How was she to know that bundle of old papers with a string around it contained insurance policies, notes and other valuable papers that could not be replaced?

They were in such an out of the way place, too, where he thought they would be safe. He couldn't blame her. But he blamed himself for foolishly having tried to save a few cents a month that would have given these possessions real protection in a safe deposit box.

WERE THEY KIDNAPERS?

Two Men Took Possession Of Cong. Moran's Car, But He Was Not Aboard

What's this? Kidnap our car! Here's what a Washington special despatch to the Press Herald says about it.

Movie detective stories present nothing more mystifying than an apparent attempt to kidnap Cong. Moran Sunday. Police are working on it, checking up on taxicabs and looking over known criminals to find two men who correspond to the chauffeur's description of the two who took possession of him and of the Congressman's car and then left, six blocks farther, when they discovered he wasn't the Congressman.

Sunday night the secret service offered Moran protection, if he felt he needed it but he refused. He has no idea of why anybody should try to kidnap him.

What happened was that the Congressman, according to custom, left his car at the door of the Hay-Adam House, where he lives, and gave the keys to the man at the desk, so that the commercial garage where he stores the car could send a chauffeur to take the car to the garage. The chauffeur was sent. He went into the hotel, got the keys, got into the car and started up 16th street meaning to turn back, east, to the garage.

He did not wear a uniform, had on an overcoat, and is of the same build as the Congressman.

The chauffeur had gone only a short distance when two men jumped on the running board opened the doors of the car and got in. They told the driver to turn and drive west, warning him not to violate any traffic rules which would get him stopped by a policeman. Six blocks away they reached a waiting taxicab, took the keys of the Congressman's car and sped away. They did not ask the chauffeur for any money, nor did they try to take the car.

As soon as they were gone, the chauffeur, helpless without the keys to the ignition, telephoned the garage.

EASTER ON MT. CADILLAC

Shivering Pilgrims Meet For Impressive Service and See Nature Glorified

By The Roving Reporter

Cadillac. Had not gone far before another car shot by us—a car with passengers trying to appear happy in the rumble seat.

"Follow that car and we'll get to the top quicker," I said to the sleepy Mr. Gonia. He gave Chevy the reins and we followed.

Turning In a Small Circle

You who have been on Cadillac Mountain know that about one-third up there is a road which turns to the right and another which turns to the left. The car with the rumble seat swept on to the right, and we followed. But instead of ascending we appeared to be descending, and Ed, in one of his waking moments came to the realization that we were bound for Northeast Harbor instead of the summit.

With you readers could have seen the place where we turned. If the car had gone backward two more feet the world would have been minus the services of a well known merchant, and The Courier-Gazette's clientele would have been spared the necessity of wading through any more Roving Reporter tales. But Ed was wide awake this time and the feat was negotiated.

We reached the summit, frightening those two deer as we went, and finding ourselves in much the same condition that Explorer Peary did when he discovered the North Pole. All alone! There was no evidence that a Cook had been there. Not even a forgotten lunch box.

According to the almanacs the sun was not due to rise for an hour and three-quarters, but the cloud-hidden moon was still enough in evidence to throw an eerie light over the bay, and make the little islands play strange tricks. And all around were those twinkling electric lights betraying the presence of Maine's most famous summer resort and of the villages which constitute its survivors. Away off in the distance a light flashed occasionally—a beacon for stray mariners, whom there are now fortunately too few.

Cadillac By Moonlight

Cadillac Mountain is interesting and wonderful at all times, but here was a new version of its grandeur—seen in semi-moonlight and semi-dawn. And amid it all I could not help thinking that the big hill's nose will soon be out of joint, for when the highway over the Camden Hills is completed, and those 30-odd trails are laid out, who will want to bother to go away down to Cadillac?

In the midst of these cogitations there arrived the car which we had lucklessly followed in the direction of the town whose peace Bob Webster preserved for one whole season.

A few others came gradually but as the hour drew near for sunrise and the electric lights had gone out—wherever they go—we could look down from our lofty perch and see a steady succession of headlights winding their way toward the summit. Now and then arrived a group of pilgrims who had made the four-mile ascent by Shank's Mare. And of course the picture would not be complete unless I told you that there was also present that necessary evil, the camera man.

A Golden Sunrise

And presently there assembled on the highest point a group of musicians and others who were to have part in the Easter service. They were joined by those of the spectators who had the hardihood to leave their warm and cozy cars and face chill blasts which would have been more becoming to midwinter.

As for us we constantly scanned the eastern sky where a reddish glow said, in the language of the song, "Here comes the sun."

Except for a slight fringe of cloud on the horizon the stage was well set for that Easter sunrise. The heavens grew lighter, and faint clouds higher than the mountain itself, took on a rosy hue. Almost without warning a dazzling ray of light shot across the bay touching the summit with glorified rays, and causing involuntary exclamations of awe and wonderment. The moment had arrived.

At this time there were approximately 500 cars on the mountain top, and the attendance was estimated at 2000. The sermon was preached by Rev. Albert L. Whitaker, D.D. The impressive service included instrumental music and hymns led by Frederick Wescott and Wilfred J. LaPoint.

Woods Found Full of Big Black Cats

Lansing, Mich.—A breed of domestic black cats gone wild is reported in the woods in the vicinity of the Lyle camp at Monaghan's Landing, near Alpena, according to the department of conservation.

Two of the cats have been captured, one shot, and the other trapped. One specimen measured 3 feet in length and carried a heavy coat of fur. It was more muscular than the domestic breed from which it apparently had sprung, and the tail was shorter than that of the ordinary house cat. M. J. Lyle put the specimen on exhibition.

Local conservationists were planning to hunt out the remainder of the black cats, believing that if left to run wild they probably would evolve a distinct wild breed that would constitute a predatory problem.

CRASH AT ROAD JUNCTION

Five Involved In Yesterday's Accident—Rep. Sleeper's Condition Today

Two Oldsmobile motor cars, one owned and driven by Earl U. Chaples, and the other owned by W. M. Little, and driven by Tribou Herline, met at the junction of Talbot avenue and Broadway yesterday forenoon with a crash that shook the neighborhood for a wide radius.

With Mr. Chaples were Representative Cleveland Sleeper, Jr., his wife, and his brother George. The legislator and his wife were taken to Knox Hospital, the former in an unconscious condition, and believed to be fatally injured. Mrs. Sleeper suffered a severe cut and bad shaking up, but was able to return home last night. Chaples and Herline escaped with some minor cuts and bruises.

So far as could be learned no member of the quartet had a broken bone, but the x-ray examination of Representative Sleeper was not to be made until today. His name was not placed on the danger list, and Dr. Charles D. North, in charge of the case, was optimistic as to his chances.

Mr. Chaples and the Sleepers, who were about to start for Augusta, were riding east on Talbot avenue down what used to be called Middle street hill. Herline was proceeding westward on Broadway, and both cars were moving rapidly.

The small building at the southeast corner of the junction obscured the view and the occupants of neither car saw the approach of the other car. Donald Bickford, at work on the E. K. Leighton premises, foresaw the impending crash, and shouted at the top of his voice, but to no avail.

The Chaples car, struck amidships, was hurled violently against a pole and turned upside down, with its three occupants pinned inside. To their rescue went young Bickford and Vito Mannonne, who was also working on the Leighton lawn.

An excited bystander shouted: "Don't touch those people until the police arrive," but his warning went unheeded, and the accident victims were pulled from the car as rapidly as it could be done.

Both cars were so badly smashed that they attracted a great deal of attention at the McLoon Sales and Service garage during the day.

A late bulletin from the hospital this morning said that Representative Sleeper rested well last night, except for head pains. The x-ray is being postponed in order that it may not be necessary to move the patient while suffering from the shock.

FOR RECREATIONAL PURPOSES

Uncle Sam Approves Plan To Buy 4330 Acres, 58 Tracts, in the Camden Hills

Announcement was made last Friday by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, of the approval of plans to purchase approximately 4330 acres of land in Knox and Waldo Counties, Maine, which will be utilized for recreational purposes.

Options have been accepted by the Land Program of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration on 58 tracts, totaling 4331 acres. In accordance with the purpose of the Land Program, the acreage is being acquired as a demonstration in the better use of poor land.

Planning for this project has been carried out by the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior. Located near Camden, the project area covers some of the finest recreational lands on the Maine coast, including many poor farms which are unable to support their present owners.

The public acquisition of the area will not only conserve for public use one of the most attractive areas still available, but will also demonstrate how the utilization of these poor lands for public recreation can convert them into assets of genuine economic value to the local community.

State and local authorities have been enthusiastic about the Camden Hills project. The State Planning Board has cooperated with the Land Program in planning the project, and local people have given their endorsements, recognizing the importance of the project to their community through the attraction of greater numbers of summer visitors and tourists which the establishment of the public playground should bring about. The area will not be created a National Park, but will be turned over to the State of Maine for administration and maintenance.

Certain developments will be necessary in order to make the most of the recreational opportunities which the Camden area provides. This work will be carried out under supervision of the National Park Service in cooperation with the new Maine State Park Commission.

It is possible that additional acreage will be purchased for this project if landowners are willing to sell their tracts at a fair price based upon expert appraisal. Families who sell their farms to the Government will be assisted, if necessary, by the Rural Rehabilitation Corporation in relocating elsewhere under better circumstances.

APRIL MIDNIGHT

Side by side through the streets at midnight,
Roaming together,
Through the tumultuous night of London.
In the miraculous April weather.
Roaming together under the gaslight,
How the Spring calls to us, here in the city.
Calls to the heart from the heart of a lover!

Cool the wind blows, fresh in our faces,
Cleansing, entrancing,
After the heat and the fumes and the footlights.
Where you dance and I watch you dancing.

Good it is to be here together,
Good to be roaming,
Even in London, even at midnight,
Lover-like in a lover's gloaming.
You the dancer and I the dreamer,
Children together,
Wandering lost in the night of London,
In the miraculous April weather.

AN UNSUNG BAND

And How It Has Been Aiding In Matter of Boundary Line Disputes

An efficient and unsung band of men has pushed forward a little known survey project in Maine toward the ultimate end that boundary line disputes among landowners may no more prevail.

Started 18 months ago in all 48 States as a federal emergency relief project, the survey work was soon transferred to the States. Maine was one of the 23 that chose to continue the exacting project, where an error of a foot in 10,000 feet surveyed is considered unsatisfactory.

Financed by State funds and bearing the supervision of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, the project aims to end boundary disputes, put at the disposal of state and municipal engineers accurate survey data, make uniform the state's survey to the National Survey System and to furnish unemployed engineers with work.

The work is under the direction of Leonidas D. Stephenson, Jr., of the Civil Engineering Department of the University of Maine. For 18 months of frost, snow, gales and summer heat 48 men in four parties of 10 men each have carried on the work.

More than 60 percent are college graduates.

The sum of their endeavors to date included completion of a survey between Augusta and Lewiston by three routes, Gardiner, Winthrop, Brunswick; a partial survey between Portland and Brunswick; a completed survey between Brunswick and Bath, and a nearly finished survey between Brunswick and Camden.

Conforming with modern standards, concrete survey markers line the boundary routes to replace the older and obsolete markers of Birch tree, stone wall or boulder.

The monuments, five feet long, eight inches thick at bottom and six at the top, project from the ground not more than six inches. A bronze disc imbedded in the concrete marks the station number and the elevation of land at that point insuring permanency.

As an aid to the local surveyor, the engineers changed the Coast and Geodetic Triangulation System to the Plane Coordinate System more generally in use throughout the state. The new method was expected to make surveying easier and more accurate for the local surveyor and of greater importance, permit coordination with the National System surveying.

Harold W. Wright of Falmouth Foreside, directs the field parties, the four respective groups being in Bangor, Charles Morrision of Calais, Ralph H. Sabins of Wilton, and William E. Carleton of Peaks Island.

SONS OF MAINE CLUB

"Boze" Tells Us All About It, All Except the Names

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

The annual meeting of the Sons of Maine Club of Somerville, Mass., was held April 17 at Odd Fellows Temple. Supper listed on its menu fish chowder prepared by the chef from Lincoln County (Wiscasset), rolls, donated by our new member from Knox County (St. George, Glenmore), coffee, prepared by the coffee man from Knox County (Warren), soda crackers, squash pie, pickles, and cheese from somewhere; appetite furnished by the representatives from the 16 counties of our native State of Maine.

Result: A contented body of men to do business after supper. Reports of the officers for the end of the club's 45 years since its organization revealed all bills paid and money in the treasury. We erected two new members, so the Alpha and Omega of membership were present on this occasion, namely, one charter member and two new members.

Officers elected to carry on for the 46th year. President from York County; no change in desk officers; Treasurer, Knox County; secretary, York County. Having been such faithful officers for the past few years without salary, were rewarded with thanks, an election, salary as before.

Whether this is an Old Deal or a New Deal ye scribe saith not, but it's the Deal handed out to them. One past president complained that the meeting was too much like a Democratic caucus—it was so harmonious. We are on our way now for another year with a surplus.

A NOTABLE EASTER SUNDAY

Fine Weather Prevailed and Many Churchgoers Enjoyed the Excellent Programs

Large congregations, beautiful decorations, inspiring music and masterly sermons marked services in the Protestant churches throughout the city on Easter Sunday. Faith and hope for the future seemed distinctive features of the discourses.

At the Methodist Church the Knights Templar were special guests, making an impressive spectacle in their uniforms, and accompanied by the City Band. Decorations featured Easter lilies, arranged by Mrs. H. V. Tweedie, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Philbrook. Rev. C. E. Brooks' sermon had as its subject "The Imperishable Declaration." The choir under the direction of Mrs. Kathleen Marston was assisted by a quartet composed of Miss Adelaide E. Croset, Miss Mary Bird, R. C. Perry and Howard Crockett, and by Frank Young as trumpet. The fine work of all the musicians won high approval. Other services of the day were the Easter sunrise service in the vestry under the auspices of the Epworth League and the evening service of sacred music and readings given by Miss Eunice Scriven and Miss Elizabeth Cary, guest artists. The former service was very well attended, the young folks joining in an Easter breakfast.

The Universalist Church had a congregation numbering about 350. Close attention was given Dr. John Smith Lowe in his discourse on "Life's Investment" which so ably concluded his series of Lenten sermons. The church quartet was augmented by the Junior Vested Choir directed by Mrs. Helen Wentworth. The solo, "There Is No Death," by Geoffrey O'Hara, sung by Mr. Wylie, tenor of the quartet, won particular approval. Decorations of Easter lilies and potted plants featured these memorials: For Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rhodes, Miss Flora Wile, Rev. C. A. Knickerbocker, Ambrose Mills, David Talbot, Mrs. Mary C. Perry and Miss Alice Merrick, Mrs. Clara C. Black, Mrs. Lydia M. Gregory, Capt. J. F. Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Asa St. Clair, Mrs. Dora Pratt, Mrs. Emma Prohock, James W. Campbell, Mrs. Hall, Mr. and Mrs.

OH, TY! WE HEAR YOU SIGH

The Star Alleys had an unusual attraction last night in the form of a 10-man match between the Star Alley team and Gardiner. The anchor man of the visiting outfit was our old friend "Ty" Cobb, who was in his usual good form, but whose expectations of an easy victory over the Thomastides did not materialize. Another interesting member of the Gardiner team was S. Goggin, Sr., who will never be able to sing: "I didn't raise my boy to be a bowler."

The only man to get into the 500 class was Larrabee, who topped 16 more plus than his closest rival, John Thomas. Bill Goggin had high single 123. The score:

BEWARE OF MOTHS!

Warm Weather Rouses Them—If Troubled Use Parachlorobenzene

"Losses in the aggregate running into hundreds of thousands of dollars result from ravages of clothes moths," says C. O. Dirks, assistant professor of Entomology at the University of Maine.

"Housecleaning, storing of winter garments, and warm weather arousing the moths to activity are factors which make the subject of clothes moth control especially timely," Professor Dirks says. "Moth balls or naphthalene flakes are still useful if used in sufficient quantity in tight containers. At least half a pound should be used in a trunk with a capacity of five or six cubic feet."

"Parachlorobenzene is sold under such trade names as 'Crystal Gas,' 'P.D.B.,' 'Paradon,' 'Paracide,' and 'Dichloride.' It is a white crystalline substance which like naphthalene slowly vaporizes at room temperature and kills eggs and larvae of clothes moths when used in tight trunks or chests. As the gas is much heavier than air the crystals should be placed on top of the garments. Four ounces will last for 8 to 10 weeks during the summer and the odor soon disappears when the garments are aired.

"A mixture of three parts by volume of ethylene dichloride to one part of carbon tetrachloride is a good fumigant against clothes moths. For a trunk or chest use four tablespoons in a shallow dish on top of the garments. For fumigating a closet use one and one-half pints for each 100 cubic feet and place in a shallow pan on the top shelf. Keep closed 24 hours or longer."

EDUCATIONAL CLUB

Full-Up Program Includes a Professor's Views On Social Economy

At the Woman's Educational Club meeting Friday there was an attendance of 40. Discussion of current interest included the topics "Can we spend prosperity back?" and "The Townsend Plan." In keeping with expression of viewpoints regarding national affairs a poem entitled "The New Revolution," written by Miss Elizabeth O. Marsh, received merited appreciation. Various papers were contributed by members, among them "Jean Valjean" by Mrs. Clara Emery; "Cleopatra," Mrs. Flora Ulmer; "Lady Godiva," Mrs. Minnie Rogers. Axel Brunberg spoke on the need of a Y.M.C.A. building for the use of service clubs and other social organizations.

At the box lunch served in the banquet hall Mrs. Caro Jones and Mrs. Morey poured coffee. Patriotic exercises during the evening were led by Mrs. Torrey, Mrs. Dyer, Mrs. Covel, Mrs. Crockett and Mrs. Wiley. A special attraction at this session was the showing of motion pictures of vines and shrubs that will thrive in Maine. Mr. Johnson of Augusta providing this instructive feature.

An excellent musical program was furnished by the Marsh family, Mr. Marsh and daughters, Mrs. Lowe and Mrs. Clark. Two contralto solos pleasingly sung by Mrs. Lowe were "Letha" by Boott and "In the Luxembourg Gardens," Manning, with violin obligato. Mr. Marsh's violin solo selection was "Mighty Lak a Rose" by Nevin, with Mrs. Clark at the piano.

Laura Wood, Mabel Rose, Mrs. C. E. Barnard, Mrs. E. J. Morey, Nellie Ballard, Doris D. Ballard and Ida C. Connellan were admitted to membership. "Social Security" was the timely title of the address by the principal speaker, Prof. W. B. Catlin, whose audience was gratifyingly attentive.

A nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Wiley, Mrs. Ulmer and Mrs. Dyer, was appointed. The closing number of the delightful evening was provided by Miss Madeline Rogers who favored the assembly with several readings.

The guest speaker at the evening session was Prof. W. B. Catlin of Bowdoin College, who had a subject which is just now very much in the public mind—"Unemployment Insurance." He said in part:

Social Insurance is a system of far-sighted and carefully planned provisions for the various ills that flesh is heir to under our present industrial life and methods. Broadly speaking it proposes to substitute for the largely existing mob of intermittent and more or less uncertain relief, the accumulation of reserves on a somewhat scientific or actuarial basis which can be drawn upon when one of these vicissitudes afflicts us. It includes workmen's compensation for accidents and occupational diseases (the only form that has so far been extensively applied in the United States); old age pensions; disability insurance (or health insurance); and unemployment insurance.

Emphasis should be placed on the word social because while the most immediate and obvious purpose is to provide for suffering and hardship on the part of the individual, the ultimate object is to safeguard social welfare and interests, to avoid the stresses and strains upon the social fabric that are bound to come when these individual hardships are not properly provided for and the tremendous drain that comes upon our public treasuries when they become general or are greatly prolonged. Preparation and prevention as well as security are the watchwords. And no system of insurance is accomplishing its main purpose unless it retains all existing incentives to the avoidance or mitigation of these evils and, if possible, adds others to them for all parties involved, greater safety and better sanitation, less overstrain and better provision for training older workers to new tasks when they are no longer fitted for those to which they may have devoted their earlier years, a more orderly and steady growth of industry avoiding sudden and revolutionary changes in methods; greater stabilization and regularization of employment, etc. etc.

Advantages of a system covering all these risks vs. piecemeal efforts. Old Age Pensions and the Townsend Plan.

(a) Agreement as to need but difference of opinion as to the method. Dangerous simplicity of the Townsend proposal, its effort to persuade people that they can lift themselves by their own bootstraps, the great expense involved and burden thrown upon younger generation, difficulty of getting rid of pension plans when once adopted, amounts to charity since the recipient cannot definitely prove that he or she has contributed to the fund more than he or she has already received in wages, sales tax, etc.

(b) Contributory Old Age Insurance with a stopgap or temporary provision for those already too old to accumulate a fund collected during the active working life from employer and employees, the plan under practically all foreign laws passed since the War. This seconded by invalidity insurance which is really economic old age. (Penn. report showed 300 had declined in earning power before 50 years of age and that 1/4 had lost all earning power before or at 55, two-thirds invalided at 60.)

Unemployment Insurance.

(a) Extent as compared with other forms of risk.

(b) Forms of unemployment and the preventability of each form (mobility, dovetailing of products or jobs, versatility to meet technological changes, less speculation and over-investment or misdirected production.)

(c) Inadequacy of individual and other private provisions and efforts small coverage of either union, joint, or corporate plans, necessity of a general compulsory plan putting all competitor on an equal footing.

(d) Features of an Adequate Program:

(1) Statistics.

(2) Employment exchanges, to identify unemployed, etc.

(3) Planned public works and private too. Work-relief?

(4) Reserves or insurance for payment of benefits during unemployment when it occurs.

Questions as to eligibility, parties contributing (employer, employees?, state?), waiting period, scale and duration of payments, insurance vs. reserves, part-time work, inclusiveness, plant, industry, or flat rate and national or state system, merit ratings, administrative machinery.

SPEED MOTOR BUILDING

It has been reported that the government and two of the leading engine builders in this country have put their heads together and are developing something new in motors.

Questions as to eligibility, parties contributing (employer, employees?, state?), waiting period, scale and duration of payments, insurance vs. reserves, part-time work, inclusiveness, plant, industry, or flat rate and national or state system, merit ratings, administrative machinery.

According to reports their engine develops almost 2,000 horsepower on 12 cylinders. If it fulfills expectations America may again have a fighting chance to regain some of the world's speed records now held by the English, French and Italians.

MAINE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

(by Jon Forbes)

Mrs. Dionne has now a rival. Apparently women are always jealous of each other and strive to do better, at least, Tabby, cat mascot of the State Building, thought so. She was blessed with "six" carbon copies of the proud mother herself.

Messrs. Hart and Dobbins are as thick as the proverbial "peasoup." Dobbins spent the weekend at Mr. Hart's and reports a splendid time. From the anonymous reports Dobbins made the corn-fed lassies' hearts skip and flutter at his manly visage.

Julia Griffin brought home the bacon last week. She captured an elusive victory, a gold medal for writing 100 words a minute with perfect transcription.

Attention All Airplane Dealers! Mrs. Sargent and Mrs. Lincoln seem interested in procuring one for flying trips to Rockland after Mrs. Strickland.

Another barrier crossed by some future secretaries, the 80-word test, some tripped over it with great height but others soared over it with the ease of Gregg himself. Those who succeeded in clearing this hurdle were Dorothy Young, Lillian Libby, Charlene Emery, Helen Thomas. Thomas Young passed the 60.

Mrs. Sargent has retired from her position teaching the younger set of Old Orchard High School and is now devoting all her time to the students of the Maine School of Commerce.

Apparently the exhibition of "brute strength" holds attention of many of our "prominent." Exerted by "Cappy" Ricks, E. Clifford Metcalf, Mrs. Sargent, her daughter Mrs. Strickland and Mr. Caston attended the weekly performance at the Exposition Building Monday night. Mr. Caston said it was "Dead" because the combatants failed to use under handed methods of conquering. Mrs. Sargent was enthralled by the display of muscle and brawn. Mrs. Strickland is slowly recovering from the thrills she received when one of the wrestlers flew through the ropes with the greatest of ease.

Diamonds are now flashing on the third fingers of feminine hands around school. We hope they are Publications Serving As "Cross-Sections" Down In Washington, D. C.

A special despatch from the Inter-city News Service of New York yesterday told a new distinction achieved by this newspaper. The despatch follows:

"Washington, D. C., April 22.—The new deal program and policy may change as the 74th Congressional session marches on, but the status in the Nation's capital of the Rockland Courier-Gazette as a sectional politico-economic barometer of the times, as well as its use for national, civic and current informative purposes remains constant.

This was disclosed today in a special survey of the newspaper archives division of world-famous Library of Congress on Capitol Hill where it was learned that The Courier-Gazette is among the important group of 'special cross section daily and weekly newspapers now in demand by library readers and research workers, according to Dr. Henry Parsons, chief of the periodical archives division.

"It was revealed that The Courier-Gazette is among the limited group of 764 United States dailies and weeklies regularly received catalogued and filed for ready reference in the celebrated archives as representative of approximately 14,500 total daily and weekly newspapers currently published throughout the nation."

Rockland Encampment Wednesday night will confer the Patriarchal degree.

Anyone wanting to go to Portland Sunday on the bus with the I.O.O.F. members is asked to call Nestor Brown, 695-W, before Thursday. It is not necessary to be an Odd Fellow or Rebekah. The fare is $1 for the round trip, if a full bus.

The Courier-Gazette yesterday became uncle to another newcomer—Charlotte Ruth Brackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Brackett. The mother was formerly Charlotte Thompson, a valued member of the newspaper staff.

Think of catching a 13-pound lobster and then being obliged to leave the bird back into the sea. That was the lot of Capt. John Coffin at Port Clyde yesterday. The lobster which he hove and the siph which he hove were of equal dimensions.

Miss Grace H. Crockett, formerly of this city, and for many seasons a member of the summer colony at Crescent Beach, died yesterday at her home in Boston. Funeral services will be held at the Burpee parlors Thursday at 3:30 p. m. and friends are invited.

Vocal solos were sung by Mrs. Kathleen Marston and John Robinson of Rockland, and Charles Wilson, Mrs. Ruby Kallach, and Chester Wyllie. There were two duets—Mrs. Avis Norwood and Chester Wyllie, and Mrs. Avis Norwood and Mrs. Ruby Kallach.

ONE name comes quickly to mind when you think of "The Universal Car." The description is distinctively Ford. No other car is used by so many millions of men and women in every part of the world. Everywhere it is the symbol of faithful service. . . That has always been a Ford fundamental. Something new is constantly being added in the way of extra value. Each year the Ford has widened its appeal by increasing its usefulness to motorists. . . Today's Ford V-8 is more than ever "The Universal Car" because it encircles the needs of more people than any other Ford ever built. It reaches out and up into new fields because it has everything you need in a modern automobile. . . The Ford V-8 combines fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty with low first cost and low cost of operation and up-keep. There is no other car like it.

FASHION FLASHES

By MARY LOUISE KENT

BLUE stockings on Broadway — think of that — and they are very smart in the new shades — so sheer, they give one the impression of pale nothing — nice for dress up afternoon wear.

Watch your purse girls — not only because of possible "snatches" but because the boy friend is reading your character — by it and its contents. Spill yours on the table — in private if you are wise — read your own character — don't be surprised if it is not too flattering.

My lady goes out in the rain — in dear old London they battle with it in mackintoshes as drab as the weather itself — Paris almost unanimously has adopted white — but Madam and Miss New York — run a rainbow round the City with all the colors of the spectrum — to this they add the gay colored "shoe glove" and any lady of America — sleek and shimmering — is gay as usual — and so easy to look at.

Clopes, bracelets, rings — are anything but modest of design — and as for size — well your strength to carry them is all that need be considered. The sale of old gold seems to have brought to life a flood of semi-precious stones and massive settings that are quaint and so pretty.

Loud cheers — the shoe comes into its own — begins to look more like a shoe and less like the top of a cranberry pie — I must say I like them — never could quite see beauty in a lot of toes oozing out — cover up your toes and be gay with your heels.

Make up tones down — less color on the cheeks — much less on the lips — and "muncher" lesser on the finger nails — if you listen to the dictates of Dame Fashion.

Real flowers worn in your spring hat together with a corsage to match — is the last word — and a pleasing suggestion — that may be followed without too much effort other than a bit of thoughtful planning.

Speaking of flowers — the New York Flower Show is responsible for a fad that binds together a number of carnations — after trimming the calyx, enough to prevent the green from showing above the top — using all of one color they make a very attractive corsage — which may be varied by encircling a white center with pink or red or visa versa — effectively old fashioned in appearance.

Plaids and checks have taken the spring fancy in a — manner — and they are all so pretty unless you have taken on a little too much weight — but even then you need not deny yourself — if you will confine your selections to the smaller designs that are not too pronounced.

Buckles, slides and buttons, to match, may be had in such great variety of shades, you can adapt them to almost any material — and they add a lot to the swank of your outfit.

3144—Jacket Suit—stylishly-trim, and practical with dark jacket, of basket weave wool or wool crepe, over silk print or rough silk crepe dress—the original model, used a Dusty Pink Pebble Cloth for the jacket—over a Tobacco Brown Silk Crepe Dress—Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for the jacket and 2 1/2 yards material, and 1 1/2 yards 39-inch for the dress.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a more movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't take liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Remot a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Hobby Horse

To ride a hobby horse is becoming quite the stylish thing to do. And not to do it may be indeed a serious matter.

Look at it in this light. Where are the jobs for the rising generations? What are the boys and girls leaving school going to do? Where are they going? What will satisfy their natural eagerness for life, activity, and adventure? Facing that problem brings more than a little worry. It should and does give cause for concern.

The only solution facing the school is to go into the hobby business seriously. Give those restless hands and idle minds something to do, something interesting, appealing. Radio making. Dramatics. Music. Art. Sports. Clubs. The list is long. Ask help of your local or county library or state department of education. Write to the National Recreation Association or the Leisure Time Institute, both of New York City.

Education takes place on the playground as well as in the classroom. Dr. Ireland explains how in his next article.

TENANT'S HARBOR

The few warm days of last week were a real treat.

The Memorial Library is being well patronized.

Capt. Samuel Lowe is getting his fish weir in readiness for the summer.

Easter Sunday was a beautiful day here and many people were about.

The St. George Granite Co. resumed operations at its plant last week with several men employed.

Clarence Thompson has charge of the crew of men working on the road project at Wiley's Corner.

Miss Evelyn Morris passed the weekend at her home in Caratunk.

Mrs. Nannie Wheeler who was out of town during the winter, arrived home last week accompanied by a friend.

Frank Kerswell is making extensive repairs on the Ella Alley house recently bought by Mrs. Sewall Wall.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Richards of Rockland passed Easter with Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Allen.

Clayton Hunnewell, principal of the High School, visited in Caratunk over the weekend.

About 150 persons attended Easter services at the church Sunday morning. Rev. Perley Miller was the preacher and music was furnished by a young people's choir, quartet and orchestra. It is hoped the orchestra and choir may prove permanent.

DELINEATION

(For The Courier-Gazette)
A dwelling old;
A fire-place;
Two easy chairs;
In its right space;
And, seated there,
New face to face,
A couple old;
Their years re-trace;
They talk of love,
Age can't efface;
That still endures,
And lends its grace;
Past years, full oft,
Their thoughts embrace—
Lavender-time,
Days of old lace;
A clock ticks low,
In ordered pace;
God bless them both,
As ends life's race!

Easter Observances

Impressive and beautiful Easter services were held Sunday in both churches. At the Baptist Church, the day began with a sunrise service on Beech Hill, with a large number present, the assembly then going to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Easton where on Easter breakfast was served. At 11 o'clock morning worship was held with special Easter music by the choir and sermon by the pastor, Rev. G. F. Currier.

The church was decorated with Easter lilies, carnations and pussy willows, the work of Miss Helene Dunbar. At 5 o'clock the ordinance of baptism was administered to three candidates.

The young people of the Sunday school assisted by the choir presented at 7 p. m. a fine program, with these numbers: Voluntary, Clara Lane, organist; anthem by choir, "Unfold Ye Gates"; offertory, "Christ Arose"; recitations, "The Risen King," Marjorie O'Donnell; "It Seems to Me," Harold Page; exercise, "Violets," Nancy Ingraham, Gladys Blackington, Dorothy Marshall, Joan Carver, costumed as violets with Doris Tominski as soloist; recitations, "Springtime's Coming," Chester Page; "Honoring the Victor," James Whitney; "Our Easter Basket," Priscilla Foster; song, "Awake Little Flowers," Patricia Wall; recitations, "Glad and Happy," Sylvia Simmons; "The Lily's Message," Gerald Richards; motion song, "Glad and Gay," Charles and Thedessa Weed; recitation, "The Jonquil and I," Arlene Spear costumed as a jonquil.

Exercise, "Easter Gems," Arlene Spear, Myrtle Andrews, Eva Walden, Muriel Young, Mary Hawkins, with Mary Reed, soloist; recitations, "My Easter Eggs," Roberta McKinney; "The Heart of a Rose," Rae Page; "Robins," Charles Weed; selection by orchestra; exercise, "Christ Arose," Joyce Simmons, Barbara McKenney, Agnes Young; recitation, "The Best Way," Sadie Marshall; "I Know," Robert Cooksop; vocal duet, "Victory," Arlene Tominski, Geraldine Page; recitation, "A Happy Time," Forrest McKenney; "Spring Messengers," Thedessa Weed; vocal duet, "Spring's Gift to Easter," Chester and Rae Page; recitations, "Easter," Arabella Eaton; "Mount of Calvary," Wallace Page; exercise, "Gates of Springtime," with Arlene Tominski reader, Mildred Butler as Springtime, Mary Reed Easter, and several children dressed as flowers and birds, with Beatrice Marston as soloist; anthem by choir, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

Much credit is due Mrs. G. F. Currier and Miss Geraldine Page under whose direction the excellent program was presented.

At the Methodist Church the first service for the day was at 8 o'clock when a praise and communion service was held. At the 11 o'clock service, special music was furnished by the combined choirs and an Easter sermon preached by Rev. Forrest F. Fowle after which four candidates were baptized.

The evening program consisted of a pageant under the direction of Mrs. Orta Burns and the installation of the Epworth League officers. The concert program was: Hymn, by choir; prayer, Rev. F. F. Fowle; dialogue, Robert Fowle and Alice Miller; dialogue, Mary Daucett, Carolyn Burns, Norma Spear, Marilyn Cripps; recitation, "Easter Chimes," Constance Lane; pageant, "The Way of the Cross," with these characters: Pilgrim of Today, Ernest Crockett; Melisande, Ruth Miller; messengers, Maurice Miller and Roland Richards; Pilgrim of Yesterday, Albert Robinson; Mary, mother of Jesus, Lois Burns; Mary Magdalene, Dorothy Burns; Mary, mother of James, Roberta Holbrook; Angel Gabriel, Keith Crockett; group of children, Mary Daucett, Carolyn Burns, Norma Spear, Constance Lane, Marilyn Cripps; selection, "Christ Arose," Silverstone Quartet.

Music for the pageant was furnished by the choir. At the candle-light installation service these Epworth League officers were inducted into office: President, Lois Burns; vice presidents, Keith Crockett, Florence Wentworth Albert Robinson; secretary, Helena Upham; treasurer, Ernest Crockett. At the evening service two candidates were baptized and received into membership.

Turn That Vacant Room Into Cash With a "To Rent" Advertisement in The Courier-Gazette Telephone 770

Now how in the world, mused Nancy, only half awake, could you lose your feet even if you wanted to? That nurse was crazy. She spoke as if your feet could be mislaid like a pair of gloves or a pocketbook or something! The idea made her almost laugh. Then, realizing that Matthew was about to leave, a wave of homesickness swept over her again, and she protested.

"Don't go, Matt!"

Again the unexpected voice startled her nurse; but Matthew came close, and stood there looking down at her. Then some one turned up a light.

"Better!" His voice was heavy with fatigue and low anxiety.

"Nance nodded.

"Where's Cousin Columbine?"

"In bed. It's pretty late. She's staying down here to keep an eye on you."

"And—Jack?"

There was a noticeable pause before Matt answered steadily: "Don't worry about Jack, Nance. That kid's the dandiest fighter you ever saw!"

"Find . . . Jack. . . You must find Jack, Matt. . . And . . . then take . . . the children. . . I am . . . all . . . all right. . ."

After that Nancy knew nothing at all for a long time. She retained only a confused memory of rousing for a moment to find her, self in a room that seemed very full of people; wondering why Matthew Adam and a strange woman were packing snow about her legs; and hearing a child cry out as if in pain.

She recalled that later (how much later it was impossible to say), she had cried herself, with such pain as she had not imagined; and then things blurred again. Once, they told her, she opened her eyes and asked for Jack, but drowsed again before the answer came.

Her first clear memory was waking to a sense of intense suffering, and seeing bright sunlight dancing across her bed. It was a white bed in a small, white room; and a white-clad woman was speaking to a shadow in the door. Nancy's eyes traveled upward and saw a cap. So the woman was a nurse. And this must be a hospital. "But why am I here?" she asked herself confusedly. "And what has happened to my legs?" Then she remembered! Those dreadful hours of cold and hunger—those helpless children—Jack facing the blizzard alone. And suddenly Nance Nelson was just a little girl again, a frightened little girl who yearned for the comfort that had never failed her when life seemed cruel—and life had never been so cruel before. She said, her voice breaking a little: "I want—I want my mother."

"Thank God!" said the nurse; and the tall shadow in the doorway turned into Matthew Adam—a gaunt and haggard Matthew to be sure, but comfortably familiar amid the strangeness. Two quick strides brought him to Nancy's bed, and bending down he lifted one of her hands gently.

"Thank God!" he said, just like the white nurse; and then anticipating the question she was too weak to ask: "Jack got there, Nance. He reached Bartlett's before we did; but the wires were down so Mrs. Bartlett couldn't call for help, and her husband was hunting cattle in the drifts. But if Jack hadn't gone there's no knowing when we'd have found you, Nance. He was all in, of course, but—but he will be all right."

This was Matt's verdict, not the doctor's; nor did that Jack was only a room away, fighting pneumonia. Time enough for that knowledge when she was stronger. Then the nurse warned: "That's all for now, Mr. Adam," and Nancy opened her eyes, which had grown sleepy, and asked: "The—children?"

"All safe," Matt answered; then, as a cry of pain escaped her. "Oh, Nance! Is it as bad as that?"

It was very bad, indeed, but with returning strength came self-control, and though there were times in the hours to come when her face twitched with anguish, no whimper passed the girl's lips again.

Later she woke to find Cousin Columbine beside her bed.

"How do you feel, child?" The crisp old voice was shaken with emotion. Nance scarcely recognized it.

"How's—Jack?" she asked. "I'm stronger than Jack. I . . ."

The weak words lagged, and Cousin Columbine said quickly: "Your brother's making a brave fight, child. I always said he had the courage of a pioneer. And you have, too, Nance. I—I am so proud of you."

Nance said nothing for a little while. Scenes from those tragic hours were crowding back.

"You were right—about the—the weather, Cousin Columbine," she admitted in a curious, small voice. And then, a tear slipping from beneath her lashes: "I wish . . ."

"What do you wish, dear?" asked the old lady, bending closer.

Nance tried to smile, but found herself too spent to manage it. "I'm only a—little homesick," she acknowledged.

A nurse came in just then with a strange doctor; and Cousin Columbine went out. They looked at her legs, and brought another doctor to look at them. Nance wondered what they were thinking, but was too tired to ask and dropped asleep before they left the room.

It was night when she opened her eyes again. A dim light burned, and a different nurse was there, and a new doctor. No, it wasn't a doctor. Nance saw after a moment. It was just Matt Adam. She heard the woman say to tell Miss Nelson that her niece was sleeping, and that after a consultation the doctors felt that, after all, she wouldn't lose her feet.

Now how in the world, mused

Nancy, only half awake, could you lose your feet even if you wanted to? That nurse was crazy. She spoke as if your feet could be mislaid like a pair of gloves or a pocketbook or something! The idea made her almost laugh. Then, realizing that Matthew was about to leave, a wave of homesickness swept over her again, and she protested.

"Don't go, Matt!"

Again the unexpected voice startled her nurse; but Matthew came close, and stood there looking down at her. Then some one turned up a light.

"Better!" His voice was heavy with fatigue and low anxiety.

"Nance nodded.

"Where's Cousin Columbine?"

"In bed. It's pretty late. She's staying down here to keep an eye on you."

"And—Jack?"

There was a noticeable pause before Matt answered steadily: "Don't worry about Jack, Nance. That kid's the dandiest fighter you ever saw!"

The nurse turned at this, and going to a window, did something unnecessary to the curtain; while Matthew, bending down, said quietly: "Is there anything I can do before I go, Nance?"

"You're so tired, Matt," she answered with irrelevance.

He smiled at that and didn't look so tired after all; but the girl said: "You won't drive up the pass tonight, will you? Promise you won't—or I'll worry."

"I promise, I'll stay down here with you, Mother thought Miss Columbine might need me in the morning for—errands or something," he added hurriedly. "Now be a good girl, Nance, and go to sleep."

"Couldn't you stay till I drop off?" she pleaded. "I'm kind of homesick."

"We can't let you be homesick," he told her gravely, "but you mustn't talk."

As the nurse (shuffling in a manner that would have brought a blush to the young man's cheek if he hadn't been so utterly self-conscious in that moment) turned down the light and left them for a little time, it seemed to Matt that all his weariness had dropped away. Nance wanted him there! No matter what happened, he'd always have that to remember. He might be awkward and bashful where most girls were concerned, but now, when she was weak and suffering, the one girl in the world had asked him to stand by. After all, life was pretty wonderful, thought Matthew Adam, forgetting in that moment, the grim fight waging in the room beyond.

Easter at Federated Church

"The Faith that overcomes the world" was the theme of Rev. H. P. Leach's Easter sermon at morning worship in the Federated Church, an uplifting message concluding the series given during the Lenten season. Music by the vested choir, Miss Julia Woodcock, organist, included: "The Lord is Risen," Schnecker; "Hosanna," Gremier, sung by the double quartet; the anthem, "Easter Morning," Wilson; "Thanks Be to God," Schnecker, response; offertory, "Easter Flower," Worrell. At this service Miss Rita C. Smith was baptized and she and Mrs. Robert Libby were received into membership. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper followed morning worship.

At 4 o'clock vespers, the quiet worship service for the boys and girls there was this order of service: Anthem "This is the Day," choir; call to worship and response; "Hosanna," quartet; meditation and prayer; responsive reading; response, choir. "Thanks Be to God," "Christ Arose Today," Wooler, Mrs. Russell Davis and Mrs. Bowdoin Grafton.

Children baptized were Robert James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Davis; Nancy Charlotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Libby; Dorothy Alberta, Robert Warren, and Elizabeth Edna, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Feyler, and Eleanor Margaret, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shields.

Following the hymn, "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," by the choir and congregation, with responsive Bible readings by the minister, two young girls were received into membership on probation: Olive, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Leach, and Elonia, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Woodcock.

"Hark, the Blest Tidings," Burnett, was sung by Laura Beattie, Katherine Creighton, Edna Young, Catherine Beattie, Alice Tuttle, and Edith Richards; Easter story, "They All Will Live Again," by Miss Blanche Raynor; "Unto Him Who Loved Us," Schnecker, choir; benediction.

The altar was beautiful, massed with Easter lilies and ferns; and the piano at the left was banked with blooming plants. On the communion table was a bowl of potted tulips given in memory of Mrs. Alice Gonia Hall, long a devoted member of this church. The lilies were given by several individuals and societies including the choir, Friendly Club, Sunday School and primary department. After vespers service, lilies were sent to various shut-in friends. Thanks are due Mrs. Leach and Miss Margaret Ruggles for the beauty of the decorations and to the choir for the music.

Miss Thelma Lincoff of Lewiston is guest of Mrs. Russell Davis.

Novel Peanut Butter Recipes

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

PEANUT BUTTER with its rich nutty flavor and smooth texture is a surprisingly versatile food—one that can be used in a variety of ways to bring new interest to menus the year 'round. Of course, we're all familiar with peanut butter spread in a thick luscious layer on a generous slice of buttered bread as the favorite after-school snack of children. But that is just the beginning of its possibilities. Peanut butter has become increasingly popular of late as a nutritious addition to meatless meals also. It offers such pleasant and well balanced variety in a season when we are all seeking new ways to prepare old standbys. In these recipes for muffins, crisp old-fashioned cookies, smart new desserts and delightful candy, peanut butter adds the grand new flavor that will win spontaneous applause:

Peanut Butter Surprise Muffins—Sift together 3 times, 1 1/4 cups pastry flour (sifted once before measuring), 4 teaspoons baking powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cream 4 tablespoons butter, add 4 tablespoons sugar and cream thoroughly. Add 1 well beaten egg and mix well. Add flour alternately with 1/2 cup milk. Beat after each addition until smooth. Fill muffin tins one-third full. Top with a heaping teaspoonful of Peanut Butter. Place enough batter on top of Peanut Butter to fill tins two-thirds full. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) for 20 minutes. Makes 12 muffins. To be served hot with a salad course.

Peanut Butter Oatmeal Cookies—Cream together 1/2 cup Peanut Butter and 1/2 cup butter, then add 1 cup sugar, and cream well. Add 3 eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after addition of each. Add 2 cups rolled oats, 1 cup raisins and 1 cup chopped dates (or 2 cups of either raisins or dates). Sift 2 cups pastry flour (sifted once before measuring) with 1/2 teaspoon soda, and add alternately with 1/2 cup milk. Drop by tablespoonfuls onto a lightly greased cookie sheet and bake in center of a slow oven (350° F.) for about 15 minutes, depending upon size of cookie. Makes 3 dozen large cookies.

Peanut Butter Shortbread—Cream together 1/2 cup Peanut Butter, 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup granulated sugar and 1 egg. Sift 1 1/4 cups pastry flour (sifted once before measuring) with 1/2 teaspoon soda and 1/2 teaspoon salt and work into Peanut Butter mixture and form into balls about the size of a large hickory nut. Place on a greased cookie sheet, about 2 inches apart, press the balls down somewhat with a knife and press a half of nut or small piece of date or fig on top of each. Bake in a slow oven (350° F.) about 15 minutes or until a delicate brown. For variation, melt bitter chocolate in a double boiler and dip the times of a fork into the chocolate. Make tiny lines over the top of cakes after they are baked.

Peanut Pudding—Scald 2 cups milk. Combine 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons Peanut Butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar and add to scalded milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Place in double boiler or in a pan over hot water and cook for 15 minutes. Pour into molds, chill and serve with cream or whipped cream.

Peanut and Peanut Butter Roll—Combine 2 cups white sugar, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1/2 cup corn syrup, 1 teaspoon Distilled White Vinegar and 1 cup cream or top milk, and boil until mixture reaches soft ball stage (236-238° F.). Cool to room temperature, then beat until creamy. Add 1/2 cup Peanut Butter and stir until blended. Turn out onto a board dusted with powdered sugar. Knead until firm. Shape into a roll and cover outside with pecans or chopped peanuts (1 cup will be needed). Put in cool place to harden. Slice when firm.

Peanut Butter French Toast—Combine 1 cup Peanut Butter, 1 cup hot milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper, and blend thoroughly. Drop slices of bread into the Peanut Butter mixture. Brown delicately on both sides in a skillet with a small amount of hot fat. Serve hot.

THE FORMOSA EARTHQUAKE

Japanese Island Visited By One Of the Worst Disasters In Modern Times

One of the world's greatest catastrophes occurred Sunday in Formosa, where the earthquake death toll reached 3065, with 10,000 injured and 250,000 homeless.

The beautiful island of Formosa lies off the southeast coast of China. It was wrested from China by Japan 40 years ago. The greatest length of the island from north to south is approximately 264 miles; 80 miles is its greatest width.

The usual approach to the island is the port of Kelung, in the extreme north. If you read in your grammar school geography that Kelung is the second wettest port in the world, you would have no trouble in believing it. Here and there one passed the low, mud, thatched dwelling of some Chinese homesteader, with a pool of water by way of front yard, where huge slate-colored buffaloes take their noon day siesta and a goodly number of ducks and geese keep patrol while the buffaloes sleep.

Taihoku, the capital, is a city the size of Lowell, Mass. It has broad streets, beautiful parks and imposing public buildings. The Chinese section of the city is known as Daito; but Daito is unnaturally clean for a Chinese city. The Japanese insist upon two official house-cleanings a year, and as they are executed under a policeman's vigilant eye, there is nothing slipshod in the procedure.

During the summer months Daito is at its busiest, for tea season is in full swing. Everywhere one sees coolies packing these gaily-flowered, lead-lined boxes that carry their sensitive freight of tea to America. I say America, for about 90 percent of Formosa Oolong goes to the United States. Tea is so sensitive to other freight that a tea merchant, before he loads his cargo, has to find out what goods a ship is carrying in her hold. For instance, tea and copra cannot travel together with anything approaching congeniality. If any Asiatic disease breaks out on the ship and the hold is fumigated, the tea might just as well have caught the disease and died, for its commercial life is at an end.

The population of Formosa is mainly agricultural. Rice, and more especially sugar-cane, are grown in large quantities. However, the most interesting industry is the production of camphor. Formosa holds a practical monopoly in the world's market of this valuable drug.

The savage population of Formosa is estimated at 150,000. The "raw" savages, as the Chinese term them, live much as their ancestors did centuries ago. There is one trait that all the "raw" savages possess in common, and that is their passion for head-hunting. The "ripe" savages have, of course, abandoned the practice altogether, but they still cherish a sneaking affection for it.

DR. THOM'S ADDRESS

Gives Some Interesting and Startling Facts About Child's Mental Life

Loyalty and humor permeating jocular recollections of his childhood days in Camden schools prefaced the address of Dr. Douglas A. Thom, professor of psychiatry in Tufts College, who dispelled all terror of technicalities which the lay mind is prone to associate with psychology, as he analyzed, learnedly, yet in simple, straightforward manner, "The Mental Life of the Child" at the assembly of the Parent-Teacher Association Saturday night in Camden Opera House.

Statistics, startling in their enormity, were cited in portrayal of the amazing increase in mental irrationalities. Illnesses of those occupying 50 percent of the nation's hospital beds are directly traceable to emotional maladjustments. The cost of maintenance of such cases in Massachusetts, where Dr. Thom is director of the Division of Mental Hygiene, Department of Mental Diseases, has been estimated at from 13 to 20 cents of each dollar of the State's appropriations.

Mental health was lucidly defined as that state of mind which approaches the maximum of efficiency and attains the greatest degree of happiness with minimum friction. Reflections of the essentials of balance might be reviewed frequently and to advantage by the hectic progressives whose driven nerves and relentless ambitions spell detriment to the genuine enrichment of their lives.

Juvenile delinquency is a major problem in the metropolitan courts and it is the appalling truth that 88.2 percent of those 15-year-average youths who are placed on probation, return to a life of crime, the age of the hardened criminal of today being from 18 to 25. Remedial measures lie in environmental conditions, was the recommendation of Dr. Thom, for, said he, 65 percent of the younger criminals come from disrupted homes. Homicides in this country reach the astounding figure of 11,000 yearly, three times as great as that of Italy, the European country having the most pronounced tendency in that direction; the number of suicides in the United States has quadrupled in a comparatively brief period—all of which conditions bear tragic evidences of mental aberrations.

Specific mention of types suffering from slight vergings from normalcy included that not-unusual child whose shy, retiring and modest personality is often the object of misplaced commendation, whereas it actually constitutes a definite ailment, and if not corrected, may well deteriorate into an infantile obsession to please, to ingratiate, and thereby result in serious weakening of the character structure.

The "nervous breakdown" is the retreat of that mind which has not "grown up", cannot face reality or make the necessary adjustments to life. Such persons, attempting to maintain in adulthood the identical standards which served them in childhood, and finding it impossible, resort to feigned illness, become neurotics—and their numbers, alas, are legion.

Parents, on whom a profound responsibility rests in regard to the emotional training and guidance of their children, were cautioned on three points: First, love, which unfortunately, in its confining possessiveness, often exerts a crippling influence and proves a stumbling block to the child's development as an individual; second, ambition, that ruthless force answerable for propelling children into lines for which they are totally unfitted in order that parents' pride may find nourishment—but at what a cost! third, fear, examples of which are perpetual reminders of unfavorable heredity, the ghost which haunts numerous families; the unintentional cruel method of comparing children, disadvantageously, with their superiors; and methods of strict disciplinarians whose harsh tactics have been known to incite a spirit of inadequacy—hence the "inferiority complex".

Dr. Thom concluded his constructive dissertation in a plea for broader education, urging that it become the definite aim of teachers to instruct their young charges in the proper outlooks on life and conformity to recognized standards of conduct, a worthy endeavor which would contribute, in no measure measure, to a more equitably socialized world. It is a rare distinction for a town of Camden's size to rate the privilege of an authoritative lecture of the vital subject of child psychology, and opportunity for expressing pleasure and appreciation to Dr. Thom was afforded in the social period which followed the address.

The High School orchestra played a selection as program introductory and again at the close. Announcement was made by Vice President Milford Payson of a card party to be given April 30 in the Parish house, the proceeds to be used toward defraying the expenses of dental work among the school children.

WEST ROCKPORT

Miss Bernice Nutt passed the first days of the vacation from Gorham Normal School with a classmate, Miss Phyllis Lancaster, at the latter's home in Old Town, and later, accompanied by Miss Lancaster, visited at her home here over the weekend.

The annual church business meeting will be Wednesday this week following the regular prayer meeting. It is desired that there be a special effort made to attend this service.

An Easter concert was given at the church Sunday evening with Rev. G. F. Currier of Rockport present for the opening scripture and prayer. He also led the congregation in the singing of an Easter hymn, after which he was obliged to leave to attend a concert in the Rockport church. The remainder of the program consisted of recitations by Charlene Heald, Harlan Robinson, Carolyn and Barbara Merrifield, Daniel Andrews, Floyd Robinson, Barbara and Mildred Tolman, Cynthia Smith, Gladys Parker, Arlene Keller, Walter Andrews, Beatrice Ashcroft, Sylvia Heald, Hazel Nutt, Carolyn Andrews and Henry Carroll; songs by Beatrice Ashcroft, Arlene Keller and Charlene Heald; exercises by the primary girls and Blanche Collins, Glenys Collins and Dorothy Keller. Mrs. Leman Oxtun entertained the Tuesday Club last week.

STRAND THEATRE

The amusing account of what happens to a perfect English butler-valet when he is exposed to American ideas of Democracy, is the plot and story "Ruggles of Red Gap," which comes Wednesday and Thursday with Charles Laughton in the title role.

"Ruggles" adventures begin when his titled master loses him to an American tourist and his wife in a poker game. On his first day in his new job, Ruggles takes his exuberant master out to view London's art galleries and winds up with him in a drunken spree. Back to Red Gap, U.S.A., a crude but stimulating Western town of the 1900's, goes "Ruggles" with his American employers. And when his master introduces him to the society big-wigs of Red Gap as a Colonel of the English Army, "Ruggles" becomes the social favorite of the town.

"Ruggles" former master turns up in Red Gap to find a completely altered butler who engineers his lordship into a romance with a lovely American lady. Finally, "Ruggles" himself finds romance with the towns leading widow and becomes the town's leading restaurateur.—adv.

EDUCATIONAL AID FUND

Raised By State Grange For Benefit Of Members of the Order

At a recent meeting of the trustees of the State Grange Educational Aid Fund of Maine the officers were re-elected: President, A. P. Howes Palmyra; secretary, E. T. Clifford, Winthrop; treasurer, C. O. Purington, Bowdoinham; the other members are Miss Margaret Wilson and V. W. Canham, Auburn.

These trustees arranged for a different method of making contact with the Granges in the State. Each subordinate grange master is asked to appoint some prominent member of his Grange to be a representative of the Educational Aid Trustees in looking after the interests of the fund in that Grange.

The subordinate and Pomona granges in the State have supported this fund so that it now amounts to over $7,000. This is a good beginning but not nearly so large a sum as the Grange has built up in Massachusetts, some $20,000, and in New York, $25,000. Some of the Granges in Maine have made a yearly contribution to the fund, others do this occasionally, and some Granges have never given anything to the fund. Some make a certain contribution every year; some have some sort of an entertainment, Andreoscoggin Pomona Grange held an auction recently and $25 was raised.

This money is loaned to members of the Grange who wish to continue their education but who have not the funds, and whose parents are not in a position to help them. It has been of very great help to more than a hundred young people. The fund was started in 1900 and the money subscribed and the loans returned have been revolved so that the total loans have amounted to more than $14,000.

AN APRIL JINGLE

[For The Courier-Gazette] April, you're a fickle jade. No matter how we like you—Sometimes acting as a lamb. Though we never know how to take you

She skips and prances all about. But lovable none the less. We cannot analyze her mood—Can only make a guess: The morning sun comes warm and bright. But may be doomed before the night—A hoodoo we confess!

But just a month of April. With all her smiles and tears. May bring us joy and happiness—And scatter all our fears.

I think she's trailing March along. She seems to like his wintery song. But we will not care, for soon we'll say, "April's gone and here comes May."
