NOTED CAMDEN EVENT

It has been long since such an amusing play has been seen in these parts as "Fresh Fields" presented at Camden Opera House Monday night, starring Margaret Anglin, famous American actress. In this sparkling comedy, written for her by Iver Nevello, celebrated English playwright, Miss Anglin plays the part of an English titled woman who has lost her money and so opens her Victorian home to "paying guests," thus causing a riot of confusion and consternation. The vivid humor and clever lines kept the audience in an uproar of hilarious joy. Miss Anglin was delightfully cast, and showed her keen artistry by not outplaying any member of her company. The intelligent casting merits special praise, it might be said. That the audience was an appreciative one was shown in the prolonged applause after each act. Miss Anglin and her company being recalled after Act 3 several times, Miss Anglin alone receiving seven curtain calls, which must have convinced the distinguished actress that she remains one of America's favorites.

HEARD GOOD REPORTS

Maine Savings Bank Men Enjoyed Their Convention At The Samoset Hotel

Weather conditions were anything but auspicious in the morning, with a small line gale in progress, but when the initial session was called to order Thursday afternoon an attendance of about 150 was seen, and 30 of Maine's 33 savings institutions were represented.

The visitors received a most hearty welcome from President Frank W. Fuller of the Rockland Savings Bank.

The delegates were welcomed by President Frank W. Fuller of Rockland Savings Bank and acknowledgment in kind was made by the president of the State Association, Harold J. Staples of Biddeford.

The members heard some interesting facts and figures when Harry Nelson of Portland read the reports of the State secretary and State treasurer. Among other things they learned that Maine's 33 savings institutions have deposits totaling $121,000,000, which is a new record for this State. President Staples read the auditors report on the Liquidity Fund Association.

"Arousing the Corporation" was the subject of an address by Frank P. Bennett, Jr., publisher of the United States Investor. The speaker believed that all of these officials should have a thorough knowledge of the difference between the commercial bank, and the savings bank, and that they should display more interest than they have in the past.

Lawrence P. Morse, financial editor of the Boston Transcript, had as his topic "The Outlook For Money Rates" discussed from the interesting standpoint of an observer who is in such close touch with the financial situation.

Robert C. Glazier of Hartford spoke on "The Connecticut Central Fund."

Glazier told the members of the association that underlying conditions were sounder than in a long while and he saw reasons for confidence in continued improvement in the mutual savings bank world. Stability of deposits in mutual savings institutions, he said, together with the large number of new accounts constantly being opened testified to the fact that the old-fashioned virtue of thrift still was manifesting itself. Deposits in mutual savings banks, he said, now aggregate ten billion dollars, while the number of accounts has reached a new high of fourteen million.

The speaker said he hoped the next Congress would resume work in a frame of mind free from political bias and would seek first to restore to the business world the confidence essential to recovery. Adjournment, he said, would give the country opportunity to take stock and provide Senators and Representative an opportunity to review proceedings of the session just ended and map out a course for the next session to correct mistakes and perfect meritorious measures.

Glazier described the operation of the mutual savings banks' central fund in Connecticut, of which he has been president since its organization, which he said provided a bulwark of safety for savings bank depositors in his state. He said additional powers recently granted by the Connecticut Legislature had greatly increased its usefulness to the banks and to the community.

The banquet Thursday night, attended by about 200, was an interesting and brilliant social affair, over

MAN BROTHERHOOD

Presented By Dr. Farrington For Consideration By His Brother Rotarians

Yesterday's Rotary luncheon hour had for its speaker Dr. Ernest C. Farrington of Garthgannon, who for the fifth time figured in that somewhat exacting capacity, and scored success that had been visited upon his former talks. While previously he had dealt with subjects arising naturally out of his profession, this time the Doctor gave consideration to "Brotherhood," in relation to its beginnings among mankind of so remote a period as obscures it in the dim regions of savagery. We find the principle indefinitely glanced at in the early tribal countries, he said, and brought down by tradition to later years. In Greece and Rome, in the semi-religions of the mystics, there was suggestion of brotherhood of a sort. It appeared slightly in the Guild, and remotely in the arts and crafts, notably that of architecture; but it had centuries to go before it was in any way known to what we have come to look upon as civilization, and even here its touch was indefinite.

In Masonry seems first to be found the brotherhood spirit that now has come to be recognized as a thing for which the world is longing. Naturally the speaker in this later connection dwelt upon the principles of Rotary as directed to brotherhood, linking itself with other service clubs that also are addressed to an active propaganda that constantly is seeking to bring the world into a condition of universal peace. It was an address marked by intellectuality and clear thought, and brought down upon the Doctor a handsome round of applause.

Walter E. Danforth, treasurer of the Bangor Savings Bank, rendered a report on the guaranteed mortgage system. Carroll H. Wentworth of Gorham presented a paper on "The Preble Corporation." Major Fred N. Oliver of Washington, D. C., counsel for the National Savings Bank Association, described national legislation as affecting savings banks.

Edwin F. French, president of the Maine Central Railroad, told of improved operating conditions, and reaffirmed his faith in the road and the State of Maine.

Robert L. Hogue, vice president of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank of Brooklyn—the largest mutual savings bank in the United States—discussed "Post Depression Mortgages," and said he had encountered a better feeling in the last nine months toward real estate mortgages. He discussed the essential features of making new mortgages in the future.

C. W. Kellogg of New York, chairman of the Board of Engineers Public Service Co., told of the new problem of selecting utility bonds for investment.

These officers were elected: President—Fred P. Laurence, treasurer of the Maine Savings Bank, Portland.

Vice President—Charles A. Knight, president of the Gardiner Savings Institution.

Secretary—Prince A. Drummond of Waterville.

Treasurer—Carlos L. Hill of the Maine Savings Bank.

REVIEW OF TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Was a Success Despite Late Start—Prospects Excellent For Next Season

(By the Sports Editor)

With this afternoon's game at Camden the Knox County Twilight Leaguers faded out of the picture so far as the season of 1935 is concerned. Despite its late start, and certain other handicaps to be overcome the League was a decided success, and its continuance another summer is a foregone conclusion.

The Courier-Gazette's insistence that there be a twilight league instead of haphazard independent baseball found such hearty co-operation that I am delighted beyond words. Except in Rockland, which has had to be the goat this season, the attendance has fully justified a twilight league, and that interest is bound to increase in 1936 with a better organization, better teams and an earlier and more auspicious start. I want for just a moment to review the four teams which comprised the League, and I will consider them alphabetically.

The Champs and "Chick"

Camden! Here is a team which had everybody's sympathy from the outset, for the reason that it pluckily continued in the old Twilight League, when the use of outside players by the other contenders made its cause as hopeless as Rockland's has been this season. The Megunticook team got away to a good start, but its destinies were definitely shaped with the arrival on the scene of "Chick" Maynard, the bespectacled secretary of the Camden Y.M.C.A., who has won his spurs in former years as a player, but who as a manager and coach may well be considered a "natural." It was his pep, his magnetism, and his acuteness which molded

Camden into an unbeatable team, and it is small wonder that the Camden fans began to turn out in old time style. I saw in the bleachers men who were boosting the home team long before I began attending games and that's saying what they call in street parlance a "mouthful." Probably the most faithful Camdentite in the sidelines was Frank H. Wilbur, with whom I once had the distinction of playing on the Rockland team. Those who behold him today and call him "Gramp" (affectionately, to be sure) should have seen some of the marvelous plays I have seen him make. His interest in the game has never waned.

New Manager Next Year?

Camden had one advantage over all the other teams—its members played practically the same positions game after game, and there resulted a brand of team-work which was beautiful to behold. There has been an absence of "knocking" among the members, and harmony has been the watchword. The team seems likely to present the same strong battle-front next season, but I hear a rumor that "Chick" Maynard may be

A NEW PRISON WARDEN

After Four Years Of Excellent Service Warden Thurston Is Replaced By Democrat

Edward P. Johnson, Democrat of Saco, in charge of the York County Jail at Alfred, was appointed warden of the Maine State Prison Thursday to replace Warden Raymond E. Thurston, Republican, who has held the post since March, 1932.

The appointment was made by George W. Leadbetter, (R), recently reappointed as State Health, Welfare and Institutional Service director, and was immediately approved by the Governor and the all-Republican Executive Council.

Johnson will become warden Oct. 1. The Council also confirmed the Governor's reappointment of Leadbetter which the chief executive delayed several weeks during which time it was reported it made it would be contingent on replacement of Thurston.

The chief executive recommended Thurston's removal last year on a charge of "lax administration" because of the escape of three long-term prisoners who were recaptured. Leadbetter, backed up by the Council, declined to accede to the Governor's request at that time.

Maine prison wardens are not appointed for any definite length of time. They are employed and released at the pleasure of the Health, Welfare and Institutional Service director, subject to approval of the Governor and Council.

Johnson a native of Saco and a former alderman and former police officer in that city, is a World War veteran, having served overseas in the Field Artillery of the 28th Division. He was in several battles and was seriously wounded, being confined in a hospital for some time. He is drum major of the bugle and drum corps of Richard C. Owen Post American Legion, and has also won the honor of being the best-strutting drum major in Maine.

After the war he was manager of one of the Child's restaurants in New York for a time and later engaged in the business for himself in Philadelphia. He returned to Saco in 1927, and has at different times been employed at the Pepperell Mills and the Saco-Lowell Shops.

THE LINCOLN SHAWL

A rare memento of President Abraham Lincoln, the shawl which he wore the night he was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, in Ford Theatre, Washington, D. C., will be exhibited at Gregory's Sept. 9 to 15.

Bloodstains still remain on the shawl which is probably the most treasured of all Lincolniana. The shawl is a large heavy, knitted affair of black and gray yarns. In Lincoln's time they were worn commonly by men and women because of poor heating facilities in homes and carriages. Many old engravings depict the martyred President wearing a shawl similar to the one shown at Gregory's.

That the shawl is genuine there is no question. Several affidavits serve as complete identification.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

A CHANGE OF WARDENS

The ousting of Raymond E. Thurston, State Prison Warden, in favor of a Democrat, was not wholly unexpected by those who know the persistency with which Gov. Brann has worked to that end. There were wheels within wheels and when they had been set in motion to the satisfaction of the Democratic machine, Gov. Brann pushed the button which meant the installation of a man of his political choice, and the ousting of Mr. Thurston who has admittedly made the best warden the Thomaston institution has had for many years. Warden Thurston's administration has covered a period of four years, and in the course of that time he has not only developed a successful business regime, but has instituted improvements in every department of the prison, and has maintained a discipline which has made it one of the model penitentiaries in the country. We have no knowledge of Mr. John-son, the Saco Democrat, who has been named to succeed Warden Thurston. He may prove an exemplary official, and we earnestly hope so, but he follows a man who has made a splendid record, and who retires with the respect of all persons, regardless of politics.

YOUR VOTE NEXT MONDAY

The voters of Maine have laid upon them the duty of appearing at the polls this coming Monday to express their conclusions in the matter of a referendum having to do with a group of amendments to the State Constitution enacted by last winter's Legislature. What these consist of will be found detailed upon another page, to which the reader's attention is directed. This paragraph assumes no further responsibility in the connection except to lay emphasis upon the obligation that lies with the voter to play his part at the polls. The referendum we have always with us, and it is a point of good citizenship to see that the opportunity it offers to take part in the important affairs of the State is not lightly ignored.

THE CONSTANT SUBSCRIBER

Comes to the newspaper desk from that staunch citizen of Tenant's Harbor, Deacon Henry F. Kallach, a check covering the year's subscription for the two copies of the paper to which he annually gives oversight. "If I do not mistake," the letter runs, "this will be my 67th year as a subscriber to your paper. I look for its arrival more than I do for my dinner."

Here one finds pictured a constancy on the part of the taker of his publication that no newspaper man would lightly undervalue, much less that brand of him listed as the country variety. There is that associated with the country newspaper which gives it unique personality in the field of journalism. It is a quality that in particular bears an appeal to the sorely-driven writer of the metropolitan press, who finds himself constantly moved upon by an ambition emphasized by the hope of some day renouncing the hectic life of the metropolis for the less exacting responsibilities of a chair in the rural office; a post of honor whose occupant comes to be overseen by an indulgent constituency that, in the poet's line, passes his imperfections by, nor views him with a critic's eye.

It is the sort of thing that carries reciprocal responsibilities, and the newspaper man is not insensible to the fact. His ambitions center in a desire to have the approval of the community that his paper seeks to represent. There is no more definite form of this approval than the regularly paid-in subscription. When this detail of endorsement has been persisted in for a period of sixty-seven years there is no doubting the subscriber's sincerity.

We were delighted to hear from the Deacon.

THE DEER ISLE BRIDGE

It should need no extended appeal, no strenuous argument, to convince residents of Knox County that next Monday they should cast their ballots in favor of the Deer Isle-Sedgwick Bridge. In these columns have repeatedly appeared articles showing the necessity of such a structure—not merely as a means of developing that region for summer resort purposes, but in the interests of humanity, for everybody knows what emergencies arise in remote island districts during the winter season and how ill-fitted such communities are for the handling of critical cases. The past few winters have revealed many acts of self-sacrifice and heroism upon the part of the Deer Isle doctors and citizens—deeds which take a most prominent position among the epics which go to make up the history of the Maine coast. If any further argument were needed to convince Knox County voters of their duty next Monday, let them hark back a few years and recall how we were pleading for votes in behalf of the Kennebec Bridge at Bath. Give Deer Isle the assistance to which it is honestly entitled.

Your Deposits in This Bank Now Permanently Insured

The new Banking Act of 1935, giving permanence to Federal Deposit Insurance, has just been passed by Congress and signed by President Roosevelt.

This new law provides for a continuance of the system whereby deposits in the Knox County Trust Co. are insured against loss up to a total of $5,000 for each depositor.

The Knox County Trust Co. has voluntarily provided this extra safeguard for its depositors' funds, and its membership in The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is proof of the strength of its position.

ELLIS SPEAR SPOKE

Former Warren Man Tells
Warren Woman the Story
Of Progressive Schools

Mrs. Alzada Simmons, first vice president of the Warren Women's Club, presided at the September meeting Thursday evening in the absence of the president, Miss Edna F. Boggs, who attended the meeting of the Maine Library Association at Camden. The program featured two violin solos by Miss Beatrice Haskell who played Meditation from Thaïs, and Ozardas Hungarian Dance (V. Morte) accompanied by Miss Marguerite Haskell.

Ellis Spear 3d of Newton Centre, Mass. and Warren, was guest speaker, his subject being "Progressive Schools." Mr. Spear, formerly associated with the psychology departments of Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges spoke very interestingly of the progressive type of school which he had had occasion to observe. He spoke especially of the English classes which he had visited following this new way of study. The children were moving quite freely about, whispering one to another, but their intense interest in the subject was noted immediately. The class bell rang but they lingered in the room until the very last minute they were so absorbed. Observation of the English that was used by these pupils showed that their use of English and grammar was far ahead of schools not using the progressive system of education.

In the opinion of Mr. Spear this progressive form of education gives students a better chance to indicate their personal bent and to develop them. To illustrate his point, Mr. Spear told a story of a girl who disliked mathematics intensely and for whom the study was put off. When about 12 years old, and ready to enter the Seventh Grade the value of mathematics was borne home to her, and directly she applied herself to the study, the result being that in little over a year she had accomplished in this study as much as the average child would in six years of ordinary study.

The point of emphasis in the talk Thursday evening was the fact that one can accomplish more in less time if they see the value of it before application of the study. This point was further illustrated by results of laboratory experiment with white rats. One placed in a maze of runs, with attractive food at the end, found his way there in about nine seconds, while another rat placed in a same maze, the runway of about 20 feet in length found his way there by the unpleasant sensation of a series of electric shocks when he inadvertently took a wrong turn, in 100 seconds. Hence applied to children, the pleasant and pointed way of education is more quickly accomplished than the unpleasant pointless system of learning.

However, Mr. Spear went on to say that the pleasant can not be introduced into every learning situation but after all the value of what is learned can be understood to some extent. That this progressive method will be in a short time introduced into the public schools is in Mr. Spear's mind an established fact.

He also spoke of hobbies, mentioning the unhappiness of a retired doctor who after being as busy as could be for some 40 years found himself in the retired ranks with nothing to demand his attention. He tried many ways of filling in his time and grew steadily more unhappy each day. Finally he found himself and each day passes swiftly by, with the time filled with a woodturning lathe on

OWN MORE JERSEYS

This Breed of Cattle Becoming More Popular Throughout Country

"Every day during the first six months of 1935 an average of 16 persons who had not previously owned purebred Jerseys bought one or more animals," Lewis W. Morley, executive secretary of the American Jersey Cattle Club, the national organization of Jersey breeders, comments in summarizing Jersey activities for the first half of this year.

"Altogether a total of 2,784 persons who had not previously owned Jersey cattle entered the Jersey business from January to June, inclusive, 1935. This is the largest number of new owners of purebred Jerseys recorded by the American Jersey Cattle Club for the first half of any year since 1931," Mr. Morley says.

"Sales and registrations of purebred Jerseys recorded for the first half of 1935 also show a big increase over last year and, in fact, are higher than for any other similar period since 1931."

The total of 3,636 registrations recorded in July, 1935, is the highest for this month since July, 1930, while the total of 1,822 transfers, or sales, of purebred Jersey cattle recorded is the greatest for any July since 1931, according to Mr. Morley.

which he turns everything which he can think of. Mr. Spear said that with the coming of more and more leisure time, this problem of making something, or having something to show for that time, is becoming more and more acute. In his own mind, he thinks that this progressive method will lessen the problem and will give each individual an idea as to what he would wish to do in those spare moments without groping in the dark to find a hobby.

THE LAST RITES

Funeral of Alderman Charles
W. Schofield Was An Impressive Affair

The municipality, the American Legion and citizens at large united yesterday afternoon in paying their final tribute to Charles W. Schofield, whose death in North Agawam, Mass., Wednesday morning, under such tragic circumstances, excited the sorrow and sympathy of the entire community.

The services were held in the Church of Immanuel, Universalist, the large seating capacity of which proved inadequate for the mourners, and extra seats had to be provided. The floral offerings, including many richly executed set pieces, told an eloquent story. Seated in the auditorium were many representatives of the City Government (which he was serving as alderman at the time of his death); Winslow-Holbrook Post, A.L., Huntley Hill Post, V.F.W.; the 40 and 8, Edwin Libby Post, G.A.R.; Rockland Lodge, B.P.O.E.; the local Masonic bodies and the auxiliaries of the patriotic bodies. Perry's Market was represented by the entire organization.

Rev. John Smith Lowe, D.D., officiated, and the ritual services of the American Legion were conducted by Commander Charles W. Morton and Rev. Corwin H. Olds as chaplain.

A large cortege followed the remains to their last resting place in Sea View cemetery, with the local battery of Coast Artillery Corps performing escort duty. Besides the hearse walked the honorary bearers, Earl C. Perry, Frank Bridges, Ronald Abbott, Ensign Winchenbaugh, Edward Post and Warren Davis. The active bearers were Legionnaires—Charles W. Morton, Gerald Margerson, Gerald McPhee, Hector G. Staples, Gardner French and Earle J. Alden.

At the cemetery a firing squad performed its sad duty, and taps was sounded by Frank Young, bugler.

NO ICE BREAKERS

Looks As If Next Congress
Would Have To Supply
the Funds

A Press Herald despatch from Washington says:

Although the Treasury Department June 29 applied for $1,689,000 to build nine ice-breakers and although Congress passed a bill authorizing the construction of 10, no effort will be made by the Treasury to get the money from WPA, it was said Tuesday and funds will probably await appropriation bills of next session of Congress.

This delay in funds for the ice-breakers means that they will not be ready even for the winter of 1936-37, although at a hearing on ice-breaker bills at the recent session Congressmen from coast, States and officers of the Coast Guard appeared to testify to the inadequacy of the present supply of vessels.

Representative Moran, of Maine introduced a bill asking for new ice-breakers for Maine, but this was merged in the omnibus ice-breaker bill, which was finally passed, with no particular location specified for the boats assignment to be left to the Coast Guard as need dictated.

The Maine Coast Guard Stations where repairs and improvements may be undertaken are Quoddy Head, Cross Island, Great Wass Island, Cranberry Island, White Head Island, Burnt Island, Damis Cove, Kennebec River station, Cape Elizabeth and Fletcher's Neck.

HE'S DISGUSTED

Too Bad That Good Warden
Should Be Political Sacrifice, Reader Thinks

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—I was surprised and disgusted to read yesterday that Warden Thurston had been sacrificed to politics.

It does seem too bad, when we have a warden who is really interested in a disagreeable job and is putting his heart and soul into improving the welfare of the prisoners, as well as energetically endeavoring to make the institution as near self-sustaining as possible, that his efforts should be appreciated.

The occasional escape of prisoners from this or any other State Prison under existing humane regulations, is nothing new and is only an excuse for his removal.

Mr. Leadbetter should not be blamed too much for Thurston's removal because extreme pressure was brought to bear on him and self preservation is one of the first laws of nature.

However it is nice to know that with a Democrat in office there will be no more escaped prisoners. Interested Citizen.

MADE A BIG HAUL

Bay Rum, Allegedly Sold For Tipping Purposes, Seized
By Police

While Abram Cassman was pacing his cell in wild fury at the Knox County Jail Thursday afternoon, Officers Forrest Hatch, Carl Christoferson and Albert Grant were making a very thorough raid at his store on Tillson avenue. And here is what they got:

Eleven cases, each containing one dozen 16-ounce bottles of bay rum.

One case containing six full bottles of bay rum and two empties.

One 16-ounce bottle partly full of bay rum.

One 16-ounce bottle full of bay rum. Two 16-ounce bottles partly full of bay rum.

297 rubber stoppers. One 2-ounce bottle of checkerberry. 203 empty 16-ounce bay rum bottles. 37 4-ounce bay rum bottles. 87 empty pint bottles.

18 empty half-pint bottles. Rubber tubing. A capper.

Sixty caps for bay rum bottles. When the officers had completed their search and carted away the alleged contraband articles, the place looked as if it had been in the path of the late Florida hurricane.

Cassman has not been arraigned on this charge for the reason that he is now under observation at the County Jail as to his mental condition.

SERMONETTE

Paul's Apostolic Authority Not To Be Questioned Again

Men, both in public and private life, have to stand often in defense of their position. After devoting nearly two decades to Christian service, Paul learns that men are attacking his apostleship in the Province of Galatia. He writes these churches so clearly that he makes them appear foolish; and at the very end of his letter he attempts to settle the question of his authority for once and all.

"For the future let no one trouble me; for I fear the marks of Jesus branded on my body."

Let us see. In the 2d Corinthians, in a letter written a year later from Macedonia, he tells them and us:

I have had more than my share of toil, more than my share of imprisonment. I have been flogged times without number. Often I have been at death's door. Five times I received one short of forty lashes at the hands of the Jews. Three times the Romans beat me with rods. Once I was stoned. Three times I was shipwrecked. I have spent a whole twenty-four hours in the sea. My journeys have been many. I have been through dangers from rivers, dangers from robbers, dangers from my own people, dangers from heathen, dangers in town, in the country and on the sea; dangers from false brethren. I have had sleepless nights; I have endured hunger and thirst; I have passed days without food. I have been cold and poorly clothed, not to mention my daily burden of care and anxiety about all the churches. Marks of Jesus branded upon my body. Let us never misunderstand again.

William A. Holman.

"The Penetrating Power of Faith" will be the sermon theme of Rev. Corwin H. Olds at the Congregational Church Sunday at 10:30.

Rev. John Smith Lowe, D. D., at the Universalist Church will preach on "Personality's Problems" tomorrow morning. There will be no church school on this opening Sunday.

At St. Peter's Church (Episcopal) Rev. E. O. Kenyon, rector, services for tomorrow will be: Holy Communion at 7:30; church school at 9:30; Holy Eucharist and sermon at 10:30; vespers at 7:30.

"The Power of God Unto Salvation" and "Conditions of Prosperity" will be the morning and evening sermon topics of Rev. Charles E. Brooks at the Pratt Memorial Methodist Church Sunday. Church school will meet at noon. The Friendly Men's Bible Class will meet in the small vestry at 9:30.

At Littlefield Memorial Church there will be a baptism at 9 o'clock Sunday morning and at 10:30 the pastor's subject will be "More Than Conquerors" with a sermonette for the children. Church school at 11:45 and preaching service at 7:15. Prayer meeting Tuesday at 7:30 and quarterly business meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30.

At First Church of Christ, Scientist, corner of Cedar and Brewster streets, Sunday services are at 10:30 and the subject of the Lesson-Sermon tomorrow will be "Man." Sunday School is at 11:45. Wednesday evening testimony meeting is at 7:30. The reading room is located at 400 Main street, and is open week days from 2 until 5 p. m.

Right Out Of The Air

By R. F. SERVICE

A single guest star appearance on Al Jolson's program, earlier this season, was all that Nella Goodelle needed to sell three sponsors on her desirability for their radio programs. The first of the three sponsors who auditioned her time, singing pianist signed her time, daily to a long term contract which brings Miss Goodelle to the NBC network on a series all her own commencing Sept. 8.

A rich contralto voice, capable of wide variations in style, plus the rhythmic piano renditions should make Miss Goodelle's recitals one of the most popular new series of programs to take to the air this fall. Her broadcasts will immediately follow Walter Winchell's period. He resumes his gossip in his old Sunday night period beginning September 1.

Ford Bond, noted NBC announcer, who was ordered by his physician to cut down his working hours, is now following the famous Dr. William Hay diet to health and is losing weight as well as feeling better.

"Hot" tunes apparently greatly appeal to hot countries, for the Foursome, newest male quartette to gain fame on the radio, has been signed to make a series of 12 recordings exclusively for South America.

Much of the credit for the fast moving, spirited tempo of the Tuesday evening "NTG and His Girls" programs heard over NBC should go to its musical director, Harry Salter. Previous to this engagement, Salter was one of radio's de-serv-ing "unknowns." Musicians recognized his ability, but he was generally a stranger to the listening public. Now that Grandlund has given him credit, he is expected to become one of the best known network maestros.

Most popular of all the CBS programs is the full hour Monday evening Radio Theatre series. The greatest of stage and screen, cast in the most popular plays of all time, and capably directed, combine to give topnotch dramatic productions.

Canadians selected Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankee over all other bands heard on the airwaves to play at their annual exposition at Toronto this year. It is rumored that Rudy was lured with one of the largest sums ever paid for a single attraction for a two-week period. He will air two of his Thursday evening Variety programs from Toronto while playing there.

Barry McKinley, youthful star of the "When Dreams Come True" broadcasts, has seen more than 50,000 letters come in on his program in the last five weeks. Yet the modest singer says he believes most of them are from women interested in the contest in which his sponsor is offering $1,000 a year for life as first prize. Nevertheless, the requests for autographed photos of the lad are quite high.

Nick Dawson, who with Elsie Hitz is starred in "Dangerous Paradise," paints miniature stage settings in his spare time. Many of them have been used by scenic artists for the actual scenes in Broadway plays.

Connie Gates, dark eyed CBS songstress, has proven that a singer can change her style of delivery. When she came in from Cleveland several years ago, she was "typed" as a ballad singer, but when program creators demanded rhythm tunes, she tossed aside the slow numbers and is now adding zip to the airwaves with her fast-moving dance tunes. And making good at it, too!

Al Jolson is trying to find out if it's possible to broadcast his programs from London via short-wave. Al would like to go over there and have British stars and soloists for his "Chateau" programs Saturdays.

Normality Possible For Retarded Child

Practically All Cases May Be Improved Through Proper Treatments

By Dr. E. A. Farrington
Director, Bancroft School;
Secretary, Special School Association

The first and ever-present question in the mind of the parents of a retarded or problem child is: "Can my child be cured? Will he be normal?"

The answer depends on what is meant by normal. The word covers a tremendously wide field. Normality can include the day laborer and the college professor. It can encompass both pavement artist and Royal Academician.

Our question becomes a little clearer if it is altered slightly to read: "Will my child come within the normal range?"

Possibilities of Improvement
An affirmative answer can often be given to the question in this form. A fair percentage of retarded children may, under proper training, be brought within the normal limit. They may always remain in the lower third or half, but they are, nevertheless, not to be included among the permanently deficient.

In the severer cases of retardation, the most that may be hoped for is improvement. Every child makes some progress, and many improve so much that they are practically different persons after spending a few years in a special school.

If the training is directed, as it should be, toward socializing the pupil and making him "adjustable," he has a good chance of returning home and taking his place in the household with contentment to himself and satisfaction to his family.

This is the ninth of a series of articles on the "problem child." Dr. Farrington will reply to questions addressed to him at the Bancroft School, Haddonfield, N. J.

United States Army Motorized for Speed

The motorized Army at Pine Camp uses motor vehicles for every purpose—to haul supplies and troops; to attack and to place big guns. (Top) Artillery tractors fueling by newly-developed high speed system. (Lower left) New anti-aircraft gun in action. (Lower right) A forty-five mile an hour tank goes over the top.

PINE CAMP, N. Y. (Special)—Nearly 100% motorized, the United States Army can be moved from place to place as fast as any other in the world, according to army officials here. The maneuvers, the largest peacetime concentration in the country's history, depended entirely upon gasoline-operated vehicles; not only for supplies but also for transportation of men, equipment and guns. Trucks, tractors, tanks and cars were utilized to prove conclusively for the first time that modern motorized units of large size may be moved quickly.

The concentration of 36,000 men and officers at the area was largely accomplished by motor transport.

The area covered over 100 square miles, and it was necessary that trucks transporting food and supplies be fueled at various points at definite times so that the source of supplies be uninterrupted. Vehicles such as tanks, tractors, armored cars and motorized artillery and machine gun units had to receive gasoline on schedule during maneuvers.

To assure that this phase of the tactics was carried out effectively, a gasoline company in cooperation with Quartermasters Staff of the First Army has set up a system that employs eighteen trucks delivering gasoline at points dependent upon the day's moves. These trucks, which have a capacity of 1,600 gallons each, are capable of refueling vehicles at the rate of 100 gallons a minute. This speed is made possible by a specially developed system of 4 hoses, two of which are run from each side of the truck. One of each of these sets is run from the truck's pumps over portable hose racks. Two lines of vehicles may be fueled at the same time.

During the field maneuvers the trucks were constantly on call from their depots through the army field telephone system. Thus, equipment may be fueled at designated points during the actual "battle."

Staff officers are of the opinion that completely motorized units will form the major combat forces in future campaigns.

"REPEAL AND REPENT"

Medomak Writer Quotes Dr. Bowers On Qualities of Wine and Beer

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Dr. Hueppe and Prof. Prizbarm of Prague have demonstrated by the incontrovertible evidence of the autopsy table, that beer injures more hearts, livers and kidneys than does brandy.—Dr. Edwin F. Bowers.

Dr. Bowers also states: "While liquor makes a man brutal and dulls his judgment, beer makes him slow-witted and abolishes judgment, and while wine or brandy in sufficient quantity makes a man crazy, beer in corresponding quantity makes him stupid. Between insanity and stupidity there is merely a question of choice. Some of us (might) prefer an interesting maniac to a brutalized idiot."

Thanks to Repeal, the people of this country have abundant opportunity to choose between both conditions if they so desire—or to see that it is "Repeal and Repent" every time.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY FRANCES WEEDMAN

Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

Basket tucked under arm, market bound or garden bound, you're sure to come back from your "vegetable spree" many times this summer carrying many ears of fresh garden corn.

However, since corn on the cob makes such a passing visit, don't you like to enjoy its tender, juicy ears as often as possible? It's a mighty delectable vegetable when chosen during its more youthful

Just one star in this miracle range's magic bag of tricks is the Thrift Cooker, the large five-quart aluminum kettle which is installed in the cooking top of the electric range. And just one star in the Thrift Cooker's bag of tricks is the success with which it renders corn on the cob delicious and tender!

For once, here is a container large enough to hold all of the ears of corn the family can eat; and, instead of carrying your biggest kettle from ceiling or floor level heights you'll find the Thrift Cooker right in place, all set to go. And the "safety" of home-makers, if there were such a thing, would certainly lend the ways and means by which corn is cooked the miracle steaming way. No boiling, water dived or fishing for ears of corn in this Cooker! You can place them in and take them out of the cooker without the slightest fear of getting burned or scalded.

The Thrift Cooker of the electric range is ideal for cooking corn-on-the-cob

To Cook Corn

Now this is the way the Thrift Cooker "cooks" corn on the cob. Select ears of corn of uniform size. Pour 1 1/2 cups of water in the Cooker kettle. Turn switch to High. As soon as the water boils, place the corn in the kettle and continue cooking on High until steam appears from the vent. Tender corn will be cooked at this point. If older corn is being cooked, turn the switch to Low after steaming is well established and continue steaming 30 minutes.

ADDIS ABABA DRAWS EYES OF THE WORLD

Ethiopian Capital Only Real City in Empire.

Washington.—The eyes of the world are focused on Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, Ethiopian press box of the Italo-Ethiopian political situation, and only settlement in the empire that merits the name "city."

"Addis Ababa is the sole place in the country showing marked signs of modern development, yet in the shadow of these improvements, ancient Ethiopia still lives," says the National Geographic society.

"The city is situated high up in the Ethiopian mountains, near the geographic center of the empire. To reach it a traveler must traverse the dusty caravan routes or board a train at Djibouti, French Somaliland, for long hours of riding through torrid plains, and rolling foothills to the central plateau region.

Has Splendid Climate.

"Nestling among eucalyptus-forested hills, 'Addis Ababa has a splendid climate, which along with other attractions, has been an important factor in its growth to a city of 70,000 inhabitants. Several thousand of its residents are foreigners, notably British Indians, British Arabs, Greeks, and Armenians.

"Addis Ababa hills number more than those of Rome. The royal palace, audience hall and new parliament building top one small hill. On others rise many prepossessing buildings, including villas of five European legations, hotels, two government hospitals and churches.

There are several schools, conducted mostly by Ethiopian clergy and foreign missionaries. Recently Ethiopian students have been sent for advanced training to the United States, England, France, and Switzerland. In many of the city's wide, winding streets, rough cobbles lately have been replaced by macadam and asphalt surfaces. Electric lighting is becoming more prevalent, due to the founding of small private plants. Since the piping of water from Mount Intotto has been completed, natives can purchase in the market a five-gallon tin of water for a penny. They can also buy imported foods in the stores. Sound pictures are heard in the capital's theaters and there is telegraph service, and an air-mail service to Djibouti.

"At present, the country has almost no roads. Ethiopians bringing deer, leopards, monkeys, and other articles of commerce to the bazaar at Addis Ababa, pile them on the backs of camels and sure-footed donkeys that pick their way over stony mountain trails. Since 1932 the government has been building two roads out of Addis Ababa. One leads 50 miles northeast toward Dessie, the other 100 miles southeast toward Jimma. When these are completed coffee from the south and hides and skins from the north will probably pour much more rapidly into the city.

Wealthy Have Cars.

"A few of the capital's wealthier citizens own automobiles, but many of them still take pride in riding gaily caparisoned mules, followed by servants on foot. Automobiles feel their way carefully through the streets sometimes choked with mules, donkeys, and jaywalking pedestrians. Streets are especially congested on Saturdays, when about 20,000 purchasers through the marketplace to buy salt, honey in goatskin bags, cotton sheeting and other commodities. Through the crowds of dark-skinned Ethiopians plod camels laden with sheets of corrugated iron used for much of the city's roofing. Tribal chiefs from remote villages, wearing lion mane collars and carrying glided shields, mingle with soldiers in khaki uniforms.

"At night these same streets are nearly deserted. Since most of the streets are unlighted, a bugle at nightfall sounds a curfew for all Ethiopians. Foreigners who venture abroad in the streets after dark are warned to carry lanterns. During the coronation of Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie I, four and a half years ago, some of the main streets were lighted by electricity. But this was considered an unnecessary expense, and economy has since caused the removal of many of the poles and wires."

Police Ammunition Blast

Rio de Janeiro.—Fire in police ammunition stores at General police headquarters caused explosions of artillery shells, hand grenades, rifle cartridges and tear gas bombs. The detonations threw the thickly populated district into a panic for an hour. The blasts cracked walls and broke window panes several blocks away, mending another police warehouse containing a large quantity of explosives and tear gas bombs. While masked firemen fought the blaze, sheltered from flying missiles, confining it to a small area, police emptied an adjoining building of ammunition. The police said several thousand shells exploded. There was no casualties. A shell explosion is believed to have started the fire.

BRONZE TABLET UNVEILED

Rockland Born Poet, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Honored By Educational Club

Sincerity of spirit in an air of quiet esteem was evidenced Friday at the unveiling of a bronze tablet marking the birthplace of Edna St. Vincent Millay at 200 Broadway, members of the Educational Club thus paying dignified homage to a forerunner creator in American poetry. Miss Millay has many a glowing achievement to her credit since Feb. 22, 1892.

Mr. Vinal her finest lyric. "Inland" and two sonnets completed his selections. Miss Mary Emery of Washington, who was closely associated with Miss Millay during her earlier years, voiced her pleasure at being present and her gratification at this mark of honor to Rockland's own daughter. An excerpt from "Who's Who" read

The world stands out on either side
No wider than the heart is wide;
Above the world is stretched the sky,
No higher than the soul is high.

—Edna St. Vincent Millay.

when the city of Rockland interlarded her name on its vital records, but at no point on her path to fame has she been accorded more earnest tributes than were voiced at these exercises.

A patriotic introductory program was introduced by the president, Mrs. Mary Perry Rich, whose executive energy has been responsible, in large measure for this memorial project.

The original committee for procuring the tablet, Flora Ulmer, Bertha Orbeton and Lida Spear, removed the silk covering on a small, square tablet bearing this simple inscription, "Edna St. Vincent Millay, poet, was born in this house. Placed by the Woman's Educational Club, 1935."

Col. Edward K. Gould, his legal training standing in good stead, presented an incontestable accumulation of evidence proving beyond a doubt, that in this house "the loveliest voice in American poetry" first saw the light of day. As a historian, Judge Gould has a keen interest in the placement of markers, and stated that in this latest work of the Educational Club it has performed a patriotic favor to the people of the nation.

Original tributes in verse were read by club members, including "A Modern Lyre" by Miss Elizabeth O. Marsh; a composition to the memory of Miss Millay's mother, Cora Buzzell Millay, by an erstwhile teacher to her famous daughter, Delora E. Morrill of Rockport; a life member of the club, Miss Clytie F. Spear of Brooklyn and Warren; and Mrs. E. M. Lawrence of Florida.

Harold Vinal, a major poet, whose followings of the muse are receiving increasingly favorable recognition, provided an atmosphere breathing the essence of Miss Millay's artistry as he read four of her poems, among them "Autumn Chant," considered by

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Heath have returned from a four days' motor trip to Canada and the White Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lorraine had as guests for the holiday and weekend Mr. and Mrs. John Galber of Newmarket, N. H., and Amesbury, Mass. Returning they were accompanied by their daughter Annabelle who had been here for the summer.

A MODERN SAPHO
Written for Edna St. Vincent Millay
A daughter of the gods, she stands,
On most divinely fair
Upon the heights, a golden gleam
Of sunshine in her hair!
It glows with brilliant radiance
Caught from a distant star.
Reflecting wondrous glory
From the heavens so far.

In slender hands and fragile,
She holds a golden lyre.
That answers to her lightest touch
When she sweeps the sentient wire.
Responsive to her every wish
And vibrant to her skill.
As she wakes to life rich music
In songs that throb and thrill.
In words of perfect harmony
That fall on listening ears.
Enchanted songs of melody,
Magic music of the spheres.
That floats upon the ambient air
And aways to smiles and tears,
Awakens souls to rapture
And leads to rest their fears.

Her lyre, is wrought of finest gold,
Each wire a conscious thing,
That sparkles with rare gems of thought.
Along each vibrant string,
Her lyre, a priceless instrument,
To her from God 'twas given,
A gracious gift of fantasy,
A gift divine from heaven,
And all its tuneful melody
Is wafted down below
And borne upon the fragrant air,
In a rich overflow
Of thought, in words of music,
Magic music of the spheres.
That wakes an answering echo
Of those who well remember
Her, to those who well remember
Her life was given here,
And here her memory's cherished
And here she's ever dear.

Upon this site we dedicate
With hearty pride today
A small memorial tablet
That shall reveal away
That here was born a poet
"A Modern Sappho" strong
Whose thoughts are grandly written
In the rhythm of a song.

So to our "Modern Sappho"
In love and pride today,
We place this modest tablet
And gladly tribute pay
To her talent and her prestige,
To her glory and her fame,
As we crown her with fresh laurels
The Poet Laureate of Maine.

NORTH TO THE ORIENT

Anne Morrow Lindbergh's Book That The World Is Reading

In whatever connection the name of Lindbergh appears, there is called to it the attention of the entire country; in particular this ocean region of Maine, where the family makes its summer home. Here there will be encountered a special interest, not to say pride, in this story told by the wife of the distinguished aviator, in which some of our local names are given prominence.

"North to the Orient" is the story told by the wife of the noted aviator of their now famous flight to the eastward; a skillfully presented narrative of the perilous journey through uncharted skies. It was four years ago that the Colonel and his wife in their plane, the Sirius, took off from North Haven, followed by the cheers and well-wishes of friends and family, in whose care baby Jon was left.

The writer's charm of description and frank confession of difficulties encountered are full of thrills. The heart of the reader is repeatedly moved by her heroism and beauty of character that the narrative reveals. She was, as her husband declared, both the crew and the radio operator. This latter difficult art she had to learn for the purpose of this flight, with a perseverance that rendered her perfect in its operation. Mrs. Lindbergh was the first white woman the Eskimo population at Baker Lake, the Hudson Bay trading post, ever had seen, and she created profound interest. Indeed all along the route the daring adventurers were given by the natives a cordial welcome, accompanied by great astonishment over their appearance in those hitherto unvisited parts.

The story of high adventure, thrilling encounters and narrow escapes is concisely told with a charm of description that borders upon the poetic. The accident to the Sirius, the encounter with fogs, the Yangtze River in flood—these hold the reader absorbed and are among the high lights of the story, which closes with a chapter on the joys of flying, making it easy to understand why Anne Lindbergh's book is immediately listed among the best sellers, and destined to bring to the heroine and her of it a further fame and devotion from a country that steadily holds them in its heart of heart.

REVOLUTIONARY PENSIONERS OF KNOX COUNTY, MAINE

By Edward Kallach Gould, State Historian of Maine

Author of "Major-General Hiram G. Berry," "British and Tory Marauders on the Penobscot," "Storming the Heights, Maine's Embattled Farmers at Castine in the Revolution," "Revolutionary Soldiers and Sailors of Knox County, Maine, and Their Descendants" (Ms.), "Colonel Mason Wheaton, Revolutionary Officer and Captain of Industry."

FOREWORD

These papers contain a rich store not only of personal, but of war history; detached statements and broken fragments, to be sure, but none the less interesting and real. They tell us in the very words of the actors in that war of Concord, Lexington, and Bunker Hill; of the siege of Boston, of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, of Monmouth, White Plains, of Trenton and Valley Forge; of the battles of Saratoga and Yorktown and the surrenders of Burgoyne and Cornwallis; of the gallant, but ill-starred attacks on Quebec, and the sufferings of the retreat from the frozen north. In justice to my associates in the Sons of the American Revolution, I feel that they should get the benefit of their generous financial outlay by having at least the sketches of the Revolutionary Pensioners published, and they are offered herewith.

(CHAPTER XXXI.)

Matthew Kellogg

Matthew Kellogg, of St. George, in his declaration for pension declares, "That about the last of April 1775 I enlisted as a Private under Capt. Samuel Gregg in the Massachusetts Regiment commanded by Col. James Cargill; that I served in said Gregg's Company and in the Regiment aforesaid from last of April until the first day of January, 1776; that I was then discharged by said Col. Cargill but not in writing. I furthermore declare that about the middle of November 1778, I enlisted under Samuel Gregg for the "Boston" frigate, commanded by Capt. Samuel Tucker, and entered on board about Feb. 17 1779, and served on board said frigate till the month of December; that while on board said frigate we took 11 of the armed vessels belonging to the British, and that I finally left said frigate December, 1779." Matthew Kellogg removed from Thomaston to St. George, then a part of Cushing, where the census of 1790 places him.

William Kellogg

William Kellogg of St. George, enlisted as Private in Capt. Archibald McAllister's Company Col. Samuel McCobb's Regiment in expedition against Castine, and served from July, 11, 1777, to Sept. 24. He re-enlisted in Capt. McAllister's Company, Col. Prime's Regiment 1777 under Brig. Gen. Wadsworth at the Eastward, and served from April 26, 1780, to Dec. 21, 1780, when he was discharged. Nov. 13, 1779, he joined Lieut. Alexander Kellogg's Co., stationed at Camden and St. George and served to Feb. 13, 1780.

Eaton's History of Thomaston, Rockland and South Thomaston states that William died in Halifax prison, a captive soldier of the Revolution. So far as the records available disclose his military services ended with his discharge Feb. 13, 1780. The war did not end until April 11, 1783, and it is possible he may have been captured privateering between 1780 and 1783. What Eaton's authority is for stating he was captured and died in captivity is not known. The Massachusetts records do not bear out this statement, but it may be true nevertheless. He was the son of John and Isabella Kellogg of St. Georges.

Cheever Kendall

Cheever Kendall of Hope, was born Aug. 5, 1755, at Framingham, Mass. He volunteered May 1, 1775, and served eight months as a private in Capt. Edge's Company, Col. Read's Mass. Regiment. He enlisted about April 1776, and served as a Private in Capt. Aaron Gardner's Company, Col. Brook's Massachusetts Regiment. He was in the retreat from New York and took part in the battle of White Plains, where he was wounded by musketballs, one wound on the forefinger of his right hand, almost severing it, and the other was on his left leg. The length of this service was one year.

He was again enlisted Dec. 25, 1777 and was called into active service the following March. He served as a Private in Capt. Nathan Smith's Company, Col. John Jacob's Mass. Regt., and was in Gen. Sullivan's Rhode Island expedition and in the battle of Rhode Island and was discharged Jan. 1, 1778. After the Revolution, he lived in Framingham, and at Hope and Searsport, both in Waldo County.

He was allowed a pension on his application executed Sept. 25, 1832, while residing in Hope.

Two sons are referred to in 1833, one living in Hope, and the other in Searsport, their names and ages are not known, nor does the name of his wife appear in any of his pension papers or the date of their marriage. June 6, 1791, he conveys lot No. 62 in Barrettstown (now Hope) to Elisha Gibbs and Isaac Harrington, both of Camden, this lot was situated seen on the field in quite another capacity. If so I should almost expect to see the reins fall back into the hands of George H. Thomas, another great worker and booster.

Rockland! Well, the Orphans certainly had a tough old season. Somebody's resolve to "give the youngsters a chance" was carried out literally, and rather too much so for the benefit of the team's standing in the League. I have said repeatedly, and I continue to take that stand, that a few of the older players should have been sprinkled into the lineup. The old adage that "experience is the best teacher" still holds good, and while the Orphans are all earnest and willing workers they lacked some of those elements which can be gained only by thorough seasoning.

Prodigals May Return

Next year it is not unlikely that Art Planagan and Chummy Gray will be back in Rockland uniforms, which, of course is where they should be. Wherever I went the past summer I was besieged with the query as to why these players were not on the Rockland team. The explanation is that there had been considerable proslugging done before Rockland decided to play League baseball, and Manager Walker had both men under his wing, and it was agreed to make Planagan and Gray free agents—to decide for themselves with which team they would play. They elected to play in Thomaston, and that was that.

Be that as it may, Rockland has the nucleus of a good team, but needs reinforcing in about four positions. I take my hat off to Bob McCarty who has persisted so well in the management of a losing team. He can certainly "take it," and this applies with equal force to Don Kelsey who has continued to smile—and work—in the face of criticism, and even derision. Anybody can manage a winning team, but it takes almost a martyr to handle one which is getting the distance flag.

Ernest Rawley's Colts

St. George! Here is a town which had become so accustomed to pennant winning that it was a shock to many of its followers to see it plodding along a poor third this year. But the unanimously agreed upon decision to make it an amateur league this summer was lived up to the letter by Manager Ernest Rawley, who placed his faith in a team which was made up largely of High School boys. Mr. Rawley has swallowed defeat smilingly, with the knowledge that his lineup contained players with the ability to make all other teams hustle another year.

This was the team which first caused the Camden Shells to strike their colors, and which on other occasions forced the game into extra innings for a decision. And oddly enough this was the team from which the Orphans won one of their two victories. St. George will have to be taken into account another year.

Thomaston! The runner-up in the Twilight League occupies about the same position that the judge did in the Maud Muller poem. Most of its losses were pure and simple cases of "it might have been." This was particularly true of the Thomaston-Camden series. I saw at least four games in which Thomaston looked to be the logical winner, but all four of the contests went to help Camden's percentage. "I can't help it if they don't want to take the game," I heard Chick Maynard say on one of these occasions. Of course Thomaston did want to win, but was probably over-anxious.

The Return of "Styvie"

Managing a team and playing at the same time is a task which very few young men can successfully handle. "Doug" Walker is entitled to much credit, but he is not to be blamed for heaving a sigh of relief when he learned that Lewis C. Sturtevant is willing to handle the team another summer. "Styvie" is a natural born manager and coach, and I am going to venture the guess that the team which beats Thomaston next year will win the pennant. This young man Wood whom he brings from Ellsworth would have helped Thomaston win several games which it lost this season. And the loss of Chummy Gray in the critical stage of the league season was another reason why Thomaston trailed.

I cannot help feeling sorry at the elimination of Waldoboro from the League. There's a mighty fine bunch of sportsmen in the Lincoln County town, and they had spent a lot of money in putting their ball park in shape. It was too bad to check the revival of baseball interest there, but the whole story seems to be that some of the Knox County teams objected to what the railroad men call the "long haul." I have personally missed the Waldoboro trips this summer.

The All-Leaguers

When I took the bull by the horns the other day and selected two all-league teams I knew full well that I was laying myself open to conflicting opinions. But I have found my recompense in learning that Charles C. Wotton differed with my first team selections in only one man. The reason for my satisfaction is that I consider that there is no better baseball authority in Knox County today than Charles Wotton.

In selecting Til Thomas of Camden as all-league catcher I found quite a number who thought young Bucklin of Thomaston the better man. Another year there may be no dispute at all on that subject.

I made choice of Bagley of Camden for pitcher because of his consistent victories and the fact that the Camden management seemed to place so much reliance upon him. When Bennett and Walker are working right it is a toss-up, and of course Chummy Gray would have been very much in the picture if accident had not placed him on the bench.

The Bok Prizes

I take no back water in the selection of Wadsworth as first baseman, with Maurice Simmons as runner-up, and I still incline to Plaisted as second baseman, with Ivan Simmons at third and Lord at short.

Outstanding outfielders are Monaghan, Leonard, Dailey, Ellis, Walker, M. Sawyer and McCarty. When not in the outfield Maurice Sawyer has played a good game at third, and is one of the best batters in the league. And by the same token Ivan Simmons when not playing third is a star outfielder.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the importance and beneficial effect of the prizes offered by Curtis Bok of Philadelphia and Camden. The donor has followed in the footsteps of his illustrious father, the late Edward W. Bok who was one of baseball's strongest supporters while a summer resident of Knox County, and in addition to offering incentive, his work at first base for the Camden team has had quite an important bearing upon its success.

The competition for the winning team prize of $250 was one-sided, to be sure, but it nevertheless kept the other contenders on their toes. The individual prizes of $25 each to be given the most valuable player on each team, will be awarded this afternoon and the fans are agog.

Out of it all has come good clean, baseball and with it more harmony than I have seen for years. Thanks to all who have waded through this long story.

THE CAMDEN SHELLS

League Champions Had Fine Record, Winning 33 Out Of 42 Games

The Camden Shells, recently crowned champions of the Knox County Baseball League, are completing one of the most successful seasons in local baseball history.

Getting a late start, due to the lack of an organization the team has gone places since the Fourth of July. It has been managed by Floyd "Chick" Maynard, recently located at Camden as the Y.M.C.A. Secretary. Maynard, more or less of a veteran, has past-timed with East Millinocket, Millinocket, Dixfield, and the Lewiston-Auburn Twins since coming to Maine, and set up an enviable record for himself in Springfield, from which College he graduated in 1923. Under Maynard's management the Camden team has won the great majority of its games and their most recent accomplishment has been the winning of the Maine State Fair Tourney at Lewiston.

The team will continue to play during the month of September, bringing in out of State competition. "Burl" White and His Boston Royal Giants will play in Camden next Thursday in a benefit game for the Camden Fire Department.

The personnel of the Camden Shells has been: Tilson Thomas, Leroy Weed, Yates, Turner, catchers; Albert Bennett, Fernald Bagley, Willis Stahl, Charles Dillingham, Elmer Wadsworth, George Boynton Sr., George Boynton, Jr., Curtis Brown and Henry Lowell, pitchers; Curtis Bok, Orion Wadsworth, first; Archie Plaisted second; Dwight Lord, third; Harold Dinsmore, Erroll Payson, "Bo" Miller, third; Joe Leonard left; Lawrence "Dool" Dailey, center; Ray Mayhew right; Emerson Gross, Maynard, utility. Leroy C. Alley, ticket agent; George H. Thomas, treasurer; directors, Allen Payson, Fred Eddy, G. H. Thomas.

In the Knox County League Camden won 20 victories, one tie game and three losses the nearest team Thomaston finishing 4½ games behind the leaders. The team's standing in games to date is won 33, tied 1, lost 8.

The Shells are laying plans for the 1936 season when they expect to have Charlie Dillingham, Yale graduate with them during the season as well as the services of both Carey Bok and Curtis Bok, Harold Dinsmore as well as some other summer residents, most prominent among the younger recruits being "Bob" Gardner from Chicago.

Realm of Music

By Gladys St. Clair Morgan

Several requests have come to tell of my day with Harold Vinal, Maine poet, at his summer home in Vinalhaven, his "native land." I am happy to comply, for it was a delightful experience, one that will be recalled with pleasure many times.

It was on a Wednesday, and it was a full day, for I was "up and doing" at 5 a. m., to tie myself to the wharf to go on the Steamer W. S. White. I had visions of sailing out in a gorgeous sunrise to a day of sparkling sun and mirror-like water. Far from it. Lowering clouds and a blanket of fog over the water, a brisk wind and a bouncing sea. However, among my few commendable qualities is that of being a good sailor, so the bouncing sea held no terrors for me. I loved it on the contrary. Arriving in Vinalhaven I felt quite in need of breakfast, so Mr. Roberts, the kindly purser, directed my footsteps to Bridgeside where the "inner person" was refreshed by excellent food taken amid cheery companions.

At 8:30 Mr. Vinal came for me, and we went to his home where his charming little mother awaited us.

A simple white New England house, set upon a slight rise after the bridge is crossed on to Lane's Island. Gaily striped awnings give an individual air to the house, and the shining windows overlook the moors and the sea on all sides. Near by stands the Inn where in bygone years Otis Skinner spent some seasons. Mr. Vinal's summer home has only recently been acquired. It is a roomy house with possibilities as we say. One hardly senses the furnishings other than to know there is comfort everywhere, for in every room out of every window one sees the ocean and it calls. Mr. Vinal must have recognized the call in me for we had hardly gotten into the house and settled for a talk when a walk over the moors and out to see the surf was suggested. It was glorious, the wind, the fine mist, and the tang of the salt air. Across the moors and out to the very ledges we went, to see a sublime sight, the surf dashing and crashing on the rocks, the sea rolling in in great sea green waves touched with lacy foam.

Then back to the warm snugness of the house and more talk. Talk of various things that filled the day. A shelf of poets to suggest the question: "How did you happen to write poetry?" A question that had intrigued me, for I knew that Mr. Vinal had first trained to be a musician, and is an accomplished one in fact. I learned that he has been writing for a few years comparatively, less than fifteen, to be exact. Furthermore not so many years ago he had read very little poetry, but one day he found Rupert Brooke, the rhythm and music and appeal of the poems reached him deeply. He read Brooke over and over and from Brooke sought out other poets, and then the call came to write, to try his own hand, and from that day on he has been writing poetry. Studying and writing, so that now music while still occupying a beloved place in his scheme of life has become a "second love."

It was fascinating to hear him tell simply of the writers he meets in his New York home, poets whose names we have learned to admire and love, Josephine Johnson, Winifred Welles, Margaret Widdemer, and others. To hear him speak with admiration of Edna St. Vincent Millay whom he calls Edna Millay without the Vincent we invariably use here. To hear him pay a high word of praise for our Wilbert Snow for his coast poems. To hear him tell of the meetings of the Poetry Society and to receive an invitation to attend when I get to New York, if I ever do! In his tribute to Millay's poems he said that probably no greater sonnets have been written since Shakespeare's time. (I noticed that a book of her poems on his shelf of poets was well thumbed.) He also said that undoubtedly if Elinor Wylie had been spared she would have become America's greatest woman poet, for she combined in her work two rare qualities, intellectuality and emotion. He slated Hart Crane as obscure, shook his head over Vachel Lindsay, said that Wilbert Snow showed the influence of Robert Frost, and fell into silence when the other Millay girls were mentioned. I asked if any of James Agee's poems had come under his attention, and he said "yes" and spoke of the young writer with enthusiasm and confidence in his evident talent. Mr. Vinal was most interested to learn that Rockland claims Mr. Agee, due to his mother's residence here.

What is Mr. Vinal like? Rather a personal question, but I'll do my best. Fairly tall and slender, 43 years old, naively admitted. Iron gray hair, bright dark eyes with a whimsical expression, glasses, clear skin, a small moustache, and a pleasing smile. Immaculate, very well groomed, so much so that he is the exact opposite of the "untidy poet" tradition passed down to us. Rather quick in gestures and movement. Conveys the idea of artistic bent and temperament. One slant of his nature intrigued me, he seems to be a curious mixture of stern New England and metropolitan modernity. Often it crept into his statements, some times one following the other. A remark would bear all the earmarks of New England conscience, and then in the next breath he would speak of life in its most modern aspects.

His workroom is a large upper chamber, with two wide windows overlooking the sea and the moors. A long broad table faces these windows, and on it are piled letter files, cards, paper of all sorts, a portable typewriter, books, stationery, manuscript, and what-not. A subtle setting for a poet all the inspiration of the outside with the practical instruments to transform it into expression. To one not gifted with the wings of poetry, all I could see and feel were the salty moors and the tumbling seas. Never, never, could I work or think of work with that gorgeous scene spread out before me! We spent a long time at this work table, talking of many things—music, books, poetry, the stage, movies, people, politics, a little of everything. A man of wide knowledge, receptive, responsive.

Mr. Vinal has a great affection for Vinalhaven, and his native town takes pride in him, as it should. This native son has five books of poetry and a book of essays to his credit "White April," "Voyage," "Nor Youth Nor Age," "A Stranger in Heaven," "Hymn to Chaos," and the essays "Attie for the Nightingale," "Hurricane" a narrative poem is now in preparation. His activities do not narrow down to just writing poetry. He is prominent in literary circles in New York, conducts classes in versification, gives readings hither and yon, and added to all this he is editor of "Voices," one of the foremost poetry magazines in the country, in whose pages such distinguished poets as Archibald MacLeish, Katherine Mansfield, John Erskine, Margaret Widdemer, Josephine Johnson, William Rose Benet, and many others of note, have appeared and do appear.

LAKEWOOD THEATRE

"You and I" Next Week's Play Is Full Of Sentiment and Humor

"The Unexpected Husband", one of the funniest plays of recent seasons, will be the next offering of the Lakewood Players at Lakewood, starting Sept. 16. The central figure of the amusing story is Dorothy Atwater, a Texas heiress, who runs away to New York to wed Willie Van Loan, a Broadway playboy. After she arrives she changes her mind and confides in Willie's friend, Perry Morrison. To avoid being caught in a raid on a speakeasy, Dorothy and Perry escape from the place through the aid of a justice of the peace and his wife who take them to a Jersey City hotel. Then the girl's father arrives from Texas on a gunning expedition for Willie and the complications start.

"You and I", with its story of sentiment and humor, comes next week, and will prove one of the best liked plays of the season. There will be the customary matinee Saturday. Lloyd Raffell and his Georgians will play for the regular weekly dance at the Lakewood Country Club on Friday night, Sept. 13.

Traveling Around America

WAITING TO FLY

DOWN in South America folks travel by airplane as casually as by motor, or rail; and some of the smallest towns—notably Chimbote with a population of 1,000—are covered by regular air service. The terminal shown here is in Chile, capital and important shipping point for the Department of Lambayeque in the sugar district of Northern Peru.

This little town is one of the stops on the regular Panagra airline route covering Panama, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, and Chile on which five new giant airliners have been introduced during the past six months—a route which makes connections in Panama with regular service from New York; and from Santiago, Chile, crosses the Andes to Buenos Aires and Montevideo connecting with the east coast seaplane service.

Airplanes have played an important role in the industrial development of the southern continent, carrying machinery and supplies to mines heretofore reached only by muleteam; providing speedy transportation of passengers, mail and freight between inland cities and seaports. Airways also contributed to the recent settlement of the Bolivia-Paraguay dispute by reducing by several days the time required for the representatives of the republics interested to reach points where the various conferences took place.

WORD FROM ST. PETE

Florida City Drolling Up For Expected Invasion Of the Northerners

St. Petersburg, Fla., Sept. 2—America's famous winter resort will inaugurate another season tomorrow when registration books for the 1934-35 season open at the City Information Bureau and as hundreds of Northern families pour into here for the opening of all public and private schools at the same time.

All previous tourist records are expected to be shattered by the rush of "sun worshippers" into St. Petersburg this season, breaking the new mark established a year ago of 63,313 registrations.

It will be a greatly changed St. Petersburg that regular visitors to the Sunshine City will see on their return, with hundreds of new homes erected on the mainland and Gulf Islands, new business places and beautification in every section of the resort.

Hotels catering to the tourist trade are open months in advance of former years, while deluxe institutions are setting opening dates weeks ahead of last season's banner business.

In preparing for an avalanche of newcomers, St. Petersburg has increased its play and entertainment facilities with provisions made for lovers of every type of outdoor sport. All five golf courses are ready for invasion, as are the clay and concrete tennis courts, shuffleboard, lawn bowling and roque rinks, new stables for Kentucky thoroughbreds and new ranges for pistol, skeet and trapshooting.

Hotel and apartment rates are being kept on par with last year, no increases being announced.

Branches of smart eastern gown shops are opening for the season with advanced spring and summer styles. Formal and costume balls fill the hotel calendars for the ensuing months of pleasure. Famous orchestras will be brought here through the winter months along with noted artists.

Among the visitors from Rockland who were registered at the City Information Bureau last season included Dr. F. B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allen, Charles A. Babbidge, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Bowes, Miss Carrie Brainerd, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Brown, Mrs. S. A. Burpee, Sydney Case, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Comins, Mrs. S. A. Fish, Alvy Gray, Mrs. Ella P. Grimes, Mrs. Mary W. Gushee, Mrs. H. I.
