WHITCOMB, HAYNES & WHITNEY
Mr. Louis Young, 1822 Crest Road, Y., writes:

"I dearly loved my old farm, but now I am a city man."

Mr. Young had been a farmer for many years, but he had recently retired to the city. He was a kind and generous man, who always had time for a friendly chat with his neighbors. He had many friends in the city, and they often visited him in his old age.

"I have always been proud of my old farm," he said. "It was a place where I could always go to get away from the noise and bustle of the city."

The old farm had been passed down through the generations of the Young family. It had been a source of pride and joy for the family for many years.

"I always loved the smell of the fields and the sound of the wind," he said. "I could always hear the birds singing and the cows mooing in the distance.

BACKGROUND

SALTON SEA IS DISAPPEARING

POSSIBILITY THAT THE LAND IT HAS COVERED WILL BE SOON AVAILABLE FOR HOUSING FOR HUMANS

An inland sea which, according to geologists, has changed from desert, and back again to desert, at least once in every five years, is again in the desert. The waters of the Imperial Valley have receded from the lake, which is the lowest point in the world, and are now in the process of evaporation, leaving a vast expanse of sand and gravel. The same process occurred about 50 years ago, when the lake was at its highest point. During that time, the lake covered an area of about 250 square miles, and the level of the water was about 20 feet below the surface of the ground. The lake is now about 15 feet below its former level, and the area covered by water has been reduced to about 10 square miles. The evaporation process will continue until the lake is completely dry, and the land surrounding it will be covered with sand and gravel. The land will then be available for housing for humans. The process of evaporation will take about five years, and the lake will be completely dry by the end of that period.

Four hundred scholars answered the 150 questions on the survey; 250 obtained valuable information on the pre-1700 community; 125 answered the questions on the post-1700 community;
and 50 answered the questions on the community in general. The total number of respondents was 450, and the survey was completed in the fall of 1947.

These responses covered a wide range of topics, from the history of the community to its current state. Many of the respondents were historians, architects, and urban planners, and they provided valuable insights into the character of the community.
