DR. WASGATT BADLY INJURED

Victim Of An Automobile Collision At Beech and Lincoln Streets This Forenoon

A Dodge coach driven by Dr. R. J. Wasgatt and a Buick sedan driven by Harold E. Jackson, manager of the Armour plant, crashed at the corner of Beech and Lincoln streets at 10 o'clock this forenoon. Dr. Wasgatt was taken in an unconscious condition to Knox Hospital, bleeding profusely from a deep gash on the side of his head, and also bleeding from the mouth.

Mr. Jackson was uninjured. Neither car had other occupants.

Dr. Wasgatt was traveling south on Lincoln street and Mr. Jackson was going east on Beech street. Both attempted to avert a collision, but the

Winter Vacation Days In the South Gave Opportunity To Inspect Other Patriotic Shrines

Advent of the vernal month of May usually sees the latest of the vacation visitors to the southland reestablished in their Northern environment. Among these, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Fuller yesterday reopened their Beech street home, following an absence of four months spent in Florida and at other southern points. Seen by a reporter of The Courier-Gazette, Mr. Fuller confirmed the general understanding that the winter there had been of unusual character, with excessive winds and much rain and a lowered thermometer, cutting down the business of the hotels.

"But," he added, "the conditions being not unlike our May in Maine, we ourselves were not particularly disturbed. The merchants of course suffered from diminished business, but they didn't appear to worry. On the contrary, they seemed surprised thereby to look for business from sources hitherto unexploited. With a contributed fund of twenty-five thousand dollars the Miami chamber of commerce organized and is enthusiastically pushing a countrywide campaign, urging the attractions of Florida, because of its equability of climate, as a resort for tourists equally in summer as in winter."

"That is a piece of enterprise we of the north can admire, though we should be reluctant to see the success of it cut into the vacationist business of summers in Maine. Our logical answer might consist in showing to the world the splendid agencies of health-building and general enjoyment to be encountered in the out-of-doors of these glorious Pine Tree Winters."

FOR MOTHERS DAY

Mayor Richardson Issues Proclamation — Cooperation of Lifesaving Units

Whereas, May 10, the second Sunday in May, is Mother's Day, nationally consecrated in reverence to Motherhood; and

Whereas, up to now, observance of this day has been tenderly sentimental but no practical service, no constructive social tribute has been offered; and

Whereas the greatest honor we can do to mothers is to safeguard the young motherhood we have among us . . . not alone to decorate the graves of mothers who are dead but to strive all together toward the end that there shall be fewer untimely deaths of mothers to decorate; and

Whereas we know that upwards of 16,000 mothers yearly lose their lives in childbirth in the United States and that most of these lives could be saved by means of competent maternity care; and

Whereas we have here in our midst several separate units of efficiency ready to hand for the carrying forward of this life-saving work.

Therefore, I do urge that we, the citizens of this community do everything in our power to encourage, and sustain these services to make it more generally known the need of opportunities for providing every expectant mother with the necessary and proper care from the very beginning until the child is at least six weeks old; I designate the Health Officer of this city to furnish on request any information available to the several units in order that we as a community may truly honor Motherhood by cherishing and preserving the mothers among us to the very best of our combined ability.

C. M. Richardson,
Mayor.

A Montpelier Pilgrimage

"It may interest you to know that in a manner of speaking our winter took on the character of a Knox Memorial pilgrimage. In particular this was the case with Mrs. Fuller, who in the capacity of chairman of the furnishing committee of the patriotic shrine at Thomaston was day and night pursuing the lines which relate to that important piece of business. Thus wherever we were, in hotels, on trains, in private homes, whenever listeners singly or in groups were to be encountered, the historic story of Gen. Knox and the memorial to his achievements received publication. Nor did the newspapers escape. It was heartening to note the interest which the Knox story created whenever it was told and with what applause people from every part of the country testified their interest in the thing that is being brought to pass to place our fine old colonial town of Thomaston in that distinguished list of the regions notable for their historic shrines."

"Some of these we were able to our great delight to visit—in particular Monticello (the careful to pronounce it Monticello) the home of Thomas Jefferson, in Charlottesville, Virginia; Washington's Mount Vernon; the former home of Gen. Lee, discovered by the indefatigable officials, Boy Scouts or voluntary investigators. A water filled and abandoned limerock quarry may yet furnish the answer."

Contiguous to the Wellman farm on the Beech Hill road are perhaps 1000 acres of wild land wherein a crime could have been committed with little prospect of immediate detection, but this area has been pretty well skirted without finding any evidence of violence. Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Cavanaugh of Rockport, himself a skilled woodsman, has covered a vast amount of territory with his dogs since the case was called to his attention, and beyond finding the unexplained tracks of a motor car going from the Wellman house to the edge of the woods; and the discovery by Deputy Sheriff Ludwick of a horse's hoofprints there seems to have been nothing that would arouse suspicion.

The last persons who appear to have seen Mrs. Wellman, as previously told in these columns, were Percy Bryant and Vernon Tolman, who say that they saw her on West street, Rockport between 11 and 11:30 on the forenoon of her disappearance. The boys' description of the woman (and she was known to Tolman) fits well into the picture except for the blue coat which they say she was wearing. The coats which Mrs. Wellman was known to possess were still in the house after her departure. The blue coat will today be submitted to Bryant and Tolman to see if it tallies with the one they say she was wearing when seen on West street.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Second Class Scout Clarence Bowser, First Class Scouts Walter Staples and Richard Britt of Troop 2 assisted Scout Executive Harold W. Whitehill Sunday in an extensive search about the Wellman place, but found nothing. Scoutmasters Walter Kimball, Osmond Gilbert, and Executive Whitehill plan to look the ground over themselves soon.

Last night Troops 1, 2, 3, and 6 had a joint meet at homes of "Capture the Flag" on Middle Street Lookout. About 50 scouts were present.

Until further notice the Scout Office will be open Wednesday nights only, from 7:15 until 9 o'clock.

Next Sunday each Troop will observe Mothers Day by attending the sponsoring churches. Scouts should be in full uniform.

Wednesday night if fair, the Cubs will go on a short hike and play games out of doors, leaving the meeting place at 6, to be gone about two hours. Cub Leader Harold Whitehill and the regular assistants will accompany them.

ROCKPORT MYSTERY DEEPENS

No Trace Of Mrs. Fred Wellman Or the Convict Farmhand Boulter—Latter Bought Revolver Morning After Mrs. Wellman Left Home—Officers Quiz Constance Wellman

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Fred Wellman of Rockport appears to be no nearer a solution than it was when this paper went to press last Saturday, and the same is true of Alden Boulter, Fred Priest's erstwhile farmhand who left Rockport on the same day. Nobody claims to have seen Mrs. Wellman later than 11 or 11:30 on the forenoon of Thursday, April 23, but Boulter did not leave the vicinity until late the following afternoon.

The theory of elopement has practically been thrown into the discard, leaving a choice of two beliefs—that she committed suicide because of the discord aroused in her family by Boulter's attentions to her, or that she has been murdered by someone whose identity can only be guessed. The theory of kidnapping seems quite out of the question, for two reasons, one being that she was sufficiently enamored of Boulter to render such action unnecessary; the other reason being that this squire of dames would not have found it an easy matter to have carried away this vigorous 212 pound woman against her will, and in broad daylight, for it will be remembered that it was later than 9:30 a. m. when Mrs. Wellman disappeared.

And by the same token it is difficult to understand how anybody could have disposed of her body in so short a time without its having been discovered by the indefatigable officials, Boy Scouts or voluntary investigators. A water filled and abandoned limerock quarry may yet furnish the answer.

Contiguous to the Wellman farm on the Beech Hill road are perhaps 1000 acres of wild land wherein a crime could have been committed with little prospect of immediate detection, but this area has been pretty well skirted without finding any evidence of violence. Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Cavanaugh of Rockport, himself a skilled woodsman, has covered a vast amount of territory with his dogs since the case was called to his attention, and beyond finding the unexplained tracks of a motor car going from the Wellman house to the edge of the woods; and the discovery by Deputy Sheriff Ludwick of a horse's hoofprints there seems to have been nothing that would arouse suspicion.

The last persons who appear to have seen Mrs. Wellman, as previously told in these columns, were Percy Bryant and Vernon Tolman, who say that they saw her on West street, Rockport between 11 and 11:30 on the forenoon of her disappearance. The boys' description of the woman (and she was known to Tolman) fits well into the picture except for the blue coat which they say she was wearing. The coats which Mrs. Wellman was known to possess were still in the house after her departure. The blue coat will today be submitted to Bryant and Tolman to see if it tallies with the one they say she was wearing when seen on West street.

A brief summary of the principal developments since the last issue of this paper is featured by the discovery that on Friday (April 24) the day after Mrs. Wellman disappeared, the farmhand Boulter, alias Atkinson, bought a 32-calibre revolver in the Tibbets drug store at Camden. This circumstance was made known Saturday when Leo Crooker, manager of the store, read in a newspaper that the man was being sought in connection with Mrs. Wellman's disappearance.

Mr. Crooker immediately notified Sheriff Frank F. Harding who with Deputy Sheriff Ludwick, and a Courier-Gazette reporter paid a prompt visit to the hardware store.

The circumstances, as related by Mr. Crooker were somewhat peculiar. Boulter, who was known in that section as William Atkinson, entered the hardware store at 7:30 a. m. Rejecting several because the cost was more than he could afford, Boulter finally selected a 38 calibre revolver, for which he paid $5, and also bought the remnants of a box of cartridges. In accordance with the procedure required by law, Manager Crooker inquired his name and address. Boulter gave the name by which he had been known in Rockport, and said he was employed on the Fred Priest's farm, where he wished to kill some woodchucks. As a matter of fact he had already left Mr. Priest's employ.

Two hours later Boulter appeared at the store and told the proprietor that the weapon jumped so he was unable to use it. The manner in which he had tested the weapon was not indicated, for he returned the 15 cartridges which Manager Crooker had counted out, and received back his money for both weapon and cartridges. Boulter was then stopping at a Camden rooming house, and did not make his final disappearance until late that afternoon. With him apparently went one of two boxes which were known to have been in his possession when he went to Dean's rooming house.

The purchase of the revolver has opened up a long chain of speculation, which like all the other clues, leads nowhere.

Boulter's explanation that he wanted to kill woodchucks at the Priest farm is not tenable because he had left Priest's employ two days previously. The gun had been discharged, but in view of the fact that Boulter returned the same number of cartridges that he purchased, where did he get the ammunition, and what did he shoot at? And assuming that he had taken a human life why did he venture back into town instead of making a quick getaway.

Sunday an immense throng of sightseers visited the scene of the tragedy, shall we call it? Motor cars by the hundreds, and visitors afoot—some, impelled by a genuine desire to aid in the search, but the majority actuated by the morbid curiosity which breeds naturally on such occasions. This peaceful little community, which overlooks such a wonderful view of Rockport village and the bay, had never seen the like before.

Boy Scouts, under the direction of Scout Executive Harold Whitehill swung into the breach and performed real service in the way of systematic search, their knowledge of woodcraft coming strongly into play. The executive ability of young Mr. Whitehill impressed itself upon all who watched the progress of the hunt, and he was last night given carte blanche to use his Scouts when and how he saw fit in connection with this case.

While the Boy Scouts and other volunteers were "beating the bush" Sunday a thorough search was being made by Deputy Sheriffs Ludwick and Cavanaugh in the cottage colonies, and among the camps which abound in that territory. They found nothing suspicious.

Endless tips have been tested out, the officers being determined to overlook no detail which might tend to solve the mystery.

Yesterday a troublesome factor was removed when Judge Walter H. Butler imposed a jail sentence of 20 days on a sailor named Patrick Buller, who had already made the acquaintance of our jail and police station, having frequently applied for lodging at the latter. Buller told the Court that he had been eating food unfit for his system and that it had made him ill.

"What you need," said Judge Butler, "is to go on a diet, so I am going to send you up for 20 days."

Buller had several times been reported as a suspicious character, and chasing after him had lost the officials valuable time in the Wellman case.

Capt. William H. Wincapaw had intended yesterday to do some air scouting over the mystery zone, but the gale prevented, and he may go on his errand today, instead.

The outstanding development of yesterday was the presence in the grand jury room yesterday of Constance Wellman, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wellman, who was interrogated for more than an hour by County Attorney Ensign Otis and Deputy Sheriff Ludwick. Her story, told in a dignified and becoming manner, was more coherent than anything she had previously told the officials, but did not materially add to their knowledge of the case.

The girl was not unaware of Boulter's clandestine visits to the Wellman house, nor of the lighted lamp signal which appeared in the window overlooking the Priest farm when her father was in town on errands. Her conscience told her that all of this was morally wrong, but—and the girl's manner was one of dejected helplessness.

The officials returned to the Wellman farm with Constance early last evening, and had further interviews with the other daughters—Dorothy, aged 13 and Ruth 10.

Interest in the case now centers upon the third member of the eternal triangle—Fred Wellman, who is alleged to have made serious threats against his wife and Boulter if he caught them together. His alibi is said to lack some things which would make it thoroughly convincing, but the authorities credit him with having made no attempt to "pad" the time which he says he spent on the road with the town tractor, on the fateful forenoon.

The Story of Boulter

The case of Alden Boulter, escaped life prisoner, who is being sought by Knox County authorities in connection with the disappearance a week ago of Mrs. Wellman was one of the interesting ones which occupied the attention of Aroostook County nearly a score of years ago.

Boulter was convicted in December, 1914, of murdering his sweetheart, Miss Emma Jensen of New Sweden, in Caribou on the night of June 24, that year, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Later he was pronounced of unsound mind and after having served several years at Thomaston, was transferred to the hospital for the criminal insane at Augusta. After a time there he was returned to the prison as cured, but in 1930, was again returned to the hospital.

Boulter escaped from the hospital in September of 1930, and has been at large since that time.

Many of those who closely followed the case of Boulter in 1914 were of the opinion that he never should have been convicted of murder; that manslaughter should have been the verdict.

June 24, 1914, Boulter with his sweetheart and other members of the family drove to Caribou for the purpose of attending the performance of a circus in that town. In the course of the day Miss Jensen struck up an acquaintance with a circus man, Boulter objected to it.

His story of what transpired and ended in the death of the girl and which was never really disproved was:

After the evening performance of the circus he overtook the girl and the circus man together on the New Sweden road. He walked up to them, put his hand on the girl's shoulder and said:

"Emma, come home with me."

The man whirled, knocked Boulter down and drew a revolver. They exchanged shots. Boulter fired three times. There were three bullets of the same calibre as those used in his weapon, in the girl's body. There were no other witnesses to the shooting. No circus man was ever located.

About 10 or 12 years ago a Massachusetts woman and another in Pennsylvania became interested in Boulter's case and made an attempt to secure him a pardon, being convinced that he had been punished enough. Beyond seeking to enlist the help of several persons in Maine nothing ever came of the movement.

HERE'S 'NOTHER ANSWER

Washington, D. C., April 29
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
Here is my answer to Dunt's problem printed in The Courier-Gazette April 18.

Problem—If four dogs with 16 legs can catch 29 rabbits with 116 legs in 14 minutes, how many legs must the same rabbits have to get away from eight dogs with 32 legs in 17 1/2 minutes, allowing 365 days to a year?

Answer—29 rabbits must have 116 legs to get away from any number of dogs in any number of minutes. They would be handicapped by having more or less legs. Carrie E. Paige

Reservations for the public card party to be given under the auspices of Edwin Libby Relief Corps Friday evening at Grand Army hall may be arranged by calling Mrs. Ida Huntley, chairman, 158 M. M. There will be several attractive prizes, and refreshments will be served.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER
I remember, I remember
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came creeping in at morn;
It never came a wink too soon
Nor brought too long a day;
But now I often wish the night
Had borne my breath away.

I remember, I remember
The roses, red and white,
The violets and the lilacs,
Those flowers made of light!
The lilacs where the robin built,
And where my brother set
The laburnum on his birthday—
The tree is living yet!

I remember, I remember
Where I was used to swing,
And thought the air must rush as fresh
To swallows on the wing;
My spirit flew in ecstasy
That so happy now,
And summer pools could hardly cool
The fever of my brow.

I remember, I remember
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky;
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from Heaven
Than when I was a boy.

Rockland, Me., May 5, 1931.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydie, who on oath declares that he is Pressman in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of May 2, 1931, there was printed a total of 6231 copies.

For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.—I. John 5:4.

Kenneth Roberts, author, who makes Kennebunk his summer home, has brought out another book "The Lively Lady," which is again of Arundel, in Maine, as his first book "Arundel." "The Lively Lady" is a historical novel, as fine and stirring as "Arundel," as packed with genuine romance, vivid color, authentic action and history as that splendid achievement. In his second book Mr. Roberts gives an equally memorable picture of Arundel, a generation later, before the men of America were sufficiently aroused to resist the imposing might of haughty Britain, with the feats of the intrepid Yankee seamen as the feature. Another author who has become imbued with the spirit of Maine is Harriet Comstock, who spent a good part of last summer in the Maine woods, making Waterville the nearest point of civilization. She also spent some of her time on Monhegan and was particularly impressed by the Maine coast. Of the Maine woods she has written "A sheer beauty that shines into one's soul, to be re-born a thousand times in everything that one thinks of, dreams or accomplishes or aspires to..."

All of the officers of the Maine State Y.P.C.U., headed by Rev. William Dawes Veazie of the Church of Messiah of Portland as president, were re-elected at the annual business session Saturday during the convention at Dexter ending Sunday. The vice president is Miss Ruth Gordon of Bangor; secretary, Leila Witham of Portland; and treasurer, Robert Manson of Gardiner. State cup presented to the local Union making the greatest progress in various lines, including additions to membership and features of work was awarded to the Bangor union. The local organization sent no representation this year, inasmuch as many of the members are in the graduating class just returned from Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Faith G. Berry, accompanied by Mrs. Marguerite Johnson, supervisor of music in the public schools, and her daughter, and Misses Ruth Hanson and Ruth Gregory, motored Saturday to Waterville where Mrs. Berry was judge in the First Maine State Glee Club contest. The Edward Little High School Consolidated Girls' Glee Club of Auburn won first place in Class A for Girls' Glee Clubs, and the Bangor High School Boys' Glee Club first place in Class A for Boys' Glee Clubs, while Jordan High School Girls' Glee Club of Lewiston won first place in Class B.

At City Government meeting last night two amendments were made to the appropriation resolve passed at the previous meeting. The amount for city streets was increased to $21,500, in order to reconstruct the third class roads and the school budget was increased $1900. It was voted to build a Flintstone road (similar to that on Broadway) on North Main street, from Rankin block to the cement section and as far beyond as the appropriation will permit. Two appointments were made—Walter Stapp as special policeman, and Wilbur Abbott as weigher of coal.

Mrs. Anna Seavey has received word of the death April 4 in Placerville, Calif., of her cousin J. S. Creighton. Though Mr. Creighton left Rockland in 1863, as a boy of 12, when the family moved West, and never revisited his old home, he had retained an interest in town affairs. The Courier-Gazette went regularly to their home until his father's death in 1914 and from 1924-1929 Mr. Creighton was a subscriber. He leaves several cousins in this vicinity.

George McLellan, who occupies the Andrew Allen house on South Main street using gasoline in cleaning his hands yesterday and then started a fire in the kitchen range. This was only one of the things he did, when there was a trail of gasoline leading to the can, and before McLellan knew what had happened the house was ablaze. The fire was quickly extinguished by the department, with damage comparatively small.

Hundreds of Masons from various parts of Maine will gather in Portland this week to participate in the annual sessions of the four grand bodies of York Rite Masonry, the Grand Lodge, Grand Chapter, Grand Council and Grand Commandery. Among Rockland Masons planning to attend are Dr. J. A. Egan, Edward Gonia, J. E. Stevens, A. E. Brunberg, Ralph U. Clark and Clarence Haraden.

The commissioner of corporations in Los Angeles has granted a permit to the MacMillan Arctic Exploration Company, Ltd. Motion-picture production. Directors, Edgar J. Gowen, Charles F. Rocheville and Donald J. Dunne (Dunne to be succeeded by Commander Donald B. MacMillan), Capital, 2500 shares, no par value.

The spring meeting of the Knox County Fish & Game Association, will be held at the Knights of Pythias hall in Port Clyde Friday night, a shore dinner being served at 6:30, daylight time. Justice Emery of the Superior Court will be the principal speaker. Motion pictures will be shown.

Marion Vinal of Grade Seven, Junior High, and Dorothy Thomas, Grade Five, McLain School, stored up good luck for the entire season when each found 15 four-leaf clovers Saturday morning in a field near the Vinal home on Limerock street.

The Community Sweet Shop at South Hope was opened for the season Sunday and Mr. and Mrs. Powell, the proprietors, were amazed at the number of patrons at so short a notice. "Better than ever," everybody said—as if such a thing were possible.

Uncle Zeke Ames Of Vinalhaven Still Able To Climb Ladder With Hod Of Bricks

Climbing a long steep ladder with a hod of bricks over your shoulder is not exactly child's play; neither is it supposed to be the vocation that a man would follow when he nears the other end of life's journey.

But age apparently doesn't count with Ezekiel Ames of Vinalhaven, who will be 93, come next November, and who sees no reason why he should not be just another Vinalhaven man to reach the century mark.

"Uncle Zeke" Never Did Shirk Hard Work — Behold Him At 92, a Mason's Tender

Knowing of his unusual activity the neighbors were none surprised the other day when they saw him acting as mason's tender, and carrying hodful after hodful of bricks up a long ladder. Almost every passer-by stopped for a friendly salutation, and he responded with ready wit to remarks which indicated that he is getting along in years for that kind of work. But in spite of interruptions he kept the mason well supplied, and the chimneys were topped out in jig time.

The State department of health recently boosted Maine because it has nearly twice as many 75-year-old residents, in proportion to population as any other State in the Union, and this island town feels that "Uncle Zeke" serves as an excellent poster-boy to the department's letter.

Mr. Ames is a native of North Haven, but with the exception of brief stays in Boston and New York has been practically a lifelong resident of Vinalhaven. His parents were Nathaniel and Charity (Brown) and he followed in his father's footsteps as an ambitious and thrifty young man.

It was 80 years ago that he earned his first money, fishing with his father and he has seen more seasons on the banks than there are years in the average man's lifetime. He has worked through storm and sunshine, and the shadow of danger has often fallen athwart his pathway, but he accepts philosophically whatever betides.

Mr. Ames is a firm believer in prohibition but fell by the wayside when it came to smoking, a habit which he had successfully defied, however, until he reached the age of 80. His advanced years he attributes to four reasons—a good appetite, regular habits, plenty of work, and keeping out of debt. He is an Adventist and strong believer in the Bible, and as a Republican thinks that Hoover has made as good a President as those "pesky fellows down in Washington" will allow him to be. The only organization to which he belongs is the Old Fellows. He is a general favorite on the island—always jovial and good natured.

He reads without glasses, and keeps well posted in current affairs throughout the country. Ames makes his home with his son Joseph, and has two other children—Calvin of Monmouth and Mrs. Margaret Winchenbaugh of Waldoboro. He also has ten grandchildren—Fernald Ames, Aubrey Delano, Mrs. James Smith of Vinalhaven, Lida Ames of Monmouth, Cheeta Ames of Swan's Island, Mrs. Winnie Ames of New York, Mrs. Carrie Babbage of Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Myrtle Stinson and Vaughn Ames of Camden, and Mrs. Madeline Hanley of Thomaston. He also has nine great grandchildren.

LOOKS LIKE SHORT TERM

Little Civil Or Criminal In Order For Trial—New Divorce Cases Entered—Judge Emery At The Helm

The May term of Knox County Superior Court convened this forenoon, with Justice George L. Emery of Biddeford on the bench. It is his first term in Knox County, but he may rest assured that his welcome will be of the same cordial character that has been extended to the other new judges, and that his stay in Rockland will be as pleasant as everybody can make it. Judge Emery's stenographer is Kenneth C. Twitchell of Bangor.

JUSTICE EMERY

Justice George L. Emery is one of the most widely known attorneys in Maine, and is a former chairman of the Republican State Committee.

He was born in Waterboro in 1876. He graduated from Biddeford High School in 1894, and intended to enter Harvard, but the death of his parents made this impossible. He began teaching school in Hollis, where he now has a summer home. He read law evenings in the office of former Judge Charles W. Ross and in 1897 was admitted to the bar. He began the practice of his profession at West Buxton. The following June he was appointed by Judge Benjamin F. Cleaves as recorder of the Biddeford Municipal Court. When the office of recorder became appointive, he was named to that position for four years more by Gov. Powers. He resigned to become a candidate for county attorney and was the youngest man ever elected to that office in York County. He was named judge of the Biddeford Municipal Court in 1914, serving until 1926, when he retired because of increased practice.

As matters were lining up yesterday there will be very little business this term, either of civil or a criminal nature, and a very short term is in prospect.

Rev. E. O. Kenyon of St. Peter's Church officiated as chaplain. Granville Bacheider is court crier, and Jerome C. Burrows is court messenger. Jethro D. Pease is in charge of the grand jury, and will also have charge of one of the traverse juries. John Stevens of Friendship having charge of the other.

Here are the divorce entries since last term, but all of them are not necessarily due for hearing this term: Elizabeth R. Wood of Rockland from Edwin R. Wood of Dorchester, Mass., married at Rockland April 6, 1921; cause, cruel and abusive treatment. Libellant asks for custody of minor child, Elizabeth Ripley. Smalley for libellant.

Donald M. Brewer of Rockland from Mildred M. Brewer of West Newton, married at Boston July 7, 1917; cause, desertion. Pike for libellant. Mabel L. Allison of Rockland from Alexander Allison of Los Angeles, Calif., married at Rockland May 25, 1904; cause, desertion and non-support. Payson for libellant.

Eva Lewis of Tampa, Fla., married at Bingham April 9, 1930; cause, cruel and abusive treatment and non-support. Tirrell for libellant. John P. Thompson, Jr., of Rockland from Grace Thompson of Rockland, married at Rockland May 25, 1928; cause, cruel and abusive treatment and adultery. Tirrell for libellant. Effe C. Simmons of Rockland from Ivan Simmons of St. George, married June 8, 1930; cause, extreme cruelty and non-support. Otis for libellant. Richard Cecchi, Jr., of Camden from Millicent F. Cecchi of Chicago, married at Geneva, Ill., Aug. 15, 1929; cause, cruel and abusive treatment. Charles A. Perry for libellant.

"ON MY SET"

Thirty-two bands numbering 3500 musicians completed for honors in Madison Square Garden Saturday night. As a feature of the broadcast program the Goldman Band played the William Tell overture and several other selections.

And speaking of bands did you ever hear the Johnny Haymer quartet to better advantage than last Sunday night. Among the features for next Sunday night's concert will be a fantasy on "My Old Kentucky Home."

Lovers of band music also enjoyed those Victor records as played by WLBZ Sunday night.

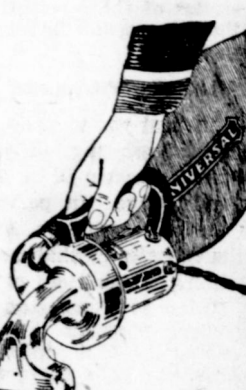

Eddie Cantor, noted comedian, is to be interviewed on the Sun-kist Musical Cocktail (WNAC) Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. His usual comic line of chatter will be in order no doubt.

THE CALL

(For The Courier-Gazette)

When the house is clean from bottom to top.

And we are weary enough to drop.

The call of the open sounds clear and true.

And, hearing the summons, we guide you down the hills to the gullies below.

To the fairy-land where violets grow.

Our weariness drops as we tramp along.

Thrilled by the lilt of a blue bird's song.

And a gorgeous redstart, that flies in view.

With his mate more sombre, a beauty too.

We miss, with regret, our big black dog.

Who roamed with us at a quiet jog.

But his padding paws are forever still.

He sleeps on the slope of a sunny hill.

So we sit alone, on some stump or stone.

As if a part of our humble throne;

And dwellers of woodland, pasture and field.

Go shyly along quite unconcealed.

And if we are careful not to stir.

They come so near us, their wings or fur.

Will brush in passing our resting place.

And we can admire their easy grace.

When the sun sinks low we pick our flowers.

Lovely companions for lovely hours;

And the way back home may be steep and long.

But our heart is light and filled with song.

For we found just what we sought to find.

Violets, plenty—and peace of mind.

Peggy.

And There May Be More Republican Candidates For Governor In Primaries

Frank P. Washburn of Perry, commissioner of agriculture of Maine makes announcement that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maine in the primaries of a year from next June. The Washington County man is the first formal entrant in the race that bids fair to have at least three or four starters and maybe more.

Former Speaker Robert Hale of Portland has said that he shall be a candidate and has asked for support. Senate President Burleigh Martin of Augusta has stated that he will seek the nomination and will announce himself within a very short time. Mr. Martin had planned to come out with his statement some little time ago, but he had been delayed for one reason or another.

These are the avowed candidates. There are also probabilities and possibilities. There is every reason to believe that former Councillor William S. Linnell will be in the field when the time comes. If Councillor Lewis O. Barrows is not a probability, he at least is a very strong possibility.

Senator Blin W. Page of Skowhegan is certainly a possibility and so are John Wilson of Bangor and Dr. Augustus O. Thomas of Augusta and there are some who think that former Governor Percival P. Baxter will be in the race soon after his return from Russia, which will be in a very few days now if the plans he made when he was leaving Russia are carried out. Nor is Frank H. Holley of North Anson to be reckoned out, although it is quite possible that he will be called to serve the State in another capacity.

Mr. Washburn's announcement did not come as a surprise, although those not close to him probably didn't expect it quite as soon as it did come. A few weeks ago it was quietly understood that the Perry man would be in the race and would soon announce himself. It will also be admitted that he will get some votes and may be nominated.

He has been commissioner of agriculture since 1921 and is in closer touch with the farmers of the State than any individual in public life and he has their confidence. When it was proposed to change this department under the survey plan, the farmers of the Legislature stood out against it and insisted that Mr. Washburn and his department be left alone. Precisely that was done, as will be recalled.

He has run his department to the entire satisfaction of those who have to do with it and in addition to that knows the game of politics as well as any of them, for he has held public office ever since he attained his majority. He is a good public speaker, which is not necessary, but is an asset.

Another source of strength to him is that he comes from Eastern Maine. How much this will help him of course depends in great measure on how many other candidates come to the front in that section. It is pretty generally conceded that if there were but one candidate from that section such a person would be pretty sure of the nomination. With two or three it would be different, naturally.

It is pretty sure that there will be a second at any rate and the person it looks most like now is Mr. Barrows. I was talking with the Newport man Friday and he told me that he is still waiting to see how the situation shaped itself before coming to a final decision.

"If I do go in," he said, "I shall go in on my own, without regard to any other candidate." I asked him if Dr. Thomas' plans would affect his and his answer was that they would not in the slightest. He had not talked the matter over with the doctor in a long time.

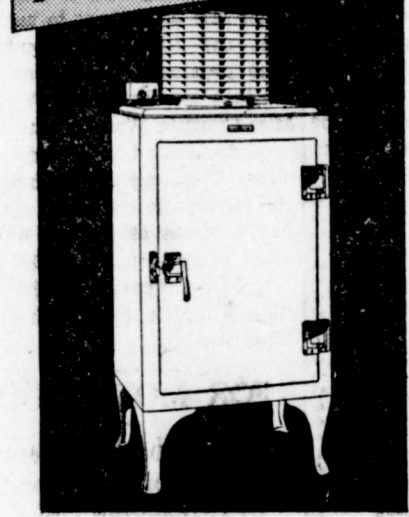

He also said that Mr. Washburn's announcement would not affect his decision. To my suggestion that two candidates in the East would split the vote down there Mr. Barrows' answer was that no man could get all the vote of that section, no matter who it was.

"As far as I am concerned, it stands just exactly as it did," was his final word to the writer. So far as I have been able to find out Mr. Wilson has not confided to anyone what his intentions are. I asked a Penobscot County man of prominence who supported the former mayor two years ago what he thought his plans were. "I don't believe John will go into it," was his answer.

Another man in very close touch with the situation took the opposite

can't be judged by the cost per can

A good paint at a fair price per gallon is "Paint Economy"—not only in the long run, but from a "first cost" consideration. Do you know that a cheap adulterated paint at a low cost per gallon only covers 1/2 to 3/4 as much surface as Monarch 100% Pure Paint—takes much longer to apply, thereby increasing labor cost—and does not last nearly as long?

Think of these things when next you go to your dealer for paint. And remember that Monarch 100% Pure Paint is made in the U.S.A. and is the best paint in the world. It will apply easier, spread farther, look better and last longer. Your dealer can prove these statements. Ask him.

A Martin-Senour Perfect Paint Product for Every Purpose

New-Tone Flat Wall Paint, Senour's Floor Paint, Wood-Var Colored Varnish Stain, Kolor-Brite Quick Drying Decorative Enamel, Red School House—these and many other Martin-Senour Perfect Paint Products all maintain that high standard of Monarch quality. Your dealer will suggest the best product for any paint job you have in mind.

STRAND THEATRE

"Tarnished Lady" is the title of the new Paramount picture which introduces to the motion picture public one of the foremost actresses of the legitimate stage. The actress in question is Tallulah Bankhead, the American darling of the London stage who, for the past five years has refused all sorts of flattering offers from New York stage producers to return to her own Broadway. Paramount did succeed in bringing Miss Bankhead back to her native land, and according to all those who have seen Miss Bankhead's first talking photoplay, a new and brilliant star is about to duplicate on the screen her truly sensational London success.

"Tarnished Lady" tells the colorful and dramatic story of a young and beautiful society girl (Tallulah Bankhead) who, though madly in love with a struggling author, marries a fabulously wealthy stock broker at the insistence of her ambitious mother. But Tallulah is terribly unhappy and finally deserts her husband only to discover that her author-lover has taken up with another woman, one whose wealth and influence has made possible an overnight success. Tallulah's desperate struggle to overcome her problems alone and her last minute discovery that the husband she deserted is the man she truly loves, makes for first rate, suspense-filled, provocative drama that culminates in an absorbing and convincing climax.

Clive Brook, as the wealthy husband, contributes a performance that does him credit. And Phoebe Foster, as the other woman, and Alexander Kirkland, as the other man, do splendidly in well drawn roles.

"Tarnished Lady" which George Cukor directed, comes Wednesday and Thursday.—adv.

Ramon Navarro makes his latest screen appearance in a talkie adaptation of the celebrated drama, "Daybreak," a romance of Vienna before the war, which comes for Wednesday and Thursday. The star depicts his recent Spanish characterizations for the role of Willi Kasda, lieutenant in the Royal Guard, the most dashing officer's corps in all Austria.

Kasda and his friends live at top speed, but their strict code demands that in financial affairs they must never bring discredit on the regiment. Kasda meets Laura, a seamstress. He rescues her from the unwelcome attentions of Schnabel, a gross but wealthy civilian. In a whirlwind courtship he wins the heart of Laura. The next morning, lightly, thoughtlessly, he leaves a hundred gulden note behind on the breakfast table.

Later he meets Laura again, a changed woman, swathed in luxury, an habitue of the gambling casinos. His early love comes back. He pursues his courtship of Laura while at the gambling table with Schnabel. He becomes oblivious of his terrific bad luck and loses thousands of francs. But Laura accepts his courtship. The next morning he finds a one hundred gulden note on his table. And at the regiment the colonel demands that he meet his enormous obligations. How the story is brought to its final denouement forms the great charm of this striking Schnitzler story.—adv.

THE GRADE SCHOOLS

Interesting Notes Which
Deal With Tyler and Camden Street Buildings

On May Day, grade five, Tyler School invited grade four into its room for the morning exercises. School songs were sung and enjoyed. Grade five had no May basket large enough to hold the gifts for Mrs. Johnson, the music teacher, so the pupils decorated a peck measure and set it by the door. She was much surprised when invited to answer the knock.

Grade five is more determined than ever to save its money since reading the seniors' account of their trip to Washington, in The Courier-Gazette. A valuable lesson in history and more valuable review in geography has been accomplished. This spoken of and heard were: The "Maine" was blown up in Manila Bay. Washington Monument is put in that small house beside it, when it rains. Do you or do you not go through Chicago on the route to Washington? The boys and girls enjoyed finding their relatives and friends in the class picture taken at the Capitol, loaned to them by Walter Gay.

The class drew names for Maybaskets, so each child received one and was thereby made happy. Some of the class gave the teacher a very pretty plant, a fuchsia, for a Mayday surprise.

Grace Perry has been in the hospital for a tonsil operation. All miss her, and will be pleased when she returns. Iola Stone has returned to school after an appendicitis operation at Knox Hospital.

We have a new boy, Frank Demmons, a former Grace street pupil. The swing on the boys' ground is bringing some unused muscles into play—consequently there are quite a few lame tummies. While the older boys are getting a chance to use the jumper, much to their delight. Quite a few high-jumpers are developing.

GIRL MADE GOOD

England Took Very Kindly To the Actress America Ignored

This is a story of a girl who made good, and in a big way. But she had to desert these shores of ours to convince Broadway that she was made of stellar stuff.

A few years ago, following several disappointing roles in New York plays that blossomed all too briefly, Tallulah Bankhead packed her bags and without blare of trumpets set sail for England, London specifically. She was offered a role in a play and without enthusiasm accepted it. But the day following her debut on the London stage, Tallulah awoke to find herself the recipient of much favorable comment. The London critics were kind to her, forecast a bright future for her.

One thing led to another. Tallulah Bankhead became the toast of London. Her cameo-like blond beauty, her versatile talents were extolled to the skies. She created styles, vogues, momentary crazes. Then, as they usually do, New York producers began paying her tribute. But Tallulah was adamant. Return to N. Y. York? She wouldn't think of it. Not Tallulah. And Tallulah didn't. That is not until just a few weeks ago when the English-famous

School Notes

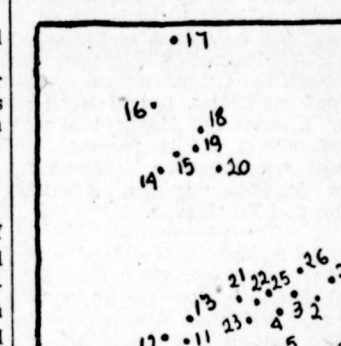

Child Health Day was observed very appropriately in both the village schools Friday afternoon with a fine attendance of mothers.

At the grammar school, Mrs. Bernice Sleeper, teacher, the following program was carried out. First, a "Quiz in Psychology and Hygiene," consisting of 100 questions showed that the 20 minute period each week devoted to that study had been well employed. That was followed by eight original plays which had been chosen as the best of those written by the pupils for this occasion. The prize winners were Celia Crowley, Beverly Jackson, Alberta Graves, Ralph Tyler, Miriam Wiggins, Doris Maloney and Parker Jackson.

The plays as follows: "At Breakfast Time," composed by Miriam Wiggins and played by Celia Crowley, Arlene and Hugh Knowlton and Miriam Wiggins; "Why We Have Health Day," by Doris Maloney, played by John Harlow and Richard Knowlton; "A Trip to the Movies," by Parker Jackson, played by Parker Jackson and Ralph Tyler; "The Picnic," by Beverly Jackson, played by Beverly Jackson and Alice Baum; "Health and Ill Health," by Alberta Graves, played by Mary E. Ulmer and Sylvia Tyler; "Our Best Friends," played by Edw. Wiggins, Celia Crowley, Merland Harrington, Alberta Graves, Vinnie Graves, Doris Maloney, Marjorie Sleeper, William Anderson, Mike Sutea, Myrtle Harlow and Hugh Knowlton; "A Visit to the Dentist," by Celia Crowley, played by Gordon Crowley and Charles Watts; "Health Ways," by Ralph Tyler, played by Floyd Rackliff, Warren Ulmer, Austin Scott, Harry Smith, Alton Wooster, Hattie Scott and Doris Pierce. The prizes were tubes of tooth paste. Following the program each child was given a bar of soap and a health chart.

At the primary school, Mrs. Margaret Gilchrist, teacher, a very pleasing program of health plays, songs, drills, etc., was given by the pupils and also several little guests of preschool age.
At the close of the program each child received a dainty May basket filled with candy. Visitors also were very generously treated.

David Grant as interlocutor and "Chum" Crockett, Lawrence Snow, Weston Arvey, Raymond Snow, Steward Rhodes, Franklin Clough, as end-men, were exceptionally good. Solos were rendered by Raymond Snow, Louise Sherer, Steward Rhodes, Lawrence Snow, Virginia Noyes, Chum Crockett, and a character song was gracefully done by Dorothy Nutt. EDUCATIONAL CLUB

Hears Forceful Talk By Col. Dow—Mrs. Rich Reelected President

Col. Fred N. Dow of Portland was the speaker at the Educational Club's meeting Friday night, his topic "The Noble Experiment." He complimented the club on the work it is accomplishing, and said that from his earliest recollections the name of Rockland had been impressed on his mind from listening to friends of his father the late Neal Dow, and that he himself had acquaintances among at least two generations in this city, mentioning among them the late Edwin Sprague. He paid also high compliment to Governor Cobb.

Col. Dow is of the old school, possessed of a quiet dignity that makes him a pleasing speaker. He related some of the incidents connected with the enforcement of prohibition in its earliest days. He said that very few now living can realize the conditions which then existed, as compared with those of today. He told of the enactment of the Search and Seizure law; spoke of the argument so often brought forward as to personal liberty being outraged; and yet the State protects itself and its people along all other lines. If pestilence or famine threaten our civilization everything possible would be done to guard against it, and anyone who would throw obstacles in the way would be ostracized at once. Yet the evils resulting from intoxicating liquors are even more far reaching. It is impossible to draw the line between use and abuse; scientists tell us those who have taken only a drink are as dangerous under some circumstances, sometimes more so, than the intoxicated person. And none should be in charge of positions of trust and responsibility who are not total abstainers.

Many are ready to proclaim prohibition unenforceable and a failure because in little less than 10 years we have not been able to eradicate strong drink. He then gave comparisons of conditions as he sees them today as he travels about and those of the days before prohibition. He cited three elements that oppose prohibition: those who desire by sale of liquor to reap profits to themselves; and the profits are great; the large and more or less respected group that desire to gratify their own selfish appetites; a set of corrupt politicians who see in the gutter class voter more easily gotten than in the more intelligent and better element.

In conclusion he said that by our voice, our influence and our vote we should stand together. We cannot benefit others without ourselves being benefited thereby.

Those who have not missed a meeting this term are Mrs. Mary Perry Rich, Mrs. Nettie E. Stewart, Miss Clara O. Spalding, Mrs. Abbie Connors, Mrs. Janet Dunton, Mrs. Mabel Wiley, Mrs. Elizabeth Morton.

Admitted to membership: Mrs. Madeline Havenner, Mrs. Lillie Chamberlain, Mrs. Neil Fogg, Miss Eleanor Mae Gregory, Mrs. Emma Martin, Miss Addie Hawks, Miss Eleanor Frank, Miss Katherine Sukeforth Fuller, Mrs. Helen Lynch.

Officers elected: President, Mary Perry Rich; vice presidents, Clara O. Spalding, Leila Williams, Sadie Lord, Helen York, Rebecca Ingraham, Helen Dyer, Lena Merrill, treasurer, Miss Alice Hovey; secretary, Mrs. Winifred Horton.

Miss Elizabeth Marsh read an original poem in which she paid tribute to Mrs. Rich and her work in behalf of the club. Mrs. Rich was presented with a handsome brief case as a token of appreciation.

Eleanor Bradbury played pleasingly a piano solo, and a mandolin solo, and David Curtis of Grade Six, Tyler School, who recently won a silver medal in the W.C.T.U. speaking contest, recited "A Boy's Promise."

The annual report of Mrs. Winnie Horton, as secretary, was an interesting review of another successful season. She said, in part:

"The Woman's Educational Club, which observes its 11th anniversary in May, has been fortunate in having as its president Mrs. Mary Perry Rich, who has held that office 11 consecutive years. She has not missed a meeting in this entire period, and to her untiring efforts the members believe the success of the club largely belongs. A source of gratification to all has been the spirit of co-operation, harmony and good will manifested in all things attempted.

"The club has the distinction of being the largest of its kind in the State, having had during its 11 successful years of existence 1600 members. New members are being added at every meeting, and every session is well attended. Since the beginning of this term 10 regular meetings have been held, each prefaced by an afternoon session. The club's name expresses its object and purpose. Civics, grammar, psychology, current events, and any subjects for which the members expressed a desire have been studied. We have also enjoyed educational movies, instrumental and vocal music by talented members, papers by members on historic subjects, and lectures on varied topics by prominent men and women who have graciously contributed of their store of time and talent.

"The speakers for this season have been men and women from all parts of the State. Several have touched on the vexed questions of prohibition and law enforcement, others have taken their hearers into foreign lands. Rev. Clarence S. Roddey of Portland spoke on 'America's Supreme Need,' W. A. Holman of the same city, writer of the W. A. H. sermons, which appear every Saturday in the Courier-Gazette, discussed 'Pitfalls in Practical Politics,' Mrs. Robert Owen, principal of Oak Grove Seminary, spoke on 'Icebergs and Cathedrals,' Miss Anna E. Smith curator of Bowdoin College Art Museum, gave a talk on 'Art Objects Within Our Reach,' Mrs. Althea Quimby, State W.C.T.U. president, spoke on 'Wet and Dry,' Col. Frank Hume discussed 'Present Day Law Violations,' and Col. Fred N. Dow of Portland, 'The Noble Experiment.'

"Local speakers have included Rev. Jesse Kenderdine, on the moving picture question; A. W. Gregory of the State Prison Commission, on 'The School of Crime,' Dr. N. A. Fogg,

MAINE'S FRATERNITIES

The College at Orono Now Has Five.
—Rockland Girl a Charter Member of One

With the founding of Alpha Beta Chapter of Omicron Nu at the University of Maine, there are five National honorary societies of the highest order on the Maine campus. Omicron Nu, national honorary society for home economics students; Phi Beta Kappa, oldest Greek letter fraternity and comprising the highest ranking students from the college of liberal arts; Tau Beta Pi, honorary society for students in the college of technology; Phi Kappa Phi, to which students of all colleges are eligible; and Alpha Zeta, to which men in the college of agriculture are eligible.

The new society, Omicron Nu, is open to juniors and seniors majoring in home economics, who during their college course have maintained high scholarship and have given promise of future achievement. Elections are made from a small fraction of those students of the two upper classes who have the highest scholarship, standards of membership limiting the number of eligibles to a degree similar to that of Phi Beta Kappa and Tau Beta Pi. Omicron Nu was established in 1912 at Michigan Agricultural College and now has active chapters at 24 colleges and universities. Among its members are listed many of the leaders in home economics throughout the country.

The establishment of this chapter at the University of Maine is a splendid thing for the home economics students there, because for the first time they are offered an equal opportunity for scholastic recognition with students of other colleges in the university. Among the charter members of the Maine chapter appears the name of Martha Gray Wasgatt, 31, of Rockland.

Few who write to the newspaper realize that thirty lines will secure a hundred readers, while half a column secures one.

NOT TWENTY-SIX

But Dudley Wolfe's Skipper Has Had a Lifetime of Thrills

Although he was born on a Hadley farm but 25 years ago and got his first knowledge about ships out of books, Capt. Irving Johnson, who is to handle Dudley F. Wolfe's 62-foot cutter Highland Light in the international races this summer, has obtained enough practical sailing experience in the last seven years to rate him a past master.

Capt. Johnson has been several times around the world, and has had weird adventures in its remotest corners. As mate to Capt. Paul, who sailed Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock home last fall, across the turbulent Atlantic, he thinks he took the acid test as a sailor.

His most sensational trip before that was on the four-masted bark Peking, German-owned, one of the largest sailing ships afloat. The giant Peking, carrying more than an acre of canvas in her 32 sails, was tossed around like an eggshell in a 17-day North Sea gale. Her radio calls for help went unanswered because of the general marine distress, and the crew was left to fend for itself. The Peking was almost wrecked off Amsterdam on Friday, the 13th of December, 1929.

Bound from Hamburg for the South American West Coast, the Peking was caught in another gale after she had rounded the Horn and for almost three weeks was helplessly shuttled back and forth in the teeth of the continuing gale in the Horn region.

Capt. Johnson said the Shamrock received an awful spanking by violent seas on the way home. That her officers and crew of nine were all sick two days when to sea, and so damaged that a jury rig had to be rigged.

Next day in the Gulf Stream her compass and binnacle were washed overboard. Capt. Johnson says, and a gale forced the crew to take in all sail and steer the ship dead before the wind, and with men lashed to the wheel for safety.

Then the Shamrock ran into a dead calm, with attendant low barometer, a sure sign that she was in the very heart of a bad storm. The Shamrock opened up forward and took in eight feet of water, he says.

The violent wrenching the seas gave her made the Shamrock open from end to end. Capt. Johnson declares, and the seepage spoiled the food, so that for the rest of the trip, which took 18 days in all, the officers and crew had to live on canned goods.

Recalling that the Shamrock III had taken 46 days to make the trip home after the cup contest of 29 years ago, the present Shamrock's company began to fear death by starvation. So, on the fifth day, they set full sail and raced for Southampton, steering at night by the stars.

Two small compasses found in lifeboats turned out to be of little practical use.

Then, he says, an easterly gale came up and the Shamrock had to head on and run before this gale for two days. But a shift in the wind to the southwest soon helped the Shamrock hasten along toward Southampton.

Capt. Johnson said he has sailed in swift airplanes, ridden in fast automobiles and speedboats in his brief but exciting career. But he can remember no such dizzy sensations on these trips as those he experienced while scouting along before this sou'wester. In one 23 1/2 hour period the Shamrock kept up a 13 1/2-knot gait for a record of 308 miles.

During most of this time the crew had to snatch what sleep its members could in the sail-bin, below decks, without removing boots and oilskins. The bunks had all been ruined and were flooded by bilge-water. He has funny memories still of the Swedish and Norwegian sailors, trying to get their legs at walking normally for the first time in 18 days, as the Shamrock made her way over the relatively smooth waters of the channel to Southampton.

Anchors Tossed Like Toys
But Capt. Johnson's wildest trip was aboard the Peking. The North Sea kicked up so violently as to toss her two three-ton anchors around like toys and finally jam them on deck, he says.

The Peking's crew of 74 included more than 50 lads between the ages of 14 and 20, getting actual training on her for future careers in the German merchant marine. The Peking had no fire aboard, and sail-shifting had to be done by hand labor—and plenty of it!

The Peking was 93 days in making the trip from Hamburg to Talcahuano, 300 miles south of Valparaiso on South America's West Coast. Capt. Johnson's "sidekick" on this trip was Charles Broadhead, Princeton, 29, now teaching history at Dummer Academy.

Finally emerging from the 17-day sea gale and heading due south 150 miles off the continental coast, the craft was soon across the equator, past the Falkland Islands and the Argentine, had rounded the Horn and proceeded 150 miles—when came the hurricane.

There were alternate snowstorms, hail and rain, in freezing temperatures. For almost three weeks the bad weather lasted in a region which is the terror of all who sail the seas. But the sturdy Peking rode the storms, and finally landed them safe at last. Capt. Johnson came home by rail, across the Andes.

With him on the Highland Light in the race will sail the owner, Mr. Wolfe of Boston, Rockland, Me., and Colorado; also Frank C. Paine, designer of the Highland Light, now being finished at Lawley's, to be ready early in May, and John Parkinson Sr., of Boston, who sailed on the Resolute when she did so well against Shamrock IV, and was a member of the afterguard on the Westamok.

After this race, held under the auspices of the Cruising Club of America and the Ocean Sailing Club of Great Britain, the Highland Light will sail in the 600-mile race from Cowes to Fastnet and return, and afterward in a September 400-mile race from Plymouth to Santander, Spain.

After these contests, Capt. Johnson has a schedule calling for return to the American continent in the Highland Light via the Southern route, with stopovers at the Canary Islands, Cape Verde and through the tropics to Barbados.

Capt. Johnson had his first training for racing in 1925, on the Squaw, of 40-foot class Herreshoff design owned by A. T. Baker, Philadelphia manufacturer. Eventually becoming the Squaw's captain, he shifted in 1927 to the Charmian, and in 1927 captained the Seawanna schooner, owned by President Newcomb Carlton of the Western Union.

In the latter he took a trip to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick last summer, escorted by his brother, Arthur Johnson, in the schooner Mandarin. Capt. Johnson learned a lot about the currents and fog and diverse winds of Fundy on that voyage.

Once on the Malay Peninsula, he posed for his photograph with a live boa constrictor around his neck. Once he rode up Vesuvius on horseback at midnight, and tossed rocks into the yawning, spitting crater. Once in Ceylon he started to vault aboard the bare back of a chained elephant, but when his keeper told him the beast was only two weeks out of the jungle, Capt. Johnson reconsidered his purpose.

Capt. Johnson is strong for physical culture. He foregoes the use of tea, coffee, liquor and neither chews nor smokes. An old English tar, learning of Capt. Johnson's uniformly abstemious habit, asked him: "What the hell, me lad? Are you saving yourself as an exhibit for the British Museum?"—Edwin F. Collins in the Boston Sunday Globe.

NATIONAL HEARING WEEK

The Problem Of Three Million School Children Is Being Stressed

Do you realize that there are at least 14,000,000 persons in this country with hearing impairment; that 3,000,000 of them are school children; that they face tremendous difficulties in school, in business, in social life?

National Hearing Week, now being observed, was planned that these millions might be made happier and healthier. Sponsored by the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing, it is being observed throughout the country by clubs as "Hearing Week"—not "hard of hearing week."

It is placed on this positive basis in a campaign with special interest in the hard of hearing child. No national organization in the country is doing more to acquaint the people with the possibilities of improving the condition of the hard of hearing child than the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing.

This week all constituent bodies of the Federation are endeavoring to acquaint the public with the alarming prevalence of deafness and arouse it to the need of action in a general program for the rehabilitation of the deafened and the prevention of deafness.

Death Of Well Known Sportsman Who Figured In Ben Ames Williams' Novels

Albert L. McCarrison, sportsman and guide, and as "Chet McCausland," the central figure in many stories of Fraternity by Ben Ames Williams, died in Seabrook Saturday, at the age of 75.

A lover of the outdoors, a devotee of hunting and fishing, McCarrison was known and loved for his zealous interest and pride in the trout streams in the vicinity. For more than 25 years he had each year personally stocked the brooks, his extreme care and patience in handling the fingerlings accustomed them to the colder waters by frequent changes of water, being commented upon far beyond the borders of the county.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning from the home.

McCarrison leaves no near relatives. Since the death of his wife two years ago he had lived alone.

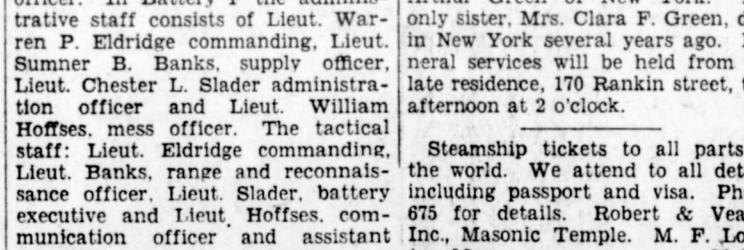

MISS MARTHA D. ALLEN

Miss Martha D. Allen died Saturday, after an illness of four months. She was the daughter of Charles L. and Martha W. Allen, born in Rockland in September, 1849. She was a graduate of Rockland High School, one of her classmates being Adelia Veazie who has been a neighbor for many years.

Miss Allen will be recalled as a quiet unassuming little woman whose greatest happiness was found in unselfish service for others. During her long illness, borne with fortitude, she was ever grateful of the tender and competent care given her by the Misses Britt at the Britt Nursing Home.

She is survived by a nephew, John Arthur Green of New York. Her only sister, Mrs. Clara F. Green, died in New York several years ago. Funeral services will be held from the late residence, 170 Rankin street, this afternoon at 2 o'clock.
