NEWSPAPER HISTORY
The Rockland Gazette was established in 1846. In 1874 the Courier was established and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Free Press was established in 1885 and in 1891 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 17, 1897.

FOR RURAL CHILD

Help Them Into a Larger and More Ambitious Life

The Knox County Association for rural religious education is training and developing our future citizens, the boys and girls in unchurched and until recently, neglected rural areas, in all that is worth while. Obedience to and respect for constituted authority, whether in home, school, community, state or nation, love of parents, home and country, recognition of the Creator and the wonders of his creation, worship and all that it means, character building and good citizenship training, which will assist in the Americanization of children of foreign-born parents, are some of the lines in which the Association is putting its efforts. Contacts are obtained through the public schools, by Sunday, week day and vacation schools, parents' meetings and the like.

Miss Margaret McKnight, since March 23, has reached 35 boys and girls out of the more than 850 who have heretofore had no opportunity to attend church and Sunday school, contacts being made through 10 rural schools, two Sunday schools and six week day Bible schools in 18 communities.

The good work is still going on, but funds are badly needed in order that this work may continue.

The Courier-Gazette has been asked—and gladly consents—to act as recipient of contributions that shall be made to this highly valuable work. Checks for amounts large or small may be sent to the paper, payable to the order of the association treasurer, J. W. Robinson, and same will be duly acknowledged.

SATURDAY'S GOLFING

Fifteen Players Take Part In Country Club Weekly Event

Saturday afternoon was all that could be asked for in way of golfing weather and the only thing to wonder at was why a bigger field didn't take part in the medal play handicap tournament. However, those who did perform came in with some very creditable cards, the leader being that ardent Camden golfer Joe Brewster, whose gross 90 and net 70 easily took home the berries. W. C. Ladd and David H. Buffum dividing runner-up honors with their net 73.

The course is in pink of condition, evoking much approval from visiting players, of whom the number is large. Local players are reminded that the season will soon be narrowing. Saturday's scores:

J. L. Brewster	90-20-70
W. C. Ladd	89-16-73
D. H. Buffum	86-12-73

THAT IS THE LIFE

Rockland Couple Enjoy Gondola Rides and Beautiful Venetian Nights

Hotel Royal Danieli, Venice, July 25

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Since leaving New York we have seen much of special interest but it would be rather impossible to tell in mere words what we have seen and enjoyed. The ocean trip was without special event, although an "old swell" caused many to omit the activities of ship life, including meals. I was not one of them however.

Passengers were landed at Plymouth and Cherbourg, and we arrived at Antwerp July 13, after a sail up the narrow Scheldt in view of Holland dykes and historic windmills. After leaving Antwerp we had the privilege of visiting Brussels, which is on the way to Cologne. A sight-seeing bus carried us to many points of interest, including the lace factory and arsenal, where we were shown the spot where Edith Cavell was shot. Her portrait hangs in the building, also one of the men who refused to fire the fatal shot. It is well known that he was shot for disobeying orders.

Spent a short time in Cologne, famed for its magnificent cathedral. Of all the trips I have ever enjoyed, none can compare in natural scenic beauty with the one from Munich to Venice, via Brenner pass. Many of the party stood the day long. I was one of them, enjoying the imposing majesty of the snow covered Alps. Cameras clicked, but no picture can tell adequately a story of this gem of scenic beauty.

We arrived in Venice late Saturday night, July 17, and to say that we are delighted with this most beautiful, charming and different city would be stating the fact mildly indeed. In all the world I am sure there is no other place like Venice. A city of 250,000 with 6000 floating population, with miles of canals; a maze of narrow streets running in all directions filled with small shops where goods of every description can be purchased. One is easily lost but not long, as sooner or later you will come to a canal where a gondolier is waiting to take you to your hotel. The ferry boats serve as street cars and the fare is reasonable. Our hotel is near St. Mark's square where thousands of people gather each day and remain until morning, eating, drinking in the open air, while bands and orchestras render varied musical programs. Feeding the pigeons in St. Mark's square is a popular pastime for tourists.

The weather is delightful, nearly always cool breezes at night. A gondola ride in the evening is the popular thing to do, as it is always comfortable on the water. It gives one an opportunity to relax and rest after a busy day, also to see the city's thousands of shimmering lights on the glassy surface of the lagoon and canals. The gondoliers are very expert with their oar and evidently they are not lost for words when a fellow gondolier comes too near or crosses their bow. I don't know what they say but I am sure it is expressive language. E. L. Brown

Observing Its Golden Anniversary

Older residents of Rockland who view the above picture will have their thoughts carried back at least 32 years when there was a Rockland business concern known as The New England Clothing House. The photograph was made in 1881, and is here used in connection with the golden anniversary sale which is being conducted up to and including Aug. 22 by Burpee & Lamb, the firm name by which the New England Clothing House eventually became known.

The concern was organized July 16, 1881, with the late Samuel A. Burpee and Frank D. Lamb as proprietors. The location was on the east side of Main street in the store now occupied by the Silsby Flower Shop.

On that fair summer day 50 years ago, when the photographer focused his camera on the establishment there were standing in front of it (left to right) Frank A. D. Singhi, the concern's first clerk; and the proprietors, Mr. Burpee and Mr. Lamb.

The place of business on the left was F. C. Knight & Company's tailor shop. Standing in the doorway, and with only his white shirt visible, was James Smith, pressman of the tailor shop; and at his left was George W. Case, a widely known Rockland citizen whose residence at the corner of Limerock street and Broadway afterward became the home of the late Capt. and Mrs. Luke A. Spear.

On the second story of the building, at the left hangs the sign of the late John F. Hanley, attorney at law.

The picture does not show them but in front of the store were the old wooden sidewalk, and the muddy street of ante-paving days.

Of the group above indicated there is but one survivor, Frank D. Lamb who now has the distinction of being the oldest merchant on the street, still in active business.

When the New England Clothing House made its appearance in Rockland business life the young partners were already well known along the street, Mr. Burpee having been in the clothing business with the late John H. Haines, while Mr. Lamb had been clerking in Walter J. Wood's hardware store nearly opposite.

Seventeen years after the concern was formed it moved across the street into the southern store of what is now the Woolworth block, corner of Maine and School streets. Seventeen years of steady growth in the business!

With the change of location came the change of name to Burpee & Lamb, and the sign still carries that honored title, although Mr. Burpee retired four years ago last Saturday, and died one year later. Mr. Lamb became the sole proprietor upon the retirement of Mr. Burpee, but a year later his son Horace E. Lamb, became associated with him.

Last year the firm moved back across the street, and it was almost like getting home again, for the present store is only a few feet removed from the one in which the partners embarked upon their commercial career half a century ago.

The store has had these clerks: Frank A. Singhi, J. A. Burpee, Warner Bartlett, Herbert W. Thorndike, Walter H. Spear, Clifford A. Hamilton—and the present clerks, Alfred E. Keyes, 28 years with the firm; and Charles L. Robinson, 25 years with it.

The words "square deal" came into popular use when Theodore Roosevelt was President of the United States, but they have always been synonymous with the names of Burpee and Lamb, and hundreds of customers have patronized the firm traditionally.

When the New England Clothing House made its appearance on the city's business horizon there was only one other clothing concern in Rockland, the Boston Clothing Store, of which the late Charles F. Wood was proprietor.

Frank D. Lamb, the present head of Burpee & Lamb, is a native of Lincolnville, but the family moved to Camden when he was a child. He began clerking for Walter J. Wood in 1867, and Main street has known him daily, except for Sundays and rare vacations, 64 years. His ability to wait upon customers has undergone no impairment, and customers find the same hearty welcome in his store that they have for five decades.

His son, who has succeeded to much of the firm's executive work, had a valuable experience with the East Coast and Deep Sea Fisheries concerns, and the skill with which he handles the business insures a prosperous continuance for many years.

WARN INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Our Local Physicians Urge Immediate Reports Upon Any Suspicious Symptoms

Recent studies by the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission on the use of convalescent serum in pre-paralytic poliomyelitis indicate that this serum, if administered early in the disease before paralysis has set in, will either prevent or appreciably reduce the amount of paralysis. To assist the physician in diagnosing this disease in the pre-paralytic stage, the following brief description of the disease is given.

The child is taken ill suddenly with anorexia, moderate fever (seldom over 102°) and mild gastro-intestinal symptoms, consisting usually of some nausea or vomiting, and constipation. The child, if old enough, complains of headache.

These symptoms may at times be so mild that the average mother either overlooks them entirely or attempts to treat them by home remedies. The seriousness of the disease can only be detected by a careful physical examination by a physician, and parents must therefore be educated to recognize these symptoms and seek medical aid.

On physical examination the child appears drowsy though easily aroused and very irritable. The child furthermore appears much more prostrated than the temperature would lead one to expect. The pulse is rapid, out of proportion to the temperature. When aroused, the child is unusually alert and apprehensive, and quite clear mentally. A coarse tremor is frequently noted. The throat is usually somewhat injected though seldom markedly so.

The outstanding positive findings are stiffness of the neck and spine. On attempting to flex the head on the chest, the head can be brought forward only slightly, not sufficient for the chin to touch the chest. Attempts to accomplish this cause the child pain. The stiffness of the neck is seldom as marked as that in meningitis.

More characteristic even than the stiffness of the neck is the stiffness of the spine or back. The average normal child, when asked to bend forward, will do so readily and in the case of a child under 5 years of age this forward flexion is sufficient for its head to touch the bed between the legs. The child with infantile paralysis cannot do so. The back is kept rigid (poker-spine) and flexion takes place at the hips only. Forceful forward flexion causes the child considerable pain.

The findings of this stiffness of the neck and spine associated with headache, mild gastric-intestinal upset, and moderate fever should lead one to suspect infantile paralysis and the final step in the examination, namely, examination of the spinal fluid.

The findings in the spinal fluid, in the vast majority of instances serves to establish or rule out the disease. This examination is best done at the bedside so that if the fluid is positive, convalescent serum can be administered at the same sitting and thus save the patient a puncture.

The fluid is usually under increased pressure, appears clear as it comes from the needle, but when held up to transmitted light, it has a ground-glass appearance. The cells are regularly increased, the limits, however, are wide (50 to 1000). The average case, however, has between 100 to 400 cells. Globulin is regularly increased and the reducing substance is present.

The above description represents a fairly clear-cut clinical entity. From the time of the appearance of the first symptoms to the appearance of the paralysis, a period of from one to three days usually elapses, thus making it possible to diagnose the illness and for timely administration of the convalescent serum.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Me., Aug. 11, 1931. Personally appeared Frank S. Lydell, who on oath declares that he is President in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of Aug. 8, 1931, there was printed a total of 6184 copies.

The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped; therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him.—Psalms 28:7.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

There is no present occasion for alarm in this community, where the manifestation of infantile paralysis is almost negligible. The thing to be done is to see that no opportunity is afforded for the disease to obtain any foothold here. Upon another page we print the text of a communication received by the local physicians from the Maine Department of Health. We urge its careful reading, to the end that our people may be able to note any suspicious symptoms, and thereupon make immediate call for the doctor. We emphasize the word "immediate." To wait twenty-four hours before getting him upon the case is likely to prove fatal.

ON REMOVING GUM

Out of a fashion note we learn that chewing gum may be removed from a washable dress if first the stain is softened with egg white, then washed. This of course has to do with the chewing gum of contemporary commerce, whose employment among the gentler sex is even more universal than the cigarette, and vastly exceeding in respect of public exhibition the maxillary activity of the former spruce gum days. Memory fondly reverts to that period. Then one equipped with no more formidable implement than his jackknife, could almost anywhere outside the great metropolitan centers procure from the cleanly spruce tree, a rich supply of virgin gum, of a pinkish hue and delectable flavor that the present-day tin-foliated product may jealously aim at but never achieve. The end of spruce—we recall the vernacular—one retained for further employment by deftly attaching it, when one sat down to dinner, to the under side of his chair, and to the lid of the desk at school, or when night let down its sable curtain on the world, there was the head of one's bed, close-hand for the early morning. From any of these coils of vantage the spruce gum was readily detachable, thereby lending to its other recognized qualities that of economy. There was then no call upon the fashion magazines for warnings against its association with washable dresses. Rich, bland and fragrant with the odors of its native tree and the wholesome out-of-doors, untouched by the withering processes of the laboratory, the spruce gum of those vanished years sustains in joyous recollection a place from which no arts of salesmanship, can dispossess it.

FOWLER'S LIFE OF KNOX

We have been reading again, with increased sense of its value as a gem of biography, the recently published story of the historic career of Gen. Henry Knox, as told by Professor Fowler, the great-grand-son of that distinguished Revolutionary character. Here is a fine piece of writing, in no sense adulatory, but with excellent discrimination presenting, out of a great storehouse of material, the details of the busy life and high achievement of one of the Nation's foremost figures. We have already noted that Professor Fowler wrote the story in connection with the recent dedication of the memorial at Thomaston, and by him generously presented, in the form of one thousand copies, to that institution. The handsomely printed booklet is meeting with rapid sale among the visitors to Montpelier. If readers at distant points should write to this paper, enclosing fifty cents for each copy desired, we shall take pleasure in forwarding same by mail postpaid. It is a story of romance and brilliant performance whose reading and re-reading will yield delight.

COMPLIMENTARY

Because anything well done in any line of endeavor gives occasion for satisfaction, we have taken pleasure in a piece of artistic work in the form of a roster of the local Rotary Club. It may be questioned whether the term artistic should properly be associated with the collected photographs of half a hundred business and professional men, but in this case, gathered as they are in a handsome loose-leaf binding, accompanied in each instance by brief biographical data, the result is a thing highly to be commended, perhaps later to be not without some local historical value, and in its clever execution complimentary to the skill, the taste and patience of its author, that popular public servant, Rockland's assistant postmaster, Henry C. Chatto.

MONTPELIER OPEN DAILY

The Knox Memorial at Thomaston is open to the public every day from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. The visitor's fee is fifty cents.

TENANT'S HARBOR

A child health conference will be held in the church vestry Friday afternoon of this week. A doctor and nurse will be in attendance.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Cynthia Hopkins many mothers and babies are able to be present through her automobile conveyance, which is much appreciated. Mrs. Hopkins also has many meetings held at her home when the attendance is small, and has displayed a remarkable interest in these clinics from the start, and arrangements for mothers to be able to attend are made largely through her efforts. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance Friday.

Dr. Ralph Wiley's son of Massachusetts is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hastings.

Mrs. Everett Mills of Rockland is a guest of Mrs. Myrtle Taylor.

Mrs. Belle Clark and two sons of Waltham, Mass., are spending this month with Mrs. Clark's mother Mrs. Lydia Hathorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hart and children of Brooklyn, Mass., are for two weeks at the old homestead. Mr. Hart has rented part of his house to John Lang.

MRS. MARIA W. TIBBETTS

Maria W., widow of the late Horace J. Tibbets, died at a Rockland hospital Wednesday at the age of 83. She had been in failing health for the past three years.

Mrs. Tibbets was the daughter of Joshua and Augusta Norwood, old-time residents of Rockport, where for many years Mr. Norwood was engaged in shipbuilding, being a member of the firm of Carleton & Norwood. Mrs. Tibbets was educated in the Rockport schools and the Codman School in Dorchester, Mass. Many years ago she united with the Episcopal Church in Camden, and was very prominently connected with its interests.

Mrs. Tibbets was of strong character, a loyal friend and a kind neighbor, loved by old and young. She leaves two sons, Joshua of Bath and Ralph H. of Rockland; three grandchildren, Huse Norwood Tib-

The League Standing

For the first time since the league standing has been published in this paper Rockland is at the top of the heap, a fraction better than half a game ahead of St. George, which won the championship last year, and which, during the early half of the present season appeared to have no real competition. Today Rockland is very much in the race and going stronger than ever. The standing:

St. George 8 6 .571

Camden 14, St. George 8

The Camden team displayed a remarkable reversal of form Saturday when it tied a 7 to 0 lead all in one inning and was successful by Bunker, who eventually stemmed the tide, but not until the score stood 7-all. In justice to Simmons it must be explained that he had pitched a hard game only two nights before, and his arm was not in normal condition.

Blood tasted so good to the Camden swatters that they continued the onslaught in the seventh inning and accumulated five more runs. Two more were made in the eighth, just as a matter of precaution, but they were not needed for the St. George drive was virtually over.

It was a slugging contest from the start. St. George hitting for 17 bases while Camden accumulated 25 bases. Those Megunticook lads pack a good punch when they once get the artillery unlimbered.

There were some excellent fielding features notably among them being Mayhew's fine heave to the plate after catching Davidson's liner. A fine return by Dailey after catching Dwyer's fly resulted in a similar double play. Dwyer led the hitting in this game, and it will interest many of the fans to know that this sterling player is whacking the pill at better than 500. A fine catch by Monaghan is listed among the features. The score:

Rockland 6, Vinhaven 3

The Rockland Texaco won from the Vinhaven locals Saturday. This is Vinhaven's first defeat on its home grounds since 1928.

The locals out-hit Rockland 11 to 8 but poor base-running cost them a couple of runs and maybe more. Although Mealey made an error on a ground ball he made the fine catches in the field. He is the best fielder seen there for some time.

Hopkins made two errors on one play that proved costly but outside of this one play was the outstanding man on both teams in the field and at bat. This boy surely ranks among the best shortstops around Knox County.

Bill Chilles pitched his usual steady game for the locals. Freeman should be a big help to Rockland High next season. Although hit frequently he tightened up in the pinches. Two-base hits were plentiful with Dimick getting two. Middleton's diving

Rockland 13, Camden 1

The Camden swatters who sent Simmons to the stables in last Saturday's game turned futile bats against Charlie Wotton last night. All except "Dool" Dailey, who presumably was celebrating his birthday for he made a home run, triple and single in four trips to the plate.

George Boydton made a couple of singles and Bennett one, but all that counted against Wotton was Dailey's circuit clout, and the long geared baseman-boxman turned in his fifth successive victory. Throughout the circuit they are referring to Wotton's delivery as the mystery ball, but the results speak for themselves.

It wasn't much of a night for Camden pitchers. In one and one-third innings Rockland made seven hits off Cross including a double. Bennett, who succeeded him, held the visitors scoreless until the eighth when the floodgates were again opened and Rockland made seven hits. All told, Wotton's men socked the pill for 21 bases last night, which, of course, accounted for the lopsidedness of the victory.

There were some outstanding actors in the cast of characters last night—Oney who made four hits and accepted seven chances; Chaples, who accepted eight chances; Dailey, whose batting has already been noted; and Monaghan (Old Reliable) who caught three nice ones in left.

Togus 3, Rockland 2

The Knox County aggregation which played under the name of Rockland at Togus, Sunday, eluded the jinx for eight and two-thirds innings, only to fall a victim to the critter after all. The visiting team held a lead of 2 to 0 for six innings, and a lead of 2 to 1 until near the close of the ninth inning.

A small thing will sometimes be the turning point of a ball game, and so in this instance a grounder was knocker to Sonny Dwyer at third base—the kind that Sonny eats at all hours of the day. The ball took a bad bound and struck him on the wrist. He threw to first just as a split-second too late to catch Pat French.

Charlie Small, another ex-Maine Coast Leaguer cracked out a nice single. The next two Togus batters were retired but there were men on second and third when Lombard, the star first baseman of the Togus team came to bat. Tony didn't exactly "push" 'em up," but he did hit a liner which sailed over Ogier's head far into center field scoring two runs.

It was the first time that Froelich had weakened in the entire game and everybody felt sorry that ill luck gave him such a nasty dig.

ICED coffee is not only a refreshing summer drink, it also lends a cool tone of unusual color to the porch luncheon table in warm weather. There are many variations of invigorating coffee beverages to appeal to thirsty throats. Because they are easy to make and quite inexpensive, the hostess will find them doubly precious.

Iced Spiced Coffee
Brew six cups of clear strong coffee and add to it one three-inch stick of cinnamon. Boil for five minutes, then remove the cinnamon. Stir in three-fourths of a cup of sugar. Chill, then serve in glasses with crushed ice. If you wish to give a note of added distinction, garnish the top with whipped cream dusted with grated nutmeg.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

A WELL known scientist in the field of nutritional psychology recently suggested that an excellent way to stimulate digestion is to partake of a sweet snack—a second dessert as it were—a half hour or so after mealtime. A few pieces of candy, some small cakes, in fact anything sweet, he said, is not only a pleasant aftermath to dinner but helps stimulate the flow of gastric juices needed to complete digestion.

KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

A good deal of the trouble of this world arises from the fact that some folks like to have gardens while others prefer to have hens.—Nixon Waterman.

WARM WEATHER FOODS

THE warm days of summer bring a muscular relaxation which reacts upon the digestive tract as well as upon the whole body, and it needs to have its task lightened. If wise we lessen the amount of food or serve the lighter forms of food. Such foods as pastries, rich cakes and various sauces rich in fat should be partaken of in moderation.

Protein foods, which are meats, fish, eggs, fowl, should be cut down and more of the succulent vegetables and fruits served to form the main bulk of the meal.

This is the season to reduce in weight by cutting down on the food, but eating a variety. One may lose a pound of weight a week by taking a little less food and eating sparingly of the fat forming foods, such as sweets, butter and cream.

In the warm weather the housewife must plan more accurately not to have much leftover food, as spoilage will occur in a few hours in the protein foods, making them unfit for food.

When very warm the cooling fruit drinks are much less harmful than sundaes and sodas. Even on hot days when the appetite is most critical, a hot dish of some kind should be served, as it is not wise to make too radical a change in the menu. When cold meats, potato salad with cold or hot breads are served, it is wise to have a hot drink of tea, coffee or cocoa.

Duchess Cream.—Take six tablespoons of tapioca, cook until clear in water to cover. Add a pinch of salt, one cupful of sugar, the juice from a can of pineapple, and the juice of two oranges and two lemons; cook until thick. Cool, then add the pineapple, one cupful of nuts and one pint of whipped cream. This amount will serve a dozen generously.

Cherry Ice Cream.—Take a cupful of rich cherry juice, a teaspoonful of lemon, a few drops of almond extract, a pint of cream, add more sugar if needed and freeze as usual. Serve in sherbet cups with a garnish of a whole cherry or top with whipped cream sprinkled with pistachio nuts chopped fine.

FOR a dish that delights the heart of a guest, there is nothing more appealing than a good baked ham. Boil it until tender, then let it cool in its own liquid, when it will be ready to skin and decorate with cloves for the baking the next day. A luscious baked ham, seasoned to a turn, is the best possible comfort to a hostess with weekend guests. Thin slices may be frizzled and served with eggs for breakfast, sliced cold it will do for a late supper or for luncheon with creamed potatoes, finely minced and mixed with chopped olives and pickles it makes wonderful sandwich filling; in fact, ham is a source of confidence, like a good bank balance.

When serving the baked ham have nice rings of pineapple baked and baked in the baking pan. Serve with the ham.

The tender celery may be served as natural, the coarser stalks cut up and cooked, served as a scalloped dish with cheese, or as creamed celery.

Keep on hand a good big jar of good cookies, both dark and light if possible, a jar of doughnuts to sprinkle with cinnamon and roll into the ice-cream until half an hour before dinner. Spread with softened butter before adding the sugar—that keeps them moist.

Tomato Baskets.—Scoop out even sized ripe tomatoes and fill with cooked peas, mix with a bit of chopped cucumber and onion and marinate with french dressing.

When serving, top with a rose of mayonnaise dressing and a few slivers of finely shredded pimiento, or green pepper may be used if preferred.

Thin-Shelled Eggs

Whenever there is a late spring with a great deal of cloudy weather, many folks lay thin-shelled eggs. The egg-shell quality from such a flock will begin to improve as soon as the hens get into direct sunlight. It is a common observation that when a flock is laying thin-shelled eggs and is turned out-of-doors in the sun, the shell quality improves. It is very important in managing a flock to open the windows on sunny days during the winter or early spring.

EXPLAINS WHAT CAUSES QUAKES

Scientists Say It Is Just Shaking of the Earth or Part of It.

Washington.—"The recent Balkan earthquake, with its stories of the 'epicenter' being located near the meeting point of Greece, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, and the later disaster at Managua, Nicaragua, rises anew in nontechnical minds the question: What is an earthquake and what causes it?" says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

Continuing, the bulletin answers these questions: "The story is really told by the name, 'earthquake.' The phenomenon is nothing more nor less than a quaking of the earth or part of it.

Theoretically, at least, any vibration will suffice from the tremor caused by a passing railroad train to violent disturbances that shake down cities, open earth crevices, and send mountains and islands to swaying.

"As it makes itself known to man and his instruments, an earthquake is the coming to the surface of waves in the earth. Even the simplest wave motion is none too easy to understand; and the waves in the varying earth materials that make themselves known to man as earthquakes are probably the most complex waves that exist. They are at once motions 'up-and-down' like sea waves; crosswise like the waves in a flapping flag; back-and-forth like sound waves or the motion in a long coiled spring suspended with a weight, bobbing at the end; and in addition may have twists about imaginary pivot lines in all three dimensions.

Waves Spread Out.
"The earth waves responsible for earthquakes start in some region in every direction. One of the simplest types of waves that can be observed, those from a pebble dropped into a pond, forms growing circles on the surface of the water. But the waves in the earth, being in a solid, attempt to form spheres that cannot grow outward. Soon, however, because of the differences in texture of different rock materials, the form is not a sphere at all, but a very irregular curved solid instead, more nearly that of a potato.

"The two principal types of earth waves, those that travel like the pulsations in a bobbing spring, straight out; and those that travel like ripples and the waves in a flag, with a sideways motion, move at different speeds. The pulsing waves are swifter, and of course the place where they make themselves felt first and most strongly is the surface directly above their starting point. This is technically the 'epicenter' or 'epicentrum.' These pulsing waves around the epicenter alternately push up the surface of the earth and everything on it, and let them fall back. This is done very rapidly, and though the actual rise and fall may be only a fraction of an inch on rocky surfaces or a very few inches on soft soil, the violence may be like that from innumerable tremendous blows, and sufficient to shake down buildings.

"The 'sidewise' waves follow along almost immediately after the first pulsing waves, and the two, with perhaps 'twisting waves' as well, then operate together. The ground in the epicentral area, therefore, gets innumerable thrusts and falls and at the same time is jerked sidewise and back for tiny distances in every direction.

"At point some distance from the epicenter the pulsing waves strike the surface at a slant and so accentuate the effect of the 'sidewise' waves and create new surface undulations. The shaking at the epicenter, too, throws the earth's surface there into undulatory waves like ripples on a pond, and these also travel outward in widening circles. These surface waves are those of greatest up-and-down motions but least speed from place to place. They register the heaviest vibrations on the seismographs of the world.

How the Waves Start.
"The second important question in regard to an earthquake is: What starts the waves?

"No one has ever seen an earthquake wave start outward from its center, and it is safe enough to say that no one ever will. But science has built certain hypotheses which are pretty generally accepted.

"Hold a dry stick as big as your thumb in your hands and bend it until it breaks. At the snap, waves will travel to the ends of the stick. Hold up your hand as if you were about to strike a nail with a hammer. Again the vibrations carried to your hand may be violent enough to produce a stinging pain.

"And if you should strike a small, explosive cap with the end of a long rod grasped by the other end, the explosion would probably bring the same painful tingle to your fingers.

It is generally believed that earthquake waves flow from a point where one of the three forces illustrated is suddenly released—a break, a blow or an explosion.

Breaks are credited with responsibility for most earthquakes. It is believed that because of slow contraction or shrinking, which may result from the cooling of the outer portion of the earth, or because of pressure from deposited silt, strains are set up below the surface like those in the bending stick. Eventually, the strain reaches the breaking point and there is a snapping of the rocks which sends violent waves to the surface, causing earthquakes.

"The blow type of earthquake is probably less important. Such a blow might result from the falling in of a great cavern, but probably would cause only a local shiver. A more important cause of a blow might be a slipping of one mass of rock over another with a collision at the end of the slide. Such a blow often follows a break, the two acting together.

"Earthquakes in active volcanic regions may often result from explosions of gases far beneath the surface; but it is possible that even in the neighborhood of volcanoes the majority of the quakes arise from sudden breaks in the rocks."

Germany Plans Plane to Carry 180 Passengers

Berlin.—Plans for the construction in Germany of a seaplane which would dwarf the Dornier X have been completed.

They are the work of Doctor Rumpier, the designer of many planes during the war, including the Taube, who contends that the machine will be able to carry 180 passengers and several tons of mail a distance of nearly 4,000 miles nonstop at a cruising speed of 170 miles an hour.

Accommodation in the Rumpier plane is divided into two separate hulls, with additional accommodation in the wing. The ten engines are spaced out evenly along the wing, in which they are inclosed, and they drive the propellers at the rear through long shafts.

Owing to the high initial cost, Doctor Rumpier was unable to raise capital in Germany, but he is in America and it is understood has obtained the financial support necessary.

Work on the new plane will be started soon after his return.

Entire Education May Be Had on Ohio Campus

Columbus, Ohio.—When Ohio State university's model high school is opened in the fall of 1932, a child may start to school at one and a half years and continue his education on the Ohio State campus until he has received a degree of doctor of philosophy.

This will be possible by attending the nursery school, conducted by the school of home economics, the university demonstration school for elementary pupils, and the model high school, and finally the university proper.

The schools are conducted by the college of education, Ohio State university, for practical teaching purposes. Expert teachers have charge of the classes, giving the students the advantage of the latest model instruction.

Any child may be admitted to any of these auxiliary schools upon application. No fee is charged, but the number of pupils is limited.

Winds Sweep Sands From Ancient Village

Traverse City, Mich.—Winds sweeping the sand dunes of Leelanau county have uncovered the site of an ancient village, believed to have been the home of mound builders, those mysterious people who lived in America before the advent of the Indians.

The sands which covered the site for centuries were drifted away by strong winds from Lake Michigan this year, and Walter E. Hastings, state conservation department photographer, stumbled upon stone relics.

Hastings explored the surrounding 20-acre area and discovered numerous weapons and implements, remains of camp-fires and the ruins of what may have been log barricades.

Hastings, an archeologist, believes the sand will continue to shift, revealing more of the area.

Mr. Prior, who will be 89 years old next November, gets around as smart as many of the younger men and to hear him joke one would think he was one of them. He is never happy when idle, and while at Mr. Morse's he has put 10 cords of fitted stove wood under cover which he loaded on a wheelbarrow, wheeled into the shed and piled it all up. Quite a stunt for any young man, especially in hot weather.

SONNET TO MAINE

(For The Courier-Gazette)

Old Maine! I love thy purring rills,
Thy mountains, woodlands and the hills,
Thy rugged pastures covered o'er
With furze and berries by the score.

Thy snowcapped peaks, thy valleys fair,
Thy silvery lakes whose margins are
Tree covered and whose heads appear
Surprised to see themselves so near.

Thy glassy surface, mirrored there
In stately beauty, passing fair,
Or wearing glittering diadem
Upon each limb, the Frost King's gem.

Thy towering forests bending low
Beneath the winds that o'er them blow—
Yes, dear to me the snowflakes are
That listen o'er the fields afar.

And summer, with its fragrant breath
A language brings from off the heath
To stir my heart with love for thee.
To wake my slumbering memory.

So turns my restless heart to thee,
As lonely wanderer o'er the sea
Turns fondly to his far-off home
From whence that heart can never roam.

Hope. A. F. Duntun.

A WORD OF WARNING

North Haven, Aug. 8.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Someone's indifference may ruin a life. A few weeks ago Constable Rodney Haskell took a Deer Isle man over to the Police Court for breaking the Prohibition law in North Haven. The constable was criticized for arresting that kind of a man and the question was raised, why not take someone higher up who was breaking the law.

The constable had the evidence against the man. If the evidence is received it matters not in what state or town the party may belong they will have a chance to explain it to the judge.

Lightning does not strike in every case but sometimes strikes where least expected.

No! All Cars Are Not Alike

Essex is a Super-Six

With Exclusive Features of Super-Six Design and Super-Six Performance

Selective FREE WHEELING Further Emphasizes the Difference

All who know the facts recognize that in performance, smoothness and reliability the Super-Six principle gives Essex a distinction that cannot be likened to any other car. With it, vibration is reduced to nil.

None has ever shared its fame for reliability. On that one score Essex, because it alone can use the Super-Six, stands distinctive in the six-cylinder field.

But the difference is not limited to its Super-Six motor and Super-Six performance.

Now Essex includes Selective Free Wheeling. That adds another joyous motoring sensation. Driving takes on a new zest. You shift gears without using the clutch.

In its price field it is also the largest car. It is inches longer—seats are inches wider—leg room is greater—and everyone who examines it closely also finds it more carefully and finely built in respect to chassis detail and body appointments.

Essex quality goes beyond its motor, fittings and upholstery. It goes to the very foundation. Isn't it a satisfaction to know you can get such quality in a car so easy to own?

Coach or Business Coupe $595, Standard Sedan $695, Sport Roadster $725, Town Sedan $735, Touring Sedan $775, Special Sedan $855, 7-Passenger Sedan (long wheelbase) $895—Selective Free Wheeling $35 additional. All prices f. o. b. Detroit—special equipment extra.

CAMDEN CONCERT TONIGHT

Noted Artists Appear In A Program of Striking Interest

Sheridan, pianist of the David Mannes School faculty of New York and Leon Kairoff, dramatic baritone, who will present Russian songs, including arias, classics, character ditties, and folk lore, appearing in costume. Frank Bibb, director of these concerts, will be at the piano for Mr. Kairoff.

A NOTABLE CONCERT

Pilgrim Vested Choir Delights Responsive Audience With Its Program

The annual concert of the Pilgrim Vested Choir of the Congregational Church Friday evening had an audience at all times responsive to the fine performance. Huge bouquets of garden flowers formed the principal decorations of the platform.

The performers embraced Marshall Bradford, chorister; chorus, Mrs. J. M. Pomeroy, Mrs. Charles G. Hewett, Miss Chorice Thomas, Miss Dorothy Snow, Miss Alice Gay, Miss Anna Richardson, Miss Mary Ginn, Miss Edith Peterson, Miss Hazel Marshall, Miss Margaret Snow and Miss Mary Wasgatt, with Mrs. W. E. Morgan, Chester Wyllie of Warren and R. K. Greene as assisting singers; the quartet, Mrs. Helen Wentworth, Mrs. Lydia Storer, Harold Greene and Charles A. Rose; organist and pianist, Mrs. E. F. Berry. The program:

The Snow Edgar
Twilight Froehner
The Miller's Wooing Fanning
Romance Choir
Macaulay Debussy
For You Alone MacMurrough
The Star Ghebl
I Am Thy Harp Woodman
The Cry of Rachel Salter
Readings Mrs. Storer
The Stabat Mater Adelyn Bushnell
Lord Most Holy Chorus
Lord Vouchsafe Thy Loving Kindness Chorus
I Have Longed For Thy Salvation Chorus
Mrs. Wentworth, Mrs. Storer, Mr. Greene
Through the Darkness Mr. Bradford
Thou Hast Tried Our Hearts Mr. Bradford
I Will Sing of Thy Great Mercy Chorus
Hear Us, Lord Mrs. Storer
When Thou Comest Quartet
Special mention should be made of the chorus work under the direction of Mr. Bradford. Clean attacks and fine shading were outstanding features, even in the difficult selections from Stabat Mater. "The Snow" perhaps won the highest commendation, with "Twilight," sung a capella, a close second. Mr. Bradford's skill as a conductor was reflected in all the numbers—his understanding, fine enthusiasm and infinite patience combining to produce telling results. It would be gratifying to hear a large chorus under his leadership.

Mr. Bradford's songs presented a varied group, particularly appealing being the fanciful Debussy number. He gave as an encore Sidney Homer's "Banjo Song." Mrs. Storer's beautiful contralto voice is always a joy to her hearers, and she was heard at her best. The Woodman number was gratifying in its smoothness and finish. Her encore was a delightful Negro lullaby.

Adelyn Bushnell, assisting artist, was enthusiastically received. Her humorous monologue "Friday Afternoon," depicting a scene at a bridge table, was brilliantly given. Her second number was Edna St. Vincent Millay's "The Ballad of the Harp Weaver" with musical accompaniment composed and played by Mr. Bradford, who caught the atmosphere of the poem in a subtle manner, and the effect with Miss Bushnell's rendition of the poem was quite remarkable. She gave as an encore the pert musical reading "Suzanne." The second part of the program was devoted to selections from Rossini's oratorio "Stabat Mater." Mr. Greene, Mrs. Storer and Mr. Bradford sang their solos with authority. The number in which Mr. Rose sang the obligato was finely done, as were the quartet numbers and the familiar "Inflammatus" in which Mrs. Wentworth sang the solo and obligato brilliantly. Mrs. Berry's work as accompanist particularly the "Stabat Mater" at the organ, was one of the chief accomplishments of the evening, again reflecting the high standard set by this fine local musician.

PROTECT FISHERMEN

They Should Have Every Encouragement, Says Horatio D. Crie, Director

Maine has 2,500 miles of coast line, and along her shores reside approximately 12,000 fishermen who are engaged in catching fish and lobsters for a livelihood. The several species of these natural resources are lobsters, salmon, smelts, mackerel, scallops, clams, cod, haddock and other line fish, and their value runs far into millions of dollars annually, making the fisheries next in importance to agriculture.

The lobster is considered the king of all denizens of the deep, especially in price and toothsome, and Maine is the largest lobster-producing State in the Union. There are more violators of the lobster laws than all of the other fish laws administered by the Maine Fisheries department because the relative value of lobster is far above that of any other protected fish.

The cod is a valuable food fish and should be protected by law when it comes into our bays to spawn. Hake, haddock and pollock also contribute to the food supply and likewise add to the income of our fishing communities.

Smelts enter the brooks every spring to spawn, but often they are caught in quantities for the mere sport of catching them, and thus thousands of parent fish laden with spawn are destroyed. Here is another fish that should have protection at spawning time.

In the winter when other fish are scarce, one can sit in a little canvas house on the ice and catch smelts, regardless of conditions at sea. Thousands of dollars are brought into the State by the sale of these fish and hundreds of families are made comfortable by money thus earned during the winter months.

The salmon, one of the smartest game fish, was formerly famous in Maine, but has greatly declined in numbers. Measures should be taken to save it from extinction.

Herring fisheries constitute a large branch of the fishing industry. These small fish are canned as sardines, or packed as smoked, salted, or frozen fish. They are also used in large quantities for bait for catching lobsters, cod, haddock, and other ground fish.

Clams abound in the coast flats. They may be taken with very inexpensive equipment, and during the period of depression will furnish many coast families with a plentiful supply of food.

The fishermen should have every encouragement possible accorded them. They should be protected from the persistent violators of the fishery laws; they should have help in marketing their product.—By Horatio D. Crie, Director, Sea and Shore Fisheries Commission, State of Maine, in "The Seamen's Journal."

DIDN'T BELIEVE IN FAIRIES

Young Folks At Megunticook Lake Present a Pretty Play

The cottage residents at Megunticook Lake were treated to one of the most original and pretty plays seen for some time. Given by small children, the songs and dances were composed and executed by members of the cast, with the artistic costumes designed and made by Miss Kirk of Philadelphia, a summer visitor. The show was put on amid the spruce trees back of the Britto cottage, and the play was with the beautiful setting, with rays of sunshine filtering through the branches, will live in the memory of those who were privileged to witness the presentation. The play in one act, was the story of a boy and girl who did not believe in fairies, and failing to be convinced they lay down in the woods to sleep. The fairies then come, and after they sing and dance the children become convinced that fairies are real. The children taking part included Marjorie Jane and Kathleen Elizabeth Kirk, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Kirk of Philadelphia, Ruth C. and Murray B. Wright, children of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wright of the Canal Zone, and little Emmy Lou Peaslee, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Peaslee of Rockland. Little Emmy Lou sang several songs for which she is famous, already having sung in public many times. She wore the costume worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peaslee, over 60 years ago.

"THE WATER CURE"

A Winning Essay By Mrs. Mary E. Mallett, 83, of Lee, In Three-Quarter Century Contest

The Creator gave us an inexhaustible supply of water and called it good. Excepting air, water is more necessary for living beings than anything else in nature. It is a harmless laxative for infants, it soothes pain, heals wounds and quenches thirst. Whittier's "Ode to the Wayside Well" portrays a true incident of a shipwrecked captain, long deprived of water, making a vow to the Giver, that if rescued, he would dig a well that all might drink their fill who came athirst.

At the Three-Quarter Century Club meeting in Portland, a lady 82 years old, face free from wrinkles, step spry as her granddaughter, was asked the secret of her youthfulness and she said that she took morning shower baths, drank four glasses of water daily, adhered to a health diet, took no drugs, tea or coffee and did no needless worrying. She felt that baths, water drinking and peace of mind had much to do in keeping "Old Age" at bay.

Learn the medicinal worth of water and how to use it. Drink it at least one-half hour away from meals in order not to hinder the salivary glands. Apply cold water to the body for it strengthens nerves, preserves eyesight and protects the head, throat and lungs. Tanner proved the virtue of water alone as a cure for cancer of the stomach.

The sick, stealthily crawling to springs for water, have abated fever. A cousin and I saw a sick woman whose hectic cheeks looked as though the end was near. Her mother said that her case was hopeless. Telling her that Dr. Beach of Philadelphia was famed for his "Water Cure," I asked her to give water treatment for her daughter giving water boiled and cooled, and baths to excite skin action. Six months later my cousin found this woman well and doing her household work.

Drinking and the application of distilled water dissolves earthy chalk. This woman well and doing her household work.

THE SEA PLANE'S FLIGHT

(For The Courier-Gazette)
With sudden rush and mighty roar, I climb to where the eagles soar. When seemingly the plane stands still, As coastline views inspire and thrill.

Like bird I poise on balanced wings, As motor grinds away and sings. Ships far below like playthings seem; I ask myself, Is this a dream?
When mounted on this air-way steed, I move along at break-neck speed; I travel high, I travel far, I wonder will I bump a star?
I look ahead at distant town, Then all at once I settle down; I skim the surface of the sea, And landing make with smiles and glee.

It's great to travel in the air, At any time and any where; An overland of land and sea, Man feels himself indeed to be.
Henry Felton Huse.
North Haven, Me.

THAT DIAPHONE

Another Writer Has His Say And At the Expense of the Timid Soul

Apropos of the communication from Jamaica Plain which appeared in Saturday's issue, The Courier-Gazette has received the following letter, which the writer heads: "Another Version."

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—It was a disconcerting night; something terrible has happened. Unable to cope with phenomena they collapsed and lay trembling on the floor. Jamaica, Plain upon their lips, they talked of heart-rending, nerve-racking, ear-splitting, flesh-creeping, blood-curdling, ear-pounding, hair-raising and dignity-upsetting things; of another war and air-bombing. Then one of the party, being able to count, crawled from beneath the bed and called to a man who was placidly smoking a corn-cob pipe. They babbled something about sea-monsters as the rural one spat artistically and looked upon them with supreme contempt; the while rubbing his badge and reaching for his hand-cuffs. He was obviously frightened by their questions and their wild, disheveled appearance. With Yankee deliberateness he removed his whiskers. "What, you," they gasped. "Have matters been adjusted in Fall River? What are you doing in these wilds of Maine?"

"Shh," said the rural one. "You should never have come here. This charming little city, nestled between the glorious ocean and the hills is entirely lacking the atmosphere with which you are familiar. In your native Commonwealth we now have a quiet Garrett; spend a few days with the story and you will be all right." "But our nerves," wailed the explorers, "we can never stand it to journey through Newburyport." "Oh I'll fix that all right, Boss," said the rural one. "Here in Rockland they have a diaphone which is only used occasionally and I'll borrow it for your trip." "Oh that would be music in our ears," quoth he who could count;
