NEWSPAPER HISTORY

The Rockland Gazette was established in 1846. In 1874 the Courier was established and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Free Press was established in 1885 and in 1891 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 17, 1897.

friends if they cannot forgive
each other's little failings—

ONE YEAR AGO

From the files of The Courier-Gazette we learn that—

A big crowd saw the Labor Day outboard races at Chickawaukie
Lake, sponsored by the American Legion.

St. George won the championship of the Twilight League, with Waldoboro second.

Eugene Ryder, 88-year-old Civil War veteran, bowled a string of 115 at the Star alleys.

Brother Gilbert unfolded stories of major league baseball to a group of interested listeners at the Country Club.

George E. Allen, prominent Camden business man and ex-representative to Legislature, died at the age of 68.

A DIFFERENT CONTEST

Kents Will Pay $25 In Gold For Answers To Advertisements

A contest of an interestingly different type opens today under sponsorship of Kents. It consists of a series of 15 advertisements to appear in this newspaper with question mark signatures (two initials and a surname) which the contestant fills in and deposits in a box at Kents.

These ads will depict five distinct types of persons, yet the initials to all 15 ads will apply to each type and will require but a single answer.
The correct name is at present reposing in a sealed envelope at The Courier-Gazette office. The winner will receive $25 in gold.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness: and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matt. 6:33.

SOAK THE TAX PAYER

Besides the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment—which we regard as of first importance—the people of Maine have referred for their consideration next Monday four other matters which are to be decided by the ballots cast. The Saturday issue of this paper carried the official announcement of these several matters. Two of them relate to the always vexatious subject of taxation. One of them, we note, concerns itself with corporations supplying electrical power for manufactures and lighting. We hold no brief for any such corporation, nor are we owner of any of its stock; but we perceive from the official reports that many thousands of Maine citizens are numbered among the holders of these shares, upon which they receive for their invested savings dividends every year. These dividends have got to come out of the corporation's net earnings. Additional taxation laid upon the corporation will need to be met, either by increase in rates to the consumer—which touches nearly every home—or in reduction of these rates of dividend. In either case it is the people who pay.

We shall vote NO on both these propositions to increase taxes. We hope every voter reading this paper will do the same.

THEY VOTE NOV. SEVEN

Down in North Carolina, that progressive unit of the South, they call 'em The United Drys—united because there are Democrats and Republicans alike believers in the Eighteenth Amendment and are joining hands to keep the Old North State on the water wagon. Why the organization opposes repeal is set forth in this statement:

"When the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect, here is what happened:

"Death from alcoholism decreased 42 per cent, alcoholic insanity decreased 66 per cent, general crime from drink decreased 54 per cent, drunkenness decreased 70 per cent, automobile fatalities decreased 50 per cent and drinking decreased 77 per cent."

"Under the Canadian system of legalized liquor, the following happened:

"Deaths from alcoholism increased 100 per cent, drunken crime increased 89 per cent, drunkenness increased 53 per cent, drunken drivers increased 80 per cent, immoral crimes increased 76 per cent, and automobile fatalities increased 42 per cent."

"There's a real campaign on and Nov. 7 will undoubtedly see a huge vote recorded. Next Sunday is to witness a prohibition rally, in each of the State's 100 counties. It will be a busy day."

PAYING YOUR TAXES

It is a delicate subject, this matter of local taxation, but one impossible to avoid. There have been those of our citizens, understanding that the taxes became payable on August 8, from which date interest upon the unpaid would be chargeable, have been in some disquietude of soul. Not that avoidance of payment lay in anybody's mind, but general conditions rendered difficult the meeting at the time of the obligation which with a little more leeway one can more readily care for. We quote from the city charter adopted in 1923:

"He (the city treasurer) shall charge interest on all taxes which shall remain unpaid four months after the date of commitment, at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, to commence 60 days after the date of commitment."

The commitment of the 1933 taxes took place June 8. Not till four months later will interest begin to run, to wit on October 9, but the interest will be assessed beginning August 8. The city needs your money, but grants you the option of another two months before it begins to subject you to the detail of interest paying.

AN ELKS SCHOLARSHIP

Maine Lodges Entitled To Another This Year, To Value Of $300

Members of Rockland Lodge of Elks will be keenly interested in the announcement of John F. Malley of Boston, past grand exalted ruler that Maine lodges are entitled to another $300 scholarship this year.

Application blanks and information regarding application are being issued to all lodges and these should be immediately filled out and filed with the secretary of the lodge in that section of the State in which the applicant resides. One or more applications will be acted upon by each lodge and formal approval of one will be given by the lodge and forwarded to the secretary of the Maine Elks' Association. Officers of the association will act upon applications received and the most worthy one will receive approval of the association and be forwarded to Mr. Malley for approval by the Elks' National Foundation. Application for information may be obtained direct from William P. Toulouse, president of the association, care of Waterville Lodge of Elks, or Edward R. Twomey, Secretary, Box 976, Portland, Maine.

NOTICING

Have any of this paper's readers, gifted with the noticing faculty, noticed—

THAT the public dumping place has developed into a surprising extent of new-made land and that you wonder what's going to be done with it.

THAT the new purple three-cent postage stamp bearing the N.R.A. feature is certain to be a favorite with collectors.

THAT when the fire alarm lifts you in the air at midnight you wouldn't feel half so nervous if you could only find that list of the alarm boxes which you laid away handy and have forgotten where.

THAT these days don't need anything put into them for shortening—they're attending to that themselves.

THAT the piece of machinery resting on its labors on the western side of Middle street hill is not the DeWitt Clinton engine that drew the historical railroad train in 1831, though very much suggesting it.

THAT the potato diggers are busy and the dead and rusty tops are not a fair indication of the crop beneath.

THAT the man who established Lowe Oaks in Warren was not to be caught napping by that new road.

THAT you may not know why those highway post-boys are cut slantingly, but of course it's done to protect them from the weather.

THAT speaking of highway posts the new Waldoboro road probably has more of them than any similar stretch in Maine.

THAT when the ministers get back from their vacations the town folks are glad to see them and feel the general renewal of a community atmosphere that they would not willingly be without.

THAT when you've sent in your payment for the home newspaper there's a feeling of satisfaction floods the soul which you would not willingly have been a stranger to.

THAT not so many artists nowadays seem to direct their talents to the limning of Owl's Head, as in that earlier time when no home was felt to be properly equipped without at least one picture of that harbor promontory decorating its walls.

THAT the action of the Prince of Wales in adopting the derby hat is warmly approved by those of us who have one of these iron implements of head-wear hanging dustily on a peg in the back entry.

THAT the traffic dingus set in the pavement of Main street and Lime-rock marks the spot where once stood Rockland's famous town pump.

THAT the scarcity of tree growth on Crockett's Point is a melancholy reminder of the days when that was one of the prominent resident regions of the city, set off by lordly elms and the grace of flower gardens.

THAT when you read the sign "Brooklyn to Rockland Express" it showed the extensive ramifications of that modern method of trucking.

A PRETTY SPIDER Norman Lermond Sees Beauty in Black-Yellow Inhabitant Of 'The Fields

This strikingly pretty spider is very common in the fields at this time of year, spinning its web over the grass and laying in wait at the bottom of its tunnel for luckless flies that alight on its silken trap.

Spiders are extremely interesting creatures, each species having its own particular design of web. As fly destroyers they are very useful to man.

Like everything else they have their enemies. Along comes a female wasp, grabs Mr. or Mrs. Spider and flies away to its nest where it incases it in clay, having first laid an egg in the body of the spider. When this egg hatches the baby wasp, in form of a white grub, has plenty to eat—a veritable feast.

Norman W. Lermond.

DESTRUCTION'S CAR

[For The Courier-Gazette] Destruction's car is out today. Beat on our rockbound shores in vain. With on its front in bold display The shameless motto of "Repeal."

The infant and the grandiose gray. Child, youth, and age together fall; Blameless or guilty all must pay The price that's claimed by alcohol. Fathers and mothers! Will you stand And see your child, attending school, And know its placed, and by your hand, At mercy of some drunken fool?

Oh, thoughtless ones that vote for rum, You build but for your own despair, For punishment will surely come, And may be more than you can bear. Let the repeal waves of disgrace Beat on our rockbound shores in vain. Hold high the standards of our race And keep the faith for dear old Maine. Allen M. Conary. Tenant's Harbor, Me.

HOME AND SCHOOLS OR BOOZE?

Chairman Lawrence Asks the People Of Maine Which They Are Going To Vote For

(By Edward M. Lawrence)

The total revenue that the Federal Administration claims we shall receive from beer is—$375,000,000. This, divided by the population of the United States (125,000,000) would make the amount $3.00 per capita.

The population of Maine is approximately 780,000. This multiplied by three would be the amount of Maine's pro-rata share of the Federal tax—$2,340,000. Now since the average tax is one cent a bottle, it means that Maine would have to consume one hundred times 2,340,000 bottles or 234 million.

The average price paid the brewers, including government tax, is ten cents a bottle which equals $23,400,000. The deduction is clear. If Maine is to contribute her pro-rata share, and they claim we are dying of thirst, we shall send $23,400,000 out of Maine.

We learn that the State has received about $150,000 for revenue for licenses which will be practically consumed for administration of the booze law.

This is not the worst of the story by any means. The Maine liquor dealers are charging 20 cents a bottle which means a total of $46,800,000 that the people of Maine are expected to pay for a booze bill this year.

The total revenue received by the State of Maine last year from all forms of taxation was but $42,170,407 and the people are so groaning under the burden of taxation that we found on investigation in the one city where we had time to make the survey that 25 percent of the homes are advertised to be sold for taxes. We presume this applies to other cities of the State, to say nothing of the farm property.

Nor is this all. Everywhere we are hearing that the high cost of education must be reduced. School terms are being shortened, salaries are being cut, courses are being dropped and teachers are being thrown out of employment. The entire cost of public education last year only $13,619,317 as against the $46,800,000 that the administration proposes that the people shall spend for booze.

Since there seems to be no help from the present political leaders who are either misinformed or wholly selfish, is it not about time that the people of Maine arose to defend their homes against the brewers practically all of whom live outside the State?

The most serious phase of the situation is that the traffic in beer is now being carried on in places that had been doing a respectable business. Unless we are particular we shall find ourselves going to the grog-shop for our groceries. The rum crowd is having a merry laugh over the way they are breaking down the people's aversion to places where liquor is sold. For well they know beer is but the entering wedge for strong liquors.

We quote from the late Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr., one of the most conservative writers: "In 1830 thirteen distilleries in the State manufactured 1,000,000 gallons of rum (two gallons to each inhabitant). Besides this there were consumed 300,000 gallons imported and in addition a large amount of cider and other fermented liquors were used. In 1833 every grog shop liquor as freely it sold molasses. In 1832 with a population of only 450,000 there were 2000 places where rum was sold, one grog shop to every 225 of the population. Their sales amounted to $10,000,000 annually, or $20.00 to each inhabitant."

Let us stop in time and think where we are drifting. To quote the late Senator Frye: "The Maine law has not been a failure, in that it has made rum-selling a crime, so that only the lowest and most debased will now engage in it. In all of the country portions of the State where there was a tavern or a grocery at every four corners, and, within a circuit of two miles, unpainted houses, broken windows, neglected farms, poor school houses, broken hearts and homes, it has banished almost every such grogery and tavern and has established peace and plenty, happiness and prosperity."

Our one recourse is to vote and work for the candidates on the election of September 11 who will stand for the Eighteenth Amendment.

ELMER ALLEN'S CHAT

It Starts About Gulls But Gets Back To Baseball, of Course

Dear Boze, you know I promised you some more gull stories. The fishermen love the white gulls (nix). They are a big nuisance, and with the laughing gulls destroy more lobster fry each year than anything else. Our fish wardens Archie Smalley and Bernard Smalley have been shooting some of each breed of the gulls for the State and found plenty of evidence that they are the ones that are destroying the lobster fry, so we hear. One of our fishermen had a gull for a pet for a long time. He named him "Gulliver." He used to sit on the stern of his boat while he rowed down the harbor on a fishing trip. He got so familiar that he thought the stern seat was too far away from the fisherman so he lit on his shoulder. That was too social for the fisherman, and he tossed him back to the stern of the boat. A gull is very loyal to the one who feeds him.

The baseball season will soon be over. We all have seen some fine games, and I guess they have been well patronized. Our summer folks enjoy the games, as it gives them good entertainment. As our friend John A. Fuller says, it is a good advertisement for the town to have a good ball team. We are not State champions but we are pretty near to it. Word has come far and near that we have one of the best teams in the State. Ernest Rawley, manager, has been asked by the boys in the change. It is no cinch to manage a ball team. If you think it is, ask Ernest. We have some loyal citizens who have stood by the team too and have done a lot of work gratis—Alfred Hocking, Albert Slingsby, Harry Patterson, Frank Hunter, Whitney Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. MacKinnon all are loyal rooters for the team. We have one of the finest ball fields in the county. The best teams in the State have played here. Hope we can have the same boys next year. It means a lot of work, but Ernest is the man for the job.

The All-League team as sent in for Tuesday's Courier-Gazette doesn't suit me altogether. I would put Monaghan in place of Grafton. I would put Simmons in place of Goggin. I would put Ricker in place of Ogier. This combination looks better to me.

We are going to have that score board ready next year. One man says he will give $2 towards it and this is only the beginning, so if nothing happens a score board will be erected. I suppose down by the willows—this seems to be the most available spot, but can be settled later.

A Labor Day celebration means a lot of hard work to put it across, but Messrs. Rawley, Hocking, Slingsby and others, too numerous to mention, are right on the job and will see it through. Wish someone would move the old house back and fix it up for the boys. Who knows but someone will do it some day.

Elmer E. Allen. Tenant's Harbor, Aug. 31.

Tom Keene, Western Star, Coming Next Week—Current Attraction Is "Coquette"

Of all the announcements from Lakewood this season regarding plays and players none is more unusual or more provocative of interest than that Tom Keene, famous portrayer of western characters in motion pictures, is to be featured in person at next week. Keene, a former stage actor, is making his first legitimate stage appearance in six years at Lakewood during the week of Sept. 11 in "Good-bye Again," which was the comedy riot of the 1932-33 season in New York. Keene is known throughout Maine by the boys and girls as a dashing cowboy of the Old West, a hard riding, quick shooting, handsome chap who always arrives in the nick of time and knows just how to handle every situation.

The current offering of the Lakewood Players, "Coquette" is one of the strongest plays presented this season. It was selected as one of the ten best plays of its season and has served stock companies ever since—adv.

NO. TWO WEATHER

A brilliant morning of sunshine, the wind gently manifesting itself out of the northwest, the waters of harbor and bay gleaming in beauty—how great a change in the few hours separating it from Labor Day, that day of all the days in the year when the world had thought to be out of doors, but found itself driven to cover by the all-day steady downpour of rain. All games called off, all trips for pleasure cancelled, the streets deserted, flags withdrawn, everything banished that had to do with the out-of-doors. Thus recorded is Labor Day for 1933. But, says the optimist, better fortune next time, noting this morning temperature at 62 and rising and the radio prediction for tomorrow a little warmer, with perhaps showers.

The activity of outstanding importance in this is the Knox Hospital benefit dance at the Samoset Hotel tomorrow night, with the service clubs of Knox County sponsoring the affair, every effort is being put forth to realize an important sum for this very worthy cause. Predictions are first for a mild open winter, with but little snow. Indications are for an early fall, and there may be slight snow flurries by Thanksgiving.

the setting in of winter. From an engineering standpoint the project is most feasible. There are only 900 feet to span from Little Deer Isle to the mainland, and there are no such problems of piers that confronted the construction of the new bridge at Bucksport."

James I. Stinson, King Lion of the Stonington Lions Club, and a hard worker on the Lions bridge committee is certain that the proposed bridge will double the population of the island in five years, and bring increased prosperity to Stonington merchants and landholders.

"New summer residents," he said, "will be attracted by our beautiful shores, and the bridge will make possible the establishment of new industries which will bring a great increase in our all the year round population."

The Stonington Lions Club has adopted as its bridge theme song a ditty written especially by Walter Reynolds and sung to the tune of John Brown's Body Lies a Mouldering in the Grave. The song is entitled "We'll Build a Bridge" and the members have voted to sing it at every meeting until the bridge is a reality.

THAT ECZEMA ITCHES AND BURNS UNBEARABLY TRY RESINOL OINTMENT—I KNOW IT WILL RELIEVE IT

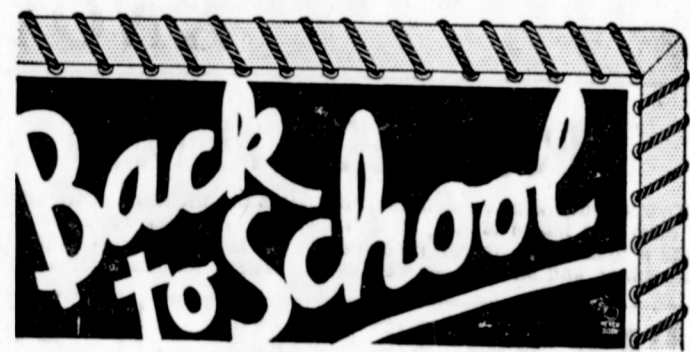

"Some time ago eczema broke out on my leg. After weeks of special treatment during which time the itching and burning was so severe I could hardly stand it. I was told nothing more could be done for me. A friend of mine urged me to try Resinol Ointment, which I did. I am happy to say it healed my leg completely and I have never had any breaking-out since."

I BUY ESSOLENE BECAUSE

I have to write a lot of my own advertising and so I read the big company stuff that comes in my home paper. I don't make claims for any of my merchandise that I can't live up to and I don't like anyone that does.

I read a lot about ESSOLENE with its Guarantee of smoother performance, solvent lubricant, anti-knock, and so forth and decided to find out if it was just good advertising or if the merchandise measured up to all the claims made for it.

It took me just about a week to make up my mind that while the advertising copy is really good the merchandise is way ahead of it and I'm ready to believe anything they claim for ESSOLENE.

Yours truly,

W. J. ????

FLYING NOW EVERYDAY BUSINESS

Maine Air Transport Co. Has Carried Thousands Of Passengers In Safety and Comfort

Ten years ago it would have been considered the height of absurdity to have predicted airplanes flying regular schedules between Rockland and the Penobscot Bay islands at a nominal fee. Airplane travel was considered a great luxury available only to the very wealthy, and the chances are that any except barnstorming trips by plane would still be in the luxury class were it not for our own Maine Air Transport Co.

This company has been engaged the few years past in the business of carrying passengers between Rockland and the islands with such success and entire dependability and safety that flying to the islands nowadays is a very prosaic matter, viewed as a great convenience and a pleasure rather than as a thrill. According to this modern method a person on Vinalhaven or North Haven headed for Rockland steps into a plane and in ten minutes steps ashore at the company's comfortable float at Tillson avenue. Under other modes of travel the time used for the journey across the bay may be an hour or more. This great saving of time is appreciated by all those using the planes.

The schedule of the planes is aimed to give maximum public convenience. The first plane from Rockland leaves at 8 o'clock, daylight time and a few minutes later is at the island. It lays over until 9 o'clock, leaving Vinalhaven and North Haven for the mainland.

The next sailing from Rockland is at noon, returning from Vinalhaven at 1 o'clock and the late afternoon plane from Rockland leaves at 5 o'clock returning at 5:15. The trips are arranged to give a convenient hour, going either way, to everybody. Fares for these trips are very reasonable. Sundays the planes leave Rockland at 9, 12 and 5. Special charter trips to any point may be arranged by phoning the Rockland office 547.

The trip across the bay is one of great beauty, the whole lovely panorama of ocean, sky and island making an incomparable picture. The big planes are enclosed and the seats most comfortable giving assurance of maximum comfort.

In addition to the rapid and convenient service rendered day in and day out by the Maine Air Transport planes no reader needs to think long to recall the many instances of emergency flights on errands of mercy made by the skillful pilots of the line. Frequently human life has been saved by these emergency flights, and in every instance hours of human suffering have been avoided by bringing the sick or injured person to the Knox Hospital where the services of skilled surgeons, competent nurses and modern hospital equipment are available. The chief aviator of the island run is Stanley Boynton, keen eyed, skillful flyer of peerless experience, holder of the national amateur junior transcontinental flight record.

Rich in tradition and charming old day folk lore is St. George, most historic of Knox County's towns. Every foot of its fertile fields or rugged shore is hallowed ground, scene of some happenstance of tragedy or humor in days long passed. The present day St. George, comprising a group of prosperous hamlets centered about historic Tenant's Harbor, though smaller by far in population than a half century ago is rich in natural resources leading to prosperity, paving on a large scale agriculture, fisheries and many beautiful summer estates.

With the Extension Agents — And The — Knox Lincoln Farm Bureau

Agricultural
Hodgkins Bros. of Jefferson are building an apple storage cellar. It will be 25x50x12, and will have capacity for nearly 10,000 bushels. A packing room will be constructed over the cellar. They are now pouring concrete and expect to have it constructed by apple picking time. They have a very good crop of apples this year, free of worms and scab.

At the executive board meeting of the Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau in Friendship in August a challenge was issued by four men district managers to the three women managers to a contest in the membership campaign, points to be given according to the State Farm Bureau Federation plan to the various communities on renewals and new members, the losing side to furnish a fish chowder to the winners Nov. 1. The final report of the membership campaign to be given at the Farm Bureau annual meeting Oct. 26 in Camden. The district managers are: Luther Carney, Sheepscott; Vellis Weaver, Waldoboro; E. C. Teague, Warren; Norris Waltz, Damariscotta; Mrs. N. B. Hopkins, Camden; Mrs. Sidney Evans, Wiscasset and Mrs. Jennie Payson, East Union. Last year the contest was won by the women. The membership campaign will start Sept. 18 with community committee meetings.

Blueberry growers in the county report good results where dusting was done to check the maggot.

The first poultryman to send in his application to have his flock of hens tested for pullorum disease was George Coleman, Jr., of Wiscasset. All applications must be in by Sept. 15 in order to obtain the low rate of testing.

Esther Robbins of South Hope is judging champion for 1933 in the Forget-Me-Not 4-H Club. The seven girls in the club this year held their judging contest on hemmed patches, with Mrs. Evelyn Vining as local leader.

Georges' Valley Hustlers 4-H Club of Appleton recently held a judging contest on hemmed patches. There were nine contestants, and Avis Gurney of Appleton is the judging champion. Seven of the contestants had correct placings.

Testing the Flocks

Testing Maine flocks of poultry for pullorum disease will start about Sept. 20. The price will be reduced this year to 7 cents per bird, provided application is made on or before Sept. 15, and that flock owners are ready to test when the tester is working in a given area. Unless the above conditions are met, special arrangements with the department must be made and the charge will be actual cost but in no case less than eight cents per bird. This is done, it is explained, to give those who operate fully the benefit of the lower cost, which they help make possible. Application blanks have been mailed by the county agent in each county to a large group of poultrymen. Anyone not having received such a form may obtain one by addressing their Farm Bureau Office or from the College of Agriculture at Orono.

Two hundred and eighteen flock owners in Maine had their flocks tested last year which included a total of 137,469 birds. Of this number, 180 flocks with 121,841 birds were accredited as free of pullorum disease. Of the total birds tested (137,469), only 757 were found to be infected, or .55 per cent. This is the smallest percentage of infection found in any state doing this testing work.

With the Homes

The wardrobe for the girl of high school age meeting was held in Camden Aug. 24 with a good attendance considering the rainy day.

Miss Helen Spaulding, clothing specialist, opened the meeting by saying that the purpose of the project is to set before mothers and daughters some fundamental principles of garment selection for service, health and appearance.

A moving picture was shown illustrating how a 4-H Club girl having been out in her sewing for her country, but owing to poor posture her leader saw that she would lose when competing with other countries. So the 4-H Club girl immediately set about improving her posture. The picture illustrated the different exercises that she went through. Finally the 4-H girl won out when the try-outs came for the State.

Evelyn Mills, University of Maine Home Economics graduate displayed a wardrobe that she had made for herself which could be adapted to a high school girl. Miss Mills' complete wardrobe came to $37.74. Her wardrobe robe showed careful planning, buying and a considerable amount of home sewing.

The style show illustrated garments that were suited to the different occasions that a high school girl would attend. The garments were loaned by Camden merchants: Haskell & Corthell, W. O. Hall, W. G. Achorn & Co.; and Mrs. Mary McDermot.

The models were Edith Nash, Velma Grey, Pearl Nash, Pearl Knight, Evelyn Stinson, Edna Young and Alma McDermot from Camden; the girls from Hope were: Eileen Payson, Rachel Noyes, Katherine True and Louise Eugley.

Miss Spaulding told how to make out a clothing budget for the high school girl and bulletins were distributed which will aid the girls and mothers in planning their wardrobes.

A similar meeting is being held in Damariscotta at the Lincoln Academy gymnasium next Wednesday at 7.30.

Miss Lawrence, home demonstration agent, is holding a series of Reconditioning the Wardrobe meetings this week: Sheepscott, today at Mrs. Charles Hendrickson's; Alna, Wednesday, at Grange hall; Whitefield, Thursday, at Grange hall; Bristol, Friday, at the vestry; Edgecomb, Saturday, at Mrs. Rena Dodge's. A clothing clinic will be held on all the dresses brought to the meetings and suggestions will be given for making them over. New fall style features will be illustrated. Patterns of new sleeves, yokes and other dress accessories will be available.

LAND BANK LOANS

Agent Can Lend Up To $5000 To Individual—Other Information

Carl E. Davis, secretary-treasurer of the Knox-Lincoln National Farm Loan Association, recently received from Charles A. Windholz, Agent of the Land Bank Commissioner at Springfield, Mass., whom he represents as a correspondent in this county, an explanation of the term, "normal" value as it is applied to the appraisal of farms. This will be particularly interesting to the farmers of this county because of the large number of applications for loans from the Land Bank Commissioner and because the normal value of a farm, as arrived at by an official appraiser, has a very important bearing upon the amount of money which may be loaned by the Commissioner or the Land Bank.

"The law specifies that the basis of appraisal in all cases is the normal value of the land for agricultural purposes and its earning power for such purposes is a principal factor," says Mr. Windholz. "There is a distinct difference between this basis and one which averages the sale prices of farms over a series of years with the claim that that average represents normal agricultural value. It may represent the average sale price for a certain period but it does not represent anything else. Where a farm must be appraised on its earning power, crop yields and prices, as well as cost of operation, including overhead charges such as taxes and depreciation, must be taken into consideration.

"Since a Land Bank loan or a Commissioner's loan is made for a long series of years, it is only natural that the normal agricultural value be considered in appraising the land for such loans because, as we have witnessed in the last few years, the selling price of farms may vary considerably even over so short a period as ten years. In the open market a farm may be worth more or it may be worth less than the normal agricultural value.

"The appraisers who place values on farm properties upon which their owners wish to secure loans from the Land Bank or Land Bank Commissioner estimate the production of the land then use the average of farm commodity prices between August 1909 and July 1914 to determine the return of the products. The value of some crops gets out of relation to other values at times. Farm machinery may cost more or less with relation to those prices and taxes are more now, and for some time to come will be more than they were during the period 1909-14. Such conditions, of course, have to be kept in mind in applying average prices to average yields and in estimating earning power of farms.

Of course, the price of farm commodities, when applied to average yields, is not the only factor that enters into the determination of the value of a farm. All farms are not crop farms; the livestock carrying capacity of a farm is to be considered and probable sales from livestock; the proportion of good crop land to pasture, the acreage in orchard, timber or waste. Then there are the questions of drainage, overflow and erosion; insect and plant pests and diseases; the supply of water, accessibility to markets, transportation facilities and the cost of hired help. There is also the location of the school and church and the general character and spirit of the community. All of these have varying degrees of influence upon the value of a farm and they may be different today than they were in the period 1909-14.

Mr. Windholz also points out that the Land Bank is permitted to loan up to 50 per cent of the appraised normal agricultural value of the land plus 20 per cent of the insured, permanent improvements. He says further: "Land Bank loans are always made on the security of a first farm mortgage but loans by the Land Bank Commissioner may be made on first or second liens on land and may include farm chattels. Wherever such loans can be made within the terms of the Farm Loan Act or the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act they will be completed as rapidly as possible. Where the Land Bank cannot make a loan it will be the endeavor of the Agent of the Land Bank Commissioner to supply the farmer's needs.

"The Agent can lend up to $5000 to an individual. The agent's loan when added to all prior indebtedness on the property must not exceed 75 per cent of its appraised value. In other words, after the farmer is refinanced by the Land Bank Commissioner, the farmer must have an equity in his property of at least 25 per cent. If he does not have that much equity his chances of success are probably rather remote.

"Many farmers, when they find they can get a Commissioner's loan for a certain amount, approach their creditors and get them to scale down their debts to a point where they can be refinanced. Many of the creditors of the farmers prefer to have cash for their claims even though their claims are reduced in amount rather than to 'carry' farmers longer. A survey made of Commissioner's loans some time ago indicated that at least one out of every five loans resulted in a scale-down of the farmer's indebtedness."

New Rainwear Coats Are Chic

New York-Paris Fashions

CAVALITE, the newest feather-weight rainwear fabric, fashions these two delightfully modish slickers and, with its silky soft feel, is the newest thing in rubberized fabrics. This material consists of a silk fabric impregnated with a rubber compound making it opaque. It looks like leather with a silken sheen. A coat weighs less than a pound, drapes well and does not crack or become tacky.

The coat shown at the right is of the same material in bright red, its style interest being accentuated through the darker red stubby umbrella with its composition crook handle. These new waterproof coats with their chic designs are a long way from the old fashioned "rain coat" which used merely to keep out the weather.

ANNUAL CHARITY CONCERT

The third annual charity concert of the Camden-Rockport Lions Club takes place Friday evening at 8:15 at Camden Opera House, the artists to be William Harms, pianist; Celia Gomborg and Ethel Stark, violinists; James Bloom, violinist; Maryanne Mayhew, harpist; Victor Gottlieb, cellist, and Esmeralda Mayes, accompanist.

Marjorie Mayhew, Harpist

companionist. With this array of brilliant artists under the direction of Carlos Salzedo, world famous harpist and head of the harp department at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, the concert promises to be one of the most distinguished musical events of a summer that has embraced many notable concerts.

Mr. Harms is a native of Kansas, and is acclaimed as Josef Hofmann's star pupil. He is a member of the piano faculty at the Curtis Institute, a tribute in itself to his art and Mr. Hofmann's confidence in the youth. He has attracted favorable attention from important musical critics, and is regarded as one of the most promising young pianists before the public today. He has appeared as soloist in Curtis concerts since becoming a Rockport summer resident in 1929, and has many personal friends and admirers in this vicinity.

Miss Stark was born in Canada, and began her studies of the harp with Alfred Kastner of that city. Later by reason of her great talent she was admitted to the Curtis Institute, continuing her studies with Lucille Lawrence and Mr. Salzedo. She is a musician of fine intelligence.

Mr. Gottlieb was born in Philadelphia of Russian parentage. While quite young his great love for music showed itself, particularly for the violin, and when he was only seven his father bought for his boy a small cello, and had lessons commenced. From the very first he displayed unusual talent, and when the family moved back to Philadelphia, the lad took the examination at the Curtis Institute, and has worked for five years under the eminent English cellist, Felix Salmond. Mr. Gottlieb is a member of the Casimir and Elise String Quartette, and has successfully concertized in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey.

Mrs. Mayes was born in Atlanta.

William Harms, Pianist

receiving her musical education at the Curtis Institute, from which she graduated as a pupil of Mme. Lea Luboshutz. Although very young Miss Stark has concertized extensively in the United States and Canada, and has had the privilege of appearing as soloist with symphony orchestras in Montreal, Toronto, and in Philadelphia.

Miss Gomborg is a Boston girl, and also a pupil of Mme. Luboshutz. She has been affiliated with various chamber music groups besides appearing as soloist in concert and over the radio. Miss Gomborg has traveled abroad with Mme. Luboshutz.

For the past 15 years she has been piano accompanist for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and staff artist of radio stations KSD and KMOX in St. Louis.

One price for the tickets—throughout the house—has been named—a small price, too. Those in Rockland who wish to attend may procure tickets by calling Mrs. Morgan, telephone 794.

The schools in town reopened today for the fall term with these teachers: West Side, Hoboken, Hortense Bohndell; East Side, and primary, first and second grades, Mrs. Wilma Rhodes; third and fourth grades, Mrs. Veda Brown; fifth and sixth, Miss Mildred Graffam; seventh, eighth and ninth, Raymond Perkins. High School, Sydney Snow, with Mrs. Kora Farmer and Miss Doris Ballard as assistants; West Rockport, Miss Edith Wall, Simonton, Miss Pearl Waldron.

Important and significant in the present day activities was the Religious Festival held at the Congregational Church Thursday under the auspices of the Knox County Association for Rural Religious Education.

Miss Margaret McKnight, religious director, was in charge, and it was due to her fine leadership and the unselfish work she has put into this phase of religious work that success marked the occasion in a notable manner.

Children numbering well up to 300 reported at the church, representing Clark Island, East Friendship and Hatchet Cove, George's River School, Hope Corner and Payson School, Lawry, North Warren, Benner Hill, Glen Cove, Old County road, Rockville, Simonton, Corner Spruce Head, Wheeler's Bay and Basic, South Thomaston Rural School, Stickney Corner, Stone School, Cushing, South Warren and Broad Cove, East Union, Head of the Lake, Shepherd Hill and South Hope, Pleasantville and Willardham. Best "bibs and tuckers" were in evidence and happier faces could not have been found the world over.

Many visitors inspected the handwork exhibit in the vestry under the charge of Mrs. Mae Perry. Here were displayed excellently arranged note books, scrap books, and striking posters made by the scholars, both individual and by groups. Notable among the posters were one entered by the Rockville school illustrating "The Parable of the Sower" and one by the Clark Island group "Feed My Birds."

After the children had marched to the auditorium, Mrs. E. F. Berry at the organ played in her usual ardent manner Handel's "Largo" and Schubert's "Melody in F." An inspiring call to worship service was conducted embracing Scripture, responsive reading and song. Prayer was offered by Rev. Walter S. Rounds. An offering was taken to care for the expenses of the day and also to help cover the expenses of the summer Bible school.

After Mrs. Clara Morgan had sung "Life's Perfect Promise" and Rev. Hubert F. Leach of Thomaston had extended greetings in a pleasing manner, demonstrations and pageants of the school work were presented by the children.

The work of the primary groups was particularly interesting as many of the children are still at a very tender age. The Spruce Head Bible School presented dramatization of "The Talents" and "Polly and Pan"; the Georges River School, hymn stories of Jesus with Scripture reading and pictures; the Clark Island Junior Boys and Girls gave a splendid dramatization of "Synagogue School," and the Hope Corner Sunday school gave a most interesting pageant entitled "God's Children All" in which the various races and nationalities under the banner of God were depicted. The pageants and dramatizations were prettily costumed so that the presentations were colorful and pleasing to the eye as well as to the ear. The work of the children was particularly interesting from the point that many of them had never been in that church, not even for a rehearsal, and many had never worshipped in a church. Despite this, there was a smoothness, an earnestness, a dignity in the work of every child that drove home the sincerity imbued through Miss McKnight's endeavor.

Benediction was pronounced by Rev. R. H. Moyle of Union, after which the youngsters marched down Main street and over Elm to the Universalist and Methodist Churches where appetizing suppers were served—an abundance of wholesome well cooked food, and especially of frosted cake. The Christian flag was carried at the head of the long procession by Albert Hill of North Warren.

Supper disposed of, the visitors returned to the church for the evening services. Beautiful and impressive was the rendition of the 24th Psalm, antiphonally spoken and sung, the East Union, Spruce Head, Stickney Corner, and Georges River Bible schools taking part. Following prayer by Rev. E. H. Timberlake of Friendship, the offering service, Chester Wylie of Warren sang the evening hymn "Jesus, Tender Shepherd, Hear Me," his appealing tenor voice greatly pleasing everyone present. The candle lighting service by the Hope Corner Sunday school was a vivid picture on behalf of temperance.

Concluded in the afternoon, the pageant "The Children's King," with its beautiful Hosanna song, was finely given by the East Union Bible school, Mrs. Perry at the piano in place of Miss Jeanette Bitler, who was unable to remain for the evening service. The Stickney Corner Bible school presented the pageant "They Who Weave," the direct simplicity of the lines and action clearly portraying the five mothers—the mother of Joseph, Mary of Nazareth, the Crucifying mother, the pioneer mother—all choosing the colors with which to weave the characters of their sons—all speaking to the modern mother of the high responsibility which is hers. "Out of the Bible" was the final pageant, this by the Clark Island school, the Old and New Testament characters stepping from between the covers of the large Bible at the call of Religious Education and Imagination, all centering at the close upon the striking representation of the Nativity.

Miss McKnight expressed gratitude to the host churches, to the Masonic body for its courtesies, to Mrs. E. D. Spear for the flowers which decorated the church, to the hostess committee, the supper committees and all others who aided in this pleasant task of giving the children supper; to the many men and women who provided transportation and accompanied the children; to The Courier-Gazette for generous space in its columns for advance notices; to Messrs. Maxcy, Philbrook and Seavey for their kind help in preparing the scene for the pageants. ## THREE HUNDRED CHILDREN

Religious Festival In This City Was Fine Demonstration Of Rural Education

Important and significant in the present day activities was the Religious Festival held at the Congregational Church Thursday under the auspices of the Knox County Association for Rural Religious Education.

Miss Margaret McKnight, religious director, was in charge, and it was due to her fine leadership and the unselfish work she has put into this phase of religious work that success marked the occasion in a notable manner.

Children numbering well up to 300 reported at the church, representing Clark Island, East Friendship and Hatchet Cove, George's River School, Hope Corner and Payson School, Lawry, North Warren, Benner Hill, Glen Cove, Old County road, Rockville, Simonton, Corner Spruce Head, Wheeler's Bay and Basic, South Thomaston Rural School, Stickney Corner, Stone School, Cushing, South Warren and Broad Cove, East Union, Head of the Lake, Shepherd Hill and South Hope, Pleasantville and Willardham. Best "bibs and tuckers" were in evidence and happier faces could not have been found the world over.

Many visitors inspected the handwork exhibit in the vestry under the charge of Mrs. Mae Perry. Here were displayed excellently arranged note books, scrap books, and striking posters made by the scholars, both individual and by groups. Notable among the posters were one entered by the Rockville school illustrating "The Parable of the Sower" and one by the Clark Island group "Feed My Birds."

After the children had marched to the auditorium, Mrs. E. F. Berry at the organ played in her usual ardent manner Handel's "Largo" and Schubert's "Melody in F." An inspiring call to worship service was conducted embracing Scripture, responsive reading and song. Prayer was offered by Rev. Walter S. Rounds. An offering was taken to care for the expenses of the day and also to help cover the expenses of the summer Bible school.

THE REALM OF MUSIC

Gladys St. Clair Morgan

Old programs are evidently catching popular interest, as some more have found their way to this column. Here is one dated Easter Sunday, 1901, of the Pratt Memorial Episcopal Church—an evening program presenting "The Resurrection." Charles Fonteyn Manney's cana which still appears in many churches on Easter Sunday. Mrs. Carrie Burpee Shaw was at the organ, and soloists were Miss Lotta F. Skinner, Dr. W. V. Hanson, Miss Florence A. Clarke, Mrs. A. A. Shepherd, Miss Lucy P. Ames and Mrs. H. N. McDougall. Others appearing in the chorus were Miss Beatrice Stevens, Miss Maggie E. Perry, Miss Ruth L. Curtis, Miss Hetty Arletta Smalley, Miss Elizabeth Plummer, Miss Lillian May Baker, Miss Ida Winslow, Miss Elsie Maud Sylvester, Miss Margaret G. Stahl, Mrs. L. N. Littlehale, Miss Vivian Billings, Miss Wilena Lohrop, Miss Edith Killman, Mr. Littlehale, Harry H. Hanson, Mr. McDougall, William J. McDougall, George K. Robinson, E. Roy Smith, Arthur L. Orce, Dr. R. W. Bickford and Charles B. Robinson.

Another Easter program of the same church is dated April 30, 1903. Dr. W. V. Hanson was organist at the time, and a quartet consisting of Miss Edith Sampson, Mrs. Willard C. Peeler, Lionel C. Wilson and George E. Torrey sang Dudley Buck's "O Come Let Us Sing Unto the Lord." In the evening Manney's "Resurrection" was again presented, the soloists being Miss Skinner, Mr. Torrey, Miss Hattie Carver, Mr. Wilson, Miss Sampson.

Boston is to have a conservatory which aspires to be the world's music center. It will be established to carry out "the sincere ideals and masterful methods of the Paris conservatoire." Joseph J. Malkin, cellist, is the director, and the advisory board consists of Harold Bauer, concert pianist; Ernest Bloch, composer; Ossip Gabrilowitch, conductor; and Frederick Stock, composer and conductor; Dr. Archibald T. Davidson of Harvard, and Arthur Fiedler, conductor. The aim of the new conservatory, quoting its sponsors, is to afford training that will develop great talent in the strictest tradition of the European shrines of music, while at the same time affording all that is most modern in teaching and courses of instruction.

From the University of Nebraska come these "howlers" gleaned from last minute efforts to get credits for the semester: From a paper on origins of national songs: "Mrs. Howe wrote the words of the Battle Hymn of the Republic after witnessing a squirmish near Washington."

And these from History of Music: "Porpora was a renowned teacher of singing." "In Wagner's works we often find traces of the pessimistic philosophy of Chopin and Auer."

"Schubert wrote many compositions. In fact, he is perhaps the most prolific of all composers." In an interview recently given by Josef Hofmann, the noted pianist and composer said: "If you ask my opinion on youth, I think women ought to be more concerned about it. We associate youth in the mind more with women than with men." He deplored the fact that a good many women indulged in excessive smoking. He said that the habit was not conducive either to health or to charm. A woman didn't look particularly pretty, in his opinion, rolling a cigarette between her fingers or exhaling rings of smoke.

"Nor do I admire some of our sophisticated beauties who go in for blanching cheeks," he said. "A ghostly looking face isn't beautiful at all. Nor does it make one look young. Such a face lacks animation, and animation is a sign of youth."

Mr. Hofmann himself isn't as careful of his own physical being as he knows he ought to be. He said that on several occasions he defied the advice of his physicians and rushed away to play at concerts when his temperature was running high. But because he had taken care of his body in youth, Providence protected him on such occasions and helps him to survive the ordeal. He cautions others, however, against risking their lives in that way.

Doris Doe, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, is offering substantial assistance for the training of young singers. Two scholarships are to be awarded the coming season, divided into two age classes—A, not over 20; and B, not over 25. The applicants must be girls, possessing qualifications embracing musicianship, personality and intelligence. Each scholarship will entitle the selected winner to training and supervised study to the extent of $500. Miss Doe will place the winners for training with Sibly Sammis McDermid, with whom she has studied for a lengthy period. Miss Doe may be reached by communications addressed to 113 West 57th street, New York. Auditions will be held shortly after Labor Day, and Miss Doe and a selection committee will make the awards.

It would have been wonderful for every one interested in preserving the folk music, balladry and musical tradition of this country, to have attended the White Top Folk Festival (Marion, Va.) on Aug. 12 and 13. It was participated in by upwards of 300 musicians and attended by leading figures in the world of music, letters, folklore and philanthropy. The event attracted a throng of 20,000 people who were willing to climb a height of over a mile for the sake of carrying on a tradition begun in 1931.

So large has the number of constantants become that the entire opening day was occupied in preliminary contests. Of ballad singers more than a score appeared, the youngest a lad of six, the oldest a mountaineer soon to be 78. Fiddlers, both left and right handed, banjo pickers, both "plectrum and thumb strummers," clog dancers, both men and women, again representing an age-range from six to almost a century, square dance groups, dressed in a galaxy of mountain colors and costumes, and dignified ensembles offering folk hymns in the sombre yet lovely modes of the centuries past—all gathered to enjoy their just heritage of Anglo-Saxon music to the utmost.

It is amusing to note the offerings of the various groups. Winners in the ballad singing received their awards by giving The Two Sisters, The House Carpenter, Come All Ye Fair and Tender Ladies. In fiddle playing first prize was won with Mississippi Sawyer and Arkansas Traveler (tie); second with Poor Man's Troubles. In the folk hymn singing Wondrous Love carried off first honors and an interpretation of Israelites won second.

A son was born Aug. 17 to Lawrence Tibbett, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and Mrs. Tibbett. The singer's managers, Evans and Salter, received this telegram: "Would like to engage you to manage a lusty seven and a half pound bellow baritone who made his debut this morning at three at the Dante Sanatorium. Father, mother and son doing splendidly."

Leonard Leibling, editor of Musical Courier, has this to offer in "Variations" of the issue of Aug. 26: "Landed at the pier, and seeing a huge NRA sign and many blue and brown eagle-eyed Customs officials. I interpreted the cabalistic slogan as Nervous Returning American. (Especially as I had a bottle of rare 1899 Otard cognac in my trunk.) Now I have regained my confidence but I have lost the cognac. 'What's this?' asked the uniformed Cerberus, as he wheeled humor, grinned, and said: 'Hair tonic.' Let's see if it will put hair on the side of the ship," remarked the tyrant a few minutes later, as he smashed the bottle against the steel plates of the Conte Savoia. He was the real humorist!"

Charles Hackett, the noted baritone, who is summing at Belfast (or the vicinity) was recently called to Worcester by the death of his father, Charles A. Hackett, who died at the age of 90. His home was in Little Neck, Long Island, N. Y.

Philip Hargrave, pianist, aged 10 years, is acclaimed the genius of Australia. He has given eight concerts in Melbourne to packed houses. People were turned away. Critics speak of it as an extraordinary musical event. As a pupil of Henriette Garnaut, Philip began his studies at five years, winning scholarships at eight years. His performance throughout his concerts astonished the audience. His technical skill and maturity of interpretation are remarkable, his poise and platform manner are said to be most impressive. And just ponder on what this 10-year-old plays on his programs:

Bach's preludes and fugues, C minor, C sharp major, Italian Concerto; Presto; Beethoven's Andante Favori, Schubert's Impromptu in B flat; Moments Musicaux, F minor; Liszt's Liebestraum; Paganini-Liszt etude, E flat; Haydn's Sonata in E flat and sonata, C sharp minor.

Tenants Harbor Days

"Years following years steal something every day, says Horace, and the past fifty years have stolen nearly all the sailing vessels from the Atlantic coast."

"May 29, 1883—Schrs. Golden Rule, Pushaw and Susan Ross sailed for Bangor about noon with as much wind as they wanted."

June 6—Thick fog tonight, came in about 6 p. m. as thick as mud.

Then follows nearly a week of entries. Thick fog all day—foggy yet—more fog—all fog of late, thick as mud this morning.

June 14—Pleasant this morning, wind N. W. for a rarity, fresh breeze.

Every harbor from Bangor down to Seal Harbor, in back of White Head, had its quota of fog bound lumber laden schooners bound to the westward, and here was their chance to get along as far as the nor'wester would carry them towards Boston, New York, Philadelphia.

In bygone years I have stood in front of R. Long & Son's store after just such a spell and seen schooners come out by White Head as fast as you could count them. I cannot prove that statement by Elmer, but I can by Deacon Kallach. Going up river on Stmr. Belfast last month we passed a two-masted schooner of 75 tons loaded with pulp wood for Brewer, all lower sails set, yawl boat with engine running under her stern, making good weather of it on the flood. Upon our return she was anchored, as it was ebb tide. And that was the only sailing vessel we saw from Boston to Boston.

This entry reads like a fairy tale. June 22, 1883—Received a postal from W. H. Crocker at Bucksport tonight; he is in a tugboat from Boston. Went to Bucksport after a bark to tow her to Boston.

The new Bucksport bridge would be crowded to see a sight like that beneath it on the Penobscot River. A bark at Bucksport!

Those were days to be remembered. When our good ship sailed away, from the old home port behind us, to Calcutta or Bombay.

When we heard nations rum and opium in rolls. And the missionaries went along to save their sinful souls.

Boze.

Smith (at Franklin Park)—Rotten game I'm playing this season. How is yours?

Smart—Exactly right. If it were any better I'd give up business, and if it were any worse I'd give up golf.

WIDOWS ISLAND

Query About It Calls Forth Recollections of An Old-Time Visit There

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—"A Constant Reader" inquired about Widow's Island, and doubtless will receive many answers.

The first time I ever saw this island I was on my way to Ellsworth, accompanying a delegation of Grand Army delegates from Rockland on their way to Ellsworth to witness the dedication of the soldiers' monument in that city. No, I was not a member of the G.A.R. I was really too young. I have seen that monument twice since. I have made some inquiries in Ellsworth to try to find out the date of the dedication, but failed. I was young, mother says nine. But I think probably older.

On the first occasion I carried and played on (or at) a snare drum.

On the other two occasions I also had a snare drum, as I was with the Paragon Button Corporation Band of Waldoboro playing at the New Ellsworth Fair grounds.

The first time these two occasions at the dedication of the grounds, a four day engagement.

But this is not Widow's Island. This small island lies near the outer end of Fox Island Thoroughfare.

At the time I first saw it, it was owned by Uncle Sam, and perhaps now is. Later the State of Maine had control and there were newspaper reports at the time that it was to be used as a summer home for mildly insane patients.

But my most vivid recollection of Widow's Island dates to the November gale of 1893. The afternoon after Thanksgiving Day, with the sea fairly smooth, the keeper of the island met me at North Haven and at dusk landed me on the island.

At that time I was employed as a slate roofer by Horace S. Hobbs of Rockland. I went alone to Widow's Island to make repairs on the tower of the massive slate roofed, brick building erected for use as a naval hospital, at this time under care of Frank Cooper, who with an old lady, a Mrs. Dyer, I believe, were the sole occupants.

I did three days' work and read the larger part of Mark Twain's, "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," tried hard to keep from freezing to death nights. Two or three rooms were kept heated, but the one I occupied was not. The bed was damp and there were sheets in place of blankets on my bed. And did the wind blow? The building rocked all night, and the water certainly was white and a trifle hubbly for several days.

I was on this island twelve days to get in three days work on that old tower. Tried to gun around the shore a little thinking I might get a shot at a duck close in. Shot one sea gull, which I swore then would be my last, as I only broke a wing and he drifted off, probably to die. I don't believe that before or since the wind ever blew harder than it did the second night I was there.

The marine records of shipwreck and disaster go to back up this claim. That was my little experience on Widow's Island. A. Jay See. Union, Aug. 22.

Proud Father: "Every time the baby looks up into my face he smiles."

Mother: "Well, it may not be so polite, but it shows he has a sense of humor."

Rural Highways to Benefit From Public Roads Bureau Research

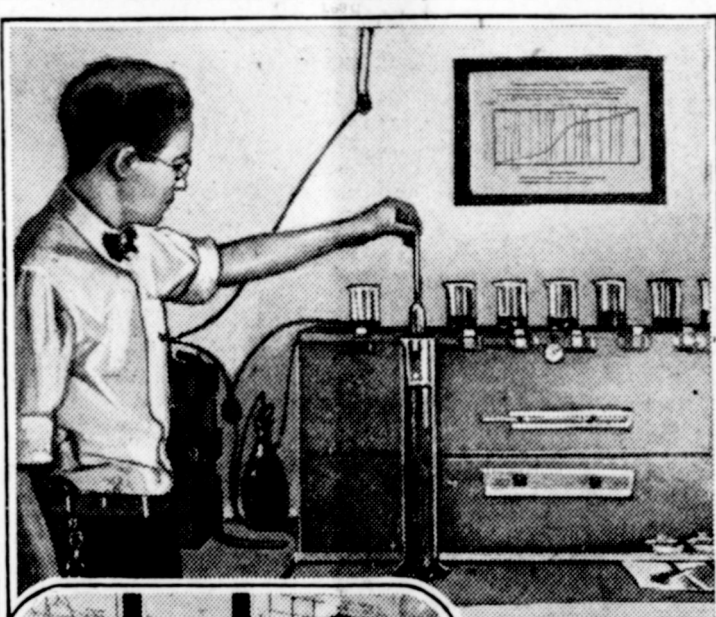

THE long-held aim of "getting the farmer out of the mud" promises to be brought materially closer to realization through the application of a very considerable part of the $400,000,000 federal road fund to the secondary highway system. The United States Bureau of Public Roads will have heavy responsibilities in the expenditure of the fund, and it is fortunate that research conducted by the Bureau provides the basis for the construction and improvement of low-cost roads that will both get and keep the farmer out of the mud without imposing an unjustifiable tax burden for maintenance.

The Bureau's research, conducted in its test laboratory at Arlington, Virginia, across the Potomac from Washington, has covered characteristics of the ground beneath the surface which are important to the design, construction and maintenance of highways. It has also covered the problems of highway surfaces, with a view to the use of chemical and physical admixtures to provide low-cost roads with surfaces that will stand up under traffic and can be maintained at low cost.

Low-Cost Highway Surfaces. The surface condition of clay, sand-clay and gravel roads depends largely upon the degree of cohesion possessed by the clay or other material that acts as the binder or "glue." This in turn largely depends upon the presence of sufficient moisture, for it is the moisture films between the particles and not the particles themselves that provide the "glue." The value of chemical admixtures in maintaining cohesion has been shown by the use of calcium chloride, a white, flaky substance which slows down evaporation and prevents the drying out of the moisture without which the surface tends to disintegrate.

Spread upon the surface, the first rainfall carries it down to the sub-surface soil. With the reappearance of the sun, evaporation of the surface moisture begins but is replaced by the rising of the calcium chloride solution. Evaporation continues only up to the point at which due to the calcium chloride the solution will no longer evaporate. At the next rainfall the same process takes place with the result that cohesion is steadily maintained.

Sub-Surface Soils Study. The foundation of a road is as important as the foundation of a building. In the case of roads of all kinds this foundation is provided by the sub-surface soils. The Bureau of Public Roads' program of sub-surface research has included all of those soil constituents which are of importance in determining the reactions of widely different soils under varying conditions of load, moisture and temperature. This has involved tests of soil samples from all parts of the United States. One of the fundamental tests is an analysis to discover the proportions of sand, silt, clay, and other substances which the soil contains. This involves a lengthy laboratory procedure, including hydrometer readings of a soil sample dispersed in distilled water. The readings are taken over a period of 24 hours. At the conclusion of the analysis it is possible to determine, by employing complex mathematical formulae, not only the proportions of all the different soil substances, but the actual size of their particles.

The "Liquid Limit" Test. The "liquid limit" test determines the maximum amount of moisture which the soil can hold

"I WOULDN'T DRIVE A CAR WITHOUT Hydraulic Brakes!"

AN INTERVIEW WITH CAPT. FRANK DOUGHTY, 91 VESPER ST., PORTLAND, ME.

Look at the Brakes when you "look at All Three"

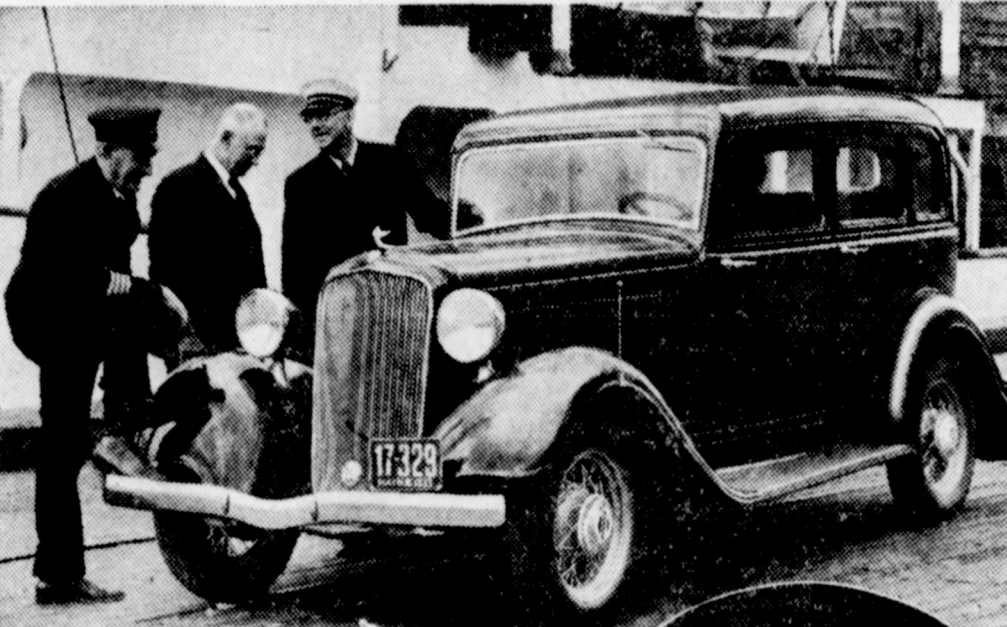

FOR 17 years, Capt. Doughty has sailed out of Portland harbor. Nowadays, you'll see him sailing around Portland streets in the Plymouth sedan that's pictured at the right.

Why a Plymouth? "Out at sea, a man has to maneuver out of trouble," says the Captain. "On land... you have to be able to stop in your tracks!"

So hydraulic brakes win another friend. Because they "stop you on a dime." They are self-equalizing.

No other low-priced car offers you hydraulic brakes. No other low-priced car offers you the combination of Floating Power engine mountings, safety-steel bodies, rigid-X frame.

In short... no other low-priced car offers you the balance of comfort, safety, style and performance, and you have only to "look at all three" to find this out. Do that... before you buy.

"I know something about mechanics. And I'm proud to show my new Plymouth... because it's not only trim-looking but sturdy and dependable."

QUODDY PROJECT

Earlier Obstacles Seem To Be Removed — Goes To Washington Now

A great deal of interest is rife through the State in the renewal of activities with the Cooper Dam as a Federal reconstruction possibility. A correspondent writes:

"If this dam is built, Maine would leap from part-time activity to a peak of unprecedented prosperity, and would never go back. As a present issue it would relieve practically the entire unemployment of the State at a blow. In addition to department men, it would employ upwards of 8,000 men for two years, men recruited direct from the unemployed without regard to previous working experience."

"The project is not a new venture conceived as a possible solution for present conditions. It stands all ready to build—its feasibility and engineering approved by the close investigation of several years. Briefly, the facts, past and present are these: It was considered originally as an international proposition between Maine and New Brunswick. All its preliminary work, engineering, drafting plans, etc., covering a period of several years was financed by some of the leading power interests in the country at an expense of half a million dollars. The backing of these power companies alone ought to vouch for the soundness of the project. The preliminaries were completed and placed before the Federal Power Commission. The plans were approved clean by the War Department. About that time Canada withheld renewal of charter pending investigation of possible injuries to local fishing interests. The plans of the dam were immediately changed to involve American waters only, and resubmitted to the Federal Power Commission. Since then economic conditions have, of course, held up further progress."

"At present the dam seems to be confronted by none of the earlier obstacles. There are no international complications, no fishing interest complications, the political set-up seems to be strongly for it. Latest report states that information has been received at the Cooper headquarters to the effect that the Federal Power Commission considers the large amount of engineering and other information already in their possession to be substantially complete, and consequently it would not be necessary to send investigating engineers to Maine as planned. Also, that the Commission would be glad to cooperate with the project in every way. From now on the approval of the Maine Advisory Council will take it before the New England Advisory Council, whence it goes on to Washington."

Without losing stability to a harmful degree, this liquid limit varies greatly with different soils and is of great importance in determining the extent to which capillary and other moisture will lessen their stability. While all soils require a certain amount of moisture for cohesion, too much moisture will have the same effect upon them as will too much moisture upon a handful of damp sand.

A compression test, in which a sample of the soil is subjected to loads comparable to those a heavily loaded truck would impose, determines the resistance to pressure from above; the resistance to lateral flow, or spreading out, under pressure; and the expansion or tendency to take up water after being compressed.

The knowledge which these and other tests make available, enables the highway engineer to know in advance how the soils which he must work with will react under varying conditions of moisture, pressure and climatic changes. If the soils are deficient in certain qualities, they indicate what materials should be added, and in what proportions. They tend to give the highway engineer the same degree of "exact knowledge" about his soils, as the structural engineer possesses concerning steel and stone.

INCREASED REVENUES

Maine Central Makes a Better Showing But Freight Does It

A net income of $65,094 was earned by the Maine Central Railroad in July, as compared with a deficit of $108,465 in July, 1932, a similar comparison for the first seven months of 1933 shows the road with a deficit of $42,642 as compared with a deficit of $305,392 in the comparable period of last year.

Reflecting the methods of management which have steadily improved the condition of the road each month this year, the figures show that with an increase of only $87,718 (or 10.4%) in revenue, as compared with 1932, the amount saved for net railway operating income increased $166,047 (or 293.1%).

For the first time this year freight revenue showed an increase over the comparable month of last year, the Maine Central having a total freight revenue in July of $740,370 an increase of $120,468 (or 19.4%) over July, 1932. Passenger revenue, however, continued to decline, being $26,053 (or 21.3%) less than in July last year.
