TEEL'S ISLAND PATRIARCH
Death Of Rufus Teel, 96, Who Had Fished For Lobsters Seventy Years
Capt. Rufus Teel, who had been a lobster fisherman for 70 years at Teel's Island, died there Tuesday, in his 97th year. Funeral services will be held at the island Friday at 1 o'clock.
The deceased was a son of Joseph Teel who lived to the age of 91. The boy went to sea in his youth, aboard the schooner, Tarrynot, and Jessie Lee. He also fished for four years in the Bay of Fundy and commanded the lobster smack Havelock, running between Mt. Desert and Boston.
In the course of his long career as a lobster fisherman he had handled as many as 100 traps at a time, and had caught 500 lobsters in a single day. He had practically given away lobsters at 2 1/2 cents apiece and had sold them as high as 60 cents apiece. He was an ardent sportsman, especially hunter.
Up to a year ago Capt. Teel had required the services of a doctor but once.
Among his boasts, or rather his claims, were that he had always earned his own living and owed no man a dollar; that he went to bed early and arose early; that he always lived in the open. And this was the advice he gave everybody—

"Believe in God; raise a large family; keep out of politics and mind your own business."

POLITICAL RETROSPECT

(Editorial)

The country at large probably accepts the Maine result as an endorsement of the New Deal, but we honestly believe that this verdict is wide of the mark. Gov. Brann was re-elected for several reasons which we purpose to cite briefly. First and foremost was his personal popularity. In the western part of the State he was widely known before his election to the governorship, and since he has been in office there is no corner of the State which he has not penetrated, always with a friendly smile and word, and with that greatest of all political assets—a memory for names and faces. We are all human, and we like to feel that the bigwigs remember us. We come now to the second reason for his successful campaign, the belief, willy nilly, that he would have more influence with the powers that be in Washington in obtaining money for relief and public works. There was to be sure a rather prevalent feeling that the trips to Washington were not distasteful to His Excellency—18 of them he admits having made. But the fear that Maine would be left in the lurch was doubtless converted into hundreds of Democratic votes and this fear was cultivated to the limit by the Democratic strategists.

And here is a reason which leaves an unpleasant taste in the mouths of all loyal Republicans—the tacit support accorded to the enemy by influential newspapers which the reading public had a right to believe were Republican. A striking exception was the Bangor Daily News, which had argued long and earnestly for an Eastern Maine governor, and which sincerely believed that the Republican party had "the goods" when it nominated Alfred K. Ames, the Machias lumberman. The impression was created in many quarters that Mr. Ames was too old for the job and he was almost pictured as going around on crutches. But Mr. Ames is in the very prime of life, and it would take a good athlete to keep up with the pace he sets. It was unfortunate, to be sure, that he was not better known in some sections of the State, where the voters did not know Ames from Adam, but where they were thoroughly familiar with his opponent through the constant picturing and lauding in the daily newspapers.

Another strong element entered into the victories won by Gov. Brann and Representative Moran, and that was the widespread circulation of reports that great public projects were to be developed by the Democratic National Administration, chiefly among these, of course, being the Quoddy Project. The citizens of Maine now have right to believe that Ickes and other national leaders will make good their implied promises, and that the eastern part of the State will thrive with the activities of this great industrial undertaking next year. Other attractive projects were dangled before the voters' eyes like candy canes in the confectionery windows which the kids must pass on their way to school. Great national parks are to be developed, and this, of course, will bring about a state of unparalleled prosperity.

The re-election of Representative Moran was underwritten by the abnormal Democratic majority which Androscoggin County was bound to give with "Louie" Brann running on the head of the ticket, but Moran's compilation shows that he carried four of the seven counties in the Second District, and it is a fine tribute to the activity he displayed in Washington and his very unusual ability as a campaigner. He spoke in every nook and corner of his district, and his radio talks are also believed to have been very effective. The Republican candidate Zelma M. Dwinall, made a splendid fight outside of the unassailable Democratic fortress on the Androscoggin River, and not for a minute did he "loaf" on the job. As a speaker he may have lacked some of his opponent's oratory and fire, but he presented arguments which should have prevailed, and conducted the clean campaign which is characteristic of him.

It is not our province to discuss the results in the districts outside of our own. We had a natural interest in Representative Beedy, who formerly belonged in Camden, and who was regarded as one of the most substantial men in the halls of Congress. His defeat we review with regret.

In the Third District the genial Representative Utterback finds that his term of office was very brief, for he has been unseated by ex-Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, the stormy petrel of Maine politics whom he had defeated in the contested election case last year. How Mr. Brewster was able to win against the undying aversion to him in Aroostook County is almost a mystery. Before us are the figures from that county showing these as a few of the characteristic results: Cannon, Brewster 13, Utterback 179; Eagle Lake, Brewster 44, Utterback 360; Fort Kent, Brewster 159, Utterback 743; Madawaska, Brewster 68, Utterback 439; Van Buren, Brewster 99, Utterback 724. Imagine trying to carry a district against handicaps like that. This time, however, the organization, which has been at swords points with Brewster, stood pretty solidly behind him, and in the stands were not a few who sympathized with him as an "underdog."

Much more pleasing to contemplate is the result here in Knox County, where the entire Republican ticket was elected by majorities which rose nearly to 1200. A few of the towns slipped a bit from their Republican allegiance, but others came forward in an even more powerful alignment. This fine endorsement is due in part to splendid workers like State Committeeman A. C. McLean and County Chairman E. Stewart Orbeton and Mrs. Inez Crosby; and to the very general satisfaction which an unusually capable staff of county officials has given.

Knox County will be represented in the 1935 session of Legislature by a Republican senator who will have the satisfaction of sitting in that Chamber with his son, and by four Republican and two Democratic representatives.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR CARL

"Jim" Farley Among Those Happy Over His Election—Moran's Own Statement

Returns tabulated Tuesday in the office of Representative Moran saw his majority mount to 6871. Moran, in addition to having a very large majority in Androscoggin County, carried the counties of Kennebec, Somerset and Knox. Telegrams of congratulation continued to pour in all day.

Postmaster General James A. Farley wired: "Your splendid victory was immensely pleasing to me. Your loyal support of the Roosevelt Administration entitled you to re-election, and the generous support of the voters was indicative of the appreciation of your services."

Emil Hurja, who has practical charge of the Democratic national committee, wired on the eve of election thus:
"I have left hind foot of rabbit killed last Friday night near Negro graveyard. It is being held for you and I know you will come through with flying colors."

Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, candidate for the Speakership, telegraphed: "No one is happier over your victory than I am."
Representative Edward R. Burke, who defeated Gov. Charles W. Bryan for the United States Senatorial nomination, had bet a lamb dinner that Moran would double his majority of two years ago. Today he wired: "Nebraska congratulates Maine on pointing the way to what is now a clear victory for the New Deal. Your splendid re-election means that the Second Maine District will continue to set an inspiring example for the rest of the country."

Among the scores of other congratulations came one from "The House of Ross," sons of ex. Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, and Chairman Benjamin L. Berman of the Androscoggin Republican County Committee.

Representative Moran gave the following statement to The Courier-Gazette:

"The re-election of Democratic Gov. Louis J. Brann by a majority of about 30,000; the election of Simon Hamlin, Democrat, over Republican Congressman Beedy of the First District; my re-election as member of Congress from the Second District, almost doubling my 1932 majority; the very close Congressional contest in the normally Republican stronghold of the Third District; the practically tie vote for United States Senator, which final figures may resolve into the election of a Democratic United States Senator, are all indicative of Maine's approval of the policies of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and "The New Deal." There can be no other reasonable interpretation. I campaigned exclusively and four-square as a "New Dealer."

"I am proud that Maine has taken such a progressive stand. The Maine election undoubtedly indicates a sweeping Democratic victory of landslide proportions in the coming November Congressional elections."

PROFESSOR WAS NOT "DAFFY"

Good Reason Why He Paid $4.45 For a Gallon Of Monhegan Sea Water

A Wakefield Mass., subscriber sends us the following interesting article clipped from a recent issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

A few weeks ago the good people of Monhegan Island, which rises from the sea 20 miles offshore from Boothbay Harbor, Maine, thought that Professor Oliver P. Watts, of the University of Wisconsin, had gone crazy. They learned from Earl Field, one of the residents of the island, that the professor had written him and asked him to send him, by express, a gallon of sea water. For this he was willing to pay $3, or more, plus the carrying charges, which turned out to be $1.45.

The professor's letter specified that the water must be strictly "fresh" and dipped up a good distance from the shore. So Mr. Field, being a conscientious fellow, got in his dory and rowed a mile or more out into the open sea before he filled the can, which he carefully crated and sent on its way to the Middle West.

It turned out that Prof. Watts used to be a summer resident of Monhegan Island and who knows his Maine coast, was conducting a series of experiments to find out how to prevent the corrosion of certain metals. He wanted to know what salt water did to these metals before and after they were treated and it seemed to him that his tests would not be conclusive unless he used the real thing.

"I could have made up an artificial sea water by adding the right amount of salt to fresh water," the scientist explained, "but I know that some critic might say that my findings were doubtful, or no good, because I hadn't used the real stuff. That's why I was glad to pay what seemed an exorbitant price for a can of plain ocean."

Until the experimenter made this explanation his friends on Monhegan Island suspected that he had gone a bit "daffy" from overwork. But news of the professor's experiments allayed any such fear and caused the Monheganites to wonder if they could not, on the strength of this sale, supply other scientists with the salty liquid that beats up against the rocks in their doorways.

A FAREWELL PARTY

Rockland Rotarians Paid Respectful Regards To Rev. Walter S. Rounds

Rockland Rotarians 26 strong gathered Tuesday night at Rockledge Inn, Spruce Head, for the purpose of wishing God speed to Rev. Walter S. Rounds, long time member of the club who leaves in the immediate future for Cambridge, Mass.

Following a short dinner excelling Mrs. Maker's well known best, President Walter P. Conley of the Rockland Rotary Club expressed feelingly the regret of the organization at losing so valued a member and the ending of weekly associations so deeply cherished. He joined the club in wishing Mr. Rounds success in his new field of endeavor which represents the consummation of a life's ambition. In conclusion he presented a handsome gift from the club as a whole.

Mr. Rounds responded with characteristic charm and as a sort of valedictory to his many and highly valued talks before the group, discussed the poignant memories of the early days of the Rockland Rotary Club so closely interwoven with reminiscences of the beloved and colorful first president and directing genius, the late Dr. Walter H. Spear. Anecdotes were added by Henry B. Bird, Willis I. Ayer and Raymond E. Thurston. Farewells were spoken at 10.30.

In the haste of compiling the election report Tuesday morning there was not opportunity for the deserved praise which should go to this newspaper's faithful and adept workers. One of the telephones was handled for the bulk of the evening by William J. Sullivan, and it was his courteous voice that many of you heard when you asked for information. The unfortunate feature about compiling election returns is that most of them come in a bunch and there is not opportunity to prepare either an elaborate or accurate statement for those who seek information. The clerical work was mainly done by Fred C. Black, Albert C. McLean and Milton M. Griffin; Mr. Black being the man at the adding machine. Others aided in various ways. The first returns came over the telephone cable from Matinicus and were received at 8.33 p. m. The last town heard from was Rockport, but this was due to the fact that the telephone message went by mistake to the Court House instead of the Courier-Gazette office. This paper is extremely grateful to all who helped locally and those obliging friends from the outside towns who did not quit until the last figures were in. The Courier-Gazette office was jammed all night, and several hundred waited on the street to read the bulging stacks of the windows. At the Court House 100 men and women assembled. No other election in recent years has excited so much attention.

One-tenth of the active members of the Rockland Lions Club were elected to office Monday, and they were given an ovation at yesterday's meeting of that service club. An added "hand" being given to Albert Winslow because it was his birthday. The other successful Lion candidates were Sheriff-elect C. Earle Ludwick, County Commissioner-elect E. Stewart Orbeton of Rockport, and Representative-elect Albert B. Elliot of Thomaston. Parker E. Worrey, Blake Annis, Albert C. Jones, Robert Russell and Albert Elliot were appointed a committee to consider the matter of presenting a play. F. A. Winslow was guest speaker, subject "Sixteen Years Afterward." Guests yesterday were John M. Richardson, Charles C. Wotton, Tyler M. Coombs and Herbert R. Mullen.

The annual inspection of ordnance property in the hands of units and individuals of the Maine National Guard is soon to be made. All ordnance material including fire control apparatus will be presented to the inspector at the time of his visit. The inspector will be accompanied by Master Sergeant George Marchiondi, who will have the necessary repair parts to make all repairs. Unit commanders are requested to assist the inspector by having their material available and presenting lists of breakages to the inspector upon his arrival. The inspection of Battery E, Rockland, will be made Oct. 26 and 27, and the inspection of Battery F, Thomaston, will be made Oct. 29 and 30. The annual inventory and audit will be made at local armories by Major Richard P. Saville, State Ordnance Officer, and Captain Elliott C. Goodwin, Infantry. The latter will visit the Rockland Battery Sept. 21, at 9 a. m. in each case.

Stanley Murray, Elwood Hewitt and Richard Spear conducted a nature show Monday at the Murray home, Talbot avenue, which drew a large number of admiring patrons who felt that the fine exhibit ranged by the lake was worth far more than the modest admission fee of three cents. They had on display rocks, minerals, lichens and flowers, well arranged and classified, and showing much originality and thought. A most commendable undertaking for youngsters of their tender years.

Capt. Sidney Arey a former Rockland man, has been looking up old friends while Barge No. 11 is at Vinalhaven loading paving for New York. Capt. Arey is in the employ of the Cullen Transportation Co., with which he has been connected for 17 years. His wife, who accompanies him on most of his trips, is here with him.

Dogs from all the New England States are expected to compete in the Second Annual State of Maine Field Trials for Bird Dogs to be held Sept. 22 and 23 at Point Spring, under the auspices of the Androscoggin Fish and Game Association.

THE POLITICAL AFTERMATH

Brann's Plurality Much Less Than First Reported

—State Legislature Republican—Congressional Vote In Second District

Instead of having a majority of 38,000, as stated in our Tuesday issue on the basis of figures furnished from outside sources, it now appears that Gov. Brann's majority is only 23,679. Senator Hale is apparently re-elected by 12,388, although Candidate Dubord, who made such a brilliant campaign for the office, has served notice that he will seek a recount.

In the First Congressional District Beedy, Rep., was defeated by a majority of 1638; in the Second District, Representative Moran is re-elected by 6000, although his own tabulation shows it to be considerably larger; in the Third District Representative Uterback is unseated by ex-Gov. Brewster, an emphatic foe of the new deal, by 2965 majority. Here are the Associated Press figures with only seven small precincts missing.

| U. S. Senator | |
|---------------|---------|
| Hale (R) | 139,220 |
| Dubord (D) | 137,982 |

A Republican Legislature
The Republicans will control the next Legislature on a joint ballot, 121 to 63. Twenty-two Republicans have been elected to the Senate and 11 Democrats. The House will stand 99 Republicans and 52 Democrats. This gives the Republicans exactly a two-thirds majority in the Senate, but they have a lesser proportional strength in the House than in the other chamber.

The Democrats gained four senators and the Republicans six representatives.

The present Senate stands 26 Republicans and seven Democrats and the House 93 Republicans, 57 Democrats and one Independent.

When Moran Won

In announcing the reelection of Representative Moran Tuesday, the Associated Press said:

Edward C. Moran, Jr., ardent advocate of New Deal policies and untiring worker for the Democratic cause, will resume his seat as Maine's Second District Congressional representative as a result of the election.

Quiet, soft spoken, the Rockland Congressman is looked upon as one of the more progressive members of his party. Largely through his efforts and personality many observers believed, the Democrats were able to make a breach in the state's solid Republicanism in 1932 by placing a Democratic governor and two Representatives, including himself, in office.

During his tenure his voice was heard on the floor of Congress more often than those of the majority of new members, and general attention was accorded his efforts to secure measures reacting to Maine's benefit. Sponsor of several bills in his first year in the House, he shed from the spotlight and persuaded older members to introduce his measures.

Twice he was placed on the "sacred block" for major political office when prospects of Democratic victory were dim. He ran for governor against William Tudor Gardner (R) in 1928 and 1930, electioneering against the "power interest." Both times he was defeated.

The Vote on Repeal
Maine voted to repeal its prohibitory law by a majority of more than 41,000. After repeal, what?

Gov. Brann said he would canvass State Legislators on their attitude toward enacting liquor control laws in view of Maine's heavy vote for repeal.

Statutory prohibition still remained in force, repealable only by Legislative action.

"I am in favor of quick action, now that the constitutional amendment has been repealed," Gov. Brann said. However, he added that unless it can be canvassed a desire of legislators to pass regulatory legislation he would not call a special session of the law makers. The next regular session convenes in January, 1935.

At a special session of the Legislature in December, 1933, when machinery for the Monday resubmission vote which repealed the 21st Amendment was set up, the law makers defeated repeated attempts to pass emergency legislation providing for the sale of strong liquor in Maine. The two-thirds vote necessary for emergency legislation could not be obtained on a bill designed to make legal the sale of liquor for medicinal and mechanical purposes and the arts—and on other measures.

Scores of laws, set up by the Legislature for the prohibition of liquor sale and manufacture in Maine, can be repealed only by the lawmaking body. In spite of Monday's overwhelming repeal vote, Maine remains as high and dry as it was before Monday's election.

Corrected Returns
In publishing the Rockport election returns Tuesday, a slip of the pen made us say that Walter A. Ayer, the Republican candidate for representative to Legislature received 243 votes there. As a matter of fact he received 343 votes as was correctly stated in the Legislative summary, published in another column. Mr. Ayer made a splendid showing in his class, and is entitled to full credit.

State Senator Blin W. Page will again seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1936, the Associated Press said.

What Vocation Shall My Boy Choose?

By Charles Ellison,
Principal, School of Advertising,
International Correspondence Schools.

We live in a changing world. Opportunities for success in the future will differ from those in the past. A boy's wise choice of his life work may do much to determine success or failure. How shall he choose?

The Opportunity in Advertising

WIDER distribution of the products which our factories can turn out in almost unlimited quantities is generally admitted to be the chief problem of the age. With equal unanimity advertising is admitted to be one of the chief aids to wider distribution. It cuts costs by permitting mass production; it widens demand by creating new desires. There is every reason to believe advertising will offer even greater opportunities in the future than it has in the past.

What is the most important qualification which the young man must possess to succeed in advertising? Not literary ability, as many believe, but rather the ability to devise effective plans for the marketing and advertising of the product, and to analyze the product and the prospective customers' wants so as to discover how the most effective appeal can be made. This is no inborn ability. It comes as a result of close study of modern merchandising methods.

How can the young man best break into the ranks of advertising? Hundreds of firms have their advertising departments where practically all types of office workers are required. Selling of all kinds—over-the-counter, house-to-house and closing the contract for construction of an ocean liner—is closely allied to advertising. Any number of men have traveled along these and other routes to success in advertising, using every opportunity to study the methods and problems of modern merchandising while on the way.

Among the State Senators elected in Cumberland County (all good Republicans) are William Bissett, formerly of Vinalhaven; Franz U. Burkett, formerly of Union; and Judge Max L. Pinansky, the popular orator who has often spoken in Knox County.

Fire departments of Rockport and Rockland joined forces last night in battling a spectacular blaze that leveled the huge, hay filled barn of Dave Burns on Commercial street, the back road, at Glen Cove. Twelve cows and one horse perished in the flames and the winter's hay and some equipment was lost. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Charles E. Gregory who caused the fire signal on the Power House to be sounded thus summoning help, but the flames had spread too quickly to allow the cattle to be saved. The flames lit skies drew hundreds of motorists from far and near and solid ranks of parked cars extended for a long distance on Route 1 and adjacent highways. The home place, across the street from the barn was saved, the firemen extending hose lines through woods and fields from Route 1 to Commercial street to make this possible. There was over 40 tons of hay in the building, which held the Rockport pump and engine on the job until 6 o'clock this morning. Mr. Burns had a small insurance on the building, none on contents.

The paper desires to note such arrivals (the guests themselves look for it), and to this end asks its readers to send in such items, either directly to the office, or to the society reporter, Mrs. Gladys Morgan, whose telephone number is 794. Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

When the heat comes, thousands leave New York. They have many places to go. The seashore bungalow colonies are little cities in themselves. There are other summer cities up in the mountains. In addition, there are hundreds of lakes. In fact, the state of New York offers just about every variety of scenery, except desert, that a vacation lover may desire. Since that is true within commuting distance, during the summer many New Yorkers merely toil in town and sleep and play away from the lights of Broadway. But there are other thousands who cannot do that. For them the seashore is Coney Island, the mountains, the Palisades of New Jersey and the lakes more often than not, the basin of some fountain or maybe just a freplog shower.

Those thousands, or rather I should say millions, do not live in sections of the city where there is some escape from the effects of the sun. Their dwellings are in the narrow streets of the tenement districts. Their homes are airless and oftentimes dark. For them, there is no escape from the heat. Nights, they crowd the roofs or the parks. Days, they get along as best they can. Often, mothers, to keep their babies from stifling, load them into perambulators and walk with them until the early morning hours afford some relief. It is wearisome, but babies must breathe. And after those all night rambles, the mothers do their housework and cook in kitchens some of which are equipped with coal or wood stoves. Those street showers are beaches of the tenement youngsters. They about happily under the cool spray and carry on much like we used to do when we walked out to the old sycamore, peeled our clothes and enjoyed ourselves in the yellow Scoto. The youngsters of the slums can't go quite that far, however. But they go as far as they can, a single garment satisfying the conventions. Some, however, wear bathing suits. Asked a he did and he replied, "Because I feel like it. I'm out at Coney." And an old sly turned his head right quick!

Perhaps you've read about Ramon Millon. I think the Recording Angel placed a gold mark opposite Ramon Millon's name. The only money he has is his name, because he's come out of work a long time. He came out of his home on One Hundred and Eighth street and found a bunch of heat-exhausted kids trying to turn on a fire hydrant. They weren't strong enough, so Ramon Millon did it for them. He cooled off the kids. But he broke the law. While he still had the wrench in his hand along came a radio car and Ramon Millon was arrested.

In court, he made no attempt to deny his guilt. The magistrate was sympathetic and imposed a fine of only $2. Millon didn't have even a nickel so he went to jail for two days. And I sincerely hope his cell was cool and comfortable—as cool and comfortable as he made those youngsters.

Speaking of hot weather, happened to notice two men high up on a scaffold cleaning the front of an apartment house. Usually this is done with a sand blast, a gritty, hard job. But in this instance, with the mercury well up toward the top of the tube, live steam was being used!

Maybe Society—Big S—isn't looking back to the Harry Lehr monkey party days, but right after the Astor-French show over at Newport, out at Syosset, L. I., there was a debutante party with a "milk bar" at which a genuine, tall-swinging, pall-upsetting Bossy was a feature. Also circus freaks helped enliven the occasion.

New Typhoid Serum Is Tested on 65 Patients

New Orleans.—Tests of a new typhoid serum at two hospitals here by a New York physician resulted in his being awarded the gold medal by the American association at Cleveland recently.

Dr. Gregory Schwartzman, of Mount Sinai hospital, in New York, won the award for the serum, which "marks a great advance in the battle on this disease."

When typhoid cases in New York did not offer the doctor such a large field, he came to Charity hospital here with Dr. George Baehr, also of the New York hospital.

During a three-month test period, 65 patients received the serum. The "cure" was not only more rapid, but was classed as "remarkable."

Surveyors Balked by Mountain Goats

They have been eating the little white rags which the surveyors attach to brush and twigs in laying out new trails.

Popularity Begins at Breakfast

Popular people are usually well people. They are the people who feel fine, who enjoy life, who see the bright side of things—and almost always you'll find that they are the people who eat right.

If you want to be popular, if you want to go places and do things, try Shredded Wheat with milk and fruit at least one meal a day.

Shredded Wheat is a most nourishing food—whole wheat, boiled and baked—in easily digested and delicious form. It contains the carbohydrates needed for energy; the proteins needed for tissue building; the mineral salts needed for bone structure; the vitamins that help you resist disease; and bran to keep you regular. Nature might have made a better food than wheat—but she didn't!

Shredded Wheat is mighty economical, too. Start it today and see if popularity doesn't depend on the way you feel!

CUSHING

It is regretted that the notice in regard to the service at the Baptist Church last Sunday did not get published in time to notify the public of the correct date, hour, etc., with Revs. Timberlake of Auburn and Lewis of the M. E. Church, Friendship, assisted by the singing of Curtis Saulsbury, the celebrated Connecticut gospel singer. However, those who did attend were amply repaid for their efforts notwithstanding the greater part of the day being made disagreeable by rain. They all attended the M. E. Church at Friendship in the evening and a good sized audience was present.

Rev. Frederick Duplisse of Boston will conduct services at the Baptist Church Sept. 16 at 10:30 daylight, and everyone is invited to attend.

Rev. Duplisse is spending a vacation at Pleasant Point, and was a student last year at the Bangor Theological Seminary. Remember the date, Sept. 16.

Schools in town opened this week with the same corps of teachers, except at Pleasant Point where Miss Grace Miller of Thomaston is teaching. Miss Edith Stevens who formerly taught there is to attend University of Maine this fall, this being her second year at that school where her name was on the Dean's list the year she attended. Her many friends wish her the same success this year.

John Edgerton arrived from New York Saturday to spend a vacation with his mother at the Edgerton home.

Every day marks the exodus of some of the summer colony which this year, has been exceptionally large.

The heavy rain of Saturday and Sunday was of great benefit to many who were short of water, several of the wells in town being very low or entirely dry, caused by the prolonged drought.

Some of the farmers are digging their potatoes, and report a good crop, many of which are unusually large and of fine quality.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Fales were visitors Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Flint.

Foreign news on apples indicates a small crop in the United States and Canada. The European crop, however, is large. This will probably mean a restriction on the export of American apples. The United States commercial apple crop is placed at 68,070,000 bushels or 29 per cent below the average crop during the five year period 1927-31 and the smallest crop since 1921. The barreled apple crop in the Eastern States is 42 per cent below average.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality
Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.
If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.
If kidneys don't empty 15 miles every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.
But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable remedy that contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McMillan Co.

"AMERICAN MARCHES FURTHER AHEAD" WITH A NEW PRINCIPLE

★ IN REFINING ★

LAST year the American Oil Company, as a result of its merger with the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company and the Mexican Petroleum Corporation, extended its already large operations to the greater territory from Maine to Florida and inland. AMERICAN MARCHED AHEAD!

Just recently the American Oil Company completed its new refinery at Texas City, Texas. It is the world's newest, biggest and most modern refining unit. And with this new refinery was born a new principle in refining which converts more of the undeveloped energy of the raw crudes into finished gasoline than ever before was possible. AMERICAN MARCHES FURTHER AHEAD!

Out of this great modern refinery comes "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS--the amazing new regular gasoline that is unlike anything ever before produced. For no existing refinery equipment could produce it! It is better in every way a gasoline can be better--in anti-knock--in surer power--in easier riding--more miles--readier acceleration and in lower cost.

In short--"New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS is new in every sense of the words "New-Action". And "New-Action" American is all you have to tell our dealers and station attendants from Maine to Florida to get it--and at regular gas price!

SUNLIGHT!

Loading gasoline on sledges for a tractor trip at Little America. One I shall have an interesting story to tell you and we shall have made a new contribution to the exploration science. We were towing Rawson on a sledge. He communicated with June in the driver's seat by means of two lights on the dash. Even for such a short trip we had to carry complete trail equipment of food, fuel, stoves, cookers, radio machines and so on because of the possibility of being caught in one of the blinding blizzards which descend without warning and make travel impossible. After reaching the Pressure Ridge we disregarded any possible trail and navigated by compass. We passed towering ridges of ice and detoured around impossible hummocks. It was weird and inspiring in the half light. The rough uneven surface looked gloomy and forbidding. We could glimpse the trail left by the other party, weaving in and out, retracing and sometimes even circling. It was evident they had been in difficulties several times and had wandered for miles trying to get through.

We kept a sharp lookout for crevasses and narrowly avoided several. In the Pressure Ridge areas of ice that have sunk to water level and other areas presenting huge, grotesque formations 50 and 60 feet high. By navigation we made 8 miles in one hour over the same terrain and under the same conditions that required 12 hours for the other tractor expedition. Our new method of navigating proved highly successful and I'll tell you all about it later. It was my first experience on the Antarctic trail in the darkness and it is something I shall remember all my life. Frankly, I don't like it. One has a constant feeling of danger and, again, it is not the soft, velvety darkness of more temperate climates but a heavy flat thick blackness that seems to beat you down oppressively.

Now that the sun is here I am going to have wonderful things to tell the club members in these weekly stories. You know, there is no charge for membership in this club. All you have to do is get a membership card and a big free 20 x 27 1/2 inch working map of Antarctica is to send me a clearly addressed, stamped envelope at the American headquarters. Address: Arthur Able, Jr., President, Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, Hotel Lexington, 48th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

We left at 11:30 a. m., following the faintly visible trail left by Dr. Poulter and his crew. Rawson had devised a new method of navigation of a tractor and we were all anxious to try out this idea because navigating from the driver's seat had proved too difficult and dangerous. If this new method proves as successful in future trips as it did on this one, it will be a great contribution to the exploration science.

When Dr. Poulter and his tractor party arrived at Admiral Byrd's hut last week one of their first messages to us said, "Please have trail clearly marked in crevasses and through Pressure Ridge." It was in this area that the tractor party became lost, narrowly escaped falling into a crevasse and the sledge with 1400 pounds of equipment was swallowed up so that it took the tractor crew five hours to get it out. Immediately upon receipt of the message Harold I. June, of Darien, Conn., Bernard Skinner, of Winthrop, Me., Kenneth Dawson, of Chicago, and I were ordered to get into trail clothes and take the reserve tractor out there for the purpose of marking the trail through this terrible area.

We left at 11:30 a. m., following the faintly visible trail left by Dr. Poulter and his crew. Rawson had devised a new method of navigation of a tractor and we were all anxious to try out this idea because navigating from the driver's seat had proved too difficult and dangerous. If this new method proves as successful in future trips as it did on this one, it will be a great contribution to the exploration science.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything. What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and 8% of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every minute.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for looser teeth, grises and scalds the rectum in many people. "YOU AND YOUR CAR"

Points of Personal Interest to Every Motorist

by Frederick C. Russell
a National Motor Authority

(Copyrighted)

Twins are not necessarily a collision even if they are two things that come together.

Effects From the Throttle

How any engine performs depends somewhat on its accelerator and the mechanical linkage that serves to control the throttle. In addition, there is a dash of psychology to the matter. If an accelerator is easy to depress the driver feels that the motor is more responsive, whereas too stiff an accelerator gives the feeling of drag and loss of power. Accelerator pedals with more than the usual leverage are especially deceiving since they cause the throttle to open more quickly than normal. Stickage in the accelerator mechanism or the throttle control will make it more difficult to handle the car in lower speed range. Often this stickage lies in the rusted throttle shaft or in the plunger of the accelerator pump. When the throttle does not close promptly the car will not decelerate as rapidly as normal. This may give the impression of low compression. A weak throttle return spring will actually cause more wear on brake lining since the engine will not be so responsive as a brake.

May Broaden His View

One of the car manufacturers has started something by suggesting an advantage in parting company with the habit of always buying the same make of car. Many are starting to speculate as to what might happen if everyone's next car were some other make. Would it result in a landslide for some one make of car? Would a number of current makes immediately go out of the picture? Or would there be just a shuffling process with no special gains or losses?

In view of the code's effect on trade-in valuations there has been a strong incentive on the part of buyers this year to experiment, but as yet there are no certain evidences that without a special inducement to remain loyal to his favorite make the motorist is switching to any one make. That he is doing considerable switching is made plain by the fact that he is watching one's neighbors, but personal preferences plus selling points still seem to sway the buyer in making his decision. Probably there would be no harm to the automobile industry if every man's next car were another make, and there is a general feeling that he would have much to gain by having a wider acquaintance with what the industry has to offer. The experience would be of inestimable value to him, saving him from the harm of "one-car-mindedness."

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"While majority of owners of any one make or model of car should have about the same experience with it, the fact is that people map out their own course through their own peculiar habits. That is why there is no use worrying if a lot of people with cars like yours are having clutch trouble or bad experience with brakes. That also explains why you can't afford to think you'll never have any trouble with the gears just because your friends with the same kind of car do not know what gear trouble is.

"A weak clutch will fare well enough in the hands of a driver who is unusually careful. I've seen many a husky rear end yield to the man who races the motor as he takes his foot off the clutch pedal abruptly. Watch the other fellow's experience as a general guide, but don't assume that his experience is going to be yours too."

This Problem Is Solved

Do you have trouble at night trying to make up your mind whether you have switched the headlights for the far focus or the near? You do not want to blind the other fellow but it is often difficult to tell whether you are helping him or making his path a nightmare. I've worried along with this problem myself for some time and have come to the conclusion that it can be solved by remembering to drop the headlight rays the moment an oncoming car appears. If the job is done early there's no problem at all.

Some Leeway Is Justified

Any motorist who remembers when tire manufacturers used to recommend 70 pounds air pressure when they know that 50 pounds would be enough will catch a thought in the current recommendations regarding the grade of oil for new engines. There is no use in taking instruction book advice so literally that one is forced to use unpopular brands of oil or drive along with the engine shy a quart or two of lubricant. When a manufacturer insists that nothing heavier than S.A.E. 30 be used he does not mean that S.A.E. 40, a heavier grade, would ruin the engine if a quart or so of it were added. He simply means that the crankcase should not be completely filled with the heavier grade.

Try Mixing Oil Grades

If engine oil is too heavy for the motor or one of the first indications is a higher operating temperature. Owners who wish to experiment with different grades of oil can use the engine's heat indicator as a handy guide. It is not well, I might add, to make a jump from it to say S.A.E. 20 to S.A.E. 30 for a complete filling of the crankcase. Much more sensible is the plan of mixing some heavier oil with the lighter grade. In this way it is possible to obtain the equivalent of an "S.A.E. 25, 35 or 45."

Hard To Hear Trouble

One reason why open cars often develop serious engine trouble is because drivers are less likely to know when they are straining the motor. It is extremely hard to hear the ping of carbon, gas detonation or advanced spark when rolling along in a convertible if the top is down. Miles of this sort of neglect are certain to bring its penalties. Just let this be a tip to owners of modern closed cars as well. Remember that if you cannot hear the engine's tappets there are other noises which are equally muffled by the body insulation. Many of these noises are warnings of trouble. Have a ear ready to catch them.

Old Rule In Style

It has always been advisable to be careful adding water to the radiator because of the risk of having it overflow. With so many cars now equipped with an under-the-hood filler pipe the old rule is more timely than ever since there is just that much more danger of spilling water on the distributor head or the coil. A point that has to do with personal safety is the importance of switching off the motor when attending to this job, otherwise the fan may prove to be a source of injury.

Speed Draws Them Out

The faster a car travels the longer it becomes. That isn't quite fact, but the equivalent of it. As a car travels higher into the speed brackets it requires more room in which to be manoeuvred. It cannot be cut around other cars as easily. It needs much more space in which to stop. To all intents and purposes it is three or four times its original length.

What Others Are Asking

Q. I am having considerable trouble with overheating of the motor. I have had the block and radiator cleaned and flushed twice, and have also had a new belt applied to the fan. Your advice regarding a check-up of the condition of the fan bearing has also been followed. Timing and ignition are accurate.—P. C.

A. The clutch of your car is slipping. This is common to this model after 40,000 miles of service.

Q. I am planning to do a ring job on my engine. Will you be good enough to send me further details, including such points as whether the ring gaps should be staggered or set in a straight line.—H. H. L.

A. I can help you most by urging you to go to a good mechanic for a job like this. Your query suggests that you do not know even the first grade steps in this work, whereas ring fitting is a job for the best of service men. Ring gaps should never be a straight line.

Q. With a pressure feed oiling system does it make any difference if the oil level is not up to the "full" mark? I have been told that I could get more speed out of my car by keeping the oil level low, since the oil acts like a resistance.—W. J. T.

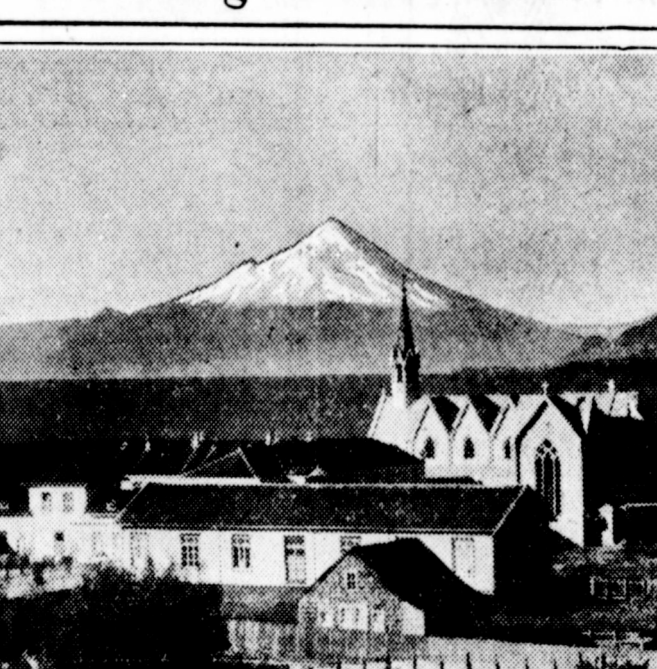

A. When the quantity of oil is diminished the quality drops since a smaller amount of oil will thin out more quickly than will a larger quantity. Your other point is theoretical. The chances are that with less oil the motor would be more inclined to lower power and speed through overheating.

BIG FIVE LEAGUE

Just one more game to play in the Big Five this season, and this all important contest must take place because it decides whether or not South Thomaston will tie for first place. If the Keag succeeds in defeating the Pirates Sunday at Community Park, they will be in a tie with Rockport and a play-off series or game will have to be played to decide the cup winner.

Traveling Around America

CHILE'S VERSION OF SWITZERLAND

CHILE is one of the most versatile countries in the world. In her beach resorts she appears in the sophisticated role of the Lido. In her great cities, Santiago and Valparaiso, she rivals the most glittering of European capitals; near Temuco where the Araucanian Indians dwell, she goes as primitive as the Navajo pueblos of New Mexico; in the north she takes on the role of the Sahara; and in her Lake District in the south, she surpasses the majestic beauty of Switzerland.

This Lake region with its peaceful villages set among sea-green lakes, snow-crowned peaks, and forests carpeted with shoulder-high ferns, is a vacation spot with a particular appeal to travelers from the United States, because of the favorable rate of exchange and the frequency with which luxurious ships from New York and California visit Chile.

Puerto Varas, the picturesque village shown above, rests on Lago Llanquihue in the shadow of Calbuco; El Tronador, the Thunderer; and Osorno, a perfect white-capped cone called the Fujiyama of Chile. This lake and the nearby "Lake of All the Saints," contrasting tranquility in aspect and deportment, are the beauty-center of the region. The former is like a rowdy child—round, blue, and in winter frolicking about in waves and white caps which rival those of the sea; the latter is three cornered, green as an emerald, and as tranquil as the saints for whom she was named. Both do their beautiful bit to support Chile in her role of a super-Switzerland.

AT STRAND SATURDAY

Maureen O'Sullivan and Robert Montgomery in "Hide-Out"

"Hide-Out," which comes for Saturday only, is heralded as one of those wholesome film productions which leave a lasting impression upon those who see it. It deals with a happy-go-lucky post-repeal racketeer who, believing he has everything one could wish for in life—money, without working for it, romance and pleasure—comes to his senses after he has been driven from New York by the police, only to find real love and happiness in a rural environment.

As "Lucky" Wilson, the playboy, Robert Montgomery has a made-to-order role. Reluctantly he is compelled to find a country hide-out to escape arrest and to recover from a bullet wound, but he soon becomes entranced with the country when he meets Maureen O'Sullivan, cast in the role of a farmer's daughter.

While the story of "Hide-Out" opens in the gay spots of New York, most of its action takes place on a Connecticut farm—adv.

BIDDING FOR THE LIGHTHOUSES

Proposals for the Nine Parcels Ranged From One Dollar To Two Thousand

(The Sept 4 issue of this paper reported from the Boston Transcript a story of the Maine coast lighthouses, written by Fred C. Green, who now supplements with further particulars dealing with the opening bids of their prospective sale.)

Uncle Sam's first venture as a realtor specializing in lighthouse property, writes Mr. Green, which was detailed in the Transcript a week ago, turned out surprisingly well, as revealed by the list of bids which have been forwarded by the Portland office of the lighthouse bureau to Washington, where they will be examined and passed upon in the office of the Secretary of Commerce.

Nine parcels of property, along the Maine coast, including eight lighthouse towers, were offered for sale. Eighty-one bids were received, ranging from $1 to $2250. The total amount of the nine "high dollar" offerings was $7039.

As was expected, the tower, dwelling and other buildings at Hendrick's Head, West Southport, brought the highest bid, as the property was regarded as unusually desirable. Alda L. and James H. Connor of West Southport submitted an offer of $2250, the next highest being a bid of $1750 by Margaret Gailie of Montclair, N. J.

The smallest amount represented by a top bid was the $205 offer for the lighthouse, dwelling and reservation on Southern Island, at the mouth of Tenants Harbor. This figure was submitted by Ernest Rawley, a resident of Tenants Harbor, Narragansett, on Pond Island, well up in the eastern coast of Maine brought a top bid of $350 from George P. Cherry of Derby Academy, Hingham. The house and land on Isle au Haut, furthest off shore of all those to be sold, and the one in which the Government is retaining the tower, were considered worth $550 by G. Kennard Wakefield, of Weston. Doubling Point, the quiet inland station well up the Kennebec River, brought a bid of $505 from Captain

"SISTERS UNDER THE SKIN"

A Correspondent Offers An Interesting Angle Concerning Married and Single

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Annexed to the pitying attitude generally adopted toward the old maid, there might be, at the present time particularly, cause for active dislike or at least a justifiable contempt of her selfishness, for in the case of the unmarried independent girl who is gainfully employed a sense of comparative security is possible which appears to be a rarity in any family life today.

Having occasion to learn of a married friend's hectic struggle for existence during the past few years, a local spinster (from choice and otherwise) was appalled at the inequality of well-being directly traceable to matrimony, and straightway experienced a most disconcerting sense of guilt at enjoying such a quantity of the world's goods when a companion, hitherto endowed with much the same opportunity, was obliged to suffer hardship; due to an unemployed husband and the prevalent prejudice directed at married women workers.

Any member of the fair sex brave and fine enough to devote herself to the home in preference to independence should merit a kinder fate, for hers is a service rich in devotion and unworldliness, but unfortunately an existing distorted scheme of life extorts from her, all too often, a profound sacrifice in prosperity and domestic pleasures so cherished by the feminine heart. Possibly, like virtue, domestic bondage is expected to be its own reward.

Bachelor girls are anathema to Benito Mussolini, and from a social standpoint alone, aside from the labor question, it may be readily seen that two grades of circumstances for women of equal ability is an undesirable situation, arousing envy on the one hand and smugness in the fortunate member. If Duce waits his female sacrifice in the kitchen in a drastic endeavor to level the status of women, and while the high-handed methods of Italy's dictator are unlikely of copy in this country, the result of his mandate will be awaited with lively interest by all "sisters under the skin."

VANISHING EEL GRASS

Maine Planning Board Learns Of It And Offers Its Opinions

Eelgrass, one of Maine's valuable commercial products, is threatened with extinction, the Maine State Planning Board announced the other day, although readers of The Courier-Gazette have long been aware of it. Not only is this grass important to waterfowl and other aquatic life, but it has considerable economic value. Freeman F. Burr, assistant engineer in charge of conservation said.

Although not properly a grass itself, the long-leaved flowering plant of the pondweed family which grows in dense stands on muddy bottoms in the brackish water of bay-heads, coves and estuaries along the coast is popularly known as eelgrass.

extinction, it is well for us to give serious consideration to the fact that it has value, not only in itself, but in relation to the other forms of aquatic life common to the regions it inhabits," the report said.

"Eelgrass is itself an article of commerce, as shown by the fact that it has been harvested at the rate of about 5000 tons a year, valued at about $5 a ton; depending upon its value as a heat and sound insulating material.

"Aside from its direct value, it has an even greater importance as food for geese, Canada geese and many species of ducks, particularly in winter. It also has a direct influence on the abundance of shore fish and some types of shell-fish and crustaceans.

"Natural replacement" of eelgrass, after partial extinction, is known to have taken place at intervals in the past. Possibly this will happen again, before the point of complete extinction has been reached. At any rate, even partial denudation, along considerable stretches of our coast, is bound to result seriously for those forms of life which depend directly or indirectly upon eelgrass for sustenance or shelter. It will be well for all who have the opportunity to watch carefully for signs of disease, and to report cases noted. In the event of widespread denudation, we should be ready to apply methods of artificial replacement."
