DEMOCRATS MADE SWEEP OF IT

The Unrest In An Off-Year Brings Republican Defeat, To Which Prohibition Contributes

There remains to be listed some belated returns but enough is recorded to show the general results of the Tuesday elections. To quote the associated press in this morning's papers:

Final returns held the answer today to the bold Democratic bid for control of Congress in Tuesday's election. Republican majorities in both the Senate and House were at the vanishing point with the decision hanging on late reports from outlying districts in half a dozen states. In the drive for the House, the Democrats were still within striking distance of a majority with about 20 doubtful Republican districts still to announce.

The opposition party had captured 44 Republican seats in the House and had elected 208 members against 205 for the Republicans. The Democrats raided the Midwestern States of Ohio, Indiana Illinois and Missouri for the big portion of their advances. They were leading for five unreported Kentucky districts now Republican.

They had taken eight Senate seats from the Republicans and were leading in two other contests to give them a chance for a plurality of one and an even division of the 96 members which carries with it probable control of the Senate organization.

A last minute bid by Senator Schall, Republican, Minnesota, to overcome a 12,000 lead of his Democratic opponent Einar Hoidal, left the Senate result in doubt.

The contest for control of the House at 9 p. m. (EST) Wednesday showed the Democrats and Republicans evenly divided with the decision resting on the outcome in 26 doubtful districts in which 25 are now represented by Republicans. Democrats were leading in five of the Kentucky districts in the doubtful column which are now held by Republicans.

Standing In House
The results compiled by the Associated Press at that hour were: Republicans elected, 204; Democrats elected, 204; Farmer-Labor, 1; Doubtful, 26; Democratic gains, 41; Republican gain, 1; Necessary for majority, 218.

Topping its triumph, the Democratic re-elected Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in New York by the most startling plurality on record—upwards of 725,000. It battered precedents to pieces in Maryland in sending Governor Albert C. Ritchie into his fourth consecutive term.

While both of these prohibition repeals were heightening their margins Pennsylvania was sending Gifford Pinchot to the Governor's chair for a second time. A booster of the national dry laws, his candidacy was fought by fellow Republicans who favored the anti-prohibition candidate on the Democratic Liberal ticket, John M. Hemphill.

Forces opposed to the present dry laws hailed the vote results, especially the weighty opposition to Prohibition registered in the Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts referendum, as presaging repeal. The organized dries, on the other hand, predicted the new Congress, like the present one, would be preponderantly for the Eighteenth amendment.

Massachusetts elected a Democratic Governor and Senator and overthrew the Baby Volstead act.

WARDEN BUKER RESIGNS

Will Be Succeeded By Rhode Island Warden Who Was Nearly Killed By Desperado

When the report of the survey of the State Government was made public a few days ago it was found to contain very definite criticism of the State Prison management. Rather than embarrass the State Prison Commission Col. George A. Buker promptly and voluntarily offered his resignation to H. H. Hastings chairman of the board.

The resignation was not made known until Tuesday afternoon, however, and coupled with it came the announcement that Warden Charles E. Linscott of the Rhode Island State, a native of Maine by the way, would succeed Col. Buker.

In the report of the survey of the State government by the National Institute of Public Administration released recently Warden Buker was said to have "neither the industrial nor the penological experience to fit him to his duties."

"Discipline is not good owing chiefly to the lack of systematic work for all able bodied prisoners, the employment of poorly qualified guards at ridiculously low wages... and the custom which has grown up in previous years of permitting guards and prisoners to mingle promiscuously," the report said.

According to the report the per capita costs at the prison, $14.88 daily during 1929, "are unusually high," and the prison industries "are now at low ebb."

"Of the 200 prisoners 40 were 'wholly idle in their cells' while the majority of the remainder had only part-time maintenance, the report said, and 'this condition is without justification, although partly excusable on the ground of the recent discontinuance of the shirtmaking industry.'"

In the belief of the makers of the report there is no need for a warden at $3,000 and a deputy warden at $2,500 "if prisoners are properly employed and under supervision of competent guards."

The report recommended that the position of deputy warden be abolished and "a full time, experienced warden be appointed."

The resignation of Warden George A. Buker was not made known here until Tuesday, it being the Colonel's desire that it should come through Chairman H. H. Hastings of the prison commission to whom it was made.

My withdrawal was entirely voluntary," Col. Buker told The Courier-Gazette reporter and there had been no intimation that it would be asked for. I resigned because of the criticisms contained in the report on a survey of the State government, and in order that the prison commission might not be put in an embarrassing position. My resignation is at the will of the commission, but I expect my successor to take charge about Dec. 1.

"In reply to the survey's statement that I have had neither industrial nor penological experience to fit me for my duties I can only say that all of my predecessors have been residents of Maine and were also without experience.

"As far as the prison industries are concerned everybody knows that times and conditions have necessarily wrought changes. The sleigh making department had become obsolete and was not making a new dollar for an old. Harness making had declined to a low point, and when Overseer Charles E. Shorey resigned a few days ago a competent successor could not be found; indeed it is doubtful if the department would have been reopened anyway. Broom-making was discontinued because of the trouble with contracts. About the only departments now in operation are broomworking and paint shops and these furnish employment for only about 35 of the 200 men in the prison. Others are engaged in making interior repairs. The State Farm has been increased from 40 to 60 acres, with a consequent increase in the crew.

"We have endeavored to secure new industries, but because of the said, and 'this condition is without justification, although partly excusable on the ground of the recent discontinuance of the shirtmaking industry.'"

Col. Buker expects to resume his former business of manufacturing supplies for roadside stands. He has held his present position three years and seven months.

Linscott Resigns

Warden Charles E. Linscott of the Rhode Island State Prison submitted his resignation to the State Public Welfare commission in order to assume charge of the State Prison at Thomaston. He has been warden in Rhode Island for 13 years. Last April 19 when desperados murdered two men in an unsuccessful jail delivery attempt, Linscott was saved from death by the jamming of a gunman's revolver.

THE DAVIS CASE AGAIN

Signs of Activity Indicate the Possibility That There Will Be a Sequel To Port Clyde Tragedy

A sensational sequel to the tragic death of William Davis, 11 year old son of Carlos Davis of Port Clyde, is regarded as possible by those who have noted the revival of activities connected with the case. Investigation of this case was reopened a few days ago by Attorney General C. F. Robinson, with the result, it is said that many persons have been interrogated.

The prospect that there may be arrests has caused the southern end of the county to seethe with excitement, as the topic has been hotly argued ever since the bruised body of the missing Davis boy was located in a Port Clyde ice pond early last June.

Because of the presence of bruises on the boy's head Medical Examiner H. W. Frohock asked for an investigation which was made, without result, by the sheriff's department.

The father had expressed himself as suspicious of foul play because the boy had bled at the ears, but Medical Examiner Frohock found no trace of blood in that quarter, although there were flecks of blood on the mouth where the boy's lower lip had been cut, evidently by his teeth.

There was a discolored area around the left ear, and marks on the head, but no fracture of the skull, according to the medical examiner.

A verdict of accidental drowning was rendered, but the burial was deferred in order that disinterment might not be necessary in case an autopsy was deemed necessary. And a second investigation was followed by an autopsy, which resulted in four findings.

First—The immediate cause of death was drowning.

Second—The boy was probably unconscious when he reached the water.

Third—The findings indicate that the boy was too weak to struggle.

Fourth—The violence which the boy received was of such a character as to render him unconscious only.

This verdict was signed by Medical Examiner Frohock who made the autopsy with Dr. Long of the State Board of Health, and by Dr. Walter D. Hall and P. W. Wheeler. Wheeler was a special investigator who had been sent to Port Clyde by the Attorney General's department.

The action of the grand jury, following a third investigation made by Attorney General Robinson in person, is awaited with extreme interest.

AWAITING A FAIR WIND

Stanley Boynton, With School Friend, In Arizona—Ready To Break Another Record

The latest word which has been received at the Rockland Airport concerning Stanley Boynton's West to East flight came yesterday morning in the form of a night letter message to Captain Wincapaw. It was dated Mesa, Arizona, Nov. 4 (Tuesday) and read:

"I am here with my friend Phil Tower and will stay until I get a good fair wind. Landing in the dark last night did not hurt the ship, as it happened to be a good field. I have the ship tied down near the school, and will wire you when I am ready to start East. My total time from Los Angeles was 3 hours and 30 minutes."

Due to the fact that Boynton arrived at Los Angeles late Saturday and at an airport 25 miles distant from the one at which he had been expected the newspapers in the California metropolis covered the event much more scantily than otherwise might have been the case.

The Courier-Gazette is indebted to William S. Healey of Glendale, Calif., former treasurer of Knox County, for copies of the Los Angeles Times and the Examiner. The Times said:

"Stanley C. Boynton, 18-year-old Lexington (Mass.) student who left Rockland, Me., Saturday, last, in a small monoplane in an attempt to lower the junior trans-continental record, landed Saturday at 4:40 p. m., at the Los Angeles Municipal Airport, which elapsed time for the flight of 24 hours, 2 minutes, breaking the record set by Robert Buck, New Jersey youth, two weeks ago, by more than three hours.

Boynton told a graphic story on his arrival here of the dangers encountered during the flight. He said that trying conditions were encountered from the start of the flight, where he was forced to fly blindly through the fog for more than two hours. His difficulties continued until almost the minute of landing in Los Angeles.

The youthful flyer left Needles Saturday afternoon and as he neared Los Angeles landed first at the Dyer Airport to ask his way to the Municipal Airport. As he left the Dyer Field, his motor stalled and for a few seconds the boy was unable to control his plane, but managed to revive his engine and landed safely at the Municipal Airport.

"I have learned one thing," Boynton said after his landing, "and that is that a long record flight is won by the man who is best able to navigate his ship. It's not the fastest plane, but the fact that a flyer can keep right on a straight line that wins races. I hope to better my record on the return flight."

The Examiner's report was in the nature of repetition as to statistics and facts.

THE LIONS CLUB

Hears About the Wiscasset Dyke and the Question of Materialism

The Lions Club had a good stormy day attendance yesterday, a scholarly address by Rev. George H. Welch and some prominent guests, among whom was Justice Harry Manser of the Superior Court, who will be the speaker at next week's meeting. Judge Manser is said to be one of the ablest toastmasters in the State, and the Lions are looking forward to next Wednesday when he will be a "full time" speaker.

The boys had a glad welcome for Fred H. Gabb, former district governor, who complimented the Rockland club on the excellent progress which it is making.

The new Wiscasset club was represented by its secretary, Harvey R. Pease; a member, Fred L. Pendleton; and the latter's son Chester. Other guests were Leon W. Sanborn of Vinahaven, Robert J. Foster of Boston and Dan Snow of the Rockland airport.

Mr. Pease came primarily to tell how the new Wiscasset club is helping boom the proposed dyke at Wiscasset, an extended article concerning which appeared in these columns a few weeks ago.

The State must soon replace the long rattletrap bridge between Wiscasset and Edgemoor, and is admitted the cost of another pile bridge would be at least $320,000. The proponents of the dyke plan admit that a dyke would cost three times as much, but that it would be a permanent structure which would create an inland fresh water lake with shores having a greatly enhanced real estate value. The dyke would probably take the form of a 70-foot embankment 3300 feet long.

The Rockland Lions after listening to Mr. Pease's inspiring message, voted to endorse the proposition 100 percent.

Attention was directed to the Winthrop charter night, which is Nov. 17. Rev. Mr. Welch chose the subject of "Materialism." Because we don't keep the habits our fathers did this is called the materialistic age, but there never has been a time when we have not chased false gods. We talk of a materialistic situation but we don't want to stop it. We wouldn't be willing to go back to those "good old days of candles, big families and drudgery. We have got a lot more time on our hands than we used to, and the problem is what to do with it."

ONE MAN'S IDEA
The suggestion that unemployed men fit for military service be invited to enlist in the army for one year was telegraphed to President Hoover by Julius Hochfelder, captain in the Army Reserve Corps. He proposed that men could learn a skilled trade during their period of service.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM
If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

"FIDDLE-DEE-DEE"
There once was a bird that lived up in a tree.
And all he could whistle was "Fiddle-dee-dee."
A very provoking, unimpassioned song
For once to be whistling the summer day long!
Yet always contented and busy was he
With that vocal recurrence of "Fiddle-dee-dee."
Hard by lived a brave little soldier of four.
That wined iteration repented him sore:
"I praise, Dear-Mother-Mine, fetch me my gun
For by our St. Cooke! the deed must be done
That shall presently rid all creation and me
Of that odious bird and his 'Fiddle-dee-dee!'"
Then out came Dear-Mother-Mine, bringing her son
His awfully truculent little red gun;
The stock was of pine and the barrel of tin.
The "bang" it came out where the bullet
The right kind of weapon I think you'll agree
For seldom all fowl that go "Fiddle-dee-dee!"
The brave little soldier quoth never a word.
But he up and he drew a straight bead
And, while that vain creature provokingly sang,
The gun it went off with a terrible bang!
Then loud, cried he "Fiddle-dee-dee!"
"I've put a quieten on 'Fiddle-dee-dee!'"
Out came then Dear-Mother-Mine, saying: "My son,
Right well have you wrought with your little red gun!
Hereafter no evil at all need I fear.
With such a brave soldier as You-My-Love here!"
She kissed the dear boy (the bird in the tree Continued to whistle his "Fiddle-dee-dee!") —Eugene Field.

ELECTION OVERTURNS

It requires little examination of the returns to convince the most skeptical that the election of Tuesday brought to a sweeping defeat to the Republican party. The causes contributing to the overturn were numerous and some of them easily understood. It is a period of general business and financial depression, and that always works ill to the party in power, which in the minds of many voters is held responsible for the conditions arising out of it. And however much the adherents of prohibition regret the fact, it is unquestionably true that the news of control of the congress and the sweeping victories in many of the States, is to be directly credited to the question of wet and dry, with adherents of the former scoring on the side of opposition to the national dry laws. It is too early by analysis of the vote to determine just where the matter stands, but it is evident that the opponents of prohibition have won for that side a victory which will encourage their further organized assaults upon the eighteenth amendment, with view to its removal from the constitution. There is lying ahead a great piece of work for the forces of prohibition. Those who for fifty years and more engaged in the service in Maine know what it means, and will bid their friends of other States be of good courage, pointing to Rome, which history assures us was a long time in building.

The resumption of the Dr. Cadman hour brings radio into special prominence on Sunday afternoon, when through that medium the noted speaker addresses audiences whose numbers run into the millions. A thing that in particular appeals to the listener in upon the gifted speaker, is not alone the torrent of his words, but the manner in which he marshals them as he plays upon that marvelous instrument the English language. Such speakers are all too rare.

The Central Maine Power Co. is having another employee's educational meeting (for employees and families) in Temple hall at 7.30 this evening. The program offers the following events: Overture, C. M. P. Orchestra; Meter Reading, Clayton Clark; Rates, Cost to Serve, H. L. Jackson; Selection, C. M. P. Orchestra; Fundamentals of Business, L. E. Jones; Our Services in Local Life and Industry, John M. Richardson, newspaper man; Military Tips, Gretchen Fletcher; Are Educational Courses Available to Employees, and if so, on what basis? Doris Sylvester; Some of the Duties of Town Representatives, Fred E. Shuman; Musical Sextette, Hannah Baker, Belinda Appleby, Leantha Rollins, Felicia Engelson, Becky Manks, Dorcas Sidersparker, Luella Davidson, accompanist; message from the management, George O. Smith; refreshments and social hour.

For the still greater convenience of patrons traveling by train, the Maine Central Railroad and other lines in New England, Nov. 1st, extended their ticket limits so that they are now good for 30 days excluding date of sale and are good for stop-overs at any point, on notice to conductor. That is, a person buying a local ticket, for example, between Bangor and Portland if he so desires, may on notice to conductor at time ticket is presented, stop over at any point between the two cities where train is scheduled to stop, a very convenient privilege that will eliminate the necessity of sending ticket into headquarters for redemption. This longer limit and stop-over privilege allows more advantages to patrons and will apply both to one way local and interline tickets, also to thirty day tickets sold on double one way fare basis.

Orders passed by the City Government Monday night ran into considerable money, but were felt by Mayor Richardson to be an absolute necessity. They called for the purchase of a Sargent snowplow, two new trucks for the highway department and 1000 feet of hose for the fire department. The salary resolve for the coming year was given a passage, and shows but two changes from last year. Miss "Peggy" Pratt, stenographer to the mayor and city treasurer was given an increase from $15 to $18 a week, and the salary of the chief engineer of the fire department was definitely fixed at $850, this giving him an opportunity to conduct personal duties outside of the Central Fire Station. G. W. Bachelier was granted a permit to hold six sparring exhibitions. W. J. Perry was licensed as a victualer at 275 Main street and Walter C. Dodge as victualer at Bachelier's golf course.

The National Lime Association in Washington, D. C. has published a Bulletin No. 180 entitled "Lime on Lawns and Flower Gardens." It presents tried and proven methods on lawn making, fertilization, care and maintenance. It tells how to make a compost and classifies many common flowering plants as to their lime requirement. A copy will be sent free to anyone requesting it.

Pansies, lilies, kingcups, daisies. Let them live upon their praises; Long as there's a sun that sets, Primroses will have their glory; Long as there are violets, They will have a place in story; There's a flower that shall be mine, 'Tis the little celandine.

Wordsworth. The poet was evidently familiar with celandine, but it sent me to my Nature's Program "Greater celandine: Swamp-wort, naturalized from Europe to the eastern United States. Webster gives: Celandine the lesser is called pile-wort, a species of ranunculus."

Where to look for it. Dry wasteland, fields, roadsides, gardens, near dwellings, April to September. It must be a common flower, but I don't know it when I see it. Well, for one thing, I have never posed as a botanist, only as a saunterer. I go out in the morning to get into God's pure air and sunshine, after 50 years spent indoors. People who never passed long hours indoors in a city, sometimes 7 a. m. to 12 p. m., cannot realize how irksome it becomes especially to a person born and brought up in the country. I was just reading of the death of that prominent Boston attorney, born in New London, N. H. He used to say, "Thank God I was born in the country." The story is told of a woman visiting a prison and reading to the inmates. Like many tactless people she selected: "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

"The heck they don't!" came a voice from one of the prisoners. It is 50 years Nov. 1, since I started working, most of the time since in the retail business, or in an office, until finally I said to myself: "Well, son, it hasn't been a short life and a merry one for you. Let's get out of doors for a while." And so like Henry David Thoreau I started walking, in fact became a saunterer.

Thoreau tells us: "I have met with but one or two persons in my life who understood the art of walking, that is, of taking walks—who had a genius, so to speak, for sauntering." I don't measure up to Mr. Thoreau's idea of a saunterer, but I think I will have to do my sauntering in my own way.

I often wonder if some of this modern poetry is really written by a person who loves nature or just words. He who intimately lives with nature doesn't have so much to say about it. He thanks God his lines are cast in the country, while the poet writes about nature, and lives in the city. Whittier lived in the country, loved it and wrote about it.

On, for boyhood's painless play, Sleep that wakes in laughing day, Health that mocks the doctors' rules, Knowledge never learned of schools, How the woodchuck digs his hole, How the ground mole sinks his well; How the robin feeds her young, How the oriole's nest is hung, Hand in hand with her he walks, Face to face with her he talks, Part and parcel of her joy, Blessings on the barefoot boy.

FUR BEARING ANIMALS

Correspondent Comments On Department of Education's Essay Contest

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— I do not know what your feelings are upon the subject, but in reference to an article on "Essays on Fur Topics" in your Nov. 1 issue it seems to me that the State Department of Education should not urge participation in any contest which furthers a merely commercial enterprise; and especially this one; at a time when our sister state of Massachusetts is endeavoring to pass a humane law for the relief of suffering among our fur-bearing animals.

It seems to me quite out of keeping with the purposes of an Educational Department.

IN SUPERIOR COURT

Grand Jury May Complete
Busy Session Today—
Traverse Jurors Report

Although the traverse jurors were not due to report until this forenoon, much business has already received attention in Knox County Superior Court, and those in attendance upon the term are openly expressing their admiration of the smoothness and facility with which court matters are being conducted by Justice Harry Manser of Auburn. Judge Manser, who was appointed to the bench in 1928 is a newcomer to Knox County, though already well known to some of the attorneys and Rockland citizens. His popularity with the court officials was promptly established. Judge Manser has long been prominent in public affairs in Androscoggin County, and a distinguished career at attorney preceded his appointment to the bench.

The assigned list for the present term contains 16 civil cases and there are seven on the unassigned list. Notice for trial has been filed in these cases:

Friday—Harry Carr vs. Joseph Dondis; Frank O. Keach vs. Lule E. Blackington; Welford L. Keene vs. John Treener; Doris Ballard vs. Harriet Porter; Doris Ballard vs. Morton Flanders; James O. Morton vs. John Buzzell and Ora R. Brown; Fitchburg Mutual Fire Insurance Co. vs. Robert Linstet; Burgess Forbes Co. vs. L. A. Grant; Morris Rudnick vs. George W. Bachelier.

The grand jury organized Tuesday morning with Chester B. Hall of Warren as foreman and William Brown of Rockland as clerk. That body has had a great deal of material to consider, including, it is rumored, a special investigation by the attorney general, Clement F. Robinson. Adjudgment today is possible, although several cases are yet to be presented. It is County Attorney L. R. Campbell's final appearance before the grand jury in that capacity, and he is receiving many assurances of the high regard in which everybody holds him.

WORDS from a WANDERER by Harry A. Daniels

Magic Valley of Texas.

Figures are uninteresting to the average reader; statistics are dull reading, but a few comparisons may be acceptable. We have all read many times of the huge size of the State of Texas, but you have to come here and start to travel over the State before you are impressed. Texas is 700 miles from El Paso across to Port Arthur, and 700 miles from the Panhandle down to Brownsville. And how far is 700 miles?

Well, 700 miles is from Rockland to Portland, to Boston to New York, to Philadelphia, to Wilmington, Del., to Baltimore, to Washington, to Richmond, Virginia, to Raleigh, N. C., down to Cape Fear, near Wilmington, North Carolina. That is the length of Texas. From Rockland, Maine to Wilmington, N. C. And how wide is Texas? Just as wide as from Rockland to Toledo or Columbus, Ohio. Maybe there is a better way to put it. Some of the readers of this column may have fought in France. France is a great nation. So we will take all of France, 200,000 square miles; add to it all of Belgium, 11,000 square miles; add all of Denmark, 15,000 square miles; add the countries of Greece and Switzerland—place them all in Texas, and we have over 1000 square miles left over, or half the State of Delaware.

Sure, you can put whole nations in Texas. You can take Mussolini and all of Italy, place them in Texas, and you have room left over for the king of Sweden and his whole country. Sometimes we hear talk of war with Japan. The whole empire of Japan, everything, is 200,000 square miles. You can put the whole business down in Texas—and have room left over for Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Delaware.

And so, when you start to travel over Texas, you have some job ahead of you. Texas is as big as the total area of Belgium, Cuba, Denmark, Greece, Haiti, Portugal, Switzerland and Norway—eight nations.

New Englanders make another mistake. Without giving the matter serious thought we take it for granted that everything started with the Mayflower or the Pilgrim's at Plymouth Rock. We date the first settlers from the colonies at Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Virginia. Here are a few figures. The name of the State, the year of the first settlement, the town first settled and by whom.

Maine, 1624, Bristol, English; New Hampshire, 1623, Dover, Puritans; Vermont, 1724, Ft. Dummer, English; Massachusetts, 1620, Plymouth, Puritans; Connecticut, 1635, Windsor, Puritans; Rhode Island, 1639, Providence, English; Virginia, 1607, Jamestown, English.

About 100 years before all this happened, we find the Spaniards had settled Tucson, Arizona; the Spaniards had also founded the city of St. Augustine, Florida, in 1565; they had settled in Santa Fe, N.M., before that, in 1581. At the time the Pilgrims were clearing the land around Plymouth, the French had landed and formed colonies in Louisiana and Texas; the Swedes in Delaware, and the Dutch on Manhattan Island, New York.

And so these chaps here have a history and "ancestors," too. France and Spain first ruled Texas; later it became a part of Mexico; then it was an independent republic, with a flag of its own; after that it was a part of the United States; then it seceded in 1861 and used the Confederate flag. And so altogether Texas has been under six flags—French, Spanish, Mexican, Independent, Confederate and United States. Match that record if you can.

You can find most any climate within the boundaries of this State, and in that particular it resembles California, although it is nearly twice as large. In the southern "Tip of Texas," along the Valley of the Rio Grande, where this is written, there are grapes, bananas, grapefruit, and the largest watermelons in the world. The climate is that of Palm Beach and Miami. Then as you go north, you run right up to the borders of Oklahoma and Colorado, and you are in the blizzard country—but still in Texas.

LAPUA MOVEMENT

Being An Explanation of Finland's Efforts To Combat Communism

Few subjects in this country have begun to attract more widespread attention than communism, a movement which is known to have its followers in Knox County. In Finland there is underway a counter-action known as "The Lapua Anti-Communist Movement."

Lauri Ingman, professor in the University of Helsinki, former prime minister and recently appointed archbishop of Finland, has written for the New York Tribune (Finnish newspaper) an elaborate article concerning the Lapua movement, and at the request of a number of local Finnish residents it is here republished.

1. The Rise Against Communism in Lapua

Towards the end of November of last year a dramatic scene was enacted at Lapua in South-Ostrobothnia. In this rural commune, one of the first to imprison the Bolshevist Russian soldiers stationed in the locality in the War of Liberation of 1918 and a district where after the war, Communism had gained extremely little foothold, notices were nailed up announcing the arrival of 400 Communist youths at a "Challenge-Festival" on the Russian pattern to be organized there. In consequence of this notice the station was thronged on the arrival of the train by serious-minded citizens who found the behaviour of the visitors so insulting that they compelled some of them to an unwilling prolongation of their train-journey.

Among those left at the station some were discovered to be armed, and as, in addition, they were attired in Russian red shirts, which they wore Russian fashion over their trousers, the assembled patriots, in spite of this welcome, an attempt was made to hold the festival, a number of local farmers arrived on the scene and demanded that a meeting where God was mocked and threats uttered against the independence of the country be immediately closed. This demand the local residents themselves carried into effect, at the same time treating the rowdy Communist youth to a hiding though in this respect restraint was shown that not a single complaint was afterwards lodged with the authorities.

2. The Conditions in Which the Lapua Movement was Born

This in itself insignificant demonstration was the origin of the Lapua Movement. To understand this fact the following should be borne in mind.

The Communist movement, led and financed from Russia, has, since 1918, become an independent State, gained a certain foothold chiefly in poorly-situated section of the population of the towns and rural districts. This is due to the violent agitation amongst this economically relatively poorly situated section of the population, the members of which have possibility of controlling the highly idealized picture of conditions in Soviet-Russia, "The Workers' Own State," painted for them by the Communist agitators. Amongst the educated classes and the actual farming population the movement has found no support. It need not be said that this agitation has been on the same lines, followed the same Muscovite directives, as elsewhere in Europe. Religion and morals are dragged in the line, patriotic feeling grossly affronted, passionate demands are made for the institution of political and social conditions in accordance with those of Soviet-Russia by revolutionary means, military and other espionage practised, and so on. The rostrum provided by Parliament, the meetings of municipal representatives, the Press, and have been misused to incite the population against the present social order, all the opportunities for wrongful use of privileges offered by a liberal legislation in respect of freedom of the Press, freedom of meeting and the right to form associations have been assiduously studied and put to use. On the part of the Government a careful watch has been kept over this activity against the State. Wherever a possibility has presented itself strict measures have been taken to check the activities of the Communists. Thus, in 1923, the whole group of Communist members of Parliament were arrested and sentenced to fairly long terms of imprisonment for treasonable acts, while at the same time the Communist Party was as such declared illegal and its activities forbidden. Since then a large number of Communist agents have been found guilty of criminal activity and duty sentenced. New agents, however, trained in Russia, have taken the place of those eliminated from the ranks. And so a state has been reached in which at the last political elections, the Communists, who now appeared under the name of the "Workers' and Small Farmers' Party," received the votes of altogether about 130,000 voters, obtaining in a Single-Chamber Parliament of 200 members altogether 23 seats. The existence and influence of this party does not as such denote any actual danger of a revolution in the country, but on the one hand it must be admitted that its effect in the long run is to undermine the moral standard of certain classes of the population, and on the other hand that the direct proximity of Russia might, in certain circumstances make the existence and activity of a party of this nature a source of considerable risk to the State. The latter circumstances, in particular, helps to explain why it is necessary to deal with Communism in a sterner spirit in Finland, and to adopt a different standard in criticizing anti-Communist activity, than in countries farther distant from Russia.

Further, in order to understand the Lapua Movement, it must be taken into account that the small farmers who compose the actual farming-class in Finland—farming on a large scale is rare in Finland—are serious-minded, hard working, highly patriotic men, to whom both political and social extravaganzas are alien. Strong religious currents move in this section of the population, especially in South-Ostrobothnia where Lapua is situated, and the brazen Communist propaganda against religion and moral was thus an affront to its most sacred feelings. In the Finnish War of Liberation, in which the farming population provided the overwhelming majority of the victorious army, it sacrificed much dear blood, and consequently the openly uttered threats of Communists to bring to naught the fruits of that war have sorely tried the patriotic instincts of the farmers.

These grave, silent men have nevertheless patiently endured the harmful activities of the Communists for years, though naturally with increasing resentment, until finally only a breath from without was needed to kindle this pent-up anger into flame. That breath was supplied by the influence of the Communist intrusion at Lapua.

FALL LIMING BEST

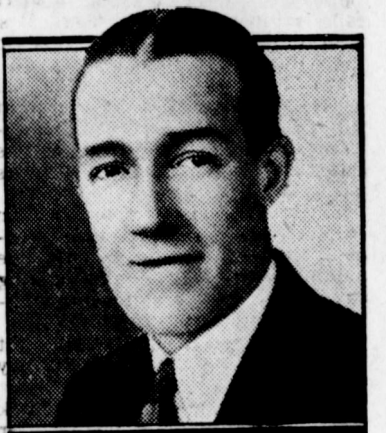

For the Lawns and the Gardens—Former Presents Troublesome Problem.

Fall is the time that the home gardener and suburbanite is quite likely to look back over his spring and summer efforts in lawn keeping and gardening. In appraising the results obtained, the errors loom large and plans are made for next spring which are designed to correct the difficulties.

One of the most troublesome problems to contend with is the lawn. Far too often, we lose sight of the fact that the lawn is a crop and if properly maintained, a permanent crop of beauty. Like all farm crops, lawn grasses require an agreeable seed-bed. Lawn and garden soils, through leaching and cropping, lose their lime content and become acid or "sour." This condition is easily corrected by applying a moderate application of lime every three to five years. The amount to apply varies with the soil requirement. If this operation has not been performed in recent years, fifty pounds of hydrated lime per thousand square feet (or equivalent in other materials) should be sufficient. By doing this work in the fall, the lime neutralizes considerable of the soil acids by spring.

In addition to lime, rotted manure or compost may also be applied in the fall. This should be well distributed over the surface of the lawn and worked into the grass with a rake. Commercial fertilizer is quite generally applied early in the spring to supply the necessary plant foods and give the grass a quick, healthy start.

NOW, HE ENJOYS FOODS THAT USED TO DISAGREE

"For over five years it seemed like everything I enjoyed eating would disagree with me," says Charles L. Garman, 5438 Irving St., Philadelphia. "I suffered from headaches; was nervous; couldn't sleep right."

"I tried a lot of things for indigestion, but nothing really helped until my doctor started me on Pape's Diapepsin. I have used five packages and have gained five pounds. I eat anything—fried things, hot cakes; foods that used to disagree. I seldom feel the least discomfort nowadays, but when I do I just take a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and in a moment my stomach is all right."

When thousands like Mr. Garman are coming right out in public to praise Pape's Diapepsin, there seems no reason to doubt that it does what is claimed for it to help people who suffer from acid-dyspepsia, and the heartburn, gas, nausea, belching, biliousness, dizziness, etc., caused by this common ailment. But those who wish further proof before buying may easily have it. The makers agree to send anyone a trial package absolutely FREE. Just write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va.

Maine Boy is Strongest

"MY son, Leonard, suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was quite listless and weak," says Mrs. E. Savage, 553 Cumberland Ave. Portland.

"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I gave him California Fig Syrup because my mother used it. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Since then I have used California Fig Syrup myself with benefit as a laxative."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

SUN AND THE RADIO

The effect of eclipses of the sun on radio communication is one of the scientific mysteries whose solution rests with the future.

Radio engineers, appraised of the fact that receiving sets at Honolulu acted strangely, distorting messages about the eclipse, said that the effect of eclipses is a puzzle that radio experts have struggled in vain to solve.

George Milne, division engineer of the National Broadcasting Company, said that during the last eclipse in the United States, government and amateur radio men conducted tests whose results were conflicting.

The sun, Mr. Milne said, has a decided effect on radio waves. For instance a broadcast receiver in New York will pick up messages at night from Chicago it would not pick up in daylight because the sun absorbs radio energy. Theoretically, therefore, reception during an eclipse should be better, but it apparently wasn't. Just why it wasn't no one knows. Mr. Milne said.

The fact that the receivers at Honolulu emitted a grinding noise indicated static, the engineer said. This in turn is a manifestation of a magnetic storm. Such storms, which are generally understood to bear a relation to sun spots, have been unusually bad during the past summer.

LAST IMPORTANT DROUGHT

The last nation-wide drought comparable to the one this year occurred in 1901. There have been five such droughts since the close of the Civil War. In 1901 according to the government, corn yielded an average of 17 bushels to the acre; this year, it is estimated, the yield will be about 19 bushels.—The Pathfinder

Oh, suns and skies and clouds of June
And all of June to gether.
You cannot rival for one hour
October's bright blue weather.

Last week the weather was unusually warm, the sky hazy, the earth dry and dusty from the prolonged drought—the trees one riotous mass of yellow and red intermingled with the dark green of the pine and fir, truly a gorgeous sight. Today all is changed. The rain has washed the dust from the grass and leaves, the days are very cool, the sky is of a deep clear blue, and where last week the trees were covered with brightness, now they are brown, with leaves falling to the ground, leaving bare the branches.

Today as I came from school I saw a gray squirrel scamper across the road and climb a tree. The little fellow no doubt was after nuts for his winter's store. And apples—there are bushels of apples—"in piles like jewels shining"—on the ground, that are of no value because of the railroad worms which infest them. If they were picked up and pressed into "apple juice" would those who drank it ever think of the number of worms that had helped to flavor it?

These cool mornings Medomak Lake is beautiful with its cloud of gray mist hanging over and reflected back as the sun shines upon it. Take a walk through the woods and listen to the beechnuts fall like raindrops patter, patter, to the ground, while in the distance are a flock of crows on their way southward. All these and many more mute reminders that the year is going down the declivity and soon Mother Earth will be covered with a blanket of snow, to sleep until the warm winds of March awaken all her little children and call them once more to make glad the hearts of men.

I love the merry springtime
When the pussy willows shed
Their leather coats and wear
Their soft white furs instead.
I love the golden summertime
When flowers bloom so fair,
When singing birds and humming bees
Are flying in the air.
I love the glorious autumn
With its riot of red and gold,
With skies of blue, with frosty nights,
And mornings crisp and cold.
I love the winter's soft white snow
That sparkles in the sun
And hides the bare brown earth until Another year's begun.

BEST MEDICINE SHE KNOWS OF

Says "Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound"

Ft. Meyers, Fla.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine I ever heard of. Before my baby was born I was always weak and rundown. I had nervous spells until I couldn't do my housework. A lady told me about the Vegetable Compound and it strengthened me. Beside my own housework I am now working in a restaurant and I feel better than I have in three years. I hope my letter will be the means of leading some other woman to better health."

Mrs. BERTHA RIVERS, 2914 Polk St., Ft. Meyers, Florida.

1920-7. The old Socony Motor Oil . . . a splendid lubricant for the motor of that period. Outsold all others in New York and New England.

1928-9. Socony Aircraft Oil—a vastly improved motor oil; the oil most in demand in New York and New England during this period.

And NOW—the New Socony Motor Oil. Perfected, proved in every way! Even better than "Aircraft" for your car.

THE LONGEST FORWARD STEP IN MOTOR OIL!

the new SOCONY MOTOR OIL

Perfected
... proved
in every way!

(Even better than "AIRCRAFT" for your car)

THIS is an announcement so important to every automobile owner that we put aside all technical language and tell it to you in the simplest words.

We have produced the new Socony Motor Oil which gives you—to a greater degree than any other—what you want and should have in a motor oil. . . full lubricating value.

In the new Socony Motor Oil "full lubricating value" means something more than it ever has meant before. For we have perfected and proved for you not just one or two but every characteristic a motor oil should have.

We have worked for more than two and a half years developing this finer lubricant. We have had at our disposal the most highly trained engineers and the most modern research laboratories. We have had the pick of the choicest crude oils and the most up-to-date refineries in the United States. We have had the benefit of 55 years of experience in the manufacture of lubricating oils.

We sincerely believe you will find the new Socony Motor Oil the ideal lubricant for your motor. We invite you, we urge you, to try it.

5 reasons for changing today to the New Socony Motor Oil

- 1. Perfected Lubrication. Less wear on your motor. The new Socony Motor Oil is made from a Paraffine Base crude, selected because of its greater inherent oiliness (adsorption). Refined by the new and exclusive Socony Process which gives additional lubricating value.
- 2. Minimum Oil Consumption. Will not break down. No engine heat or pressure severe enough to decompose this oil or destroy its lubricating value. Only through contamination by foreign matter which finds its way into the crankcase can the life of this oil be limited.
- 3. Easy Starting in Coldest Weather. Selected Paraffine Base Oil . . . completely dewaxed. More fluid at low temperatures than any other oil. Instant lubrication. Less drain on your battery.
- 4. Fuel Economy and Increased Power. Maintains proper "body" at all engine temperatures. Result: perfect piston seal, maximum power, minimum fuel consumption.
- 5. A Clean Motor. New refining process reduces to a minimum all harmful elements which cause carbon, gum and sludge. The new Socony Motor Oil insures a clean motor.

Every statement regarding the superiority of the new Socony Motor Oil is substantiated by actual performance tests in the air, on land, and on the water—certified by recognized authorities.

OBSERVED GUEST DAY

Lady Knox Chapter, D.A.R., Has Delightful Meeting At Home of Mrs. Thurston

The attractive home of Mrs. Clara Thurston at The Highlands was opened Monday afternoon for Lady Knox Chapter, D.A.R., to observe guest day. The autumn day was an ideal one, and the first glimpse of the guests, arriving by motor and trolley had, was of "Old Glory" flying in front of the stately old colonial house. Red berries and pine were used as effective house decorations, with bouquets of chrysanthemums displayed in the living rooms and hall. There were 75 members and guests present. Mrs. Suella Sheldon, regent, presided.

Mrs. Copping presented two of her pupils, Miss Faith Ulmer and Mrs. Lorna Post Pendleton, in a brief program which gave much pleasure. Mrs. Post's songs were: "I Salute Thee, Old Glory" and "A Brown Bird Sings"; and Miss Ulmer sang "Sons of Liberty" and "Top o' the Mornin'"; together they sang as a duet "The Americans Come," stirring patriotic episode of the late War. Mrs. Copping accompanied.

Judge E. K. Gould, State historian of the Sons of the American Revolution, as guest speaker, gave an interesting address on the subject "Gleanings from the Past," covering briefly some of the soldiers and sailors of Knox County who figured in the Revolutionary War, many of whom are "unknown, unhonored and unsung." His information was drawn from the biography he is preparing of the men from Knox County, numbering about 500, who were in the war for Independence. Judge Gould displayed many interesting photographs of commissions signed by John Hancock, secured while working in the Bureau of Pensions at Washington, D. C. He is the possessor of a wealth of historical data on this subject which is dear to his heart, and his work promises to be of high value to posterity.

An expression of appreciation was made by Mrs. Sheldon to both Mrs. Copping and Judge Gould for the pleasure given to the members and guests.

During the social hour refreshments were served by the committee composed of Mrs. Thurston, Mrs. Alice Karl, Mrs. Ann Butler, Mrs. Adelaide Butman, Mrs. Mary Perry, Mrs. Alice Cobb, Miss Ada Perry, Mrs. Annie Simmons, Mrs. Angelica Glover, Mrs. Myra Bridges, Mrs. Anne Haskell and Mrs. Amy Nutt.

At a meeting of the executive board Mrs. Carlson of Owl's Head was voted into membership, being transferred from the Mary Dilling-Chapter, D.A.R., of Lewiston-Auburn.

The next meeting will be Monday, Dec. 1, with Mrs. Irene Moran, when Mrs. Alice Karl as leader will present a program in keeping with the Christmas season.

DISABLED "VETS"

Mrs. Anne Snow Inspects Interesting Work They Are Doing At Togus

Mrs. Anne Snow, National committeewoman of the American Legion Auxiliary, has returned from Togus where she spent a few days inspecting the occupational therapy work being carried on among the disabled World War veterans. Mrs. Ellis is in charge of this work, introducing the phases. Articles will be made by the men and sold for their benefit, their work including woodwork, leather working, knitted articles, etc.

In the morning Mrs. Ellis works among the men who are confined to the hospital, and in the afternoon she meets in her office others who are able to get about. Loans are provided for rug making, models of boats are made, rag rugs are sewn, as parts of this work. The men display a keen interest in the project, not only that it occupies them and teaches a trade, but that it provides financial benefit for them. A second-hand Victrola is much needed. Mrs. Snow will be interested to hear from anyone who has one to contribute.

Mrs. Snow, along with the many honors she has won in her vital work with the American Legion Auxiliary, has recently been appointed National Eastern Divisional Chairman of the charge of all the New England States National poppy committee, having New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. The appointment involves an enormous amount of detail, particularly in publicity for the various units. It is a very important commission to be held, and with the honor for the State of Maine is a marked one. It is needless to say that Mrs. Snow with her brilliant executive ability will discharge the duties of the position with her usual efficiency.

MAINE INDUSTRIES

Walter Wyman Tells of
Some Things Being Done
To Upbuild Them

[Kennebec Journal]

"As the result of applying modern business methods to the textile mills under our direction we are able to show conclusively today that cotton goods can be made as well and as cheaply in the State of Maine as anywhere in the country," said Walter S. Wyman, president of the Central Maine Power Company and of the New England Public Service Company, speaking Friday evening at the largest attended meeting of the Augusta Rotary Club this season.

Mr. Wyman recounted the efforts of the New England Industries corporation, financed by the New England Public Service Company and by Chicago interests with which it is affiliated to resurrect the cotton textile manufacturing industry in this state. At the present time the organization includes five great mills—the Edwards Manufacturing Co., the Bates Manufacturing Co., the Hill Manufacturing Co., the York Manufacturing Co. and the Andros-cornth Mills.

The speaker described the "royal family" system of management and control in effect for a generation or more prior to the acquisition of the properties by the New England Industries. This old system of distant, ineffectual and unsympathetic supervision has been abolished and officers and offices moved to Augusta where they are now functioning in the former Hegarty house, owned by the Central Maine Power Co. and adjacent to its central administration building.

"We believe that the function of a mill is to run, to make cloth, meet the styles and the market and sell its products," said the speaker. "We do not intend to wait until the styles of Paris have been rubbed into us by some competitor, but to have our own representative in Paris to keep us informed. We intend to bend our efforts to providing employment for the people who have been gathered about the mills in that expectation."

Very recently we convinced a very conservative gentleman that we can save him 15 percent if he will locate his mill in the State of Maine, rather than in the Southern states toward which he inclined, because others were moving Southward. We have recently changed our selling quarters in New York and stirred the personnel up so that they know we expect them to market our goods. We have installed modern machinery so that we can compete with any textile mill in the country.

There is a tendency to pick on industries in Maine that is not quite understandable. I read in the papers today that 500 people were going to meet to register their protest against the dust from the new Rockland cement mill. That is not the right spirit. Somebody else is going out and tear down the bill-boards so that the scenery of the State can be more available for the people from Massachusetts to come in and enjoy. You can't live on scenery."

Before speaking on the textile situation in Maine, Mr. Wyman touched upon conditions as they are reported throughout the country and all over the world. Calling attention to that this nation is the richest in the world with more grain and more food and more manufactured clothing and commodities, people are yet suffering for these very things.

"Something is wrong somewhere and we have got to give it very serious thought and attention. Man will not starve in the midst of plenty, and there is no reason why he should. The immediate remedy as I see it is for the Federal government to dip in, as it can in the matter of our incomes, and launch a great program of public building to give employment to the thousands of workers who cannot find work. Build libraries and public buildings and post offices. The money to do it with must come from those who have it,—those who have made money from the labor of other people."

IN MINOR DISASTERS

American Red Cross Called Upon In Ninety Instances

Although the last year has been marked by no disaster of magnitude, the American Red Cross was called upon to administer relief in 90 small domestic disasters scattered among 38 States and involving 147 counties. Several of the States were visited with different types of disasters. Classification of types shows that 30 were due to tornadoes and wind storms, 17 to floods and 43 to fires and other causes.

Relief to sufferers cost $388,175, of which $224,349 was allotted from the National Red Cross treasury, the remainder being raised by public contributions. This does not include the allotments to insular disasters or gifts to foreign countries in distress, made by the national Red Cross headquarters.

Only ten calamities were severe enough to require relief directors from the national Red Cross staff. These operations were financed wholly or in part by national Red Cross funds. In 34 instances, the relief was directed by local Red Cross chapters with advisory and financial aid from the national organization. The rest were directed and financed entirely by chapters acting under the advice of the national staff.

The most severe disaster of the year was the overflow last winter of the White and Wabash rivers in lower Indiana and Illinois, where the suffering was intensified by zero weather. In this relief work, army airplanes were used to carry food and fuel to marooned refugees. At this time there also occurred floods in southeastern Missouri and north-eastern Arkansas, which required aid.

The Red Cross went into action last December when a mine explosion killed 61 men at McAlester, Oklahoma, leaving a large number of dependent families. In May, a fire swept through Nashua, New Hampshire, leaving 1,500 persons homeless. Relief was conducted under a unit sent from the national headquarters.
