The Ellsworth Liberty Loan committee has received advices from headquarters which explain why the Elisworth allotment of the second liberty bonds was boring towns included in its district minimum, about the same as asked of the city of Augusta and its territory. A letter showing how the allotment was made up includes Eden in the Ellsworth territory, with an allotment of $271,000. Eden, of course, includes Bar Harbor, and its subscription went there, but at headquarters it was evidently the impression that Eden and Bar Harbor were separate towns. Deducting the $271,000 from the allotment of $555,000 to Ellsworth, leaves $284,000, and as Elisworth subscribed $391,400 to the second loan, this district went "over the top" of what its minimum allotment should have been by $107,400. Two Ellsworth boys have received commissions from the officers' training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., Martin Ludike Hall being commissioned first lieutenant and mended for infantry, and Robert P. THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Neh. 4:7-21-Men ory Verses, 17, 18-Golden Text Heb. 13:6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is sometimes helpful to glance at the end of a story and consider the successful issue, especially when there are many difficulties to be met along the way. In these days to which we have come and always it is well to live on such words as these: "The kingdom shall be the Lord's," "He shall see of the trevail His soul and shall be satisfied" (Obad. 21; Ps. 22:27, 28; Rev. 11:15; Isa. 53:11). It will help us in the lesson of today to keep before us chapter 6:15, 16, "So the wall was finished; . . . they perceived that this work was wrought of our God." Had those who wrought been all skilled workmen they might have given the credit to them, but when the wall was built by merchants and goldsmiths and apothecaries and women they had to look to some power beyond the visible. If we have special talent along any line of service we may get the credit of doing it, but if we are just ordinary folks and God sees fit to accomplish something through us that we seem to be wholly unfitted for, then the glory shall be all his, and that is the way it should always be.

Before we consider the enemies and their confusion let us look at the workers with God and learn from them how to do, for believers are all builders as well as a building (I Cor. 3:9, 10). We must have a mind to work (verse 6) like David, who prepared with all his might because he had set his affection upon the house of his God (I Chron. 29:2, 3). The zeal of these workers is seen in the fact that they were armed while they wrought, they were warriors as well as workers, and they cared little for their own comfort if only they could accomplish their tasks. every one his work (15, 17, 23). Their zeal reminds us of our Lord, of whom it is written, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up" (Ps. 69:9; John 2:17). Being separated far from each other on the wall, they listened as they wrought for the sound of the trumpet which would summon them to Nehemiah, for the trumpeter was by him

Our daily life is conflict as well as service, according to Eph. 6, and we should ever be listening for the sound of the trumpet which shall call us to meet in the air him whose we are and whom we serve (I Thess. 4:16-18). The work is the Lord's, and the battle is his also, and he will work in us both to win and to do and fight for us (v. 20; Phil. 2:13; Ex. 14:14; Josh. 23:10). We have only to dwell with him for his work, and remember his words: "I will work, and who shall hinder it?" "Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed" (I Chron. 4:23; Isa. 43:13; Jer. 51:29). The enemies were very angry and mocked the Jews and conspired to hinder the work (chapter 4:1, 7, 8), but Nehemlah talked with God about it, saying. "Hear. Oh our God, for we are despised!" So they prayed unto God and set a watch against the enemy day and night (vv. 4, 9).

We must expect to be reproached and despised, but we must just tell him as Nehemiah did and remember his own word to us to watch and pray and attend each one to his work while we wait for his call (Mark 13:32-37). The enemy did all in their power to hinder the work and to make the people afraid, but God brought their counwords: "The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught. He maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations" (v. 15; Ps. 33: 10, 11). The remedy for all fear is to remember the Lord, as Nehemiah told them in verse 14 and as Isaiah said in chapters 41:12, 13; 51:12, 13; that war against thee shall be as nothing and as a thing of naught. Who art thou that thou shouldforgettest the Lord thy Maker?"

The worst troubles are not always from outsiders, but often from within the church or the business or the home, and Nehemiah had troubles also from within, for the men of Judah complained of the much rubbish and little strength for the work and said that they were not able to build the wall. They seem to have belonged to the same sort of people as the nobles who put not their necks to the work of the Lord (vv. 10 and 3:5). Then there were those keen men of business who, like some today, made a cor ner in corn and compelled people to mortgage their lands and houses in order to buy food (vv. 1-6). Ne hemiah spoke severely to them and made them cease their oppression, and, while he as their governor should have been cared for by them, he would not accept anything from them, but cared for 150 Jews and rulers at his own table, besides many from outside (vv. 6-19). Chapter 6 tells how his enemies by trickery and deceit and lying tried to do him harm, but the Lord delivered him from them all, giving him insight into their trenchery and courage to deal with them as they deserved. It is truly a costly thing to be out and out for God in this present

Thanksgiving day. In homes all over the country the changes which have come in a year will be realized as never before.

-H. Wakefield Smith

There are two thoughts in the poem worth remembering: "There's lots of folks has had it, tu" and in the last lines, we can be "Thankful for what we do hev."

With the terrible and unsettled condition of the world, there never was a time when so much was being dope to nelp our fellowmen; never a time money was so freely given to relieve distress and provide for the comfort and needs of those gone out from their own home

I am very glad of these letters touching on Thanksgiving.

Dear Aust Madge and all the M. B. Sisters: The cold, chilly, winds of November have come and Thanksgiving will soon be here. I do not have such delightful anticipations as I once did in the long ago, when I was young and full of life, before grief or sorrow came, in the old times when Hilly and I would stand by the table and watch our mother make up the good things for Thanksgiving. My father event, to have hogshead cheese and home-made sausages, but for the Thankagiving din-mer a sparerib, gouse or turkey. In those days people did not depend on the marke's. Every family had its flock of turk ye and geese which turnished feachers for their beds. No wire surfurst in olden times, beds correct geese which furnished feathers for their beas. No wire springs in olden times - beas corded up; ticks filled with st aw and feather beas. When the lowls began o sh d their feathers, then they were picked off their backs and was in the days before stoves came into existence. Most of the food was cooked in the one of the finest, I think, brick oven, but the roasts for the holidays. I did not go to Oriane long-handled spoon to baste with.

And now the plum pudding was being made. The raising came in boxes on stems. Billy and I picked them off, and mother told us we might eat every tenth one Billy thought it ought to be nice and eat the tenth. and I said we ought to pick off ten and then eat one, but we settled it all right -probably

Billy's way. I often wondered how they knew when the ha f full to leave a space for it to rise. It was big, with plums sticking out all over it when tak, n out on a platter. The sauce was made of molasses, vinegar, butter and nutmeg, and was delicious. I have made it many times saving machines so they do now, to make mince meat or sausage ment with a meat grander. They need a worden tray and chopping kuife. My purents a ways invited friends and reis ives to our teast, and as the table would be full, Bill, and I had to wait It would take them so long to cat! There was one old man who always came. We thought him the plainest man we ever saw, and it took him so long to eat white telling his ad-ventures, the Billy would get behind him and double up his not and make up faces to

There were all kinds of fixings; squash, mashed turnip, b.ets sticed up in vinegar, pickies, pumpkin ple, doughauts, home-mace cheese and coffee. How good eveything good appetites!

Many thanks, Sadie, for this pen-picture of the old Thanksgiving days. The following from our good sister "E." is

Too Many Operations

The Right Medicine in Many Cases Does Better than the Surgeon's Knife. Tribute to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Doctor Said Operation or Death-But Medicine Cured.

Des Moines, Iowa.—"My husband says I would have been in my grave today had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered from a serious female trouble and the doctors said I could not live one year without an operation. My husband objected to the operation and had me try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon commenced to get better and am now well and able to do my own housework. I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman as a wonderful health restorer."—Mrs. Blanche Jefferson,703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Another Operation Avoided.

Richmond, Ind.—"For two years I was so sick and weak from female troubles that when going up stairs I had to go very slowly with my hands on the steps, then sit down at the top to rest. The doctor said he thought I should have an operation, and my friends thought I would not live to move into our new house. My daughter asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had taken it with good results. I did so, my weakness disappeared, I gained in strength, moved into our new home, do all kinds of garden work, and raised hundreds of chickens and ducks. I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. M. O. Johnston, Route D. Box 190, Richmond, Ind.

Of course there are many serious cases that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letters, and many others like them, amply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Commander of German Submarine Shows Vein of Un-German Humor.

IS HERO OF MANY STORIES

Pranks That Amuse American Sea--Pays Two-Days' Visit at Dublin Hotel.

Base of American Flotilla in British Waters.—There is a German submarine commander who is known throughout the American flotilla as "Kelly." His name is something quite different, but the American sailors promptly dubbed him "Kelly of the Emerald isle," and the name will stick in the songs and stories of the navy as long as the great war is talked about.

"Kelly" earned his name by his display on various occasions of a rich vein of quite un-German humor. He has become the hero of numberless stories told in forecastle and on quarterdeck. Not all of these stories are true, and probably most of them have grown in the telling. "Kelly" Pranks Tantalizing.

"Kelly" commands a mine-laying Uboat which pays frequent visits to the district patrolled by the American destroyers. When he has finished his appointed task of distributing his mines where they will do the most harm he generally devotes a few minutes to a prank of some kind. Some times he contents himself with leaving a note flying from a buoy scribbled in schoolboy English and addressed to his American enemy. On other occasions he picks out a deserted bit of coast line at night and goes ashore with a squad of his men for a saunter on the beach, leaving behind a placard or a bit of German bunting as a reminder

His most audacious exploit, however-if the legends of the forecastle are to be believed-was a trip which he made several months ago to Dublin. where he stayed two days at a leading hotel, afterward joining his U-boat somewhere up the west coast. He is said to have informed the British of his exploit by leaving his receipted bill attached to one of their buoys.

Still another of "Kelly's" more recent stunts was to plant the German flag on an eminence on the coast line. It was the first time that the British and Americans knew just where he and his men had set foot and they shared the excitement of the village folk, who awoke one morning to find a new kind of flag flying from their native soil. At first they could not make out just what it was.

Fishermen Burn German Flag. But when they made sure that it was the German colors they were furious, for it so happened, so the story goes, that the fisherman along this particular strip of coast had suffered much from submarine raids, U-boats had shelled their boats. Germans had stolen their fish-their only means of livelihood—and left them empty handed after a week's hard catch of mackerel. These poor fisher folk were in no mood for this latest display of German humor, so they, according to report,, promptly burned the flag and set a watch for "Kelly."

Extracts From First leane of County

Farm Publication.
The first issue of the Hancock County Farm Bureau News is out. Following is the introductory greeting by Julien Emery, president of the Farm Bureau, and a few extracts from the paper:

THANKSGIVING GREETINGS. Fellow Patrons:

Most hearty Thanksgiving greetings to you through this, the first issue of THE HANCOCK COUNTY FARM BUREAU NEWS.

The pioneer County Farm Bureau in the State of Maine, OUR Farm Boreau, was organized in July with a paid membership of more than three hundred (300) of the leading, progressive farmers of the county, and with such an organization the farmers of the county enter upon a new era of agricultural possibilities because of a more systematic and definite co-operation of all farm interests.

The Farm Bureau seeks to promote all interests which have for their purpose the advancement of agriculture and rural life in the county, and there is absolutely nothing which it cannot accomplish for the county, providing each community tackles its needs meaning business. The real big job right now, men and women, is to determine our needs and to map out a definite plan of work for the coming year whereby these needs may be met. Let's bring to the aid of our tireless and energetic county agent the concentrated and crystallized efforts of each community committee, and determine as soon as possible what sort of extension and demonstration work will best meet the needs of our several communities and say when it shall be done. The county agent will thereby be relieved of much detail work and can conserve his energies for its prosecution.

Other counties in the State are organizing wide-awake and enthusiastic Farm Bureaus, many of which may come to be larger than ours In quality, however, we must make The Hancock County Farm Bareau second to none, and we may if we get whole-heartedly on to the job. It is especially important at this particular time for everybody to promote the agricultural interests of the country.

Another membership campaign will soon be on, and we must plan to double our membership. How easy it will be if each existing member will resolve to bring in one new name. Every farmer in the county, as well as every farmer's wife, for the Farm Bureau by no means limits its activities to work in the field, should line up with this county organization, for the service which the Bureau will bring to every community will richly repay us all for the small membership fee invested.

Com e on, now, brother farmer! Let's get right down together with the county agent and demonstrate the fact that Hancock County can grow farm products and "put things across" that shall be a credit to the intelligence of her men and woman.

JULIEN EMERY.

CLUB WORK.

Club work does not end for the year in Hancock county with the close of the county contest. That's just when club work really begins. Russian War Prisoner Spent Many The Bureau should be proud of the fact that Nancy Abbott Young has started a movement which has been endorsed by the State leader of clubs, outlining winter activities. The only work of this kind done in the State of which we have record proved very successful with the Hancock club last winter, but very soon a number of clubs throughout the county will be fully organized for

> The spirit of the expression, "Get acquainted with your neighbor, you might like him," is surely making itself felt in Hancock county, for there was never so much interest taken in farm activity throughout the county as at present. This is well shown by the fact that the large number of farmers who turned out for the county contest, annual Bureau meeting and seed-improvement meeting was a surprise to everybody. What better signs can we have of > North Sedgwick boys and girls have "got the goods," and deserve the admiration of every other club in the county. After being deprived of the chance to compete at the county fair and county contest, they held a focal contest, and are preparing for winter work. Our hats are off to the boys and girls with such spirit.

Unofficial information has been received that several German officers are in Petrograd acting in an advisory capacity to the Lenine government, at present in control of Petrograd and Moscow, but by no means in control of Russia. It is no more than expected. Lenine has all along been considered an advance agent for German propaganda in Russia. Should official confirmation of the report be received, it will be followed promptly by action on the part of the United States and its allies, definitely to place the Bolsheviki regime in the list of Germany's allies.

The Hancock County Farm Bureau News, to be published monthly by the recently organized Farm Bureau, made its initial appearance this week. It is in pamphlet form, twelve pages and cover, and is full of helpful suggestions for Hancock county farmers. Hancock thus again sets the pace for the State; the first to organize a county farm bureau, it is now the first to publish a county farm paper. On the cover of the first number appears a cut of the championship winners in the recent county contest of boys' and girls' clubs. Julien Emery, president of the Farm Bureau, writes the introductory article in the form of a Thanksgiving greeting, which we reprint elsewhere.

Here are two pictures, which do you most admire? First a German Uboat, with a captured crew of an English merchant ship lined up on deck deprived of their life-belts, and their life-boats smashed by their captors, and they left to drown as the U-boat deliberately submerges beneath them. It isn't a pleasant picture; let us turn to the other. Here we see another German U-boat, its crew lined up on deck, hands in the air in surrender and appealing for mercy to an American destroyer that has damaged their boat. The U boat sinks before all can be taken off, and American bluejackets plunge into the water to rescue some of the struggling Germans. On board they are given food and dry clothing, and one who died from injuries was buried with military honors. Too good for them, you say? Yes, too good for them, too good for the government for which they are fighting, but harsher treatment at the sacrifice of our self-respect is not worth the cost. It is worth something to be a citizen of the country under whose thing suspicious in appearance in the flag that destroyer sails.

FOR COAST DWELLERS.

Urged to be Vigilant in Watching for Suspicious or Hostile Craft.

A way in which people living on the coast may be of much service to the government is pointed out, with instructions, in the following circular issued by the Seaboard Safety Committee.

COAST PATROL WORK.

be impressed with a feeling of personal responsibility for the maintenance of a vigilant lookout for anything unusual or sus picious in appearance at sea. Whenever any person is in a boat, or walks along the shore, or even looks out upon the water from a window, he should consider it his patriotic duty to be constantly on the alert, and to observe and promptly report any suspicious object or circumstance. The Public Safety committees of the different coast towns will explain to their people what a submarine looks like, and how it would act when about to make an attack or when aiding spies.

2. Everyone living in sight of the ocean should have access to good binocular glasses. There are enough good glasses in the country to provide for the work. If necessary, glasses now owned could be mobilized and furnished to sea-board families. Field glass training should become a part of the daily routine of every family living on the seaboard. For instructions, the nearest Coast Guard Life Saving station may be visited. The men there are already doing this work.

3. Every home with a view of the ocean should realize that its shore is liable to attack at any time. Such hor having telephones should post by the instrument the numbers of the nearest Coast Guard stations and lighthouses in each direction. As the war progre the lighthouse will assist the Coast Grard and become more and more clearing ouses of the Navy and War department for such information. At the present time, however, these Coast Guard Life Saving stations are the places with which we all should co-opera

4 It is quite possible that German sub-marines have already visited secluded spots along our shores, and have laid cables from buts to submarine buoys moored some distance from land. By all means give the drafted boys all the good cheer and emcouragement you can; they'll need it before they get through. But please don't forget these were thousands of boys who voluntarily offered their services before the draft went into effect. Most of these boys are at camps hundreds of miles from home.

Yours truly, CPL S. M. HARRIWOOD, D Battery, 20th F. A.

Why didn't I wait to be drafted And put in a claim for exemption? Why didn't I wait to be cheered? While I merely volunteered.

And nobody said a kind word.
The grind of the wheels of the engine
Was all the good-bye that I heard.
Then off to the camp I was hustled,
To be trained for the next half year,
And then in the shuffle forgotten,

And his eyes look up to me, I will have to look back as I'm blushing, To the eyes that so trustingly poor, And tell him I missed being drafted, I was only a volunteer.

BUCKSPORT. Capt. George W. Abbott, one of the town's oldest and for many years one of its most prominent citizens, died Baturday night, aged eighty years. Capt. Abbott was born at Verons, and in his early life went to sea. He rose quickly to the master's berth, and commanded some fine ships sailing to foreign ports. Retiring from the sea, he purchased the furniture store of Enoch B. Hill, and conducted the business several years, retiring twelve years ago. He was active in town affairs, serving as chairmen of the board of selectmen for nine years. He also repre-sented this class in the legislature. His vile, who was Miss Margaret Partridge of Orland, died about eleven years ago. He leaves two sons, Montelle W. of Ellaworth and Herbert L. of Ann Arbor, Mich., and one daughter, Miss Grace L. Abbott of Bucksport. A man of strict integrity, sound judgment and of a particularly genial and kindly personality, he will be greatly missed in the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones received word last week that the body of their son Clarence, who was drowned when the picket boat of the battleship Michigan foundered, on October 30, had been recovered, and would be sent to Bucksport. The body arrived here Saturday, and toperal services were held at the home Monday afternoon, Rev. Henry W. Webb officiating. There was a large number present. The deepest sympathy of all is extended to the parents and sisters, Edna and Beuleb.

CLEANS THE BLOOD TONES THE NERVES

The gratifying results attending the faithful use of the new medici-nal combination, Hood's Sarsapa-rilla before eating and Peptiron after eating, are seen in purer blood, stronger nerves, improved condition of the whole system.

They are results that make this course of treatment the most economical for sufferers from impure, mpoverished blood, weak, unsteady impoverished blood, weak, unsteady nerves—no other accomplishes so much for each cent expended.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron aid each other, and to take both is to derive a four-fold benefit.

If a laxative is needed in connection with them, the gentle and thorough Hood's Pills should be used.

After Retailers.
The State food administrator, Leon R. Merrill of the University of Maine, is get-ting after retailers who are charging what Leading Paris Designers United is considered exorbitant prices for sugar and flour. He said Monday:

"Just as fast as we find grocers who are charging 15 cents for loaf sugar williwe discuss the matter with them, We have yet to find a case where they have refused to lower their In case they do, however, the case will be at once reported for action by the proper authorities.

"Prior to the war grocers never sold augar on a marginal percentage basis. I believe one cent a pound is a sufficient profit. Losf sugar costs the grocers less than 12 cents a pound and you can see what the profit is in selling it at 15 cents.

The Y. W. C. A. fair at Normal hall November 24 was in every way a success Most attractive were the American and European booths, at which fancy articles and refreshments were sold by girls each wearing the costume of the country her boothrepresented.

The French and Irish booths for fancy articles were in charge of Miss Trim and Miss Snow. Tea was served at the Japanese booth by Miss Starrett and assistants. The tulip table and Dutch booth were presided over by Miss McCorrison and Miss Florence Ladd. Very American and patriotic was the candy booth, for Miss Junkins offered only molasses candy for sale. The side shows were in charge of Miss Stinson. Dr. Philbrook acted as guide, calling attention to the various

The elder generation of farmers in one of our northern dales used a strange set of numerals, especially when counting sheep. They made a gap in the wall just wide enough to admit one sheep at a time, and as the sheep went through they counted every fifteen Phonetically the numerals sound like "Yann, tane, tether, mether, pip, sax, sane, catterer, wheeler, yann-er-dick, tane-er-dick, tether-er-dick, mether-er-dick, boomfit."

"Boomfit" was fifteen; when they reached it they made a notch in the stick and began the strange chant all over again.-Youth's Companion.

Warned by Electric Sirens.

In England many of the large man-ufacturing establishments employing numerous hands make use of electric sirens for warning employees in the event of air raids. The sirens are designed for use in connection with interior calling or alarm systems and to supersede bells, gongs and other signaling methods. They are capable of operation in regular lighting circuits, and require little amperage. These sirens are instantly responsive to either button or self-operating mechanism, and may be wired in series or parallel as desired. Code signaling can be readily obtained with these horns, which, owing to their distinctive tone, command instant attention.—Scientific American.

Advantages of Motors in Cities. According to the estimates of a trade journal fifteen thousand horses, valued at $3,100,000, died in New York city last year, and the loss of services, veterinary fees and other incidentals pertaining to those that fell ill or were injured, amounted to as meuh more. A motor truck can be repaired or rebuilt. It possesses some value when out of order and it eats nothing when laid up for repairs; but a dead horse costs more to remove than it is worth. A motor truck can be operated twenty-four hours a day and occupies less space when not running than does a team of horses and a wagon. This item of space is important in a large city, though it is not considered in the country.

State Food Administrator is Getting FAVOR LONG COAT

on One Point.

Skirt of New Suit Is Plain as Well as Tight and Short Enough to Clear the Ankles.

Jenny, like many others of the leading dressmakers in Paris, is in favor of the comparatively narrow skirt and the long coat which covers the knees. The skirt is, as a rule, pinin as well as tight, and short enough to clear the ankles. Then the coat is ample at the hem and very picturesque in design. These new knee-length coats are fashioned in several different ways. Some are quite loose, with a wide ceinture to confine them at the waist; others are so shaped that they mold the form without being at all tight; others again Chinamen of high degree, says Idalia de Villiers, Paris correspondent.

The design of the coat permits considerable exercise of individual taste, but the general outline remains the same a rather short, tight skirt, and a long coat.

The Jenny model shown in the sketch had a great success at the opening of this dress artist's winter show. It was made of tomato-red duvetyn and the long scarf collar, which was attached to the coat itself, was bordered with skunk. The coat was ma chine stiched with heavy red silk and the deep cuffs were buttoned back coat was lined throughout with elephant-gray peau de sole and on the gray lining, down the fronts, there lines of very handsome embroidery executed in red, gray and duti blue silks. The scarf collar shown on this is one of the new ideas and the Parisiennes are delighted with it.

It is just a long straight tie, about 10 inches in width, which can be wound round the neck, with one end thrown over the shoulder; or the tie can be unwound and allowed to fall low over the front of the coat.

In the matter of millinery let us call your attention to the new sport hats in velours, says an exchange. bear no trimming other than a ribbon band, but they are as flattering as the glances of a new sweetheart and as becoming as the naivete of youth.

Turquoise is a good color, and you can't beat it if you are looking for something to wear with frocks of snowy whiteness. Deep rose shades are adorable for the brunette, and the fainter, fadier pinks have their own enticements.

More expensive top pieces are of panne velvet, and on these we notice the sunken crowns. Jersey hats, in cloche shape, are embroidered with wool in colors. Among autumn hats for really autumn wear wool is employed. A new notion is a binding of fine flowers extended about the furthermost edge of Russian turbans covered entirely with feathers are having a pleasant

Brocade Gowns. Brocade gowns will rise to a splendid height this fall and will be considered the fabric of the hour for formal gowns. The mills at Lyons, which control the silk fashions of the world, have turned out miles of marvelous brocades. Rodler, the great master designer of fabrics, has put his stamp on full moons, palm branches and odd flowers subdued in masses of color, and he calls the achievement silk.

One Elisworth Man in Guard House

The local exemption board has been busy with the details in preparation for the classification of registered men under the new plan. In the regular course he was certified up to the district board and from that board to the adjutant-general.

The adjutant-general communicated with him, and got an impertinent reply, sying in substance that he did not want to fight the Germans, that he would stand the penalty, and if they wanted him they must come and get him.

Booker is an alien, a British subject and the matter was taken up with the British consul at Portland. He was brought before the local board, and found physically fit. Even then he was given an opportunity to write explaining his position to the consul, and a lette was prepared for him, setting fourth his plaim, and given him to mail, but he did not mail it.

Then an order came to City Marshall Silvy to arrest him as a deserter and bring him for Portland, where he was placed in the guard house. He stands a fair chance to compulsory service either the odium of deserter banging about him.

How a Pirate Was Downed By EDWARD STEWART

More than a hundred years ago young Captain Herbert Chandler sailed his ship, the Wasp, into a cove on the shores of the Island of Jamaica, cast enchor and sent boats ashore with usks for water. While waiting their return two vessels appeared out on the sea, the one a clumsy brigantine, the other a low cut, rakish craft with enormous sails. Chandler brought his glass to bear on the two ships and was not long in determining that one was a merchantman, the other a Spanish picaroon, and the picaroon was chasing the merchautman. The former flew no flag, but the captain knew only too well that she was a pirate and if the wind held would overtake the merchantman.

This was at a time when picacy had been almost entirely swept from the West Indies, and few merchant ships had means of opposing the villains Chandler could see no evidence of guns aboard the brigantine, and he had but one little barker on his own ship. had no women aboard, but judged from the size and build of the merchantman that she might have passen-

The wind was now very light, and what there was was dying down. sun was near the western borizon, and it had no sooner set than the last two vessels, now about three miles apart, stood still their sails flapping as the swells rolled under them. Chandler began to take thought how be might save both his own and the other ship from the pirate. He had some small arms aboard, but no guns except the one mentioned, while, though the portholes in the picaroon were masked, he knew that she must be well armed with cannon. His small arms would be of no use against her.

Chandler ran over in his mind wha be had aboard that he might use in a fight and remembered that he was carrying among other things for blasting purposes in the Mexican mines, a fulminating powder used in those days. But what use could be made of this against the cannon balls of the pirate?

Chandler was a Yankee, and the Yankees even at that remote period were famed for their shrewdness and inventive genius. He formed a plan to powder. Noting the positions of the ships with his compass, he waited till midnight; then, putting a crew in each of two boats, he weighed anchor and ordered them to tow the Wasp out to sea, his object being to get between the two vessels. Neither ship displayed a light, but a faint glimmer of cabin lights was perceptible on the pirate. Chandler stopped when he thought be might be in the proper position. He did not east anchor, for the sound

When the first falut dawn came Chandler saw that the Wasp, the pirate and the merchantman occupied three corners of a triangle. He was pleased to see that he was nearer the pirate than the merchantman, for if the former attacked the latter before attacking the Wasp Chandler could afford no assistance. His plan did not admit of this. All three ships had their sails hoisted ready to take advantage of the slightest breeze. As soon as there was sufficient light the pirate displayed the skull and crossbones from her peak and sent a shot before the bow of the Wasp. Chandler, understanding this as a demand for surrender, returned from his popgun a shot no bigger than a boy's rubber ball. He did this that the pirate might attack him with his ship instead of sending boats to take possession without a fight.

With the rising of the sun a ripple was seen coming on the water, and a breeze came with it. It caught the plearoon first, and she approached the Wasp, running out her guns as she did so, but nearing her prey it was plain that there was no armament aboard, a:: I she ran them in again.

The critical moment had come. Chandler stood on the quarterdeck awaiting his enemy, occasionally cast. ing a glance at a man partially con-cealed aloft on that end of the gaff swung from the mainmast. The breeze swung from the mainmast. The breeze had reached the Wasp and filled her sails, enabling the helmsman to keep the vessel before it with some headway. When the bowsprit of the picaroon came within a cable's length of the Wasp, Chandler gave an order to lower the sails. The pirate lapped the Wasp and was making ready to grapple and board when a signal was given that turned the tables. Chandler raisthat turned the tables. Chandler raised his hand. Men concealed under the bulwarks pulled on a line fastened to the end of the gaff, swinging it over the side next the picaroon. The man above, carrying a demijohn, nimbly crawled out on it, gaining a position nearly over the pirate, now not twenty feet from the Wasp. Giving the demijohn a swing, he tossed it on the pirate's deck. There was an explosion that bl the little pirate so far apart that the water, rushing into the gaps in her sides, sunk her within two minutes, leaving her men floating in the water. They were mercilessly picked off by the sailors on the Wasp.

The conquering ship was badly injured, but all damages were paid for by the owners of the merchantman, loaded with a valuable cargo and a number of passengers, including wo

POWER

To get out of your motor all the power that was built into it requires a gasoline that is not only pure but uniform.

It is because every gallon of SOCONY Motor Gasoline is like every other gallon, no matter where you buy it, that SOCONY runs a motor so much more efficiently than the best of unidentified gasolines. A carburetor once adjusted to SOCONY is adjusted for keeps.

You will find that SOCONY gives more miles to the gallon and more power to the mile. Say So-CO-ny and look for the Red, White and Blue sign.

WORLD HAS A GREAT TASK

To Nullify the Plans of the Kalser is a Large Order-Strength in Wealth and Man Power of Nations at War Compared.

York. - The comparative strength of the allies and the central powers is graphically shown by "The Balance Sheet of the Nations at War," which has just been compiled by the Bankers Trust company.

"The world has a great task still before it in order to nullify the plans of the Hohenzollerns," says the intro-duction. "The task must not be belittled, but it is at least interesting to see resources existing successfully to accomplish this task, provided that the nations of the world now opposed to Germany continue to co-operate intelligently and loyally until Germany and her allies have been absolutely de-feated and their plans of world dominion rendered permanently ineffective.

Figures showing, for both sides, the combined area, income and interest charge, and cost of the war in treasure and men, are presented with the explanation that they have been gathered with great care from the "best avail-able sources" and are believed to "reflect with substantial correctness the relative economic strength of the opposing groups of nations," although it is impossible to vouch for their absolute accuracy.

Controlled by Allies.

The allies, including the United States, are shown, by this tabulation, to control 19,526,000 square miles of the earth's surface, or 94.1 per cent of the total area held by the nations at war, as compared with 1,222,000 square miles, or only 5.9 per cent held by the Teutonic combination. The aggregate population of the allies, exclusive of the large Asiatic population tributary to the British empire, reache the huge total of 473,250,000, or 76.3 per cent of the total of warring peoples, while that of the central powers is but 147,000,000, or 23.7 per cent.

Without counting Asiatics and Africans, the allies have available for milltary service 91,700,000 men, or 78.5 per cent of the total possible fighting men. while the Teutonic powers can command but 25,050,000, or 21.5 per cent The number of men actually enrolled in the armies and navies of the allies is 21,400,000, or 66 per cent of the to tal, while the enrolled military strength of the Teutonic allies is 11. 000,000, or 34 per cent, as shown by the following table:

SAVED HER JEWELS

Former Russian Czarina Sent Gems to Germany.

Treasure Estimated to Be Worth $100,-200,000 Kept Out of Hands of the Revolutionists.

The Russian royal jewels, including the gems that incrusted the imperial Romanoff crown, are safe from the democratic hands of the new rulers in Petrograd. With a woman's intuitive knowledge of trouble ahead, the former czarina had them tucked away in a safe deposit vault in her ancestral city of Darmstadt, Germany, right at the beginning of the war.

And there they will remain until Mr. and Mrs. Romanoff claim them again, says the New York Tribune.

The story of the Russian royal jewels is told in the Chronicle by a writer who says that the former czarina was largely responsible for the war, in that she assured her German friends and relatives that Russia would not be a formidable antagonist. She proceeded to prove this antebellum prediction by pro-German intrigue which ended with the revolution and the overthrow of the Romanoff dynasty.

But the former czarina, who, before er marriage was Princess Alexandra Alice of Hesse, had no illusions about Germany. Accordingly, she packed up the family jewels in the summer of 1914, when she saw the international war clouds appear, and sent them in charge of trusted messengers to her brother, the grand duke of Hesse, for safe keeping till peace was restored. The royal emissaries traveled by the way of Finland and Sweden. They reached their destination before the mobilization of the Russian army was

Ivan Narodny, Russian business man and writer of New York, corrated the article in the Chronic Mr. Narodny said it was impossible to place an exact value on the royal jewels, but estimated that they ought to bring close to $100,000,000 in the market. He said they were of far greater intriusic value than the historic jewels sited in the Kremlin, which are

The disappearance of the royal jew els became known about a month after the revolution, when the provisional government's appraisers were taking an inventory of the Hermitage, one of the structures of the winter palace, where the treasures were supposed to be kept, according to Mr. Narodny.

"When the vaults of the Hermitage were opened the jewel boxes were gone," said Mr. Naroday. "The im-perial crown reposed on its silk cushion in one chamber of the vault, but all of its stones were found to be

GEORGIAN GIVES THE ORDER

Indiana Sergeant Pulls the Lanyard Which Starts Pershing's Attack on the Kalser's Armies Americans All Eager for Action

American Field Headquarters in France.—Indiana and Georgia divide the honor of having inaugurated Amer-ica's land warfare against the Ger-ant from South Bend., Ind., pulled the lanyard to send the first shell tearing across the valley in the direction of the German positions. A Georgia Meutenant gave the order

"fire!"

The facts were established during the first visit paid by a correspondent to the first American battle front.

The correspondent reached the American position after a long motor ride through shell-battered towns. Leaving the motor in one of the towns, he walked the rest of the way.

The first American battery was almost walked upon before it was discovered. It was so well hidden under the trees and with folinge about it on a low-hung wire netting.

The gun barked quickly, the noise being followed by a metallic clank and the shell case was ejected and the gun made ready for the next load. The lieutenant told the correspondent the story of the first shot of the war, punctuating the narrative throughout with the orders "ready to fire," and "fire," which each time was followed by the report of the gun and the whizz of the shell.

"We came up the night before," the lieutenant said, "and got into position in a driving rain. No horses had arrived. I was anxious to get off the first gun and so were my men. asked them if they were willing to haul the gun by hand to this place so that we could get the first crack at the Germans. They agreed unanimously, so we set out across the fields until we got over there at the base of that hill you can just see in the haze.

Hours to Prepare Gun.

"We had a hard time getting the gun, which we have not named yet, over those shell craters. But we labored for many hours and finally reached the spot. Then I got permission to fire.

"Strictly speaking, the first shot, which was in the nature of a tryout for the gup, simply went into Germany. The sergeant put a high explosive shell there at 6:15 o'clock in the
