Intrepid "Old Ironsides"

True To Life Here Is the Ship Which Did So Much To Give Uncle Sam Prestige On the Seas. The Portrait Is From the Remarkable Model Made By Arthur W. Hatch of Thomaston

The Story Of a Famous Frigate Told By Thomaston Man Who Has Made Model Of It

(Address before the Community Brotherhood, Thomaston, April 14, by Arthur W. Hatch; subject—The United States Frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides.")

For the third time in American history popular sentiment has revolted at the thought of consigning "Old Ironsides" to oblivion. This determination of the citizenry to preserve this glorious representative of naval valor is typical of the loyal spirit which has made America great. The United States Frigate Constitution—intrepid "Old Ironsides"—which for 133 years has remained as one of the most inspiring symbols of the spirit and deeds that have made and kept our nation free and great—was rotting at her Boston dock and sinking to an ignominious grave. To this shameful plight at last had come the proud old "eagle of the sea" which in the staunchness of her youth fought 40 battles, captured or sunk 20 enemy ships, and never knew defeat.

The shame of her sinking is not hers, but the nation's, for in spite of the ravages of time and in face of thoughtless neglect on the part of a people that ought to be reverently mindful and gratefully grateful, she still defiantly flies her stainless flag. Cold, cruel and mocking to her was the sea that she so long rode in strength and splendor, and colder and more cruel still to that great soul must have seemed the forgetfulness of a nation she gave her strength to save.

Last Of Her Type

"Old Ironsides" was one of the first war ships built by the young republic; she was its chief defender until it had grown strong and secure; she was the last one of her type to remain; and if the time shall come when navies are no more, may her flag still fly as the world's cleanest ensign of freedom.

The old ship and her unsullied flag still stand for the sort of Americanism that through all her lifetime has been liberating and enlightening the human race. To the flag she flies and to which she gave so much of its meaning, all of the world's down-trodden peoples have looked for hope and faith and guidance, while tyranny and oppression have learned to sink away before it.

The Americanism that "Old Ironsides" and her flag stand for is the sort that stimulates the young to virile aspirations and gives to the masses of our people high models of loyalty and set principles. The prized mementoes of a nation's past are a test of its ideals, a mainstay of its morale and an immeasurable force for cohesion and fixed purpose. The nation that has no pride in its past can have no hope for its future.

Helpless, forgotten, sinking, the old ship might have soon been gone, but wherever throughout the earth a nation exists that has become more free, more enlightened, prosperous and happy through the example of early American ideals, valor and achievement—there the soul of "Old Ironsides" finds abiding place. Surely this gallant old defender of our young nation is worth saving and cherishing as a living reminder of our glorious past, her appeal should

OPTOMETRISTS' OPPORTUNITY

To Hear Famous Diagnostician Who Will Hold Clinics In Maine

The optometrists of Rockland will be in either Portland or Bangor during the week of April 20 for a graduate clinic in eye diagnosis and correction under Dr. A. M. Skeffington, director of the Graduate Foundation, who has been conducting a series of clinics in California Universities, following his return from a summer in the research clinics of Vienna and London.

Many conditions of the eye that have been considered hopeless in the past, are now correctable under the techniques developed by the research men and the members of the Foundation. A specially equipped clinic room has been prepared for Dr. Skeffington and the optometrists are looking forward to the unusual opportunity in their own professional work.

The local optometrists will attend and are arranging to close their offices for these days to avail themselves of this opportunity.

FOR WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP

Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, was officially told yesterday that Cleveland had been selected as the site for his title conflict with W. L. (Young) Stribling, and that the date will be the night of July 3. The bout, 15 rounds to a decision.

WHICH IS CORRECT?

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

In Eaton's Rockland, Thomaston and South Thomaston History, under the Spear genealogy, it gives this record:

"Capt. William Spear, born March 25, 1764; married Polly Gregory."

Under Gregory it is given thus:

"Mary Gregory, born 1766; married Capt. Wm. Spear."

I would be pleased to learn which is correct.

ACQUIRES NORTH NATIONAL

Rockland National Bank, Through This Purchase, Now Has Resources Upward Of Six Million Dollars

From time to time during the past year reports have been current that negotiations were pending for the purchase of the North National Bank, and the public has been in a receptive mood for the announcement that the deal had been fulfilled.

Late Tuesday afternoon it was jointly stated by Arthur S. Baker, president of the North National, and construction of an archway, and this, it is understood, is to be done. The Rockland Bank's capacity for handling business was greatly facilitated a few years ago by the remodeling of the rooms, and this provided a plant which would do credit to any Maine city. The North Bank, on the other hand has been greatly handicapped by its cramped quarters.

Resources of more than $6,000,000 are represented by the newly com-

Homer E. Robinson, President of Rockland National Bank

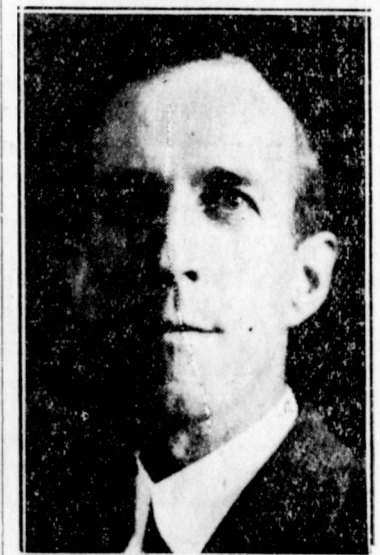

Homer E. Robinson, president of the Rockland National, that an agreement had been reached whereby the latter institution has purchased the assets and assumed the liabilities of the North National Bank.

"It was the opinion of our directors," said President Baker, "that it was unwise to continue as an independent institution, in view of the situation in which the bank finds itself on account of present business and market conditions."

President Robinson offered the assurance that the banking requirements of the North National would be cared for by the Rockland National immediately, in the quarters which had formerly been occupied by the acquired institution.

The two banks have long occupied adjoining quarters in the same building—originally known as Custom House block, but for some time past owned by the banking tenants.

A closer connection of the quarters could easily be established by the lined institutions, constituting the largest bank in Knox County.

President Robinson stressed the fact that the North Bank customers will be served to the best of the new owners' ability, and to them are extended all the facilities which the Rockland is able to offer. This fine institution was organized in 1851 and has been doing business continuously since that time.

The North National Bank was originally located in the small office in Crockett block, directly above the store now occupied by J. A. Jameson Company. This was in 1854. From its location it derived its name and having been founded by shrewd business men and conducted upon sound principles of management, in due course assumed a place of prominence among the newly incorporated banks of this section of Maine. Its first president was John Bird. He was succeeded by A. J. Bird, and he in turn by Sidney M. Bird, the father of the late Elmer S. Bird, who upon his retirement from the presidency a few years ago was succeeded by Arthur S. Baker of the firm of Cochran, Baker & Cross. In the interim the bank has been housed at various times in rooms over the present Savings Bank, in the quarters now occupied by the Western Union Telegraph Company and finally in its present location at the foot of Limerock street.

SECOND DISTRICT COUNCIL

Mrs. Eva Sherman, State publicity chairman of the Legion Auxiliary, and other members from Portland and vicinity, are expected to be in attendance at the meeting of the Second District Council in Lewiston, April 28.

Mayor Skelton of Lewiston will extend the greeting for the town and Carl Bischoff, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Maynard Swann, commander of the Androscoggin County Legion Council; Leo O'Reilly, commander of the Lewiston Post, will extend greetings from their organizations and Capt. P. H. Hershey of National Soldiers' Home, who is the officer detailed by Col. Ryan, to co-operate with the Auxiliary in its welfare work, will be the chief speaker of the afternoon.

Mrs. Agnes C. Bradley of Rumford, president of the Council and State vice president of the Second District, will preside. At its Auburn meeting the Second District Council proposed Mrs. Bradley's name for next State President and this candidacy is receiving hearty support. Mrs. Emily Dexter, president of Lewiston Auxiliary will preside at the social hour following the business meeting.

These Council meetings are always largely attended and because of the nearness of State convention it is likely to be the largest meeting on record.

DIGGING INTO PAST

Rev. B. P. Browne Highly Entertains Men's League and Gets Warm Greeting

A former pastor of the First Baptist Church, Rev. B. P. Browne, motored down from Winchester, Mass., yesterday, and was guest speaker last night at the monthly meeting of the Baptist Men's League, where he received a greeting well calculated to warm the cockles of any man's heart.

His address flashed with wit and anecdote and while his subject took him back to the days when other civilizations flourished the talk never lost fascination for his hearers. Fearful that he might overstep his time limit, Mr. Browne omitted some portions of his prepared address and learning of this fact his audience insisted that he go back over the ground and supply the missing data—a compliment not always bestowed upon public speakers.

The women folk who had devoted the early evening to the preparation and serving of a very nice supper formed an interesting background for Mr. Browne's audience.

"Digging Into the Past" was the speaker's topic and told of archaeological patient work which resulted in the uncovering of the ancient city of Troy; evidences of the Flood; the locating of Ur, home city of Abraham progenitor of the Hebrew race; and wonderful discoveries in the Holy Land—all of which were seen as amazing and thrilling confirmation of ancient legends and Biblical utterances.

Frank D. Healey was admitted to membership.

The next and last meeting of the season will have as guest speaker another former pastor, Rev. William J. Day of Winthrop, Mass., who will talk upon a subject bound to interest every former parishioner and all who have ever known him. According to Mr. Browne, who was recently in conference with him, Mr. Day is eagerly looking forward to another sit-in with the league which he founded, and an opportunity to sample the strawberry shortcake which is always a feature of the May meeting.

WORK PROGRESSING

In Behalf of the Rural Un-churched Day Schools—A Banquet

The plans of the executive committee of the Knox County Association for Rural Religious Education have so rapidly materialized that a trained worker has already initiated a program whereby 40-minute periods of religious study are given to rural unchurched day schools.

The Association will have a banquet Friday at the Rockland Methodist Church, at 6:30 o'clock.

Dr. H. V. Tweedie, president, in a circular letter says, "The purpose of this banquet is to meet Miss McKnight, hear her plans for this work, offer helpful suggestions, and form permanent plans to carry it on. We need every member, and every other interested person present on this occasion. Please make this a date that nothing else can set aside. Come and meet Miss McKnight and do your bit. Price of banquet, 50 cents."

The chairman of the supervising school committee of South Thomaston, Mrs. Lottie Crowley, has had opportunity to observe Miss McKnight's work with the children and is very enthusiastic in praise of her efficiency. Indeed, we are greatly pleased that we have been so fortunate as to secure the services of so competent a worker.

Kindly remember that the meeting Friday evening is not for members only, but everyone interested in or for any part of the County will be gladly welcomed.

H. R. Winchenbaugh.

COUNTY GETS HALF

Measure Advocated by Judge Butler Will Bring In More Than His Salary

Apologies of the newspaper discussion which has been going on in relation to the salary of the judge of the Rockland Municipal Court it is interesting to note that a movement initiated by Judge Walter H. Butler, and fathered in the Legislature by Senator George L. St. Clair, will be the means of bringing fines to Knox County use which will offset the judge's salary by a considerable margin.

Formerly it was required by law that the fines accruing from State highway violations should go to the State. Judge Butler went before the county commissioners to protest the unfairness of this method—unfair because the county was maintaining the Court and jail, while the State received all of the benefits.

A bill was drawn and as the result of its passage one half of the amount received from fines goes to the State, and one half to the county treasurer. Had this law been in effect last year a little over $1500 would have been saved to Knox County.

In engineering the bill Senator St. Clair was faced by strong opposition, and victory was all the more to his credit.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

TO CELIA

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss that the cup may
And I'll not look for wine.
The thirst that from the soul doth rise
Doth ask a drink divine.
But might I of Jove's nectar sip
I would not change for thine.
I sent thee late a rosy wreath,
Not so much honoring thee
As giving it a hope that there
It could not wither'd be;
But thou there didst only breathe,
And sent'st it back to me;
Since when I grow, and smells, I swear,
Not of itself but thee!
Ben Jonson (1574-1627)

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Me., April 16, 1931.
Who on oath declares that he is President of the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of April 14, 1931, there was printed a total of 6,236 copies. WALTER H. BUTLER, Notary Public.

And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.—I John 3:22.

Stewart Orbeton was the 10-minute man at the Lions Club meeting yesterday, pinch hitting for Bob Webster who was absent from the city. He told of his desire to become an automobile racer and how that ambition was destroyed when he saw a man nearly killed at the Rockingham Park races. "Life Insurance Trusts" was the title of a paper read by Vice President Earl McIntosh of the Security Trust Co. He cited the development of the insurance business from the time when agents were very generally regarded as nuisances, up to last year when 1,000,000 new policy-holders were added in this country. Eighty percent of the estates at the present time consist of life insurance. With this as the basis of his talk Mr. McIntosh unfolded in a most concise manner the matter of life insurance trusts, subsequently answering the questions propounded by members of his audience. His talk was supplemented by the remarks of Chester Black, Frank H. Ingraham and several others. A guest yesterday was Woodbury E. Hall of Winthrop, Mass., an uncle of Mr. Ingraham. Next week's meeting will be held Wednesday night, each member to invite a friend.

About all the talk in sporting circles just now has to do with the approaching bout between Young Howell of the U.S.C.G. Kickapoo and Bud Fisher the local star. Howell made a great hit in his initial local appearance at the Legion smoker a few weeks ago, and Capt. Hays' announcement that he would fight anybody of his weight for $100 a side created something of a sensation, but found quick acceptance by Bud Fisher, hero of a hundred battles. Bud's followers are confident that he can whip the Coast Guardsman, while there are a good many on the side of Capt. Hays, who is ready to bet his last "red" on the Howell boy. Sukeforth, who had a little vacation in his last bout, is going to meet a fire-eater from out of town in the semi-finals. Judging from the demand for tickets the 400-limit is bound to be reached.

Allen A. Kelley, a Civil War veteran who served in the 21st Maine Sharpshooters, celebrated his 88th birthday yesterday when an informal dinner party was given for him by his daughter, Mrs. Justin L. Cross. Almost on the threshold of becoming a nonagenarian this gallant survivor of the Rebellion is today one of the smartest old men in Knox County, and certainly does not look his years. Mr. Kelley's long career has been a busy one ever since he began work as a liner cook teamster at the age of 14. His memory carries him back to the famous boom days at Dix Island, where he was employed as teamster. He carried materials for Rockland's public buildings and most of its business blocks, and worked in a number of the shipyards.

Walking on Lake avenue recently Mrs. Susie Lamb saw protruding from the end of a culvert, some Grand Army markers such as are used in designating the graves of soldiers and sailors. She promptly reported the matter, but the markers had disappeared when interested parties arrived on the scene. The disappearance is thought to have been caused by children who found the markers and did not recognize their significance. Col. F. S. Philbrick, department commander of the Grand Army, is very anxious to have the markers restored and will welcome any information that will lead to it. His telephone call is 67-M.

State Legislatures this year have added 14,000 new statutes, but it might have been lots worse as 50,000 were proposed. National Congress added 1524 to the season's crop. New York led the procession of States with 1200 new laws out of 4265 submitted. Maine's contribution was 560 out of 2077 submitted.

P. F. Dondero of Lewiston was a visitor at The Courier-Gazette office yesterday enroute to Oakland Park for his annual spring inspection of the property. He has operated the big dance pavilion for several years and this season promises even better attractions.

Manley T. Perry has returned from a business trip to Boston, terminating in a pleasant detour when he came home via North Conway, N. H., where he visited his brother Charles. He found surprisingly "good goin'" in the mountain region, with many signs of spring in evidence.

Stanley Gregory found unexpected interference at his set last night when radio telephone continually interrupted while he was operating station WENR. Mr. Gregory is a tenant at The Brook. Did anybody else have a similar experience?

STRAND THEATRE.
Warner Oland in role made to order for the man who created a sensation as "Fu Manchu," comes to the Strand Friday and Saturday with June Collyer and Lloyd Hughes in "The Drums of Jeopardy."

PARK THEATRE.
"Gun Smoke," the Richard Arlen starring picture which comes to the Park Theatre Friday and Saturday is as modern as the "rackets" of the big cities—yet it combines all the red-blooded fervor of the true Western picture.

She jilts Arlen, who has outspoken opinions of the real characters of these visitors. His suspicions are verified when Boyd slays Strike Jackson, veteran prospector who has discovered a rich gold vein which Boyd calculates he'll appropriate by force. Thus on to the exciting climax.

be perpetuated to our children and to their children as a symbol and inspiration to them of patriotic citizenship, wherein lies the security of our nation's future.

School Children Stockholders

The United States frigate known as "Old Ironsides" is once more a most talked about vessel. There has been hardly a newspaper in the country that has not at some time during the last two years heralded the fact that Congress had passed an act authorizing the restoration of this grand old vessel. But Congress appropriated no money to rebuild the ship and the effort has been made to have the schoolchildren and their elders as well, become stockholders in the floating monument to the brave deeds and actions of American seamen. Had Congress provided the funds to rebuild the ship, the country would probably have heard little of her deeds and exploits. She is a monument, this grand old vessel and not only to the navy but to the merchant service as well, for the men who manned her at the beginning of her career were drawn from the peaceful service of commerce on the sea.

For 133 years "Old Ironsides" has been afloat. On two previous occasions she has been saved from destruction by popular clamor; once in 1830 when it was aroused by the stirring poem of Oliver Wendell Holmes. In 1906 a great petition engineered by a patriotic citizen of Massachusetts—Eric Pape—caused Congress to order temporary repairs to be made. Now at a cost much exceeding that of her original construction she is to be given again a new lease of life; no ship in any naval establishment so justly deserves a position in the affections of a country.

Her long record is one of continuous and victorious service. Designed by Joshua Humphreys her keel was laid down in Harts shipyard in Boston in November, 1794. Owing to the lack of funds she actually did not take the water until Oct. 21, 1797. The Constitution's service in the West Indies and as flagship of the Mediterranean squadron in the war with Tripoli (1803 to 1805); her marvelous escape from the British squadron in July, 1812, under the command of Capt. Isaac Hull; her fight with the British frigate Guerriere under the most gallant officer, and her subsequent capture of the British frigate Java, when she was commanded by Commodore William Bainbridge, and later when she took two British men of war, the Cyane and Levant in 1815, Commodore Charles Stewart commanding, make stirring reading.

Never Lacked a Crew

The Constitution never lacked for a picked crew. There was competition among the sailormen of the early days to get on board of her; she was their first choice, for she was the fastest, most easily handled vessel of her size that ever sailed the seas in any navy. In her class, owing to her construction and the arrangement of her batteries, she was invincible. The live oak and red cedar, the white oak and pitch pine and locust of which she was constructed came from States ranging from Massachusetts to South Carolina and Georgia; the heavier part of her original battery came from Maryland; much of her iron came from Connecticut. She was a national ship in every sense of the word!

The old frigate's appearance and her sail plan underwent many changes during her career. Her first figurehead has been described as that of Hercules, and there are many evidences that it was intended for a representation of Neptune. This was badly knocked to pieces in a fight with the Guerriere, and owing to shortness of time a scroll or billet head was substituted. In 1834 a full length figure of Gen. Jackson was placed under her bowsprit. As this offended some Northern political fanatics, a party of volunteers went off in a violent thunderstorm in the harbor of Boston and sawed old Jackson's head off. This created some bad feeling and great excitement, and a new figurehead was ordered to be put on by the navy yard in New York. The original Jackson has just been discovered and is on view in New York City. At the present time she has a replica scroll, which was carried for many years.

The Constitution was one of the six ships authorized by Congress on March 27, 1794, and President Washington lost no time in proceeding with their building, for the reason expressed by him in his message to Congress at the end of 1796 when he said, "It is in our own experience that the most sincere neutrality is not sufficient guard against the depredations of nations at war. To secure respect to a neutral flag requires a naval force organized and ready to protect it from insult and aggression."

No Finer Frigate Afloat

The Constitution's dimensions are as follows: length over all 204 feet; length on water line 175 feet; breadth of beam, 43½ feet; depth of hold 14½ feet; draft forward, 21 feet; draft aft, 23 feet; displacement 2200 tons. Her water tanks held 48,600 gallons of water and she carried six months' provisions for a crew of 475 men.

Even though our ships were described abroad as "a few fir-built things with bits of striped bunting at their mastsheads" and contempt was shown for our "gridiron flag," yet no frigates finer than the Constitution and the United States were then afloat. No captains abler than Hull, Bainbridge, Decatur, Perry, than Lawrence, than Stewart, sailed under the flag of any nation; nor were the crews one whit behind the officers in all that appertains to seamanship and gunnery. Not a vessel but had before the mast some men who as navigators, as commanders, cool and deliberate fighters, will bear comparison with the average captain.

The reason is plain, our whole coast from Eastport to the Chesapeake was a great nursery of seamen. The East Indians and the West Indians, the fishing fleet, the whalers, and the sealers who under any circumstances, have been a nautical school of no mean order.

But the enormous expansion of the neutral carrying trade, in consequence of the European wars, put up the wages of the common sailor to thirty dollars a month, and drew in to the merchant marine and placed before the mast hundreds of men who, but for such wages, would have sailed their own smacks to the Grand Banks or been engaged in the coasting trade on their own account, or would have followed some money-getting occupation on land. Shrewd, intelligent, self-respecting, independent, accustomed to think for themselves, they formed a body of men that no navy in the world could match. Patriotism, not a press gang, brought them to the decks of our national ships, and once there they submitted cheerfully to a discipline and acquired a skill in the use of the guns which is simply astonishing.

A National Possession

The grand old frigate Constitution should be a national floating monument. The belongs to every citizen of the United States. Her record is part of this country's history. She was planned, constructed and launched during the administration of the first president of the United States, George Washington, and she has existed through every other administration to the present. Why is she a national possession? Why should she be preserved? Because she helped to save this country in the time of its great peril in the second war with Great Britain in 1812. Because she made possible the freedom of the seas. Her fighting record has never been equalled by any single ship in the history of any navy in the world. She was almost a navy in herself, and like her own great name, the names of her commanders are bound up with our early and hazardous national life. Because almost every State in the Union contributed to her building—live oak and white oak and cedar from the Southern and Middle Atlantic States, iron for her guns and anchors from Maryland, Connecticut and Massachusetts, fir and pine from the North woods; and bolts that fastened her historic timbers were made at the foundry of Paul Revere.

Her first flags were made by the daughters of Betsy Ross. There was not a single citizen of our land in the days of her active service that was not represented in her successive crews.

Twice she has been saved from destruction by the voice of the people of the United States, once in 1830 when her dismantling and her total disappearance were approved by the Navy Department at Washington but the citizens would not stand for this sacrifice. Roused by the stand of the older officers and by Oliver Wendell Holmes' stirring poem they demanded that she be spared, and spared she was to spread her sails and take her place on the active navy list again our foremost flagship for over twenty years. The exertion of volunteers saved her from burning in the Norfolk Navy Yard in 1861. In 1906 when she had begun to fall once more into sad decay, roused by a monster petition signed principally by residents of Massachusetts, Congress appropriated enough money to repair her and keep her afloat—a paltry $100,000.

Escaped Fate of Target

It had been seriously proposed at this time that she be taken to sea and used as a target for our modern warships, and so the time came when the people of this country came to her rescue and she was spared this ignominious fate. So by a peculiar act of Congress the public and especially the school children of this great land have been allowed to subscribe for her rehabilitation. Surely the people will not fail the grand old ship in the hour of her direst need. Rehabilitated by public contributions, she should sail into every seaport of America, an object lesson to the youth of the land of patriotism, valor and loyalty, and a refutation of the timeworn saying that republics are ungovernable. England has preserved Lord Nelson's flagship, the Victory, for all time. Can we do less with our immortal vessel the Constitution?

Of the many engagements that the Constitution was in during her career I will mention three of the most noted. The action between the Constitution and Guerriere took place Aug. 19, 1812, in latitude 41 degrees 42 minutes north, longitude 65 degrees 48 minutes west. It was the first frigate action of the war and its effect on the morale of the people of the United States cannot be overestimated. They were in the depths of despair due to the reverses on land, and this victory did much to restore national confidence.

Capt. Hull the commander of the Constitution in this action, was born in Derby, Conn., and at the time of the action was 37 years of age. In his official report he states that so fine a ship as the Guerriere, commanded by an able and experienced officer, had been totally dismantled and otherwise cut to pieces so as to make her not worth towing into port, in the short space of 30 minutes actual fighting time. "You can have no doubt of the gallantry and good conduct of the officers and ship company I have the honor to command." It was in this action that the Constitution earned the sobriquet "Old Ironsides"—a seaman noticed a shot strike her side and fall back into the sea and shouted "Huzzah! Her sides are made of iron."

Saved Captain's Bible

As the Guerriere was so badly damaged she could not be taken into port, Commodore Hull on Aug. 20 set her on fire. Just before the torch was applied Commodore Hull asked Capt. Dacres of the Guerriere if there was anything he would like to save from his ship. He said, "Yes, my mother's Bible, which I have carried with me for years." An officer was sent to get it, and from that moment a friendship sprang up between these two captains that lasted until Hull's death in 1843.

The action between the Constitution commanded by Capt. Charles Stewart and the English men of war Cyane and Levant was fought Feb. 20, 1815. Starting about sundown, it

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, de-ranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red spots on the tongue, starting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 502 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., wrote: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your Dr. True's Elixir that helped her."

He is being treated at the Waterville Hospital, for which place Mr. Morrison and Willard left Tuesday morning. The sympathy of the community is extended to Foster and the family. When the word came Mr. Morrison was on the light. Notwithstanding rough seas Goldie MacDonald got word to him and brought him ashore.

FISH ARE NOT FUSSY

In the stomach of a cod fish caught at sea were found the bodies of two sea gulls—a haddock's intestines were jammed with spawn of deep sea clams—and a 42 inch goose fish contained a 32 inch cod. Prof. Clapp of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology returned Monday from the Western bank, off Sable Island, on the trawler Princeton, and said those were some of the things found in 10,000 fish he slit open during the trip. The journey, one of several Prof. Clapp has made to fishing grounds, was for the purpose of learning what denizens of the deep eat.

was the last action of the war, as well as the last great fight of the Constitution. The American ship was more than a match for her lighter opponents, although the weight of the metal thrown by the two enemy ships was 763 lbs. against 704 lbs. The Constitution crew numbered 451 and she lost 6 killed and 9 wounded as against 19 killed and 42 wounded out of 320 in the crews of her antagonists. The action is noted for the seamanship displayed by Capt. Stewart.

For 15 minutes after the battle began a very hot action ensued. The sea was covered with a light mist and the moon came out while dense masses of smoke formed to leeward of each ship. When it finally cleared away from the Constitution she found herself abreast the Levant.

With the Cyane luffing up astern to deliver a raking broadside. Capt. Stewart quickly fired a broadside into the Levant—then hidden in the smoke of his own guns braced the after sails aback and went astern enough to pour a heavy fire into the Cyane. As the Levant turned to come to the Cyane's assistance, the Constitution's sails were again filled. She shot ahead and fired two broadsides into the stern of the Levant as she was turning. Capt. Falcon of the Cyane seeing the hazardous position of his companion gallantly stood in between the two ships and the Levant drew out badly up.

The Cyane attempted to go off before the wind but Stewart was short around and gave her a raking fire over the stern and placed his ship within hail on her port quarter, where he held her practically at his mercy.

The Cyane Surrenders

The Cyane badly cut up, at 6:45 surrendered, 40 minutes after the action opened. The transfer of prisoners required nearly an hour. At 7:45 the Constitution filled away for the Levant and at 8:40 they passed within fifty yards of each other on opposite tacks. They exchanged broadsides and the Constitution headed around under the stern of the Levant and raked her. Seeing now that the Cyane had struck, Capt. Douglas attempted to run, but too late—after a chase of 30 minutes he surrendered the Levant. The battle is noted for the splendid seamanship of the Americans and the gallant behavior of the English. Capt. Stewart had succeeded by running and backing from one ship to the other, in fighting each separately and in keeping his own ship from being raked. There is nothing finer in the history of our navy.

Commodore William Bainbridge took command of "Old Ironsides" Sept. 15, 1812. After refitting the ship, she sailed from Boston Oct. 27, 1812, and cruised south. Dec. 29 in latitude 13 degrees 6 minutes south and longitude 33 degrees west, "Old Ironsides" met "H. M. S. Java." It was a battle of seamanship as well as guns. "Old Ironsides" was admirably handled and her marksmanship was of the same high standard as in the fight with the Guerriere and while the action lasted two hours, it had the same results—the Java was dismantled and forced to surrender.

Following is an official report of Commodore Bainbridge of the later part of the fight: "At 40 minutes past two determined to close with the enemy notwithstanding his raking. Set the fore and mainmast and luffed up close to him. At 50 minutes past two the enemy's jibboom got foul of our mizzen rigging. At three the head of the enemy's bowsprit and jibboom were shot away by us. At five minutes past three, shot away the enemy's foremast by the board. At 15 minutes past three, shot away his main topmast just above the cap. At 40 minutes past three shot away the gaff and spanker boom, at 55 minutes past three shot away his mizzenmast by the board."

Teeming With Highlanders

After the surrender Commodore Bainbridge with his surgeon and one of his officers rowed over to the Java and boarded her. To Bainbridge's surprise he found the decks teeming with Highlanders in their kilts and sporrans, for the Java was conveying a half battalion of the 42nd Highlanders, the Black Watch, to India.

On board also was Lieut. Gen. Hislop of the British army, the newly appointed governor of Bombay and his staff. Asking where Capt. Lambert the Commander of the Java was, Bainbridge was informed that he was on the quarter deck badly wounded. Repairing thither the commander of the Constitution found Capt. Lambert lying on deck with his head on a midshipman's knee. As Bainbridge approached him Capt. Lambert extended his sword in token of surrender but the gallant Bainbridge, slightly wounded himself in the hip, bent down beside him and said, "No sir, the sword of so brave a man should never be taken from him. I will not take your sword but I will take your hand. You fought your ship magnificently. I had the weather gauge throughout." He turned to his surgeon and ordered that Capt. Lambert be taken to his cabin on the Constitution and be given all possible care.

Capt. Lambert soon died and was buried with all honors. Bainbridge made a cartel of a smaller captured ship, paroled Gen. Hislop, the officers and crew of the Java and sent them on to Bombay. Three years after the termination of the war, by a special messenger from London arrived a magnificent gold mounted sword bearing this inscription "Presented to Commodore Bainbridge by Lieut. Gov. Hislop and his staff and the surviving officers of the Java in lieu of the sword that he so gallantly refused to accept from Capt. Lambert."

Capt. Bainbridge's Toast
In conclusion and as a tribute to this noble old ship I will give Commodore Bainbridge's toast. At a dinner given him in Philadelphia in April 1831 he responded to one of the many toasts. Lifting his glass he spoke as follows: "You have toasted the President of the United States, you have toasted the constitution of our country, you have toasted the government, the Army and Navy, and been so good as to include the officers who are your guests this evening and their crews. Let me toast the ship. Never has she failed us. Never has her crew failed in showing their allegiance and belief in the country they served nor the honor they felt in belonging to the ship that sheltered them, and on whose decks they fought—where many gave their lives."

"To have commanded the Constitution is a signal honor; to have been one of her complement, in no matter how humble a capacity, is an equal one. Her name is an inspiration. Not only do her deeds belong to our naval record, but she herself is possessed of a brave personality. In light weather, in storm or hurricane or amid the smoke of battle, she responded with alacrity and obedience, and seemed ever eager to answer the will of her commander. May the citizens of this country in gratitude see that she like her namesake and prototype will never be forgotten. Her commander in the future as in the past, will see to it that her flag never shall be lowered. She was conceived in patriotism; gloriously has she shown her valor. Let her depart in glory if the fates so decree, but let her not sink and decay into oblivion—The Ship."

High School Notes

Gladys Alley is office stenographer this week.

Eight weeks more of school and the year is done!

Junior high assembly was omitted Wednesday on account of the intelligence tests being given to all junior high school students.

Representatives of three colleges are to be here today and Friday to talk with students who are considering a college course: Dean Nixon of Bowdoin, Dean Hart of Maine and Prof. Howell Lewis of Bates.

The public speaking classes are beginning work on one act plays which are to be presented during the spring term. This is good news to a considerable group of Rockland people who find something in amateur plays that is lacking from the best picture, talkie or still, ever made.

The following teams went to Belfast Wednesday evening to play the return volley ball games with Belfast High School. Girls—Elsie Howard, Edna Howard, Evelyn Pietrosky, Phyllis Snowman, Bernice Smith, Virginia Piper, Alice Gay, Mildred Sprague, June Brewer, Carrie Breen, Cynthia Wasgatt; boys—Spear, Freeman, Thomas, Webber, Haskell, Faulkingham, Carroll, Dalley.

Faculty meetings have become increasingly interesting this year through the use of "Problem Exercises for High School Teachers." A sample problem is given herewith. Try it yourself.

Procedure Test No. IV.
Assume that during the first week of the course two boys of average ability in the course take a "vanity case" from a girl sitting next them and cover their faces with powder and rouge. It becomes necessary to establish your authority in the class. This might be done by any one of the following procedures:

By asking the boys to leave the room and stay out until they have apologized to the girl.
By threatening corporal punishment on the spot if the apology is not made at once.

By sending the boys to the principal's office with a note of explanation.
By swinging class opinion against such childish tricks without arousing the resentment of the culprits.

By refusing to take the matter seriously and remarking pleasantly that the habit of using cosmetics seems to be contagious.

Directions: (a) Write the number of the procedure you consider most efficient; (b) write the number of the procedure you consider least efficient; (c) state, if you can, a procedure more efficient than any listed above.

Tuesday's patriotic assembly held unusual interest for the audience as all those participating were from within the school. Thelma Blackington as chairman, conducted the opening exercises and introduced the speakers. Robert Hussey gave a selection from Lincoln and Helen de Rochemont a cutting from Mary McDowell. This was followed by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" as the flag was brought in by Leslie Kaler as standard bearer.

After the salute to the flag Robert Allen gave the recitation "Unknown" and Walter Staples "Don't Die On Third." The latter title scarcely suggests the inspirational value of the selection, a stirring challenge to young people to earn their own success instead of waiting for a sacrifice on the part of some one else to help them score. Miss Coughlin's address was a fitting close to a genuinely patriotic program of dignity and power. She took for her subject "Gifts" and showed how a gift establishes a new relation between people. A gift unappreciated means a giver despised. God sifted all the nations of the earth and gave to this country the chance to profit by the good qualities of England, France, Italy or the Scandinavian sea kings. This wonderful continent was settled by people who everlastingly believed in God. Nothing was so hard as to make them lose that faith. Miss Coughlin concluded with the scripture text "I beseech you therefore that ye walk worthy of the high vocation to which ye are called"—the receivers of the traditions and the holders of the traditions of the United States of America. At the close of the program Mr. Blaisdell called attention to the community of effort that had made possible the simple beauty of the new draperies for the stage at a cost of fifty dollars and considerable work and outlined further plans for making the auditorium a fitting place to be the center of the school activities.
