Invisible Forces

"Eye hath not seen."—I Corinthians 2:9.

"While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

There are very many things in our daily life which we can never see, but which are more real than those which we do. These unseen things are the real, the eternal things.

We cannot see the air, yet it encompasses us and without it we could not live. Ether is invisible but in it sit the billions of celestial worlds. We cannot see the pull of gravitational force, but by it is upheld the precision of the universe.

We cannot see time, only our crude measures of it, yet we all caught in its relentless march. We cannot see the wind, but it "bloweth where it listeth and we cannot see whence it came nor whither it goeth."

We cannot see God, only his manifestations. We cannot see faith but we are sustained by it and it is one of the abiding realities of life.

We cannot see the soul, yet it is not the body is eternal. When all the things upon which we daily look have crumbled to decay, these unseen things will still remain, eternal.

Love is the greatest invisible, vital force. It permeates the universe, survives death and leads from earth to heaven. Unseen it is as eternal as God, for God is love. William A. Holman.

NORTH HAVEN FOLKS

H. M. Crockett Gives Numerous Reasons Why He Is Proud of Them

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

In this age of our high cost of schools and our million-dollar schoolhouses, it has caused me to reflect upon the weatherbeaten one-room schoolhouse which the boys and girls attended some 30 years ago, and which now sets in Charles Waterman's pasture opposite the Crabtree house at the head of Southern Harbor, North Haven.

We were taught the three "Rs" by our beloved teacher, the late Fremont Beverage. I will mention a few of the boys I recall who attended that school, with very few advantages, and who as middle-aged men are now giving a good account of themselves, in hopes that it may inspire the boys of the modern schools in the towns and cities of Knox County to do as well and better.

I am pleased to head the list with the mayor-elect of your city—my schoolmate and friend Laforest A. Thurston; Leon C. Staples, superintendent of schools in Connecticut; Vernon Beverage, superintendent of schools in New Hampshire; James A. Lewis, Representative to the Maine Legislature and now professor in Tabor Academy, Marion, Mass.; George Thomas, pastor in Helena, Montana; H. Alton Lewis, industrial engineer of the Dyes, Inc., New York city; Harold Beverage, assistant manager of the Great Northern Paper Co., Millinocket; Bryant Hopkins, engineer of the Central Maine Power Co., Waterville.

May I also mention some of the boys who decided to make their life work at home, and who now as middle-aged men are doing their part in the civic life of North Haven: Clarence E. Waterman, president of the C. E. Waterman Co., grocers; Lester P. Stone, treasurer of the same company; Foy Brown, county commissioner and head of the boat-building concern of J. O. Brown & Sons; W. L. Ames, postmaster; C. G. Waterman, truck gardener; Lamar K. Lewis, selectman and head of the milk farm of the estate of G. F. Lewis; H. W. Crockett, proprietor of Havens Inn; Leon B. Stone, first selectman and steamboat agent; Parker Stone, plumber; J. B. Crockett, farm and dairy products.

While Waiting For Seth Parker Broadcast. — Mrs. Fales' Kind Words Appreciated

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

While the guests of the Hotel Ritz were waiting for the 10 o'clock broadcast of the sailing of the schooner Seth Parker from Portland, your subscriber was much pleased to be able to give them the copy of The Courier-Gazette in which were printed the pictures of the schooner and Phillips Lord. It gave them a fine idea of the size and shape of the schooner and was especially interesting to some who had never seen a craft like it under full sail.

The article by the Roving Reporter, telling of his trip around Ellsworth was also enjoyed by them. The reading of your paper, bringing to me news of my friends in and around your city is as much enjoyed while in the sunny South, as it is when at home, and I try never to miss a copy. Helen E. ## A Glaze for the Christmas Turkey

By Jane Rogers

HAVE you ever tried glazing the Christmas turkey? If you haven't, don't fail to do so this year. The glaze preserves the juices, adds to the succulent crispness of the skin, and gives our noble Yuletide bird an appearance that will bring exclamations of admiration from family and guests even before the first delicious morsel is tasted.

Here is the recipe for the glazing syrup:

1 cup sugar 2 tbsp. lemon juice
1/2 cup water 1 tsp. beef extract
Mix the ingredients and boil together until the sugar is completely dissolved. Brush the fowl with the syrup before putting it in the oven. Repeat from time to time during roasting, taking care that none of the syrup drips into the pan. A small paint brush will be useful for glazing, and can be kept specially for this purpose.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

SINCE this is the season when people buy the largest quantity of fresh fruits and vegetables, it is fortunate that the market is so well supplied. Among the fruits apples, bananas, cranberries, grapes, grapefruit, oranges, pears and tangerines are all plentiful and reasonable. The vegetable selection is even greater with green peas and beans, spinach, Brussels sprouts, broccoli, cabbage, new carrots, beets, onions, rutabagas, white and sweet potatoes all plentiful and reasonable in price. Mushrooms, celery and lettuce are all of good quality and inexpensive.

Tomatoes are scarce and high so that it is a good time to serve tomato aspic, jellied vegetable or fruit salad in their place. Lemon, lime or orange prepared gelatin makes a good base for such salads.

Diana Tells Home Folks of Life in Louisiana—Meets Dorothy Dix

New Orleans, Nov. 28.

Dear Folks at Home:— Perhaps Maine is quiet under the cold, winter weather, but New Orleans is just waking up to a thousand interesting things.

The hearing before the Senate sub-committee is still on here, trying Senator Overton's right to sit in the Senate. This is vastly educational and entertaining. We don't quite know now who is on trial, Senator Overton or the Kingfish, or Investigator Holland. Senator Logan has gone back to Kentucky. We said "Requiescat in Pace" and turned to Senator Connally of Texas. Senator Connally came to scoff, but remained to pray.

The chairman of our women's committee, Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, went to Washington and asked that the senate committee, individually and collectively, resign, as it had done nothing to date and seemed planning only a whitewash.

The Senators picked up their ears at this criticism from Louisiana and settled down to business.

Yesterday one witness described how he found loose ballots two blocks away from a polling booth, "Right on the banquet," he exclaimed.

"The banquet?" Senator Connally repeated, looking puzzled.

"Pos-i-tive-ly," said the witness emphatically, "On the banquet." Everyone laughed and someone near the Senator hastened to inform him that a "banquet" is a side-walk in New Orleans.

The opposition takes this attitude. After a plenty of fraudulent acts have been attested to, Senator Overton arises and says in a conciliatory manner, "And that is all? You saw a ballot box stuffed? And a few ballots flying about loose? And the Broussard commissioner was put in jail? And there were a hundred more votes than voters? Well, is there anything you want to tell? Dismiss this man."

The graciousness of it makes you think, "why, surely that was nothing. What is fraud, anyhow?"

Last night we went to a lovely concert, a band of Russian singers. We have just read, "A World Can End," and in it was described the beauty of church music in Russia.

This more than came up to our expectations. We were quite carried away with the singing and harmony and organ effect that their voices produced, although there was no instrument accompanying.

The dapper little conductor darted in and out like a mosquito. "Here comes Rumpelstiltskin," I exclaimed clapping heartily. "I always knew that was a Russian name." Everett shouted with amusement. A laugh from him in these worried times is worth a good deal.

I went to a beautiful tea this afternoon which Mrs. Aiken gave in my honor. I asked her why she was giving it and she said, "So people may know how interesting Maine women are." I was quite amused, but accepted it as a compliment to my home State.

Among the guests was Dorothy Dix. Imagine how honored I felt! Do you remember when we were children they used to tell us that there was no such person, just a man answering those letters? Well, there is a real, honest-to-goodness Dorothy Dix—a gracious lady of advanced age, who tells with a twinkle in her eye, of her overwhelming correspondence, and the proposals she gets each year.

One man, on a ranch in the West, wrote that if she would marry him she could provide the money and he would furnish the brains. How we laughed!

Someone told me she has just signed her contract for next year for $75,000. I wondered how one must feel burdened (?) with that salary.

Our hostess repeated this original poem which she had composed last month in honor of Dorothy Dix's return from her summer travels in South America:

"The autumn skies more brightly glow, And richer tints the gardens show. Some spell is on them, well we know, For Dorothy's come home."

Full many a foreign land and race Will yearn to know again the grace, The blessings of her shining face. Since Dorothy's come home.

But here with lightsome hearts and gay, We gladly hail this happy day. And one and all we fondly pray, Dear Dorothy, don't roam, stay home."

Another woman just returned from China, read us a paper on her domestic trials in that foreign land. We laughed immoderately at her account. In it she said:

"A year ago we began housekeeping with a force of four servants—a number which we considered adequate for a family of three. This comprised the No. 1, who had been my husband's personal servant, the cook, the cook's wife, and the rickshaw coolie. Before many weeks the

DEER ISLE HISTORY

An Appleton Writer Quotes Some Interesting Paragraphs From Williamson

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

About Deer Isle 101 years ago, as recorded in Williamson's History of Maine:

Great and Little Deer Isle and the Isle of Holt constitute the town of Deer Isle which contains 14,320 acres of land and 225 dwelling houses, and probably includes other little islands lying between the others. Great Deer Isle is about 10 miles in length and five miles in width.

Dudley and Frederick Islands were granted by Massachusetts to Col. Allen, and his son's widow and family still live there (1832), the only inhabitants.

Burnt Coat was purchased by a Mr. Swan. Finding the soil to be excellent he built an elegant house (160 years ago), bought cattle and began farming on a large scale. Discouraged however after five or six years he left the island. The house decayed and has since been taken down.

There are now on the island about 30 flourishing families (1832). The island contains 1000 acres. (Is this what is now Burnt Island?)

The old fort on the east side of Georges River about 16 miles above its mouth, was long a place of refuge and defence. Gen. Knox's house is (1832) near its ruins. This fort was built about 1720. A footnote gives the date of the famous attack on the fort as 1722.

Boon Island, Dec. 11, 1710 the Nottingham Galley of 120 tons, with 10 guns and 14 men under John Deane master, bound to Boston from London was driven by a tremendous gale—rain, hail, snow, upon Boon Island. Nearly all perished. In 1811 a light-house was built there of stone, which cost the U. S. $2500. The keeper was paid $150 annually. An abundance of sea fowl furnished him with food and feathers.

Appleton, Dec. 4.

cook's wife gave birth to a daughter, then appeared No. 1's 14-year-old son. That was six.

"The cook's wife did not care for work and resigned. I gladly accepted her resignation but issued the ultimatum that as she was no longer my servant she must lodge elsewhere. The cook agreed to procure a room across the street. The room across the street" remained a pleasant and face-saving fiction between us.

"No. 1 then brought his wife from Shanghai and a small son whose existence had been soft peddled before. That was eight. Then the cook's brother arrived from the famine-stricken area. That was nine! Depopulation had to begin!

"We had often been warned that discharging a cook is a delicate operation and one that must be performed in such a manner that the face of everyone concerned shall be saved. We did not wish the cook to take weird revenge, such as committing suicide on our doorstep.

"We went into secret session. The cook was called into conference. Compliments were exchanged. He was circuitously apprized that we required less service. Did he not think it would be agreeable for him to leave for Shanghai next day, taking as a gratuity a month's pay, a present for the baby and an excellent letter of recommendation? Of course, we should pay the railroad fare of himself and family.

"Next day he brought the baby for a touching farewell, but he did not leave that day, nor the next. There remained too many face-saving transactions, involving money borrowed and lent. After a long and violent quarrel with No. 1, the cook, his wife and baby and brother boarded the train for Shanghai. I breathed a sigh of relief at this decrease in servants.

"Next morning a smiling, white-gowned stranger was ushered into my presence by No. 1.

"New cook, Missy. He have come." Mrs. Gilman (Dorothy Dix) told us amusing stories of her colored chauffeur. He asked her one night for some perfume as he was going to see his girl. She handed out her best cologne which he gravely sprinkled on his coat lapel. A few minutes later he came running back, "Please, ma'am, can I have some for the other lapel. She might shift her hair."

Jo Jo breezed in from school yesterday looking so radiant that I thought she must have gotten a hundred in spelling or something. "On, mother," she called, "Our teacher was sick today. Goody-goody, gum-drop! No lessons!"

Our weather is still as warm and summer-like as those beautiful carnival days last August. My, what a good time that carnival was!

Holiday Nuggets

Two and one-half cups sifted flour, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, three-fourths cup butter or other shortening, two eggs, well beaten, three-fourths cup sugar, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, one and one-half cups currants (one-half pound), one and one-half cups walnut meats, coarsely cut.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and cinnamon, and sift together three times. Cut butter into flour; add eggs, sugar and lemon rind. Combine thoroughly. Add currants and nuts, mixing well. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes four dozen nuggets.

4-H Club News

For the year 1933 many of the Junior 4-H Club boys and girls ranging in ages from 10 to 15 have done fine work in their various projects. A few of these club members and their work have been listed below:

Bessie York of Damariscotta Mills, age 13, canned 178 pints of fruits and vegetables, six pints of jams and jelly and ten pints of pickles. The total cost of these canned goods was estimated by Bessie to be $22.55, and the value was given as $40.05. She received one dozen Pint Ball Brothers jars at the county contest for being the highest ranking junior in the canning project.

Leona Perry of Jefferson was the only girl in club work in Knox-Lincoln County taking the pig project. Leona is 13 and has taken good care of her pig during the year. She also was enrolled in the cooking and housekeeping project.

Barbara Pinkham of South Bristol, age 11, has made 12 articles and spent 5 1/2 hours on mending her clothes. For junior sewing only six articles are required and Barbara has doubled the minimum requirements. She has the value of the articles made at $4.40, cost $2.29 and the saving $2.11.

Lorraine Hall of Damariscotta, age 11, made 11 articles and mended 2 1/2 hours. By making these articles she estimated a saving of $1.38.

One-eighth of an acre of beans was raised by each of the six junior boys in the Hope Hatchet Mountain Boys' Club. Four of these boys are ten years old and two are 11 years. The four youngest boys made the following amounts of money after all expenses for seeds, fertilizer, hired labor were paid: Vinal Hardy, $6.30; Gerald Hall, $3.17; J. Wilfred Hobbs, $8.65; and John Pearse $2.68.

The other two boys, Robert Wright and William Hall worked the most number of hours on their beans. Gerald worked 33 1/2 hours with 5 1/2 hours of hired labor and William worked 41 1/2 hours with only 2 1/2 hours of hired labor.

SHOES FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Sulo Pentilla, Thomaston's Progressive Shoe Dealer and Repairer, Has Very Special Gift Line

Probably the most practical of Christmas gifts is shoes and the one best place in Thomaston to get high grade, well made shoes at very low prices is at the shoe repairing shop of Sulo Pentilla on Main street in Thomaston. He has an especially fine line for men and women in stock for Christmas and everyone is invited to come up and see them. It will be a pleasant surprise to find so satisfactory an answer to your Christmas problem at so low a price.

Sulo Pentilla started making shoes when but 13 years old and has devoted his whole life to the industry. In the days of his apprenticeship a large percentage of all shoes were made by hand. He has developed as the art of shoe manufacturing has developed, and thus knows every branch of the business. In 1931 he opened a first class shoe repairing shop in Thomaston and this venture has prospered. The fine record of his work has spread far and wide, and customers come from a radius of 40 miles.

Before coming to Thomaston Mr. Pentilla was engaged in the same line in Portland. His Thomaston shop is thoroughly modern with the latest Goodyear system machinery which enables him to produce a real factory job which looks and wears like new.

The old fashioned nailing process which is notoriously unsatisfactory has no place in this shop. Here the fine grade leather taps are glued to the shoe with a strong waterproof glue and then sewed firmly and permanently in place by the powerful Goodyear machines. Other machines smooth and bevel the job until it is almost impossible to tell it from brand new taps and heels.

The result is a steadily increasing clientele of pleased customers who bring or send their shoes and those of their families to this efficient shop.

For those who have trouble with their feet and need specially built shoes, Mr. Pentilla gives his personal attention and turns to account his skill as a maker of shoes. He studies the feet, measures them carefully and produces a last that means all-time foot relief and comfort to the customer.

Last fall he introduced a line of shoes for men, women and children and this venture has met with great success. So strong has the demand become that the line is now complete in all sizes including babies shoes. At the present time he is showing school shoes for children at very attractive prices. Sport shoes are featured, also standard lines including the Emerson shoes for men. A pleasing feature of the shop is a selection of leather novelties.

MAYTAG—THE IDEAL GIFT

House-Sherman, Inc., Point Out the Merits Of the Famous Electric Washer—Free Trial Offer

Seldom is such an ideal Christmas gift encountered as is found in the Maytag Washer. Not only is this a splendid gift in itself but it is a labor saving device for the woman of the house of the first magnitude, a money saving device of real account to the head of the house and a source of lasting satisfaction in the splendid white clothes it produces for every member of the family.

Maytag's Rockland home is House-Sherman Inc., who are glad to demonstrate the washers at any time. Let them set one in your home as your Christmas gift to mother and the family. Simply phone Rockland 721 for details, and the next step is the installation in your home, no fuss, no bother and low cost.

Two million families in this country have placed their stamp of approval on Maytag and use the machines today. This proud record is an irrefutable testimony as to the masterful design, and perfection of workmanship and material embodied in the washer.

Maytag, after many years of leadership, is now more than ever the favorite choice of the nation's housewives, because Maytag's are made for one purpose—to wash clothes better, faster, easier and last for more years. There has been built into Maytag washers every device that proved to be a better, safer, easier and more economical way to wash, after time and experience have proved them to be right.

In every home, with or without electricity, exclusive Maytag features are equally available.

All Maytag washers are available with in-built Multi-Motor engine, in place of electric motor, at a reasonable additional cost. The Multi-Motor is the world's simplest and finest gasoline engine, built for a woman to operate—a step on the pedal starts it.

Maytag originated the gyrtator method of washing by which the hot suds are made to permeate every fibre of the garments, instead of the garments being thrown through the water. The gyrtator causes the water to be broken into hundreds of cross currents, making a turbulent mass that penetrates every fibre of the garments. The Maytag thoroughly and safely washes a big tubful of garments, in from 2 to 7 minutes, by water action alone.

The one-piece, cast-aluminum tub will not warp, crack, chip, rust or corrode. It is made square with smoothly rounded corners and concave bottom to create the most effective washing action. Because of its thick walls and outside insulation, the tub keeps the water hot for an entire washing. The tub holds four gallons more water than that of the ordinary washer.

The cast-aluminum, hinged table lid, when opened, serves as a convenient sorting tray. Water from soaked garments placed on the lid will drain back into the tub. A flip of the hand will lift or drop the lid, no fusing to make it fit as is so common with ordinary washers. Rubber bumpers on the tub crown serve as a cushion on which the lid rests when either open or shut.

The sediment zone collects the loosened dirt and grime, keeping the water free from grit and sediment that would otherwise wash back into the garments. The Maytag cone-shaped sediment zone, under the gyrtator, is directly connected to the drain hose. By lowering the hose, the tub drains itself completely without being tilted. After the washing is completed, the tub can be cleaned in thirty seconds.

Considered by engineers to be the most efficient type, the Maytag worm drive is smooth and quiet in operation. It is completely enclosed and sealed in oil... needs no oiling, no adjustment. The precision cut, hardened steel gears and bronze bearings of the drive unit, the skill with which it is built, make this drive comparable with the transmission of a finely built automobile.

After garments have been washed and the dirt, grease and grime hidden in the meshes of the fabrics have been loosened, one more vital operation is necessary to a cleaner, whiter wash... proper cleansing and drying. The roller water remover, which research, science and experience has shown to be superior to any other method of drying, flushes the water out, carrying with it the last particles of dirt, grime and soap.

The combination of a flexible upper roll and firm rubber lower roll is a feature owned and controlled by Maytag. Each of the rolls is 2 1/2 inches in diameter. The flexible top roll hugs every lump, fold and seam, evenly drying all parts of the garment as it passes through the rolls, but sparing the buttons and leaving no hard-to-iron wrinkles. An aluminum feed plate makes it easy to start garments through the rolls.

A flip of the instant release permits the rolls to be spread apart a distance of 5 1/2 inches between centers, an exclusive Maytag feature. The roller water remover swings and locks in every convenient position. Rolls cannot be started until remover is locked in position. A been at the Trask House for a week. During her stay she visited the schools in town, and her work was greatly appreciated.

Capt. Emory Joyce
Capt. Emory Joyce, 79, died in Portland last Saturday morning, after an illness of a few weeks. He had been at his home here since early last Spring. He went to Portland Thanksgiving Day to spend the winter, as had been his custom for a number of years, and in only 12 days was brought back for burial. For several summers Capt. Joyce had been employed at the home of Mrs. Margaret Munsell, a summer visitor; in fact his work had been among the summer guests since they first started the colony in Atlantic.

Capt. Joyce will be greatly missed in the community. He was always jolly and a cheerful worker for the welfare of the neighborhood. His wife, who was Cornelia Barbour, died about a year ago. They had no children. He leaves three brothers, Gardner and Alfred Joyce of Portland and Llewellyn Joyce of Swan's Island; and two sisters, Mrs. Edith Staples of this place and Mrs. H. W. Small of Portland. Services were held at the home Tuesday, Rev. W. C. Osgood officiating. Burial was at Rose Hill cemetery.

THE REALM OF MUSIC

Gladys St. Clair Morgan

Since hearing Ruth Slenczynski, eight-year-old pianist, play on Rudy Vallee's program of last week, I can think of nothing but this tiny prodigy who is astounding the musical world. Many of our famous pianists are bowing in wonder before this music who, with all her wonderful talent, remains a sturdy unsophisticated girl.

Little Ruth's home is in San Francisco, and she has recently returned to America from a three-year stay in Europe during which she gave Berlin and Paris recitals and only last month played the Beethoven concerto as soloist with the Pasdeloup Orchestra at Salle Pleyel under Louis Hasselmann. Ruth is a charming, chubby little girl with brown short hair, a button for a nose and deep-set penetrating eyes. She has tiny dimpled hands.

Ruth recently told an interviewer that she likes America best, although she enjoyed her European experiences—the clothes, the buildings, and the people. "Everything is so old in Europe. Here in the United States the streets are straight, and the buildings high and neat." She told about her geography, arithmetic and history lessons, and how her father, the only music teacher she has ever had, taught her harmony and counterpoint when she was but four years old. The amount of activity the child spends in each of her days is amazing, for through them all run hours and hours of practicing at the keyboard.

Asked if she ever gets tired, Ruth answered: "Tired? Never! I don't hard work to play music and I'm awful strong. You see, I get all my strength from my shoulders, and I never tire because I play correctly. You see though Daddy is not a pianist, but a violinist, he knows a lot about playing the piano and he started me in very early. Having begun right, I stay right." She says she goes to bed early and likes to because she has such nice dreams—about princes and princesses and castles.

Mr. Slenczynski asked his daughter to play for the interviewer, and now we quote: "Ruth climbed down from the sofa very dignifiedly and sat down at the piano. 'I'll play a Bach prelude and fugue!' As the music flowed from under her fingers with clean phrasing and musical intelligence, I sat startled at the change in the demeanor of this eight-year-old girl. At the piano she was completely immersed in the music, in no way acting a part, but anxious to give the prelude she was playing a chance to be heard and enjoyed. She was no longer the child but a serious musician of any age. Her tiny hands accomplished the intricate pitfalls of Bach with sure dexterity and unfalteringly. From Bach Ruth went on to Mendelssohn, to Chopin, and finally played the Campanella of Liszt."

Naturally much attention has been given to Ruth's first New York recital, Nov. 13. Musical Courier said: "For several seasons, reports had been coming from Europe regarding the uncommon pianistic and musical gifts of Ruth Slenczynski, born in Sacramento. Expert opinions from abroad, based on her recitals there, all agreed that the child is one of the most remarkable keyboard prodigies ever brought to public attention. A large audience was on hand to exercise critical judgment, preceded by real surprise as the tiny pianist dressed in a plain white dress, and the same color socks and shoes, seated herself at the piano with welcome unaffectedness. It was nothing short of amazing, as one gazed at the stocky, round-cheeked tot, to consider that she was programmed to play Bach's E major (violin) Prelude, arranged by Josef Slenczynski, the performer's father and teacher; Bach's Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, D minor; Beethoven's Pathétique Sonata; and a closing Chopin collection, consisting of the Nocturne, F minor, op. 55, No. 1; Minute Valse, A flat Impromptu, and three Etudes, A minor, op. 10, No. 2; and a minor op. 25.

"Not since Josef Hofmann and Otto Hegner made their memorable childish debuts, has the metropolis heard such juvenile precocity on the piano. Naturally the question immediately arises as to what degree of her performance is imitative (or at any rate suggested through teaching) and how much is original in conception. The truthful answer is, that both elements were combined in the girl's playing—and this is said with no hint of reproach or depreciation.

"So sturdily built is Ruth, so full cheeked and generally healthy and so clearly in love with piano playing, that no fear need be felt of any harmful effects physically from her early public exhibitions. It has been declared by her father that the present limited number of appearances are necessary for the raising of funds for his daughter's retirement in order to pursue her further musical and general studies."

In the Musical Courier of Dec. 9 is an open letter from Arthur M. Abell who writes: "There certainly has been no such pianistic child prodigy sensation in New York since Hofmann's triumph of 46 years ago. He, too, revealed uncanny technical and interpretative powers. Musically, he was more mature than Ruth is, but I never heard him compass at that time any feat of virtuosity equal to her phenomenal playing of her last two encores—Weber's Perpetuum Mobile and Rondo Brillante. Hofmann was four years older than Ruth is. It was generally supposed that he was only seven, and he was so tiny and 'cute' that one could readily believe it, but in reality he was 12. Four years make a vast difference in a child's development.

"The power with which little Ruth thundered out of her basses, the clarity of her melodic outlines, her unfailing memory, and above all, the energy and temperament she displayed throughout that long and taxing pro-

SECOND DISTRICT COUNCIL

Roland H. Smith Post of Bath Host At Tuesday's Interesting Session

Mrs. Blanche Morton, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, and Mrs. Anne Snow, a past department president, were in Bath Tuesday to attend the meeting of the Second District Council, with the auxiliary of Roland H. Smith Post as hostess. There were about 75 visiting members from the 25 units in the district, and the meeting was one of marked interest.

Commander Sewall of Roland H. Smith Post extended the welcome. An aviator in the World War, he paid special tribute to the women of the organization and their influence during the war period and since, to the inspiration they gave the men and to the ability with which they have carried on their numberless duties both in war and peace times. Mayor Lord, a former lieutenant in the Navy, who had charge of the re-building of the Frigate Constitution, gave a brief history of the shipbuilding activities at Bath, in his closing remarks telling of the activities of the Bath Iron Works at present and their contract to build two destroyers which will give work to many men for a long period, work to begin early in the new year.

Rev. Mr. Purdie, pastor of the Congregational Church, spoke interestingly on Norway, his mother having been a Norwegian. He told of the scenery and the mountains, and of the simple life in the country district which breeds strength and character for future life.

After an excellent program of vocal and instrumental music and readings, Mrs. Emily Dexter of Lewiston, State president, told of the National conference of state presidents at Indianapolis, which she attended. She gave a description of the memorial which has been dedicated to the soldiers of all the wars, of the National headquarters and several of the meetings of the conference. Mrs. Murphy, a past vice president, spoke briefly, and Mrs. Snow talked on the poppy work, during which she stated that due to the many States increasing the manufacture of poppies that Maine would not get such a large proportion for manufacture unless the units increased their quota. This last Mrs. Snow hopes will take place, as the manufacture of poppies at Togus means employment for disabled veterans.

Mr. Sprague says: "I was very proud of them." Also in his letter he tells of the work of the orchestra with Strawbridge and Koner, the dancers who enchanted the audience when the Don Cossacks appeared in Bangor. "We rehearsed two hours with Strawbridge and Koner on the night preceding the concert," writes Mr. Sprague, "and they told me it was the first time that they had received just what they wanted in tempo and mood contrasts. They had danced with the symphony orchestra, but I imagine that the latter are not prone to co-operate any too well, especially if the dancers are iconoclastic. They are too steeped in traditions. It was gratifying that our mood contrasts were patient and earnest to fully meet their desires. So far as the public was concerned, the Don Cossacks rather dominated the concert. The Bangor public has not seen great interpretative dancing before, and I suppose a lot of it must be seen to be appreciated. I would like to bring these artists back again some time with a considerable body of supporting dancers to interpret some of the great symphonic masterpieces. I saw some magnificent work in this line at the Century of Progress at Chicago and at the New York Stadium concerts. It is becoming a strong feature at orchestral concerts."

TENANT'S HARBOR

Chapter's Early Days Recalled

At the meeting of Naomi Chapter, O.E.S. Dec. 1, Miss Harriet Long gave a comprehensive account of the history of the Order and its founder, and Mrs. Harriet Wheeler read items relative to the organization of Naomi Chapter and its first installation, taken from "The Traveler," a long paper of which J. A. Wheeler and L. C. Sheerer were editors in 1895, and A. M. Mont in 1896.

The chapter was instituted in February, 1895, by Grand Patron R. H. Burnham, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Stewart as marshal and Mrs. R. H. Stewart as chaplain. The officers installed were: W. M. Mrs. W. H. Mathews; W. P. G. E. Allen; secretary, Alma Morrison; treasurer, Mrs. Henry Giles; conductress, Hattie Long; associate conductress, Mrs. Weston Wiley; Adah, Alice Long; Ruth, Fannie Long; Esther, Nannie Kallach; Martha, Alice Barte; Electa, Lillie Hopper; warder, Abbie Hart; sentinel, C. C. Wall; chaplain, Lizzie Giles; organist, Mammie Snow. The chapter was formed with 42 members.

The first installation was conducted for the chapter Jan. 24, 1896 by Mrs. Jennie E. Stewart of Rockland, C. W. M., assisted by Mrs. R. N. Marsh. Notwithstanding a severe storm there were 260 present. Some of the speech makers were Rev. Sewall Brown, H. F. Kallach, C. G. Crocker, W. H. Mathews, Dr. F. O. Bartlett and James M. Smith. A poem by William Allen was read by Miss Hattie Long and a brief history of the chapter given by the worthy matron, Mrs. W. H. Mathews.

After listening to these ancient items games were played including football (with only one casualty). The members then formed a line of march and proceeded to the banquet hall, where small candlelit tables were attractively arranged to represent a star with its colorful points. The menu consisted of cold ham, egg salad, coffee, cake and after dinner mints. The committee, Mrs. Lizzie Imbach and Mrs. Gladys Hocking, deserve praise for the effort spent in making the banquet hall and luncheon so attractive. The present worthy matron, Mrs. Maude Paterson deeply appreciated all that was done to make the evening's entertainment successful.

At The High School

(By the Pupils)

"Like a fairy temple From whose pagoda like eaves Descending silver rains Drip in slender streams, Forming bright multicolored drops Of amethyst and emerald, Ruby and turquoise, Jade and old ivory, A temple from the fairyland of frost, The Christmas tree—Relief At Nichols in Morning Call."

W. B. Kendall, Assistant Professor of Education at Bates College, met a group of upperclass students Tuesday morning to discuss the question of their going to college. Colleges throughout New England were considered in the light of courses and special opportunities which they offer. Emphasis was placed on the necessity of the student's making his own choice and the points to be thought of making this decision.

"Climbing Roses" netted $170 which has been added to the class treasury to help defray the inevitable graduation expenses.

Little Virginia Barlow, grade four, has been made mascot of the girls' basketball team. She wears an orange and black suit like the official suit of the girls' team, and should everyone agree, bring luck to her team.

George Harlow has been doing the clerical work in the office this week.

A brief review of the founding and subsequent history of Rockland High School was given as part of the program at the faculty meeting Monday afternoon. A hasty glance at some of the facts which might interest students or stimulate discussion among the older graduates reveals that R.H.S. was organized in 1854, held sessions in the present Grace Street school building and Beale's hall, recently demolished, on Limecock street, and finally set up its residence, 1868-9, on Lincoln street in a $35,000 brick structure which was enlarged in 1924 and 1930 to its present dimensions.

Facts about the early curriculum and teaching methods were presented from an old volume compiled in 1876 for the centennial exposition in Philadelphia, exhibiting a type of work then done in the sciences, and lent for this occasion by the public library. Mrs. Mary Carrillo, in reviewing these historical features, called them "both a challenge and an inspiration" for present and future achievement.

Intelligence tests were taken Tuesday morning by every member of the school. Results of these tests are not given out, but are kept in the office to aid in recommending for positions, and to help determine the I.Q. of those going on to higher institutions of learning.

Orange colored blotters, on which has been printed the basketball schedules for the boys' and girls' games, have been distributed among the students.

The "non-official" report of the recent Y.M.C.A. Boys' Conference in Auburn was the subject of Tuesday's assembly. Highly individual versions of the event were presented by the four class presidents attending: Russell Nash, Carl Spear, Howard Crockett and Charles Ellis; each speaker contending for the honor of telling the most jokes on the other much to the amusement of the audience. Fortunately, the more serious portion of the conference has already been reported in these columns, so one is left with the feeling that it was an all round feast of thought and enjoyment, well-combined.

Throughout the building the holiday spirit is reflected in colorful decorations. There are evergreens and bayberry, Christmas trees and colored lights, and bells and tinsel galore. Several door panels and blackboards display seasonal symbols, and worthy special mention is a "City of Jerusalem," carved from soap, by the junior high pupils.

The junior business training classes numbering 70 pupils who have been studying banking, supplemented their knowledge Wednesday by a glimpse at the real thing, when they visited The First National Bank, The Knox County Trust Company and the Building and Loan Association, with Shirley Barbour, post graduate, as guide. They were shown through the bank's bookkeeping departments and the directors' rooms, and were given souvenirs at each place. Brief glimpses of large stacks of money made many eyes bulge from their sockets. One feature was a hundred dollar bill which Elmer Davis of the Knox County Trust Company dug out of hiding. The morning division also heard Postmaster Veazie tell about postal savings accounts and postal savings bonds.

The pupils, in thanking the bankers for making their trip so worthwhile, expressed the wish that their hosts would repay their visit at the high school where all students would endeavor to show them the same hospitality as was offered at the banks.

All orders for high school calendars and Christmas cards, picturing a pen and ink drawing of the building, will be promptly delivered. Call 137-R and 107-W and your order will be filled without delay.

We're going to have a lovely Christmas
... at our house!

DADDY told me it's going to be the BIGGEST Christmas I've ever seen—nothing is going to be left out! Blue eagles and codes seem to have something to do with it. Mummy's been downtown three times this week, and the packages keep coming one after another. I heard her tell Dad it was lots of fun to shop again. We're going to have a big party, too, with grandmother, Uncle John, Aunt Mary and all the little cousins! Lots and lots of good things to eat. My, I bet it will be fun! Of course, we're going to have a wonderful Christmas tree. And what do you think—

"Just a minute, sonny—let mother have a word—you're right, you wise little monkey—we are going to have a grand time! I'll say I've been buying things! And every dollar I spend goes to help toward Recovery—you see, I know now how my buying is doing its part—how it helps so many businesses and workers—I know too that all this continued buying is going to mean that daddies won't have to worry any more about their jobs—and when daddy doesn't worry, I'm glad to buy things—"

"An' what's Recov'ry, mother?"
"Getting back to that 'lovely' Christmas for you, sonny!"

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bryant, daughter Lela and Miss Virginia Hutchinson are passing this week at Northeast Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hutchinson and daughter Alberta have returned from a visit to friends at Bluehill.

The grade school entertainment presented Friday evening of last week in the Opera House was a marked success. The program consisted of drills, songs and two one-act plays given by the children of grade two to eight inclusive. The hall was crowded to capacity and although a very small admission fee was charged, enough remained after paying expenses to turn over $10 to the school fund.

The entire affair was under the direction of Miss Grace Faulkner, assisted by Miss Florence Dority. It is hoped that an entertainment of this kind may become an annual school affair.

The first recipe is a breakfast recipe for a well balanced waffle. The other recipes are for the big meal of the day. The salad will give a health balance to the heavier dishes. It also carries out a decorative holiday motif. Christmas baked apples and Christmas plum pudding both call for fruit.

Any of all these recipes will add greatly to your Christmas menu.
