THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES
full display of His power and glory." (R."M. 2:55.)

The record of the forty days in the wilderness, as being. Mark the last verse of Mark 5:36. Iliull the true Son of the living God." (R."M. 3:5.)

As you continued reading this lesson, note how consistent the coming of Jesus as the "true Son of the living God" is throughout Mark 11 and 12.

Answer the questions. Why do you think Jesus chose to come to the city of Jerusalem? What is the meaning of "true Son of the living God" as it relates to Jesus? How does this theme continue throughout the next few verses of Mark 11?

The New Testament offers various insights into Jesus' identity and authority, highlighting His role as the Son of God and His mission to bring salvation.

Among the Professors. The ability to interpret the Bible, especially as it pertains to the teachings of Jesus, is crucial for understanding its message and applying it to one's life.

Do you find the idea of Jesus being called the "true Son of the living God" to be compelling? Why or why not?

The Prophets. The interest in the life and teachings of Jesus should also be reflected in a desire to learn more about the prophetic traditions of the Old Testament, as it provides context for understanding Jesus' role.

For further study, consider the following:

1. What does it mean to be called the "true Son of the living God"? How does this term influence our understanding of Jesus' identity and mission?
2. How do the prophetic traditions of the Old Testament inform our understanding of Jesus' life and teachings?

The passage of this week contains many symbolic references that hold deeper meanings. For example, the "two sons of David" may represent the various royal families in Israel, as well as subtle allusions to spiritual truths. Consider how these symbols contribute to the overall message of the Passage.

Do you find the symbolic elements in this week's passage to be engaging or confusing? Why is it important to recognize these symbols in understanding the message of the Bible?

The photo from the last lesson, 8-11, is shown below. Take a moment to reflect on its significance and how it relates to today's lesson. What connections do you see between the past and present?

For additional insights, explore the following:

1. What do you think the symbolic elements in this week's passage are meant to convey? How do they enhance your understanding of the overall message?
2. How might these symbols relate to your own spiritual journey or personal experiences?

New York—It is often said that the fashion experts don't see much upon the market and are not ready to predict the extraordinary value of any article. The change is true. At least, the trend is to make the industry a market and the market a guide to the extraordinary value of any article.

The charge is true. At least, the trend is to see the industry as a market and the market as a guide to the extraordinary value of any article. The change is true. At least, the trend is to make the industry a market and the market a guide to the extraordinary value of any article.

NEW YORK—As the New Year's clock struck midnight, the United States and Great Britain found themselves on the same page in the world's financial and political affairs. The United States had announced its intention to join the British Empire in the war against Germany, while Great Britain had declared its determination to support the United States in its efforts to bring about a just and lasting peace.

The American Republic, under the leadership of its able and incorruptible President, had shown itself to be a nation of peace and justice. Its people had been united in their determination to defend their country against the forces of evil and to preserve the principles of freedom and democracy.

The British Empire, on the other hand, had demonstrated its capacity for leadership and its willingness to sacrifice for the common good. Its people had given generously of their time and their resources to support the war effort, and its military forces had shown themselves to be among the finest in the world.

In this joint declaration of war, the United States and Great Britain had placed their trust in the moral and spiritual strength of the nations they represented. They had declared that the forces of darkness and tyranny could not prevail, and that the cause of freedom and justice would ultimately triumph.

The year 1918 had been a year of great trial and tribulation for the world. But it had also been a year of great hope and promise. The United States and Great Britain had shown that they were willing to work together to achieve a better world, and to ensure that the principles of freedom and justice would prevail.

As the clock struck midnight, the people of the United States and Great Britain looked to the future with confidence and hope. They knew that the road ahead would be long and difficult, but they were determined to persevere, and to emerge victorious from the trials of war and the challenges of peace.

Winning of Clara
By J. E. Stender

T horizontal massing of the magnificent green trees, which constitute the principal scenery of the Reverend St. George's Church in Hancock, and which have been the subject of so much discussion, was recently a cause of intense interest to the members of the church. The trees were seen to be in a state of apparent decay, and it was feared that they might be lost. The deacons of the church, therefore, took immediate steps to save them, and a committee was appointed to make an examination of the condition of the trees. The committee found that the trees were in a very bad state, and that the branches were breaking off at an alarming rate. The committee, therefore, recommended that the trees be removed and replaced by a new set. The members of the church, therefore, decided to have the trees removed and replaced by a new set, and the work was begun immediately.

The trees were removed by a special team of laborers, who worked day and night to get the job done. The work was completed in a few days, and the new set of trees was planted. The trees have now been in place for a few weeks, and the members of the church are pleased with the results. They feel that the new set of trees will be a great improvement, and that they will be a great asset to the church.

The Reverend St. George's Church is located in the heart of the city of Hancock, and it is a place of great beauty and importance. The trees are an integral part of the church's beauty, and it is to be hoped that they will be preserved for many years to come.
TOPORED MINE NEW MENACE

The newest design of war to be introduced by the Germans is the "toprode." It is a mine or mine agency which is used against a British merchant vessel. It is to be released from the storage of the German mine depot at Kiel, and the first batch of them is to be sent to the front on May 15th.

According to the manufacturer of the mine, it is to be used against vessels without any warning. The mine consists of a cylinder containing a material that explodes when it comes in contact with the water. The explosion is so powerful that it can sink a large vessel instantly.

In the past, when a torpedo was fired, the ship would have time to alter its course. But with the "toprode," the cylinder would be dropped directly into the water, and the ship would be exploded without any chance to avoid it. The mine is to be used against large merchant vessels, and it is expected to be very effective.

The mine is to be manufactured in the German shipyards and will be used against British merchant vessels in the Baltic Sea. The first batch is to be sent to the front on May 15th, and more will follow in the coming weeks.

In conclusion, the German military has introduced a new weapon, the "toprode," which is expected to be very effective in opposing British merchant vessels. The first batch is to be sent to the front on May 15th, and more will follow in the coming weeks.
