ONE YEAR AGO

From the files of The Courier-Gazette we learn that:

The Camden Chamber of Commerce endorsed J. Crosby Hobbs for the State Highway Commission.

The High School seniors led by Principal Blaisdell were having a happy time in Washington, D. C.

Dr. William Ellingwood was enjoying much popularity with a lecture describing his trip to South America.

The public landing was being transformed.

The opening of the Central Maine's new electric kitchen was a great success.

CAMDEN MOUNTAIN PROJECT

Cong. Moran Wires That It Is Officially Approved and Funds Allotted

Camden Mountains.

A brief telegram from Congressman Moran yesterday was freighted with importance for Knox and Waldo counties. It read:

"Camden mountain project officially approved today. FERA funds allotted."

In due time the story of that great undertaking will be given to the public. In brief it involves the building of a modern highway across the Camden Mountains, the possible construction of a mountain park, together with many miles of trails. Option has already been obtained on 6000 acres of land necessary to the project, and it is possible that 4000 additional acres may be utilized. A C.C.C. Camp of 200 members will be engaged in the work which is expected to occupy three years.

BUSY AT OAK HILL

It is good news for Belfast and vicinity that about 90 men will again be at work on Oak Hill, owned by the Oak Hill Granite Company. The contract for paving blocks will last into the fall. It is from New York for use on the streets. The large boarding house near the quarry has been renovated.

ROCKLAND IN THE SADDLE

I. Leslie Cross was elected commander of the Department of Maine, Sons of Union Veterans, yesterday at the concluding session of the annual encampment. E. K. Gould of Rockland was re-elected secretary-treasurer for his 30th consecutive term.

Other officers elected were: Almon I. Spinney of Farmington, senior vice commander; Charles C. Webster of Sanford, junior vice commander; Leonard C. Holsten of Westbrook, Russell E. Hosmer of Brunswick, and Dr. W. Hartwell Pollard of Waterville, members of the Department Council, and H. W. Ferris of Waterville and W. W. Jewett of Portland, trustees of the department of historic relics.

Commander Cross announced these appointments: Henry Towle of Portland, department inspector; J. Manley Patterson of Hallowell, a member of the Rockland Post, personal aide; and Harold Fairbrother of Camden, press correspondent.

The new officers were installed by Arthur M. Soule of Harrisville, R. I., national chaplain.

PORTLAND LIONS

This Week's Meeting Had a Distinctly Knox County Flavor

Six Knox County Lions were present at the meeting of the Portland Lions Club in the Eastland Hotel Tuesday noon—David Crockett and Roland Crockett of the Camden-Rockport Club, and Col. E. K. Gould, Edward Gonia, I. Leslie Cross and F. A. Winslow of the Rockland Club. Mr. Winslow was guest speaker and his lecture "Flirting With Fame" was cordially received.

Among the other visitors on this occasion were H. N. McDougall, Ted Moulton and H. Augustus Merrill, who were guests of Walter W. Morse; William Monkhouse, who was the guest of Mr. Gonia and State Senator William H. Bissett of Portland who was the guest of Mr. Winslow.

Mr. McDougall, whose duties as president of the National Bank of Commerce in Portland are very exacting made a personal sacrifice to be present at this meeting. Mr. Moulton, treasurer of the institution, is a son of the late L. E. Moulton, former principal of Rockland High School, and during his course at Bates College starred in several major branches of athletics.

"Gus" Merrill, who was formerly editor of the Knox Messenger, and prior to that city editor of the Rockland Star, had a very cordial welcome

SUPPLEMENTED BY CONGRESSMEN

Were the Efforts Of Alfred C. Hocking For River and Harbor Improvement

Improvement of the Chandler River at Jonesport to provide a better channel for transporting material for construction of the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal power project was recommended yesterday by Representative Brewster.

Appearing before the War Department board of engineers for rivers and harbor, he said the Jonesboro granite quarries were the closest source of material for the power project.

Representative Moran headed a group from Rockland asking the improvement of Long Cove to provide similar facilities for granite quarries in that vicinity.

Brigadier General Pillsbury, board chairman, replied to Brewster that "if Quoddy is constructed, then the cost of securing a channel to ship from the quarries should be borne by an allotment for that project. It would not be useful for this engineering board to develop the quarry and excavate a channel to it as a second project."

Alfred C. Hocking, an official of the Booth Brothers Granite Corporation and Senator White urged the development of both projects. Hocking asked the removal of two stone ledges in Long Cove Channel and the improvement of about 1000 feet of the channel, now maintaining a depth of about 14 feet, to provide an 18 foot channel.

Brewster asked that the Chandler River be improved for four miles to provide a channel of about 12 feet.

Alfred C. Hocking of St. George who appeared for Long Cove and the Chandler River for the visitors. He is chief editorial writer on the Portland Evening News and the same indefatigable worker as of yore.

Senator Bissett who has a remarkable faculty for polling more votes than any other candidate in Cumberland County, and is a prime favorite in any gathering—with nobody making a secret of the fact that he will be a formidable candidate for the Republican nomination for Congressman from the First District next year. With a vivid memory of the Burns Day programs which used to be so popular at Vinalhaven Senator Bissett sang "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" and the Lions gave him a great hand.

Sitting near the head table was Henry F. Merrill, who received a typical Portland Club razzing when he arrived a bit tardily. Mr. Merrill is to be guest speaker at tonight's meeting of the Baptist Men's League in this city.

The King Lion of the Portland Club is Hon. Charles E. Gurney, who is to be congratulated upon having one of the finest Lions organizations in New England. The membership is limited to 100.

The quarters at the Eastland Hotel are ideal, and the proprietor of that famous hostelry, Frank Pierce, always has the heartiest of welcomes for Knox County folks, due to the fact that he is a Rockland boy, and has a summer home at Mirror Lake, as well as his delightful home at Peaks Island. He has directed the destinies of the Eastland the past nine years and prior to that was at the Congress Square one year. He is an ideal hotel man, and the success of the Eastland is due in no small measure to his executive ability. The hotel has 710 rooms.

Knox-Lincoln Clearing House Association Has Chief Justice As Guest Speaker

Homer E. Robinson, president of the Association

M. R. Pillsbury, secretary-treasurer of the Association

The annual meeting of the Knox-Lincoln Clearing House Association was held at the Knox Hotel, Thomas Monday night, and the 28 members in attendance had the pleasure of listening to Chief Justice William R. Pattangall, guest speaker, as he related some of his early political experiences.

An excellent supper was presented by Landlord Leighton. The election of officers resulted thus:

President—Homer E. Robinson, First National Bank of Rockland.
Secretary-Treasurer—M. R. Pillsbury, Knox County Trust Company.
Directors—Charles C. Wood, National Bank of Camden; Homer E. Robinson, M. R. Pillsbury, Richard O. Elliot, Thomaston National Bank, Alfred E. Storer, Medomak National of Waldoboro, Leon A. Dodge First National Bank of Damariscotta and Wilder B. Blake, representing the Boothbay Harbor and Wiscasset branches of the Depositors' Trust Co. of Augusta.
Russell B. Spear and Lawrence W.

Wyman from the Augusta office of the Depositors' Trust Co., were also guests.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

A NATION'S STRENGTH
What makes a nation's pillars high
And its foundations strong?
What makes it mighty to defy
The foes that round it throng?
It is not gold. Its kingdoms grand
Go down in battle shock;
Its shafts are laid on sinking sand,
Not on abiding rock.

Is it the sword? Ask the red dust
Of empires passed away;
The blood has turned their stones to rust,
Their glory to decay.

And is it pride? Ah, that bright crown
Has seemed to nations sweet;
But God has struck its luster down
In ashes at His feet.

Not gold but only men can make
A people great and strong;
Men who for truth and honor's sake
Stand fast and suffer long.

Brave men who work while others sleep.
Who dare while others fly—
They build a nation's pillars deep
And lift them to the sky.

A TREAT IN STORE

For the Sportsmen Who Come Into Maine To Fish At This Time

Beneath the weakening ice covering Maine's 2500 lakes and ponds, swim millions of game fish, planted by the state over a period of years as a lure for vacationists who have been estimated to spend $100,000,000 annually in the State.

Of the 17,000,000 salmon and trout placed in lakes, ponds, and streams in Maine each year by the State fish and game department, 10,000,000 were equal to or above the legal length to catch.

Commissioner Stobie said he learned a long time ago the planting of fry and fingerlings was virtually a waste of time because pickerel, bass and the cannibalistic salmon and trout hesitated not a mite in devouring them.

To assure fishermen of good sport, the State maintains 34 fish hatcheries and rearing stations which could produce 500,000,000 fish of fingerling and fry length each year, but keeps the yield down to a majority of legal length fish.

Two of the largest fish hatcheries in the world, at Gray (trout) and Kokadjo (salmon) are nearing completion. The Gray hatchery, consisting of seven miles of spring fed pools, will have an annual production of 12,000,000 legal size trout and the Kokadjo hatchery will have three miles of pools with an annual production of 2,000,000 legal size salmon.

Fishing experts estimated it would be one to four weeks before the ice left the biggest and best fishing lakes in the State.

ROCKLAND LIONS

Eat Last Meal Served In 38-Year Dining Hall of the Thorndike Hotel

The session of the Rockland Lions Club last night was an interesting chapter in the city's history, due to the fact that it was the last supper to be served in the dining hall which has been used by The Thorndike Hotel for 38 years. When the next meeting is held—next Wednesday noon—the Lions will probably find themselves in the handsome new dining room which Proprietor O'Neil is now having completed.

High School coaches and principals who have been in contact with the Lions Club by virtue of recent basketball hostilities, were guests of honor in the party being Coach Frederick Richards of Camden, Principal Sidney Snow of Rockport, Principal Coach John Creighton of Thomaston and Principal Coach Horace Macy of Warren. Another guest last night was Alderman Schofield.

The members listened with much interest as Edward Gonia described Tuesday's meeting of the Portland Lions Club, attended by six Knox County Lions.

Chet Black, Bert Gardner and John McLoon were named by King Lion Newman as baseball committee for the coming season and Ken Libby and John McLoon were appointed members of the entertainment committee for May.

The brotherly love exhibited between the Lions and Knox County Coaches at the dinner ceased as they took the court in the last basketball struggle of the season. Lady Luck however did not follow the steps of the Lions for seemingly sure baskets repeatedly went awry. The coaches, reinforced greatly by Arthur Orne and John Durrell, displayed a fine passing attack. At the near end the Lions revived a bit and broke down a 10-point lead to have the game end 31-28.

"IKE" MERRILL WEDS

Golf Champion Who Has A Summer Home In Camden, Is Married In Florida

Announcements have been received of the wedding of Miss Hannah Mathews Cobden of Great Barrington, Mass., and Daytona Beach, Fla., and Isaac Lincoln Merrill, Jr., of Daytona Beach and Camden, which was solemnized last Wednesday in Trinity Episcopal Church, Daytona Beach. The ceremony was performed by the bride's grandfather, Dr. Richard Cobden of Larchmont, N. Y., and by Dean John Edwards of Chicago.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cobden Jr. She graduated from Sweet Briar College, Va. Mr. Merrill, son of Dr. and Mrs. Isaac B. Merrill graduated from the Toms School and attended Princeton and Rollins College. He is an honorary member of the Rockland Chamber of Commerce. Prominent in golfing since his schoolboy days, he was three times amateur golf champion of Maine. He is connected with the John Pierce Realty Company of Daytona Beach where he and his bride will make their home.

LIMEROCK POMONA

Past State Master Obadiah Gardner Gives Program High Praise

Limerock Valley Pomona met with Pleasant Valley Grange, Saturday despite the downpour of rain, and a fair attendance was noted. The master Mrs. Sara Young of Camden called to order at 2:30. After the usual business, the lecturer Mrs. Leona Risteen of Thomaston presented a program which was most interesting, but far from the one planned. It follows:

Greeting, R. A. Anderson, W. M.; response, Charles Worster; music, Mrs. Hall; reading, "What do we plant when we plant a tree?" Mrs. Lizzie Smith; "What three laws are most needed to rehabilitate Maine?" J. A. Tolman; reading, Mrs. Stewart; discussion—Why should we plant trees, Harold Nash and J. Herbert Gould; ten articles manufactured in this State tree contest.

Those who stayed away missed a good time. While the call to supper was awaited, old songs and new were in order, sung by the Rackliffe boys and others.

Charles Wooster of Camden presided in the evening in the absence of the Master. After a short business meeting, open session was declared as some of the entertainers were not members. The lecturer of the host Grange presented this program: Address, Obadiah Gardner; trumpet solos, Marion Harvie; vocal solos, Myron Young; tap dance, Margaret Winslow; readings, Florence Young; vocal solo, "Carry Me Back To Old Virginia," R. L. Anderson; acrobatic dance, Margaret Winslow; "The American's Creed," by all; tableau, "Pledge of Allegiance," with music; reading, "The Palms," by Elizabeth Marsh; F. L. S. Morse; vocal solo, "Star of The East," Susan Spear; tableau, "Rock of Ages," with Dorothy Baxter, and hymn by chorus. Remarks and stories were given by several. To quote the words of Mr. Gardner, "Those who went home and those who stayed at home or elsewhere were indeed unfortunate to miss this program." He said, "I have attended Granges all over the State for many years—National, State, Pomona, Subordinate. The programs presented in this hall in December last, and this one tonight excel any I have ever seen in any Grange. I say this in all sincerity, the character, beauty, performance of entertainers are of the highest class, not ordinary and deserves praise and credit to the one presenting such splendid entertainment."

The lecturer Mrs. Elta Anderson wishes to thank those who so graciously and obligingly substituted in place of the original program. Mrs. Marguerite Johnson presided at the piano for the evening.

RAILWAY THEATRE

Comes To Rockland May 15—Exploits Federal Housing Proposition

A "theatre" on wheels, in a railroad coach, started yesterday a tour of New Hampshire and Maine as a co-operative effort by Charles A. Birmingham, regional director of the Federal Housing Administration, the Boston and Maine Railroad and the Maine Central Railroad to spread word of how New England home and business building owners may improve their property and at the same time aid in general business recovery.

Boston and Maine workmen have transformed a standard railroad coach into a theatre on wheels, a sound projection machine and loud speakers have been installed, a screen erected, a platform for the local committee of the FHA installed and the outfit is on the first stage of a 25-day tour.

From two to four performances will be given daily at the railroad stations in the cities and towns to be visited by the car, with William A. Wheeler, general representative of the Boston and Maine Railroad and the Maine Central Railroad presiding, and with local committees of the FHA in each community distributing tickets for the shows and with local chairmen of the FHA explaining the local features at each meeting.

Each showing of the sound pictures—"Better Homes For Americans"—depicts in detail just how the FHA plan enables home and building owners to borrow from $100 to $2000 to improve their property and how it may be repaid in small installments. It also shows how such borrowing and improvements spread their effects through all sorts of industries by materials purchased.

President Roosevelt speaks during the presentation, and the pictures show how the National Housing Act makes it possible to make improvements or additions to homes and how to obtain the money.

The schedule for the tour of the theatre brings the train to Rockland from 1 to 2:30 p. m., May 15.

James F. Carver will have charge of the local theatre distribution.

RELIEF OF TEXTILES

Cong. Moran Objects To Advance Payment of Processing Taxes

A dispatch from the Press Herald's Washington Bureau says: "Relief of textile manufacturers from the burden of paying the cotton processing tax prior to sale of the processed goods was asked of President Roosevelt by Representative Moran Wednesday.

The President has turned down the three proposals so far advanced by distressed New England textile manufacturers; namely, suspension of the processing tax, embargo on Japanese imports and equalization of North-South wages in the textile code.

"I make the specific suggestion that consideration be given to the proposal that the textile mills be relieved of the present requirement of paying the processing tax in advance, thus 'freezing' their money while awaiting the turnover or sale which, in a slow moving market, is an important tie-breaker the position to the processing up of funds," Moran said.

"Such a move might lessen consideration system and relieve, to that extent at least, the situation of which the textile mills complain." He also recommended a study of Japanese imports by classes.

The President at his press conference yesterday said that NRA had recommended a study of imports of bleached yard goods from Japan under Section 3-E of the Recovery Act and the President said he had turned the complaints on these imports over to the Tariff Commission for an investigation.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination to fill any prospective vacancy in the position of Assistant Keeper, $1320 a year, (without quarters) in the Lighthouse Service, Department of Commerce, Portland, Maine. Applicants must be qualified boatmen. They must execute their applications in their own handwriting and furnish satisfactory evidence of experience and ability as waterman or boatman accustomed to handling motor, rowing and sail boats in all weathers. Applications and information may be obtained from Secretary, Board of Civil Service Examiners, Office of the Superintendent of Lighthouses, South Portland, Maine; the Secretary, Board of Civil Service Examiners at any first or second-class post office along the coast of Maine.

PAYING ITS WAY

A widowed mother and her daughters had a telephone, among other household conveniences. Sharply reduced income compelled a cut in the household budget, however, and the telephone was scheduled to go.

One of the daughters—an expert comptometer operator—had registered at the school for such part-time work as might be available, and GAVE HER TELEPHONE NUMBER so she might be reached quickly if wanted.

Result: Fifteen days' work during the ensuing month. The telephone stays, because, by this service alone, it has more than paid for itself.

Friday marks the tenth anniversary of the Patriots' Day snowstorm, which by the way, came on Sunday. The sun rose very clear and many motorists took their cars out for the first spin of the season. Chances were not thought of on such a bright spring morning. Around noon it began to cloud up and a miniature blizzard began which left a fall of around nine inches of snow, which fanned by a high wind drifted from two to four feet deep. Cars were abandoned and many spent the night in the vicinity of Damariscotta. How many remember it?

A casual consideration of latitudes and longitudes leaves the impression that Billings, Mont., might be expected to possess much the same climatic conditions as does Maine. Not so, however; evidences of an earlier spring to the Westward being testified by word from Miss Marcia Tolman who informs this paper that many shrubs and trees there were eagerly bursting buds early in April, numbering among others: low bush honeysuckle, golden willow, lilacs, cotton wood shade tree. According to clippings from the press of that region, Dirigo's ambitions as a headliner in vacationland field, are likely to find spirited opposition from "dark horse" Montana which is presenting a potent bid for tourist patronage on the substantial basis of having completed a larger road building program than any other State west of the Mississippi river. DEXTER SIMMONS

Funeral services for Dexter Simmons, who died in the hospital last Saturday, were held Monday afternoon at his late residence, 9 Knox street, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Arthur Olsen of the Presbyterian Church in Billerica, Mass. Among the out of town relatives who came to attend the services were Mrs. Hattie Walker and Mrs. Tyler W. Bird of Dorchester, Mass., Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Olsen of Billerica, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hitchcock of Damariscotta. The attendance was augmented by the presence of many old friends, and floating at half staff was the flag near the Isaac B. Simmons store around which night and day gathered that little coterie of tried and true Northend friends. In this group and wherever his daily journeyings took him, Mr. Simmons will long be mourned by those who so highly esteemed him for his personality and fine type of citizenship. Especial sympathy goes out to the bereaved wife—a helpless invalid.

The bearers were Allen V. Sawyer, Oliver B. Lovejoy, J. A. Jameson and Capt. John Bernet. Interment was in Achorn cemetery.

The deceased was a member of Knox Lodge of Odd Fellows and Rockland Encampment, both of which added beautiful flowers to the many floral tributes.

Dexter Simmons was born in New-castle March 16, 1856. The family moved to this city 75 years ago. Dexter worked as a young man in Rockport, where Carleton, Norwood & Co. were then building many ships.

Much of his active life was devoted to the city's highway department for which he worked as foreman when that department was handled by a commission comprising Franz M. Simmons, G. L. Farrand and A. F. Crockett. He was employed in that capacity when the Camden & Rockland Water Co. was laying its pipes from Mirror Lake. Later he served as road commissioner under Mayors Blethen and Rhodes. Efficiency and conscientiousness marked all of his efforts. He also worked at the Cobb & Snow shipyards.

Mr. Simmons is survived by his wife, Cassie Kallach, to whom he was married May 14, 1884; and three brothers, C. Fred, Zebecde and Elmer E. Simmons.

Tonight's meeting of the Baptist Men's League is the most important for several years, due to the fact that Henry F. Merrill of Portland will be guest speaker. Mr. Merrill is leader of the famous Thirteen Class, which holds those wonderful meetings in Keith's Theatre, the broadcasts of which are faithfully listened to every Sunday morning by hundreds of Rockland radio fans. A brilliant and fascinating speaker he will be heard with much interest tonight.

Rockland is to witness rather an extraordinary event in connection with the opening of M. B. & C. O. Perry's new market on Park street. The use of that large structure is to be turned over to the American Legion May 22 for a public supper given as a benefit for the State Convention fund, and to be followed by a ball at Temple hall. Gov. Brann is to be a special guest together with secretary of State Barrows and the State heads of the American Legion and Forty and Eight. Levi E. Flint is chairman. Additional details will appear from time to time.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Ruined, financially, by the stock market crash, James Nelson, Boston merchant, breaks the news to his household. Nance is on the verge of her introduction to society, the date of her debut having been set. A short time before, an elderly cousin of Nelson's, Columbus, had written suggesting that Nance come to her at Pine Ridge, Colo., as a paid companion. The offer had been regarded by the family as a joke.

CHAPTER II.—Jack urges Nance to accept Cousin Columbus's proposition, thus relieving the family of a certain financial burden, and offering to go with her so that she will not feel too lonely. The girl is at first appalled by the idea, but agrees that Jack will wait for her. Columbus wires welcome to both of them, and despite their parents' apprehensions, Nance's reaction to the situation they know she must face. It is arranged that the two shall go.

CHAPTER III.—At the railroad station the youngsters are welcomed by Cousin Columbus. They are somewhat dismayed by his unconventional attire and mannerisms, but realize she has character and a certain charm. The driver of the car is a young man, Mark Adams, son of a close friend of the old lady. The destination (to Nance's city ideas) of Pine Ridge is explained.

CHAPTER IV.—The newcomers meet Aurora Tubbs, Cousin Columbus's cook and housekeeper, and Matthew Adams, Mark's older brother. The old-fashioned furnishings of her bedroom further depress Nance. Cousin Columbus explains her reasons for desiring Nance to come to her, and tells some experiences of her 75 years of life on the plains.

CHAPTER V.—Nance gets better acquainted with Matthew Adams, and is impressed, despite the handicap of his bashfulness, by his evident good sense—and his good looks. Jack finds a temporary job.

CHAPTER VI.—The fascination of a new country wears off, and time begins to hang heavily on Nance's hands. An absence of interesting reading, both in the house and in the community, gives her an inspiration.

CHAPTER VII.—Writing home to Massachusetts, Nance outlines an idea for a public library at Pine Ridge (on a small scale, of course), with a foundation of contributed books. The family greets the idea with enthusiasm and makes plans to comply with her wishes. After an afternoon of shopping with Matthew Adams Nance arrives home to find the house brilliantly illuminated. Evidently something out of the ordinary is at hand.

CHAPTER VIII.—Nance finds the occasion is the celebration of her "debut," she having confided to Cousin Columbus something of her disappointment at having to forego that. In the one "party" frock she has brought she has a delightful evening, and goes to bed with a feeling of greater contentment with Pine Ridge.

CHAPTER XIV.—Nance and Jack start back to their eastern home, leaving a void in the small community of Pine Ridge. Miss Columbine, in whose lonely heart Nance has found a permanent abiding place, is greatly cheered at the moment of the girl's departure by the somewhat cryptic assurance of Matthew Adams, who seems to understand the parting in a highly philosophical manner, that Nance is coming back, adding, "and, next time, Cousin Columbus, she'll come to stay."

Darkness came fast; but slowly, terribly slowly, it seemed to Nance, hour after hopeless hour dragged on. Though all worked desperately to keep the fire burning, a sudden, especially fierce gust had blown it out; and there were no more matches. Jack had long since relinquished his sheep-lined jacket; and Nance's knitted skirt was pinned securely about a shivering boy.

Pretexts at games—prancing up and down the aisle—anything to keep blood circulating in those small, cold bodies, was kept up valiantly; but as night descended the children who were not crying had dropped asleep, huddled together in a corner, and tears of fright and pity dimmed Nance's eyes as she looked down at them.

Through that interminable night a grim and silent Jack kept moving constantly, stopping at every turn to rub the legs or arms of some small sleeper. Nance, exhausted, sat for a time, holding within her coat a boy of seven who whimpered with the cold. Later, when a semblance of warmth returned to him he dropped asleep, she too arose to move about the crowded quarters, and like her brother clasp numb hands and feet.

Dawn came at last, and the storm had not abated.

"But we're alive," said Nance, teeth chattering as she tried to speak. "We're all alive."

Jack faced her suddenly. Almost, it seemed that he was angry.

"And how long will we last? How long, I ask you?" He raised a foot and she saw a bare leg above the shoe. "I put my socks on Joey Miller three hours ago when you were nodding. That boy's all in, Nance; and some of these little girls won't live the day through unless we help them. If we had food it might put new life into them; but every lunch pail's empty and—"

He stopped, silenced by a moan from some one in the huddled mass, and lifting a child, worked at her stiff legs in desperation. It was Nance saw, the twin who were a sweeter; and suddenly the girl was pulling off her woolen stockings while Jack protested: "You keep those on, Sis! Say, are you going crazy? Do you want to freeze to death? You're in your thin silk undies now. I know it. I saw you sneak out of that knitted thing a while ago. D—n you, Nance Nelson, you keep those stockings on!"

Nance said nothing. Jack was, she understood, half crazed with anxiety for all those helpless children and herself as well. Slipping bare feet into her shoes again, she knelt to pull her warm hose over the icy legs of the small sufferer; while one of the girls, watching in silence, struggled out of her coat and buttoned it about her little sister.

Nance threw a smile, a drawn, sad smile that Cousin Columbus wouldn't have recognized.

"Come help me, Evelyn," she said gently. "We must wake some of the little ones and keep them moving."

It was nearly noon when, as the wind subsided, Jack said the words that struck terror to his sister's heart.

"I'm going now, Nance," his voice trembled a little. "As I see it, there's no other way. Keep up your courage; and for God's sake, Nance, keep fighting. Unless the wind starts up again I'll reach that ranch in a few hours."

"And—if you—don't?"

Their eyes met, and Nance knew her brother realized how slim a chance he had. Her lips trembled; but he made a gesture toward the children.

"I know—but I can't let them die, Nance, while there's a chance to save them. Bill," (turning to the boy who wore his jacket), "I'm going for help and it looks as if I'd have to take that coat. No, I won't need the socks" (as the little boy stooped bravely to remove them).

"Tom Osgood, you keep the kiddies moving. I'm counting on you older ones to help."

"Look here," spoke up the boy suddenly, "you find a fence, Jack, and follow it if you can. Dad told me once that if ever I got caught out in a blizzard, to find a fence and just hang onto it. And if you run into a mail box you'll know a gate is somewhere near. Gosh! Jack, I—I sort a wish you wouldn't go."

Jack forced a smile. "Now don't you worry, kid. I'll get there sure, so long as the wind stays quiet. You just help Nance every way you can; and whatever happens, don't go to sleep. Keep thinking that by night we'll be safe home. Good—good—by—every one."

He did not look at Nance as he strode away. The girl knew that he did not dare to, and in another moment his tall form was blotted out. What fate would meet him, alone on those terrifying plains, she wondered, tears stinging her eyelids. And (with a clutch of fear), was the wind rising?

Time passed, interminable hours that seemed unending. The dreadful wind died down, returned, and died again, not to return. No one could say just when the blizzard ceased, for one by one the children were succumbing to the portentous drowsiness. Once Nance succumbed herself, to be aroused by the frantic, pounding fists of Tommy Osgood.

The cold was still intense when that second dusk approached the prairies; but the whimpering voices were hushed in an ominous silence. Most of the children had given up by now, completely spent with cold, and hunger, and even fright. For there had been strange happenings since Jack's departure. Twice they rejoiced at the sound of approaching horses, only to find that their ears must have deceived them. Two of the children had "seen" the schoolhouse, and, as the mirage faded, burst into tears of disappointment.

Working courageously on icy arms and legs, Nance knew, a sense of terror creeping through her, that she was giving out. Her eyelids kept closing against her will. At times it seemed impossible to drag them open. Her hands were numb; her bare legs curiously lifeless.

Tom Osgood, stripped to his overalls and cotton shirt, was putting his clothes on the boy who had given up Jack's coat. Without Tom's help, Nance told herself, she could not endure much longer. That boy was a hero! How many times had she seen him, when on the brink of dozing, pull himself together valiantly to help the younger ones? Why, he was drowsy now, poor darling! His task accomplished, he had slumped onto that huddled mass upon the floor. On, he mustn't go under! Not brave little Tom Osgood! Nance dragged herself up, shaking the boy with all her failing strength.

"Wake up, Tommy! I need you! We must help these children. Don't "Wake Up, Tommy. I Need You." go to sleep, Tom. . . . Keep fighting . . . fighting . . .

An hour later when the bus door snapped open and Matthew Adams, his uncle, and two grim-faced fathers stepped fearfully inside, Nance's fur coat was covering a mound of children, while the girl herself, almost too spent to realize that help had come, sat on the floor amid a drift of snow with only a child's thin sweater covering her. This silk underwear, nothing, nothing, as she rubbed mechanically at a small boy's frozen feet.

DOES YOUR HUSBAND CALL YOU GROUCHY?

He's truthful if not tactful. Man-like, he is bewildered by your offishness and irritability. He can't understand what you have to be blue about. He wishes that you'd snap out of it. He'd do anything he could to help you. If he knew how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was, he'd go straight to the nearest drug store and buy you a bottle.

"My husband says I am my old self again," says Mrs. Barbara Spears, 799 Elma Street, Akron, Ohio. "I was tired and all in with no appetite. Had no pep and was in poor spirits. Your Vegetable Compound eliminated that awful tired feeling."

Don't try your husband's patience too far. Get a bottle from your druggist NOW. It probably will help you, because nearly a million American women know from personal experience that it helps them.

You can't fool your Uncle Sam

He says, "This Gasoline is Different!"

It's a cinch for Uncle Sam to tax most gasolines. He just slaps on the regular gas tax and that's

? ? ? that. But Tydol is something of a problem for him... for this gasoline is different from the others. You see, into every gallon of Tydol is blended a special lubricant. This lubricant

(which also reduces carbon) keeps the upper-cylinders and valves of your motor cool, friction-free, and smooth-running... a job

your regular motor oil cannot do. So Uncle Sam says, "Sorry, Tydol gets taxed twice, once as a gasoline, and once for the lubricant

it contains." But between ourselves, we don't much mind paying that extra tax for Tydol's extra lubrication feature.

It seems to us pretty good proof that double-duty

Tydol is actually a different and a better gasoline... And that's something which a lot of car owners must have discovered, judging from our business. In fact, business is so good, thank you, that we don't charge

even a penny extra for Tydol's extra quality.

NOTE: TYDOL pays Uncle Sam an extra tax because it contains a special top-cylinder lubricant... yet Tydol, the gasoline that actually lubricates as it drives, does not cost you a penny extra.

THERE'S AN "ENGINEER IN EVERY GALLON"

TYDOL GASOLINE IS LUBRICATED

EDUCATIONAL CLUB

Prof. Catlin Closes Lecture Season Friday Night — Election May 5

Prof. W. B. Catlin of Bowdoin College, having been engaged as leading speaker on modern problems, the Woman's Educational Club is prepared for an entertaining and enlightening program at G.A.R. hall tomorrow at 2 to 9:30 p. m.

As Prof. Catlin's college subjects are economics and sociology, he speaks with authority on present disputatious issues in old age pensions, social insurance, women in industry, child labor, collective bargaining, unemployment, and other phases of the vexing labor problems. The pictures to follow are from a new set—to be displayed by Stanley Painter of Augusta.

Music during the evening will be in charge of Albert R. Marsh and family, and will consist of vocal and instrumental selections, including a piano solo by Mabel Holbrook. A reading by Madeline Rogers promises interest.

In the "Immortal Series," five-minute papers on Cleopatra and Godiva are scheduled for the afternoon session, to be followed by discussions as to the likelihood of war and the possibility of the United States' entrance into hostilities; the present stand taken by Great Britain, Italy and France to preserve lasting peace; the ten-year truce and the developments of the Stresa conference.

Other topics for consideration and expression of viewpoints will be: What is meant by the pink slip?; how do income tax payments compare with last year?; what about President Roosevelt's statement on Jan. 4 in his first message to the 74th Congress, "The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief?"; what happened to the $5,000,000,000 bill and how quickly must it be spent?; is the Federal debt increasing or lessening?; has the budget been balanced?; is "government interference" promoting private initiative?; is Japan now in the League of Nations?; how do aims of Huey Long, Father Coughlin and General Johnson conflict, and which, if any, do you champion?

The local director of Federal Housing will address the assembly in the afternoon on "Governmental Projects Under the Group Plan and the NRA." Mrs. Caro Jones and Mrs. A. D. Morey will serve as hostesses for club coffee at 6 o'clock, with box lunch in the upper rooms at the hall.

The outstanding query which should claim all citizens' attention and profound thought is: Can we spend prosperity back? Congress gives nearly five billions of dollars to President Roosevelt to make jobs for millions and he hopes to spend it in about one year. Is there any penny-pinching in Washington—or anywhere?

This meeting will close the stated club course of lectures. Election of officers will take place May 3.

Mrs. Edith Blaney, and Miss Winifred Coughlin. An open meeting with Atwood Levensaler as guest reader. "King Henry VIII" and "Romeo and Juliet" studied. The treasurer's report showed the club ending its season in very good standing. The Society purchased a $5 health bond and also made its usual $10 contribution to the Public Library.

It was voted to hold the annual summer outing and Mrs. Maude Blodgett was named chairman, to select her own committee.

Miss Erskine as toastmistress was a delight, her introductions a clever mingling of witicism and seriousness. Responding were Miss Mabel F. Lamb Mrs. Blaney and Miss Littlefield, in a piano trio; Miss Josephine Thorndike, the organization's "poet laureate," who gave a charming original poem based on the romances of Shakespeare's writings inspired by "Romeo and Juliet"; Mrs. Aldana Spear whose toast was to the "very old members"; Miss Coughlin who has the distinction of being the youngest member and who paid a gracious tribute to the older members; Mrs. Morgan who sang a group of songs, "The Broken Ring" (old German), "Mother Dearest, I Am Ill" (Italian folksong) and "All in the April Evening" by Michael Daack, with Miss Lamb at the piano; Miss Helen York who happily reminisced in her inimitable way on presentations of long ago, "Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet" and "Macbeth".

The alumnae members present for the occasion, Miss Harriet Bird, Mrs. Lillian Mortland, and Mrs. Elizabeth Boynton of Lexington, Mass., were called upon, also Mrs. Caroline Walker of Castine who is guest of Miss Littlefield. Response to roll call was made by members giving personal recollections pertaining to the society or anecdotes of a varied nature.

Those present were Miss Erskine, Mrs. Comins, Mrs. Frost, Miss Rhodes, Miss York, Miss Thorndike, Mrs. Grace Lawrence, Mrs. Louise Duff, Mrs. Harriette Levensaler, Mrs. Ella Buffum, Mrs. Katherine Derry, Mrs. Helena Fales, Mrs. Leola Wiggin, Mrs. Blodgett, Mrs. Edith Bird, Mrs. Helen Orne, Mrs. Eva Hellier, Mrs.

FARTHEST NORTH REPUBLIC

The Story Of Suomi, Which Will Interest Many Of Our Readers

At the request of Benjamin Lakso of Friendship The Courier-Gazette is today gladly republishing an article by Carl H. Salminen, which recently appeared in the Stock and Dairy Farmer. The article concerns "Suomi, the Republic Farthest North," and is here given:

Suomi, better known as Finland, is the northernmost republic in the world, lying, like an infant, in the arms of the Gulf of Bothnia and the Gulf of Finland. The population is nearly four million, its area is 144,255 square miles and about one-eighth of this is lakes and rivers. The greater part of the country is covered with forests. The southern part of the country, together with a large part of the western part, is surrounded by seas that afford many seaports and harbors. The winter port at Petsamo assures an open route for trade with the world throughout the year.

Suomi, the country where the writer first saw the light of day, has of late received unusual attention from the people of the United States. I should like to guide my readers through the beautiful land of a thousand lakes—I should say tens of thousands—and tell what I know of Suomi, though I am restricted in space.

The chief industries of Suomi are: Agriculture, dairying, forestry, lumbering and the manufacture of paper. The exports are: products of wood, both finished and unfinished; pulpwood and paper, butter, cheese, and other dairy products. England, Germany, France and the United States are the principal buyers. When speaking of the forests of Suomi it is well to remember that the value of the forests, there is the greatest in all Europe, excepting Russia. Three-fourths of the country is covered by scientifically cared-for forests and increases the wealth of the country ten per cent annually. Our own forest experts declare that the timber lands of Suomi are the best cared for in the world.

Regardless of the world-wide depression the economical condition of Suomi is in excellent shape. The unemployment question is not as serious as it is in many countries of Europe. Labor difficulties are seldom heard of and plans for relief work were laid out before the time became critical. During past years the exports have been considerably greater than the imports. At the end of September trade conditions showed more than a billion marks credit though the fiscal year was not yet ended. The Finnish mark is well on its way to stabilization. During the past year the confidence of the United States in Suomi has increased greatly, as this little country has been prompt in paying her war debt to Uncle Sam.

The culture of Suomi is abreast with the Scandinavian countries, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Illiteracy is the least of any nation on earth, only nine-tenths of one per cent. Public school education is compulsory and institutions for higher education are found not only in the cities but also in the country. The Finnish farmer has both a practical and a scientific training.

In Finnish music—suffice it to mention only one name—Jean Sibelius. And in Finnish architecture we shall only mention one name, that of Eliel Saarinen, who gave so much to the United States and is now living here. He has gained fame all over the world. The same is true of the other arts; painting, sculpture, the opera and the play, and literature have awakened interest by their originality. Kalevala, the national epic, has been and still is the source of inspiration for different artists. The various Finnish exhibitions have received much attention in the principal cities of the world. The latest was in Italy, where Suomi was given second place.

The co-operative movement has spread over the country and is used in many different phases of life. The important public utilities are owned by the government, the railroads, telephone and electric plants, much of the forests and mines. The government also has possession of some large farms and factories.

But what can Suomi offer a tourist?

When an ocean liner glides past unnumbered islands along the shores of Suomi and drops anchor into the harbor of the much admired "White City of the North," Helsinki (Helsingfors), the city at once attracts attention. The city is beautiful from the distance, but the better one becomes acquainted with it, the more attractive one finds it. The population is about 300,000. It is very modern in its buildings. All tourists have been impressed by the cleanliness of the city. But as attractive as the city is with its sightseeing places, the greatest interest is in the beautiful lakes, woods and the picturesque old castles and churches which are found in different parts of the country. In summer the tourist falls under the spell of the white nights. By the end of June the sun does not set at all. Especially in the northern parts of the country one can see the sun dropping toward the horizon, but almost at once it appears to rise again. This gives the nights of Suomi a mystical fascination that, once experienced, can never be forgotten.

The charm reaches its climax at Petsamo, on the shores of the Arctic, where Nature is undisturbed in its ruggedness and the Lapps with their large reindeer herds make the country truly the land of Santa Claus as it was pictured in our papers during the Christmas season. The tourist movement into Petsamo has increased year by year. An excellent highway makes traveling there by automobile possible and pleasant.

Although Suomi has no snow-capped mountains, delighted tourists have given it the name "Switzerland of the North."

Fascinating as is the trip northward, it is contrasted in luxuriant scenery at the monastery of Valamo in eastern Suomi on an archipelago in Lake Ladoga. The monks still living there greet the guests and with pleasure show them their cultivations their dense forests and their churches.

Suomi has long been known for its athletes. And this one thing was the first to attract the attention of the outside world toward this small republic. But in later years it has drawn the attention of others by its progress and the natural beauty of the country. Tourists have written and spoken their praise in papers and in books published as a result of their visits, and so have made this far northern republic better known to the world. Suomi has thus acquired new, true friends. Many a visit has been made by people from our own country to see the activities of this younger sister, who so recently has become ruler over her own destinies.

In recent years a number of Americans have taken a trip to Suomi among them have been students, authors, newspaper men, writers, business representatives and government officials. We have been well represented in many of the international conventions held there. All those who have been there have expressed their delight and pleasure both in the scenery the country offers and the people they met. Among those we wish to recall is Mr. Brodie, who was the American minister at Helsinki recently, whose daughter married there and has made her home in Suomi. The country, its people and its climate were all well spoken of when he returned to his home in Oregon.

My short presentation of Suomi does not deal with everything that could be said of it, yet I hope this will be an inspiration to some reader to get a better acquaintance with Suomi, the country, who alone stood back of her war debts to Uncle Sam and perhaps be encouraged to go and visit that land of the midnight sun in some future summer.

OUR BOOK CORNER

Laura E. Richards, widely known author recently observed her 85th birthday at her home in Gardiner. Mrs. Richards was born in Boston, the daughter of Dr. Samuel G. Howe, noted philanthropist and for years director of the Perkins Institute for the Blind, and Julia Ward Howe, author of "Battle Hymn of the Republic." With her husband, Mrs. Richards resides at her home, "Yellow House."

The May issue of the National Geographic Magazine contains the Maine story written by Dr. George Otis Smith of Skowhegan. Dr. Smith has been in Washington selecting numerous colored plates and several black and white engravings used to illustrate this interesting story on the State of Maine.

To the desk of the book editor comes the periodical "Vital Speeches Of The Day." It is a new magazine, printing in full the important addresses of the leaders of public opinion in America. The best thought of the best minds, it performs a service of the highest value to all interested in public affairs and public speaking. For example in the February issue appeared President Roosevelt's message to the new Congress; Economics in a Changing Social Order, by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler; A Look Ahead, by David Lawrence; U. S. Munitions Investigation, by Hon. Gerald P. Nye; Are Colleges Serving Youth? by Tristram Walker Metcalfe, and other speeches of vital interest. Each speech shows in its heading where and when delivered. Among colleges recognizing the value of this magazine are noted Harvard University, Columbia University, Colgate University, Dartmouth College, Holy Cross College, Purdue University, Pennsylvania State College, Harvard Law School, the entire list, in fact, makes significant reading, representing the cream of our educational institutions.

A new novel by Pearl Buck has just been published, "A House Divided." It completes her remarkable trilogy about the Wang Lung family, the two previous being "The Good Earth" and "Sons."

"The Road of Ages" by Robert Nathan is attracting quite some attention. It is a fantasy projecting an exodus of Jews, from all over the world, as the result of a new persecution, into some land in mid-Asia. It is said that Robert Nathan has few superiors in expert handling of the English language.

Spring publications of Farrar & Rinehart are: The Autobiography of John Hays Hammond; "Don't Ever Leave Me" by Katherine Brush; "Cell 202 Sing Sing" by Warden Lewis E. Lawes; "The Camberwell Beauty" by Louis Golding; "One Light Burning", by R. C. Hutchinson; "Ripeness Is All" by Eric Linklater.

O. O. McIntyre says: "And for two evenings of swell reading don't miss Oppenheim's latest 'The Spy Paramount', and Thornton Wilder's 'Heaven's My Destination'." "Only 'Odd' gave the latter as 'Heaven Is My Home.' Oh, oh, McIntyre!"
