckage. The Parker filled so fast that Capt. Kane and the crew barely escaped in the life-boats, landing safely in africa.

The following year Capt. Kane bought the bark Monrovia, of 500 tons, and continued in her until wrecked near the Barbados in 1895. A few months previous to the loss of this vessel, while cruising off the coast of Brazil, the British steamship Elmet was sighted, in distress, leaking badly. For six days the Elmet made every effort to save their ship. When she finally sunk, her officers and crew were taken off and lended in God gives me time enough, I will make safety. In recognition of this valuant them too pure for the footsteps of a service, Queen Victoria presented Capt. Kane with a silver loving-cup, and a personal letter of thanks.

Capt. Kane was a versatile and entertaining writer. Many of the steries of his experiences have been published in the magazines, and his articles on nautical and political topics were in great demand.

He was a member of Ira Berry lodge, F. and A. M., and of Bluehill lodge, L.O. O. F. He leaves a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Fred L. Martin of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and two was, John Warren, jr., a cadet in the pavy electrical school of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Sidney of Bluchill.

The funeral was held at the home Saturday afternoon, under maso Reg. R. M. Tratton officiated.

Fr. Butler possessed many remarkable qualities. Always pleasant, courteous and ready to assist others, his circle of friends extended far beyond the limits of his own church, and it was said of him that he was most loved by those who knew him best. He was devoted to his work, and aside from the church, felt a responsibility in helping the city to a healthful growth. He was intensely interested in public affairs and was always fearless in taking a position for what he considered to be for the right.

SEED IMPROVEMENT MEETING.

The seed-improvement. meeting and ex hinition of the Hancock county Farm Buresu, to be held at Hancock hell tomorrow, will be a notable affair in the agricultural interest of the county. Farmers are fully awake to the importance of good seed, and this display will bring together men who have seed and men who want seed, from all parts of the county.

A remarkable display of home-raised seed has been received. It will be wel worth a visit of the people of Ellaworth and vicinity whether engaged in agricultural pursuits or not. Bome eyes will be opened as to what the Farm Bureau and opened as to want the Paris Dureau and the farmers of Hancock county are doing. During the past week there has been a window exhibit of some of this Hancock county grown seed in the Tapley store on Main street.

Below is the premium list for the seedmprovement meeting. Three prizes will be awarded under each lot:

GOOD YIELD OF OATS.

C. W. Stratton of Hancock is one of the farmers of the county who may well be proud of his season's work. His oats gave an average yield on five acres of fifty-four bushels per acre. The variety was Maine 247. His average yield of potatoes on six acres was 292 b she's. Since it must be acknowledged that the average yield for the county can run but little more than fifty bushels per acre, it must be admitted that there is some reason for Mr. Stratton's success. In brief, these' reasons are drainage, and has his land thoroughly drained. He believes in and practices fall plowing, and gives his crops proper care from the time they are planted. He mixture, and can prove to any man that place.
it pays. He plants the variety of seed Thu ditions throughout Hancock county. Mr. Stratton has been a demonstrator, working with the county agent for the past three years. He is a member of the Farm

UTILIZE STRAW FOR CATTLE

Strict Economy Should Be Observed and Valuable Use Made of This Neglected Product.

On many farms where strict ecor omy is observed valuable use is made of straw of all kinds. Frequently the straw is chopped up and mixed with other foods such as beets, mangles and silage, so as to make the food more ful to get the fullest value out of straw that after it has been used for bedding, and later distributed over their fields, it is raked up again and used for bed-ding, after lying on the ground until it becomes clean.

POLL EVIL CAN BE AVOIDED

Hard and Badly-Fitting Straps and Low Ceilings and Doorways, Are Cause of Trouble.

Poll evil, an inflamed condition of the horse's poll, very liable to the formation of deep-seated abscesses, may be in many instances prevented, since the principal causes of this complaint are hard and badly-fitting head straps, and horses hitting their heads against the beams of low ceilings and door

Making Love In a Garden

Plants That Blossomed After Much Watchful Care

By PETER M'ARTHUR Copyright by Peter McArthur.

***** They had been introduced only a few ninutes before and were wandering through the garden trying to make conversation. The beautiful weather had received full and careful attention. the condition of the line and rose bushes had been discussed, and then came silence. Both were beginning to feel awkward when Jack's eye lighted on a bulb lying partly hidden by a border. True to the instincts of a football player, he gave it a deft kick that sent it spinning along the gravel walk.

The gardener must have dropped it when he was planting the crocuses," said Betty, glad to hear her own voice

Perhaps he just laid it aside there because he didn't want a hyacinth among there," Jack replied, picking up the bulb, and then, being a true Omarian, he could not resist quoting:

"Well," said Betty, with a misc'rievous smile, "Donald's head may have been lovely once, but it must have been before he took to gardening. At present he is very bald, and the little fringe of hair he has left is decidedly red. His are hardly the 'hyacinth locks' Milton had in mind, and I doubt if Emerson would have recognized him as "The hyacinthine boy for whom Morn well might break and April bloom.

"You are fond of poetry, I see," said Jack when they bad stopped laughing at her sally.

'Very," said Betty, "but you started us on the wrong tack if we are to do justice to that neglected little bulb. You should have recited Holmes' lines: The spendthrift crocus, bursting through the mold. Naked and shivering with his cup of gold." "But I don't see how that applies to this hyacinth."

"Pardon me-to that crocus. I took a high stand in botany when I grad-It was one of the optional studies in my course, and I plugged four volumes in two weeks.

make it grow?" "I'll plant it and care for it myself." "But I claim the right of superintending the work and examining the plant from time to time to make sure that my interest is being guarded.

"All right. If you will go up to the veranda and get the trowel that is lying by the step I will find an empty spot in one of the beds in which to

When Jack had performed his errand he found Betty kneeling on the border of one of the beds waiting for him. He gallantly offered to do the planting, but she scorned his assistance.

"Do you think," she cried, "that I would trust the planting of an inno cent little bulb to a man whose knowledge of botany is at once academic and wrong? Never!" She had taken off her cuffs and pu'led up her steeves to her elbows, and as Jack watched he had a chance to see bow lithe and shapely were her wrists and hands. He could also see how naturally the sunlight glinted through her brown hair, and when she looked np at him with laughing eyes, after patting the soil into place over the bulb, be could see that they were of an unfathomable blue.

"You have done the planting," he exclaimed. "Now I should be permitted

"But a plant like this should be watered every evening," she protested.

"Or oftener," he pursued blandly.
"Oh, I couldn't think of letting a foolish little bet like this interfere with your business.

"You couldn't? Why, I propose to make the watering of this plant my chiefest business, and I shall not let anything else interfere with it."

"But you are a lawyer. I understand. What will your clients say?"

"To be a lawyer you must first catch your client," he commented whimsically and then added with well affected earnestness: "By the way, you haven't any troubles that I could straighten out for you, have you? I mean troubles of a legal nature.

"I have no troubles of any kind," she replied laughingly.

"Lucky girl, though it is unlucky for me. I den't know but I shall feel it my, duty to make trouble of some kind for

"If you try you will perhaps find that I can make trouble too."
"I don't doubt it," he said banteringly and heaved a deep sigh. "When it comes to really making trouble commend me to good looking girls of eighteen or thereabout, especially in the springtime."

"Oh, you needn't be alarmed," she pouted.

"And I was just beginning to hope that I might be. Well, well, if you do have trouble of any kind that develops a legal aspect that does not require too profound a knowledge of the law, but at the same time demands lengthy consultations, I hope you will not forget me. My office hours are from 10 to 5, except when I am yachting, golfing or playing tennis."

"With the amount of time you devote to golf, tennis and yachting I am afraid you would not have much time to devote to any troubles I might bring to

"I sincerely hope you may never have any more troubles than I can attend to, I devote to law." This was said so meaningly that she blushed faintly. But just at that point his mother concluded her call on Betty's mother, and he had to go along as her escort. There never was a flower more care fully tended that that little waif. As Betty Curtis had come to the town with her mother to spend the summer in the fine residence her father had bought for them she had nothing to do but enjoy herself. Jack Etheridge was almost equally blessed with leisure, for, though, in compliance with the wishes of his widowed mother, he had commenced the practice of law so that he woold know better how to care for his weal's where sign is to bin her to tune, in relation to the handsome income he derived from the estate of his father, he did not elect to live a strenuous life. After careful investigation he decided to hang out his shingle in this pleasant little town that had excellent golf links at the rear and a luxurious yacht club on the water front. He opened offices with a southern exposure in the postoffice building and fitted them up with ing on and waited comfortably for his first client. In order to pass the time pleasantly as possible he supplemented his library of law books with all the latest novels and current magazines. His mother was satisfied, and it cannot be said that he felt life to be unduly exacting. He conscientiously kept regular office hours, as explained above, so it naturally bappened that he frequently walked home from the links with Betty after a pleasant game, and the first thing they always did was to take a look at the little mound that covered their bulb. Donald had been warned to leave it alone, and they saw to it that no weed sprouted in its vicinity. "I am inclined to think," said Betty a couple of weeks after the planting, Shippers Who Purchase Eggs to Pay Only for Those Fit for Human Consumption-Prompt Chilling of Eggs Is Advocated.

Washington. - New methods and equipment to save the $50,000,000 worth of eggs wasted every year in this country and make the poultry industry an effective ally in the cause of food conservation were discussed recently at a conference of representative poultry and egg shippers with the food administration.

The conference was addressed by the food administrator, G. H. Powell. and E. Hearty of his staff, and Dr. Mary Pennington of the United States food research laboratory, Philadelphia and W. F. Priebe of the food administration presided.

The waste in eggs in 1914, according to the department of agriculture yearbook, cost the country $50,000,000. This year it will be fully as large; for although the supply has gone down, prices have increased materially. Wasteful methods in handling poultry were also exceedingly expensive. The food administration made practical suggestions to remedy conditions, all of which received the approval of the Pay Only for Good Ones. It was recommended that shippers who purchase eggs pay for only those fit for human consumption. The custom has been to buy eggs by the case. without candling before purchase, Candling later was almost always sure to show that a large percentage of the eggs were bad. To get his money back, the shipper then had to throw away the bad eggs and raise his price, which was felt all along the line to the Chilling of eggs to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, or below, as soon after purchase as possible, was advocated. Most eggs are fertile, and the lifegerm will deteriorate fast if not chilled. Even in infertile eggs the bacterial growth develops very soon. Wholesalers were urged to equip their plants with the latest cooling machin-

All second-grade eggs, heated, shrunken or cracked, should be marketed as often and as near the source as possible. These are usually dessicated or frozen, and are used by confectioners and bakers.

Before shipping, all eggs should be carefully rehandled and those badly "checked"—that is, with shells cracked—should be removed. Packing in standard cases is recommended, to prevent breakage. Eggs should be gathered by farmers daily and marketed at least twice a week.

Cause of Many Scandals.

The practice of selling poultry with feed, sand or gravel in their crops, which is paid for by weight with the bird, is discouraged. This crafty de-vice has caused many scanduls in the industry, and several municipal investigations, notably one in New York. Dressed poultry should be sold with the crop entirely empty. All birds should be kept in sanitary coops and vards, and as soon as dressed should be chilled to 40 degrees, or lower, to

NOW ATTACK RED CROSS

Officers Directed to Trace Source of Pro-German Propaganda.—Spread False Stories.

Washington.—Pro-German propagan-da, which has long busied itself against the government of the United States, has at last attacked the Red Cross so nearly in the open that General Manager Harvey D. Gibson has sent a telegram to all division managers in the United States to report to him the source of every attack.

"Rumors and innuendoes critical of and calculated to embarrass the Red Cross are being industriously circulated as part of an unpatriotic propaganda," wired Mr. Gibson, "Many sto-ries, utterly unwarranted in fact, innnate simultaneously from too many parts of the country to be merely ac-

Mr. Gibson intimates that the source of the propaganda will be found. He

"Every criticism or innuendo against the Red Cross should be immediately challenged and followed up."

The stories are of many kinds. One is that the Red Cross sells and keeps the money for sweaters and other articles given for the soldiers. Another is that nearly all money contributed goes for expenses and salaries."

Of course the stories are maliciously untrue. As Mr. Gibson says:

"The Red Cross is run as an open book. It has no secrets. It is making. sincere effort to serve mankind, and is doing it as carefully and economically as it knows how. The utmost effort is being made to give publicity to all its activities."
