ARAUCARIA

In their native wilds of South America and Pacific Australia, Araucarias are large evergreen trees. Some species—there are about a dozen—grow as tall as 200 feet, with a diameter of nine or ten feet and solid globular cones four or five inches in diameter. Grown in greenhouses, however, they do not attain a great height and are probably the most prized pot evergreens in cultivation. They are much used in house decoration, particularly at Christmas time, as they are not only attractive but will stand much hard usage.

Araucaria excelsa, a native of Norfolk Island, is the one commonly seen in residences. It is grown in enormous quantities in many nurseries for window and table plants and can be used in summer on porches if protected from the hot sun. These plants can be grown from seed but grow too rapidly for house use. It has been found that plants raised from cuttings assume a dwarf, compact habit with tiers of branches placed close together and that they do not grow into large specimens until many years old.

Another variety, Araucaria imbricata, is known as the Monkey Puzzle Tree. Its leaves are close together, stiff and pointed, up which a monkey can scramble with great ease but down which he finds a painful and puzzling way. This variety, native of South America, is fairly hardy. It is seen on lawns and parks in Bermuda, in the South and even in Ireland and England.

CUMMING'S CAREER

The New Superintendent of Schools Has Had Very Few Idle Hours

Rapidly becoming accustomed to his new school district, and finding that his lines have fallen in very pleasant places, Supt. George J. Cumming is already closely in touch with his new duties, and has made an impression here and in Rockport that promises full co-operation and harmony.

The new superintendent is a native of Houlton and a graduate of its High School. In 1921 he graduated from Bowdoin College where he specialized to some extent in track, speaking and Y.M.C.A. work. As a freshman he won the Hillard Lockwood Fairbanks prize and he went to Des Moines, Iowa, as a delegate to the national convention of the Student Volunteers Movement. His fraternity was the D.K.E.

After leaving college he became principal of Bridgewater Classical Academy, remaining one year. He then became a member of the faculty of Bar Harbor High School as submaster and teacher of sciences. After four years' service he returned to his native town as principal of the Houlton Junior High School. Five years in that capacity was followed by a similar period as superintendent of the Houlton, Littleton and Hammond Union.

And it was from the last named position, well grounded in the duties he was about to assume that Mr. Cumming was called to the Rockland-Rockport district.

He is a former president of the Aroostook County Teachers' Association, and has supplemented his educational advantages with two terms at the University of Maine Summer School.

He is a 32d degree Mason, being a member of Monument Lodge, F.A.M. of Houlton, Aroostook Chapter, R.A.M., St. Aldemar Commandery, K. T. and Bar Harbor Chapter, O.E.S. He is also a member of the Houlton Rotary Club.

Mr. Cumming was married in 1921 to Miss Fern Briggs of Houlton, a former school teacher. They have two children—Joyce 8, and Gordon 5. They reside in the P. P. Bicknell house on the Old County road.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

Secretary of State Barrows States Department's Position Concerning Them

Secretary of State Lewis O. Barrows said Thursday that "even if the Governor and Council should see fit to issue a pardon" to a convicted drunken driver who sought to regain his operator's license, his department would have no "authority" to overrule the mandatory statute relative to revocation of licenses in such cases.

His statement was made in answer to an inquiry as to the policy of his department relative to the restoration of operators licenses, provided the application for a pardon from a drunken driving conviction was favorably considered by the governor and council.

"First of all," Barrows said, "I am of the opinion that such action by the governor and Council has no relation to the effect that a conviction has been received from the various courts. It does not remove the record of the court conviction from this department."

"Section 88 of chapter 29 of the revised statutes contains mandatory provisions which require, in the case of a conviction on a charge of operating or attempting to operate a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, that the license, or right to operate for a non-resident, shall be revoked for a period of at least two years."

"There has not been a single exception to this requirement, and there will not be."

"Under our present law, the only place to seek such relief should be in the courts," Barrows said.

Barrows explained in cases where a conviction had resulted at least two years must elapse from the date of revocation "before any consideration can be given to restoring the license, or right to operate, as the case may be."

The Governor and Council have had before them several petitions of persons who, after being sentenced on drunken driving charges, sought pardons in an effort to regain their operators' license.

VINALHAVEN LIONS

New Club Observes Charter Night With Festivities—Has Worthy Objective

I. G. Calderwood, has been elected president of the newly formed Lions Club, in Vinalhaven. This club is now making a bid for the lobster rearing project being planned by the State and federal governments, believing that it is the only way in which the great lobster industry can be saved and knowing that in Mr. Calderwood, the club has a real leader in its undertaking.

Mr. Calderwood is a native of Vinalhaven, but has spent most of his life working on large projects in the North, West and South. A few years ago he returned to make his home here.

The newly organized Club held Charter Night Tuesday, the occasion proving the event of the week. Representatives were present from Rockland, Camden, Rockport and Stonington Clubs, contributing to the attendance figure of 75, which also included members of the Vinalhaven Band. Supper was served by the Union Church Circle.

Following band selections, the first verse of "America" was sung, after which the Lions' toast was given by Vice President D. H. Daggett. Introduction of the toastmaster was made by T. G. McGuire of the Stonington Lions Club. Other numbers of the program included the song, "Don't You Hear Those Lions Roar?"; introduction of the visiting Lions; address and presentation of charter, G. W. Dyer of Camden Lions Club; acceptance of charter and brief history of Vinalhaven, I. G. Calderwood, local Lions president; Vinalhaven Lions' song. Neil Calderwood was pianist.

The Lions roared at 10 o'clock. Many speeches were made and Tail Twister O. V. Drey gave an original exhibition of plain and fancy tail twisting.

The local club will visit the Stonington Club Oct. 20.

Tune—Trio Of "Our Director" March

Here's to the Lions of Vinalhaven, On that good old sea girt isle— Where fish is meat and Friday's treat And lobster are in style— (And how they fall for style.) Oh—here's to the club that is progressive Willing to serve and smile, Striving to help one another And make life a little more worth while.

Here's to the Lions of Vinalhaven Down where the sea meets rocky shore, Where the Fishhawk's scream and the Lions roar And the claims play tag on the ocean floor— (And now you're it.) Oh—here's to the club that's up and doing Beating to windward all the while, And when the East wind brings rain and fog They clear it up with their smile.

Here's to the Lions of Vinalhaven Fifteen miles out to sea, Where the spruce and the pine make you feel so fine You'll crack your heels and say "Be Goe— (What lovely weather.) Oh—here's to the club of jolly good fellows No one with a selfish end to gain Just to serve with a grin and boost like sin For old Vinalhaven, Maine.

HAILING PORT, THOMASTON

Capt. Arthur J. Elliot Contributes a Chapter To

Bygone Shipbuilding Days

Years ago when shipbuilding was a thriving industry in many New England ports, Thomaston was classed among the leaders both in quantity and quality of production. Brigs, barges and ships followed one another down the St. Georges River, awaiting only the favorable winds which would take them to widely scattered world ports.

A few weeks ago a Courier-Gazette subscriber who had read the list of old Rockland vessels expressed the hope in these columns that a similar list might be compiled in Thomaston. This has been done by Capt. Arthur J. Elliot of that town, a member of the firm of Dunn & Elliot Company whose name is synonymous with shipbuilding, and the highest type of shipbuilding.

The following list applies to brigs, barks and ships—Capt. Elliot has no doubt there are omissions, and would like to hear from those who know of vessels which may not be on the list. Names of schooners built at Thomaston will be published later.

"Whata I care what side it's but-tahed on, man?" replied the belligerent Sam. "I eats both sides, doesn't I?"

COMPLETED BEFORE CHRISTMAS

That Is the Word On the New Auditorium—Now

Comes the Big Job of Furnishing

The new Community Building, corner Limerock and Union streets, has reached a point in construction where its approximate date of completion can be named and the problem of its furnishing needs be aggressively attacked. To that end the general committee under Mayor Thurston picked a special strategy or steering committee under the guidance of Joseph Emery which will work out the definite requirements in all departments of furniture and will form a large general furnishings committee representing all groups in the city to put across the big job of equipping the splendid new structure. This group will have as a precedent the work of the men and women who bought, built and equipped Community Athletic Field before turning it over to the city.

Architect in charge Fink and Supt. Murphy estimate the final touches will be given the new structure on Feb. 15, 1937, complete, ready to go including heating, plumbing and lighting. In agreement with the building committee these men feel that public interest will be best served by concentrating all efforts from now forward on the early completion of the auditorium proper and its approaches. This work can be done in season to have the great hall ready for opening Dec. 15 in time for the Christmas vacation dances, basketball games and other holiday functions. These events will of course provide a source of revenue to help on providing chairs, stage equipment, etc. A temporary curtain and temporary scenery have already been made available for the stage to do duty until the permanent installations can be made.

The built-in seats for the auditorium will answer to perfection the question of the handling of crowds for games, dances, etc., but the problem of providing seats for the main floor to augment the built-in seats for plays, conventions, public meetings, etc., will be one of the first to handle. The equipping of the social rooms, second floor hall, kitchens, etc., can be taken care of as rapidly as possible. The immediate need of the community seems to be the large public auditorium.

A complete layout of the whole plant with necessary furniture is being made by Mr. Fink and will serve as a basis for the future plans. Many articles have been donated already and much equipment of one sort or another is at present unused in the community which would serve splendidly if donated to the building.

It should be constantly borne in mind that this structure is for the service of all Knox County, not Rockland alone, and will be available for group gatherings of all sorts. An operating organization in the nature of a board of governors will be formed to assume the responsibility of running the institution after it is completed.

TODAY'S FOOTBALL GAME

Sounds Like An Oil Contest—Rockland High

Will Try To Soak Cony

A few weeks ago local football fans shuddered when the name of Cony High was mentioned. "No beating that Augusta team," quoth they.

But the Orange and Black has been moving along smoothly, with never yet a defeat chalked up against it, and three victories to its credit.

Manager Marsh hopes this person will be at the game

Modest Don Matheson broke his silence yesterday when he actually told the Sports Editor of this paper that there was no reason why Rockland should not give a good account of itself. "If the boys play as they are capable of playing, they have a chance to win," he boldly added.

Cony High comes here this afternoon with the prestige of having defeated Dover, Skowhegan and Halliwell. The last named team was beaten by three touchdowns, which is two better than Rockland did, earlier in the season when the hayseed had not been combed out of the local boys' hair.

Yes, Cony High has been scouted.

Cony has been capably scouted by a Rockland observer and makes much use of a balanced line with short kick formations. Two of the backs, Trial and Coughlin, are the team's mainstays and possess strong scoring power. Thursday night's practice at Community Park was largely a defense against Cony plays.

Lady Forbes-Robertson, wife of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson.

Miss Elliott was born at Rockland, Me., and made her theatrical debut in Rose Cogan's Company at Saratoga, N. Y. After playing a succession of important ingenue roles in New York, Gertrude Elliott went to London to play in one of her American successes, "The Cowboy and the Lady." A year and a half after arriving in England she was engaged by Forbes-Robertson, who was doing repertory, to play Ophelia in "Hamlet," Carrots in the play of that name, and Judith in "The Devil's Principle."

This was in April, and the following December she and Mr. Forbes-Robertson were married.

It was a co-star with her distinguished husband that Miss Elliott visited America on several occasions in a repertory of brilliant plays. Since Sir Johnston's retirement Miss Elliott has made tours to Canada, South Africa and New Zealand and has managed her own theatre in London. Among her greatest successes have been Ophelia, Desdemona, Cleopatra in Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," Glad in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" and the role Jane Cowl portrayed in this country in "Smilin' Through."—Boston Traveler.

BEAUTY FOUND IN SIMPLE THINGS

She works in her garden, living quietly, Watching the way of wine in the plumes of cane, And mangoes ripening in the sun, and rain

Trailing coolly in from an opal sea. And the earth has taught her wisdom, And the way, To peace through beauty found in simple things; For God is hers in a flower, in curving wings, Or a child's clinging hands at the close of day.

"RABBITS FROM A HAT"

A Michigan Writer Presents
His Views As To Modern Government

A Michigan subscriber sends us a copy of the Birmingham (Mich.) Eccentric, marking an article on "Scientific Plans" written by R. E. Prescott. The article relates to present day political economy, and these extracts are made:

"Older systems proved inadequate to scientific age, so today we get our knowledge by the volume, verse and page. No longer do we hesitate where angels fear to tread since the scientists have charted all the courses far ahead. In the realm of frenzied finance they jerk rabbits from a hat. Baby bonds will pay the piper. It's as simple as all that. And by prestidigitations and the art of make-believe they display the rabbit proudly—but the bond is up the sleeve. And today they ditch experience and declare the cynic's ban on a theory not touted as a scientific plan."

"They have plans for conservation, there's a plan for TVA, a plan to harness ocean tides on Passamaquoddy Bay. There are plans for public buildings and Columbia River dam. And we know some plans have functioned when we buy a slab of ham. There are plans for public projects on the hill and in the dell—though most of them aren't working plans—they're merely made to sell. There are plans to help the needy and to cure all social ills, but never plan to help the man who has to pay the bills."

"They have loaded up the payrolls till the government's topheavy and spread the base of hidden tax with levy upon levy. Today it takes astronomers to comprehend the debt and a Philadelphia lawyer can't unscramble the alphabet. It makes no difference what we buy some 35 percent is taken in the process to support the government. (Very likely more is hidden if accountants could unearth it. And even in this Promise Land we wonder if its worth it.) And our artless politicians with delightfully quaint humor investigate the spread between producer and consumer."

"We recall those unenlightened years of drudgery and drilling, in old days, spent at efforts to reduce an honest shilling, before our better minds succumbed to scientific yen. But we shudder when we vision what we'll have to do again, when the budgets trimmed to balance, so for one we don't pay two, and the treasury is vacant and the bills are coming due; when we must revert to policies of paying as we go and have to liquidate 400 bucks per capita we owe; when the honeymoon is over and we settle up the score and the taxpayer is looted like he never was before."

DEER ARE PLENTYFUL

Such the Word From Com'r Stobie—Season Opens Oct 16

Fish and Game Commissioner Stobie said Thursday he desired to "make it clear" that the open season for deer hunting would begin Oct. 16 and not Oct. 15 in Aroostook, Penobscot, Somerset, Piscataquis, Franklin and Oxford counties.

"The state law states definitely," Stobie said, "that the hunting of deer in those counties cannot begin until Oct. 16."

In Androscoggin, Cumberland, Kennebec, Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc, Waldo, Hancock and Washington Counties the legal season on deer opens Nov. 1.

Stobie said his wardens and Maine guides had reported that deer were "plentiful" this year in the "big woods."

At The High School

(By the Pupils)

The teachers in the Senior and Junior High were especially favored this week in having at their meeting as a guest speaker Miss Leah Ramsdell, who gave a very interesting description of her summer cruise aboard the Italian liner, S. S. Roma. Miss Ramsdell spent over two months touring 14 countries for the most part located in the Asiatic group. She described vividly Mount Vesuvius, the ruins of Pompeii, and the Amalfi Drive, a preliminary sight-seeing tour before setting sail from the Bay of Naples. The Roma visited such fascinating places as Cairo, the Holy Land, Syria, Turkey, Russia, Yugoslavia, Roumania, and Greece, then returning by way of the Aegean Sea to Venice.

The teachers are eagerly looking forward to a later meeting at which Miss Ramsdell will show moving pictures taken on the trip.

George Law has been appointed band leader, to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Kirkpatrick's death. Mr. Law moved to this city from Elkhart, Indiana, where he was, for eight years, in the band instrument business.

For the second year, this school is one of the co-operating Educational Institutions participating in the student aid program of the National Youth Administration. Members of the school who are sixteen years of age and desire work are being employed throughout the building in helpful tasks and are paid $6 per month by the government.

The school was saddened by the death of Herbert E. Kirkpatrick, who for 10 years, has been a beloved leader of the school band. Through his understanding of music and his faculty for teaching it, hundreds of boys and girls have received a training in band work that has proved a valuable asset in life. He will be long remembered at Rockland High.

Harold Bray, freshman, of Owls Head, who was unfortunate in getting burned a week ago, was the recipient of a box of remembrances from his classmates this week. The committee making arrangements included Shirley Allen, Norma Robbins, and Priscilla McGraw. He is making such good recovery that he hopes to be back to school soon.

Cony High is playing at Community Park today, the game being preceded by a parade through the principal streets. A pep rally was held yesterday afternoon with members of the football squad and faculty as speakers.

The first meeting of the Junior High Girls Glee Club was held Thursday morning, when the election of officers was held with the following result: president, Gerry Norton; vice president, Doris Gatti; secretary, Mary Lamb; librarian, Nora Long; assistants, Barbara Lamb and Jane Packard. HAD A JOLLY TIME

Rockland Kiwanis Club Royally Entertained By Augusta Brethren

Augusta Kiwanians and their wives Thursday night entertained Rockland Kiwanians, likewise chaperoned, at dinner in the Hotel North dining room. There were 85 present, 40 of them members of the Rockland club. After dinner the group adjourned to Augusta city hall where they were treated to an entertainment by the King's Ambassadors quartet.

The entertainment was the result of a membership contest held between the two clubs recently which the Rockland club, only eight months old and more or less given a start by the Augusta organization, won by a wide margin.

An excellent meal of vegetable soup, roast stuffed turkey with mashed potatoes and squash, and cranberry sauce was served the guests; many songs were sung; speeches of welcome were given by members of the head table; and the King's Ambassadors sang two numbers during the supper hour.

Levi T. Williams complimented the visiting members on their fine showing since their formation eight months previous, and wished them continued success. Mayor Payne welcomed the Rockland Kiwanians to Augusta, and expressed the desire that next time the entertainment would be on them. Former mayor, Robert Cony caused much mirth by his witticisms concerning his summer visit to the Rockland club.

President Fred Mason introduced Henry Dunnack and W. J. Thompson of South China, past presidents. He also called upon John Pomeroy of the Rockland club for a few words concerning winter sports at Camden.

Expressing the hope that last year's Camden venture in winter sports at Hosmer's Pond would be encouraged so that it might lead to some real competition in Maine for "the winter sports business already dominated by New York, New Hampshire and Vermont," Pomeroy explained the excellent work of the Camden citizens. He told the members that last year a one-day carnival had been held at the Camden pond which had been attended by 8000 persons. This year he said a more ambitious program was contemplated which would afford winter sport opportunities for all who wished to use them on weekends.

"The Camden layout is ideal," he contended. "An 80 by 30 clubhouse is at present in process of construction, also a toboggan slide and ski trails. The location is not only one of the most beautiful possible in New England, but it is easily accessible by either train or automobile. Hosmer's Pond is only 11 miles from Rockland and two miles from Camden."

The local club and their Rockland guests adjourned to city hall at 7:30 p. m., where they were entertained by a well rounded and delightful program by the King's Ambassadors Quartet. This quartet which is composed of George Gadowsky, bass; Lloyd King, baritone; Gustave Johnson, first tenor; and Tom Little, second tenor; proved most versatile and besides singing offered bell ringing as a musical art, as well as impersonations and musical selections.

Their efforts were well received, especially singer Johnson's impersonation of Sir Harry Lauder; a number of the quartet entitled "The Firefly," and pianist Gadowsky's selection, "The Glow Worm." The audience also heartily applauded Mendelssohn's "Melody in F" which the Ambassadors played on the Swiss bells.

The entertainment was the first of a series which will be presented in Augusta under Kiwanis sponsorship. Frank E. Mace has led all members in sale of tickets to these entertainments with the huge total of 252. President Mason introduced him and announced his achievement from the head table and he was roundly applauded.

AUTO PLATE SHOP

Description In State Prison Newspaper Will Interest Car Owners

The current issue of "Vox," the Maine State Prison newspaper, has the following interesting description of the Auto Plate Shop, prepared by Mansur T. Sprague:

The Auto Plate Shop is no longer considered an infant at M. S. P. This is now one of the leading industries. It not only produces the auto, truck, zone, motorcycle, and motorboat plates, but also road signs, highway markers, and campaign plates.

The amount of steel necessary for the State auto plates is approximately 110 tons, which comes in sheets measuring 9½x30½ inches, 70 sheets per ton. Let us follow one of these sheets through the process of manufacture into auto plates under the instructorship of Officer Charles Nash, until it enters the packing and shipping room, which is supervised by Mr. Thompson.

The cutting machine receives the sheet to be cut into exact plate sizes. One sheet makes 23 double plates on an average. The daily output of this machine is 5000 sets.

These are inserted in the punch machines singly to round the corners and punch the slots, this latter operation is for the purpose of attaching them to cars. The daily capacity of the punches is 2500 sets. The next step is the embossing of the numerals and letters. This is done by three presses, one automatic and two hand presses. This operation requires the instructor's personal attention in the preparation of the dies, which must be exact to insure uniformity of the numerals, letters, and bead around the edge of the plate. This uniformity is absolutely necessary for a perfect print later.

These are placed on hooks, 24 in number, attached to lags. Each lag with its suspended plates is dipped in a tank containing the paint of whatever color the background of the plate is to be; placed on a conveyor, which runs slowly through an elongated oven at 165 degrees Fahr.

As the lags emerge from the oven, the plates are placed by fours on the automatic printer and thus the raised letters and numerals receive a contrasting color. The printing press has only one-half the daily capacity of the other machines, consequently this operation impedes the output of the shop.

From the printer they are placed on flakes, a square of wire surrounded by an inch square strapping, which holds 10 or 12 plates according to size. The flakes are piled in tiers of 50; placed two tiers at a time, about 1200 plates, in an oven to bake for two hours at 250 degrees Fahr.

Soon as thoroughly baked, they are removed, cooled, and the shipping room receives them. Here Mr. Thompson supervises their inclosing by pairs in envelopes, the packing, addressing and shipment to the State Department.

In addition to the above machines there has been installed recently a large automatic press of 27 tons with a pressing pressure of 550 tons. This will be used in making road signs in dimensions 12 by 18 inches to 48 by 48 inches. Also a spraying-booth for painting large signs.

Some Brevities

The former Leighton home is undergoing some improvements prior to occupancy by Warden Johnson. The Thomas Mulken "hot shots" are replacing the exposed electric wires with concealed fire-proof cable wires, also the old water pipes with more enduring brass pipes. A chorus girl, deliciously pretty, but decidedly low-brow, somehow found herself at a very select party.

The girl, lonely and uncomfortable as a fish out of water, was leaning against the wall framed against the dark oak, when the hostess took pity on her.

"My dear," she said kindly, "You look just like an old Rembrandt."

"It that so?" retorted the girl, sharply. "Well, you don't look any too darn snappy yourself."

LENA K. SARGENT'S BOOK

Seabound Maine has captured much of the spotlight of late in the field of fiction and now a broadened scope reaches the juvenile class in the volume, "Bruce, the Fishery" by Lena K. Sargent, a publication of the Stephen Daye Press of Brattleboro, Vt.

Daughter of the Pine Tree coast, Mrs. Sargent is well qualified to sketch a realistic and appealing picture of her home land; joined with a professional approach to youth as result of many years' successful teaching, this author's work should find a treasured niche in the minds and hearts of young readers.

Well it is known that the call of the sea strikes instant fancy on the part of any wide-awake lad and that type of youngster will find the means to a happy hour in the reading of this true account of life among the fishermen. Besides its salty-tanged story, there is a generous scattering of picturesque views as well as a diagram of a lighthouse and illustrated explanations of lobstering. Traps, buoys, cars and the valiant men whose livelihood comes from the deep are all pictured in their natural state, just as the "hero," Bruce, discovered them when he went to Cribhaven and there revealed in the gusty coastmen's doings in company with jolly Uncle Bill and Cousin Tom. S. B. Lincoln receives credit for the drawings.

This authentic narrative of 72-page length, cleanly written and instructive, should provide Santa Claus with a happy inspiration because children of all ages will find much to delight them in acquaintance with active Bruce and his lively playdays in that "rugged, homespun State, perched on the nation's edge."

—K. R. M.

On the way home on foggy night the vicar of a little country village lost his way and fell into a ditch.

His cries for help brought a village lad on the scene.

"Who be it?" asked the youth, peering into the ditch.

"I'm the vicar," came the plaintive reply.

"Then they'll be no hurry to get ye out, sir," replied the lad. "Tis only Wednesday night, and ye won't be wanted till Sunday."

SERMONETTE

An Old, Old Story, But Ever New

Tell me the old, old story, of unseen things above,
Of Jesus and His glory, of Jesus and His love;
Tell me the story softly, with earnest tone and grave,
Remember, I'm the sinner, whom Jesus came to save.

Kate Hankey wrote this hymn message in the White Mountains, but she reminds the Church of God of one of its primary obligations every time it is sung. Every year America and the world call a new class to the color of God's great army. Do they know this old, old story?

You'd be surprised at the hundreds of thousands who know nothing of Jesus and His love, and least of all, do they even dimly suspect that they are the sinners Jesus came to save. They have never heard the Story told them softly, or at all. That is why Christians should never become sophisticated or blasé, as they grow old, to the religion they profess. It may be an old story to you, but it is meaningless to them; unless with earnest tone and grave you show them they are the sinners, and Jesus came to save. Don't be afraid you may save some boy or girl that will leave an impact on the world of their day.

The door into immortality, Aye, into heaven itself, is through Jesus and love. And the great of this world have entered through this door.

William A. Holman

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death real?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 11, 1936.

The Golden Text is: "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you" (James 4: 7, 8).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw. But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of devils. And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand: But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you" (Matt. 12: 22, 24, 25, 28).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "To hold yourself superior to sin, because God made you superior to it and governs man, is true wisdom. To fear sin is to misunderstand the power of Love and the divine Science of being in man's relation to God,—to doubt His government and distrust His omnipotent care. To hold yourself superior to sickness and death is equally wise, and is in accordance with divine Science. To fear them is impossible when you fully apprehend God and know that they are no part of His creation" (Page 231: 20-29).

Isles of Shoals

Howdy, everyone! Here are a few words from old White Island.

This letter is being written on a busy morning and a beautiful one. First Assistant George McKenney is due to the miscalculations of themselves and their accomplices, they did not go home with filled pockets as they had planned. Keeper Reed in his younger days would have been a good match for one of them at least. He is now along in years, being one of the oldest keepers now in the light-house service and of not too robust health. He had to admit he was like a football in their hands.

During the 36 years Keeper Reed has been in the Lighthouse Service, times have changed. Men of none too good characters are becoming more numerous in the rural districts. Brother Light Keepers along the coast, take warning.

Mrs. Reed has been doing double duty with her household cares and helping with the routine work of the station as it will be some weeks yet before Mr. Reed is back to normal health.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reed and son Victor arrived Oct. 1 to visit his brother Keeper Reed. Mr. Reed is principal keeper of Brant Point Light, Nantucket. He has 17 days' leave of absence.

We enjoy reading of the wonderful trips the Keepers are taking while on annual leave.

Keeper Reed has not had a vacation since 1933 when he with family and friends visited the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago. He is making plans for a good one in November.

Mrs. Reed drove to Boston last week, visiting the shopping district, and calling on friends enroute.

A STUDY OF FUNNELS AND SIRENS

Smoke stems from all three of the Queen Mary's mighty funnels and her giant sirens roar as she backs slowly into the Hudson River on another return trip to England and the Continent. The funnels, 36 feet in diameter and 100 feet in circumference, are large enough for three locomotives to pass through abreast. The sirens can be heard ten miles at sea, although barely audible to passengers aboard the Queen Mary.

OUR BOOK CORNER

The first issue of a periodical entitled "Frontiers—A Magazine of Natural History" published by the Academy of Natural Sciences, has just made its bow. In a note of introduction, Effingham B. Morris, president of the academy, stated that the new magazine is addressed to "all persons, old or young, who wish to increase their knowledge of the world of nature." Five bi-monthly issues are announced for the coming year. Cary Bok, a trustee of the academy, heads the editorial advisory committee.

The New York Times National Book Fair is announced, to be held at Rockefeller Center for fifteen days beginning Nov. 5. Hervey Allen, Margaret Ayer Barnes, Katherine Brush, Pearl Buck, Henry Seidel Canby, and John Gunther are among the noted authors and literary critics whom their publishers have scheduled for the auditorium programs, devoted to talks on literature and books. There are some other well known writers also scheduled for appearances, such as Faith Baldwin, William Beebe, Stephen Vincent Benet, Elizabeth Corbett, Christopher Morley, Robert Nethart, Julia Peterkin, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Phil Stong, Lowell Thomas, Hendrik Willem van Loon, and others.

Hervey Allen's monumental literary classic, "Anthony Adverse," brought to the screen with all its wealth of color and dramatic fire, opened in Portland on Thursday, Oct. 8. In order to give the sweeping panoramic story the magnificent and magnitude it merited, Warner Brothers the producers are said to have spared neither time nor effort, nor cost. In fact, more than two years were spent in preparing the script, in research work to make the atmospheric settings, and in the actual filming of the many and intricate scenes.

There never has been a cast to approach this one in size, and few that will equal it in talent. There are 98 principals in speaking parts, 2,550 bit players and extras, and nearly 3,000 artisans and technicians worked behind the cameras to make the picture letter perfect. More than 1,000 scenes were "shot" for the production on 431 mammoth sets. Frederic March has the stellar role.

A plan to raise $100,000 for the reproduction of 250 copies of "The Book of Kells," the famous 8th century Celtic manuscript in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, and to present them to 250 leading libraries of the world, was inaugurated last week by John Carroll Broderick in a lecture at Columbia University. For ten years Mr. Broderick, an American architect, has been at work reproducing page by page the ancient manuscript. In his carefully studied copies of the precious old pages, Mr. Broderick explained, he has sought to reproduce the effects of the book when it first came from the hands of the original scribes. By chemical analysis he determined the exact pigments used and has employed those, in new vellum, in his copies.

"The Book of Kells" has been called the "finest extant example of early Christian art of its kind." It is an illuminated copy of the Gospels in Latin. About 125 years ago the book was rebound, its leaves being clipped and many of the illuminated

Right Out Of The Air

By R F SERVICE

Phil Baker

Phil Baker is back on the air Sunday over CBS and his role this year is of the editor of a newspaper.

Baker has several hundred personal friends on newspapers around the country and says that he's going to poke fun at their foibles during the series. Bottle plays the cub reporter and Beetle, the source of the network, plays the printer's devil. Phil says he hopes to get a lot of laughs with typographical errors.

Vincent Lopez has a unique way of limbering up his fingers and strengthening the finger muscles to develop speed on the piano. Believe it or not, it's typewriting—just ordinary practice on a typewriter. Lopez believes that the finger action is very similar. The Lopez band is back on the air for their first commercial series in several months on the new Saturday program over CBS with Floyd Gibbons.

Frank J. Black, NBC general manager director, has resumed his "Five Hours Back" program, which is broadcast by shortwave to Europe. Last year, it was voted the most popular program in London.

"I love you, do you hear? And don't you dare forget it," said Roger Pryor to Screen Star Ann Southern

Behind the headlines of every football game there's an untold story about the unsung heroes who weren't apparent to the crowd and it's this kind of story that those Saturday night Football Revue programs are bringing to the air from first-hand sources—the coaches themselves. Sports commentator Ed Thorngren interviews the coaches.

Phillips Lord's new program, "We, the People," is being heard Sunday afternoons over NBC, and is bringing unusual people to the microphone to relate their experiences and state their opinions. The sponsor and Lord turn the entire program over to the public and the public puts on the show.

Allie Lowe Miles tosses a coin with her radio partner, Sedley Brown, every Tuesday night. Months ago the two picked on this method of deciding how to begin their weekly "Husbands and Wives" broadcast. If Brown wins the toss, a husband is the first to come to the microphone; if Mrs. Miles calls the turn, a wife gets first chance.

In the same class with the Allie Lowe Miles Sedley Brown—Pryor with a different angle, is the one we told here recently about Claudette Colbert and Norman Foster. How they started together with "Walter Huston on the stage in 'The Barker,' fell in love and got married. In Radio Theatre they started again, made love to each other in the play, then went home their separate ways. Because now they're divorced and both married again.

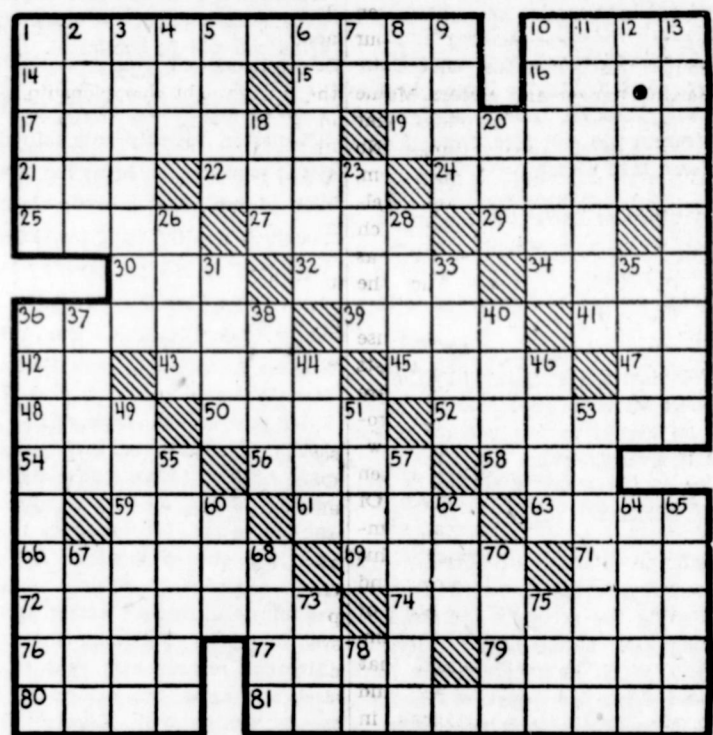

With every new week's Fred Astaire program, Johnny Green, the maestro, is helping the star put the hour show on the basis of a musical revue production similar to the Broadway stage programs. Green and his staff of arrangers make "specials" for the entire hour.

Back in July, Barbara Miller convinced the sponsor of "Home Sweet Home," heard mornings over NBC, that she could write a better script than the one that was being used. She got the job. Then recently she felt that the title should be changed, and as a result, the sponsor agreed to put it

These suggested titles, "Lucy Kent's Home," "Lucy Kent's Family" and "The Life of Lucy Kent," to the radio audience for their choice by vote.

Elizabeth Reller and Lester Tremayne play the roles of "Betty" and "Bob" in that show, heard over CBS, Mondays thru Fridays.

REALM OF MUSIC

by Gladys St. Clair Heistad

Vacation pictures appearing in Musical Courier include one of Shura Cherkassky, noted young pianist, taken in front of his house in Rockport where he spent the summer; one of Ezra Rachlin, another gifted young pianist, taken also at Rockport where he spent the summer holiday; one of Walter Mills, baritone, taken at Lake Megunticook where he spent three weeks; and one of the National harp colony at Camden where harpists from 14 states and Sydney, Australia, come to study with Carlos Salzedo.

Interesting pictures these, with local color for those who are permitted to gaze upon, and even come to know, the artists involved. And here are some random notes to accompany the comments on the pictures:

Mr. Cherkassky sailed Sept. 23 on the SS. Queen Mary for appearances in London, Manchester, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Warsaw, Stockholm, Helsinki, Riga, Kaunas, and Paris. Both recitals and engagements with orchestra for the pianist are included on this list.

Mr. Rachlin begins his season's activities with his recital at Town hall, New York, Oct. 31. He then is to appear in recital under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Mendelssohn Choir, with other orchestral and recital engagements to follow.

Mr. Mills opened his season with a joint appearance with Edith Mason, Metropolitan soprano, in Buffalo, Oct. 6, and following New York appearances, he will give a recital in Jordan hall, Boston, on Nov. 19th.

In addition to holding his master classes at Camden this summer, Mr. Salzedo has been composing. His latest manuscript has a middle part in rumba rhythm.

Adelbert Wells Sprague, conductor of the Eastern Maine Music Festival, announces as the offering for the annual fall concert, Oct. 29, the Russian Symphonic Choir, one of the most glamorous offerings before the concert public today. Mr. Sprague with his customary acumen has taken advantage of their passing en route through this region on that date, otherwise Bangor and eastern Maine would probably never be able to hear this wonderful organization. No music lovers can afford to miss them, a concert group that is a rare novelty and one that will match such Festival attractions of the past as the Cleveland Orchestra and the Don Cossacks.

Mr. Sprague states that because the program numbers by these artists will be of the choral order, the share of the Festival chorus in the program will naturally be brief. However, a notable work has been chosen as the one choral offering—"Land Of Our Hearts" by the American composer, George W. Chadwick. This composition, brief, but inspiring and dramatic, has for its text the poem of the same title by John Hall Ingham. The hope is again expressed that Rockland and Knox County will send a group of singers to participate in this chorus number.

The Ford Sunday Evening Hour which opened Sept. 20, featuring the 70-piece Ford Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Fritz Reiner, will present 39 concerts all told over the Columbia network during the season. Artists engaged as guest soloists include John Charles Thomas, Mischa Elman, Josephine Antoinette, Kirsten Flagstad, Gladys Swarthout, Jose Iturbi, Richard Crooks, Jascha Heifetz, Lily Pons, Vladimir Horowitz, and Nelson Eddy.

A Hungarian collector recently discovered in a local book-shop 47 first editions of works by Beethoven, with the composer's corrections and annotations in the margins. The purchaser, M. Patai, who acquired the rare treasures at two to three pence the copy, fortunately prevented the book-seller from effacing the marginal notes, and Austrian and German experts to whom photographic copies of the writing were sent, agreed that it is Beethoven's and that these editions are extremely valuable. Among the works which M. Patai bought in the first edition of the Mass in C, with an illegible inscription which, thanks to the art of a chemist, can now be read: "To M. le conseiller Aulique, S. de Breunling." He was, as is well known, one of Beethoven's best friends.

Edwin Grasse, blind violinist, will give two recitals in Steinway Hall, New York, this season, Oct. 19 and

Nov. 16. Ada Zeller, known with sincere affection by several Rockland friends, will be Mr. Grasse's accompanist, and one of her own compositions, "Melody and Dance" will be featured in the program.

Extension of musical activity will be a feature of the year's program at Bowdoin College. Under Prof. Frederic Tiltotson a college orchestra will be organized, the college glee club will add several important concerts to its schedule, visiting artists will appear frequently at Bowdoin, the college choir will be re-organized, and student interest in music will be encouraged. Prof. Tiltotson was appointed in June to succeed the late Prof. Edward H. Wass as head of Bowdoin's department of music. He is himself a concert pianist and has made many New England appearances as soloist.

The first of a series of special monthly musical concerts will be presented Oct. 30 when the Russian Symphonic Choir will sing. Members of the college chapel choir will be paid this year for the first time, and the interfraternity singing contest instituted last year will be continued.

Much sympathy goes out to Allan Ramsay of Bath, president of Les Camarades Musiciens, whose charming old home in Bath was swept by fire on a recent morning. Mr. Ramsay with difficulty rescued his aged parents, his father in failing health and his mother an invalid of many years. Several Rockland musicians have been delightfully entertained in Mr. Ramsay's home in the past and recalling his love for the family home can well understand what sorrow must fill his heart.

The New York Times comments that "our former heavyweight boxing champions have turned to a variety of occupations once their fists careers were over. Jack Dempsey runs a restaurant; Gene Tunney is a scholar business man and politician; Jim Jeffries runs an amateur boxing academy in California. And now Jack Johnson, the only Negro ever to hold the heavyweight championship, plays in the grand opera. Mr. Johnson made his debut last Friday night in "Aida" at the Hippodrome. Cast as the struggling Ethiopian brought to Memphis in chains by the conquering Rhodames, he did not have to sing. This may have been a pity, because the former boxer admitted that he can sing. He is fond of opera, especially of Verdi."

Josef Hofmann will open his season as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra in Philadelphia Oct. 16 and 17, and later in the month play with the same orchestra in Baltimore and Washington. Mr. Hofmann's engagements this year include 17 appearances with seven of the leading symphony orchestras, in recital courses presented by nine universities. The extreme points of his tour this year are Havana, Mexico and Western Canada.

Lily Pons is making her second film for RKO Pictures.

In the New York Times Sept. 24 there are three obituaries interesting to students of modern journalism. The space allotted is 5 1/2 inches for Max Schlossberg, noted trumpet player and teacher; 9 inches to Joseph Coolidge, famed inventor, and 17 inches to "Packey" McFarland, celebrated prize fighter.

Tricks of Movie Trade

Amaze Broadway Star

The "gadgets" used on a motion picture set are a source of never-failing amazement and amusement to Burgess Meredith, young Broadway star who is making his film debut in RKO Radio's "Winter set," playing the role he made famous on the New York stage.

"In my first scene," Meredith told a friend, "I was a little strange to it all anyhow, but just before the cameras started turning I was set upon by people from all corners. One had a spray gun full of an oil mixture which he aimed at my forehead to make synthetic perspiration. Another dabbed my nose with a sponge full of grease paint with one hand, and smoothed my hair down with his other. A third worker was having a fine time sprinkling water on my shoulders from a little bucket, so I'd look as if I'd just come out of the rain."

When not needed in a scene, Meredith was generally found prowling around the sound stage seeing what other new and unfamiliar tricks of the trade he could find.

ON TO WASHINGTON!

Our Valued North Waldoboro Contributor Steps On the Gas

(Second Installment)

A visit to Pittsburg, the "smoke city," occupied a good part of a day. Here the Heinz Pickling Co., was one of the most interesting places visited. This company's works covers seven city squares. They employ a large number of persons, male and female, make their own electricity, cans and other containers. We were first ushered into a waiting room, where about 25 with our party awaited the signal of a guide to follow him. We were taken through the various departments where the different vegetables were prepared and canned, the guide pausing at intervals to explain the process they must undergo. We were shown into a room where a chiropractor was kept busy examining and manuevering the hands of the help, thus eliminating any unsanitary effect the foods might otherwise obtain. Next we were led into a moving picture scenery where the farms that grow the products were beautifully spread out and explained by the talkies. Last, but not least, to the dining hall was the next move where lunch was served consisting of some of their 57 varieties. This was the first time in life, to my knowledge, that I felt obliged to eat more than needed, fearing a bad effect to the advertising plan for which this courteous entertainment was designed.

Like experiences are enjoyed day after day and year after year by multitudes of people. Another interesting scene in Pittsburg is the "Point" where the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers meet and connect with the Ohio. This is an enchanting spot of the earth, causing us to linger some time viewing the place where so much traffic meets. On one street was seen a mark over the first story of a block registering the height of the flood of last spring. Of course this is only a smattering description of the wonderful city of Pittsburg, but on our next visit we will try again.

Another ride from headquarters was a trip of 40 miles out to Uniontown, Penn. The objective was a visit to Fort Necessity, the stockade which Washington and his 400 men erected and defended against 1500 French and Indians. Washington won an honorable retreat, marching out with the honors of war and commendation from the French general for bravery. Washington at this time was but 22 years old and was a Colonel in the Colonial Army. It was a beginning of his career as a leader and a fighter. One of the enemy's soldiers said he fired seven shots at Washington with good range without an injury to his body, but to his clothes. Thus it was that he gained the reputation of a "charmed life".

It is said the first shot of the Revolution was fired at this point, and that sounded around the world. The stockade is only a replica, but is supposed to be a fac-simile of the original. There is a museum near the fort where many of the old relics of Washington are exhibited and daily viewed by visitors. Among them, most interesting to the writer, was a miniature water-mill with an over-shot wheel, built and used by Washington himself. The many acres of this territory were bought by Washington and are now government reservation under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

The next spin was far out into the country, the night before starting homeward, taking a feast with us of a variety that one hardly knew which to begin on. It was dark night when through lunch, but Clyde and Helen had another pleasure for us in view, so we headed for a large airport many miles away where a sight was witnessed that few country people are accustomed to behold—a large plane brilliantly lighted and seen coming many miles away. It landed splendidly and made a circuit in full view of the spectators.

This section of Pennsylvania is said to be the "workshop of the world." It is also said that beneath the surface is one bed of coal, and if one purchases land or house lots, the coal supply is reserved in the deed, and cases have been known where mines have been caved in and houses built over them collapsed. Natural gas and oil wells also abound in this section. Well, our visit with Clyde and Helen is over and we are headed for home. Both proved themselves ideal entertainers. I found Clyde the same jovial boy with the same childish disposition as when he worked for me on the farm at 50 cents a day. The first lap on our homeward journey found us at nightfall in Milford, Penn., encamped with accommodations as good as anyone could wish. The proprietor was a genial fellow and a brother Mason. After a good night's sleep and a morning lunch the journey was renewed with a refreshed and happy feeling. Passing through New Haven, we deviated a bit from the proper course to call upon another old familiar friend, formerly of Waldoboro, known then as Miss Martha Feyler, now Mrs. Stanley E. Herrick. Wishing to reach Providence before night our intention was to make only a doorstep call, but Martha's insistence prevailed and we were ushered into her fine home. Alice, Martha's daughter, was in bed just recovering from a serious illness. There was a happy meeting between Alice and Eleanor. Eleanor was one of our party and they were pals when Alice was on her vacation visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. B. Feyler, last summer. Martha is the proud mother of two promising children, Alice as mentioned above and Stanley, Jr., in training to sing for graphophone records. It was our privilege to listen to one of his productions.

We have unthinkingly gone by one of the most unique drives on our journey home. We came to the Hudson river where it curves around Bear mountain and were held up by a toll-keeper who demanded $1.05. I had just $1 in my pocket book. "Junior" fished out a nickel and with a smile the keeper passed us along. The toll money is not just to pay the expenses of the bridge, but for the road that is cut down from the mountain from one side of which we could look up over the solid ledge many feet and on the other a view of the beautiful Hudson with its traffic plying back and forth.

Providence was reached before nightfall. There reside the three Morrises, all once members of society in North Waldoboro. Irving is a guard at the State Prison, has built a fine home, has several filling stations and, best of all, has raised a fine family of boys and girls. The two girls were familiarly known as the "Morse girls" here. Angie has changed her name to Glidden, having married the chief of police, having 500 subordinates under him. Gertrude has changed her name to Duffee. She and her husband together have built and are operating one of the largest department stores in Providence where one can buy anything from a gimlet up. These people were Junior's uncle and aunts. They took us about, showing the bright spots of the city. Friday we started on our third lap, aiming for Melrose, Mass., where we were again the guests of the Storers.

Saturday, just two weeks from the time of starting from home, we were enroute again for that blest abode, reaching there early in the afternoon, finding everything well cared for by Arthur Carroll, the boy who has been my faithful help for seven long years. This trip was the time of our lives for both the Mrs. Walter and myself, and was largely made so by the best send-off we ever had in all our long lives. My partner and son-in-law, E. G. Miller said: "Spend some money, and don't be afraid: we'll get it all back when you get home." The insurance agent called also before the start, warning of the many accidents that are happening daily, advising as to attorneys employed by the company that would be available without cost.

Notwithstanding the agent's warning, we stepped aboard with full confidence in our chauffeur, Virgil Morse Jr., who brought us back with the car intact except the tar it took on while driving over about 20 miles of newly constructed road, built of slag and gravel. We had a few narrow escapes and got punched twice without a scratch on our car, a woman driver being the cause both times. Our recommendation is that if anyone is in need of a chauffeur, "Junior" would make them an ideal one, if you could lure him away from his fine home and farm, from which is produced the strawberries and saur kraut that supplies the surrounding country.

WHAT'S NEW IN HOME DECORATING

By Winnifred Pales; Dodd, Mead & Company, New York.

This is a moving, intense and fascinating text-book, with scientific unfolding of the art of home decoration. The perfection of the author's round and clear diction, the correct word to picture her thoughts, makes this latest product of Mrs. Pales' brilliant mind a workable addition and an outstanding authority in Home Decoration; so readable that it is quite as welcome to a man as to the real homemaker woman.

It conveys the thought conclusively, that originality has a place in every home if tempered by proper study. One becomes amazed at the ease with which many fail in the final ensemble. She tells us one urgently needed lesson that modernism has taught—the value of clear, vibrant color. For generations we have been afraid of pure color, afraid that it was "not—er—your—know" quite refined, so we smothered our rooms in depressing taupes, chilly Freud grays, faded rose and lifeless green.

From the perfectly equipped modern kitchen to the last word in the new art of scientific lighting, this book holds one fascinated with its common sense and mastery of the subject. The illustrations are convincing and add greatly to the general usefulness of each chapter.

MUCH MERRIMENT

At Littlefield Church When "Sarah Perkins' Hat Shop" Was Given

Wednesday night the vestry of Littlefield Memorial Church was a place of much merriment when the playlet "Sarah Perkins' Hat Shop" was presented by Group III of The Ladies' Aid. The cast follows: Sarah Perkins, proprietress, Mae Gray; her three clerks: Zelma, Berla Wixson; Aurelia, Arlene Bisbee; Lucille, Bertha Thurston, Bridget, the scrub-woman, Lillian Lord. Customers: Mrs. Stubbins, Eva Chaples; Mrs. Bunch, the widow, Hattie Lord; Lizzie (right from the country), Vivian Lord.

The hats and costumes were quite eccentric and the entrance of "Lizzie" brought forth loud applause from the audience.

As each member of the cast had decided to turn "actresses," it is presumed that they are all on their way to Hollywood.

The second part of the program found the "Western Merry-makers" seated on the stage and back of them was the entire cast of the play. The boys laid aside their western uniforms for this occasion and donned their swallow-tails and mustaches. This program was presented: Opening chorus—"Good Evening To You" Orchestra and Chorus

Remarks—Mr. Griffin Orchestra—"Hand Me Down My Walking Cane" "Old Pine Tree"

Mervyn Flanders and Levi Hupper Orchestra—"Old Ragged Cross" Quartette—"Down By The Old Mill Stream"

Mervyn Flanders, Frank Gregory, Walter Griffin, Clarence Dorman Duet—"When You Wore A Tulip" Walter Griffin and Olive Bragg Orchestra—"Old Spinning Wheel" Duet—"Side By Side"

Vivian Lord and Lillian Lord Orchestra—"Sidelwalks Of New York" Harmonica and Guitar Levi Hupper (Emmer) Orchestra—"Comin' Round The Mountain"

"Sod Shanty" Ralph Choate and Alden Hupper Specialty—"Bake That Chicken Pie" Mervyn Flanders and Lillian Lord Orchestra and chorus—"Till We Meet Again"

Final—"Good Night Friends To You" Orchestra and Chorus

The quartet was a picture in itself: Clarence with his villain mustache and tall hat; Frank with his goatee and brown derby, Walter with his white trousers and striking mustache and Mervyn with his woolly beard and patch-work trousers.

Walter and Olive certainly cut a dash in their rendition of "When You Wore A Tulip"; Walter displaying a big red rose in his lapel and Olive a yellow tulip in her silvery hair.

"Side by Side" was gaily rendered by Lillian in a full skirt and quaint hat of years ago; and Vivian as a perfect gentleman, in his striped pants, swallow tail coat and tall silk hat.

"Elmer" was right there as usual with his harmonica and guitar, the applause necessitating an encore. The banjo players, Alden and Ralph, were at their best in "Old Sod Shanty."

The specialty number "Bake That Chicken Pie," given by Mervyn as a perfect coon, and Lillian as a dusky maiden, wearing an immense red hat, was greeted with much applause.

The one thing to mar the evening's success, was the fact that the senior deacon lost his cherished goatee, and all efforts to find it, have proved in vain.

MRS. QUIMBY A GUEST

Head of Maine W. C. T. U. Given Reception Here—Educational Campaign

The reception of the W.C.T.U. to the teachers, pastors and Sunday school workers, with Mrs. Althea G. Quimby, State president, as honor guest, was held in the parlor of the First Baptist Church Thursday night and was a very pleasant affair.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Quimby were Miss Margaret Crandon, county W.C.T.U. president; Mrs. Hope Brewster, county treasurer; Mrs. Clara Emery, local president; Rev. J. Charles MacDonald, Supt. and Mrs. George Cumming; Principal and Mrs. Joseph E. Blaisdell.

Greetings were extended by Mrs. Clara Emery in behalf of the Rockland Union. Program consisted of solo, with encore, by Miss Edna Gregory; reading, by Miss Doris Borgerson; two songs, by Miss Gladys Grant. Mrs. Quimby was introduced by Mrs. Emery and gave a most interesting informal talk. She said in part:

"I want to pay my respects to the teachers, no matter how delinquent the home life. The teacher is there at the hour for school to open, with a trained mind, interested to develop the raw materials into good citizenship. Practicing self control, she impels respect, reverence, obedience, sentiments so needed in the social and moral and spiritual life. The teacher more and more must give the instruction in those things essential in a well developed life. So we note that in the 1935 platform of the National Educational Association regarding effects of alcohol and narcotics. The N.E.G. urges complete and scientific instruction in the schools regarding the effects of alcohol and narcotics on the human body and the social organization and expresses its disapproval of any false advertising or propaganda on the subject, endorsed by N.E.A. convention, 1936.

"Various church groups of youth speak upon the alcohol problem. They urge total abstinence, elimination of advertisers of alcoholic beverages in newspapers, billboards, magazines, and to register widespread public opinions with radio companies in protest against advertising of the same.

"On the other hand, more brazenly than ever before, liquor advertising experts are frankly declaring that their objective is to swell the numbers of their profitable victims from the ranks of youth and American wives and mothers. Their advice is 'Appeal to the coming generation. It is the teaching you do now that is going to help you increase your percentage of beer consumed by women. Supply mothers and housewives with up-to-date recipes, coax them to write in for menus, appeal to their eye and their vanity and your battle is won!'

"We call to your attention that a provision for a percent of the liquor revenue to be allocated to the public school fund has been incorporated in the respective liquor laws of ten States. The Tennessee Christian Advocate calls attention to this and notes the probable consequences. It is in order now to protest any teaching in the schools of the truth about alcohol used as a beverage on the ground that it is ungrateful to bite the hand that feeds you! We must be on the lookout against such legislation.

"It is a recognized fact that the approach to the children will change the trend of the entire nation, either as a blessing or as a menace, according to the line of approach. The need of this kind of instruction has been recognized by the W.C.T.U. from the beginning of its work history and has been prepared for in its departments as well as in the Y.T.C. and L.T.L.

"National W.C.T.U. established the first school of alcohol education ever held in history. Educators, physicians, writers and other leaders assembled at Evanston, Ill., for a three months' course in research and study to fit themselves to go out as teachers of the great truth which must be taught 'What alcohol is and what it does.' To facilitate in this teaching Dr. Bertha Rachel Palmer has brought out the Syllabus in Alcohol and many other helpful publications.

"Just as world civilization was threatened by German militarism in 1918 so it is being threatened today by the onslaught of alcohol. Another world crisis confronts us, we must meet it with alcohol education in our Sunday schools, our schools, our young people, groups and the children's groups."

Following Mrs. Quimby's address a social time was enjoyed with opportunity to examine the large offering of helpful literature, posters, banners, etc., on display.

Refreshments were served, Mrs. Nellie McKay, Mrs. Etta Stoddard, Mrs. Reta Robinson presiding at the punch bowls, containing a refreshing concoction of fruit juices from the W.C.T.U. recipes for "Wholesome Fruit Beverages."

"Katie says she is absolutely in love with my new six-cylinder."

"Um, another case of the machine taking the place of the man."

Wise

A Word to a Woman

Have you a dollar in your pocketbook?
Take it out—look at it.
Now read what happens to it!

THERE'S one thing about you women that few men realize.

That is what really wise buyers you are. So here's a down-to-brass-tacks financial talk to women. And women alone.

You're not getting your dollar's worth in what you buy—because of taxes.

At first glance taxes seem to have about as much to do with what you buy as the man in the moon. But wait!

You had a loaf of bread on the table last night. For Jim, Sonny, the baby and yourself.

White bread, rye bread or pumpnickel, get this about that loaf of bread...

You paid fifty-two different taxes on it!

When you sliced that loaf... you sliced your way through these taxes. Only two cents worth. Small enough.

But, it's equal to about one-fourth of the price! In taxes that start with the farmer and end on your supper table.

Man cannot live by bread alone. Neither can taxes.

SO TAXES beginning with the bread... most of them what are called "hidden taxes"... gallop through your husband's income, or your own income.

Taxes that amount to 20% of all that comes into the family till. Twenty cents in every dollar.

Perfumes cost more, because of taxes; movie tickets, toothpaste, your radio set, playing cards, chewing gum, the cream in your coffee... and the coffee, too. Life insurance policies, hair nets, ice cream sodas, telephones—on these and a thousand other ordinary, every day items and necessities, you pay hidden or direct taxes. Buy two packs of cigarettes for a quarter—you pay twelve cents tax, and in some places a State tax besides. If you pay $40 a month rent, $10 of it is taxes. The family car, the gasoline to run it. Your camera, your lipstick... every single, solitary match you use—on these, also, taxes!

Think about that. Whether your husband pays income taxes or not... a tax on each of these items is passed along to you both.

TWO CENTS in every ten. Twenty cents in every dollar. Twenty dollars in every hundred. That's what you pay to run the government.

It's more interesting to be specific. Say you want... and what woman doesn't... a new wool suit for Fall.

A sheep herder begins the procession. He pays a tax... adding to the price of the wool. The sheep are clipped. The wool scoured. A wool broker buys it...

... sells it in turn to the manufacturer. Taxes all along the line. The cloth is sold to the garment maker. Taxes. He makes your suit... sells it to a retailer. Taxes. Taxes. The retailer sells it to you... only, however, after he's paid some taxes—all of which you must pay, or he soon finds red ink in his ledger.

DON'T forget, in addition, all these people use other services to get the suit to you. These include insurance, advertising, transportation, banking. More taxes in these, too. No matter who you are, you can't evade these taxes. And it's reasonable to say if all these taxes had been less, you'd pay less for your new Fall suit.

It all gets pretty difficult, doesn't it? But it explains—a little, perhaps—why your husband's pay-check doesn't go as far as it should.

Let's not be too harsh. Taxes are necessary to support our government—Federal, State and Local. But just as there are well-operated businesses, and poorly-operated ones, so governments can be either economical with your money or wasteful. It is waste which must be eliminated. For when political office-holders dance too merrily, every person who buys pays the piper.

Your family, Mrs. America, in effect last Fall owed $1,600 to the government. Yes, madam... Federal, State and Local indebtedness amounted to $1,600 for each family. A grand—and staggering—total of fifty billion dollars as compared with six billion twenty years ago.

Government debts, like personal ones, must be paid... by you, your children, your grandchildren. Today, every fourteen workers in private enterprise support a regular government employee—exclusive of those receiving relief and benefit payments.

Yet for all this vast, bewildering expenditure, little or no new productive wealth is made. Now that's a little complicated, isn't it? But it means just this. If you didn't have to pay so much for taxes—you could spend more for food, clothes and other things that you want. It would thus be turned back into industry to make permanent new jobs... to buy new equipment... new machines—producing more and better things for all of us.

WHAT CAN you do about it? You must do something. For it concerns you and your future happiness.

"Soak the rich" sounds fine... looks good on paper, too. But it just doesn't work. Suppose the government took away every cent from people with incomes of over $100,000 a year. It would pay Federal, State and Local costs for ten days. The Federal Government alone would spend it in three weeks. All the incomes over $5,000 a year would last less than four months! So, you see, it's the people with less than $5,000 a year who really pay.

Now, here's where it comes squarely up to you.

Let the tax makers and the tax takers see you don't like this.

Write your Senator, your Congressman, your Governor, your local officers. Let them know your personal interest in this subject. Let them know you are willing to aid in cutting government costs... that you don't like this continued search for new things to tax.

Write today. Tell your friends to write.

Check up on those who seek public office this Fall. Make them understand you disapprove. Too many taxes, at too high a personal cost to you, have gone on too long.

Be a wise woman.
