NEW ROAD OPENED

The new two-lane concrete road between Yarmouth and Brunswick was opened Saturday according to Col. Farnsworth, member of the State Highway Commission. The 7.6 miles of concrete road has been under construction for 10 months but it is expected that another month will be required to complete the work of installing side-drains and smoothing the shoulders of the road, while possibly a little blasting may be necessary. No ceremonies marked the opening of the stretch.

THE NEW COUNCILOR

The Rural Child

Financial help is desired for carrying on in Knox County the religious training of unchurched boys and girls of the neglected rural districts. The work is well organized, under a trained leader. It calls for financial support. Contributions sent to this paper will be promptly acknowledged and passed on to the treasurer of the Knox County Association for rural religious education, J. W. Robinson, to whom checks should be made payable.

Contributions continue to be received, encouraging the opinion that our people recognize the value of the work being carried on among the children of the unchurched corners of Knox County.

The unknown writer of these verses had in mind other parts of the world, but his thought applies wherever the young are denied the knowledge of religion.

WHEN WILL OUR TURN COME?
I hear the children crying in the night—
The little children: "God of Stars and Sun,
We do not like the darkness; send down light,
From where there is so much to where there's none:
Fireflies and flowers we love, and all things,
But in our hearts it's dark: Dear God, send light!"

"A little child, we've heard, Thou once didst send—
Light to the heart of all the world to be,
And so we think, dear God, Thou didst intend
Some light for little children such as For what a child can bring a child can take.
Then give us light, dear God, for that Child's sake."

"And if it be there is no light to spare—
Dear God, forgive if what we ask is wrong.
We're only heathen children—Is it fair
That others should have all the light?
We would not wish that they should have our night.
But when will our turn come to have the light?"

DOUBLE DOLLAR DAYS IN ROCKLAND

DOUBLE DOLLAR DAYS IN ROCKLAND

Friday and Saturday of this week will be Double Dollar Days—undoubtedly the greatest value giving days in the city's history. This year of 1931 represents a new "12 Year Low" in prices—prices at pre-war level and lower in many instances.

Rockland's Merchants—as may be seen by this present issue of The Courier-Gazette—are making new low prices for all time. Never before has such a united effort been made to present attractive values.

The city and her merchants bid you welcome. All her facilities are at your disposal. Parking rules are suspended. The latching is out and hospitality is the watchword.

Come to Rockland Friday and Saturday and let your dollars do double duty.

LOCAL THEATRES

Strand Theatre
You don't know Maurice Chevalier until you've seen "The Smiling Lieutenant" at the Strand through Thursday night. It opened last night with Maurice's gay love-making, his delicious comedy singing raising a riot of laughs and tender emotion in the eyes and hearts of his audience. The picture is another of those delicious Ernst Lubitsch productions, but, unlike "The Love Parade," it is a real, down-to-earth comedy romance dealing with a smart and carefree soldier whose smile wins him the hearts of two women, it has delightful comedy moments interspersed with tense emotional scenes. Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins are the sweethearts who turn Chevalier's head and heart. Perhaps the outstanding feature of the show are Chevalier's songs "Breakfast Table Love," "That's the Army," "Jazz Up Your Lingerie"—adv.

Z. M. Dwinall beat A. C. Jones, 2-1.
A. C. McLoon beat A. F. Lamb, 3-2.
H. E. Robinson beat J. L. Brewster, 3-2.

In the second round of the match played today, of the yesterday winners McRae plays Allen, Buffum plays Veazie, Adams plays Dwinall and McLoon plays Robinson.
In the side match carried on by the beaten eight of Monday, Ladd plays Rhodes, Rounds plays Dyer, Green plays Jones and Lamb plays Brewster.
The greens and fairways are in excellent condition and if the threatening rain will only hold off a very pretty contest will be recorded.

TWO UP, ONE TO PLAY

How Ike Merrill of Camden Again Won Maine Amateur Golf Championship

Ike Merrill, Jr., of Camden was the undisputed amateur golf champion of Maine Saturday night after defeating Charlie Webber of Penobscot Valley two up and one to play at the Penobscot Valley Country Club.
Charlie won the very first hole that morning, but after that he was never ahead. Ike was two up after the first 18 holes and in the afternoon the boys played even until the two up advantage won for Ike on the 35th green, where a fine recovery from a trap enabled him to halve the hole and make the lead good for the championship.

Twice in the afternoon Charlie squared the match, at the 21st and at the 26th. The turning point came at the 27th when Charlie after evening the game on the previous green missed a short putt which would have kept the thing even. As it was, he lost the hole and then played poorly up the 28th to lose it and become two down again.

Merrill entered his first State championship in 1927 at the age of 16 and won it by beating H. Ricker, 19 up and 11 to play at Portland. The next year he lost to Forbes Wilson in the final at Penobscot Valley and in 1929 he again won the title defeating Jack Leddy in the final at Waterville. Last year he played no tournament golf because of ill health, so his win today marks the third championship he has won in four starts. The only other open amateur championship he entered was that at Poland Spring in 1928 and he lost in the semi-final to Eddie Heid, one of the Nation's foremost golfers and the eventual winner of the tournament.

Saturday Ike consistently out-drove Charlie from five to 40 yards, and throughout the first 18 holes kept the Bangor boy struggling for the two holes and 12 halves he gained. He made several errors, but his recoveries were so deadly that they gave Charlie no chance to make capital of the slips.

The battle was a fine one all the way, and the medal scoring was not at all bad, considering both boys were thoroughly tired from the three previous strenuous days of the championship.

"The modern flapper," we read, "is very different from the girl of fifteen years back." On the contrary, she is very often the same person.—Everybody's Weekly (London).

SEVERAL BREAKS IN UNION

May Have Been Made By Escaped Convict—Burglar Gets $140 At Home of Charles Lucas

That George Leavitt, escaped convict, operated in the northern part of Knox County after separating from his pals Cook and Merrill, is believed to be the answer to depredations subsequently committed in Union.

Thursday afternoon Alonzo Butler, who lives on the east side of the town, went to a neighbors and was gone about three-quarters of an hour. In that brief time somebody entered the house, stole some money from a dish which was on the stand, together with a suit of clothes belonging to Maurice Splane, a boarder; and a pair of shoes and a watch. Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Cavanaugh and State Patrolman George I. Shaw investigated this burglary but no clues had been left.

Friday somebody broke a square of glass in one of the rear windows of Charles Lucas' residence, released the catch and effected an entrance. Here the burglar made a rich haul, finding within easy reach a pocketbook containing $140 which had just been paid to Mr. Lucas' son for blueberries. That the intruder was not particular as to the size of his pickings may be judged from the fact that he also took the contents of children's banks. Sheriff Frank F. Harding and Robert A. Webster who investigated this case, followed tracks into the woods, and saw evidences of where somebody had dug potatoes, as if preparing for a meal. The tracks were lost on the dry, hard ground.

At the Samuel Fuller house, which is vacant, it was found that entrance had been effected and that one of the beds had been occupied recently. Papers were taken from a trunk and were scattered about. The intruder considerably left behind a twenty-dollar bill. His consideration was doubtless due to the fact that it was counterfeit.

A NEBRASKAN CALLS

"Bert" Keene of Fremont Sees Unfairness in Unequal Dropping of Prices

Charles Albert Keene of Fremont, Neb., a substantial young farmer of the Middle West, was a caller at The Courier-Gazette office yesterday, looking uncommonly well because to the rugged health which a Nebraska farm gave him has been added the bronzed touch which one acquires of a summer's visit at Vinalhaven. Bert didn't specify the exact number of pounds which he has added to his avoirdupois since he came East, but when he strikes the home acres again his physical condition is going to call for a statement that the Atlantic Coast isn't a half bad place, especially when your tour takes you up into the Penobscot Bay region.

Mr. Keene is accompanied by his wife and the latter's mother, Mrs. Alma I. Rice, and they plan to spend about a fortnight in Rockland, with headquarters at The Laurie.

Mr. Keene is not naturally a pessimist, in fact quite the opposite, but the agricultural situation in Nebraska, concerning which a Courier-Gazette reporter inquired, is not calculated to send one into rapturous joy.

Corn, which ought to bring 75 cents a bushel to return a fair profit for the farmer, is selling now in his local market at 37 cents, while wheat, which ought to fetch $1 a bushel, on the same basis, is being sold at a loss, for 34 cents a bushel.

"It's something new in our State," said Mr. Keene, "to see men tramping through the country, out of work and begging at the doors."

"If we could buy other things in the proportion that we are obliged to sell ours for, it would not be so bad, but while the cost of living has gone down 15 to 20 percent, as affecting farm products, the price of farm machinery is still at the peak. We can't keep on buying unless we get more for our products. To me it seems as if the Farm Board had failed to function, although of course we do not know how much worse it might have been had there been no Farm Board."

Mr. Keene says that the present political outlook would seem to favor the election of a Democratic President, "but it will take a strong man to beat President Hoover," he added.

Like all other Westerners who have been interviewed by this paper Mr. Keene is strongly in sympathy with Mr. Hoover, as having been placed in the most difficult position that any President has ever occupied, and that he has done as well as any man could have done under the conditions and spirit now animating not only the United States, but the whole world.

LISTEN, MOTORISTS!

And Hear What the New Law Says About Your License Plates

It's going to be all right if you want to display your 1931 automobile plates in 1932, providing you do not do so later than March 1, under the new automobile laws. And furthermore, if you want to prove to the public you have purchased your 1932 registration plates for 1932 it is going to be all right to put them on your car after Dec. 25, 1931.

The law says: "Number plates so furnished shall be valid only for the calendar year for which they are issued, except that on and after Dec. 25 of such calendar year, it shall be lawful to use and display on motor vehicles the number plates issued for the next succeeding year; provided further, that motor vehicle registrations and license tags issued thereon in any calendar year shall be valid for use and display until March first of the next calendar year."

Each number plate displayed shall be horizontal and shall be so fastened as not to swing, and its lower edges shall be at least 12 inches from the ground."

Another law passed by the last legislature permits registration purchase from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31 for half the usual fee.

CAPT. WALTER G. TIBBITTS

Former Rockland Man Killed In An Automobile Accident

William F. Tibbitts received a telegram from California yesterday announcing that his brother, Capt. Walter G. Tibbitts, had been killed in an automobile accident Sunday. A telegram received subsequently by A. D. Bird, from his son Ralph, stated that Capt. Tibbitts' wife (Grace Cilley) had a broken collarbone, many bruises and cuts, and was suffering from the shock—but not seriously injured. Funeral services will be held at the family home in Alameda, Calif., Wednesday at 2 p. m. The mails are awaited for further particulars of the tragedy.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mrs. Augustus Huntley Badly Injured When Struck By Automobile

A distressing automobile accident occurred at the corner of Main street and Talbot avenue early yesterday afternoon, when a car driven by Mrs. Oscar Perry ran into Mrs. Augustus B. Huntley, crushing her against the curb and the iron fence which borders the property of David Rubenstein.

Reports as to the exact manner of the accident are very confusing. Mrs. Huntley, whose home is at 17 Warren street, was coming downtown with her young daughter, and was crossing the foot of Talbot avenue when Mrs. Perry, who resides at 18 Warren street, came southward and undertook to turn into that thoroughfare. It is said that the automobile horn was sounded, but what happened next occurred so suddenly that nobody could accurately describe it. Those who went to the assistance of the injured woman found that her condition was very serious. An ambulance was called, but before it could reach the scene Mrs. Huntley had been taken to Knox Hospital in a private car.

A careful examination by Dr. Fogg showed that she had suffered a compound fracture of the left lower leg, and a fracture of the right wrist, while the right leg was badly cut and bruised. There were rumors that amputation might be necessary, but Mrs. Huntley's condition this morning did not indicate that extreme.

With Mrs. Perry in the motor car was her mother, Mrs. Berkeley D. Winslow, who applied the emergency brake when the car rebounded from the iron fence. She suffered a broken tooth and other slight injuries.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

Lines to a Girdle
That which her slender waist confined,
Shall now my joyful temples bind;
No monarch but would give his crown
His arms might do what this has done.

It was my heaven's extremest sphere,
The pale which held that lovely deer;
My joy, my grief, my hope, my love
Did all within this circle move.
A narrow compass and yet there
Dwelt all that's good, and all that's fair;
Give mine, but what this riband bound,
Take all the rest the sun goes round.
—Edmund Waller.

WEATHER
 Glorious days all last week and a perfect weekend—there had to come a change, and yesterday was chilly and cloudy with northeast wind and rain at night. Today also is overcast, but does not look like rain, and the forecast for tomorrow is given as fair. Dollar days are here in the local stores, but nature's bargains in long days are over now and it is noticeable that the days are growing much shorter. The sun sets tomorrow night at 7:28 daylight, just an hour earlier than at the summer solstice June 21, and total length of daylight is now 13 hours 34 minutes as compared with 15 hours 32 minutes at that time. Those who like to know the worst that is to come, can reflect that by Dec. 6 the sun will set at 4 o'clock and the total daylight will be only 9 hours. But that's still a long way off, and there's plenty of light for the cup match at the golf course.

The Rockland City Band plays in Belfast City Park next Sunday afternoon.

Maine motorists will adorn their cars with green number plates next year.

In Municipal Court yesterday the Grotton motor car which figured in a recent seizure, was forfeited to the State on order of Judge Butler. The proceeds of its sale will go to the county.

"Wonderful weather and trip thus far," comments William P. Kelley, reviewing visits to Lake George and Lake Champlain and Ausable Chasms and Canada in immediate prospect.

It is evidently not closed time on fish stories. Report comes of a 6-pound pickerel being caught at Megunticook Lake. The name of the lucky fisherman, said to be from Connecticut, is desired.

The Boy Scout office is open Wednesday evenings from 7 till 9 every week. Scouts Chase, Karl and Britt are to act as life guards at the 4-H Club meet at Union fair grounds Saturday.

The Trainer bakery at the corner of Main and Elm streets has been discontinued and Mr. Trainer will now devote his entire time to his restaurant business. He will continue to produce bread and doughnuts at his restaurant.

They had been raiding his orchard, so Luke Brewster decided to investigate. In the night—in the dark and silent night—he sallied forth. Several dark forms were faintly visible among the branches of the trees. Quietly tiptoeing to the house he got his revolver. Firing three shots at one seemed to have no effect, so with blood in his eye he procured an axe and this seemed to be a better implement of destruction. When the smoke of battle had cleared away, six silent forms lay on the turf. Sounds like murder but no-only porcupines. It cost the State of Maine $1.50 in bounties.

The basket of snapdragons and zinnias entered by Mrs. A. S. Littlefield in the Flower Show last Wednesday was among those receiving first prize for artistic arrangement, instead of honorary mention, as reported.

The annual horse show at Islesboro takes place Thursday, with many entries already made. Active interest is being displayed by the young matrons and debutantes, as well as by the men, of the summer colony. Riding master, Thomas F. Dryer, of Southboro, Mass., will direct the show.

Members of the Knox County Fish & Game Association are looking forward with much pleasure to tomorrow evening when the summer meeting of their organization takes place at the Camden Yacht Club with Dr. Codman of Philadelphia as speaker. Guests are not permitted, except those who have taken out membership applications.

Charles J. Fish, biologist attached to the United States Bureau of Fisheries, says that the proposed Passamaquoddy dam to harness the tides of the Bay of Fundy would be detrimental to the fishing of Maine. A survey of the project which is sponsored by Dexter P. Cooper, Eastport engineer, is being conducted by a joint international commission of the United States and Canada. Fish said such a dam would affect adversely the herring industry in the vicinity of the bay and all along the Maine coast. The survey is expected to cover two years.

Supt. and Mrs. E. L. Toner and son Charles who have been attending the annual Maine State Superintendents' convention at Castine have returned home. The quota of State superintendents was represented by more than 125, who together with their families swelled the number in attendance to more than 200. Among the outstanding speakers were Miss Florence Hale, president of the National Educational Association, and Dr. Cooper of Washington, D.C., U.S. Commissioner of Education. Profitable and interesting programs were provided, with plenty of recreational features.

The Central Maine Power Company has recently installed for A. T. Low one of the latest Esco electric milk cabinets, with a capacity of 275 quart milk bottle. It maintains a sanitary, cold, even temperature, which is a very important feature in cooling milk. Mr. Low resides at 219 Talbot avenue and he has been in the milk business for 30 years. He supplies his customers with milk from 20 of his own well-kept cows. He also has an electric bottle washer and a steam sterilizer which makes him one of the most fully equipped retail milk dealers in this section.

THE CANAL ZONE

Murray Wright's Talks Supplemented By the Boston Transcript Story

Since Murray Wright came here from Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, to spend his annual vacation, Knox County service clubs have improved the opportunity to obtain first-hand information from him concerning the Panama Canal. And in this connection comes the following interesting despatch from Balboa published by the Boston Transcript:

A faint smoke smudge spears the horizon of the Gulf of Panama. Out of it emerge the lines of a ship loaded to the waterline, making for the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal. She may be a whaler coming in over the 7500-mile stretch from Australia or a freighter from Shanghai loaded with hemp and hair; she may bring coconuts oil from the Philippines or rich nitrates from South America's west coast.

Since Uncle Sam opened the Panama Canal to traffic on Aug. 15, 1914, some 65,000 vessels have passed through its gates and locks. Its narrow ribbon of water has borne approximately 300,000,000 tons of cargo, almost every article known to man from all parts of the world.

These vessels have paid tolls amounting to more than a quarter of a billion dollars. Open to ships from all the world, the canal remains predominantly a North American institution. A third of its total cargo is composed of shipments in United States intercoastal trade.

More than two-thirds of the canal cargo travels from west to east, owing to a preponderance of bulk cargoes in this direction. East to west shipments are principally manufactured goods. In the last two years a trade in wines, consigned from west coast of South America to Europe has sprung up; wines made principally in Chile and shipped to Italy and Spain.

Chile is one of the heaviest producers of canal traffic in South America. During the last fiscal year Chile shipped approximately 1,750,000 tons of nitrates through the canal, about two-thirds going to Europe and the bulk of the remainder to the east coast of the United States.

Mineral oils, Western lumber, ores, manufactures of iron and steel, nitrates and wheat are in ordinary years the six commodities passing through the canal in greatest quantity, each last year exceeding 1,500,000 tons.

Not since 1918 have vessels of United States registry failed to lead in canal commercial traffic. Since Uncle Sam owns and operates the canal, his own naval vessels go through free, as do government ships of Panama and Colombia.

Toll for the rest is figured against the earning capacity of the craft. The minimum toll is 72 cents for a ton of ballast. The largest amount ever charged was $22,399 against the British battleship Hood in 1924.

Although numerous other vessels are larger overall, the Chilean battleship Almirante La Torre, with a beam of 108 feet, barely clearing the 110-foot locks, is the widest ship ever to pass through the canal, says Captain L. C. Barnes, captain of the port of Balboa.

He was eagerly sought, and willingly granted his aid at all sorts of gatherings, one of his favorites being the Gilchrist reunion, of which he was vice president and which convened the day of his death. ROCKLAND AS IT IS TODAY

Economy Flour & Feed Co., Inc., Has Model Home—Proper System of Handling Grain

This section of Maine is fortunate in having for its service as modern a plant as that of the Economy Flour and Grain Co., pictured above. The home of the concern is located on Holmes street near the Rockland Airport and on a branch line of the Maine Central Railroad. It deals in general feeds, specializing in the famous Elmore and Grandin lines.

A visit to this establishment is very much worthwhile. The proprietor, Bowdoin Pendleton is always on the job and will gladly conduct visitors over the place. Mr. Pendleton, who has had much experience in the grain business and in meeting the public in retail trade, bought the business last May, coming here from Islesboro. He makes a welcome addition to the city's business men.

The office, well lighted and commodious, is located on the western end of the main building, convenient to all parts. The phone number is 1107. The Holmes street side of the building 30x50, has an all-glass front, showing the goods to special advantage. The bright finish and hardwood floors add to the attractiveness and ease of handling and displaying the goods. Here are neatly piled stacks of the three brands of flour carried by the concern, William Tell, Stover's Pride and Kid Glove. Several brands of special feeds and poultry mixtures are also displayed with samples of all feeds for buyers' convenience.

The big storage room at the rear

80x50, presents an interesting appearance. Here again the first impression is that of immaculate floors and walls, clean and wholesome. The whole great room is ranged in orderly ranks of piled bags of grain and feeds, all regularly grouped and easy of access. Complete ventilation and freedom from undue moisture feature the section. It sets high off the ground allowing full circulation of air beneath and on all sides. The building is completely free from rats, mice or pests of any kind.

It is interesting to note the care taken by the Economy Flour and Grain Company to keep its products in first class condition. Every single bag of grain is moved each week, this process keeping the contents of each bag in first class condition. Corn especially calls for particular care during the summer and on the occasion of the writer's visit a great quantity of cracked corn was being spread on the hardwood floor preparatory to rebagging. This process is always employed on corn products newly arrived from the West, the cooling and airing insuring its good condition after several days in the warm cars.

In pushing the Elmore and Grandin cattle and poultry feeds Mr. Pendleton takes justifiable pride, for he has great faith in them as he does in the flours he handles. The firm makes daily deliveries with its own trucks to all points and carries on an extensive trade with Swan's Island, Deer Isle, Stonington, Vinalhaven and the other islands. A visit to this fine plant is very much worth while. Its cool, airy rooms and the sweet fragrance of the grains are most pleasant.

LAKEWOOD THEATRE

Edith Barrett, who has been acclaimed the most talented young actress of the American stage, comes to Lakewood next week, starting Monday night, to appear in her original role in A. A. Milne's comedy "Michael and Mary." The appearance of Miss Barrett will be one of the most important events in the history of Lakewood.

Few young players have had a more meteoric or successful career than Miss Barrett. A granddaughter of Lawrence Barrett, the famous tragedian, she inherited a wealth of theatrical tradition and she has received more praise for her performance on Broadway than any other young actress.

"Michael and Mary" is a tender and beautiful story of romance, revolving around two young people who meet in a London museum. Michael is a writer, the son of a clergyman. Mary is a young shop girl who has been married by an adventurer and then deserted with nothing between her and starvation. The story is filled with suspense and with increasing interest, their problems being solved by the intervention of a friendly policeman who is a writer of detective stories.

"We have been delighted with the response to our offerings this summer," says Herbert I. Swett, general manager of Lakewood, "and we feel that we have presented the best list of plays and of players in our history. We intend to keep up the standard until the end of the season and for the week of Sept. 7, starting with a special Labor Day matinee, we shall stage "The Last Warning," a mystery play which ran for an entire season in New York and which is said to be filled with thrills as well as humor.

MRS. TUNNEY RECOVERS

Mrs. James J. Tunney, wife of the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, has practically recovered from her back injuries, suffered in a fall and has left Damariscotta Memorial Hospital. The former Polly Launder will return to the home of her parents on Johns Island, Christa Cove, where she was learned. She will then probably go to her own home with her husband in Greenwich, Conn.

FARM WAGES VERY LOW

Although wages paid hired farm workers usually advance during the period from April 1 to July 1, this year they declined to the lowest level recorded in the past 15 years, according to a statement made by the Department of Agriculture on July 13. These reductions were the result of a plentiful supply of workers and a much lower demand for farm help. In addition to this, the low level at which farm commodities are being sold has naturally brought down the wages.

DEFENDS DIAPHONE

And This Californian Says a Few Words About Jamaica Plain Man

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— I do not wish to precipitate a controversy, but I crave just a few lines so that I, a visiting Californian, may reply to the belittling remarks made by a visitor to Rockland from Jamaica Plain. The estimable gentleman who wrote the article signed himself as one Carl Anthonson.

This article was brought to my attention last Sunday during a visit to Rockland. One of your citizens asked me what I thought of it. Frankly, sarcasm is something which well bred people like to avoid. As the letter of Mr. Anthonson is reeking with sarcasm, I must naturally conclude that he has slipped a little. Well bred people do not openly criticize a host or hostess. Rockland was acting as host to Mr. Anthonson and his friends while they were visiting the city.

We are never permitted to forget the so called "culture" which prevails in the sovereign State of Massachusetts. We expect to be paid when in the presence of the cultured folk from that State. We never expect to hear or read such impolite and ill-considered words as crowd every line of the diatribe or invective harangue so carefully and painstakingly prepared by the gentleman from Jamaica Plain. From a professional point of view, my diagnosis would be that this neurotically inclined visitor from the Bay State should consult a prominent psychiatrist. I feel that the Bay State would be informed that he was suffering from a bad case of cerebrum-lacia.

You are to be congratulated for having taken so much care in protecting the interests of your people. If the diaphone has succeeded in throwing a safeguard around the property of your city, reducing the insurance rate and percentage of fires, I consider that a great achievement and worthy of the highest possible praise. It spells progression, not retrogression, no matter from what angle one might consider the matter. The noise, no doubt, may be exciting, but who would mind that when it serves a real purpose? I should many times prefer such a noise to the sort which I encountered recently when visiting at a camp overlooking your beautiful Camden Hills.

Ungrateful as I am at fiction writing, I will not be so ably prepared to describe the pitiful experience. Yet descriptive powers are not necessary to convey the situation in its glaring truth. If all visitors from Massachusetts should use the sacrilegious language that I heard issue from the lips of a lady (?) who had but a few moments before alighted from a car bearing a license plate from that State, I would most certainly say Maine would not be graciously inclined towards their reception. No longshoreman ever approached the language that I heard, and all because a poor dog hesitated to respond at once to her call. The man with her upbraided her, which only elicited a greater effort to become more vulgar. It was shocking and far more distressing than any mechanical sound within the creation of man.

I grant one favorable point to the gentleman from the Bay State. He has every qualification entitling him to membership in the fiction-writing field, also, would make a worthy candidate for a certain club the name of which was made famous by former President Roosevelt. I intend to be a frequent visitor to your charming city. In my humble way, I shall endeavor to offset the disappointment of Mr. Anthonson. Sunny California has its visitors who are chronic, yet with compassion in our hearts, we strive to heal them by such service as may be within our power to extend. Be sure that Maine possesses many equally fine remedies for similar characters, who no doubt need the blessings of a few kind words.

Yours for a greater Rockland,
W. E. Dentinger

Newtownville Lady Who Was One Of The Paralyzed Party

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— Having read with much interest the article on the Rockland fire-alarm, written by Mr. Anthonson and printed in your issue of Aug. 8, I can certainly endorse every word of it, as I was one of the party he mentions. Probably the only reason I was not under my bed was because deprived of action by reason of the blast. Not among my red letter days will be the remembrance of that night. (Mrs.) Sadie S. Calder.

EXCITES JESSE'S IRE

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— As a demonstration of the style in which the National authorities treat New England, the demand that the season in New England be shortened on duck shooting, because drought in Alberta and Manitoba has lessened the number of ducks in the Northwest, equals the rolling up of trousers by Boston and New York dudes "because it was raining in Dear Old London, don't you know!" Water is plenty and ducks are plenty in Maine. We need no change. Keep your hands off! Jesse A. Tolman

Fisherman Who Thought To Capture A Turtle Found Himself Captured

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— One Sunday morning not long ago a man who lives not far from here went over to the pond fishing. He sat on a log and fished for two hours without getting a bite. Then he noticed a snapping turtle on a flat stone sunning itself. The butt-end of the turtle was toward him and he thought he would capture it, but while he was looking for a place to step, the turtle gravely turned around without his knowledge, and when he got in reaching distance, and bent down to take hold of what nature designed should be taken hold of while handling a snapping turtle, that sociable animal just reached out and took hold of the man's hand with a grip that left no doubt of its sincerity.

The shrieks of the unfortunate man aroused some of the neighbors, but when they arrived it was too late to be of any benefit to him, or even to themselves, for they just caught a glimpse of a bareheaded man tearing along the road, swinging a small carpet-bag in one hand, and they at once concluded that it was a narrow escape from highway robbery. However, it was not a carpet bag he was swinging, it was that snapping turtle, and it clung to him until he got nearly home, when it let go, but the frightened man did not slacken his gait until he got home.

When he reached the house the ludicrousness of the affair burst upon him, and when his wife looked at his pale face and bare head, and

THE CODE BILL

Governor Has Offered a Measure the Citizens Have Built, Says Editor Staples

(Arthur G. Staples in the Lewiston Journal)

It seems to be considered that Gov. Gardner's proposal of the Code Bill is a personal matter wholly, and that this of itself is an objection to its adoption.

Of course there are bitter enemies of Gov. Gardner abroad and a long-drawn out quarrel between certain elements of the Republican party in Maine that is nobody's business except when it interferes with public welfare. This interference is not so good when based on that alone. Gov. Gardner's proposal of the administrative code is neither here nor there. The code is good, bad, worthy of a trial, or unworthy of a trial.

It is true that the Governor has supported it. But it is not true that he started it; conceived it; and originally asked for it. It is true, that in obedience to the platform of the Republican party at Bangor, and in consonance with the platform of the Democratic party in convention in the same year, and in previous years a new code was demanded, that should set up a unification of departments, a reduction of expenses of government, and an elimination of bureaus and political offices.

If a decent man, take office as governor under such direction as this, he would endeavor to create a code; get it passed and otherwise exercise his influence to see it adopted. It was and is a major-policy of Gov. Gardner's administration.

As Gov. Smith of New York took the stump for his several amendments in a similar instance, so does the Governor of Maine. Had Mr. Moran been elected Governor, he too would have had a code. He has intervened on the various committees of the preparation of this code. It was therefore non-partisan, representative, somewhat scientific and authoritative in its preparation, loudly applauded in its first suggestion and now is opposed among some of the people, all of whom have a right and duty to express themselves. Whatever their decision, it is authoritative and will be accepted as such. But nothing that happens can rob Gov. Gardner of the approval of the people who understand the matter, for his having made an honest effort to solve the question of a better form of administrative government in Maine and to obey the mandates of the people several times expressed in party-platforms.

The Governor says that about $250,000 a year can be saved by operating under this code. That is at least something. We are told that this can be saved under present form of government. At any rate it isn't! And we are told that this sum is insignificant anyway compared with the "political perils" of the bill.

This is a curious admission. We do not quite understand it unless it is simply one thing—that the appointments under this code are to be made by Gov. Gardner. And that is "peril" in certain quarters. We-I-I-I! Maybe, The Governor's appointments have not been bad but on the whole rather fine. Time straightens out such things.

We do not want this code if it is intentionally bad. If it saves $150,000 a year by centralizing purchases; and $100,000 more in other ways, and if it simplifies government it can not be intentionally bad. Only the cock-sure prophets of disaster (eternally of disaster), can definitely assure one to the contrary. It may even be extremely good. This may be determined only by a trial.

But we do hope that voters will not be misled by the constant clamor that it is Gov. Gardner's private and personal hobby. You, the voter asked for it; the Governor has offered a measure that citizens have built; the legislature adopted it. True, the Governor stood behind it. What else should he have done, with a measure so created? Would the admirable Gov. Roosevelt, or the energetic Pinchot, or the indomitable Smith, or the astute Ely or any other of the executives of state or nation have done less with a measure that he believed to be salutary?

Our Governor may be wrong; but he is at least not without courage even though as he has said he is "through with political office next year." Quite commendable is it not to put what he feels to be a good law into operation, as a memorial of his administration?

Let's forget personalities; let's consider the code as it is and determine the matter as either worthy or unworthy of a fair trial in operation.

WHAT UNIONS HAVE DONE

A Summary On the Eve of Labor Day By the Man Who Heads National Organization

(By William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor)

Sept. 7 labor will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the establishment of Labor day.

While labor of the United States and Canada is passing through a severe struggle it can congratulate itself on the fact that trade unions have maintained their numerical standing. Furthermore many principles and policies persistently advanced by the American Federation of Labor since its organization in 1881 have been accepted by many public men and employers of labor. Among them are:

That national sustained prosperity depends upon the payment of high wages.

That the five day week will benefit not only the workers but the business interests of our country.

That a shorter work week for 600,000 government employees means much to them and to all labor.

That payment of the prevailing rate of wages on all federal buildings in the United States and the District of Columbia is a big step in advance.

That advanced planning by the government for public works to be constructed during depressions will be of immeasurable benefit.

The practice followed during former depressions was to reduce wages. This resulted in a longer and more extensive period of hard times than would have been the case if wages had not been reduced. There can be no prosperity unless the workers receive more than a subsistence wage. Prosperity depends upon the purchasing power of the people and the great majority of the consumers of our country are wage earners.

While reductions in wages have taken place, in most cases they were imposed upon those who work in non-union shops or factories. The great mass of organized wage earners have to a very large degree maintained their wage standards. This has served to show the unfortunate unorganized workers that if they desire more than a bare subsistence wage they must obtain it through organized effort and through their identification with the trade union movement. When an employer fixes the wage scales and the working conditions without consultation with his employees the latter soon become victims of greed, force and selfishness.

Some of the heads of the greatest corporations in America have publicly stated that if business is to revive there must be no cutting of wages. This shows a complete change in sentiment upon a subject, unsurpassed in the life of the American Federation of Labor. A few bankers have sought to show that prosperity is not due to the payment of high wages, but their sophistry has met with the ridicule it deserves. If the people cannot buy it is because they are unemployed or because they are paid low wages.

The five day week has also received an impetus that will be of great benefit in the future. Many employers in order to keep their organizations intact have reduced the work week. In one case a large employer of labor who had been running three eight-hour shifts reduced it to four six-hour shifts. In a public statement the president of the company said that "it has given 20 per cent more people employment at the same daily earnings." He added:

"It seems probable that American business will soon face the need of providing for a shorter workday and a wage providing for the American standard of living if we are to help keep our people busy and stabilize prosperity."

The five and a half day week established by the government will have its influence on all employers. Our next objective is to secure the five day week for employees of the government.

For years we have contended that government contracts should be given only to those contractors who will pay the prevailing rate of wages and employ local labor. Congress enacted the prevailing wage law that went into effect April 2, 1931. While it is not a perfect law we believe that it will lead to the enactment of other legislation that will forever eliminate those contractors who pay the lowest wages possible in the construction of government buildings.

For years the American Federation of Labor urged Congress to provide during periods of industrial activity for the launching of an intense comprehensive public works program when unemployment increases. This law was passed and we are certain it will be of immeasurable benefit.

It is true that millions of workers have been unemployed during the past two years and it is evident that the hardships of another winter will be faced by many wage earners. But it must not be forgotten that all the gains that labor has secured are the result of effort and struggle on the part of the American Federation of Labor, its affiliated organization and its membership.

Labor principles and policies which have been accepted by so many employers and public men will when they are generally accepted operate to the benefit of the wage earners of our land.

Therefore, no matter what the obstructions may be we should work un-unanimously together in maintaining our trade unions, for in them, and through them alone, can we expect to make greater advances in the future.

THE SPEEDY OUTBOARD

A new world's outboard motorboat record of 53.025 miles an hour, made by Hank Ryan of Duluth, Minn., at Bay City, Mich., Aug. 2 was approved Tuesday by the National Outboard Association. Ryan is a professional driver. Francis Brobbell of Buffalo, N. Y., held the old record of 51.836 made at Albany, N. Y., July 6.

UNCLE SAM'S PAY ROLL

Will Be Swollen This Winter With Government Projects For the Unemployed

Treasury officials estimate work for 100,000 additional men will be furnished this winter and in the next two years by the government's $700,000,000 public building program, about $500,000,000 of which is to be expended outside of the District of Columbia.

Approximately 150,000 men will be given employment directly and indirectly during the winter, and, as more projects get under way, the number will be increased. At present government building construction is providing employment for 32,000.

Work will start before winter on new buildings in Chicago, South Bend, Indiana, Philadelphia, parcel post building and postoffice annex at New York, Detroit, St. Louis, Jacksonville, and Miami, Florida, Chattanooga and Knoxville. The cost of these total more than $500,000,000. In Washington buildings totaling about $37,000,000 will get under way.

The Washington projects include the interstate commerce buildings, labor department, department of justice, public health and archives buildings, together with another unit of the department of agriculture and the central heating and power plant.

KENNEBEC BRIDGE TRAFFIC

An increase of $283.40 for the second week in August over the corresponding week in 1930, an average of over $40 per day, is the result of the increased traffic over the Kennebec bridge. There were 1940 more passengers paying five cents toll and of 722 automobiles paying 50 cents toll than for the same period last year.

NEW ENGLAND BETTER

Met Business Depression Better Than Other Sections Of the Country

New England has fared better than the rest of the country in combating the business depression during 1930 and the first six months of 1931, according to statistics compiled by the New England Council, all-New England development organization.

In eight out of nine indices, the figures for which are obtainable, New England's position in the first half of the current year is better than that of the rest of the country from 2 to 20 percent. Similarly, figures for 11 out of 12 indices in 1930 show that New England came through that year better than did the rest of the nation. In both 1930 and 1931 figures, the one category that does not compare favorably with the rest of the country is cotton consumption, although in the first six months of 1931, New England's relative position in cotton consumption has improved from a point 11 percent lower than in the rest of the country to a point 2 percent lower.

Council headquarters pointed out that many New England businesses had taken positions of leadership both in adjusting to depression conditions and in prorating work and otherwise adopting policies calculated to relieve as much as possible the effects of unemployment, while on the positive side, industries have developed new products, new uses for old products, new and more efficient distribution plans and in general have applied more aggressive merchandising methods as an antidote to depression conditions.

Sales Leadership

Four people have purchased the Buick Eight to every one buyer of any other of the thirteen eights in Buick's price range during the twelve months since its introduction. This four-to-one preference—in days when America is scrutinizing values more closely than ever before—fully confirms the value leadership of The Eight as Buick Builds It. It is this outstanding value which causes 89 per cent of all Buick owners to buy Buicks again and again.

* Buick has sold four times as many eights as the next most popular eight in its field, August 1, 1930, through July, 1931, according to official figures by R. L. Polk & Co.

CHARLES W. PROCTOR, PROPRIETOR

THE REALM OF MUSIC

Gladys St. Clair Morgan

In the historic old Christian Church of Portsmouth, R. I., is an organ of primitive design which Henry Ford's billions of wealth could not purchase. Interesting, is it not? So is the history of this organ which is believed to be the one given by the Lord Bishop of Cloyne, Ireland, to Trinity Church of Newport, in 1733. When that church was able to buy a better instrument, this one was presented to the Portsmouth congregation. In his search for American historical relics, for his museum at Dearborn, Mich., Mr. Ford's attention was called to this organ, which had long been stored in the Portsmouth church. And this fired the zeal of Bishop Darlington, of Pennsylvania. John Nicholas Brown and ex-Governor R. Livingston Beechman of Rhode Island, to save the instrument for their church.

Laurabelle Dietrich, assisted by Joseph Franz Walsh, has collected the old ballads relating to Robin Hood and his merry men and woven them into an interesting book called "Merry Ballads of Robin Hood." In order to complete the story the selections are interspersed with prose additions to the text that link the story together. Also Robin Hood's epitaph is printed, and a note on the story of the ballads explains some of the odd words.

"American Songs for Children" is a clever collection of very familiar and less familiar songs made by Winthrop B. Palmer and beautifully illustrated by Harrison Cady. The music and words are given, not only for "Yankee Doodle," "Uncle Ned" and "Old Dog Tray," but also for "The Shoemaker," "California," and other attractive ditties. The book is intended to be an American Song book throughout in having music that represents New England chautauques, Southern Negro spirituals, cowboy songs of the west and Kentucky Mountain ballads.

NEGRO CHOIR
Within their throats the pipes of organs hang,
And chiming swing there like bells above a street;
There tom-toms sound, and silver cymbals clang,
And violins throb out, and wild drums beat.
And sweet and high, the winds among thin reeds
Along old jungle shores again awake;
The wall of voices lifts and soars and pleads
With the heart's wild clamor and its break.

"Abide with me, fast falls the evening,"
The old beseeching hymn lifts from each throat;
"The darkness deepens, Lord with me abide,"
The tears are trembling through each shaken note.
O God—a race is crying unto Thee:
"Help of the helpless, oh, abide with me."
—Grace Noll Crowell.

An interesting and famous visitor in the beautiful summer home of Frank Bibb at Camden is Christie MacDonald, former musical comedy star. She is charming, vivacious and dainty. There are several other delightful people under his roof at this time—Nils Falkman, Swedish tenor, and Giulia Donelli, soprano, who are to be in tonight's concert. Emma Baum of Baltimore, a young singer with extraordinary promise, and Nathalie Hall, the charming young singer who was heard in a former Camden concert and who has won enviable success in musical comedy the past two years. Quite soon Sigurd Nilssen and Louise Bernhardt who are to participate in the final concert of the series, will arrive. Mr. Nilssen is filling an engagement at Capitol Theatre in New York, and Miss Bernhardt is completing a European trip.

An interesting bit of information gathered from Mr. Bibb is that Leon Kairiff, the unique singer of Russian songs in the first concert of this season, was a member of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company about two years ago, singing prominent roles. He is not a member of the David Mannes School, as has been stated; simply an artist-pupil residing in New York, a diligent student with unusual dramatic ability. Mr. Bibb spoke most interestingly of Hertha Harmon who spent last summer in Rockland, conducting a voice class. He said she was a very faithful pupil through the winter and made tremendous strides in her work, and that she was singing gaily. "She has really a great voice," he says. At present Miss Harmon is in Germany where she has had several promising auditions in Wagnerian roles for which she seems so aptly suited. She hopes to be able to remain in Germany and enter opera there where in previous years she made a reputation for herself.

At the Camden concert of Aug. 11 I sat next to a very attractive young woman, a Camden visitor I gathered. During a lull in the program she asked: "Can you tell me if Mr. Bibb is to have Miss Kitty McLaughlin in his concert this season?" I voiced regret that he was not, and she in turn expressed sincere regret. "She sang so beautifully last summer, we hoped to hear her again." Needless to say, my heart swelled with pride as it always does when praise of our Lottie is sounded!

Walter Damrosch, noted conductor, gave a dramatic recital at the piano of Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" last Sunday at the Bar Harbor Club. The composer is now at his summer home, the Blaine cottage.

The summer session of the Washington Musical Institute held at the Battery, Belfast, closed a very successful term of five weeks Aug. 11. The school, although small in number, has been very profitable to those attending. Commencement exercises were held Aug. 12 and were splendidly carried out. The program featured a cello, flute and piano trio, vocal solos (one with flute obligato).

Dr. Howard Hanson of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., is to go to Germany as one of the ambassadors of good will chosen under the Oberlander Trust of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation. This foundation was founded to promote closer cultural relations and better mutual understanding between the people of this nation and the German-speaking peoples of central Europe. The Oberlander Trust, founded by Gustav Oberlander, of Reading, Penn., provides for the sending to Europe of a company of American citizens who individually represent outstanding efforts of public sort. Dr. Hanson is chosen to represent American music, his selection being made after consideration was made of the work being done in behalf of American creative music at the Eastman School under Dr. Hanson's initiative and decided upon as the most significant of native musical projects of the day.

Dr. Hanson will conduct programs of American music with prominent orchestras in Germany and Austria; he will seek contacts with leading composers and educators, with a view of giving them as clear an idea as possible of music conditions in this country and of setting from them a survey of conditions in their own countries, of musical trends and problems, and of the aims of the composers. He will seek to bring back this information and to offer it in such form as to be useful in this country, and he will gather program material of modern German and Austrian works with a view of performance in this country.

HOOKS OR KNEES
It Was All the Same To This Bangor Seagull—An Authenticated Story

The Bangor Commercial springs this one:
"Somewhere in the azure today is a sea gull, a hook and bait in his stomach, a fish line dangling from his mouth. And thereby hangs one of the strangest fish stories ever heard."
"Louis Elias, Anna Elias and Harriet Hodgins of Bangor, who have been spending their vacation at Pushaw Lake, were fishing from a boat Tuesday, Louis baited and threw the line. Suddenly there was a flapping of wings, a blur of white, and a big sea gull, which had been soaring above the party, dove into the water and swallowed the hook."

"Being humane, those in the party wanted to spare the gull the results of his greediness. So they steered the boat to a ledge, Miss Hodgins clambered out, waded into the water, caught the gull by the wing, and got him aboard. Then, the gull in Miss Hodgins' arms, the boat was headed for shore."

"Suddenly there was a sharp cry of pain. The gull, whose middle name was not gratitude, had bitten Miss Hodgins on the knee. Involuntarily she released her hold; and the bird rose like a flash of white lightning from the boat, the line hanging from his mouth. That was the last they saw of him."

Horticulturists used to head back their young fruit trees each year, in the belief that it made them stocky and well-branched. It is now known, however, that heavy cutting back of annual growth of young trees removes quantities of stored-up plant-food material needed for the future development of the tree. This results in decreased size of tree and delay in coming into maturity. Horticulturists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture advise pruning young fruit trees just enough to train them correctly.

Instructors at the school have been Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes, George T. Goldthwaite and Elbridge S. Fletcher. Dr. Barnes is dean of the Washington College of Music and director of music in the public schools of Washington, D. C. He has won distinct success also as a writer of musical text books, music articles, lectures and composer of chorus numbers, cantatas, etc.

Looking through some clippings that had been laid aside it was interesting, apropos of the above, to find this report made by Dr. Barnes a short time ago:

"More music, better grades—this was the theme of the reports of the nation's capital. Students in the Washington, D. C., high schools taking instrumental music range 2.1 percent more in their studies than do the boys and girls who do not. There are five high schools in Washington, and four were used as the basis of investigation. The survey was based on the reports of the two senior classes in these schools. It was found that no less than 16 percent of these senior students were studying some musical instrument or had been studying it within the past three years. They had each had on an average, 108.8 lessons on the instrument of their choice, and had carried their extra work in addition to the regularly prescribed high school subjects. Instead of tending to lower their grades as a distraction, the grades of the fiddlers and saxophone players were appreciably higher, ranging from 1.3 points to 4.5 points above those of the students who had not carried this additional work."

PRESIDENTIAL PAWNS

Special Session Of Legislature In New York May Prove To Be One

There is much curiosity in New York as to whether Tammany is sharpening its tomahawk for Gov. Roosevelt. Speculation was rife as to the effect of the organization's attitude on the Governor's chances for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

The Governor's action in calling a special session of the legislature to increase the powers of the legislative committee investigating New York city was described by some newspapers as increasing Tammany's resentment. They suggested the possibility of a reprisal in the form of opposition to the nomination of Roosevelt, of desertion of him after the first few ballots in the National convention.

The possibility of Hoover carrying New York State against Roosevelt as he did against Smith was discussed by the papers. On the other hand was set forth the suggestion that an open break between Tammany and Roosevelt, at least indications that the Governor was disliked by the New York city organization would increase his chances for the nomination by making him more popular in other Democratic strongholds, especially since the admission of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, to the legislative committee that he had telephoned a judge to arrange a stay of sentence for contempt of the committee by a witness.

Louis A. Cuvillier, New York city Democrat and member of the legislative committee, expressed the opinion that in calling the special session Roosevelt was seeking to further his Presidential aspirations by showing other parts of the country that he is independent of Tammany.

The legislature will meet Aug. 25, especially to consider empowering the committee to grant immunity to witnesses. The State Court of Appeals has held the committee lacks such power. The decision was rendered in upholding a contempt sentence on William F. Doyle, veterinarian, who refused to tell the committee with whom he had split fees for appealing municipal building code rulings to a higher municipal body. Curry's telephone call was in relation to Doyle's sentence.

Rambles Afield

Adella F. Veazie

[Number Eighteen]

For a long time I planted hollyhocks each spring, and they grew thickly until fall, but with the return of spring most of them died. Then I began to investigate and found that all those which survived the winter were single, or at best only partially double, so since that I have planted only the single kinds and they all live and grow to a wonderful height, some of them away above my head. At present mine are at their best and make a brave show, though I have but two clumps as there are but few spots in my garden which are sheltered from the wind, and unless they are so sheltered they must be staked.

Other people have double ones, and in riding through the country I often see great clumps and long rows of double hollyhocks such as I desire to possess, and seldom do stakes appear to be necessary. I wonder why. Is it a peculiarity of soil or a difference in culture? Sometimes we blame our seedsmen for our failures when the fault is really our own.

For instance, a friend near me has wonderful success with mignonette which often comes up in her garden from self sown seeds which have lain in the ground all winter, while I plant it year after year and care for it to the best of my ability yet I never succeed in raising more than half a dozen weedy, scraggly looking plants which generally curl up and die before fall. On the other hand, I have plants which I have to keep in subjection or they would soon over run the garden, while friends complain that they have difficulty in raising even enough for samples.

There really seems to be something mysterious about the cultivation of such plants. Perhaps an account of some of my successes will prove more interesting than the recounting of my failures, so I will boast of my two meadow lilies sent me from Glencoe two seasons ago. The first year they grew well and blossomed, but the stems were short, much shorter than those I picked in the field between our old house and Jont Spear's when I was a child. I thought it likely this was due to the dry spot in which I was obliged to plant them, but this year they grew to the height of three feet in spite of their dry situation, and both had nice large blossoms.

The yellow gallium, also from Glencoe, came up in spring, but though green and thrifty has not grown tall like the ordinary specimen, but remains about as in June; perhaps six inches high, and shows no sign of blooming. It looks so happy however, in its new home, that I am hoping for blossoms next year. A bed of chelone barbata has been gorgeous and still sends out an occasional stray blossom.

I am more than pleased with campanula persicifolia, as it remains in bloom a long time and sends out an occasional blossom during the whole season. I find it is a perennial and sows its own seeds besides, while Canterbury bell is a biennial and dies when it has finished blooming. I intend planting campanula pyramidalis next season, as it grows quite tall and the two together will make an odd and handsome combination.

Before I go farther I rise to be corrected, if necessary. In one of my latest "Rambles" I wrote of Asclepias tuberosa growing in various places on the West Meadow road. On consulting my botany I find this variety described just as I have, always known it, except that it has orange colored blossoms, while the kind with which I am familiar and which I have always heard called Asclepias tuberosa, could not by any possibility be called orange, but is more nearly a sort of brownish pink, or old rose. Will some real botanist give me information on the subject, as I like to be exact in my statements, though only an amateur and somewhat rusty, at that.

THE SAUNTERER

A. B. Crocker

N.C.C. 1, in "Rambles Afield," tells us that her Russian mulberry tree has failed her. Perhaps it is as well that way, for the robins dearly love mulberries, but will eat cherries. We have them in our neighbors' yards, but so far as I know we haven't a mulberry tree on the lot; so if No. 1 is depending on me for information she is leaning on a broken reed.

But we do have hollyhocks, of the genus Althea, called also rose-mallows. With one exception ours are white, or slightly tinted, but our neighbors' over the fence are beautiful, varying from white to deep red. There are cerise, delicate pink, and tinted. One plant is head and shoulders above its fellows in the garden, being 10 feet in height and still growing.

When Mrs. Veazie writes of "apetalous" flowers, she has me going, and when she speaks of rhizomes, why, I can't help thinking of axioms, all I remember of algebra. And then she writes something like Einstein, "developing from nowhere."

But when she says "Our common sweetfern, the seeds of which we have all eaten," she is all wrong for the male of the species. When it was dry we smoked sweetfern, but never ate it.

Harking back to the days of my boyhood, I have a vivid recollection that we ate about everything that grew in the woods, pastures, fields, and gardens, including fir balsam teas, and Balm o' Gilead buds.

I never knew of a boy being poisoned from eating anything we found growing. Of course we had "inside information" that there was trouble brewing when we ate too many green apples. What joy on a hot day in summer to go across the road from the schoolhouse to the Jackson garden (we attended school all summer in my boyhood) and eat a rich, ripe, red tomato, right off the vine; or eat a cucumber, carrot, or turnip. We didn't know a thing about vitamins, calories, or proteins, so what we didn't know, didn't hurt us. Wonderful are the ways of a boy's digestive apparatus. N.C.C. 2

POULTRY POINTS

Specialist Lays Stress on Eight Matters To Be Considered

Summarizing the points made on breeding at the poultry school at Orono recently, H. L. Richardson, extension poultry specialist, said: "First, we do not talk about breeding for egg production any more because it is not an inherited character in and of itself; but rather the sum and total of a large number of separate and distinct inherited characters."

"Second, we must treat egg production from the standpoint of these various inherited characters and design our breeding program accordingly."

"Third, the inheritance of characters is the result of the union of the sex cells of the two individuals. Inheritance cannot, therefore, be handled as a flock mating proposition without regard to the individuals in the breeding pen. Progress can come only by observing the breeding performance of individuals. Furthermore, the individual inherited characters of the individual bird is what is really being dealt with."

"Fourth, an individual bird may possess an inherited character and yet not be able to transmit it to all or any of its progeny. Whether ability to transmit to the offspring is possessed or not is what determines the breeding value. The testing of progeny to determine the breeding value of its ancestors is a necessary part of any construction breeding program."

"Fifth, the practical breeder will do better not to try to fix too many characters at one time because each additional character selected for increases the problem at least four fold.

"Sixth, inbreeding may be done if done cautiously. The danger lies in a loss of vigor.

"Seventh, line breeding is most essential to a constructive breeding program.

"Eighth, the intelligent use of the trapnest is essential to any breeding program. However, 365 day trap records are not essential."

Mr. Richardson has just completed a new bulletin on poultry breeding which is now being sent to Maine poultrymen.

RURAL MAIL HEAVY
Rural residents receive about 17 times more mail than they send in a year, according to the latest figures of the Postoffice Department. These show that an average of 102 pounds of mail matter was delivered per trip, over 43,000 rural routes last year, whereas only six pounds was collected. The average of 102 pounds delivered included all classes of mail matter and comprised about 350 pieces on an average rural trip.

Although more than 340 new post-offices each year have been added to the United States postal system since 1789, there were nearly 28,000 more postoffices in existence in 1900 than at the present time; accounted for by the spread of the rural free delivery system, established a little more than 30 years ago.

SUMMER BUSINESS

Report From the State's Publicity Bureau Shows It "Somewhat Spotted"

(Maine Publicity Bureau)

Everyone is asking about the condition of the tourist business this year. While travel has been somewhat backward, it does appear that Maine is not seriously suffering from lack of tourist patronage. In conversation a few days ago with a traveling man, whose field lies in a product largely sold to hotels, he stated to us that after having visited most of the resort places in New England, that Maine is certainly making a splendid showing as compared with other sections.

Business in Maine seems to be somewhat spotted, as reports from varying sections show that whereas one hotel may report an increase in business over that of last year, another hotel of much the same character and having the same class of patronage is running somewhat behind last year. Another item of interest is that similar reports come to us in relation to overnight camps and "tourists accommodated" places, so that it does not appear that those places have enjoyed any better percentage of business than have the standard camps and hotels. This seems to refute the prophecy made by many last spring that the regular places would suffer this summer and the overnight camps and other low priced places would greatly benefit. Such does not seem to have developed.

We were favored a few days ago with a call from Theodore G. Morgan, president of the Montreal Tourist and Convention Bureau, who has a summer home at Biddeford Pool. Mr. Morgan stated that he had just received a report from the Secretary of his Bureau that records in the Montreal office showed that the number of Canadian cars going into Maine this year is 25 percent ahead of the corresponding period last year and has established a new record. Mr. Morgan ascribes this increase to the fact that European sailings from Canadian ports have been light and that many people who have formerly gone abroad have taken a less expensive vacation in touring nearer home and may account for this added influx into Maine.

HERE'S A FISH STORY

Which Only Goes To Show the Variety Of Attractions Maine Can Offer

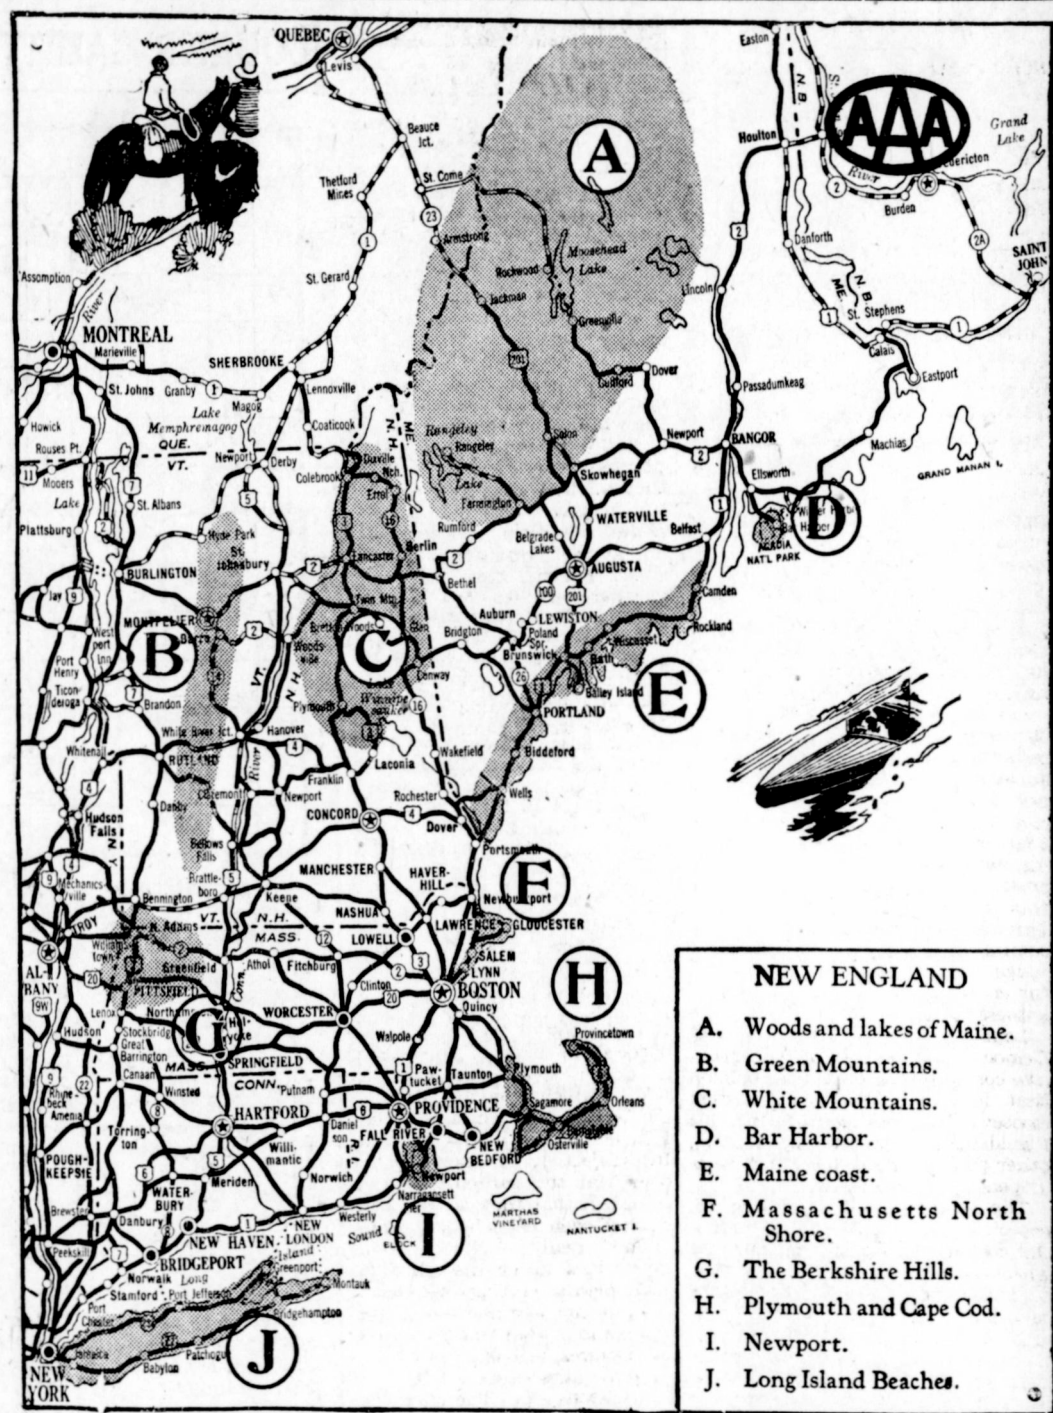

Jay Holmes of New York, and a party of friends who had been unreported since they left Portland Monday afternoon on a fishing trip returned Tuesday with a tale of having been towed for 11 hours by a 700 pound horse mackerel.

The big fish was hooked soon after the party reached the vicinity of Portland lightship, seven miles off shore.

The mackerel towed them out to sea and then turned about and towed them in towards shore again. After an 11 hour drag throughout the night the fish broke away and then Holmes and his two companions headed for port.

Most mackerel fishing is with harpoons but some of the more daring fishermen use a large hook and line.

TO OUST RASKOB

That the Duty Of the "Heroic Dry Democrats" According To F. Scott McBride

F. Scott McBride predicted Tuesday that the next general election "will nail down prohibition or establish it as an issue for the next generation."

McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, spoke before the National Bible Conference, which he warned "if legalized liquor comes back, the saloon will come back."

President Hoover, he said, would be the Republican nominee "after a defeated fight in the convention for a wet platform and a wet candidate," and "the issues as to the Presidency will be clearly defined."

"If the dry Democrats succeed in their heroic fight to oust John J. Raskob," McBride said, "a dry Democrat will be nominated and will have a chance at election."

McBride said that if the dry Democratic leaders fail to oust Raskob, Roosevelt and Smith, Raskob, in council with Smith and Roosevelt, will determine the next nomination of the Democratic party.

The pretended campaign on behalf of Roosevelt today is clearly a move on the part of this triumvirate to corral as many votes as possible for the convention, for the candidate that Raskob, Smith and Roosevelt will agree upon.

Pointing out the loss of three dry representatives from 25 states would give "the wets, even with our present majority of two to one... a majority in Congress," McBride urged the Congressional elections be kept in mind because reappointment "will reduce to some extent the dry vote in the next Congress."

He explained that larger number of representatives would come from the cities, where "the wet vote is larger than in the rural sections."

DISTRICT ROTARIANS

The 38th District of Rotarians will hold their fall conclave at Lakewood, theatrical resort near Skowhegan, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the week of Sept. 14. The meeting place was decided upon at a meeting of the fall conclave committee Sunday at Augusta. This committee appointed by District Governor Edgar L. Harding, includes: Perley S. Turner, Skowhegan, chairman; W. G. Stover, Lewiston; Louis A. Walker, Rockland; Daniel W. Hoegg, Portland; Oscar E. Langer, Belfast; Stanley Gower, Skowhegan; Herbert E. Locke, Augusta; R. R. N. Gould, Lewiston; Herbert A. Marston, Gardiner; and Sherman E. Lord, Augusta.

The man sought is William Frazer, thirty-one, swashbuckling World War veteran. His phillandering with the maids of Rahway, N. J., have proved one of the liveliest subjects of gossip here recently, according to the authorities.

The slain victim is thought to be Mrs. Phoebe Stader, vivacious grass widow.

Frazer abandoned his wife and children in the Frazer home at Rahway, Elizabeth suburb.

Details of the ghostly ride came from Ira Jansen, a cousin of Frazer.

Recently Frazer drove to Jansen's home in Rahway just before dawn. He insisted that Jansen come out to the car.

"Meet the girl friend," was Frazer's way of introducing his cousin to his ghostly crime, Jansen told Prosecutor David.

"I stuck out my hand. I thought the woman was bashful there in the dark shadows," Jansen said. "Then I noticed she did not move. I saw she was dead and was horrified. But Frazer only laughed."

"Get into the car," he told me. He looked terrifying and wild. I got in. He laughed in a way that chilled my blood. He turned a flash light full on her. I saw she had been undressed. I saw she was Mrs. Stader and I almost screamed. Frazer just cackled: 'The girl friend. Fine girl friend.'

Lost His Nerve.

"He chuckled her under the chin. Then he told me to 'move the girl friend in the back seat.' I wouldn't touch her, I was too frightened. We drove out into the country. Then he pulled out a gun and said he would kill himself. He made some passes around with the gun and I thought he would kill me. But he lost his nerve and did not kill himself."

"We drove back to my house. He picked the body up and put it in the back seat himself and put the blanket over it."

"He went inside with me and went to sleep. I dozed off. When I woke up he was gone. He left a note telling me to send him money to the Sir Walter hotel at Raleigh, N. C."

"I got $200 of Frazer's money and went to Raleigh and gave the money to Bill. He was nasty. I said to him: 'What did you do with that woman's body?' He answered: 'None of your business. I got rid of it.'"

Corroborative evidence that Frazer killed Mrs. Stader came from the war veteran's wife, Mrs. Frazer, who has abandoned the Frazer home, placed a for sale sign on it and has taken her two small daughters to the home of relatives, said:

"Some time during that night my husband came bursting into the house crying: 'I've just killed Mrs. Stader.' But he was such a chronic liar I did not believe him."

TAKES VICTIM ON FANTASTIC RIDE

Murderer Carries on Weird Conversation With Body of Woman.

Elizabeth, N. J.—A tale of a murderer's moonlight ride across the frosty countryside, with the nude body of the sweetheart he killed propped beside him, the weird mock conversation he had with her, and the eerie disappearance of both killer and victim, left New Jersey police with an unique murder mystery to solve.

Their only hope of solution seemed to lie in the bullet pierced body of a woman found near Sleepy Hollow, Va., recently.

Meanwhile a search for the fantastic night-riding murderer is on in three states.

"He went inside with me and went to sleep. I dozed off. When I woke up he was gone. He left a note telling me to send him money to the Sir Walter hotel at Raleigh, N. C."

"I got $200 of Frazer's money and went to Raleigh and gave the money to Bill. He was nasty. I said to him: 'What did you do with that woman's body?' He answered: 'None of your business. I got rid of it.'"

Corroborative evidence that Frazer killed Mrs. Stader came from the war veteran's wife, Mrs. Frazer, who has abandoned the Frazer home, placed a for sale sign on it and has taken her two small daughters to the home of relatives, said:

"Some time during that night my husband came bursting into the house crying: 'I've just killed Mrs. Stader.' But he was such a chronic liar I did not believe him."

CHAMBER BULLETIN

Latest News Concerning Rockland's Busy Trade Organization

This bulletin has been issued by Miss Lenore W. Benner, acting secretary of the Rockland Chamber of Commerce.

Dollar Days: The Chamber of Commerce merchants' committee is preparing for its annual event—Dollar Days, which will take place this year Friday and Saturday, Aug. 28 and 29. The committee is planning to give away from 8,000 to 10,000 Dollar Days to the rural population in the vicinity of Rockland, to stimulate the interest of the buying public. All merchants who have not yet sent in their pledges are urged to do so, as the time is growing short and funds are needed to carry on the advertising. Make your check payable to Merchants' Fund and mail to the Chamber of Commerce. Be one to co-operate in this event.

Camp For Needy Children: Your Chamber has been co-operating with the Salvation Army in arranging to send the needy children of Rockland to Christmas Cove Camp and obtaining automobiles for their transportation to and from.

Come to Maine: Advertising: In line with our publicity work this year the Chamber of Commerce advertised Rockland in all the leading eastern newspapers.

The fund which was solicited for us by Dudley Allenman of the John W. Queen Advertising Agency and which was subscribed to by many local concerns has not been entirely collected. Through these columns we would again state that checks from those who have not as yet remitted would be greatly appreciated. We believe that this advertising was a drawing power to Rockland as this office has received more inquiries by letter than ever before.

Many testify to reading the Rockland ad and being attracted by it. Aeronautical Committee: When it developed that Rockland had been left out of the Boston to Halifax air service schedule, after the plane had landed at the local airport but once and after having advertised Rockland as a port of call, several meetings were held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms and a committee to go into the matter further with officials of the airlines was appointed as follows: Chairman, R. E. Thurston, chairman ex-officio, B. H. Stinson, K. C. Rankin, ex-Governor William T. Cobb, James F. Carver, Homer E. Robinson, A. C. McLoon, W. H. Butler, C. H. Sonntag, F. A. Winslow and A. W. Gregory.

After several meetings and investigation of the runways made in company with a Pan-American engineer, a solution was reached by the officials putting on an amphibian to land at Rockland twice daily. It is hoped that shortly we may succeed in obtaining air mail for Rockland. This matter is being worked out by the Chamber of Commerce at the present writing.

Unemployment: To those who have any help to hire we would say that we do wish you would give us a call. We have a great many names of needy men and women on hand and would be pleased to receive news of any jobs. Sometimes the particular sort of help you want is not on file but nearly always it is here, and we are always pleased to do all we can to get employment for Rockland people.

HAPPY LITTLE MURIEL

Miss Muriel C. MacLeod of Dark Harbor is the proud possessor of eight grandparents. The youngest of that octet was barely 35 when she became a grandmother. Muriel is a year and a half old and she has an aunt who is more than a year younger than herself. One of Dorothy's grown-up brothers, appreciating the humor of the situation, declares that when Muriel has gained a little greater command of her mother tongue, he is going to teach the youngster to admonish her youthful aunt to "Be your age, Aunt Dorothy."

HUDSON with Selective Free Wheeling Means SUPREME PERFORMANCE

Scores of motorists fresh from examining and driving the latest and best cars of the day declare Hudson the supreme performer.

They refer not alone to the luxury of its floating smoothness. They think of other qualities than silent gear shifting or greater comfort. They are enthusiastic about Hudson power, the nimbleness of its motor, the ease of its steering and the luxury of its bodies.

Now Selective Free Wheeling greatly enhances a performance that was already individual. Its floating ride is unlike anything you have ever experienced in a motor car. Gears shift silently, from high to low, down or up without need to use the clutch. You will like it. And you will learn that Hudson meets every requirement of true luxury at moderate prices.

THE BARNACLE'S NOSE

Discovery By a Scientist May Be Means of Solving a Vexed Marine Problem

The barnacle's nose may prove its undoing.

That a barnacle's nose knows because known Thursday upon the return from the Tortugas islands of Dr. J. Paul Visscher, head of the department of biology of Western Reserve University.

And because its nose knows, there may be solved one of the most vexing of maritime shipping problems, that of keeping a vessel's bottom clean of the little crustaceans.

Dr. Visscher learned during his two months' investigation that barnacles react to smells. This opens a new field to science in discovering chemicals repellent to the barnacle and mixing them accordingly in paints applied to ship bottoms.

SIZE OF FARMS INCREASES

The size of the "average farm" in the United States increased from 148.2 acres in 1920 to 156.9 acres in 1930. While the spread of corporation farming may have something to do with the increasing size of the average farm, Roger Babson, the economist, after a painstaking investigation, makes the statement that corporation farming does not pay.

BIRD WITH THUMBS

Some Curious Specimens Found By Brazil-Venezuela Expedition

A bird with "thumbs" on its wings, which, when only a few days old can climb back into its nest if it falls out, is among the unusual types represented in the collection of more than 3,000 specimens of feathered creatures just brought to Washington by Ernest G. Holt who led the Brazil-Venezuela Expedition of the National Geographic Society into little-known parts of northern South America.

In addition to the odd climbing bird, the hoatzin, the collection includes birds of gorgeous plumage, like the cock-of-the-rock, "most beautiful bird in the world;" tiny specimens with abnormally long bills; orioles that weave nests five feet long; and birds proficient in "makeup" who deliberately enhance their beauty.

A Year's Work Ahead

Only a few high lights of the large collection have so far been brought to view. At least a year of laboratory work will be necessary properly to study and classify the birds and to compare them with known types. The material has been presented by the National Geographic Society to the National Museum to enrich its collection of the feathered creatures of the Americas. Even with only the preliminary work which has been done it is known that the Brazil-Venezuela material contains many rare specimens and it is believed that a number of them will be new to science. It is estimated that probably 50 per cent of the birds are new to the National Museum's collection.

The hoatzin was found along the Casiquiare, the unique arm of the Orinoco which flows out of that river and into the Amazon system. The nesting birds have a queer "thumb" or claw at the bend of the wing when hatched. Although the adult bird is not aquatic, it builds its nest on bushes hanging over the water. The nestling, if it falls into the water, swims out with perfect ease and climbs up the bushes back to its nest. The "thumbs" fall off when the bird becomes full grown.

A Winged Beauty's "Makeup"

Nature made the mot-mot, another of the specimens, very beautiful with its greenish sheen and its head of turquoise and aquamarine, and with its long graceful tail feathers which more than double its length. But the mot-mot is not satisfied and insists on performing a beauty operation that might be compared to the eyebrow plucking of Miss 1931. Both the male and the female mot-mots bite away a portion of their tail feathers near the ends so as to leave an elliptical bit of feather or racket on the tip of the quill like that which marks the butt of an arrow.

The cock-of-the-rock which has been enthusiastically acclaimed by bird lovers for its beauty, is about the size of a pigeon and is feathered from bill to tail in most striking flame color. An outstanding feature of the bird is a large double crest which sweeps from the upper tip of its bill to the base of its skull. The hen is of a rich brown color and is practically the same size as the cock with a smaller crest, also of brown.

Male Dances Before Its Mate

A few of the other unusual birds in the collection are the tiny manikins, the males of which dance before the females; the capuchin or bald-headed cal-bird which has a hoarse cry like a calf; the smallest woodpecker in the world, smaller than many hummingbirds; the smallest American kingfisher of less bulk than a house wren, which has forsaken the fishing ways of the kingfisher tribe and lives wholly upon insects; jamaicas, shaded like giant hummingbirds; and cotingas, highly colored creatures with extra wing feathers which hum when they fly. An outstanding specimen of the collection which has been identified is Heilprin's Jay, a very rare bird of which only two specimens have so far been recorded, one in Philadelphia, and one in Europe.

Huge Hailstones

Preserved on Ice

Moundsville, W. V.—If you doubt Charles F. Spoon's story that hailstones as large as hens' eggs fell here two years ago he will present proof. He has it on ice. Spoon was away from home when the storm occurred.

His wife, thinking he would not believe her, picked several hailstones up to show him the size. They were placed in the refrigerator and still are there.

Couple Spends Fortune Providing Wading Pools

Neosho, Mo.—In 20 towns of Kansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma, the youngsters are beginning to visit the wading pools, to get relief from the summer heat.

And Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Reed sit on the porch of their bungalow here and smile as they think of the fun the children are having.

For in these 20 towns are wading pools which the Reeds have built, as one of the ways of spending the money which came to them from oil wells which have been developed on apparently worthless land which Reed picked up while a struggling lawyer in the Seminole Indian district of Oklahoma. Watching the children play in a San Francisco gutter one hot day, Reed got the idea of building wading pools. He built two in Tulsa, Okla., then one in Neosho, where he later came to live, and then others throughout this section, in towns where the authorities agreed to put up dressing rooms if he would build the pools. Until now 30 of these pools are in use, and others are planned for the coming summer.

Whenever a pool is opened it is dedicated by all the children who want to attend, and the ceremonies consist of eating all the ice cream cones that the youngsters can hold, while the Reeds pay the bill.

It's a fine way to enjoy oil wells, the Reeds agree.

Skeleton Found in Ohio

May Antedate Columbus

Kenton, Ohio.—The skeleton of a man, who perhaps lived long before Columbus touched the shores of America, was found recently in a gravel pit on a farm near here. The curiosity was discovered by W. S. Barringer, Lima, an amateur anthropologist, under 12 feet of earth.

In his study of the skeleton, Barringer discovered that it could not have been that of a North American Indian. This was indicated by the fact that the cheek bones were not well defined. Yet the skull did not indicate that the man was a member either of the white or black races.

Barringer said he had two reasons for believing the man might have belonged to a migrating race which came to Ohio from California 600 to 1,000 years ago.

One was that in the grave were found numerous shells, evidently used as gorgets, which, Barringer said, were found only on the California coast and on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico. The second was that the front teeth in the lower jaw were crosswise. Recently road builders near Redding, Calif., uncovered, under 20 feet of lava, the grave of a face which had this characteristic.

School Finance Survey

of U. S. Starts in July

Washington.—A four-year national study of the tax dollar spent on schools will be started July 1, according to Secretary of Interior Wilbur. The survey, which will be known as the national survey of school finance, was authorized by the last congress.

William J. Cooper, United States commissioner of education, will be director of the survey, but the active work will be in charge of Dr. Paul R. Mort, recently of the Columbia University Teachers' college, who has been appointed associate director.

The survey is expected "to produce comparative information on the sources and uses of the $2,450,000,000 spent annually for educational purposes" for the use of congress, state legislatures and school boards and officials. Congress appropriated $350,000 for use in the investigation and $100,000 a year more is expected for the next four years.

Youth Routs Shark

in Hand-to-Fin Fight

Brisbane, Australia.—Stanley Rorer, an eighteen-year-old boy, beat off a shark which attacked him while he was swimming.

A man-eater bowled him over with a furious rush, but Rorer jammed his thumb in the shark's eye and it bent a retreat. Rorer walked to a hospital.

Baggage Man Killed

Port Colborne, Ont.—Alan Feherman, fifty-four, baggage man, was killed here when he was run over by a railway locomotive on which he was riding home. He was riding on the tender.

A jolt threw him in front of the engine.

Ship 9,577 Cars of Lettuce

Phoenix, Ariz.—That the lowly lettuce head is entitled to rank as a phase of big business was proven this spring when the Arizona crop totaled 9,577 carloads, which were distributed throughout 45 of the 48 states. The season lasted 23 days.

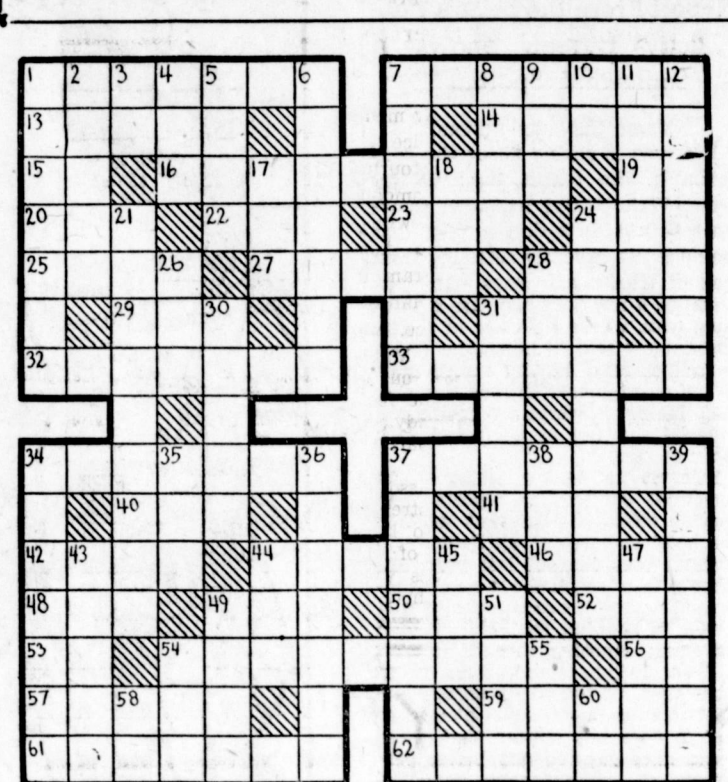

Betty was taken to the museum by auntie. They went into the Egyptian room, and there saw a mummy. Betty asked what it was.

"That is some one's mummy, dear," answered auntie.

"Auntie," she confided, "I'm glad my mummy's not like that!"

KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Old Welsh Door Verse.

Hail, we ask what thou art:

If friend we greet thee hand and heart:

If stranger, such no longer be,

If foe, our love shall conquer thee.

SAVORY DISHES

WHEN the cucumbers are still tender and fresh, but the seeds are large, use them for stuffing and try this appetizing dish that follows:

Savory Stuffed Cucumbers.—Pare three cucumbers and cut into halves lengthwise, scoop out the seeds with a sharp spoon or grapefruit knife. Mash a cream cheese, add to it one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika, one and one-half cups of soft bread crumbs and half a cup of cream to moisten. Fill the cucumber cavities with the cheese mixture, place in a well greased baking dish and bake until tender in a moderate oven. Serve with Mustard Sauce.—To one cupful of white sauce, prepared and seasoned as usual, add one-eighth teaspoonful of paprika and one tablespoonful of prepared mustard mixed with the well mashed yolks of two hard cooked eggs, one tablespoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful each of sugar and minced parsley.

Baked Beets Stuffed With Spinach.—Select six medium sized beets, scrub well and place in a covered baking dish with just the water that clings to them; bake until tender, remove the skins and when cool enough to handle scoop out the centers, leaving a good sized cavity in each. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and add a small piece of butter to each. Have some fresh spinach cooked and chopped fine, season with butter and salt to taste. Press the prepared spinach into the cavities, cover with buttered crumbs and bake for fifteen minutes or until the crumbs are brown. Serve with a cream sauce if desired.

Current Cooler.—Infuse a pint of tea with mint leaves, Wilt a glass of currant jelly and add it to a pint of boiling water; stir until dissolved. Let both liquids cool. Then mix them together, adding the juice of two oranges and sugar syrup as required. Serve with cracked ice and a sprig of mint in each glass.

THE WORD FROM LUBEC

While the sardine factories in Quoddy are still idle there is still some activity in fish circles, as there are daily arrivals of fish boats from Grand Manan, with cargoes of large herring, destined to become boneless herring in the course of a few months and to furnish winter employment where it is certain to be much needed. The large fish were never better, the smokehouse men say, being the right size, fat, but not too fat, and minus all spots or blemishes. In consequence, the houses are being rapidly filled with stock to be stripped later. Some herring are being sold now, and the more orders for immediate delivery, the longer the packers will be taking fish, threading them on wooden sticks and hanging them in the roof of the smokehouse where fires of driftwood turn them a rich golden brown.

Making the Cheaper Cuts Tasty

By Jane Rogers

THE whole secret of making any one of the cheaper cuts of meat tasty lies in finding a good recipe and in faithfully following all its directions. If this lesson has been well learned and taken to heart there is no reason why round steak, chuck-shoulder and all the other less expensive cuts of beef and lamb should not have just as much appetite appeal as the more costly roasts, steaks and chops.

The most important of all the points to remember is that the seasoning should be just right. All of the seasonings used should blend together into a harmonious whole, and their total effect should be to bring out and point up the full, rich flavor of the meat. In this connection, it is wise to take a hint from European cooks who long ago learned that a small amount of sugar, used as one of the seasonings, serves to blend the flavors of all the other seasonings and helps greatly to accent the natural meat flavor.

It is true that the cheaper cuts take longer to prepare than their more aristocratic relations, but added minutes in the kitchen are compensated for by more nickels, dimes and quarters in the pocket-book at the end of the week. In hot weather especially, when no woman can be blamed for not wanting to spend more time in the kitchen than she has to, there may be a temptation to postpone use of the cheaper cuts until cooler days arrive. If it is necessary to economize this may mean a decided cutting down in the family's meat ration.

This is not as it should be. Few foods contain so many of the necessary food elements as meat.

Slice, fine, two onions. Cook slowly in four tablespoons fat, in covered kettle. When the onions are soft, and just before they begin to brown, add one and a half pounds round steak, cut into small cubes. When meat starts to fry, stir in from one to three tablespoons Chili powder, mixed in a little water, two teaspoons sugar and one teaspoon salt. Add one quart hot water and one-half cup tomato juice or tomato purée. Simmer until meat is very tender and the stew is of a thick consistency. Serve with corn, hominy, or a salad.

State Highway Police To Be Trained This Winter As Touring Counsellors

Plans are underway whereby members of the State Highway Police will be thoroughly trained as touring counsellors by the Maine Automobile Association during the winter months preparatory to the next tourist season. Such a program in the opinions of James W. Hanson, Chief of State Highway Police, and Arlyn E. Barnard, manager of Maine A. A., will prove popular with out of state tourists and increase the feeling of hospitality which already exists in the State. Manager Barnard says:

"The Maine Automobile Association has at various times stressed the fact that if tourists who have entered Maine could be told of additional side trips their visits with us could be prolonged. If each tourist spent 24 hours longer with us the additional revenue collected would run into millions annually. Those agencies which have occasion to come in contact with the tourist should be conversant with the State as a tourist center. For the first time to definitely follow out our program of Maine education, we believe our State Highway Police can prove an important and invaluable aid in dispensing touring information through which visiting tourists and the State of Maine will receive mutual benefit.

"Through the cooperation of both organizations, touring schools will be held during the winter months and information imparted to members of the State Police. Material which can be carried by the patrolmen will be furnished by the Association for reference purposes. Maine's State Highway Police already has a reputation for courtesy and fair treatment to motorists. With a thorough knowledge of mileages, roads and points of interest they will become a vital force in dispensing accurate and impartial road and tourist information in Maine."

Granite Business At Stonington Not Much Improved, But There Are Hopes

Granite trade conditions around Stonington and Deer Isle are thus described by Alex. McGuffie, union secretary, in his letter to the current number of the Quarry Workers' Journal:

Business has not improved very much in this town since my last report. The Deer Island company has a small job cutting but the cutters have not started work yet, however, we hope they will be working soon.

There are quite a few quarries loading around town. The John L. Goss company put a few quarries to work about a week ago so that helped some but that is not enough. We want to see every man working who wants to work and we can't be satisfied with less.

We are still doing business here. Our hat is still in the ring and neither the owners nor the men are afraid of anything in the country that is competing against them on a fair basis.

As you all know this town is 100 percent union. They pay us union wages. True, we have had fights in the past with the John L. Goss company but that is past. It is a union job once more and a good one. If you are not a union man and not willing to become one you had better stay away.

We have to give the John L. Goss Company a great deal of credit because they signed up with our union. It was no half way job and they did not try to keep anyone from joining. In fact, the only way the men could hold their job was by joining the union. We have never had any trouble because they are on the level and have gone strictly by the bill. We are lucky to have such a company in the town. They pay their men a fair day's pay, and, don't forget, boys, they expect a fair day's work as they surely have a right to.

The Deer Island company is busy just now putting in the foundation for their new carborundum saw. It is one of the latest and will saw stone at any angle. This is a costly piece of machinery and it goes to show that this company is ready to take any kind of a job.

Old Man Depression has been with us for quite a few rounds now, but we have him hanging on to the ropes.

Maine Legionnaires Endorse Col. Anthoine of Portland For That Position

Col. Edward S. Anthoine, Portland attorney has been endorsed by the Maine Department of the American Legion as a candidate for National vice commander from the first district of the organization.

The endorsement was made at the annual convention of the State department at Calais last month but was not made public. A resolution introduced and passed in the closing minutes of the last session, instructed all delegates to vote for him at the National meeting in Detroit in September.

Col. Anthoine said he would withhold definite announcement of his candidacy until he conferred with leaders in other States. He is former National committeeman and State commander.

SNAKEHOUSE HAS HOME COMFORTS

Each Cage in Washington Zoo Will Have Its Own Temperature Control.

Washington.—An elaborate new reptile house, embodying "all the comforts of home" for snakes, has been formally opened at the National Zoological park.

There, in glass-fronted cages, the public can observe reptiles of the world under the most favorable conditions. In each cage the temperature, humidity and light of its occupants' natural habitat has been carefully simulated.

The building is of Spanish design, and its opening brought fulfillment to Dr. William Mann's dreams of many years. He has supervised personally every detail in its construction in his capacity as zoo director.

Thermostatic Control.

The temperature in each cage will be controlled by individual thermostats. Thus a rattlesnake will be provided with the mild warmth of summer in the North, a boa constrictor with the heat of the tropics, and lizards will have the 100-degree temperature of the sun-baked Arizona desert.

Not only will this safeguard the reptiles' health (snakes are as subject to pneumonia as men), but they will be much more interesting to watch. Most snakes in captivity are sluggish, because the temperature is too low. Heat makes them lively.

Diet Watched Carefully. Another health measure is the installation of special glass in many of the skylights over the cages, so the reptiles may have a daily quota of ultra-violet rays. Their diet is watched carefully, too, and in some of the second-story rooms of the building a "commissary department" has been arranged. Flies, baby chickens and guinea pigs will be raised there to suit the taste of the most fastidious snake.

The public's welfare has been as well taken care of as that of the reptiles. The ventilation systems of the cages and the rest of the building are distinctly separate.

In spite of the repugnance that most people have for reptiles, it is the universal experience at zoos that the reptile cages always gather crowds. The reptile house at the Paris zoo is one of the most popular places there, even though a small fee is charged.

Refugees From Russia

Finding Life Is Hard

Paris.—The misery and humiliation in which hundreds, perhaps thousands, of the Russian nobility and aristocracy exist in Paris is no better illustrated than by the case of Princess Obolinsky.

The wife of Czar Nicholas' last police chief, moving confidently and gayly in the glittering life of the imperial capital, accustomed to blinding luxuries and to luxury, is now ill and destitute in a cheap hotel in that stodgy, petty business street, Rue Amsterdam, just off St. Lazare station.

Frankly attempting to keep her identity secret to avoid the newspaper mention which would reveal her humble circumstances to the world, she was nevertheless hunted down by French reporters and her tragic story given to the curious eyes of the Paris public. Sick and destitute in a tiny, shabby room in a hotel of the humblest sort, whose proprietor's office has as its chief decoration a yellowing subway map, the princess struggles.

One tiny room whose dim, cheap light is controlled from the proprietor's office so that that worthy can cut it off if the lodger doesn't turn it out at ten, which is the hour modest Paris hotels require their guests to go to bed, is now home of the princess.

Duplicates of Princess Obolinsky's case may be found all over Paris. Scores of princes, generals, colonels, and captains drive taxis in Paris, and, ironically, are compelled to fight for position in the tangled Paris traffic with French taxi drivers, who are almost to a man Communists.

Geologists Prepare New Map of United States

Schenectady, N. Y.—Prof. Edward S. C. Smith, head of the geology department of Union college, will help prepare the new geological map of the United States, which will replace the present one, drawn in 1912. Professor Smith, who is considered an authority on the state of Maine, will aid in preparing that part of the map which deals with New England.

The undertaking is under the general direction of Dr. Arthur Keith, geologist of the United States geological survey and chairman of the division of geology and geography of the National Research council.

Work on the map is being pushed rapidly in order that it will be ready for the sixteenth session of the International Geological congress, which will take place in June, 1932, at Washington, D. C.

Mistaken Identity,
but He Goes to Jail

Camus, Wash.—It was all a case of mistaken identity. B. R. Bevard said, but he went to jail just the same. He lost a turkey. He saw one in B. F. Weakley's yard and took it.

UNFIT FISH CULLED

Canned Sardines In Maine Will Meet Requirements, Soule Says

By eliminating unfit fish through careful sorting, canned sardines which will meet the requirements of the U. S. Food and Drugs Act can be packed by Maine sardine canneries this season, representatives of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration and the Maine Department of Agriculture have decided.

The statement issued Tuesday by A. M. G. Soule, head of the Division of Inspection, Maine Department of Agriculture, as a result of a conference between the three groups, follows:

"In a recent conference between the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, the Division of Inspection, the State of Maine, Department of Agriculture, and the United Food and Drug Administration, the question of the suitability of the sea-herring for packing as sardines under the conditions existing at the present time was considered.

"It is the joint opinion of these organizations that with careful attention to the raw material brought to the canneries and with careful sorting and elimination of the unfit fish during the canning process, as was provided by the regulations of the Maine State Department of Agriculture last year, there can be produced from the raw material now available in certain sections canned sardines which will meet the requirements of the Federal Food and Drugs Act.

"The three organizations referred to above believe that the condition of the herring available for use as sardines in these sections at present is not different than that existing last season when packing operations were carried on."

A BUSY SENATOR

United States Senator Wallace H. White was in Bangor Wednesday.

Since the latter part of May, the Senator has been an active traveler, making trips to Alaska and Europe. Leaving Washington, May 27, he sailed for Copenhagen, Denmark, to attend the conference of radio technicians gathered from all sections of the world to discuss the technical phases of radio broadcasting. He is chairman of the American technical consulting committee, organized by the radio committee by authority of the International Radio Treaty of 1927, and presided at the meetings of the international conference. Returning to Washington the latter part of June, Senator White was invited to Alaska on business for the United States Commission of Fisheries. He remained there during July and the first of August.
