

If you're crazy over football . . . you'll go wild over these O'coats

X-citement marks the spot when you try them on and you'll get as big a thrill the last day of winter as you do the first game you take them to.

In warmth, in colorings, in patterns, pockets, belts and backs, they're different from the coats at last year's big games and we don't do the football o'coat business of the city, it will be because the election has stolen the show.

See them now . . . get the feel of victory around your shoulders.

Who could resist such a wonderful call? Not who were nourished from year to year.

On Noah's Ark, why, the Ark was here! And some who had scruples when Barnum's tent was pitched by the depot (of course, they went).

To welcome it in at the flick of dawn! Had no such qualms at this great hulk Up to the wharf—there was sanction wise.

All that writ for this enterprise. They even expected, so well they knew The tale, that the monsters, two by two, Would strut as they did for Noah's crew.

I see her now as a squallid craft Crowded with animals fore and aft, With smelly animals pacing their cages, Venting their wrath in various rages— See her all too clear, but then my eyes, Tinctured with youth's prismatic dyes, Saw the red plush cabin, a gallery grand, Like a room in the mansions of the Promised Land.

And the chandelier hanging, a ruby chalice, Would have graced a hall in the Shushan palace.

The snake-charmer standing, golden haired and tall, Was Eve in the Garden just before the Fall; And the blindfolded wizard, adding reams on reams, Was Joseph in Egypt unravelling dreams. The strong man was Samson, and the lion-tamer shone Like Daniel in the dungeon of Babylon.

We stood on the wharf when she sailed away Out of the harbor kicking up spray, Leaving a wake of white at her stern That bubbled toward the dock like a butter in a churn.

We heard the animals' dwindling groans, Saw red-coated negroes rolling the bones; And the Stars and Stripes on the Autumn air Turned the Hebrew legends to a Down the day being over I heaved a sigh To know such glories could be born and die.

The boys of Vinahaven, where the next stop came, Saw the marvels we had witnessed, and O grieved too hard to name, Saw the wonder ship of ocean going up in flame.

The East rose and widened, in a fort-nite grew To Biblical proportions. Was there ever a crew? The animal trainers set their charges free, And showed them off the deck in the ice-cold sea.

The Captain on the poop, ringed round with fire, Yelled orders in vain, for a thousand times higher

FOR PRESIDENT
ALF. M. LANDON
of Kansas

For Vice President
FRANK KNOX

WHO IS THIS LANDON?

Los Angeles Editor Describes the Presidential Candidate's Background

(Editorial in Los Angeles Times)

What manner of man is this Governor of Kansas who bids fair to become the next President of the United States? What are the personal characteristics, the family background, the mental and spiritual attributes of Alfred M. Landon to fit him for the highest office in the gift of this or any people? What kind of a President will he make?

No light ever beat more fiercely upon a throne than that which will search out the qualities of presidential candidates during the six hot weeks ahead of us. Their acts and words will be judged or misjudged by an electorate certain to be confused by the mass of evidence and the conflict of conclusions that will be presented. How will Gov. Landon stand up under the political barrage?

There is one note in all of his public addresses and acts since he first took office in 1933 that fixes the keynote of his character. This is the call to moral courage. Over and over he has emphasized the point. His constant call to his fellow-citizens since the dark days of the depression has been for a revival of moral courage. That has been Landon's religion.

From his early training he learned to rely on the faith of his forefathers. Born in a Methodist parsonage, guided by a devout mother, however, his views may have expanded from his contact with the practical affairs of the world, he has remained true to the teachings of his childhood. In an address to the Methodist district conference at Greeley, Col., in 1935, he declared: "It is not sufficient simply to believe in religion as a dogma. We must be willing to serve in some way, in some capacity."

He gave that faith more robust expression when he told a convocation of ministers in Topeka: "In the recent past we worshipped false gods and neglected too much the true and living God, whose precepts have guided mankind through the centuries." From the pioneers he inherited the belief that the democratic ideal must be founded on the rock of religion and from that conception he has never swerved.

Yet though his religious background controls his public acts, he cannot be classed as a narrow church man. His tolerance for the beliefs of others is as marked as his adherence to the principles of his own church. Gov. Landon has never been one to preach what he didn't practice. The moral courage on which he places so much emphasis he has himself displayed on many occasions, notably when he entered the fight against the KU Klux Klan at a time when they were a power in Kansas, and again when he refused to pussyfoot on a proposed state amendment for the sake of securing the large prohibition vote.

Study and experience have changed his outlook on life as they must for every thinking man and woman. But his rock is still the "rock of ages," built on the firm foundation of character. In meeting the problems of today he draws on the inheritance of moral courage left him by his pioneer forebears, yet comprehends the necessity for recognizing the evolutionary forces at work in society.

To the worldly minded and the ultra-sophisticated Landon's assertion that true democracy cannot be divorced from religion may seem to have small bearing on his fitness for the presidency. The so-called practical politician, indeed, would prefer to tear them apart. But the mass of the American people are neither worldly minded nor ultra-sophisticated. And a man who can say simply, as Landon does: "I always feel better when I go to church," touches a chord that identifies him with millions of his fellow-citizens.

School Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me the difference between perseverance and obstinacy?

Johnny—One is a strong will and the other is a strong wont.—Church Militant.

FARMERS AT SEA

North Knox Fishermen Have Fine Time Afloat—The Prize Winners

Mid-Atlantic, Oct. 5
The North Knox Piscataway Association, composed of ardent fishermen of South Hope, West Rockport and vicinity, held its annual meeting Sunday in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean off Monhegan, transported there by Capt. Carlos Davis of Port Clyde. It was a fine day, and between its business session, election of officers and fishing, the occasion proved profitable to both old and new members.

All successfully passed the mal de mer test, even the initiate members, Tommy Winston of South Hope, who caught among other fish, two 18-pound pollock.

The resignation of a former South Hope member, whom I will designate only as "Deke," was read and accepted. Deke went twice last year the second trip being disastrous to his stomach lining. "Never again," says Deke. "Old man Clark," by special request from the Department of the Interior, even though suffering from a slight illness, gave his famous impersonation of a seafaring man which almost deceived the other members of the party. He was not set ashore, and caught his share of the fish, including two of the enormous pollock, weighing ("guessed weight") from 15 to 20 pounds each.

Prizes went to: William ("Spark Plug") Lohrop for the largest cod, 30 pounds; Lester A. L. Merrill, first fish; Sidney Andrews, first pair; John Allen, largest sculpin; William Lohrop, first prize haddock. Prize for "most picturesque language" was unanimously awarded to Louis Upham when a dogfish he was unhooking snapped at his fingers. The quietest members were Tommy Winston and Russell Upham.

The most exciting moments were when "Spark Plug" almost landed a six-foot shark which broke away in plain sight on the surface, taking with him a two-pound lead and hooks. He then, entangled with three other lines, was again hauled to view.

Albert Hastings gaffed him and he would have been landed in our midst but Capt. Davis said, "No," and cut him loose. In all, between 400 and 500 pounds of large cod, pollock and other fish were caught.

Lester Merrill was re-elected president of the Association; Myrven Merrill, gut-ripper and feeder of the gulls; Orris Norwood, master of fish transportation. Refreshments were served several times during the day. That night at the village store in South Hope, the unsettled award for largest number of fish caught and left subject to recount, was argued. But Ralph again postponed a settlement by turning off the lights and pleasantly bidding the members, "Good night."

NEWS IN OTHER DAYS

From the files of old Rockland newspapers a subscriber gleans the following items which she believes will interest many of the older readers:

Rockland Gazette, June 20, 1851: About 275 barrels of Liquors left Bangor Monday morning by the boat.

A bloomer appeared on horseback in Manchester, N. H., Saturday and created a great sensation. The Mirror says the new costume is admirably adapted to equestrian exercises, though it does not state whether the wearer dispenses with the side saddle or not.

San Francisco in Ashes—Loss $15,000,000. The steamship Alabama has just arrived, with two weeks later news from California, the dates being to May 15. She came via Acapulco. Her news is of great importance.

The works of the Rockland Water Co. are progressing rapidly, and the prospect of an early completion of the undertaking is very favorable.

Rockland Gazette, May 23, 1863: It is reported that a Yankee Down East has invented a machine for corking up daylight which will eventually supersede gas. He covers the interior of a flour barrel with shoe maker's wax, holds it open to the sun, then suddenly heads up the barrel. The light sticks to the wax and at night can be cut into lots to suit purchasers.

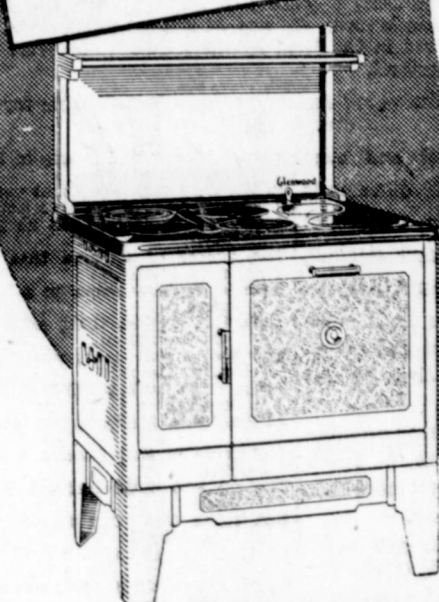

Limerick Gazette, Jan. 22, 1846: How will your country go this year? asked a Philadelphian of a citizen of Buck County "Vell, I can't tell much—I don't know," said the Dutchman. "The man vat tells as how to vote, hasn't been round yet."

There'll Be Some Tall Mitt Slinging At the Stadium Tomorrow Night

Johnny Lawless of Bangor will appear in the main bout at the Tillson Avenue Stadium tomorrow night. His opponent is well known here—Frisco Dick. If this is any hugging match somebody will miss his guess.

Seth Parker of Bangor is going to battle Butch Wooster of Rockland in the semi-final.

The three prelims would seem to offer their part toward a lively night: Cracker Favreau of Rockland vs. Phil Trepine of Augusta. Cracker is hitting 'em right these days.

Battling McFarland of Union vs. Young Dowe of Augusta. The Union boy carries in each mitt what was first thought to be a paper cap, but which proved to be T.N.T.

Battling Jiggs of Augusta vs. Percy Porter of Rockland. And they're no slouches.

The energetic traveller for a coffee firm believed in seizing every opportunity. Coming to a little village one day he chatted with a lazy-looking individual sitting in the sun on the village green.

"Ever drink coffee?" asked the salesman.

"Ay," said the lazy individual.

"Bout fifty cups a day."

"Fifty cups a day!" echoed the amazed traveller. "Doesn't that keep you awake?"

"Well," drawled the other, "It helps."

"Montpelier," the Knox Memorial in Thomaston, has been the scene of varied and interesting gatherings, but there was real heart interest in the one which took place yesterday when four young pupils from the Eighth Grade at Lisbon Falls were given an outing there as their reward for winning an essay contest sponsored by James Bowdoin Chapter D.A.R. The young visitors, whose ages ranged between 10 and 11 years, were Willis Allen, Edward Popadak, Frances M. Dumchak and Aralyn P. Hodgkins, and they were chaperoned by Miss Carmita J. Appleby, chairman of the D.A.R. Chapter's Americanism committee. Charles Appleby aided his daughter in the interesting task. The young guests arrived at 10:30 a. m. and lunch prepared by the Lisbon Falls Chapter was served to them in the basement. The subject of the competitive essays was "Why I am Glad I am an American."

At the G.A.R. hall Monday afternoon the members of Ruth Mayhew Tent met for sewing and at 6 o'clock a bountiful supper was served with Mrs. Josephine Lothrop, F. Helen, Paladino and Sarah Thomas in charge. Miss Marie Patterson, department president and Miss Alice Weymouth, council No. 2 of Hallowell were present on official visitation. The attendance was large and the interest greatly added to by the extensive description of the trip to Washington with the Maine delegation G.A.R. and affiliated orders by Miss Patterson. Few of the members are privileged to visit the permanent headquarters owned and maintained by the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War at Washington, D. C. Therefore this was a subject greatly enjoyed. Capt. H. R. Huntley, chaplain of Edwin Libby Post was introduced and entertained in his usual pleasing manner. Mrs. Mae Cross, department press correspondent, spoke briefly of her trip, as did Miss Weymouth, who was a delegate. Miss Patterson received a gift. Plans are completed for the annual fair Nov. 2 and the rummage sale will be held Oct. 19 with doors open at 9 a. m. Beano party Oct. 12 at the Grace street home of Mrs. Mae Cross. All are welcome, Mrs. Lizzie French assisting.

WITH EXTENSION AGENTS AND THE KNOX-LINCOLN FARM BUREAU

Agriculture
Maynard Kinney of St. George road in Thomaston, has added another story to his henhouse. The building has been insulated throughout, equipped with running water and electric lights and special ventilators installed. Mr. Kinney has some very fine pullets housed.

Winslow Robinson of St. George has 1,100 pullets. This is about 500 more than he usually houses.

Charles Taylor, Tenant's Harbor, has applied several tons of lime in preparation to seeding next spring. He has a piece of alfalfa that has been seeded several years and looks better this year than ever. It was not affected by the dry weather.

Maine poultrymen are again in a satisfactory situation as compared with the mid-West and far West. According to the report of R. N. Atherton, extension economist, for August, it required 34 dozen eggs to buy a bushel of corn in Maine. In the mid-West it required six dozen and in the far West 4.4 dozen. The number of eggs in storage Sept. 1 is about the same as last year, but below the five-year average. Poultry shows an increase of 76% over last year and almost the same increase over the five-year average.

The 1935 census shows an increase of cows and heifers in Knox and Lincoln counties over 1930 census.

Knox has an increase of 366 and Lincoln an increase of 423.

Satisfactory reports are being received on the Farm Bureau membership. Mrs. John Gardner of Rockland reports 20 men and 20 women for that community.

With The Homes

Exhibits are being planned by the Extension Agents on Agriculture, Home Economics and 4-H Club. Mrs. John Gardner, and Mrs. Ruth Levensler, Rockland, are putting on exhibits of Herbs and Winter Bouquets. Dinner arrangements are being planned by the Megunticook Grange. The committee appointed for this follows: Mrs. Eva Young, Mrs. Helen Packard, Mrs. Mildred Sheldon, and Mrs. Mary Nash.

AN ANGEL'S FLIGHT

(For The Courier-Gazette)
No patter of feet upon the stair—
No childish prattle anywhere;
A tiny sock, the impress shown,
A pillow soft beneath the head.

The imprint of curls lovely thereon,
Tread softly, near the silent bed,
The spirit fled, 'twas darkest night,
An angel came, with wings of light.

The mother, wearied with the care,
Could only pray, she could not bear
To think that even in her prayer
She wished to hold, to keep,
From Him who giveth
His beloved, His beloved sleep.

NORTH HAVEN

White Oak Grange will have a gala night Friday when the third and fourth degrees will be conferred on two candidates by the officers of Meenahga Grange of Waldoboro. A harvest feast will be enjoyed also. White Oak Grange celebrates the 50th anniversary of three of its members by the presentation of the Golden Sheaf by the Grange deputy, Fred Maxcy. The two occasions will help make a third—Boosters' Night.

This section was visited recently by the noted artist, Charles Dana Gibson of New York and Bar Harbor, who stopped at the home of J. W. Stevens and asked permission to paint his buildings. Wendall posed for him in the act of mowing his meadow. Those who saw the picture say it is a marvel of beauty as might well be expected with the old-fashioned house and beautiful autumn colors as background.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Reading in the Portland Sunday Telegram of the marking of the ancient cattle pound in Jefferson brings to mind a similar one on the road to North Waldoboro. This pound is a stone construction seven to eight feet high and 50 feet square. Stray cattle and sheep were placed in this pound and when owners came to claim them they were obliged to pay 50 cents a head. The pound was built as early as 1773 because at the first meeting after the town was incorporated, Bernhard Uckley (Eugley) and John Newbert were elected pound keepers.

A unique building recently constructed on the premises of Arthur K. Walker is a three-story hen house which measures 24x36' and if the occupants this winter do not lay at least two eggs a day each it will be because of their lack of gratitude for such pleasant surroundings. Indeed it was so attractive that for the first two weeks after its completion it was used as a gathering place for the Trytohelp Club of the Baptist Church. The practice would have continued had it not seemed necessary to transfer the 600 hens on the premises to their new quarters. The construction was under the direction of Lou H. Morrill, who may well be proud of the job.

Robert Hanson, on a vacation from his duties at Perry's Market in Rockland, spent the weekend in Boston.

Reception To Pastor

Many members and friends of the Baptist parish and pastors of the various churches in this vicinity met at the vestry Monday night to tender a reception to the new pastor, Rev. John W. Hyssong and Mrs. Hyssong. Attractive and artistic decorations had been arranged by the Trytohelp Club, sponsors of the occasion, autumn foliage and fall flowers predominating. In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Hyssong were Deacon and Mrs. Arthur K. Walker, Deacon and Mrs. Charles Marston, Deacon and Mrs. Thomas Carroll, Miss Helene Dunbar, Superintendent of the Church School, and Mr. and Mrs. Enos E. Ingraham.

During the reception music was furnished by Mrs. Clara Lane, pianist. Mr. Smith of Tenants Harbor; Earle Achorn representing the Rockport Methodist Church in the unavoidable absence of the pastor, Z. Andrews and Miss McKnight of the Rural Religious Education Assn.

A letter was also read from Rev. Weston Holman of the Camden Methodist Church expressing his regrets at not being present owing to absence from town, but extending a hearty welcome and promise of cooperation to Mr. and Mrs. Hyssong. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hyssong feelingly expressed their deep appreciation for the friendliness and spirit of cooperation extended them since their arrival here and expressed desire that pastor and church should be strongly united with one purpose in view—the uplifting of humanity.

Each speaker was introduced by Deacon Walker with appropriate remarks. A social hour with refreshments followed.

All New England States to Hear Yale Football Games on Air

Last year, paid admissions to college football games in this country totaled more than 16,000,000 and as many more listened to play-by-play radio reports. Yale is the latest of the big universities to permit broadcasts of her gridiron contests. Ralph Gilroy, right, former All-American player, will announce the Yale games for New England fans.

ALL home games of the Yale football team, for the first time in the University's history, are to be made available to football enthusiasts in New England this fall through the radio broadcasting facilities of the Yankee network, it was announced this week.

Granting of commercial broadcasting rights for these games to the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company represents the first example of one of the "Big Three" eastern universities permitting commercial sponsorship of a full schedule of games over a regularly established radio network.

Ralph Gilroy, All-American football player from Princeton University in 1921, has been selected to announce the play-by-play account of the games.

Gilroy, who played at Exeter before going to Princeton, was a member of the Princeton varsity team in 1920, '21 and '22. In 1923 he coached at Princeton and later joined the Boston "Bulldogs," first of the country's professional football aggregations.

Best known of Gilroy's many exploits during his collegiate football career came in 1921. In the last three minutes of the Princeton-Harvard game that year, Gilroy ran 65 yards for a touchdown, giving Princeton the victory by a narrow margin.

Since 1927, Gilroy has broadcast most of the leading games for the Yankee Network and has officiated at other important games when there was no conflict with his broadcasting schedule.

Total paid admissions to college football games in the United States last year was in excess of 16,000,000. Total "admissions" via the airwaves during this same period is estimated to have far exceeded actual attendance, making college football America's favorite Saturday afternoon pastime.

Games on the Yale home schedule this year include:

October 10—Penn at Yale.
October 24—Rutgers at Yale.
October 31—Dartmouth at Yale.
November 7—Brown at Yale.
November 21—Harvard at Yale.

The games will be broadcast throughout New England, over stations in: Boston, Hartford, Providence, Worcester, Bridgeport, Portland, Bangor, Manchester, Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell, Waterbury and Springfield.

In addition to the Yale home games, the complete schedule of Socony-Vacuum football broadcasts includes games between Brown and Holy Cross on November 14, and Brown and Colgate on November 26.

HIDDEN BEAUTIES

There are beauties all around us if we could but understand. The shadow patterns made by sun from a leaf that's held in hand; The wind that whistles through The pine upon the hill; Ofttimes the tune is soft and low, Ofttimes it's loud and shrill.

The dawn that comes unbidden When night has flown away; And left the stars of heaven Hidden by the brighter day. The perfume of the rose that blooms Beside an old stone wall; Did God who gave the roses Make thorns for man's pitfall?

The green grass carpet, rain and sun Where clover, daisy, buttercups, Like children dance and play; The fleecy clouds that drift along Against a sky of blue. The dull gray fog that hides away The mountains from our view; All these, God's gifts so beautiful We take and scarce give thought— Oh, how can we be heedless When such wonders God has wrought!

WHAT TO DO FOR ECZEMA ITCHING AND BURNING

Wash the affected parts with Resinol Soap and warm water to soften scales and crusts. Resinol Soap is suggested because it contains no excess of free alkali, and is especially suited to tender skin. Dry by patting with a soft cloth—do not rub.

Doctors recommend an oily ointment because it penetrates the outer layers of the skin more effectively. Resinol Ointment meets this requirement, and does even more. For over 40 years it has been—and still is—successfully used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains soothing ingredients that aid healing.

Use Resinol Ointment today and enjoy comfort tomorrow. Get a jar, also a cake of Resinol Soap, at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 1, Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Abbie S. Walsh

Private funeral services for Abbie S., wife of Robert W. Walsh, who died at her home on Knox street Saturday morning, were held Tuesday afternoon from the residence with Rev. H. S. Kilborn, pastor of the Baptist Church officiating.

She is survived by her husband and a brother, Frank McCallum, of Waterville. The bearers were Richard O. Elliot, Arthur J. Elliot, Richard E. Dunn, Lawrence H. Dunn, all of this town, and William Barrett, of Warren. Interment was in the Thomaston cemetery.

Mrs. Alida M. Keene

Mrs. Alida M. Keene died Saturday at her home in Hyde Park, Massachusetts, after a brief illness. Daughter of Octavia Lash and Edward Ellis O'Brien, she was born in this town, Oct. 1, 1858.

Mrs. Keene's grandfather, Hon. Edward O'Brien, was a famous local ship-builder, whose noted ships were found in every port of the world, and whose name was a household word in far countries. In the interest of this business, his son, Edward E. O'Brien, moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., with his family consisting of his wife and two children, Alida and Franklin.

Mrs. Keene's early girlhood was spent alternately between their winter home in Brooklyn and their home here until the family returned to reside permanently in this town. Mrs. Keene received her education in private schools in New York and Boston. In 1885 she was united in marriage to the late Albert A. Keene, of Rockland, whose business was then in Philadelphia where they lived 18 years, later moving to Hyde Park, where they had since resided.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Keene, Mildred who died in infancy; the late H. Nelson Keene, who as a member of the A.E.F., gave distinguished service to his country, and whose brilliant business career as a publisher, was cut short by his untimely death, July 3, 1936; and Marion, now Mrs. C. Wesson Hawes of Montclair, N. J.

Of keen intellect and great executive ability, with social gifts which endeared her to all, Mrs. Keene won a large circle of friends, both in Philadelphia and Hyde Park. In her home town of Thomaston, Alida Keene was loved for her rare qualities of loyalty and devotion to her many friends, and she was deservedly popular among both young and old, by whom she will be greatly missed. In Hyde Park, she was a member of the Circle of King's Daughters, the Current Events Club, and the Congregational Church, the pastor of which, Rev. George W. Owen, in his tribute to her, spoke of her real Christianity, stability of character, her steadfast religious faith, and her ready response to all appeals for aid in any worthy cause.

Her generous charities were bestowed with that lack of ostentation which was the key note of her character.

Services were held Monday at her home in Hyde Park with Rev. George Owen officiating, and a committal service Tuesday in the place presided over by Rev. H. P. Leach.

Mrs. Keene is survived by her daughter, Mrs. C. Wesson Hawes, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edith (Rich) Keene, and by four grandchildren, Nancy M. Keene, Henry R. Keene, Donald K. Hawes, and Douglas W. Hawes.

Appleton Correspondent Describes Scenic Trip Into Neighboring Territory

Appleton, Oct. 6

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

I am sending a few notes at random on a recent trip to Canada.

We arrived in Montreal at the beautiful home of the late W. H. Henery where we were lavishly entertained by our two nieces, who had grown since last we saw them to girls of college age.

Montreal is known as "the city of churches," and has 250 of such edifices. When completed Brother Andre's Church will be the largest in North America. Brother Andre is now 92 years of age and is still active.

Montreal is the seventh largest city in North America with a population of more than one million. It is the third largest French city in the world. Situated 1000 miles from the sea, it is the largest inland port in America.

We visited Mont Royal which is a beautiful spot. There we saw the crematory which was given by the late William McDonald who also left $100,000 for its upkeep. We motored up the Ottawa River, the road of which near its bank is paved. The scenery in this vicinity is certainly wonderful. We then came to the St. Lawrence and went about 200 miles along its bank, visiting at Point Fortune, Hawksbury, Mobile and other villages.

Arriving at Brockville, we stayed overnight at D. V. Barclay's home. Mr. Barclay is connected with a great Canadian wholesale house and says business is the best for years. At the beautiful city of Ottawa we were delightfully entertained by a host of friends and relatives, and taken through the Canadian Houses of Parliament. It is beyond my ability to picture its grandeur. These beautiful Gothic buildings are rich in historic memories.

We went in the elevator 295 feet to the Victory Memorial Tower, which is an imposing feature of the new House of Parliament at Ottawa. In it is a carillon of 53 bells ranging in weight from 10 pounds to 10 tons. The clock is 16 feet in diameter. The Hall of Fame, Commons Chambers, Senate Chamber, and others too numerous to mention received visits from us.

On returning home we took another route crossing into New York and along Lake Champlain. We covered 1200 miles on 50 gallons of gas, using 24 miles to the gallon which speaks well for the Terraplane. In Canada they give five quarts for the gallon.

They tax only the houses and land in Ontario. Stock and personal property are not taxed. Some of the horses and cows I saw in Ontario were the finest I've ever seen. The best of butter was selling at 20 cents a pound and factory best cheese at 15 cents a pound. Tourists are allowed to bring $100 over the lines providing it is for own use.

Immigration officers at Ottawa figure they will have inspected 25,000,000 persons entering Canada by the end of the year.

AUTUMN

(For The Courier-Gazette)
"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year."
They may seem very sad and sometimes very dear.

The trees all doff their summer suits,
And robe themselves in gay
In red and yellow, gold and brown,
In all their bright array.

But when the winter comes,
More like the modern maid,
Strip off their glad robes; bare their limbs

And still be undismayed.
They'll pack their trunks with promises
Of clothing clean and sweet,
And don them in the springtime—
All dressed again complete!

JOHN DAWN

The third brilliant success is accorded Robert P. Tristram Coffin in his latest novel, "John Dawn," published by The Macmillan Co., New York. This popular author writes again of the early period of Maine shipbuilding, and ship masters, locating his story at Merrymeeting Bay and centralizing interest about four generations of the Dawns in colorful and romantic shipping days. With vivid interest in this rousing story of past glory on the Maine coast, one is carried through many waters around the world, through Indian raids, wars, typhoons, touching love stories and family pride and hate. With a mind so full of the beautiful in life, able to paint significant, dignified and rare pictures of home and love-life, one is stunned with so much robust and low suggestion in his more intimate relations with the people's of those times, unnecessarily dragged into the fine tale, leaving nothing to the imagination—instead, shocking the sensibilities and thus lowering the high standard of an otherwise strong and charming story. —K. THEIR AERIAL DEBUT

Courier-Gazette Girls Enjoy
the Hospitality of Pilot
Charles Treat

Emerald gems in rippling blue conchure beauty beyond dispute. To unfold that grandeur in sparkling panorama, ways and means are presented by a seaplane hop over Penobscot Bay—a trip made possible Tuesday for Misses Ruth Ward and Katherine McDonald of The Courier-Gazette staff through the courtesy of the Intercity Flying Service which operates twice daily from Rockland to Vinalhaven and North Haven.

Our girls are rooting for Cap'n Treat and his Fairchild

Bobbing on the wavelets at the Public Landing, the scarlet-trimmed Fairchild plane strained to be up and away, its passengers likewise imbued with the exhilarating spirit of flight. The pontooned monoplane has a 423 h. p. Pratt-Whitney Wasp motor which operates, when cruising, at 100 miles an hour with top speed of 125. It accommodates in comfort six passengers and pilot. Built in Farmingdale, Long Island, this winged traveler has seen service in many localities including Florida, the winter quarters of the Intercity Service. Transference to that State will be made sometime in November, return to Maine scheduled for mid-May. Confidence in the pilot, a primary consideration of air travel, is the immediate response when Charles M. Treat guides the controls. Courteous, competent and thoroughly versed in commercial aviation, Pilot Treat has a ranking position among the veterans of aerial navigation. His worthy associate is Charles Peltola, formerly with Curtiss-Wright. Two hundred hours in solo flying comprise the requisite for a pilot's license and Mr. Treat, who in the past has painstakingly taught novices their paces, experienced many a humorous instance in the process. "Spoiled beauties who ordinarily gain their ends by snapping their fingers," chuckled Mr. Treat, "snap in vain when a balky motor is involved." Learning to fly, according to this pilot's viewpoint, may be compared to mastering any type of musical instrument, adaptability and perseverance being the foremost essentials.

"Contact" made, the powerful bird soared out of the harbor, its thundering action working a pitiable handicap on the stronghold of femininity—talking was difficult! Gentle sensation of ascent was presently noticeable and after that, a keen realization of observation powers but with an amazing absence of moving awareness. Speedy locomotion was in progress, however, evidence notwithstanding, for in virtually no time at all (though a literal watch would have ticked off ten minutes) the bounding billows of Vinalhaven obligingly rose to meet the gliding pontoons. Chugging into the dock, there awaited the journeymen a smile and word of greeting from "Colonel" Pernald Ames who overlooks the plane connections at the island port.

Into the azure again, the autumnal glories of colorful maples, intermingled with solid evergreen, spread their blanket of radiance in grand display from an altitude of about 500 feet. Height ranges from 500 to 600 feet on this route—low figures as flying goes. Visibility was exceptionally clear because the persistent Maine fog consented to make itself scarce.

At North Haven halt was made to report to Foy Brown, local agent, and to take on a passenger. Another dozen minutes of lofty delight ended the trip which covered in 25 minutes a substantial distance, even as the crow flies.

Fairy tale lore submitted a magic carpet as the last word in marvels but even Arabian Nights must shrink in shameful oblivion faced with the facts of modern aviation. Knox County residents have a magic carpet, and better, in the up-to-date, speedy Intercity Flying Service. Long may it soar! K. C. M.

ON TO WASHINGTON!

Our Valued North Waldoboro Contributor Steps On the Gas

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Well, here is another roving reporter, perhaps not in so much of a hurry, and we hope not quite so crooked as your regular roving reporter is depicted in the newspaper portrait; neither did we carry a cane, although he often felt the need of some like support.

I started out Sept. 12 with Washington D. C. as the goal. My mind was made up to take things easy and take in all the scenes and people that my vision and mental capacity could grasp. Of course, this would include all relatives and old friends along the route, and I sometimes deviated from the main course to give them a greeting.

The first call was at Kittery, Maine, where resides Peter Sweeney, employed as a book-keeper in the U. S. Navy. "Pete" married a Waldoboro girl, Miss Frances Miller. Mrs. Sweeney was always a close friend with our family, and we were pleased to see their comfortable home and the indications that they were making good in every line.

The next stop was at Earl Sylvester's in Portsmouth, N. H. He also is an employee in the Portsmouth (or Kittery) Navy Yard. He also married a native of Waldoboro, Miss Rita Groves, but later resided in Camden. Mrs. Sylvester happened to be a favorite niece, and, it being about the noon hour, a hearty meal came in the social order of the call.

When within a few miles of Melrose, Mass., the car showed signs of weariness. Driving into a garage it was found the gas was not flowing freely. The machinist took about 20 minutes to blow out the encumbrance put in a new piece of rubber that ordinarily costs nine cents and charged $2. I couldn't dope out whether he took us for country numb-head or distinguished people that were able and willing to pay an exorbitant price.

Plans had been made to spend the night and Sunday with Oscar Storer, and Elizabeth, his accomplished daughter. We were royally entertained, including an edifying Sunday service at the Methodist Episcopal Church where there were 300 in attendance. Mr. Storer is another native of Maine who has made good. He is a graduate of Boston University, took a legal course and is now an instructor in the law school of that institution. His mother (nee Sarah Burnheimer) was a native of Waldoboro. And it so happens that I was fortunate enough to marry a cousin of this eminent lawyer.

Rev. Wesley Wiggins, a retired Methodist preacher with his boon companion, a sister of Mr. Storer, have a neat little bungalow for a home to spend their last lap of life in. In my judgment this home has a superb location one which I would choose in preference to any other in the city. It is situated between two streets that intersect at one end, forming a triangle. The house is surrounded by a beautiful lawn, protected by a hedge. Between the walk around the outside of the hedge and where the two streets join there is a triangular spot owned by the city, which the city keeps prinked up, adding another attractive view. And, best of all, there is no possibility of a building ever to be erected to obscure the view.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins are both Maine people who have made good, serving for years some of the best churches in the New England conference. However, they have just passed through a great affliction. Mr. W. has recently emerged from the Deaconess hospital in Boston where he underwent a critical operation, but is now at home convalescent.

Monday morning dawned with favorable weather and soon found us on our way, having in mind the slogan used by the Confederate army in the Civil War, "On to Washington." Our course took us over the George Washington bridge, a wonderful structure spanning the Hudson. The shades of night had fallen when we reached Brunswick, N. J., where we went into camp. I asked the proprietor if he was a Democrat and answering said: "I voted for Roosevelt, but I'll not do it again."

Soon after leaving Brunswick we were advised that No. 1 route, which we had been following, was broken up in bad shape, so we took the route that led to Delaware Bay, over which we were transported by ferry. Our next stopping place aimed for was Baltimore, where resides another old Maine friend, Mrs. Helen Hoffes Lord, who spared no pains entertaining us in her fine home, embellished with a bunch of intelligent kids, having the best of training for future usefulness in life. The welcome accorded us in this home will not be forgotten for aye.

We were now about 40 miles from Washington, which city we entered the next afternoon. After rambling about for an hour our relatives home was located and the man of the house E. S. Covey, found on the street in front of it. We were soon comfortably cared for by Mr. Covey and wife who is a Maine woman and a cousin of the writer. Mrs. Covey's mother, "Aunt Basha," 92 years old is still with them but confined to the bed. None was more pleased with our visit than she.

The next day we crossed the Potomac and rode along the banks of that famous water course to Mount Vernon, Gen. Washington's last home and resting place. Arlington cemetery was also visited where many scenes vital to history can be witnessed, including General Lee's mansion, the masts of the ill-fated Maine and the graves of thousands of soldiers and sailors.

Of course we didn't fail to take the trip to the top of the Washington monument which affords a grand view of the city, including the White House and other federal buildings. This concludes our ramblings for the day.

The next day we took a spin around among the noted government buildings in Washington; the new Supreme Court, all of marble construction and cost millions. After completion the lighting system was found to be defective, costing a large sum to readjust it. O. but it is a beauty! The next objective was the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Here in one department is done the printing of $18,000,000 daily in bills of denominations from $1 to $1,000. In another room, where we were permitted to look down from an elevation, could be seen the bills undergoing a test, when all defective ones are sifted out. We were advised that in this room the money was counted over 20 times. There are also 49,000,000 postage stamps printed daily.

Of course a visit to Washington without taking a view of the Capitol is unthinkable. This structure, one of the largest in the world, is 751 feet in length and 350 feet in width, the building and surroundings covering three and one-half acres. The Statue of Freedom on the dome towers 307 feet above the esplanade. The cornerstone was laid by President Washington in 1793.

A circuit around the White House grounds was next in order. "Old Glory" was displayed on top, indicating that the President was at home. We made no plans to get in touch with him, knowing well that he looks just like other human beings we meet in our daily walks. He is a good, honest fellow all right, and no doubt sincere, and in his sphere would make an admirable and useful citizen, but I have no use for him as an executive or business man.

The rambles around the city were made doubly interesting and pleasant by reason of our efficient guide in the person of our host, Mr. Covey, a retired naval officer, who knows all the ins and outs of Washington and its surroundings. "Ed" is a jovial fellow with a sport propensity that makes him an attractive and genial pal. The next morning we bid the Coveys and "Aunt Basha" farewell, feeling ourselves roundly paid for the time and expense it cost us. We left with a strong invitation to visit them next year.

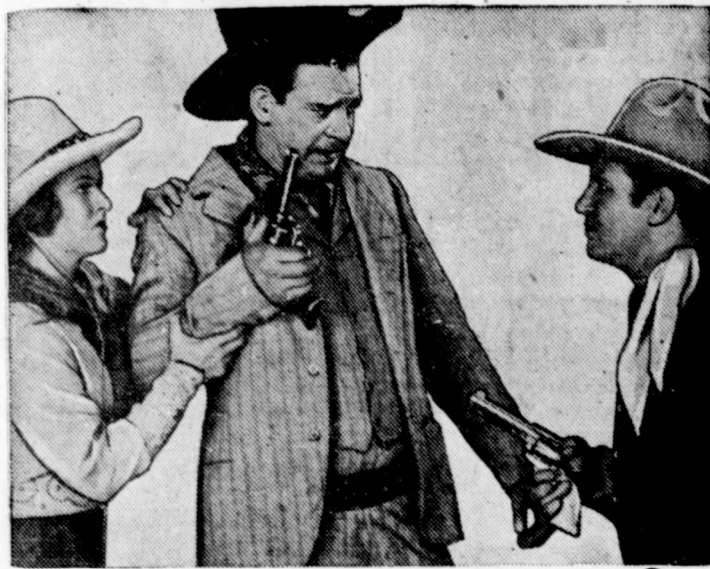

If we had in one book all we saw in Washington and in another all we didn't see, there would be one big one.

The next goal aimed for was Gettysburg, Pa., where we took in a government guide to pilot us over the famous battlefield. He explained every detail as to positions of the opposing armies. The cannons are still in the position they were when in action. I was particularly interested in guns the British gave to the South—a dirty trick they afterwards were obliged to pay for. The battleground covers 16,000 acres. It would take much time and space to write in detail all the important points of interest explained to us by the guide. However, three particularly interesting places to us were the cemetery where lie at rest 3700 of Union soldiers, the spot from which President Lincoln delivered his immortal Gettysburg address and the house where Jenny Wade was shot by a stray bullet while baking bread.

The drive from Washington to Gettysburg was one of the most beautiful of the trip. There were broad plantations with large herds of cows were grazing, acres of corn still standing and green, elaborate mansions and less brilliant farm-laborers' homes all along the way and, best of all to our liking, a road that no one could murmur at.

The next goal in view was Monongahela, Pa. This took us over the Allegheny mountains. The highest elevation that we saw marked was 2900 and some odd feet. From one height could be seen three States where they cornered—Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia. It was an interesting ride but took some power and gas. Our destination was reached about 4 p. m. and were greeted by the characteristic laugh and smiling face of our nephew, Walter Clyde Groves and his much better half, formerly Miss Helen Nash of Camden, Maine. They have resided in Monongahela 20 years, during which time they have built a fine house with all modern equipments.

Mr. Groves was born in Waldoboro, spent some time of his youth in Rockland, his parents operating a restaurant on Main street in that city, afterwards moving to Camden where they built Travelers Inn. Here he graduated from the High School, then at the University of Maine, taking a special course in civil engineering, which enabled him to obtain employment with the American Steel and Iron works in Donora, a few miles from his home. His task, shared by a partner, is the oversight of 40 miles of railroad owned by the company. With "Clyde" as our guide after signing our lives away as a protection to the company, we were ushered ("we" means "Junior," of whom I will write later) from the blast furnaces to the end of the works, about a mile and a half.

The melted ore is taken in a ladle on a car to an endless bed of moulds which are filled, passed through 50 feet of water or more, which cools them enough to dump into an iron car as the mould turns upside down returning for another fill. When the train of cars are all filled, they proceed to a pile where they are unloaded with a magnet that lifts 25 or 30 at one load, each weighing about 60 pounds. This is called "pig iron." Another way the melted ore is used is to run it in moulds about two feet at the base and 18 inches at top and 5 or 6 feet high. When cool enough to stand alone a crane comes down and lifts the mould, leaving the red hot mass to cool further. When it solidifies thoroughly it is again doused into a hot furnace until the proper temperature is obtained to permit the reduction of it to the dimensions required. It is then passed through press after press, gaining in speed as the size diminishes until it was racing at 35 miles an hour. When it had obtained a length of a hundred feet or more (am using my judgment, which is often faulty) an automatic chopper came up and cut off what is called steel billets, which are transported to another apartment where they are again reduced to wire for fences and all sizes of nails and spikes. The American Steel and Iron Works allows no product to emerge from their plant without a thorough test to ascertain there is no flaw.

Careless smokers started more fires in forests last year than were started by railroads, logging, and debris burning; more than three times the number caused by carelessly left campfires; and more than three times the number set by lightning. A real woodsman breaks his matches in two before casting them aside—a habit which makes sure that every match is out.

POEMS BY JANE WELCH

Miss Elizabeth Marsh brings to the desk two poems sent her by Miss Jane Welch, daughter of a former Rockland pastor, now of Guilford. Those who will recall the sweet singing voice of the young writer will be gratified to know she has developed a taste in poetical composition, two examples of which are appended.

RECOLLECTIONS

It must have been a lovely dream That led me to this place, A lonely hill beside the sea, Where I stood face to face With One I'd never seen— A stranger tired and worn; And as I gazed upon him This thought to me was born:

He that stands there waiting Is someone I have known; Familiar eyes are gazing Upon the rising sun. Those silent lips have often spoke As others never have done; Those ears heard heavenly music Beyond the morning sun. Those hands so strong, have guided And shaped a Nation new; Those feet the way have trodden, To lead the weaker few.

Standing there a reverent silence And all the place about me Was peaceful, calm and still. Before the vision faded I was conscious, made aware That the loving shining Presence Was my Master, standing there.

DREAMS

What are dreams but shadows Dancing here and there; Fragile, hazy shadows Flitting through the air. What are dreams but silver drops, Shining in the rain; Drops that I can never catch, Flowing over the window-pane. What are dreams but far-off stars Sparkling in the night; How I wish that I could reach And touch their lovely light.

MAINE'S APPLE CROP

Half Million Bushels As Compared With Five-Year Average of 1,830,000

Maine's apple crop this year, State Department of Agriculture officials, predicted Tuesday, is expected to total more than 500,000 bushels, or similar to the estimate by the Federal crop forecast Sept. 1.

The Federal forecast predicted 522,000 bushels for Maine this year, compared with 893,000 bushels harvested last year and 1,830,000 bushels in the five-year average, 1928-32, officials said.

Officials said the predicted decrease in this year's crop was "partly due" to the after effects of the severe damage done to apple trees by severe winter weather a few years ago.

George Chick, marketing assistant, said that although the winds of the past few weeks had taken many apples off the trees, "these are still marketable and cannot be counted as total losses."

"And the low prices coming now from these being placed on the market in large amounts," he said, "may help to bring a good price for later apples."
