FOUR GENERATIONS

Headed By a Rockland Man.
At a Recent Gathering In Ware, Mass.

At a recent family gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gosselin, 120 Church street, Ware, Mass., a four generations group was present.

The oldest member of the group, Josiah C. Berry of Rockland, Me., is 89 years old and spry. The other members of the group are Mrs. Edna Gosselin, Edward Gosselin and Mary Rose Gosselin, she being the youngest of the group and four years old. At present she is at Mary Lane Hospital with a fractured leg received just a few days ago when an automobile struck her.

Edward Gosselin has the family name of Berry as his middle name. Mr. Berry is the father of 12 children and nine are living, the youngest 42 and the oldest 66. He has 19 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. He was born in Maine and comes of a line of long lived Yankee stock. Mr. Berry's wife died in 1922 and he has since made his home with a daughter, Mrs. Charlotte E. Small of Gray, Me.

Mr. Berry's secret for his good health is "Early to bed and early to rise." Also, he says moderate eating, living temperately, and taking plenty of time for meals has been his ruling.—Worcester Gazette.

WILLIAM G. BROWN

Death of Last Survivor of Old Stagecoach Days In This Vicinity

With the death Thursday of William G. Brown there passes the last man in this community who belonged to the era of stagecoach drivers. His route was between Belfast and Rockland and for 16 years he covered it faithfully, being very proficient as a driver of two, four and six-horse rigs.

Mr. Brown was in the employ of Berry Bros. as a driver for approximately 50 years. With the discontinuance of stage coaches he drove a hack until the automobiles came and with this process of evolution his career as a driver reached its end. He remained as an office employee for a number of years, but his dreams were always filled with horses, with which he had spent so many busy and happy years. Several generations of traveling men came to know him intimately, and always found him efficient and accommodating. He also had a reputation as being successful in curing ailments of dumb animals.

Mr. Brown belonged to the fire department in his younger days, driving one of the steamers. He was a member of Aurora Lodge, King Solomon's Temple Chapter and King Hiram's Council.

The deceased was born Jan. 6, 1861, son of Daniel and Lydia Ann Brown. He was married May 13, 1882, to Lizzie P., daughter of Beniah Brackley. Her death several years ago following a long period of illness. The surviving members of the family are one son, Carlyle U. Brown, with whom the deceased made his home at 16 Grace street, the last three years; four granddaughters—Mrs. Lockwood Curry of Rockland, Mrs. Arthur Pease, Miss Helen Vinal and Miss Barbara Vinal of South Thomaston; four grandsons—Douglas and William Vinal of South Thomaston and Carlyle and Conrad Brown of Rockland; and seven great grandchildren—Doris, Edward, and Jeanne Vinal and Virginia Pease of Thomaston, and Loraine, Linwood and Katherine Curry of Rockland.

Funeral services will be held at the Episcopal Church Sunday, at 1 p. m.

Elise Allen Corner has become elected a member of the Dancing Masters of America and her school is situated at 22 Brewster St., Phone 670, Rockland, Maine.—adv. 97-tf

A MARVELOUS TRIP

Bay State Boys Reach This Port After Trip To Cape Breton Island

Schooner Yacht Virginia, Capt. Harold C. Speed of Chelmsford, Mass., arrived at this port yesterday with a cargo of Bay State boys, averaging 16 years of age, so tanned by sun and wind that their mothers will not know them. They have been on an educational cruise to Cape Breton Island.

In the party were Richard Fitz-Hugh, Andover; Richard Mintz, Newton Centre; Neil Whitman, Everett; Edward Ingalls, West Roxbury; George Cronin, Roxbury; Lee Combs, Newton Centre; Abbott Rand and John Rand, Andover; Arnold Whitman, Brookline, and John Noble, Newton Centre, also with the expedition were Capt. Speed's sons Harold C. and Lincoln; and his guest, Capt. O. M. Slocum of Brookline. Capt. Speed reported dry weather for the entire trip and no rain after leaving Maine. The boys studied seamanship on the ocean and did sight-seeing ashore. Among the souvenirs they brought home were specimens of gold quartz picked up at Cape Brown, but not in sufficient quantity to declare a dividend.

Capt. Speed is a former resident of Rockland.

WALDOBORO BOUTS

Pancho Villa, Jr. Holds Bantamweight Title—Guistin Puts On Good Show

Pancho Villa, Jr. of Waterville is still bantamweight king of the Maine prize ring, and why he still occupies the throne is because he trimmed Art Giroux in the main bout at John Guistin's show in Waldoboro Wednesday night. Giroux got a bad beating, but was game.

Frisko Dix shaded Stanley Siviski of Waterville in the semi-final, and it was a real scrap from gong to gong.

O. Hitler is evidently no relation to the German dictator, for K. O. Henry of Augusta put him under the sod in the first stanza of their little quarrel. Frankie Merrill of Augusta found a ready mixer in Young Pierce of Camden, who was making his ring debut. It was a fifty-fifty affair.

Stringbean Bridges of Camden gave an excellent imitation of Stringbean Jovin of Bangor in what was also his first ring experience. He jabbed himself to a win over the hard-boiled Johnny Bodman of Rockland.

Two juveniles from the Golf Links—Barney Brann and Young Colson—furnished the most humorous and extraordinary engagement ever seen in the squared circle at Waldoboro. It was an acid test for the youngsters and they emerged from it on even terms.

Guistin refereed five of the bouts, and is very grateful to Jim Farley (Oliver Hamlin) who jumped into the breach and handled the main bout.

A good sized crowd enjoyed the show.

DANGER FROM DOGS

Scoutmaster Whitehill, Himself a Victim, Advises His Boys

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—As a Scoutmaster I have always been a firm believer in being kind to animals, as it is one of our Scout law. Also, I am a firm believer in another Scout teaching, which is "safety." But there is one other principle which comes to mind unbidden in time of need, and that is "self defense," from either animals or other attacks.

After being attacked last week and bitten by a so-called "pet dog," and bitten severely enough, through a whipcord breech and heavy hose, to draw blood, I am instructing my Troop to take no chances. When even a pet dog will attack them without any provocation on their part, they are to defend themselves by any means at hand, using a club if necessary. For any such dog should never be allowed to run free.

The other day there was another local case of a 4-year-old boy attacked and treated very roughly by a dog. Suppose the dog had rabies, then what? And suppose it had been your child who had been attacked. I would beg of all dog owners to take care of their dogs and thus prevent a possibly sad accident. I do not think it would be any great harm if the police took a bit more interest regarding unlicensed stray dogs. I believe they have regulations pertaining to them, and at times like these they would be strictly enforced. Naturally your own dog would not attack you, but who of the stranger who may be just passing by?

I appeal to all owners of dogs to be more careful regarding their pets running about loose.

Harold W. Whitehill,
Scoutmaster Troop 2.

Diane got back home first in the H.A.J. races at Camden Thursday, and had two minutes leeway, with Flicker II as runner-up. ## BIG FIVE LEAGUE

Pirates 2, Rockport 1
Dick Emery made his Big Five League debut Tuesday night, defeating George Boynton of Camden in a snug pitchers' duel 2-1. Rockport registered six hits to the Pirates' four but Emery had sensational fielding behind him and worked out of many holes. Karl opened the game by reaching second when his fly was dropped in left and with two out. Collins brought him home with a hard rap to right. Rockport filled the bases with none out. Then Talbot carried a hit off Emery's glove to tie the score, but a snappy double play and a pop-up cut short the rally. The Pirates scored the winning run in the fourth. Smalley opened with a single. Collins hoisted out to right. Smalley was forced on Mosher's grounder to second but when the attempt for a double play went wild, Mosher raced to second, immediately stole third and scored the winning tally when Bobby Gardner beat out an infield rap.

It was one of the best games seen in the Big Five this season. The Pirates made three peppy double plays. The score:

Egg Rock

Well, we're still like the little boy, "seen but not heard." At the time of this writing we are being heard, as it is thick fog!

We have been pretty busy this summer with a lot of painting, and considering the weather, have done fairly well, even with a late start.

Our coal is all gone and it is quite a problem getting wood to burn, most of it being driftwood. Hope they bring the coal soon, also our supply of gasoline.

We are pleased to hear that Additional Keeper Lothrop has recovered from his recent illness and congratulate Mr. Witty on his appointment to Seguin as second assistant.

Mr. Dalzell is pleased to announce that his nine months' old son weighs 24 pounds, 3 ounces, and has eight teeth.

Our poultry has suffered a relapse this year, five chickens and two ducks being all that were hatched.

Our station boat engine developed a bad knock and skip and when torn down it turned out to be one broken piston and two cracked ones. Now we are trying to make one good engine out of the two broken ones and it won't be the first time. Let us hope it will be a success.

We have had a few visitors this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pinkham and daughter Mary have spent several Sundays on the Rock accompanied by friends; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bailey and three children Burtina, Alice and Steven spent the last weekend of July as guests of Keeper Pinkham; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey are now visiting him for a few days.

There have been quite a number of yachts in and out past the light, but there is still room for more before we will have to install traffic lights.

We have missed seeing the Florida just twice and that was when it was foggy. One trip was rather exciting—two English warships and the Florida all passing by at the same time in the fog, and did the whistle blow!

It was a pretty sight with six warships, and the excursion boat and some yachts to light up the harbor. It looked like quite a city from here at night.

Received quite a surprise Friday night when I went to the door to get the dog's dish to feed him. Someone said, "Is anyone at home?" and snapped a flashlight in my face. It turned out to be a young fellow from a small sail yacht, becalmed about two miles east of the Rock, who had rowed ashore and landed at low water, alone. It was dead calm and he wanted enough gas to get the boat to Bar Harbor, which we gladly let him have.

There have been several druggers fishing in the bay lately, also several whales, one of which evidently has become quite tame as he lies on top of the water a short distance from Bar Harbor, from which point people can see him. One fed around the Rock a week ago very close in.

Well, as I don't want to get writer's cramp after so long an absence, I will sign off for now. Hope to see more of you again in print.

SPLENDID CAMDEN CONCERT

And What a Pity That It Did Not Net Larger Receipts For the Lions

Owing to a day full to the brim of conflicting activities, the annual charity concert given Wednesday evening at the Camden Opera House by the Camden-Rockport Lions Club received small patronage—most unfortunately, as viewed from two standpoints. The net receipts with which the club planned to do extensive charity work this winter were materially reduced, and those who did not attend the concert missed one of the finest musical activities ever given in Camden.

The artists were Margaret Codd, coloratura soprano, Cecile Geschichter pianist, Maryce Robert, harpist, and Raphael Drulan, violinist, all artists—students of the Curtis Institute of Music, and Boris Goldovsky, accompanist, of the Curtis faculty. The program personally arranged by Carlos Salzedo, world-famous harpist, was an unusually bold, with never the semblance of a varied style appeal to music lovers of both voice and instrument.

Miss Geschichter displayed marvelous technique in her work, a vivid touch, brilliant effects in tone building, and subtlety where needed. Her playing was particularly effective in the Liszt and Chopin numbers. She was recalled many times and played as an encore Chopin's "Minute Waltz."

Much interest had centered in the appearance of Raphael Drulan, child prodigy. His performance unquestionably stamped him as a genius. Raphael, though born in Russia has spent most of his ten years in Cuba. He is a sturdy healthy looking lad, very serious in his bearing. He received the applause with dignified bows, with never the semblance of a smile lighting up his youthful features. While the Max Bruch concerto was given with assurance and poise, his best was done in the Sicilienne and Rigodon, and the Perpetuum Mobile. His facility of bowing, clarity of tone, and projection of technique were outstanding features. One could not honestly say there is soul in his playing—he is a bit young for that, but his technical equipment is fairly staggering, especially to those who have devoted many years to the violin and are in the so-called "veteran" class.

Miss Codd displayed a voice of great beauty, sweet and fresh in quality, and handled with dexterity. It is a coloratura of great range, high E flat encompassed with ease, and while not of particular power, has exquisite carrying quality. It is a voice remarkably true in pitch, this factor particularly evident in the way she handled the moderns which are most difficult to sing. In fact her finest singing was in the modern, especially the Strauss "Amor." The Mahler and Wolf numbers were also beautifully done. Mozart's "Alleluia" displayed her sureness of line, and in the Cyril Scott number she showed that she is capable of more sustained and legato singing. In response to the many calls she gave two encores, a dainty song in English and an intriguing German modern.

In Miss Robert appeared an old friend as she had already made two previous Camden appearances. The applause which greeted her work that such feeling was very evident.

Mrs. Theodore C. Cook of New York gave a contract party and tea Tuesday and on Wednesday, Mrs. Alfred M. Snedeker of New York gave a bridge luncheon at Rockledge.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hagedorn of Plainfield, N. J., have terminated their visit at the SamOset and have gone to Swampscott for several days. Mrs. Charles L. Corby of Washington, accompanied by Mrs. F. R. Masters, motored over from Poland Spring and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Corby for the weekend.

Charles J. Eisenlohr of Philadelphia has given several small parties aboard his yacht the Charmarie this week.

Allison V. Armour of New York and Miami was a visitor at the SamOset this week from his yacht the Utowana, which is one of the most palatial and largest yachts seen in the Rockland Breakwater this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ross of Montreal, season guests at the SamOset, gave a party Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Corby, Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wilmsen, Mrs. Dan Jackson, Mrs. William R. Goldsborough and Miss Frances Pearson.

NO BLACK MARX THERE

See What This Member of a Popular Quartet Did At Lakewood

Guest stars come and go at the atres, and are pleasantly remembered by the audience, but Groucho Marx is one guest star who will not soon be forgotten at Lakewood Theatre by the men who work backstage.

Marx appeared last week with the players and on Saturday received his pay check with the others. Like the rest he endorsed it. But then he did something that has not been done at Lakewood before.

"How many boys you got here?" the famous comedian asked Al Rights, technical director and stage manager.

Rights told him 11. "Okay," said Groucho, "divide this up among them." And he handed Rights his check.

Twentieth Century, the play in which Marx appeared was a difficult one to stage. The men behind the scenes put in many long, busy hours.

Marx showed his appreciation of their helping to make his appearance at Lakewood a success in a way that could not be mistaken. For Marx himself put in even more hours on the play than anyone else and had earned many times the amount he received.

THE REALM OF MUSIC

Gladys St. Clair Morgan

Harriet Ware who won many admiring friends when she appeared here July 26 in joint recital with Walter Mills, baritone, is giving a birthday broadcast on Sunday, Aug. 26, by invitation of the National Broadcasting Company. While no detail is in hand now, it is assumed that several of her own songs will be presented in much the same manner as given here. A contract will sing the broadcast will be at 3:45 over the NBC network and we know there will be many local listeners who will vision Miss Ware's own beautiful personality during the broadcast. We rather wish Mr. Mills was to do the songs, but that is a physical impossibility, as he is in Europe.

What a happy and gratifying surprise it was to have Dr. Howard Hanson at the Eastern Music Camp along with Dr. Damrosch last Sunday. Talking with someone who was privileged to see Hanson conducting on that occasion, I remarked on the physical grace of the man, and the response was: "Graceful I never saw anything like it, simply double-jointed."

According to the request of the Rochester centennial committee that he contribute to the music of the celebration which is being conducted this year in observance of Rochester's 100th birthday Dr. Hanson wrote an orchestral suite derived from his opera "Merry Mount". The suite has for material the overture to a concert ending, the children's dance from Act I, the Maypole dances from the second act, the dream music and love duet from the third act.

The Sunday evening musicles which Ralph Wilson, manager-owner of Whitehall Inn, is conducting at the Inn are most delightful affairs, not only for the brilliant program given by notable artists, but for the graciousness and friendly charm which prevail. It was my good fortune to be a guest at the Inn last Sunday evening, and hear the program given by Margaret Codd, coloratura soprano, Raphael Drulian, 10-year-old violinist, and Boris Goldovsky pianist. One seldom hears in so young a singer as Miss Codd a voice handled with such skill. Her years are only 21, and she is what we call a "slip of a girl" if one told us that she is 15, we'd believe it. What particularly intrigued me in her singing is the way in which she handles the music, such a sensitive ear is required for the intricate harmonies, or should I say dissonances. She gave one brilliant example, a Strauss song, extremely difficult, or so it seemed, but which she sang with the utmost skill. It was a thrilling audience when she consented to repeat it.

Little Raphael is a sturdy lad. He was simply garbed in a white blouse and shorts, and his bare legs were tanned a healthy brown. He looks much as any healthy normal boy of 10 years; possibly his face is cast in a more serious mold than we associate with such tender years. His work is amazing, fairly staggering to those only accustomed to the mature violinist. Of course at his age one doesn't expect soul, only glimpses, but in technique, well, it is most unusual. He has beautiful singing tone, great bowing facility, and imbues all his playing with seriousness. Watching him the other night I thought of all the hours and hours and hours of practice even his present equipment has required. Hours with all the love of childhood shut out. Yet if one is a prodigy, life has to be adjusted on that basis, and there you are. It will be interesting to watch Raphael's progress, to see if he advances along the path Yehudi Menuhin has.

Mr. Goldovsky did some splendid accompanying, particularly in several of the songs for Miss Codd, who in private life is Mrs. Goldovsky. The accompaniment for "The Gypsy and the Bird" was outstanding in its art. Among the guests were several connected with the Curtis Institute. Mme. Lea Luboshutz, Sam Barber whose artistry enchanted his hearers in the second Curtis Memorial concert. Cecile Geschichter, Jean Spitzer, and others. Many of the guests were beautifully gowned, and in the setting of the attractive rooms which were further enhanced by gorgeous bouquets of mid-summer flowers, the scene was a colorful one. In telling of this affair, I am not tribute to Mr. Wilson's hospitality. He makes Whitehall Inn a very happy place to be in. He gives his guests attractive rooms, a living room and a music room that are homey and inviting, and excellent cuisine, and over it all he presides with gracious dignity. He brings many entertaining features for his guests, and in musical activities particularly shines, as he himself is an accomplished musician.

Just after hearing the Strauss song at Whitehall Sunday, I happened across an article written by Lawrence Gilman "For Strauss's Seventieth Birthday" (June 11) beginning "Richard Strauss has become a classic in his own lifetime." Mr. Gilman maintains that "Richard Strauss remains, despite the celebrity of various gifted and active rivals, indisputably the first of living music-makers. One finds it hard to realize that Strauss is seventy. He was for so many years the sign and symbol of youthful audacity in music that it is not easy for some of us to think of him as old. His works possessed when they came from his pen, that quality of newness and strangeness which is so striking a characteristic of certain music while it is contemporaneous, but which fades out of it with the passage of the years. I do not mean merely and obviously that it ceases to be new; but that it loses a definite and subtle quality as it recedes into the past, that recognizable quality which a subtle-minded critic once isolated as "modernity" then an unfamiliar word. "The music of the world," he wrote, "flies away from us as we watch the burning-out of the sun. Like bird after bird its newness flies from us, and finds separate resting houses here and there in the places of the past."

"This quality has a way of disappearing from certain combinations of tones, leaving them, if they have no more enduring qualities, flat and ineffectual. For music can grow not merely old, but singularly flavorless and unenriching, unless it happens to possess that mysterious property which enables it to outlast the vanishing of its newness, and marks it for immortality."

"As we look back upon it, over the long and expanding range of its development, we realize what an enthralling art it is that Strauss has exerted, with its gusto and abundance, its power of imagery, its singular blunder of precision and amplitude, its wit and fervor, its broad and earthy humor, its tenderness, its cosmic exaltation."

I sat down with pencil and paper the other day and noted offhand the names of well-known musicians I have seen and heard in actual performance not over the radio, and while I am sure it is far from complete, the figure it ran into surprised me. Here it is without attempt to classify or grade as to rank by authorities:

Emma Calve, Lillian Nordica, Emma Calve, Geraldine Farrar, Schumann-Heink, John McCormack, Luisa Tetrazzini, Frances Alda, Louis Graveure, Rose Bampton, Howard Hanson, Gwilym Miles, Evans Williams, Roland Hayes, Don Cosack, Russian Male Chorus, Strawbridge and Koser (dancers), Toscha Seidl, Rose Raisa, Eddy Brown, Fritz Kreisler, Carlos Salzedo, Lillian Blauvelt, Gertrude Erhart, Nanette Guilford, Ellen Beach Yaw, Sylvia Lenz, Sigurd Nilsen, Walter Mills, Harriet Ware, Walter Damrosch, Erwin Nyergiz, Marion Telva, Hallett Gilberte, Frederic Gustaf, Frances Peralta, Devora Nadworney, Alex Young Maruccesi, Frank Sheridan, Elsa Aisen, Will Macfarlane, Ignace Jan Paderewski, Reinold Murphy, Corinne Souza's Band, Nathalie and Bettina Hall, Phoebe Crosby, The Denishawn Dancers, Mary Garden, Reginald Boardman, Wellington Smith, Charles Harrison, Marie Sundell, Hans Kronold, Alma Gluck, Charles Hackett, Lambert Murphy, Corinne Rider-Kelsey, Lea Luboshutz, William Harms, Carmela Ponselle, Carl Webster, Samuel Gardner, Frank Bibb, Walter Smith, Edwin Franko Goldman, Howard Goding, Frederic Tilton, Marion Ross, Jean de Nault, John Barrows Wells, Nina Moergana, Beatrice Beckin, Zlatko Balakovic, Leon Kairoff, Emma Roberts, Ethel Leginska, Loraine Wyman, Edwin Lemare, Samuel Richard Gaines, Benno Rabinooff, Marie Rappold, Giacomo Rimini, Sophie Braslau.

Glancing through the Alumni Bulletin of the Eastman School of Music, it is rather amusing to note the names which our young composers are giving their works. I am referring to a program made up of original compositions of students, and some of the names are:

Lost God; Virgin; Suite for Piano "Two Years Old"; White Nocturne for Horn and Piano; Four Trivialities; Oil Wells; An Old Woman of the Roads.

Camden has added another famous musician to its music colony. Josef Lhevinne, celebrated pianist, Mr. Lhevinne and his family have taken the Young cottage for the season, and he states: "I am coming more and more to the conclusion that Maine is the ideal place for a successful combination of concentrated work and relaxation, and I am particularly fond of Camden."

Mr. Lhevinne is resting from a busy winter season in a coast-to-coast concert tour and radio broadcasts, and also acting as instructor of promising piano pupils at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. While in Camden, he is preparing his programs for the coming winter's tour and for two piano recitals with Mrs. Lhevinne, who is also a brilliant pianist. Mr. Lhevinne will start his tour in the middle of October. His first New York recital will be at Carnegie Hall Oct. 27.

PARK THEATRE

Here are five good reasons to see Fox Film's hilarious, comedy-romance, "She Learned About Sailors," which comes Monday and Tuesday.

Alice Faye, beautiful blonde, playing the role of a smart girl who sings in a night club in an Asiatic Oriental seaport.

Lew Ayres, the champion heart-breaker of the U. S. Navy, who takes shore leave at this port and falls like a ton of bricks for the fair Faye; Harry Green as Jose Rubenstein, a South American impresario visiting the same port, who beseges Faye with offers of an engagement in his hotel in South America; Frank Mitchell and Jack Durant, America's greatest knockabout vaudeville and musical comedy funsters, portraying Lew's sailor buddies. They take it upon themselves to regulate and straighten out the latter's romantic tangles with Alice Faye, thereby causing no end of ludicrous complications.—adv.

DOG TROUBLES!

LITTLE AMERICA, ANTARCTICA, Aug. 1 (via Mackay Radio).—Now that the excitement about the tractor trip which failed to bring Admiral Byrd back to us has given way to the details of another attempt, our life here has once more resumed its normal routine. In spite of the great amount of automotive equipment we have, we are seriously concerned over our loss of dog power. After all, the dogs are still a most important part of our transportation set-up, and, during the past few months, we have lost 40 dogs. Some of these died from natural causes. Some were lost overboard from the flagship Jacob Ruppert on the way down here. One broke away, wandered off to be and we were unable to find him.

Our few litters of new pups are being very carefully reared, some even by hand. Commander Noville and Capt. Innes-Taylor adopted two puppies which had been deserted by their mother. These were raised on the bottle and are now growing rapidly. However, they are still living in the little hut with the two foster fathers. Recently, of another litter of eight, only one survived. This one was brought in and left with Capt. Innes-Taylor and Commander Noville. They objected strongly and conceived a diabolical scheme. That night they placed the newly born pup in a box, hung a nursing bottle on the box and stole into the science laboratory where they left it on the desk of Dr. Charles G. Morgan, our leading geologist from Tulsa, Okla. The next day there was a furious argument between the scientists and the two culprits. The latter were accused of abandonment. They replied that the raising of the puppy should Harry Richardson, poultry specialist, will be in the county next week with County Agent Wentworth, to visit poultrymen who are considering insulating their poultry houses.

The annual auto tour of the Knox and Lincoln Counties Farm Bureau will be held Aug. 31. The tour will start in Warren, at the farm of Parker McKeller at 8 standard time. Stops will be made at two poultry farms, three orchards, two dairy farms, and two kitchens. Dinner will be at the Fish Hatchery, Camden.

With the Hones

Mrs. Mary T. Crocker, Bristol secretary, gave the following report of the meeting held on Jellies and marmalades Aug. 17. "Mrs. Roxie Weeks, foods leader was assisted by Mrs. Mable Pendleton in conducting the demonstration. Jelly was made from Red Astrachan apples with choke cherries with the use of commercial pectin and without it. A test was made with Epsom salts for pectin. Orange and lemon marmalade was also made by the leaders. Directions were given for making a jelly bag. We were also shown how to wrap a jar in cellophane and to pack a box for gifts. Odd glasses and jars to fill with jelly or marmalade for Christmas and other gifts were shown. As a result—11 cups of jelly were made with the use of certo, 4 1/2 cups of jelly were made without certo, 4 cups of marmalade were made."

Edgcomb certainly had a busy day at their jellies and marmalades meeting. Mrs. Georgia Poole, foods leader, writes that these things were done: Carrot Honey, Apple Jelly and orange and lemon marmalades were made. Sixteen pints of corn were canned by using a pressure cooker that belonged to Mrs. Mollie Sherman.

Miss Ertelle Nason, State home demonstration leader, was in the county Aug. 14 and 15. Miss Nason visited with the home demonstration agent, Miss Lawrence, Camden and Rockport meetings on jellies and marmalades. Camden's meeting was conducted by Mrs. Evelyn Bridges and Mrs. Sarah Sleeper, and Rockport's by Mrs. Inez Packard. These leaders gave very good demonstrations on the making of Jellies and Marmalades. Miss Nason also visited Mrs. Alice True's kitchen at Hope and the new Damariscotta community kitchen.

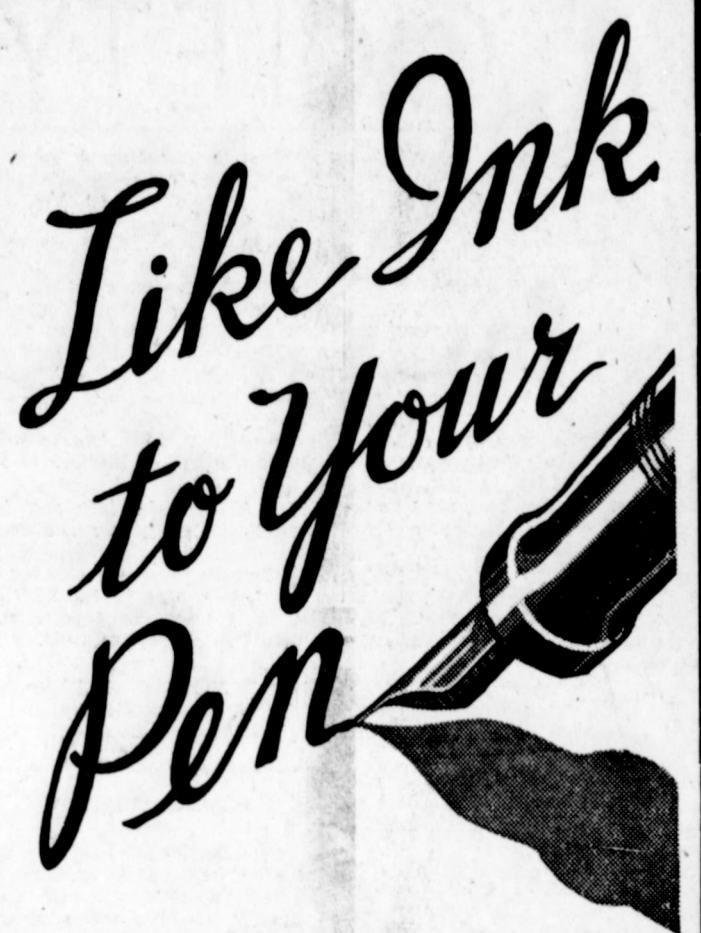

To can mackerel: Soak the fish in brine (three tablespoons salt to one quart water) for one-half hour to harden the flesh if it is soft. Drain the fish well and pack closely in jars to within 1/4 inch from top, add 1 level teaspoon salt to each quart, do not add water. Partially seal and process for three hours in hot-water bath, or at 15 pounds pressure for 60 minutes. After processing completely seal and cool at once.

4 H Club Notes

Four 4-H Club boys and six girls attended the State Camp in Orono at the University of Maine, Aug. 15-19. All club members were up at 6 o'clock for flag raising, and setting up exercises were at 6:30. Breakfast followed and then for the morning the club members attended classes on whatever they were interested. For the boys, classes were held in crops, garden, dairy and poultry. The girls attended classes in foods, clothing, room improvement and housekeeping. All club members attended the class on customs and courtesies. The afternoons and evenings were open to recreation, which included tournaments between the different groups of Knox-Lincoln Counties. Two boys have not lost any of their 26 while the other boys have lost only from one to three. Mr. Wentworth, county agent, met with the boys Aug. 20, and gave them a demonstration on cleaning hen house and chickens of lice and mites. One of the members will give this demonstration publicly this fall. The following members of this club attending the tour were: Albert Davis Jr., Carl Rogers, Edwin Tyler, Warren Ulmer, Robert Ulmer, Parker Jackson, Kenneth Pierce, and Jack Harlow.

The 4 H Clubs of South Thomaston, with Mrs. Bernice Sleeper, leader, are carrying on a Dental hygiene clinic for the 4 H boys and girls of that community. Each member will have his teeth examined and fixed up for the small sum of 50 cents. The 4 H Club will earn the rest by suppers, sales, etc. A supper for this purpose, was held in the South Thomaston Grange hall, Friday evening.

A club tour was recently held by the "Lucky Boys" of South Thomaston. The chicken raising projects of eight boys were inspected. Each member, in the spring, was given 26 chickens, by some of the poultrymen of Knox-Lincoln Counties. Two boys have not lost any of their 26 while the other boys have lost only from one to three. Mr. Wentworth, county agent, met with the boys Aug. 20, and gave them a demonstration on cleaning hen house and chickens of lice and mites. LOUIS BROMFIELD'S arresting romance of the American small town comes into its own as a screen drama in "The Life of Vergie Winters," showing Monday and Tuesday. The story is one of a small town milliner, and her poignant romance with the community's "favorite son." Ann Harding stars in the title role as the milliner, and John Boles is the male lead. The love story is said to be strikingly unusual, intensely emotional and most sympathetic. It gives a reverse twist to the "eternal triangle" theme by presenting the woman who holds and clings to the love of another woman's husband as the prime heroine of the romance.

Although Vergie Winters' love is branded sinful by her neighbors, she dedicates her whole life to it, remaining serene in the face of malicious gossip and persecution with the knowledge that it is justifiable and unselfish. So great is her love, that she is steered to give up claim to her own daughter, the child being adopted by its father and his legal wife. Vergie sees this child grow to young womanhood under her yearning eyes, daring not to disclose herself because to do so would harm the ones she loves, until time brings the drama to a heart stirring conclusion.—adv.
