BUSY AT SNOW'SOne Boat Fitting Out, One
On the Stocks and One To Be Started At Once

When the day's work is done at the Snow shipyard between 70 and 80 men pass out through the gates—a rather impressive crew in these days when new sailing vessels no longer sit on the stocks.

Construction has now shifted to fishing craft, mainly seiners and druggers in this section. Tied up at the Snow docks is one vessel being fitted out for her maiden cruise; on the stocks is one which will soon be ready for launching and in the yard is assembled the material for another.

The Snow yard received a visit yesterday from Guy O. Gandolfi of Lynn, owner of the seiner, Uncle Guy, which soon goes into commission; Benjamin Cucuru of Gloucester, whose boat will launch the first of November; and Larry McEwen of Gloucester, who is eastern manager of the Cooper-Besemer Corporation.

Schooner Alice M. Doughty which went ashore near Portland some weeks ago, has been undergoing elaborate repairs at the Snow yard, these including new main and false keels, a new shoe, a new rudder post and replanking on the port side. Much additional work is to be done, as the craft is to be converted into a dragger.

The Chebeague is at the yard for repairs to a broken tail shaft. Julia-Eleanor is the name of the fishing craft, which is to be built by the I. L. Snow Co. for Capt. Ambrose Smith of New Bedford. Work will start at once.

IMPROVED SERVICEThe Courier-Gazette Reports On Outside Town
Deliveries

The second year's truck service to Camden, Thomaston and adjacent territory by The Courier-Gazette has been well received. This season it has been possible to include Warren and Union with their several R.F.D. bags in the noon shipment to Thomaston, connecting there with the regular mail truck.

This newspaper is making a consistent effort to better serve its readers and advertisers by getting the paper completely delivered at the earliest reasonable moment. The city carrier system has been put on a merit basis through the co-operation of a group of splendid carrier boys of whom we are justly proud.

The outside town delivery is being improved steadily along the same line and suggestions will be cheerfully received and incorporated in the service insofar as possible. Many factors hamper the country paper, especially the time element on press mornings when a great mass of work must be done. Subscribers, post office employees and rural carriers have been most helpful and any ideas from them will be most welcome. They should be addressed to John M. Richardson, care The Courier-Gazette.

PAYSON IS HONOREDPopular Camden Fire Chief
Made President of State Association

At the Maine State Fire Chiefs annual meeting in Norway Sept. 16, the chiefs of the State unanimously nominated and elected as the new president of their association for the coming year Chief Allen F. Payson of Camden, as the worthy successor to the retiring president Chief Oliver Sanborn of Portland.

Chief Ranlett of Richmond, Me., in presenting Mr. Payson's name said: I feel that it is only fitting and proper that we should at this time consider for nomination as our president, a man whose untiring and unselfish efforts for the past years have brought to this association helpful and efficient guidance as he has served in helping to formulate constructive and educational objective for the good of this association, a man whose ideas have been actuated by deeds within his own department.

Camden fire chief, Allen F. Payson, who receives new honors

ever keeping before him the need of better and more efficient methods of combating fire in these modern times, who has worked day and night ever ready and willing to further the ideals and objects of his vocational field as a guardian of life and property from fire; a man who is widely known throughout the State as well as within the ranks of Fire Department Chiefs, and one who is greatly admired and most highly respected by all, always ready to serve, with a smile and it is with great pleasure I present to this association of Chiefs the name of our own beloved Chief Payson of Camden. For the nomination of president to guide the destiny of this association for the coming year.

The name was immediately seconded by Chief Eldridge of Kennebunkport, and unanimously accepted by the entire convention. Chief Payson will be ably assisted by these officers: Vice president, Chief Ranlett of Richmond, Maine; directors, Chief Oliver Sanborn of Portland, Chief Charles O. Spear of South Portland, Chief L. A. Mercier of Rumford, Chief G. E. Bancroft of Auburn, Chief John Eldridge of Kennebunkport.

The opening and business meeting over the chiefs enjoyed a buffet lunch which was followed by a parade after which the chiefs were the guests of the officials of the Norway Fair winding up the day with a banquet and closing business session, completing plans for the coming year.

One of the hospital nurses was from Vinalhaven and she also enjoyed the paper and thus we had much in common to talk about. Last but not least was the wonderful report of how the county went at the election Sept. 14."

HEADING INTO THE STORMA Nine-Hundred Mile Motor Tour Which Began With a 70-Mile Gale

(By The Roving Reporter—Second Installment)

Did you ever step out of a warm motor car into the face of a blinding rainstorm, borne on the wings of a 70-mile gale? That was the greeting Bob Webster and I received when we sought our night quarters at Plymouth, Mass., Friday, Sept. 18. The promise of the Weather Bureau that the gale would break over Cape Cod at that time was certainly being fulfilled.

We lost few moments in retiring, but it was a long time before my eyes closed in sleep. Outside the wind was giving vent to a shrill chorus, the like of which I had never heard. Windows rattled, blinds creaked and the sturdy old Colonial dwelling would shake as though some mighty giant were seeking to throttle it.

In the town hall a mile distant the fire alarm sounded 42, but it must have been remote from our tourist home because I saw no light and heard no clattering fire apparatus. It was a terrible night for a fire and a fine night to stay inside, and this I did, sketchily reviewing that ride from Boston and thinking that good old Paul Revere had something of a snap by comparison.

Wherein Bob Has Trouble

I finally drifted off into slumber, and awoke to find that the rain was still descending in torrents and that the gale had increased in intensity if that were possible.

It didn't look much like a morning to be starting for Provincetown, for if you examine your map again you will see that it must have been bearing the brunt of the storm.

But we said goodbye to Mine Host and I stood in the lee of the piazza while Bob went to bring the car. Quarter of an hour passed and I began to seriously think that Robert might have blown away. Presently he returned and one glance at his expressive features showed me that something was amiss.

What the Storm Did

To make a long story short most of you readers know what happens to a car which has been on the under side of tons of water the whole night through. While I was waiting for the necessary adjustments to be made I chatted with the landlady. Told me her name was Tillson, and that the family was distantly related to the Tillsons who occupied such a prominent place in Rockland's history. When she found we were from Rockland, she told of having once visited the city and of her recollection of being on Tillson wharf, and of having been at Pemaquid Beach. Almost forgot to tell you that when I came down stairs in the morning I found the head of the house arrayed in oilskins, carrying a lantern and taking account of stock. Some panes of glass had been smashed and rain had leaked through the roof, forming a small pool on the bathroom floor.

We rode away to view some of Plymouth's show places, and on every hand saw the effects of the storm. The ground was littered with leaves and twigs, and these were already being carted away.

A Captive Rock

First we went to view the Monument to the Forefathers on which twice appears my family name. I had seen it on a previous occasion and have referred to it in a former article. Also I had seen Plymouth Rock to which we next went. Bob echoed the surprise I then expressed at what might well be referred to as an overgrown pebble if it were not for the significant and even sacred character of the institution which marked our beginning on this continent. Massive columns surround the Rock and it is to all intents and purposes under lock and key as a guarantee against the encroachments of the only thing worse than a newspaper photographer—the souvenir hunter.

Sailing Yacht Wrecked

We had been inspecting Plymouth Rock only a few moments before we saw men running to a point on the shore perhaps 500 feet distant. And there, piled high and dry on the rocks was a handsome schooner yacht which had been blown ashore by the terrific gale—one of many scores of craft which came to brief in that storm.

It was all very interesting, but an insistent voice kept reminding us that we had not broken our fast, and to Jim's Place (upon recommendation of a citizen) we went to supply our wants. The appetizing breakfast we there ate is one of the most pleasing recollections of the best trip Bob and I have ever made. Plymouth, I learned, is a city of about 13,000 population, and seemed to be having a busy Saturday morning despite the gale.

The surf was dashing splendidly over Plymouth bathing beach as we sped along, and just outside of the city men were clearing away the wreckage of a huge tree which had toppled part way across the street.

Apology To Boze

Not too busy to notice some of the signs—Red Swan Inn, Apple Tree Inn, an estate called "Cedar Buses." One waterfront merchant advertised three boiled lobsters for a dollar. The next lobster merchant was even more benevolent. He offered four for a dollar. If any old Rockland resident reads this story he will recall the good old days when you could buy six for a quarter if you were too indolent to go down on the shore and gather them yourself.

I expect to get a rise out of Boze on this statement, and I want to apologize for not climbing that Porter street hill to pay my respects to him. The storm and the hour of the night alone prevented a visit to which I had looked forward with so much pleasure.

It was 10 o'clock Saturday forenoon when we crossed Cape Cod Canal on that new Bourne bridge and when we proceeded to negotiate that great crescent which is Cape Cod I found myself in new territory.

Yellow Street Lights

We were on Route 6, with Sandwich first on our list of towns. It was still rainy or misty, and Bob wrestled with a refractory windshield wiper, which caused no end of annoyance until a garage doctor performed a sort of appendicitis operation on it. And here my notes remind me that I have forgotten to mention the town or city outside of Quincy which uses yellow lights to illuminate its streets. Will some kind friend come to the rescue and tell me what that place was.

Some more odd names—"The Skiff House" and "Shady Locusts." Sandwich has a trailer camp, but on this particular occasion there was only one of these modern transportation affairs to be seen.

Where Cranberry Is Queen

We found ourselves now in that region which will furnish a portion of your Thanksgiving dinner—the Cape Cod cranberry. We came to them frequently—cranberry "bogs," mostly under water as the result of the previous night's deluge. "Eatmoor Cranberries," is a conspicuous sign sponsored by the New England Cranberry Sales Co.

The tourist sees many attractive looking garages, but we came upon one built of field stone which was certainly distinctive.

Changing the subject to ice cream the New England traveler can always find his wants satisfied by two great concerns—the Howard Johnson stores and the Grade A Dutchland Farms. "Cap'n Grey's" is the name of a wayside establishment, and on the right, as you enter Barnstable is a large, dark stone building which attracts attention.

A Squashed Hat

Comedy became injected into a stormy forenoon when our car ran over a woman's hat which the gale had torn from the head of a passenger in the car ahead of us. I don't know what the fall millinery styles are on Cape Cod, this season, but that particular hat is going to be of the pancake type.

"Saldee Swift's Candy Shop." Ye gods and little fishes, is there any other way to spell Sadie? I thought I had seen them all.

I had heard a great deal about the narrow roads on Cape Cod, and we made the acquaintance of the first one at Yarmouth. And it was here, I think, that we saw the green house with the canary blinds. A sort of a color blind effect.

And so on through Dennis, East Dennis, Brewster and Orleans. I

A SENSIBLE PROJECTW. P. A. Asked To Furnish Funds For a Lobster
Rearing Station

The Fisheries Bureau is making a double effort to provide hatching facilities to stimulate Maine's lobster industry.

Deputy Fisheries Commissioner Charles E. Jackson, who returned recently from a trip to Maine, said data for inclusion in an application for a Works Progress Administration allotment for a new hatchery were being assembled by Rodney E. Feyler, State commissioner of sea and shore fisheries.

At the same time, the bureau is preparing to carry on a hatching program at the existing Boothbay Harbor hatchery similar to the work being done also at Gloucester and Woods Hole, Mass.

Existing facilities, Jackson said, do not make it possible to raise the small lobsters to an advanced stage of development as is desirable before releasing them. Therefore a new hatchery, to be operated co-operatively with the State at a location not yet selected is planned.

Frank T. Bell, fisheries commissioner who has submitted a preliminary application to the WPA, said the bureau should provide certain equipment and personnel for the construction and operation of the hatchery if the WPA allotted funds. Such a contribution would be offered he said, as the sponsor's contribution required by the WPA, although the bureau's present funds would not be sufficient to construct the hatchery.

Glenn C. Leach, chief of the bureau's division of fish culture, said the operations at Boothbay Harbor would be conducted as part of a program under which the State would enforce more rigidly laws governing the marketing of female lobsters with egg clusters.

Fishermen catching such females he said, would be expected to turn them over to the Federal hatchery. There the eggs would be removed for hatching, while the lobster would be returned to the sea.

FOR A DESERTED MOTHER

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Some kind readers will be moved by the case of a deserted mother with two babies. This mother is a trained nurse and was well brought up. Kept at home by the claims of these children, she has not a cent of income.

May I have for her from someone's attic that baby carriage about which tender memories cluster, but which would do so much good to this destitute mother. And along with it let me have that crib. She has none.

A couple of full sized blankets or quilts would come handy. If in addition to these material things, you wish to give a bit of yourself, lady reader of this letter, I shall be glad to hear from you.

FARM LOANS IN KNOXTwenty-Eight Have Been Made to the Total Amount of $25,900

Loans totaling $25,900 were made to 28 farmers in Knox County by the Federal Land Bank and the Land Bank Commissioner from May 1, 1933 to date, according to an announcement made by Dr. Robert J. Wiseman, State Director for the National Emergency Council.

Loans through these two agencies have aided in rehabilitating a great many farmers. Throughout the State of Maine a total of $7,266,900 has been loaned, which has gone directly to benefit 3,666 farmers.

The Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner are but two of the agencies of the Farm Credit Administration which is assisting farmers. Other agencies are represented by Production Credit Commissioner, Cooperative Bank Commissioner, and Emergency Crop and Feed Loan.

have always remembered the name of Orleans, because here it was that bodies drifted ashore from the wrecked steamer Portland, lost in the great gale of November, 1898. The late F. Ernest Holman was doing Associated Press work in Massachusetts at the time, and I vividly recall the stories he told me of his gruesome work on the corpse-strewn shore at Orleans.

Wrecking Crews Busy

They sell fresh clams in the wayside stands on Cape Cod just like they do on the road from Belfast to Bangor. Again I ask, is the clam supply indestructible.

We passed through Eastham and I tried vainly to think of the name of a former Rockland resident whose home is there.

The goldenrod season appears to be at its height on the Cape.

Telephone wrecking crews are flying hither and yon. The hurricane was leaving plenty of work in its path.

The Cape has an ornithological research station near South Wellsfleet, and I'll bet a cookie Norman Leimond would have stopped the car had he been with us. He would also have observed that pine growth predominates on the Cape.

Approaching Provincetown

One moment we saw a white house with orange blinds, and the next there was a place called "Black Blind Cottage."

Wellfleet has a Blue Anchor Inn and a narrow street.

All along the line we had seen signs advertising "Beachplum Jelly." That's a new one on me, but I'll bet it's good.

In the next installment I shall describe briefly my visit to that most interesting place called Provincetown where the streets are so narrow you don't enter them if there happens to be a cat coming from the opposite direction.

LEMKE'S COMMENTUnion Presidential Nominee
Pays His Respects To 115
"Prima Donnas"

Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, seeking the Presidency as the Union party's candidate, said in an address Tuesday that "a vote for Roosevelt is actually a vote for Communism."

Centering his attack on the recent endorsement of the President by 115 progressive and independent political leaders meeting in Chicago, Lemke said:

"These 115 prima donnas were unanimous in their endorsement of the President. This is easy to understand, for most of them are to be found among the favored recipients of the New Deal's W.P.A. sandwiches. 'They have worked very closely with the President in a program which has given the American laboring man subsistence wages instead of real wages.'"

"Do not deceive yourself, the regimentation of the New Deal is but the opening wedge of Communism in the United States."

The Maine Publicity Bureau reports that Maine interior hotels had gained 18.7 per cent in business up to Aug. 31 as compared with last season, while seashore hostilities reported an average gain of 13.3 per cent.

"Traffic over the Carlton Bridge between Bath and Woolwich during June, July and August totaled 294,442 cars and 692,431 people, the bureau said, representing a gain of "well over 100,000 persons" during the season as compared with last year.

Editorial

In the run of a year The Courier-Gazette receives from its far-flung clientele many kindly expressions, only a fraction which appear in print because we would not like to be accused of too much blowing of our own horn. We are making a special exception today in order to show our appreciation of the very fine letter which we received Tuesday from one of the successful candidates in the recent election. The letter follows:

Camden, Sept. 22
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

I wish to express my appreciation as one of the Republican candidates in the recent election for the very excellent manner in which you presented the candidates to the county. It not only showed that you were public spirited but that you were unafraid to stand by your convictions. I could not help but think when Congressman-elect Smith at Union recalled when Knox County was strongly Democratic that a good part of the reason why the county is now so strongly Republican is due to the fact that through the years The Courier-Gazette has been a clean newspaper, standing only for those things which go to make good citizens and good government with the result that the people of Knox County cannot fail to have confidence when the paper advocates a candidate, and that a good many of its readers have come to look at things from The Courier-Gazette's viewpoint.

Adin L. Hopkins

The Courier-Gazette has a fixed policy in regard to a political campaign. First to present such principles of the Republican party as seem to be for the best interests of the community, the county and the State in which we live. Whatever editorial mention was made before the September election, and whatever was published in behalf of the fine array of Republican candidates was done from a purely voluntary standpoint, and not solicited by a single person on the ticket. Secondly it has been this paper's policy to abuse no candidate on the Democratic ticket. We may differ as to political policies, but we are all fellow citizens, interested in each other's business and spiritual welfare, and realizing that political preferment, while indispensable, is not, after all, the ultimate goal.

From a widely different source yesterday came another letter of appreciation, this time from Lakewood Theatre, with which The Courier-Gazette has always had the most pleasant associations. And so we especially appreciate what Harold L. Cail, the publicity representative wrote. Mr. Cail said:

This is to thank you for your many courtesies shown Lakewood during the now closing season. Your co-operation has made it possible for us to enjoy a thoroughly successful season, a fact to which the newspapers contribute greatly. My personal thanks for your kindness in using the material sent out by me during my weeks here and the thanks of the Lakewood management for the complete season's help. We look forward to resuming these same cordial relations in 1937.

A newspaper is a machine in one sense of the word, but it is a very human machine, and just as we often find occasion to praise others we are frankly grateful and happy when kind words are said about us.

SPLIT IN CITIES

More complete returns will be published later this week.

A young man had taken up writing poetry.

"Are your poems widely read?" a friend asked him.

"I'll say they are," he replied. "Why twenty editors have read my latest one."

LOYAL TO HAILE SELASSIE

Everett Colson, Formerly of Warren, a Delegate To League of Nations

For the first time since the League of Nations was formed 17 years ago an American is sitting in its assembly as an official delegate.

Everett Andrews Colson, a soft-spoken elderly Maine Yankee, is casting Ethiopia's votes at the current session of the assembly after postponement of a move to oust that nation.

Behind-the-scenes history of the Italo-Ethiopian war reveals Colson as one of the most striking personalities.

ties of the whole strange conflict. He has been the nearest and most valued advisor of Emperor Haile Selassie in the hours of his greatest need.

The American, afflicted by a dangerous heart ailment, is again risking his life for the Emperor by leaving a German cure for the Geneva sessions just as he did by staying in Addis Ababa's high altitude during the war, against doctor's orders.

The Italo-Ethiopian conflict thrust Colson in roles strange for him—diplomat, news dispenser and censor, writer of speeches and messages of state and half a dozen other varied duties. He went to the Black Empire nearly seven years ago as a financial advisor after serving in a similar capacity in Haiti and the Philippines.

Colson and his charming white-haired wife from North Carolina, were looked upon almost as gods by natives in Ethiopia. They overcame the fears of many Ethiopians for the American hospital, and the poorest beggars would be heard patiently if in trouble and aided if aid was merited.

Even to grizzled adventurers and war correspondents who swarmed into Ethiopia during the war, the Colsons were "father" and "mother."

Every day Mrs. Colson gave a tea with real American cake on the terrace of their little tin-roof bungalow in Addis Ababa. Aflators seeking jobs, newspapermen and Red Cross workers seeking news or permits to enter the interior flocked to the bungalow situated in the midst of native straw-thatched huts.

It was not always business that they discussed. A dyed-in-the-wool Maine Republican, Colson entered with zest in American political discussions when the first rumblings of this year's campaign came to Africa. His wife, true to her "Solid South" Democratic upbringing, was a model of tact.

Real American Southern chicken dinners at their home were often a welcome relief to Americans from the greasy hotel meals and strange foreign foods.

Colson often literally risked his own neck to give out news he felt should be published, although it angered many Ethiopian chieftains. There was never a request, no matter how extravagant, which the foreign correspondents and photographers made that Colson did not try to fulfill. He often succeeded.

Colson took over the work of four advisors when the war started, although himself in poor health.

Important pronouncements by the Emperor and official correspondence to the league, which many neutral observers have since praised for their shrewdness, restraint and clarity, were the anonymous handiwork of Colson.

Last January when Colson was about to board an Ethiopian plane at Dessie, then the Emperor's quarters, an Italian bombing plane suddenly appeared. Colson ran up a steep hillside to shelter in a machine gun nest. From that day on his heart became increasingly troublesome. Twice he went to Bishofia, a lake resort a thousand feet lower than Addis Ababa, to seek relief. Mrs. Colson shook her head.

"He went down there to rest but I couldn't get him away from his typewriter," she said. "He wrote 100 letters during one week's stay."

Colson finally broke down so badly that a doctor had to take him to the coast shortly before the Italians entered Addis Ababa.

He remained in Alexandria, Egypt, until there was no longer any prospect of returning to Ethiopia.

THREE FINE ATHLETES

The St. Onge Trio is composed of perfectly formed athletes, who introduce an entirely new line of feats and modern gymnastics, presented in modern fashion. Joe St. Onge displays a remarkable muscular development and incidentally needs every ounce of muscle and strength to meet the strenuous strain of his arduous feats, particularly in the stunt where he performs several revolutions, winding the ropes on the rings around his arms in a gymnastic climb to the top of his rigging.

The St. Onge Trio has long been accredited with being top-notchers in their particular line, and have been engaged to appear at the North Knox Fair, Union, Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1, where they will be one of the features on the free attraction program in front of the grandstand, afternoons and evenings.

THE SAUNTERER

A. B. Crocker

As Sunday opened bright and fair, I resumed my saunterings to old Cambridge and parked myself on the Common to watch the world go by. I walked across the Common and at the junction of an intersecting walk, a man said to me, "Are you acquainted in Cambridge?"

"Somewhat," I replied, "I have been walking around here for a number of years."

"You can then probably direct me to the home of the late Prof. Charles Eliot Norton."

The Saunterer flunked on question number one. "No, I cannot. Had you asked me to direct you to the Longfellow or Lowell home, Christ Church or where Gen. Knox turned the cannon over to Gen. Washington in '76, I could have told you, but I do not know where Prof. Norton lived."

As the man wore a crimson tie, I asked, "What was your year at Harvard?" He told me 1896, after which the conversation became general and I learned that he had been interested in aviation from its start. He was on the National Aviation Committee and said that he knew Capt. W. H. Wincapaw and of his Christmas flights to the lighthouses.

"Like ships that pass in the night and speak to each other in passing," so we met and spoke, but before we parted he handed me a pamphlet which he autographed. Here are some excerpts from it: "I compete with time. I annihilate distance. I bring nations together. I awaken the world. I speed up trade. I save the tick. I bring succor to the needy. I rescue the marooned. My heart throbs beats the pulse of the world. I am flight!"—By Augustus Post.

Drill Sergeant—"Now, my lad, you've been on this square for three weeks, and what have you learnt?" Recruit (utterly fed up)—"The reason why I should not be afraid to die, sergeant."

A RESONANT LAD

A story comes out of England that there is a seven-year-old boy in Lancashire who, when he is asleep, acts as a sounding board or "human echo" for any noise that is produced in his immediate vicinity. Tap on the wall, in the room where the lad is sleeping, and for every knock a noise will emanate from his tummy, so they say; but it stops if anyone is touching any part of his body.

At first his folks and the neighbors thought this queer business was the work of spooks and hobgoblins, and they didn't like it much. Now the doctors are investigating the matter, and while they aren't yet prepared to say just how it comes about, they feel sure that the whole uncanny thing is strictly physiologic and this opinion has calmed the excitement of merry villagers.

$14,000 a Minute

As a spendthrift the Roosevelt administration has set a pace no other nation has ever equaled. It spends $14,000 each minute of the day and night; $840,000 each hour of each day, and $20,160,000 every day of the year. The taxpayers, and that means all of us, must pay it.

WARNING!

The major grain and food producing regions of the nation have been ravaged by prolonged droughts . . . and scarcity has already caused an advance in prices of canned vegetables, canned fruits, canned meats and products of grain. Still further advances are anticipated and are virtually inevitable. Thrifty shoppers will garner a golden harvest of substantial savings by stocking up immediately.

Eastbound trains arrive in Rockland at 10.25 a. m., 2.50 p. m. and 9.35 p. m., weekdays, the Sunday train arriving at 10 a. m.

Unique in the long list of entertainment features of the Rockland Lions Club was yesterday's talk by Past President Frank H. Ingraham, who spoke on "What's In a Name?"

He gave a very interesting outline of how Christian names and surnames have their origin, the latter not coming into vogue until adopted by the Scottish people in the 12th century. Intimately acquainted with all of his fellow members of the Rockland Lions Club, Mr. Ingraham made excellent use of his ready wit and keen powers of observation, with the result that many a laugh mingled with the interesting and valuable information which he imparted during the lecture. Visitors yesterday were King Lion William E. Berger and Lion Crockett of the Camden-Rockport Club.

The Knox County Teachers' Convention will be held in this city Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The case against T. J. Foley, alleging assault upon Mrs. Regina Winchenbaugh collapsed in Municipal Court Tuesday and Mr. Foley was discharged.

L. K. Blackington furnished bail in the sum of $1000 Tuesday after being held by Judge Dwinall on the charge of improper conduct. Blackington pleaded "not guilty."

Edward F. Trefz of California, representative of the National Townsend headquarters, will address the local Townsend Club at K. P. hall Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Public invited.

Pleasant Valley Grange will observe Booster Night Sept. 30 at 7.30. This is a nationwide Grange event and all Granges who can will do so. An invitation is extended to all who care to meet real Grange folks and get an understanding of what the Grange really is. All past officers will be honor guests, and present officers are requested to attend next Tuesday's meeting as there is a great deal of important work. This is a community affair. There will be an entertainment and an evening of social enjoyment.

Ted Perry, parcel deliveryman for the Postoffice, has a way with dogs. He toted mail 17 years on the South-end route and every canine in that district knew him by his first name. Although he had long been absent from the Northend Zone and had no acquaintance with the pups there, recent visits have convinced everyone that he has the open sesame to their affections. Dogs which have frowned upon the mail men, the grocersmen and all other men, will eat out of Ted's hand while neighbors look on in amazement.

Mrs. John H. Flanagan, vice chairman, Mrs. D. L. McCarty, chairman of the Nursing Activities committee, Mrs. Kenneth R. Spear, secretary, and Miss Jane Miller, life saving instructor and examiner of the Knox County Chapter, American Red Cross, attended the Regional Conference for Maine Chapters at the Penobscot Valley Country Club at Orono yesterday. The principal speakers were Richard Allen and Walter Davidson, manager and assistant manager of the Eastern Area at National Headquarters, Washington, D. C. with President Arthur A. Hauck of University of Maine giving the luncheon address before more than 250 delegates.

SCANDINAVIA WARM BACK IN STONE AGE

More than thirty settlements of human beings dating from the Stone Age, or about the year 3000 B. C., have been unearthed in Swedish Lapland by Kurt Timmberg, a Stockholm archaeologist. In a few months he has gathered some three thousand flint tools, weapons, and utensils, said to be the most northerly ever found in Sweden.

According to Mr. Timmberg, researches show that the climate of Scandinavia in those distant days was warmer than now. To support his theory he points to recent finds indicating that grapes grew wild in Sweden more than four thousand years ago.

THE LIMIT AT COLBY

Students from 14 counties in Maine are among the freshmen enrolled at Colby College this week. The new students number 180, as many as can be admitted under the regulation which limits the total enrollment at Colby to 600. The freshmen come from nine states and two foreign countries, with about 60% hailing from Maine. Colby begins its 119th academic year with the largest faculty in its history. Numbering 49, there is one teacher for about every 12 students. Among the new students is Isabel Cox Abbott, Union.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Millard H. Watts who passed away Sept. 20, 1933.
Shall we meet with, our loved one,
That was torn from our embrace?
Shall we listen to his voice,
And behold him face to face—
Him the cherished and the longed for,
Whose grave is moist with tears,
And whose absence made life weary,
Through the dark and lonely years,
Sadly missed by father, mother, brother and sisters.

WALDOBORO

Roger Miller has resumed his studies at Hebron Academy.

Mrs. Cora Nash, who passed the summer at Butter Point, has returned. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Jeness of Newport, N. H., are her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cooney and family have closed their summer home 'The Meadows' and returned to Brooklyn, N. Y.

Work is progressing rapidly on the Waldo Theatre. The Colonial pillars and landscape gardening add much to the beauty of the structure and surroundings.

Choral Club Musicales

The annual concert of the Lincoln County Choral Club given in the Baptist Church Monday night was well patronized and much enjoyed. John Heiser of Boston and Medomak was the director and Miss Mary Harding of Head Tide, accompanist. Mr. Heiser is to be commended for his work with the chorus and his generosity in giving the proceeds to the Lincoln Home, the Memorial Hospital and the local library. The chancel was decorated with baskets of red gladioli.

A fine program was presented by the large chorus and the group of songs by the Jefferson CCC boys under the direction of Arthur W. Turner with Mrs. Turner at the piano were much enjoyed. The solos by Mrs. Annie Laurie Heiser called forth a round of applause to which she graciously responded with the local favorite, "Annie Laurie." Mrs. Hope Heiser Pipe after giving three piano selections finished with a request number, "The Music Box." This stimulation of a little music box given so cleverly by Mrs. Pipe was heartily received. The absence of Mrs. Nettie Nicholson, who, on account of illness, was unable to sing the obligato, was regretted as all enjoy her beautiful voice.

The program: "Sunset," Coorne, and "Over the Foaming Waves," Wilson, chorus; "God Touches the Rose," Brown, and "Nocturne," Curran, by Annie Laurie Heiser; "Old Folks Medley," Sheridan, and "Swing Along," Cook, chorus; Chopin, "Etude No. 2" and "Etude, No. 3," by Hope Heiser Pipe; "Unfold ye Portals," Gounod, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," Bach, and "Prayer of Thanksgiving," Kresmer, by the Class in Group Music; "Still as the Night," Bohm, and "Greeting to Spring," Strauss-Lichter by the chorus.

TIMELY HELPS for the HOMEMAKER

"Perky crispness" is characteristic of much of this year's clothing for women, says Miss Helen C. Spaulding, Extension clothing specialist, University of Maine, and calls for special care in laundering. Dresses, neck-wear, hats, have to stand up and out pretty independently these days. The launderable ones need a little help after a few washings. Some form of stiffener must be used. For the dresses and hats starch will usually be satisfactory. This should be boiled and strained. It is best to use rather thin starch as crispness with no suggestion of rigidity is wanted.

Fragile neck-wear, frills and jabots of batiste or organdy and flaring cuffs or lace gloves need a sizing with less thickness than starch. For these a stock solution of gelatin, gum arabic, or gum tragacanth may be into the horizon we got our last sight of land until a week from the following Thursday. South by east we steamed along throughout the night and reached the northern end of Georges before noon Tuesday. A heavy swell had tossed the boat around continually.

OUT IN THE "FOG FACTORY"

This bank is about 200 miles long and from 80 to 120 miles wide. The draggers must fish around the edges in order to get the right depth of water for their work and suitable bottom for scallops. Across the bank, sighting occasional beam trawlers, sword fishermen and steamships we proceeded and reached the southern edge, the fishing grounds, just before dark. Running steadily 24 hours a day, two other boats were already there. The fleet of about 50 boats was trying new grounds to the westward.

There was a bustle of activity on board. Work was to proceed immediately. The drags were prepared and the equipment put in place. A heavy swell was rolling the rails under and it was practically impossible for a landlubber to stand on deck, yet that didn't matter for if these brave men would wait for calm seas they would do but little fishing.

Two drags were used. They consisted of an iron framework 12 feet long and two feet deep with a netting bag of twine and iron links attached and were let down to bottom and dragged along by a one half inch wire cable about 170 fathoms long. Each weighed several hundred pounds and was handled by a powerful hoist attached to the main engine. "Port" ordered the skipper and overboard went the drag. "Starboard" and then the other was pushed over. Down, down to bottom they went the wench whining and the wire humming as it raced through the davit pulley. Shortly the momentum of the boat was lessened and the drags went into operation.

For 30 minutes they were pulled along the bottom in their relentless harvest of everything in their way. Capt. Carver blew a whistle and wenchman "Snip" Manning took them up. Slowly they came to the surface, first the port and then the starboard. They were taken aboard filled to the brim with shells of all descriptions, quahaugs, conchies, sea cucumbers, coral fish, lobsters, sponge and coral formations and hundreds of other articles. A bottle from some passing liner, a plate, a menu from the "Paris" and other interesting things. Most important of all there were scallops, about five bushels to a drag. The net lines were pulled and the contents dumped on deck. Tied again the drags were pushed over for the next drag.

The men then started the back-breaking work of digging by hand in this varied pile for the scallops. Four on a side they worked. The scallops were thrown in bushel baskets and the remainder of the catch shoveled back overboard. In poor fishing about one bushel of scallops is obtained from every ten bushels of "rubbish," this fact in itself being a good example of the hard work involved in the picking operation.

The deck is again clean and the scallops dumped into the shucking bins. With hands moving at lightning speed the men remove the edible abductor muscle and throw the rest overboard. A very small percentage of the scallop is edible, the part used resembling the sweetmeat in a clam only much larger. This muscle is used to open and close the shell which is practically the only weapon for defense, locomotion and livelihood that the scallop has.

The shucking motions are few. First the knife is pushed between the shells cutting the abductor from the upper shell. It is quickly inserted under the "rim" or the remaining parts of the anatomy and they are flicked overboard. Another motion removes the abductor completely from the shell and it is dropped into a 12 quart bucket. A fast shucker can do 8 to 10 gallons an hour. By the time the last of the catch is shucked the drags are up again and it's the same old story. The men worked until 11 o'clock under floodlights.

The day's catch has been placed in tubs and must be iced before the tired men can go to their bunks. First the scallops are washed and then placed in bags, each holding about four gallons. Securely fastened they are put below and buried in ice. In this manner they will keep fresh for many days.

Below the men go to the small, uncomfortable forecastle. It is time to "grub up" and turn in. After a few hours sleep of questionable comfort in very narrow bunks and the regular slumber-disturbing watches they are aroused early for another day and more long hours of the hardest kind of labor.

Let's follow through a day on the Madeline and Flora. All hands on deck at 5 sharp and the drags go down. Breakfast at 7 with the men eating in shifts. Throughout the morning in fair weather or foul the work goes on. A quick lunch at noon. More fishing in the afternoon. Eat again at 6. Darkness comes on and the decks are flooded with light. Eleven comes and to the bunks. Throughout the night watches must be maintained on deck. The men take turns 45 minutes each throughout the night. Then the same old story. This goes on for eight to ten days in a stretch. Seldom a chance to rest or to relax. Ashore two days and then the same thing over and over.

Most boats work a different schedule. Aboard the Louis A. Thebaud with Capt. Lew Wallace and his crew. Arrive at the banks at noon. Work starts immediately. The men work on a twenty four hour schedule. Two hours below and six hours on deck. After eight days this gets wearisome and the men are at the point of exhaustion. Yet they carry on and it's time to head for port.

The first part of the trip is most dreaded as it means the location of good fishing grounds. Sometimes the boats hunt for two or three days before striking a good bed. This means the hardest kind of work as it is no fun picking over 20 bushels of "rubbish" to get one bushel of scallops. As soon as a bed is found a buoy is set. The boat then fishes from the buoy as this is the only way to keep in one place off Georges. The tides are very heavy and fickle and due to the absence of other markers of land it is impossible to keep on a location without something to go by.

The season on Georges starts in early May and lasts until October 1st. During the summer it is reasonably comfortable off there but September is a bad month. Anything can happen. The fall gales are due. Georges Bank is one of the roughest places in the North Atlantic. The boats take a terrible "brushing." Giant seas sometimes sweep the decks clear of everything. It is often necessary to stay below for 60 hours in a stretch while the tiny boat is buffeted around at an alarming degree.

The men share on an average of about $80 a trip and usually go 12 trips a season. They are out of sight of land about 80 per cent of the time during the summer. A thousand dollars for five months work may seem like good pay but if they got three times that much they wouldn't be overpaid. Again, what are they going to do the rest of the year. Most of them job around or go on boats in the winter, when it is really bad and make a bare living. Considering the time they put in, the danger and the discomforts it is a tough old life.

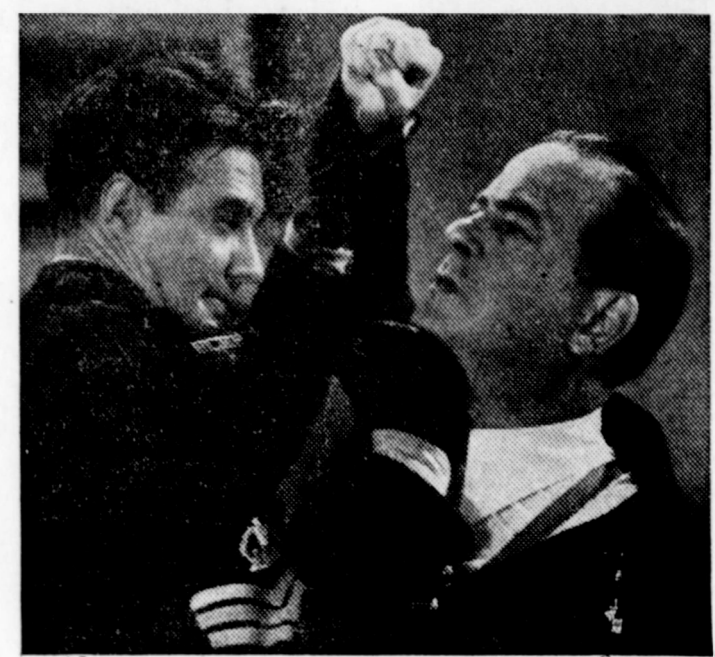

The worst fear of the crew is a "broker." That means no shore. The trip is landed and first of all the boat takes out 40% for its share. Then expenses are taken care of and then the men get theirs if there is anything left. Let's suppose it is a poor trip. We'll say the price is down to $120 and only 400 gallons are brought in. The stock is $480. The boat takes $192. The expenses run about $250 a trip. That leaves about $50 to split up nine ways or a little over $5 to a man. The average trip is about 1100 gallons on the nine men boats. The price will average about $1.35. The stock will run about $1500. The boat will get $600. Expenses about $250 leaves $650 to divide nine ways or $72 a man. This is regarded as a good trip.

One of the most disagreeable parts of the life on the bank is that the boats are never still. When the seas aren't running high there is a swell. The boats are eternally pitching and rolling. It is most upsetting and many men who have been to sea for years get that queasy feeling that means only one thing. Thank Providence that I am not affected with this indescribable illness at sea.

Fog is one of the chief causes of worry. The fishing grounds are directly in the trans-Atlantic steamship lane and it is seldom that at least a half dozen freighters and liners aren't sighted every 24 hours. Sometimes a dozen or more pass by and dangerously close. The boats lay at anchor every night or fish and in the fog, the danger of being rammed is great. Many beam trawlers are also fishing in the vicinity of the scallop beds and make plenty of trouble for the smaller boats.

I stood a watch in the fog one night and got a good realization of the danger. It was nearly 2 in the morning. The swells were running high and it was an inky darkness and very weird and lonely. The thrashing around of the boat was noisy and suddenly I heard a harsh whistle. A liner was bearing down dangerously near us. I awakened the skipper and the engineer and we got underway. Out of the night she came, a great mass of steel, lighted up like a hotel and traveling at an alarming rate of speed.

STRAND THEATRE

If the late Willard Mack, dean of Broadway authors and producers, could come back to earth to attend the opening of "I'd Give My Life" next Saturday at the Strand Theatre, this reviewer, for one, feels sure that he would beam with fond paternal pride.

During the early days of talking pictures, when most Broadwayites were loud in condemnation of the films, Mack was one of the very few stellar lights of Broadway who held that films and the legitimate stage are inseparably bound up—and he proved it by urging all playwrights to work out cinema versions of their plays.

"I'd Give My Life" shows that he was right. The picture, a thriller that is bound to appeal to every type of audience, was adapted for the films from "The Noose," one of the most successful plays which Willard Mack ever produced, which Mack wrote in collaboration with H. H. Van Loan. The picture deals with the adventures of a rocketbusting Governor, anxious to clean up his state, who sends his own wife's son to the gallows. The boy, determined to do what he considers right, refuses to reveal his identity, fearing the effect of scandal on his mother—adv.

EAST APPLETON

Farmers are busy hauling their sweet corn to the Union factory.

A light frost here damaged the garden somewhat, but nearly all produce is harvested.

The High School principal Mr. Darroch has rooms at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hall.

Many springs and wells are dry here. Rain is needed before the ground freezes.

Signs of fall are apparent. No summer ever finds people quite resigned to see its glories depart and give place to dying verdure and bare, leafless trees.

Colds are prevalent around town.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvah E. Ames and family accompanied by Mr. Ames' mother Mrs. Mary Ames were callers Sunday on friends in Oakland and held a picnic dinner at Morse's Point, Oakland.

Agriculture

A. W. Sherman of Union finds that by applying lime and superphosphate to oats seeded he is able to obtain a much better stand. He carried a plot in connection with Agricultural Conservation. His area was checked recently by Harold Allen of Hope, county supervisor.

Plans are being made among the dairymen of Knox-Lincoln county to organize a Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Meeting will be held Oct. 15 at 7:30 p. m., at the North New-castle Grange hall. Donald Corbett assistant dairy specialist, will be present to explain the organization. All dairymen interested should plan to attend. There are at present 10 associations in the State.

Henry Kontio, manager of the State of Maine Blueberry Growers' Association, reports that the association did not handle as many berries this year as usual due to the small crop, but the returns to the men were much better. The Association has been putting up a very good quality berry, which demands the top price.

A survey is being conducted by the Extension Service on "Care of Manure." It is surprising how many men do not have even a cover over their manure pile. Many put it outside the barn under the eaves where the rain from the roof washes away a large per cent of the valuable material.

Wallace Robbins and Clifton Robbins, Hope, have a very good crop of apples this year. The young trees that were set out this spring have done very well with little loss.

Henry Kontio of West Rockport has set his blueberry trap for next year. Notices will be sent all blueberry growers by the Extension Service when the first flies appear next June.

Many favorable reports are being received in connection with the membership campaign. Mrs. John Gardner of Rockland, manager of the Rockland, Rockport, South Thomaston, and Tenant's Harbor district, says there will be more members

WHERE THE HEN RANKS

The poultry industry in Maine ranks third in importance as a cash income enterprise.

The 1935 census credits Maine with 1,518,665 chickens three months old or over, or 18 percent of all poultry in New England.

These birds require 136,679,000 pounds of grain annually, nearly all of which is purchased.

During 1934 Maine poultry flocks produced 12,844,018 dozen eggs which were marketed in the State's numerous industrial centers, summer resorts, and to tourist trade.

Last year Maine shipped 41,987 cases of eggs and 136,842 pounds of dressed poultry to the Boston market.

For the year ending Oct. 31, 1935, 138 Maine poultrymen who completed cost account records received for their labor an average of $2.41 per bird.

Maine produces annually a total of more than five million dollars worth of poultry products.

Dairy and general purpose barns made into laying houses are a common sight to travelers on Maine's highways.

in Rockland than last year, as she already has several new ones.

Henry Keller and Henry Kontio, West Rockport, also have several new members in mind.

Plans are being made for a meeting of all district managers Oct. 13 at Stahl's Tavern, Waldoboro. At this same time there will be a meeting of the committee that will nominate a Farm Bureau Executive Board for 1937.

With The Homes

At the membership campaign committee meetings held last week the following women were appointed as solicitors to secure the Farm Bureau membership for their communities: Burketville: Mrs. Gladys Linscott, Mrs. Mattie Light, Mrs. Ruby Hannan; Rockland: Mrs. Ethel Connors, Mrs. Eunice Morse, Mrs. Mattie Gardner, Mrs. Katherine St. Clair; Simonton: Mrs. John Buzzell, Mrs. Guy Annis, Mrs. Sarah Marcello; So. Thomaston: Mrs. Louisa Allen, Mrs. Annie Dennison, Mrs. Victoria Clements, Mrs. Ruth Brown, Mrs. Grace Godfrey.

Mrs. Sarah Marcello is the first to pay her membership in Simonton community.

Miss Lawrence, home demonstration agent, will hold committee meetings next week, Monday, in Friendship at Mrs. Melvin Lawry's home at 10 a. m., and Orr's Corner at Mrs. Vellis Weaver's at 1:30 p. m.; Tuesday, Sept. 29, Tenant's Harbor at Mrs. Gertrude Hupper's home at 1:30 p. m.

Home laundry meetings are scheduled with Miss Lawrence for Thursday, Oct. 1, at Tenant's Harbor at Mrs. Gertrude Hupper's home. Mrs. Mildred Pierson and Mrs. Frank Crockett are on the dinner committee; Friday, Oct. 2, at Bristol at the church vestry. Mrs. Annie Winslow and Mrs. Florence Prentice are in charge of dinner arrangements.

4-H Club Notes

The Singing Sewing club of West Rockport served a baked bean supper Sept. 17 with parents, friends and club members present. After the supper, the local contest was held with 70 people including club members present. The program included stories, solos, duets, and a play "Making Over of Sack" by the club members. Each club member completed her year's 4-H club work making a 100% finish. Nine girls enrolled for 1937, each being awarded with a 4-H felt sweater emblem. Mrs. Henry Keller is the local leader, this being her second year and she has completed both years 100%.

Irvin Spear

A wave of sorrow swept over this community last Thursday when it became known that Irvin, the nine-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Spear, had died as the result of burns received Sept. 4.

He was an exceptionally bright smart little fellow, with a ready smile and his quick retorts and quaint sayings were often repeated by old and young. His untimely death, brings to the grief-stricken family the sympathy of many friends.

Survivors are his father, mother and two sisters. Services were held at the home Sunday conducted by Rev. Hubert Leach of Thomaston. Burial was in the cemetery in this place amid an abundance of floral tributes from relatives and friends. The bearers were Wilbur Harper, Lloyd Maxcy, Leland Overlock and Joseph Robinson, Jr.

DREAMS OF CHILDHOOD

(For The Courier-Gazette)
There is something that seems to be calling me back,
For e'er slumber shall fasten its chains
My dreams take me back to the sweet long ago.

And I live as a child again.
The old house is down and the cellar filled in,
In my dreams I can see it still there;
Though the years have been many,
Everything is unchanged—
Every room, every table and chair.

I can see the old barn with its low hanging eaves,
Where I played in the sweet, fragrant hay;
The path through the field to grandmother's house,
Where my feet so often would stray.

The pond by the shore where my boats I would sail,
And laugh in my childish glee;
The well by the gate, the tangled hop vine,
My playhouse and old spruce tree.

In my dreams there's the room where I used to sleep,
Tucked away at the head of the stairs,
So tired and sleepy at close of day,
Almost too tired for prayers.

I can see the old chair where mother would rock,
When the winter beat round us and blew,
Where, soothing my fears of the storm,
She would sing.

"He will carry you through."
I can see all the things that to me were so dear,
Hear the music the brooks used to make,
I awake from my dream, the scenes are all gone—
In my heart a longing and ache.

How often, so often, in years that have gone,
When the winds of life blustered and blew,
Have I longed for the faith of which mother sang,
"He will carry you through."

Some time I am going to wander back,
Though my loved ones have all gone away;
I shall visit the spot that is haunting me so,
And again be a child for a day.

Several mishaps occurred during the weekend. Donald Greenlaw, standing by when a companion discharged an air rifle, was hit in the corner of his eye by a rebounding shot. A severe hemorrhage necessitated treatment at Knox Hospital where it was learned that the sight is not impaired and recovery may be expected within a few days.

Estelle Crockett sustained a broken ankle Sunday, hospital x-ray revealing a double fracture. A third accident befell Harry Whitmore who slipped from a truck and suffered several bruises and scratches. He was treated by Dr. Woodman. The injuries, thought not serious, have been painful.

Silver Wedding Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Duncan celebrated Saturday night at Nebo Lodge the 25th anniversary of their marriage which was solemnized Sept. 20, 1911 in this town by Rev. A. M. Watts. For the occasion the large recreation room of the Lodge was decorated with evergreen over the fire-place and in big silver letters, 25th standing out in bold relief. There were flowers in abundance. A sister of the groom bridesmaid of 25 years ago, was present, Miss Fostie Duncan; also Chester Dyer who was the best man when the ceremony was performed at the Baptist parsonage.

Present also were Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Grant whose marriage took place on the same date. Other than these special guests, the company of 45 was limited to the families of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan. Coming from Newton Center, Mass., were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Parsons with their son, bringing with them a beautiful three-layer wedding cake weighing 14 pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Duncan were the recipients of many remembrances and gifts, as were also Mr. and Mrs. Grant. A collation was served during the evening. Music was enjoyed and games played.

Mrs. Carrie Parsons arranged the room and decorations.

A surprise visit from Mr. and Mrs. Duncan's daughter Phyllis of Newark lent additional joy to the celebration. Both couples have the best wishes of residents here with the hope that when another 25 years have rolled by they may be together again for the golden jubilee.

SUNSHINE

Frank Thompson

Residents here were greatly saddened Sept. 15 by the death of Frank Thompson which occurred at his home here after a lingering illness, during which he was tenderly cared for by his wife. Mr. Thompson was born in this community 63 years ago, son of the late James and Lydia Thompson. The greater part of his life was spent on this island where he will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Funeral services were held last Thursday from the residence, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Elliott Bodwell. The profusion of beautiful flowers gave evidence of love and regret on the part of friends and relatives. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

Mr. Thompson is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Robbins of this place and Mrs. Blanche Eaton of Rockland; a brother, Alden Thompson; five grandchildren, Clara, Alma, Ellsroy, Cecil and Josephine Robbins; three nephews, Harold, Wallace and Merrill Thompson; one niece, Emily Thompson, all of this place.

OUT IN THE "FOG FACTORY"

It was the Queen Mary bound west and she passed within 100 yards of us. Through the fog she presented an eerie spectacle.

Georges is known as the "fog factory" of the North Atlantic and it is seldom that a day passes without fog shutting in at some period.

We were cooped up below during an 18 hour blow and that was no fun. Everything was fastened down securely to ride out the gale. For all those hours we were on a roller coaster. Breath taking dives, frightful pitches and rolls, the thunder of heavy seas breaking over the deck and we below, our lives entirely dependent upon the durability of the boat, which resembled a chip of wood in a hurricane.

Those Georges draggers are built for endurance and ride out a gale when many liners would founder. They represent an investment of about $25,000 and the average of those lost is very small.

After six days on the Madeline and Flora, I transferred to the Louis A. Thebaud by dory, in heavy seas, for the trip home to port. We left at 3:30 Saturday morning and was due to arrive in Rockland about 11 o'clock Sunday.

The trip across the bank was uneventful but the sky looked ominous. It was late in the afternoon when a heavy southeaster hit us and we hurried along with the mountainous seas and strong winds on our tail. At midnight it was blowing a gale and was really a frightful sight. Seas higher than the mast threatened to break over the boat but we rode them successfully.

When it looked the worst I went to the pilot house with Capt. Wallace and watched the spectacle. Around two o'clock, he shut the engine off and announced that he was going to "turn in" and let her drift. The best way to handle a fishing boat in a gale is to let her take care of herself and that is what we did. All night long she rolled and thrashed in the trough of the seas, as steady and safe as an armored truck.

By morning the wind has subsided some but the seas were heavy. Under the expert guidance of Capt. Wallace, we made port, late but safe and although the boys didn't seem to mind there were many moments that night when I was in doubt as to whether or not we would reach the dock.

This goes on year in and year out. The men get our scallops and make their livings dangerously. They brave the great ocean fearlessly with everything against them. They seem resigned to their fate, trusting everything to a sturdy boat and a good skipper. It's an adventurous life and a hard life. Yes, I'd like to go off Georges in September in a scallop dragger again. Sure I would if anyone had a thousand bucks to hire me to do so.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

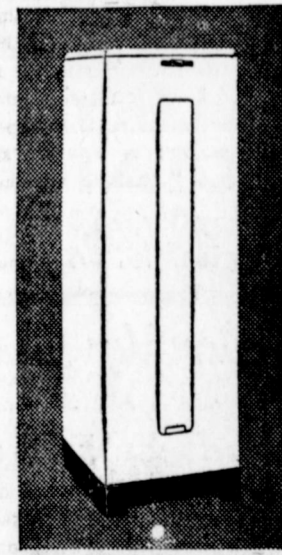

Just wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

OF BYGONE DAYS

Smacked Meeting of Sunshine Society, Celebrating 30th Anniversary

Bird Branch of the Sunshine Society met Monday at Sunshine Inn to celebrate its 30th anniversary. Past President Jeapette Dunton being in charge of the session. Opening exercises consisted of unison recital of the society's motto and a portion of the 19th Psalm, after which reports were given relative to work among the ill and shut-ins. Each member is a committee of one to lend kindly assistance or take flowers and fruit to the ailing and aged, 40 such cases having attention this year.

Five quilts for the needy will be completed at the meeting Monday, and plans for a busy winter are in the making.

Costumes of bygone days were matched with olden manners at the supper hour when 36 members bore the sedate mien so fashionable in grandmother's day. A huge birthday cake presented by Mrs. Flora Ulmer formed an ideal centerpiece for the attractively arranged table, gladioli and zinnias furnished by Hazel Achorn and Allie Achorn forming a tasteful setting. Mrs. Miles' fish chowder won many a bouquet of its own for tasty flavor and appetizing fixins.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pendleton supplied an appealing number on the evening program in the singing of "Memories." Mrs. Jennie Wilson gave an enlightening talk on her work with needy children and Mrs. Ellen Dyer spoke briefly. Girlhood days were revived in the remarks of Mrs. Rebecca Ingraham who referred to the old school house on the Point and the drastic changes which have occurred since. A letter was read from Mrs. Ufford, the third oldest president of the organization, and Past President Minnie Miles, who served the order five years, also addressed the club.

Hymnal selections in chorus were the concluding notes of a delightful gathering.

The regular program of the Sunshine Society had several pleasant additions, notably the music on harp and harmonica by Ada Martin. Two out-of-State guests were present, Mrs. Effie Bishop Gulaker of Medford, Mass., a former Rockland resident, and Mrs. Cora Kallach of Malden, Mass., a charter member of Bird Branch. Much merriment was caused by the unexpected appearance of a strange young man who turned out to be a valued friend. A cheery word of encouragement for the work of the society was received from a former president, Mrs. Luile J. Ufford of Union.

The court was silent except for the clear-cut tones of defending counsel. Everyone hung on his words, and many thought that he would easily win his case.

"And now, gentlemen of the jury," he began to wind up, "I ask you—Where could the prisoner have hidden the watch? Not in his pocket. The constable has already told you that the man was searched. Not in his shoes—the watch was too large. Then where was it hidden?"

He paused dramatically for effect, and during the pause the prisoner ventured.

"Please sir, I put it under my 'at.'—Montreal Star.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Home Service Department
Central Maine Power Co.

When it comes to culinary magic, you can do more slight-of-hand tricks with bread than any other pantry supply. Extra guests for dinner, a left-over bit of expensive foodstuff, a commonplace menu: You put your hand in the bread box and presto, out comes a handsome entree, a beautiful dessert, or a "how-did-you-make-it" specialty that will please the eye and excite exclamations of wonder.

This sort of hocus pocus is no make believe, however, to the appetite and the Department of the Interior, for bread is both appetizing and nourishing and when combined with other good foodstuffs is an excellent extender of delicious flavors. Slow motion pictures are not needed to demonstrate this sort of magic, for these recipes explain everything:

Hot Sandwich for Sunday Night Supper

Meat from cooked chicken or left-over baked chicken; 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can mushrooms; 3 cups milk; 1 cup grated cheese; 1-4 pound sliced bacon; 1-2 cup flour; toasted bread.

Cut bacon into small pieces and fry a golden brown. Add flour and when well blended add hot milk and mushrooms. If fresh mushrooms are used, fry in 2 tablespoons butter. This sauce should be thicker than medium white sauce. Butter toast. Put a slice of chicken on toasted bread. Pour sauce over chicken. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Put under broiler until cheese is melted.

Baked Onions

Four large onions; 1 tablespoon butter, melted; 1 cup bread crumbs, 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1-4 teaspoon pepper; chopped onion centers; 1 small can Vienna sausages or 1-4 pound sausage.

Parboil onions. Remove centers and chop. Break sausages into small pieces and mix with crumbs, seasonings and chopped onion. Fill into onions. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 45 minutes.

Mincemeat Surprise

Toast slices of white bread on one side. Trim crusts. Spread untoasted side with hot mincemeat, allowing about two tablespoons of mincemeat for each slice. Cover with meringue made by beating two tablespoons of sugar into each stiffly beaten egg white. Brown lightly in a moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes. Serve hot.

Bread Crumb Omelet

One-half cup bread crumbs; 1-2 cup hot milk, 2 eggs, separated; 1-4 teaspoon salt; dash of pepper; 1 tablespoon butter.

Pour hot milk over bread crumbs, let stand until cool. Add beaten egg yolks, salt and pepper and beat thoroughly. Whip the whites until stiff and fold into the bread mixture. Melt the butter in a skillet. Pour the egg mixture in and brown on the bottom. Place in moderate oven (350° F.) until dry on top. Fold

Peach Topper

Six slices of bread; 6 peach halves; 2 packages creamed cheese. Cut bread with round cutter slightly larger than peach half. Toast. Whip cream cheese until fluffy. Pile lightly on toast. Place peach half in center.

Peanut Ring Mold

One cup peanuts, chopped; 4 cups bread cubes; 6 tablespoons melted butter; 1 tablespoon grated onion; 1-2 cup chopped celery, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, salt and pepper.

Dice bread into very small cubes. Beat eggs and add milk and seasoning. Toss all ingredients together and pour into a ring mold which has been well greased. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 40 minutes or until set. Turn out on warm platter and fill with creamed vegetables, meat or fish. Any "left-overs" can be used whose flavors combine harmoniously.

Cinnamon Pears

Six slices bread; 2 tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar; 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon; 1-2 teaspoon vanilla; 6 pear halves. Trim crusts from bread and toast. Cream the butter, sugar, cinnamon and vanilla together. Spread on hot toast. Place pear half on top.

GORHAM NORMAL

(By Eleanor Buck)

Members of the freshman class are undergoing the annual hazing period. Monday morning, all the girls of the class were ordered to appear at chapel with sox mismatched, different styles of footgear, dresses reversed and bright colored ribbons plaited into their hair. Before long the boys will receive their initiatory assignments at the hands of the officers of the only fraternity on the campus, Epsilon Nu Sigma.

Principal Hall, Orett Robinson and Elizabeth Sanborn of the faculty chaperoned about 40 students on the overnight trip to Great Pond Mountain on Friday afternoon. Operating on a special program to allow early dismissal on that day, the group traveled by truck and private car to the foot of the mountain. Although rain fell during the greater part of the time they were away from campus, the experience was novel and interesting to those of the entering division to whom out of door life is a new activity.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Keene of Fremont, Neb., were guests Monday of Miss Mary Bills. Mr. and Mrs. Keene have been spending some time during the late summer and early fall in and around several Maine towns in this area. Mr. Keene's father, Louis M. Keene, formerly lived in Appleton.

Miss Elizabeth Sawyer of the Crosby High School staff in Belfast was in town Sunday interviewing Principal Hall concerning the present vacancy in the English department.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harmon were guests of their daughter Susie Nason at her home on Pleasant street Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon are from Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Orett Robinson and daughter Lois motored to McKinley where they visited the family of Frank Manchester.

Mrs. Thomas Bowker of Belfast visited Miss Madeline Salisbury Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thayer and daughters Shirley and Edith of Swanville were also on campus Sunday. Mrs. Doris Nickerson Thayer graduated from Castine Normal in the class of 1915.

Helen Harding '35 of Stockton Springs and Nathalie Nason '37 of Bangor have been awarded tuition scholarships in the School of Education, University of Maine, for the current school year. They enter this week as registered members of the junior class. The scholarships were awarded particularly on the basis of an exceptionally high rating in scholarship.

Margaret McNeil, Philip Robbins, Robert Sprague, Marie Tillock, Edward Daley, Martha Harris, Marguerite Hatt, Phyllis Smart and Vernora Stinchfield have been appointed to the fall semester list of students employed under the Federal Student employment act.

Director of Training Mary B. Bills announced Monday morning the revised assignments for the members of the junior class now in training: Grades 1, 2, Vernora Stinchfield; grades 3, 4, Winifred Clisham, Mildred Morrison; grades 5, 6, Helyn Turski and Byron Eaton; grades 7, 8, Phyllis Smart, Mildred Smith.

Mrs. Florence Wilson Hawes now of Bangor presented a framed picture of the ESNS class of 1897 recently. The picture was hung at the Sandy Point Alumni Camps during the recent excursion of students. Mrs. Hawes' brother, Cyrus Wilson, was a student at the school in 1885.

SCORES BEER PARLORS

In charging a traverse jury Tuesday in the case of the State versus Cecil Bailey of Lincoln and Percy McDougall of Millinocket, charged with assault and robbery in Lincoln, Justice William H. Fisher scored what he termed "a deplorable condition in Lincoln which permitted young men, one just out of high school, to become intoxicated and roam about the streets of the town. It is an indictment against present conditions and against beer parlors, which the State allows and encourages," he said.

CAMDEN

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thurston celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary Monday night, their guests being Sandra Thurston, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stockwell, Mr. and Mrs. Hartford Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Leonard, Mrs. Edward Thurston, Mrs. May Thurston, Miss Hallie Herrick and Mrs. Jay Oliver of Rockland. The couple received many lovely gifts. During the evening, refreshments were served.

Mrs. Alarie Stone has returned to Boston after spending the summer at Mountain View farm on the Lake City road.

Leslie D. Ames is a medical patient at Community Hospital.

William Gaythwaite, manager of the Comique Theater, has returned from a vacation spent in Boston and New York city.

Mrs. Alderive Norton of Seven Hundred Acre Island is visiting relatives here.

Dr. L. F. Hart is leaving today, for Boston to enter a hospital for a major operation. He will be accompanied by his brother, Dr. W. F. Hart.

Joel Keyes Grant Circle, Ladies of the G.A.R., meets Oct. 2.

The W.C.T.U. will hold a cooked food sale at the Arau store on Main street, Saturday at 9:30.

Orion Wadsworth was in Portland this week on business.

Fred Cotta left this week for Boston to enter the Wentworth Institute.

Aubrey Heal is on a vacation from his duties at O. R. Brown's store.

The C.F.T. Seaverns have closed "Mountain Arrow" for the season and returned to Hartford.

Arthur Wentworth and Maynard Heal have employment in Belleville, N. J.

J. C. Fish is a surgical patient at Community Hospital.

Mrs. Ada Dyer is on a vacation from her duties as librarian at the Public Library. During her absence Miss Hazel Chandler, assistant librarian, is substituting, assisted by Mrs. Katherine Dow.

Mrs. Alice Pender has returned to Boston after spending the summer at the Ralph Richards house on Bay View street.

Mrs. Harry Clarke and daughters Madeline and Vera are visiting relatives in Hollis Center.

Mrs. George L. Oris has returned to New York city after spending the summer at "Norumbega" High street. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hanson are leaving today for a motor trip to Ontario, Canada and Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Clarence Fish who has been a patient at Community Hospital for several weeks, is convalescing at the home of her father, George Glaentzel in Rockport.

Camden-Rockport Lions Club met Tuesday night at Wadsworth Inn. Following the banquet Roger McGrath, state director of the Federal Housing Commission, gave a descriptive talk of the work of the department.

CUSHING

George Cooley has returned from a hasty visit to Providence.

The Helpful Club gave Kathryn Maloney a surprise party at her home Monday in commemoration of her birthday anniversary. She received many useful and pretty gifts. Cake, fudge and coffee were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery Erskine and George Tucker are in Freedom for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Libby of Rockland were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Ulmer.

H. L. Killoran has returned from the hospital in Waterville, where he underwent a surgical operation on his mouth. He is now at the home of his nephew, Prof. Carl Woodcock in Lewiston, but visits the hospital daily for dressings. His daughter Orpha, is in training there.

William McNamara is entertaining Boston relatives, as well as his cousin, Miss Mary Hanley, who has been here a few weeks.

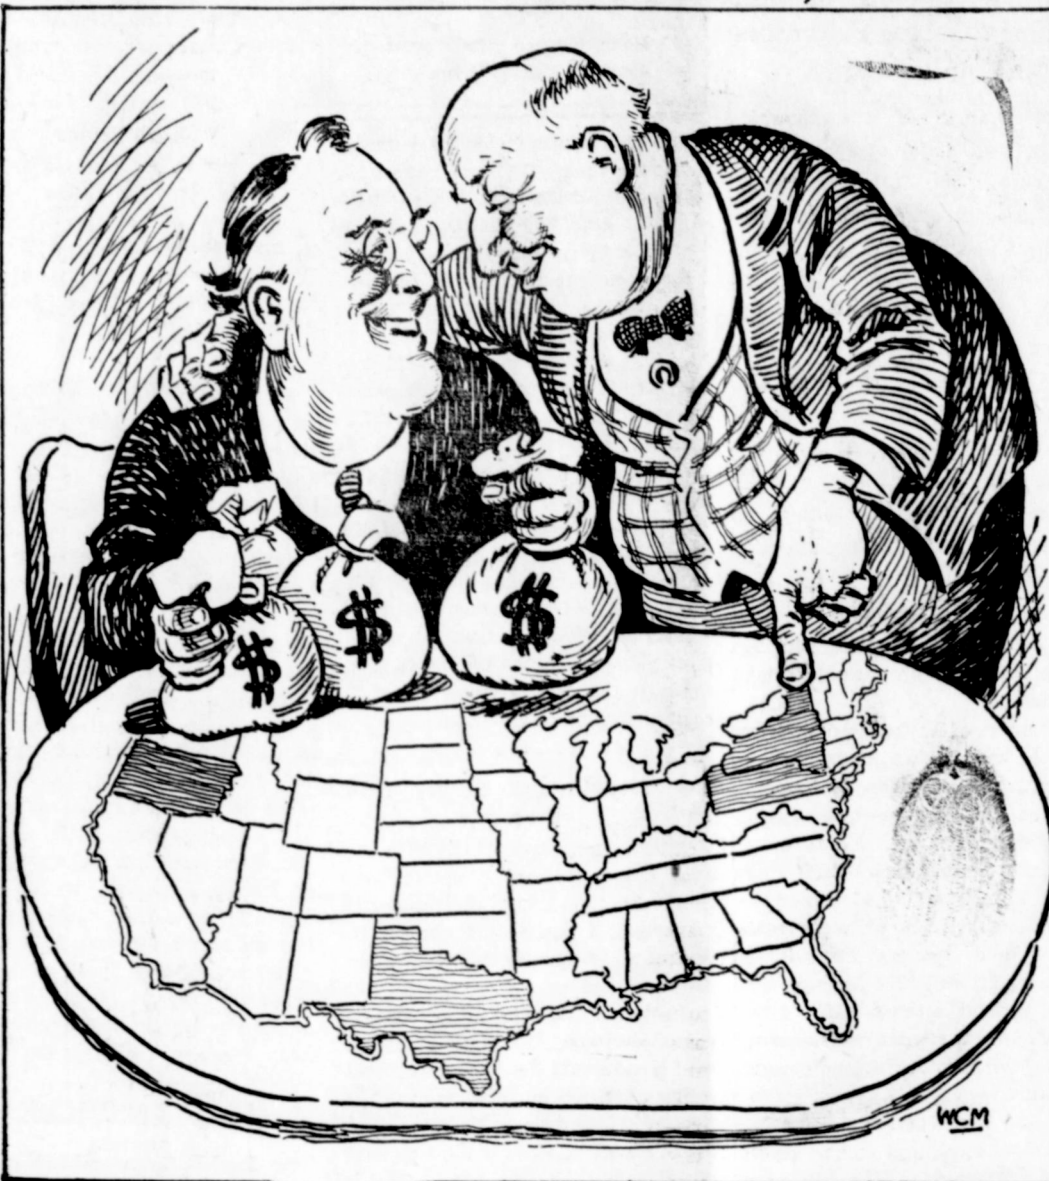

F. L. Geyer has employment carpentering in Medomak.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hoffes are receiving congratulations on the birth Tuesday of a son.

Walter—"Sir, when you eat here you do not need to dust off the plate."

Customer—"Beg pardon, force of habit. I'm an umpire."—Montreal Star.

GAMBLE ANOTHER BILLION HERE, FRANK

AMERICAN S. S. UNION

What This Organization Has Done in Maine During the Past Year

East Vassalboro, Sept. 20

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

As I look back to September of last year, I am very grateful for the privilege of travelling 8909 miles and of making 1325 visits to families in the rural districts of my field. As a result, nine new Sunday schools have been organized, five reorganized, 10 preaching stations opened, one group gathering of all Sunday schools held, one Young People's Bible Conference, 141 Bibles and Testaments distributed (besides hundreds of Gospels, tracts and other religious literature) and 22 professed conversions.

I am sure that you will be interested to know of the success of our Young People's Bible conference, this summer, at Webber Pond. In spite of circumstances which made it most imperative for many of the young people, of my Sunday school districts, to be needed on the farms, at that time of the year, we had an enrollment of 21, which was all that we could conveniently accommodate, with the counsellors and teachers. We were blessed with beautiful weather and the four days, filled with Bible studies and other camp activities, from sun-up until 9:45 in the evening went all too quickly.

We were also blessed with splendid consecrated Christian teachers and counsellors who were wonderfully used of God in moulding the spiritual lives of these young people. Before the closing day, 14 took a definite Christian stand for the first time. Six had already become Christians as a result of the work of consecrated leaders in their own Sunday School districts. After a day of special speakers and recreation to which the parents were invited, they returned home with tears in their eyes that they could not stay longer. They also returned with a determination to be of greater help in their various Sunday school communities and to interest others in planning to attend next Summer.

Many of these young people have returned to unchristian homes and are facing circumstances as only the evil one can arrange. Please pray with me that in all, they may remain steadfastly secure in the happy way that God has provided for all His children.

Henry S. Ulmer
Missionary of American Sunday-School Union.

RIVAL BROADCASTS

Al Smith and President Likely To Be On Air at Same Time.

If the schedule goes through as now indicated, President Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith are to be rival broadcasters in the same hour on the night of Oct. 1.

This became apparent when the Democratic National Committee announced it had purchased the half hour at 9 p. m., that day for the broadcast of the President's address at Pittsburgh, to be carried by both WEAP-NBC and WABC-CBS.

It was also announced that a verbal request for time at the same hour, but via WJZ-NBC network, had been made by publicity associates for former Gov. Smith's talk from Carnegie Hall in New York, under sponsorship of the Independent Coalition of American Women.

CAMDEN HILLS CAMP

A Change in Lieutenants—Many Familiar Faces Are Missing

The Sagamore, organ of the Camden Hills CCC Camp has this to say about one of the popular officers who has lately been transferred:

Sept. 3 Lieut. Bagley was transferred to duty with the 159th Co. CCC located at Patten, Maine. Lieut. Bagley's first assignment was with the 158th Company at Southwest Harbor. From there he came to Camden June 23, 1935. While here at Camden we found him to be an efficient officer and a loyal friend. He goes to his new duties with the best wishes of the entire company.

Aug. 27, Lieut. Paul A. Scammon was transferred to this company from Greenville's 160th Company to fill the vacancy due to be filled with the transfer of Lieut. Bagley. Lieut. Scammon has been on CCC duty since June 1933 and has been assigned to the companies at Greenville, Moose Brook, and Beddington. Lieut. Scammon is a World War veteran. He is now an officer in the Anti-Aircraft Division of the Coast Artillery Reserve. He comes to Camden Hills with an excellent record of achievement and his direct manner and energetic way of doing things have already made a good impression on the members of the 1130th Company.

Many changes have taken place at the Camden Hills Camp during the latter part of the summer. The Sagamore says:

"Within the past month a number of familiar faces are seen no more at the Company mess tables. Some of 59 odd have departed for the Side Camp at Baxter Park—some of them never to return as members of this organization; and others have taken their discharges to work or to return to school.

"Of the Massachusetts lads only 11 remain to face the rigors of a Maine winter. Leader Carney has gone back

CLOSES SATURDAY

Lakewood Theatre Completing a Successful Season With "Passers By"

The Lakewood Theatre season comes to a close Saturday when the final performances of "Passers By" will be given, one in the afternoon, another at night. "Passers By" will be the 17th play of the 36th season, or the 475th play since stock was inaugurated at Lakewood.

The closing season has been a successful one. Automobiles bearing the license plates of 39 States, the District of Columbia, five Canadian Provinces, Haiti, England, and the Canal Zone have been checked in the Grove.

The Lakewood Players have presented five Pulitzer Prize plays in the closing season and they have introduced Eugene O'Neill's works professionally to Maine audiences. Prior to this year only one other Pulitzer Prize play had been presented.

In this closing week the Players are introducing one new performer to their audiences, Carter Blake. Lakewood favorites who are to be seen for the last time this year are Katherine Meskil, Dorothy Bernard, Mary Rogers, Bess Jones Winburn, Frank Wilcox, Charles Laite, Gordon Duff and Andy Doe.

to Aroostook to run a booth at the fairs and to boss a crew of men in the potato fields. Fred Ferris has left to attend school in Boston. Student Enrollees Brow and Whitley have returned to college. Deleware will no more rule a CCC crew with iron hand. Fred Boyce has gone South to attend the University of Alabama—we forgot to give him a fare well gift of a pair of galluses, and Duguay has left us for his native town of Jackman. Company strength is now down to 118 men."

DEER ISLE BRIDGE

Committee Makes Formal Acceptance of the Government Grant

A meeting of the committee in charge of the Deer Isle Bridge was held at the office of P. T. Clark Saturday. Mr. Clark was host to the following:

Harold J. Lockwood, regional director of the Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont PWA work; Barrett Quirk, chief council for PWA; R. E. Mullaney, PWA engineer; Fred Sparrow, of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston; J. M. Henderson of the National Shawmut Bank; Nathan W. Thompson and John Timberlake of the Timberlake Company, Portland; Dr. Holton Robinson of the Robinson-Steinman engineering company of New York; and D. G. Letourneau, chief engineer of the same company. Representatives from this county were: Mr. Clark, Raymond C. Small, Stonington; Rev. P. Allen, Sedgwick; Harry B. Webb, Sedgwick and Capt. Sherman G. Hutchinson of Deer Isle.

The Board formally passed the resolutions accepting the loan and grant of $385,000 and $325,000 according to stipulations of the government. A final meeting will be held in Augusta this week.

A clergyman was dining with his host before the afternoon service. He ate little, explaining that it was not good for a preacher to eat heavily before a sermon.

The hostess could not attend the service as she had to stay at home to prepare tea.

When her husband came home, she said: "Well, how was he?"

The husband, heaving a sigh, replied, "He might just as well have eaten."

TWENTY-FIVE KILLED

Records of the State police show that in August there were 269 motor vehicle accidents in Maine in which 168 persons were injured and 25 killed. During the month the State police made 488 arrests as a result of which $10,212 in fines and $2,686 in costs were collected. In the same period the State Police recovered stolen property to the value of $1,450.

The State police inspected 38,026 passenger cars of which 30 were not properly registered 73 had defective brakes, 3,291 had defective lights and 236 had other defective equipment. Of 6,701 trucks inspected in August 867 had defective lights, 43 defective brakes, 108 without mirrors, 135 not properly marked, 11 not properly registered and 46 were overloaded.
