in this state will be permitted to secure their supply of wheat flour in exchange for their own wheat at the mills.

It has long been the custom of farmers bringing their own wheat to receive in exchange their annual supply of flour. Nothing in the present Food Administration regulations prevents the continuation of this cus tom except that the general wheat conservation rules require wheat flour to be delivered only with one pound of substitutes for each four pounds of wheat flour.

Such substitutes cannot always be handled by small country mills, and a year's supply of some of the substitutes is likely to spoil. Under these circumstances it has been considered desirable where farmers are willing to pledge a strict compliance with the program of the Food Administration to permit the delivery of flour to them without substitutes in exchange of their own wheat.

Many farmers grow their own substitutes, and it is not desired in this case to force them to buy other substitutes, provided that proper compliance with the Food Administration program can be obtained without this requirement.

It is pointed out by the Food Administration that farmers who are unwilling to sign the pledges may still obtain wheat flour on the same basis as other individuals by purchase in the market.

Millers in Maine have been authorized upon the signing of the pledges to deliver wheat flour to farmers without substitutes. The amount of wheat flour so delivered must not exceed the amount which can be actually extracted from the farmer's own wheat, and in determining the amount of flour necessary for actual requirements, farmers should remember they must certify that they will use at least 20 per cent of substitutes with standard flour.

There is nothing in the Food control Act which prevents a farmer from selling wheat of his own production to any person or persons. Any person bringing wheat to a mill for grinding, by presenting a certificate that the same was produced in Maine, may have flour from the wheat up to an amount not to exceed his annual requirements provided he takes with each four pounds of standard flour one pound of wheat flour substitutes. No substitutes are required with graham or whole wheat flour.

MUST SECURE LICENSE.

The Food Administration has called attention to the fact that shippers of hay, potatoes, and apples, except farmers who are marketing products of their own growing, are required to take out a license. Persons shipping these commodities should

BEAUTIFUL THOUGHTS We can find our highest pleasure In this day of sore distress, Filling to their fullest measure Others' cups with tenderness

Serving God-in serving others-Making sunshine where we are, Tired, troubled sisters, brothers, Find the leading of Hope's star. There is no such other pleasure.

There is no more Heaven-like bliss, There is no more worthy treasure To be found on earth than this.

Dear M. B. Friends:

Doubtless there was never a time in the lives of any of us when there was so great a strain on the entire human family as at present. The poem expresses that condition in the first stanza-"this day of sore distress," and in the second it refers to the "tired, troubled sisters and brothers."

Now, if good cheer is to be given to all such, it must be done individually. It means the personal touch as we meet one n ther. It does not mean a careless way of greeting those in estecially hard places. Some of the Red Cross work may be suggestive of pain and suffering, but it does not follow that one must keep that in mind to the exclusion of cheerfully helping in that line. Think, rather, that the help given is going to ease some soldier's condition, or, perhaps, to save his life.

One of the blessings of this couffict is the fact that all classes have worked todistress. Class distinctions are, for the most part, doue away with, and the busy workers, side by side, can help each other in the various duties they are asked to perform, so a chain of mutual helpfuiness can encircle, as it were, the world.

Anna Steese Richardson, who has returned from a trip to France, in the "Soldiers All" page of October Woman's Home Companion, writes many things which are informing and interesting. I co, y a few of them:

Home folks can give their best and most effective support through letters. There is nothing so important in your war job as the letters you write-and this is true, whether the man to whom you write is your son, your husband, your sweetheart, your most distant young relative, or your neighbor's boy. Let e s must be frequent, for some are Do not wait until you receive a letter ng "Yours of the - received." When you have unraveled the snari, write him a letter which breathes, not the trouble you have had, but the efficiency you have shown. USE SUBSTITUTES IN BREAD.

Although a Victory Mixed Flour. containing 20 per cent substitutes mixed at the mill, will be available for consumers the coming year in as many places as it is economically possible, there will be some considerable amount of straight wheat flour sold. And when the straight wheat flour is bought with 20 per cent substitutes, every ounce of these substitutes should be mixed with the flour at any time. and should be used only for human consumption, according to Federal Food Administrator Leon S. Merrill.

What the Food Administration desires to get into the minds of the heusewives of the country is that they should use the 20 per cent substilutes and mix them with the gave out twice. Straight wheat flour for all purpos- over there, but es", said Administrator Merrill. the substitutes are not used in baking, the housewife is not making a war bread and she is not maintaining an economy in the consumption of wheat.

"In the new list of authorized substitutes the breakfast foods have been eliminated. This was done with view of driving home this particular phase of the problem. ures now obtainable indicate that easy-going, pleasure-loving America will emerge from the great struggle holding first place in the thrift con-test. The assertion is made on the authority of Milton W. Harrison, sec-retary of the savings bank section of the American Bankers Association.

The exigencies of war have laid bare the resources and economic possibilities of all the nations, he says, since at the bottom of all efforts to raise money by loans or taxation lies the essential factor of the ability of the people to save. Switzerland has always been point-ed out by economic writers as leading the nations as a "saver." Next to Switzerland these writers have placed Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, France, Netherlands, Germany, and Great Britain, the United States occupying a place at the foot of the list with a percentage of only 11. On the face of recent calculations this percentage is obviously incorrect.

The only fair comparison which can e made in order to determine the potential savings ability of the world is to take the figures of France, Great Britain, the United States and Ger-many, Mr. Harrison save, Not until many, Mr. Harrison says. Not until these countries were faced with the supreme tests of the great war were they able to determine the extent of their respective resources. Of course, America had the greatest opportunity of all to build a firm financial foundation at the obvious expense of the other three nations while it was a neutral nation, he is careful to point out, and this has proved immensely valuable to the allied cause. Excess capital and gold were forced to the United States creating a reserve which at present is being most advantageously used in the prosecution of the war. Counting as savings not only the money deposited in banks but also that invested in various enterprises for the development of industries, the large amount absorbed by insurance companies and other such agencies, the normal savings of Great Britain have been estimated at $1,500,000,000 per annum while those of the United States are placed at $6,500,000.000.

Before the war France was charac-terized as a nation of bond buyers. Great Britain as a nation of stockholders. Germany as a nation of sav-ings-bank depositors, and America as a nation of life insurance policy holders. Still the amount of actual sav-ings, including time certificates of deposit in the 28,000 banks of the United States total something over $9,500, 000.000 in 26,500,000 accounts. The The amout of such deposits in England is $1,250,000,000 in 16,500,000 accounts: France, $1,000,000,000 in 15,000,000 in France, $1,000,000,000 in 15,000,000 accounts, while in Germany: the amount of savings is $6,000,000,000 in 25,000,000 accounts which is less than that of America by $1,500,000. The way in which Great Britain, France, America and Germany have absorbed war loan after war loan is excellent evidence of national savings ability, Mr. Harrison says, and the United States topnotches them all. An estimate of 25 million holders of ing made to urge the people to re-duce consumption and increase pro-duction, there should be a saving this year that will almost equal the proposed total expenditures for war $24.000,000,000

$24,000,000,000. America has the wealth, the re-sources, the ability, and the inclina-tion, which is more than all, to suc-cessfully and properly finance the family free to develop himself to the Expansion and invention are historical children of war even in de-feated countries. "ollowing the Civil War came the opening of the West and the industrial development of the South. Manufacture and agriculture in France and Germany were stimu-lated by the Franco-Prussian War. Spain awoke both politically and in-dustrially as an immediate result of the Spanish-American War while Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines each saw a development of agriculture and commerce before unknown. Economic development and serious attempt to secure for her products a place in the world's markets came to the fore in Japan following the Russo-Japanese War and Russia at that time saw the beginning of industrial occupation.

Just what roads progress will take after this war cannot now be definitely stated, but it comes certain that they will be many ind that the country will enter upon a period of greater prosperity than it has known. The advent of those prosperous days can be hastened by a prompt and liberal purchase of Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds.

VALUE OF MONEY.

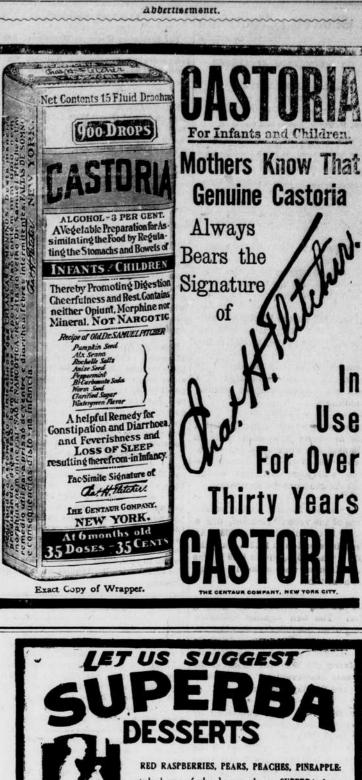

That three great public works should have been constructed in this country during the Civil War which ranks as one of the most exhaustive and expensive wars in history, is proof conclusive that economic prosproof conclusive that economic pros-perity need be in no serious danger in the present war. The three great works were the building of the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific Rall-roads and the laying of the Atlantic cable. The telegraph was developed as a military necessity during the war and came into general use. The United States is now rich in The United States is now rich in money. As things stand, her citizens can well afford to more than subscribe the full amount of the new Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan, and, from the economic standpoint, do it as a safe and sane personal invest-ment. As the bonds can be bought on the $1 a week instalment basis every citizen can have a share in this every cluzen can have a share in this prosperity to an extent never before offered to the American people. Sav-ings thus invested bring a good yearly interest and furnish a capital that will be of higher purchasing value when the bonds come due than the same amount of money is today.

HOW THE MAN AT HOME FIGHTS

To the one who must do his fighting in the trenches back here at home it almost seems as though he really were in the trenches, throwing bombs, mak-In the trenches, throwing bombs, mak-ing charges and, always, going over the top, when he knows exactly what the money he is putting into Liberty Bonds is doing for things on the other side. Then when he reads the papers he may think it was his bomb that was placed in that hero's hands, or that it placed in that hero's hands, or that it was he who gave that soldier his equipment. He knows, then, that he really is fighting in the trenches, that the more he gives the harder he fights and the sooner the day will come when the victory is won and he can throw up his hat and shout for the boys as they come sailing home.

United States tophotches them all, An estimate of 25 million holders of American Government securities is fairly conservative, allowing for du-plications, he says. With the liftensive efforts now be-the more than the papelle to re-the more the papelle to re-the more the papelle to re-the more than the papelle to re-the more the papelle to re-the soldiers. Just now much one is doing for his country when he purchases a $50 Lib-erty Bond has been computed by the United States Government in order that each purchaser may have a reas-onably definite idea of what the money 690. he is giving so freely, though it may be with much sacrifice, is doing to aid the great war which the sons of the nation are waging with that determi-nation which admits of no surrender, in far-off lands across the sea. He who purchases one $50 bond may have the satisfaction of knowing that that sum of money will send 1,000 three-inch tranch mortar shells on their way; or, it may provide the burst-ing charge for 100 three-inch trench mortar shells; or it may provide three fragmentation drop bombs; or 110 hand grenades; or 50-37 mm. shell; or two rifles; or knives, forks and spoons for an entire company of soldiers.

KEEP YOUR LIBERTY BONDS

Current market prices for the sev eral Liberty bond issues may be found on the financial page of any metropolitan daily newspaper. Merchants or others offering to pay more or take the bonds at high prices in payment of sods, are simply trying to effect sales with large profits. Bonds so taken are usually immediately sold in the mar-ket and such sales aggregating a large volume have formed one of the chief elements in depressing the market and thus hampering the Government. Lib-erty bond holders are advised not to pay for merchandise or other securi-ties with Liberty bonds. When bonds are to be sold it will usually be best to sell them for cash through a banker.

IS REAL HELL ON EARTH

Atlanta Lad Describes Sensations in Midst of an Air Raid in France. weeke m

Atlanta, Ga .- Charles M. Kimball, an Atlanta boy now at the front, tells in the following letter how it feels to be in the midst of an air raid in France:

"I was awakened by the bursting of shrapnel from a dozen anti-aircraft guns," he writes, "not more than 300 yards away, and in a few seconds came the first thundering report of the air bombs.

"I crouched defenseless at the foot of a tree after running from my dog tent, and was wearing my steel helmet and gas mask. The air bombs dug four holes so close to me that I could throw rocks from where I was standing and hit in one each time.

"The raid lasted about two hours, and when the 'all clear' was sounded I was satisfied that if there is a hell on earth it is to be near the objective of air raiders and with the humming of motors, the awful flaring of searchlights, the bursting of shrapnel, the boom of the anti-aircraft guns, the rattle of machine guns and the bursting of the air bombs, all round you, and in fact covering you with dirt and with pieces of shrapnel tearing the bark from the tree to which you are clinging.

"As I crouched beside that tree and looked at the women and children lying flat upon their faces unable even to speak, I wondered how long such torture was going to last. Surely not very long, for right and justice being upon our side we cannot help but win."

Albert James Dorgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dorgan of Ellsworth, died Thursday, Oct. 3, at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., where he was serving as head pharmacist of the post hospital, with rank of firstclass private.

Deceased was born in Ellsworth, January 9, 1898, and was educated in the public schools of this city. After graduating from the high school in 1916, e entered the pharmacy of the late George A. Parcher, remaining with C. E. Alexander, who succeeded Mr. Parcher. He enlisted in the medical corps on June 25, 1918, and a few days later was called to New York for service. He leaves besides his parents, five brothers and two sisters, a grandmother, Mrs. Anna Falls, and a grandfather, James Dorgau.

The body was brought here, accompanied by Sergt, Oscar Lape of the medical detachment at Fort Hamilton. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, Rev. P. J. Fianagan of St. Joseph's Catholic church, officiating, Mrs. E.J. Walsh sang. Sergt. Lape, Pvt. Thibadeau of the local exemption board, and four members of the coast patrol, No. 746, acted as bearers and military escort. Deceased was a clean-living, popular oung man, esteemed by all who knew him, and sympathy for the family is deep and sincere. This was expressed in many beautiful flowers, including a handsome piece from the medical detachment at Fort Hamilton. The esteem in which the young man was held by his comrades as also expressed in a personal letter of sympathy to Mrs. Dorgan.

JOHN W. ARMSTRONG

Ellsworth lost another of its sturdy older citizens to-day in the death of John W. Armstrong, after an illness of several veeks.

Mr. Armstrong was a life-long resident of Ellsworth. He was in the seventysixth year of his age. He was a Civil war veteran, and a member of Wm. H. H. Rice post.

100 He enlisted in August, 1864, served in the navy with the West Gulf blockading squadron, under Admiral Farragut. He was promoted to masterat-arms. He was mustered out at Philadelphia in 1865, after thirteen months service.

Mr. Armstrong, before and after the war, worked in the lumber mills for the Halls and Blacks on the lower dam. He was an expert gang sawyer. For some time after he death of Seth Hall, he was in charge of the Hall mill.

He was an upright, clean-living industrious citizen, one to tie to as a friend, and who had no enemies. He leaves a widow, one brother, Elias Armstrong of Ellsworth, and two sisters, Mrs. Lovinia J. Reeves of Bangor and Mrs. Mary Perkins of Ellsworth.

MANSEL B. YOUNG.

Mansel B. Young died yesterday afteroon at his home on Water street, after a week's illness of pneumonia. Ellsworth mourns and will long miss this bighearted, big-framed, genial friend and citizen.

Mr. Young was born in Olis Jan.5, 1880, the son of Benjamin B. Young and wife. Much of his early life was spent in Bangor, where he was for some time employed. About fifteen years ago he bought a farm at Lamoine, and there made his home until be came to Ellsworth a few years later. He was employed here for a while in the grist mill on Water street, and then for several years was engaged in the feed and grain business at the Clark store on Water street. For the past few years he had been driving a public automobile, for a few years running a jitney between Ellsworth and Bar Harbor.

Mr. Young married, in 1911, Mrs. Florence A. Blaisdell of Ellsworth, who survives him. He leaves also his parents, who made their home with him, one sister, Mrs. Lillian F. Salisbury of La-

To us. e non-combatants, is the privilege of supplying the "sinews of war." Congressman Peters quotes Gen. Pershing as saying that if we can get enough men to him, he has strong hopes of ending the war a year from this fall.

But to get men there will take ships, and to build ships will take dollars-millions of them. The treasury department has said in a recent leaflet addressed to the women liberty loan workers: "A liberty bond is the most direct and immediate contribution any non-combatant citizen can make toward the winning of the war." The most fitting tribute of sympathy and appreciation that every man, woman and child in Ellsworth can place on those flag covered caskets, is a "Fighting Fourth" liberty bond, "that liberty shall not perish from the earth."

KITTERY TO CARIBOU.

Henry C. Grace of Machias died Friday from injuries received Wednesday, when he attempted to stop a pony which ran away while it was being harnessed by his young grandson. He was eighty-three vears of age.

Governor Milliken has nominated Frank L. Dutton of Augusts, one of the leading members of the Kennebec county bar, as chairman of the Maine Industrial Accident commission to succeed Eben F. Littlefield of Belfast.

From the official tabulation of returns from the recent election, it appears that the mext Maine legislature will be composed of twenty-nine republican and two democratic senators, 110 republican and forty-one democratic representatives. One of the democratic representativeselect, Adelbert J. Tolman of Rockland, has died since election.

Official Election Returns.

Announcement has been made of the official returns of the State election September 9. The soldier vote makes an addition to the returns as previously published.

Governor Milliken's plurality over Bertrand G. McIntire is 5,151. Senator Fernald's plurality is 13,042.

The vote for congressman in the third district, by counties, is as follows:

Queen of Hearts.

The name, Queen of Hearts, was given in the low countries to Elizabeth, daughter of James I and the unforunate queen of Bohemia. When her fortune was at the lowest ebb she never lost her dignity of spirit, and poverty and distress only rendered her the more an object of admiration.

Ground for Confidence. We sometimes want to know how well a man has done when we are asked for an opinion as to how well he will do. We almost instinctively judge the future by the past; this is reasoning by induction, a process that generally leads to right con-clusions.

We almost instinctively judge the instinctively by the past; this is reasoning by induction, a process that generally leads to right con-clusions. Certainly, it is reasonable to believe that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished for others it can and will accomplish for you, provided of course you are afflicted in like manner. Hood's Sarsaparilla has made thousands healthy and strong, by purifying and enrich-ing the blood, curing diseases of the stomach. liver and kidneys, restoring appetite, reliev-ing that tired feeling—in a word, by building up the whole system. Its record of cures of blood diseases, scrotula, salt rheum or ecrema, paoriasis, pimples, boils and other eruptions, catarrh, dyspepsia and the matism is in thousands of letters yoluntarily and grate-fally written and forming a coloasal yolume of testimony. Surely anybody suffering from any of these diseases is fully justified in giv-ing this medicine a trial.-days.

St. Louis .- Mrs. Zelia Phelan of this city recently learned that a man she buried as her husband following the Galveston flood in 1900 was a stranger. Following the burial of the man Mrs. Phelan married R. E. Hardpen, who died here a month ago. Mrs. Phelan a few days ago visited the Illinois state hospital at Alton and recognized Phelan.

The disclosure was made by friends of Mrs. Phelan. Asked about it, Mrs. Phelan said her husband had become mentally unbalanced by a blow received during his rescue in Galveston. She said he wandered about the country in search of her and was finally placed in the Alton asylum. The sudden meeting with his wife

The funeral will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

MISS MATILDA HAWKES.

Miss Matilda Hawkes died at a hospital in Dorchester, Mass., Oct. 1, after an illness of two months of general breakdown. Miss Hawkes was born in Ellsworth, where she lived until, young womanhood, when she went to Boston, where she had since resided. Besides her father, Richard Hawkes, she leaves three brothers and three sisters-John of Bar Harbor, James of Brockton, Mass., George of Medford; Mrs. Kate Crockett of Winterport, Mrs. Susie Comins of South Brewer and Mrs. Isabel McCarthy of Allston.

Funeral services were held at the home of her sister, Mrs. McCarthy, Thursday, and the remains were brought here Friday for interment in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hawkes, Mrs. Mc-Carthy, Mrs. Crockett and Mrs. Comins. accompanied the body here.

The Papyrus Plant,

In the story told by Mrs. Williams, mention is made of papyrus, which was called "papu" in the time when the mummy of her story lived. From that word came the Greek "papuros" and our English word "paper." The historian Herodotus called it "bublos" and from this the old Greeks got a word "biblion," meaning a book, which we have carried on into our word "Bible." Go to a good dictionary and you will find a long list of words beginning with "biblio" and they are all connected with books.

STORY OF FIGHTING FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN POSTER

Strong, wide awake, full of vigorous promise as it raises its head from the sea of night, the bright face of the rising sun will be familiar throughout New England during the next few weeks wherever the Fight ing Fourth Liberty Loan is known. The story of this poster is full of interest, for unlike the other posters of the campaign, it was designed, not by a great artist but by a little fisher girl whose whole short life has been spent in the companionship of the sea. so that to her the rising sun is a familiar phenomenon. She is the daughter of a Gloucester fisherman and lives in a tiny house remote from everything but the sea with the fields and dark pine woods behind.

When a Liberty Loan poster competition for the Gloucester Public schools was arranged by the publicity chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan committee in the third campaign, this little girl, Kathleen Walsh. a pupil in the ninth grade, went to work and entered her design with the rest. It was crudely drawn and did not get so much as an honorable mention at the school, but it was sent along to the chairman of the Publicity Committee of the New England Liberty Loan when he asked to see some of the posters, and it haunted

Our Doughboys Mean Business When They Take the First-Line Trenches.

THEIR EFFICIENCY EVIDENT

Veterans Before They Enter the Trenches, by First-Rate Military Training if Not by Experience -Every Man in Line Has Personal Grudge to Settle With Huns.

With the American Troops in Alsace-Lorraine .- By the dim light of the moon you could barely see the stream of doughboys pouring out of the sheltering woods and scraping over the dusty French road toward the trenches, They said very little and trudged along with that measured swinging tread which enables Europe's veterans to carry their heavy packs almost unheard-of distances.

The stream seemed unending, as the United Press staff car picked its way from squad to squad without using lights, without falling in ditches and without touching a single doughboy. Finally one section of the human stream halted in a ruined village. The press car stopped, too, for beyond this poin* everything except ammunition and food goes on foot.

The officers gave the order to rest. and a lot of packs dropped to the ground, followed by doughboys. Their rifles they never dropped. In the moonlight you could see the ground covered with resting soldiers, mostly sitting. There was a clicking of rifles and sounds of tightening packs, and bits of gossip which could come only from a group heading for its first night in the t'enches.

Indifferent to Danger.

These were Uncle Sam's citizen soldiers, new men just over from "the states." as they have a habit of calling home when over here. A few questions revealed the fact that a year ago these boys were clerks, carpenters, students and whatnot. In civilian clothes. Six months ago they were in a training camp. Now they were soldiers in France, and tonight they were making their genuine debut into the war for civilization.

There was no wild enthusiasm nor any evidence of fear or even apprehension among those citizen-soldiers as they rested before making the last lab into the trenches. There was a matter-of-fact sort of confidence prevalent, and every man was making the moto of the breathing spell to see that he was 100 per cent ready for battle Interest and talk centered around the clicking rifles and other equipment.

"This old gun's sure going to do some work from now on," said one doughboy to his pal, as he played with the rifle fondly. "It's the best gun in this army."

"Say, you never shot this gun," re plied the other. "Nobody ever did, and nobody will but me. It's some Bochegetter. It was made for me 'specially,

Officers went through the crowd, glving a final warning about use of gas masks, and attention centered around masks for a moment. A lot of chaps tried them on again. Then pucks again were adjusted, and the group of doughboys streamed slowly on.

facing No Man's Land for the first time. "We're not scared of the Gerthem. We're going to do our best, which is about all they ask of us. Believe me, it's going to be a mighty good best." The new men in the fighting game adapt themselves to the front quickly as did the first Americans over. Every night it is "over the top" for patrols of them, and in a few days they are entirely familiar with No Man's Land. The German front trenches next fall in the line of investigation and the Germans soon adopt the policy of falling back to avoid fighting.

Back of the lines on the home side, bank clerks, barbers and men of every profession who have temporarily be come soldiers soon make themselves at home among the ruins and in woods. They eat army "grub" and relish it more than the most delicate meal they ever ate from a white linen covered table and real dishes, especially if there has been work to do. Soldiering agrees with them, you can see, by the work they do, the meals they eat and the huskies they have become. Chauffeur Gets "Fresh."

Discipline is fine, even if it is hard. A major tells how his chauffeur became a little "fresh" one day. Knowing the doughboy was a good chap, the major took him aside and talked to him instead of "bawling him out" before the crowd. The doughboy apologized.

"I'm sorry, major," he said. "You see I own a couple of businesses back in New York, and have more than a million dollars in my own name, and it's a little hard to remember my place in the army now. But I'll do it, somehow.

You think you are in an international army when you visit some of the new American units now in the lines. One company from New York boasts that its members know seventeen languages, and if you wander in on them about mess time, when talking and plates full of "grub" have been emptied, you are convinced.-

But all of these doughboys are ardent Americans, and they have won the admiration of their comrades who can speak the tongue without an accent. They are all snappy looking soldiers.

Sure of Success.

The new units have dragged their clean and fresh-looking equipment, such as supply wagons, camp kitchens, machine-gun outfits and all that is needed up into the Alsace and Lorraine hills. The line runs up and down steep mountain sides and across pretty valleys. It is beautiful country and a fine place to be initiated to the front. for the doughboy must be on the alert all the time. In this area there is a shell-swept, well-wired No Man's Land across which Germans cannot come without being easily detected. Woods and hills and wild country make the place one in which only strict attention to business will keep the Germans out.

These doughboys in the line have no hankering to "take things easy." Every man in the line will tell you in confidential tones that he has a personal grudge to settle with the Huns for dragging the world into this nasty business, and the sooner aggressive action is taken the sooner Germany is going to be punished and war made a thing of the past.

This is the job every doughboy figures he has to do, and the confidence with which he takes to the trenches tells the world he will succeed.

Postmaster General, Cannot See Dying Wife.

EXCHANGED AFTER DELAY

Says Kaiser Envies Hindenburg Popularity and Tries to Appropriate His Victories-Saw Capture of Antwerp.

An Atlantic Port .- After being kept in a German prison for three years Dr. Henri Severin Beland, postmaster general of Canada under Premier Wilfrid Laurier, and who lives at Beauce, in the province of Quebec, arrived here, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Jeannette, who was held in Belgium by the Germans while her father was in Germany. Added to the sufferings of his imprisonment was the death of his wife in Belgium after he had been locked up for 18 months.

His jailers refused to allow him to go from Berlin to see her when she was dying. The news of his wife's death was withheld from him for 11 days, and he was only given the date after he had begged to be allowed to go to her funeral, to show that it was too late. Doctor Beland was only postmaster general for two months in 1911 when the Laurier administration was defeated over the reciprocity question. It was because he had held this political appointment that the Huns would not permit him to leave Germany two years ago when arrangements were made between that country and Great Britain for the exchange of civilian prisoners more than forty-five years old.

During the three years he lost 20 pounds in weight, and his luxuriant black hair became thin and turned The only occupations he had gray. to attend the prisoners were and the officials of the prison when they were ill and to learn to speak, read, and write German fluently. He was finally released in exchange for the brother of Prince von Bulow, who was the head of the Krupp Gun company in London before the war.

The doctor was in northern France in August, 1914, and his wife was stopping at their estate in Cappellen, near Antwerp. He promptly offered his services as surgeon to the Belgian army and was with them in the fighting at Liege. From that city he went to Antwerp and was there when the British expedition sent out by Winston Churchill arrived in October of that year. He saw the city captured by the Huns in October. Doctor Beland continued to live with his wife at Cappellen until she converted the house into a Red Cross hospital and trained herself as a nurse.

The doctor talked slowly and stop ped occasionally to think of his words. He explained that, like the majority of the prisoners he had met, he was suffering from loss of memory caused by his long imprisonment. which had interfered with the receptiveness of the organs in the brain.

"Up to May 12. 1915," the doctor said, "I practiced medicine among the poor in Antwerp and my wife carried on the Red Cross hospital at Cappel-len. Then the German commandant sent an officer to tell me that I was to be interest. How the formation of the term of to be interned. When I pointed out that physicians practicing as civilians

No one thing brings home to the people as a whole the fact that all members of the community are taking a share in the Loan more effectively than the general and conspicuous wearing of the button. In many communities and establishments a 100% subscription was secured more easily because of the open demonstra-tion by the wearing of buttons that participation was reaching every per-

The new button is smaller than the earlier ones, but equally effective. On a dark blue ground is carried a flag of red with four blue stripes, the Honor Flag of the Loan, and the words "Fourth Liberty Loan."

The buttons will be distributed by Banks, bond salesmen, industrial establishments, and all places where subscriptions are taken. They will be ready in ample supply the opening day of the Loan, Sept. 28th and free and constant wearing of the buttons will be the best and most con-vincing proof of aid in placing the LOAD.

him for a day and a night. Then he knew that the "big idea" was there and chose it at once for the official New England poster and signet.

And so it is that, side by side with the work of great artists whose poster designs are to inspire and beautify New England and help put down the tyrant Hun, will stand the work of this small fisher lassie whose whole life has been spent communing with the sea that now rolls between her home, proud with its service flag in the window, and her brother "Over There."

THE NEW TRIPLE COMBINATION

Treatment for the blood, nerves and liver-purifying, strengthening, eleansing, winning its way wonder-fully just now—is: Hood's Sarsaparilla, the superla-tive blood purifier and appetite giver, known for over 40 years.

Peptiron, the superlative pepsin-nux-iron-celery nerve, blood and hux-iron-celery nerve, blood and digestive tonic. Hood's Pills, the superlative family laxative for biliousness, con-stipation; pleasant, easy, effective. What are your troubles? If such as to need all three medicines, why not have perfect, well-rounded re-lief by getting the combination? If you need only one medicine, get it and take it—but do it now.

Ready for Business. As they got nearer the front trenches the word was passed to walk more quietly. Conversation except in undertones stopped, and they descended into trenches. All you heard was the stendy knock of hobnailed shoes on the trench duckboards, as these new arrivals were quietly initiated to the trenches in France. Quietly and without commotion the officers stationed their men, with lookouts watching across moonlit No Man's Land, the former occupants of the trenches left, and the relief was completed.

There is something about the fearless quiet way these new dougbhoys the trenches that makes you take feel they know a lot about warfare. They are veterans before they enter the trenches, by first-rate military training if not experience. Their dis-cipline is fine, and their efficiency tells the you they are ready for businessmeaning whipping Germans.

"Well, you can tell Kaiser Bill we're here to fight," said one doughboy, as he took his station. "Hear the Germans say we're just a crowd of untrained boys. We'll soon show them we're soldiers."

It happens this doughboy's platoon did it very soon. The next night 150 Germans came over, and fifty of these "untrained boys" withstood the attack and stuck to their guns. The Germans who were still alive and able to run, retreated, double-quick time.

All in Day's Work.

Speaking of the way the newly arrived Americans take to the trenches and to their duties, one brigadier general, who had just finished a complete relief, said : "They're not exactly glad to get into the trenches. I guess no one is glad of that. But these boys all figure it's work to be done, and they're here to lick Germans. They're keen to get the job done. They're confident, all right, but not boastful, because they know there's a lot to learn." A doughboy gave his version of how be and his pais felt while out there the deepest lake in this country, and perhaps in the whole world. Located in a valley of the Cascade mountains, about seventy miles north of Jacksonville, Ore., this lake, which is almost fifteen miles long and four miles wide, is so deep that its depth cannot be measured. It is situated so far below the crest of the mountains that winds cannot reach it, and its surface is like a sheet of glass. It is sometimes called the "Lake of Mystery."

HAS FIVE BOYS IN WAR

Mrs. A. P. White Is the Champion War Mother of Tennessee.

Knoxville, Tenn,-The champion war mother of Tennessee, and, perhaps, of Dixie, is Mrs. A. P. White of Powell Station, Knox county. She has five sons in the service; Captain Roy D. White, Lieutenant John H. White, Private William Homer White, Cook Marvin B. White and Private Edgar White.

"All my boys volunteered," she declares proudly.

....................... DAKOTA "PRAIRIE DOG" BECOMES "DEVIL DOG"

St. Paul, Minn.-"Say, pard, I'm a 'prairie dog' from North Dakota and I want to go over there and become a 'devil dog.'" and, relieving himself of this sentiment, William D. Knickerbocker of Dogden, N. D., took his place in line in the United States marine recruiting station here.

Knickerbocker passed an almost perfect physical test and is now on his way to Paris Island. S. C., to the marine training station there.

fees from my patients. I was arrested and taken to the Grand hotel, which was used as a military headquarters and residence of the staff officers in Antwerp. After three days I was sent to Berlin and locked up in the Stadtvogel prison.

"The prison fare was rough, consisting chiefly of black bread, greasy soup and potatoes. This did not trouble me as I received parcels of food and supplies weekly from London. The treatment was about as good as it generally is in places of that kind.

"When, after two years' confinement, I was allowed to walk in the park opposite Garden strasse in Perlin, I was not allowed to speak to any person. One afternoon I took my escort to luncheon at the Hotel Bristol on the Unter den Linden, which has not changed its name. The Piccadilly res-taurant, I noticed, had been converted into the Vaterland. Another time I saw a crowd running and, looking in their direction. I saw an automobile go by containing Hindenburg and his staff officer. He is the idol of the German people and more popu-lar than the kaiser. Ludendorff is regarded as a strong man all over Germany, but never takes the trouble to make himself popular. He does not care what the people think about him so long as they do as they are told. "The kaiser envies Hindenburg's popularity, and whenever the Huns gain a victory he hurries to the side of the marshal and issues bulletins and sends telegrams to the kalserin, so that the people believe it is the kaiser who has gained a victory. All this time my daughter Jeannette was in Belgium living with the family of my late wife at Cappelen, and three times I tried to reach her, first through the United States minister at Prussels and after America entered the war through the Spanish minister. It was no use. She was not molested, however, but was allowed to join me in Holland after I was free."

Until Last Bullet Is Gone.

Caught Between Barrage and Huns They Fight in Manner to Make One Proud to Be of Same Race.

By E. A. BATCHELOR.

Paris .- The Y. M. C. A. man told the story with tears in his eyes and a break in his voice. He said that it was the saddest thing that he ever had encountered, which meant much. He had been a long time in France, so death and suffering were no strangers to him. But when he spoke of the sergeant and the private that they had found dead beside their machine gun he couldn't control his emotion.

It seems that the sergeant and the private had been caught in a pocket. The Germans, in force, were in front of them. There was a barrage behind which made it impossible for them to rejoin their company. So they stayed and roughed it out, fought in a manner that made one proud to be of the same race.

Held Off Whole Company.

When they found them there was pile of empty shells several inches high around the gun and not a single round of unexpended ammunition remained. The two had held off a whole company of Boche machine gunners for several hours.

The enemy had been around a bend in the road, a scant 50 yards away, and hadn't been able to advance be cause of the brisk fire of the lone American gun manned by the sergeant and the private. The sergeant had been evidently pointing the gun and the private had been feeding it. Their only protection had been a little ridge where the dirt had been thrown up beside the road.

The undergrowth just behind them had been cut to ribbons by the Boche bullets and the trees near where the enemy had been were scarred by Yankee fire. It had been the hottest kind of a fight and the Americans had been winning against the terrible odds until a shell burst right on them and killed both.

Whether it was a Boche shell or one of our own, nobody ever will know. Both sides had been firing into that part of the wood. Whatever the source of the shell, it had done its work quickly and thoroughly, for the men were badly torn. Death probably had come instantaneously. They had gone while the joy of battle was still upon them.

Death Not in Vain.

was a glorious death but a sad one because a few minutes after the shell landed, the Boche had been obliged to retire. Another half an hour, and the heroic pair would have been safe. But they had not died in vain. The company that they had held at bay carried back to the German lines a story of American heroism that will do much to convince the Boche that the men from across the sea are going to decide the war. The sacrifice of these two lives will save others.

They called on the Y. M. C. A. man to help bury these two heroes. It was not his first experience as a member

RED CROSS WORK IN ITALY

Organization Performs Big Task In Helping the Unfortunates in That Country.

Washington .- In the histor'c Palazzo Vecchio of Florence. Italy, the American Red Cross distributed clothing to more than 40,000 refugees and poverty-stricken Italians in two days. The contents of each parcel covered a wide variety of needs from underwear to layettes for children yet unborn.

Part of the supply came from this country, part from stocks in neutral countries, where industrial Red Cross agents have been able to satisfy a portion of their needs, and part from the Italian market, now nearly exhausted. In addition, orders for food were distributed to persons whose needs were guaranteed, small certificates good for five lire worth of rice. canned meat or condensed milk, when presented at the city storehouses. To pay for this draft on the municipal provisions, the American Red Cross deposited 20,000 lire with the city as sessor.

The press of the country commented on this relief work of the American people as "the greatest single gift on record to any Italian city during the war.

In the Battle Line or Lying Wounded in a Hospital His Chief Characteristic Is His Indomitable Spirit-If There Is Yet an American Who Does Not Hate the Hun He Should Hear the Tales of the Heroes of Chateau-Thierry.

Paris .- The indomitable and unconquerable spirit of the soldiers from the United States is one of the outstanding characteristics that excite the admiration of all who come in contact with them. They make the Amer-ican proud of his nationality and arouse the envy of those who, by circumstances over which they have no control, are denied the privilege to be one of them.

If there is yet an American who does not hate the Hun, he or she should have seen the first trainload of American wounded that arrived here from Chateau-Thierry. As these heroes modestly related their experiences, one had a mingled feeling of worship for them and intense hatred for the blood-maddened beasts who are responsible for the awful agony which world is now suffering. In a compartment with a number of French wounded was a nineteen-yearold boy from Chicago. He was all alone and surrounded by men who could not speak his language. He was in the most terrific pain, but managed to keep down the slightest groan. Nothing could have drawn a whisper from him before his French comrades in arms.

A Red Cross doctor asked him if there was anything he wanted.

"Just a drink of water, please," was the low answer.

He got it. The doctor asked if there was anything else he wanted. The boy wanted to be turned on his side. With a machine-gun bullet through his leg and a wound that had scorched its way across his hips, to say nothing of an injured arm, he was perfectly incapable of helping himself.

The doctor turned him on his side and then discovered the lad had had nothing to eat for 32 hours. Unfor tunately he was only one of many in the same fix. The Red Cross did its best and soon had what emergency food it had in the hands of those who were still able to use them. The more seriously injured, of course, were the first to be removed by the long line of waiting ambulances Indomitable Spirit.

Before the train pulled in the ambulances were drawn up and waiting. So was a small crowd. As the first ampulance quit the station the crowd started to oheer. There was a doughboy on the front seat with the driver, one arm in a sling, the other stuffing a sandwich into his mouth. He waved the sandwich in acknowledgment, while a contented look came over his drawn and tired face.

The crowd increased as the ambulances formed almost a continuous Words of sympathy were heard train. on all sides not unmingled with tears as the flower of Young America that had marched forth so valiantly a few short months before was painstakingly transferred to base hospitals.

At the end of the procession came a cortege that the crowd grasped the meaning of in a moment. They were ambulances, but their destination was the cemetery and not the hospital. The women wept openly and crossed themselves, while the hat of every man in the crowd came off in a respectful salute to the dead.

He's Arthur Baker of Doorway, "Kaintuckee," and he had just gone into line with his company when the ball opened. The barrage got him, but didn't put him out. A little later, when the Germans came over to see about it, Baker was still on the job. working his gun for all he was worth. When the Americans had to go back Baker was so exhausted he couldn't retire. His comrades picked him up and carried him. They Didn't Last Long. "Heinie" tried out one of his favorte stunts of dressing up some of his soldiers in French and American uniforms, according to Anton Zolnowski of 2848 South Turner avenue, Chicago, "We saw ten men on the edge of a little wood a little distance away, eight of them were in French uniform and two in American. We yelled to them to come over and join us. They advanced a few paces and then opened fire on us."

Zolnowski smiled rather unpleasantly as he patted a right arm that bears a machine-gun bullet.

"They didn't last long. We made one dash for them. Not one of 'em got away. They were Germans all right. There was another group coming up. I got a private and then the officer in charge sailed into me. I tried to shoot him with my rifle, but was broken. I got him all right, though."

The Chicagoan seemed inclined to end the conversation there.

"How'd you get him?" I asked, after a little pause. "Just turned the butt end of my gun round and clubbed him over the head with it," replied Zolnowski in the most matter-of-fact tone. When the Americans came back at them it didn't take long to clean every

German out of their territory, declared Elmer Sturtz of Wellsburg, Before he got a Mauser ball in his right shoulder Sturtz had the extreme good fortune to see two pontoon bridges the enemy had thrown across the river destroyed by the accurate fire of the American artillery.

Content to Be Going. They were filled with Germans, too. Some of them were coming, but there were others who seemed very content to be going. Two shells from American six-inchers lit squarely over the There was a terrific report bridges. followed by an inferno. Both bridges crumbled in the middle. Both were crowded beyond their limits. Bits of Germans came raining down for almost three minutes, according to the spectator, while from the rivers the wild cries of the injured and drowning made a picture Sturtz will always carry with him. For a few minutes the river was literally choked with bodies. The were at last moving on Germans

Paris, but in a way they had hardly reckoned. Between puffs of a cigarette, the first he'd had in a day, Frank Hogan of Galveston, Tex., confirmed Sturtz's story of the wholesale drowning of the enemy. The Texan was working a Stokes gun a hundred feet from the southern bank of the river when the first waves of field-green began to cross heart, but the indomitable spirit of "You can't say enough for those artillery gays," he said, as he tried to twist into as comfortable a position as a wounded thigh permits. "Ten minutes after the orders had been telephoned to the batteries they had a perfect range on that river. While we were pouring bullets into the Heinies the guns got their numbers with both small and large chells. At the spot where we were stationed I reckon there must have been about 3,000 of the Fritzies got across the river. They didn't all go back. In fact, I don't think there were hardly any of that bunch that'll go back to Germany. We captured over 1,500 ourselves and killed easily 500. The rest were trying to beat it back to the other side when our shells hit their bridges."

It was five o'clock in the morning of July 15 before the platoon to which Louis Cooke of Rayville, La., belonged saw the Germans approaching.

"Our officer just yelled, 'Let's get 'em, boys!' and we started after them," said Cook. "The Heinies were coming up on the south bank of the Marne and there were only eight of us to about sixteen of them, but we sure cleaned out that first batch. My pleasure ended right there, though, for a piece of shrapnel banged me in the left arm and it was back to the woods for me. But, believe me. my company did its share in driving the Huns into the river."

Didn't Know When to Quit.

If anyone wants to know why the Americans were at first driven back from the river bank, they are hereby referred to Lonnie Shelton of Burdine, Ky. Shelton's unit alone took over 560 prisoners when the Americans returned to the counter-attack, and but for the fact that a number of them were knocked out, as Shelton was, they would have still been going. "They knocked us back at first by the most terrific barrage I ever saw turned loose, but we didn't stay back long," declared he. "We got the order to counter-attack, and the way we waded back into Mr. Boche was something to write home about. I've never seen such r bunch as we had. They advanced yelling like hell, bayonetted and shot down every Heinie that didn't know enough to get out of the way. Those guys could never beat America in a thousand years, and tell 'em I said so."

Kentucky had another man in that same scrap that didn't know when to quit, even after a piece of shrapnel had cut a nasty gash in his right leg.

Some Sharpshooter.

A Pittsburgher, N. G. Rameno, who was injured in the arm by a piece of shrapnel, says there's one American sharpshooter that made a record anyone might be proud of during the first of the mixup. While the German engineers were trying to throw their first pontoon bridges over he picked twenty-eight of them with his off rifle. I couldn't get his name, but he already wears a sharpshooter's medal. He deserves another.

Lots of soldiers believe in "hunches."

James L. Paul of No. 730 Spruce treet, Philadelphia, does, and it's a fortunate thing for him that he played his. With a comrade Paul was in a dugout during a barrage. Shells were landing all around. Finally one blew in the entrance, so Paul decided their dugout was becoming a little too warm. He walted for a short lull in the terrific firing and then darted for arother shelter. He had not gotten fifteen feet away from the dugout when a big one scored a direct hit on it. His companion was killed, but Paul escaped with a wound from a splinter that will keep him out of action for several weeks.

Want of space forbids extended and detailed accounts concerning the various activities of this community for building a town involves m important features in addition many erecting power plants and establish-ing industries. That the needs of this community were met by liberal dona-tions of land for streets, churches, schools, and parks is in keeping with the farsightedness of Mr. Chisholm whose vision did not stop with indus trial development. He recognized the fact that a contented workman with happy home surroundings is not at tained simply by the weekly pay roll,

The remarkable character of the dwellings erected for housing the workmen of the great manufacturing industries has been supplemented by a judicious regard for recreation and relaxation from toil that should be at once clean and uplifting. To this end there has been erected on the main business street a spacious Club House known as the Rumford Me chanics Institute where young and old may and do meet in social intercourse and healthful sport. The club At- worthy industrial organization known is maintained by a large membership of citizens augmented by generous assistance of the corporations of the sult of the development of the water town.

WAR DEVELOPS

FLEA SHELL IS OFFERED

Then There Is the Scissors Plane, the Tally-Ho Cannon, and the Moon Veil-Aeronautics Favored by Inventors.

London .- Pushing the war on is the latest popular hobby. It's a great amusement. Perhaps you have a tame balloon to snatch the rifles from the enemy's hands by means of suspended magnets; or, maybe, a few spare snakes to hurl into the trenches by pneumatic propulsion; or, perhaps, a shell with a man inside it to steer it at the target. If so, pack in brown paper and dispatch to Inventions Department, British Ministry of Munitions. Some months later you will receive a polite notification informing you that your invention is receiving their collective and "earnest attention."

Meanwhile your competitors have supplied suggestions for: A shell to contain fleas or other vermin inoculated with disease. The spraying of cement over soldiers so as to petrify them. The throwing of live wire cables carrying a high voltage among advancing bodies of infantry by means of rockets. Germany should be attacked in one case by making a "tube" all the way, and in another by employing trained cormorants to fly to Essen and pick out the mortar from Krupp's chimneys.

One inventor proposes a machine of the nature of a lawn mower as large as a tank to make mincemeat of them.

The Scissors Plane a New Idea. The clouds are to be frozen artificially and guns mounted on them; heavy guns are to be suspended from captive balloons; the moon is to be covered with a big black balloon: airplanes are to be armed with scissors or scythes, like Boadicea's chariot, or to trail bombs behind them on a long cord; heat rays are to be projected for the purpose of setting Zeppelins on fire; electric waves to paralyze the magnetos.

One of the most popular suggestions of all is to attach a searchlight to an antiaircraft gun, get the light on the object and shoot along the beam ; but, unfortunately, the path of a shell is quite different from that of the ray of light. Most elaborate "decoy" schemes are sometimes worked out for the confusion of the enemy, comprising in at least one case sham factories with chimneys and hooters complete.

Not unnaturally aeronautics have been favored by the inventors. Many seem to have thought that the lifting power of hydrogen is unlimited, for they have suggested armor-plated balloons, the transport of artillery by airplane and of troops by balloon.

Shells and projectiles have received not a little attention. Proposals include a shell containing gravel to lay a pathway over mud: another containing irritant powder or sticky substance to hamper machine guns, and another for holding many thousand feet of wire, weights and a clock motor.

Many inventors of a device requiring a knowledge of ballistics tray no knowledge that such a sci-

RUMFORD FALLS POWER COMPANY PLANT, 19:8

The characteristic energy of the founder original has descended to younger but equally energetic hands and the same desire to utilize every natural advantage and to create add ed industries to utilize added development is constantly manifest,

Among the noteworthy accomplish-tents of recent date should be mentioned the construction of the Great Aziscohos Dam at Magalloway 1/ in-terest in which is owned by the Rumford Falls Power Company and which development materially increases the available power at Rumford Falls. This new source of power has made possible the re-building of the Rum ford Falls power for the Rum ford Falls Power Company Dam, and the installation of new equipment that gives an additional 10,000 h. p. the to the former capacity. 3,000 h. p. of this new development is to be utilized Maine Power Sales Company. This plant for making Ferro-silicon has just been completed and started oper ating.

To such toyal sons of Maine are w in everlasting debt. No measure of success attained by them is unmerit ed, for in acquiring a competency fo themselves they have given most generously to the public good, and have created opportunity and wealth to thousands of individuals as well as added millions to the valuation of our commen inheritance.

ence exists. By one scheme two guns are to be fired simultaneously, the shot being connected by a chain to which bombs and incendiary devices, etc., are to be attached. It is clear that variations in powder or differences in wear would make it impossible to predict which direction the device would take.

Then There is the Relay Shell. Another favorite subject, mechanically unsound, is the "relay shell," a shell acting as a small gun discharged in mid-air and expelling a small inner shell, the object being to obtain an increased range. The fact is that a shell in flight does not point directly along its trajectory, but makes an uncertain angle with It, so that accuracy of aim would be impossible.

In the group of inventions coming under the head of motive power the majority are of the "overbalancing wheel" type, which dates from the thirteenth century. Power is to be obtained from other schemes of people walking about floors and up and down stairs; passenger lifts are to be used as power hammers, and power is to be generated from the flow of rain water from the rooms of houses

Suggestions are also frequently received in connection with colored searchlights. The most remarkable proposition of all in connection with searchlights is perhaps that of a "black beam," whatever that may mean, for obscuring the moon.

Many inventors are absolutely impervious to argument or explanation and are always dissatisfied with the treatment they receive. In this respect they contrast unfavorably with foreigner who submitted an engine which would not work, and concluded the correspondence with thanks and the admission that he was "completely cured" of the idea.
