FLUNDER FISHING

The fish business is booming at Southwest Harbor just now, and last week more than 16,000 pounds of flounders were shipped from the wharf of the Addison Packing Company, bringing the highest price paid in years. One fisherman is reported to have netted more than $100 a day for several days. The other day Louis Kurtz of New York came by airplane to look after his fish interests.

A Travel Story In Five Episodes—Cost of Living In the Province of Quebec

(By The Roving Reporter—Third Installment)

We met F. Durand at the Pierreville toll bridge, midway between Nicolet and Sorel. This time the title was plain "Mister" and not Monsieur. It was quite a relief after journeying through French territory half a day to meet up with somebody who could talk the good old English language and answer the several hundred questions with which Ed Gonia and I were surcharged. This toll bridge which is 2100 feet long, was formerly manned by a French crew, but the change, with Mr. Durand in charge, is one that is bound to please English speaking tourists. This extremely courteous and obliging official has six assistants.

I had a consuming curiosity to know what it costs to live in Canada, and first I asked about the price of meats. Mr. Durand told me that good beef steaks sold as low as 10 cents a pound, and at our luncheon later in the day we ate splendid samples which the proprietor said cost her 22 cents. And here were some of the other meat prices: Pork steak, 13 cents; veal steak, 8 cents; ham, 15 to 22 cents; lamb, 7 cents; lamb steak, 10 cents.

What Some Commodities Cost
Other commodities commanded the following prices, according to Mr. Durand: Butter, 27 cents; eggs, 22 cents; sugar, 5 cents; bread, two pounds for 8 cents; rice 5 cents; maple syrup, $1.25 for an imperial gallon; flour, $2.80 for a hundred pound bag; corn flour, $2.75; oats, 36 pounds for 40 cents; cheese, 15 cents; three cans of tomatoes, 25 cents; Golden Bantam corn, three cans for 25 cents.

The prices per pound for fresh fish were: Yellow pike, 10 cents; grass fish, 8 cents; red fins, 6 cents; millet, 3 cents; sturgeon, 10 cents; perch, 2 cents; bullheads (dressed), 10 cents; cat fish, 8 cents.

Soft wood sells at $6 a cord, and hard wood at $8.

"What about wages?" I asked.

Mr. Durand was also well posted on that subject. He said that laborers on the road were paid 27 cents an hour; farm workers, 30 to 38 cents, with board; store clerks, $700 to $1200 a year; carpenters, 35 to 45 cents; section men on the railroad, 35 cents. Eight hour days.

Toll Bridge Prices
Defense de trotter reads one of the toll-bridge signs, and it means that there must be no trotting on the bridge. The toll for crossing Pont Lapierre is 25 cents. The bill of prices for various forms of transportation were thus listed on the back of a report sheet which Mr. Durand loaned me for "copy" paper: Bleus, 15c; Jaunes, 20c; Verts, 25c; Bruns, 30c; Roses, 40c; Rouges, 60c; Do, 75c; Livrets de 10, $2; Livrets de 20, $3; Livrets de 50, $5.

Some of you readers may know what that means, but I pass, as the feller said.

An observant eye can record much of interest in a trip like this, even if the rain is falling in torrents.

Why Pork Is Cheap
It was easy, for instance, to understand why pork prices are so reasonable in the Province of Quebec, because in every farm yard there were scores of hogs—handsome hogs, if I may be permitted to use an adjective which the farmer would understand. They roamed at will over-running lawns, pastures and even the highways. And this recalls an incident which occurred around midnight as we were wending our way up the Chaudiere valley. A white object loomed ahead of us in the road, and looked rather grotesque as it ruminated in the middle of the highway. The white object was a hog which would probably have tipped the scales at 200 pounds. He refused to move and as possession is nine points of the law, we made the necessary detour and passed on. I wondered as we rode along, if that wasn't how the familiar expression "road hog" originated.

Mr. Durand told us that we were passing through one of the oldest Indian reservations in this country, occupied by 320 Abenakis, whose means of livelihood was basket work. A building on the reservation is 200 years old.

Winter Sports Project, Hosmer's Pond

A movement which seems destined to revolutionize the winter activities of Knox County, and which will undoubtedly spread to other sections of the State, has been inaugurated at Hosmer's Pond by enthusiastic citizens of Camden, and under the direct sponsorship of the Camden Outing Club.

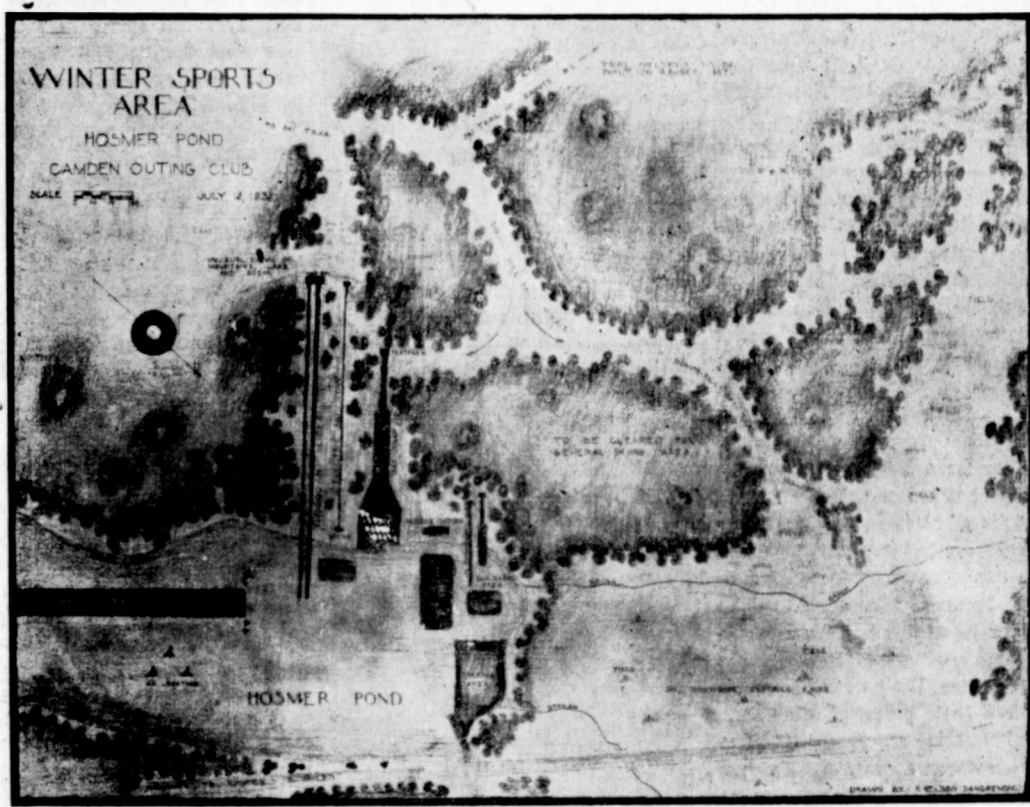

Forty-five acres of land on the northern side of the lake are being converted into a winter sports area, in the center of which is arising, almost overnight, a lodge house which will have modern equipment, and eventually furnish a delightful retreat for those who go to Hosmer's Pond to enjoy the winter sports.

The lodge represents the splendid Camden spirit which has been responsible for so many successes there, for the work is being done voluntarily, and much of the equipment has already been pledged. A reporter of The Courier-Gazette who visited the scene of activities yesterday afternoon was treated to a demonstration of this patriotism when A. H. (Skip) Parsons volunteered to take charge of the plumbing, he and his men contributing the labor and much of the material. Camden enterprises know what it means to have "Skip" Parsons lined up with them; yet this is only an instance of the manner in which Camden citizens are putting their shoulders to the wheel.

The proposition is not wholly confined to Camden support, however. The reporter saw John Pomeroy taking an active interest in proceedings, and had his assurance that the Rockland Chamber of Commerce has aligned itself solidly in favor of the Hosmer's Pond winter sports area, and is going to do everything in its power to help make the matter a success.

The unlooked for triumph of last year's winter carnival is what set the promoters to thinking. They saw a commonplace and informal program bringing to that resort more than 8000 persons in two days, and it did not require a great deal of mathematical science to show that a real winter sports carnival with a real winter sports plant would mean marvelous things to Camden and to Rockland where many visitors from outside would be obliged to seek food and lodgings during the carnival.

With this brief preface, let Eugene C. Rich, the dynamic president of the Camden Outing Club tell the story.

This plan of the proposed winter sports area at Hosmer's Pond may not mean much to the novice; visit that resort any Sunday and see what is going on.

each end. The building is of very heavy construction with enormous beams plainly in sight.

The interior is to be paneled with knotty pine and antiqued as well as the furnishings that will be built locally. On each end of the main building will be wings each 18x20. In one wing will be a kitchen and rest room for men and women. The other wing will contain a waxing and drying room for skis, a locker room for skis, toboggans and skates and a small office. The Lodge will be kept open day and evenings during the winter months and food will be available at all times.

Profitables and elevations have been taken for an electric ski tow which will serve to take skiers up sizes of ski jumps will be laid out for children as well as a skating area for children.

A class of 10 or 12 foot iceboats will be formed with a limited sail area so that for most sport can be enjoyed. A track will be laid out on the ice for horseracing and a committee is working on arranging a schedule for the coming winter.

Railroads have been contacted and snow trains can be brought here as soon as the area is completed.

Everything that has been done has been entirely through volunteer labor. During the summer engineers have surveyed the whole area and made accurate blueprints of everything projected. An architect designed the Lodge building. One of the leading winter sports engi-

A membership drive was held and books of tickets for a gift ball with a Plymouth car as prize were put on sale as a means of raising money to purchase material for the project. The Camden Fire Department offered to construct the main building. Two local contractors offered to ask their men to volunteer to build the wings of the building, truckmen offered the service of themselves and trucks free, antique men to antique the attractive furniture that will be built by volunteers, masons to build the fireplaces, granite for the fireplaces was offered by Booth Bros. plumbers to do the plumbing, electricians to wire the building, painters to stain and do the necessary painting, women to serve meals, a farmer

Governor-elect Lewis O. Barrows paid a personal visit to the scene of activities. Here he is, smiling, in the center of a happy group of volunteer workers.

During the past ten years skiing has been made a major sport in most schools and colleges hence the tremendous growth in the sport in recent years. From the proposed ski trails a view may be had of the ocean, lake and mountains; a condition existing in no other place.

In front of the Lodge will be an enclosed hockey rink which will be illuminated at night and in which games can be played by league teams that will be formed. A large skating area will be kept clear at all times for adults. At one side a small toboggan slide and several

At noon dinner was served to the workers at Harold Corthell's cottage. By nightfall the sills had been laid for the main building.

The following week the group of volunteers went to work again rafting lumber and building and by nightfall the floor timbers were in and part of the floor laid.

Last Sunday a still larger group showed up and by nightfall after a very strenuous day with 35 carpenters working and many laborers passing up the material, the floor, posts, girders and plates of the main building were in place. One wing had the sills, floor, studs and plates in place ready for roof rafters and the other wing was ready for the studding. The building has been going up as if by magic and never have men worked harder. The construction of the main building is very heavy as a great deal of 8x10 timber is used. Two or three more working days will see the whole building 80 feet long practically completed.

During the day Gov. Barrows visited the project and endorsed winter sports as Maine's great new opportunity for business and stated that while he is in office he will do everything he can to foster it.

The Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs of Rockland have been addressed regarding the project for this section as well as the directors of the Chamber of Commerce. They are wholeheartedly behind it and the Chamber of Commerce is planning to put on a membership drive and stimulate the sale of gift ball tickets to help it along. The Chamber of Commerce of Rockland feels that the whole project is one of the finest things that has come up in years to benefit this section.

The dues of the Outing Club have been kept ridiculously low for it is the desire of the Club to have everyone able to join. The dues for one year are less than the prices charged for one day's use of other winter sports areas and no place offers the variety of activities that will be offered in this area. Dues are only $1. a year for adults and 50 cents for children and they include use of the House and facilities of the club throughout the winter.

The whole project will be of inestimable benefit to this section of Maine for as it becomes known and famous as the years go by our hotels, rooming houses, garages, eating places and businesses of all and every type cannot help but benefit. New money brought into this section benefits everyone directly or indirectly.

The Camden Outing Club is offered as follows:

President, Eugene C. Rich; first vice president, George W. Dyer; second vice president, Josiah Hobbs; treasurer, T. Jenness French; secretary, Francis Merchant; executive committee, George W. Pullen, George H. Thomas, Albert E. Whitehill, E. Hamilton Hall, J. Hugh Montgomery Harold S. Corthell, Donald H. Rollins, and Percy R. Keller.

REQUEST GRANTED

Award of the contract for the Deer Isle Bridge by Nov. 16 will be regarded as complying with Public Works Administration ultimatum that work must be started on the project to hold the allocation of federal money. Horatio Hackett, Assistant PWA Administrator, said Tuesday. This is conditioned on activity of the bridge district and PWA will not stand for any dilly-dallying on the project, said Hackett.

He said that the request of the district to extend time for actually starting work till Dec. 1 had been granted.

PWA has approved allocation of $315,000 grant and $385,000 loan to the Deer Isle-Sedgwick Bridge District for the project. This, Hackett pointed out, is a large allocation of PWA money for Maine, other larger States having received less.

FERNALD GETS JUMP

But Will Probably Not Have the Field Alone Two Years Hence

There was nothing unexpected in the announcement that Senator Roy L. Fernald of Waldo County would seek the Republican nomination for Governor in 1940. It had been well understood for nearly two years that he planned to take this step. The real announcement of the Fernald candidacy came about the time the Legislature of 1935 assembled. At that time the Waldo Senator made it known in a definite announcement that he was aiming at the Governorship, that it was his big aspiration to hold that office. At the time he made it equally clear that he had no intention of being a candidate this year, though it was known that some of his admirers and political followers were urging him to do so.

Without making a definite statement Senator Fernald let the impression go abroad that he planned to seek a second term in the Senate, as he has done, and then go after the governorship, which would bring him into the field in 1940.

Every move of the session of 1935 which Fernald made was a part of his gubernatorial campaign. He opened a house there, a campaign headquarters, with a campaign manager, C. C. Worth, retired business man in charge of the layout. He entertained; he did everything a candidate is supposed to do to create prestige and win votes for himself.

To show his strength his independence, he started his famous filibuster, which was based mostly on the idea that he as chairman of a committee had not been treated justly.

So, as mentioned, the announcement which came shortly after the September election that he was going into the primary in 1940, was merely a confirmation of something which had already been announced and was well known.

As to what the effect of this announcement will have it is not easy to say. There are those, no doubt, who will feel that it gives the Waldo county man an edge, that it makes him more certain of winning. It is all well enough to think that, but there are things to make you wonder if he has been wise.

The only edge it gives him is that it makes him the first announced candidate. It is doubtful if that will get him a vote more than as though he had not come out flatfooted as a candidate until January 1940. In the recent primary in Maine Blin W. Page of Skowhegan made his announcement a few days after the election of 1934, yet Barrows, who did not announce until the early part of 1936, captured the prize.

One reason for this is that most persons who pledge a man support so far ahead, when there is no other candidate in the field, either make a proviso to the effect that if so and so as a candidate they shall have to support him, or else, in the event of someone else they like coming into the battle, inform you that they must withdraw their promise.

Today, Fernald, as the only announced candidate, is sitting pretty, but it is a safe gamble that before the primary in June 1940, he'll have plenty of opposition and you can't pick winners at this time. —Sam Connor in the Lewiston Journal.

Mr. Roosevelt's Appeal to Class Hatred is a Violation of America's Creed of Equality

By Nicholas Roosevelt

For the National Republican Builders, Inc.

No candid student of politics questions the effectiveness and "smartness" of President Roosevelt's deliberate attempt to set class against class in this country. But no one truly concerned with America's welfare can help deploring this attempt.

Complaint does not come alone from the Republicans. General Hugh S. Johnson, of N.R.A. "crack-down" fame, in commenting on President Roosevelt's address on the state of the nation last January described that document as a "rabble rouser" and a "deliberate appeal to passion." As if this were not enough he said it was "the joy of every advocate of class hatred here and in Russia" and made President Roosevelt "chief of the faction discontent."

The former Democratic Governor of Massachusetts, Mr. Joseph B. Ely, in summarizing the Roosevelt record, said that we have been witnessing "the strongest appeal to class hatred ever practiced in America."

This sort of thing is common in other countries. It has usually been part of the technique of revolutions. For the politician it is one of the easiest weapons to use. Envy, jealousy and resentment of other people's good fortune is too common a trait to be ignored in chasing power through votes.

But here in America it has never before been more than a sectional matter. The West has always distrusted and resented the East, and in times of depression has conjured up visions of Eastern "moneyed interests" trying to "oppress" the West. But no one tried to set income group against income group. Not even Theodore Roosevelt's jibes against "malefactors of great wealth" was directed against their wealth so much as against their personal misdeeds.

But Franklin D. Roosevelt has adopted different tactics. He has not only made himself the champion of the men and women in the lower income brackets—a proper and laudable thing—but he has deliberately maligned and blackguarded men of wealth and position regardless of how they acquired their money. Hence his attacks on "princes of privilege" and his description of the "economic royalists" against whom the American people have to wage a new war for independence—with himself enlisted as their commanding officer "for the duration of the war."

His mastery of high-sounding phrases has helped him in this. Few public men have been more skilled in conveying an impression and creating an emotion without specifically making charges or being inflammatory. The tenor of most of his recent speeches has been that there is now a class war in this country and that he stands for all those whose incomes are less than $2,500 a year whereas all who have more than this are against him. The implication is that they are against him because they are men of substance, and that as they are against him their motives are sordid and selfish. One of the corollaries of this is that success and the possession of property are in themselves reprehensible.

No thoughtful person questions that much still remains to be done before the general level of living is raised to a high enough point in this country. No one doubts that many persons have needed a helping hand and a powerful political champion. Mr. Roosevelt has made himself this champion and has used the public funds to help persons out of work.

But in the process he has brought America one step nearer the state of mind of strife-torn Europe. Class consciousness is the prelude to class hatred, and class hatred is indispensable if there is to be class warfare. On class warfare depends a successful revolution.

That Mr. Roosevelt desires such a revolution is not to be believed. Very probably he has no idea that his course leads in this direction. But the fact is inescapable that in inciting class feeling he is striking at one of the fundamental tenets of the American people—that here there are no class barriers and that a man may rise to the highest office that government or industry can offer him, having started from poverty and humble origins.

If Mr. Roosevelt were to analyze the lives of the successful men in America today he would find that the great majority came from families without wealth or "privilege." A few, of course, inherited large fortunes. But Mr. Roosevelt has only to look at his own wealthy schoolmates to see that few of those who inherited wealth hold positions of power in the country.

With his customary hazy thinking and his unerring instinct for the politically expedient, Mr. Roosevelt has inspired class hatred because it is the easiest way of winning the support of those on whom he must rely to be re-elected. He does not see that much can be done for the "depressed classes," as his followers like to speak of them, without tearing down the successful. What is needed is a process of building. What Mr. Roosevelt offers is the destructive force of envy and hate, pandering to greed.

"The Mannerly Claude," a one-act play, was presented by the 8-3 division at Wednesday's Junior High assembly, under the direction of Miss Hagar, with this cast: "Jeanette," Doris Gatti; "Leonora," Lena Cucinello; "Rose," Barbara Seaman; "Virginia," Mary Lamb; "Cassie," Mary Anastasia; "Miss Clovelly," Jeanette Saunders; "Neal," James Moulaison; "Claude," Harold Tolman. The stage manager was Richard Brown, assisted by Harry Richardson. A piano solo, "May Night," played by June Chatto, was followed by singing by the school. Clarence Butler was chairman and devotions were led by Lucille Connor.

Coach Matheson is being assisted in his physical education classes by these upperclassmen: Betty McAlary, Elizabeth Till, Stella Young, Ruth Pike, Dorothy Welch, Charleen Ramsdell, Kenneth Morgan, Verneyle Black, Tony Murgita, Fred LaCrosse, Domenick Cucinello, Charles Dorgan, and William Karl.

The Highlight, published by the Press Club, will be on sale next week.

The work of The Maine School Clinics for the prevention of tuberculosis of the lungs in this school has been begun this week. This service is given to those who desire it, without expense.

"Football for the Fans" was the title of a talking picture given in the auditorium Wednesday morning by Ralph N. Percival, of the sporting goods department of The James Bailey Company of Portland. In this picture, the wedge play, the kicking game, deception plays, the forward pass, and penalties were described by Coach Howard Jones of the University of Southern California with the leading teams of last season and their coaches giving demonstrations. The student bodies of both the Senior and Junior High were privileged to see this educational film, and, in the event that the school earns a talking movie projector and equipment by selling enough magazines subscriptions, there will be many more such pleasant occasions in the future.

Walter Fischer, formerly of Hanover, N. H., has joined the sophomore class.

Eleanor Johnson has been school stenographer this week. Office boys included Robert Rogers, Austin Staples, Kenneth Post, John Gupitill, Neil Russell, Richard Ames, and Paul York from the Junior Business Training classes.

The Senior and Junior High Schools were entertained royally last Tuesday afternoon by Paul Clemens and his merry Marionettes of Hanover, Maine. Mr. Clemens gave a very fine introduction, telling the history and purpose of these shows in different times and countries from the old morality plays of the church up to the present theatre.

The puppets gave a dramatization of Irving's classic, "Rip Van Winkle," with the first act showing the old schoolmates telling "Rip" of the legend of Hudson and his wife and nine pins; the second, a scene with his shrewish wife; the third, a portrayal of the meeting with Hudson and his keg of wine. In the fifth he wakes up and tells his cronies that the story of Hendrick Hudson is true, and the sixth and last shows his return to his native village and his bewilderment at finding everything changed.

Mr. Clemens interposed his fifth and sixth acts with an explanation of his little actors and how he manages them. According to his demonstration, one must be a combination of a ventriloquist and Tchaikowsky to manipulate them correctly. The equipment, scenery, effects and marionettes used by Mr. Clemens are personal creations and he is one of the few who operates an entire production unassisted. The Puppet Masters program was a new type for the high school and I, for one, hope there are more like it. —James East.

Superintendent Cumming has been visiting classes here this week.

Boy Scout Troop No. 203 met Tuesday evening at this school. At the sound of the bugle each patrol marched from its respective room to the gym. After the opening ceremony, a quarter of an hour was given to test passing. At the business meeting William Weed and Joseph Anastasio were voted into the troop. After playing games, the meeting ended with the closing ceremony.

Economic Geography classes taught by Miss Tower have completed their study of drought conditions which have so seriously affected agricultural regions of the Middle West. "The Bread Basket of the U. S." The final reports on this study are some unusually good notebooks including topics on "Effect of the Drought on Entire Country" and "Restoration and Conservation plans." Hester Hatch wrote an appropriate poem; Eleanor Barnard's notebook is composed of pages cut out as maps of U. S.; Vallie MacLaughlin's report was selected as best for the excellent content, pictures, maps, and summaries; LeRoy Bohn has a poster with a large map of the drought section in center, bordered by four smaller maps showing rainfall of region crops, animals, and dams. Other reports rated highly for their drawings, clever arrangement, or excellent content were made by Evelyn Bragg, Alice Kent, Maxine Kent, Natalie Orne, Virginia Wood, Dorothy Brewer, Velora Hickman, Robert Hall, Vivian Oakes, Ruth Oliver, Margaret Osier, Elizabeth White, Oalla Hickman, Theodore Berner, Bernard Berggren, Lillian Young, Erol Simmons, Kathleen Drake and Helen Leppanen.

For the past six weeks the advance classes in manual training have had a brief course in mechanical drawing to enable them to draw and read blue prints and to be able to express their own ideas on paper intelligently

They are now designing and drawing up their cabinet project which soon will be under way. With last year's background, and with the variety of interesting projects that are being developed on paper, it looks as if the manual arts department will have an exhibit next spring that will make last year's exhibit look like a second hand shop.

The seniors were hosts last evening at a school social which was well attended by pupils, parents, and teachers. As a feature of the entertainment a musical group composed of Eleanor Look, Betty McAlary, Muriel McPhee, Maizie Joy, Margaret Osier, Margaret McMillan, Vieno Kangas, Priscilla Robinson, Charleen Ramsdell, Helvi Rivers, Barbara Orff, and June Cook with Mary Havener, Edith Dondis, and Virginia Gray singing "The Way You Look Tonight" was given, with Ernest Johnson at the piano. A pantomime "Miss Popularity" directed by Mr. Levensaler was presented by members of the senior class. Eddie Whalen's six piece orchestra provided music for the dancing.

Today is Apple Day sponsored by the Rockland Rotary Club and in charge of Russell Nash. Buy an apple for a dime or more with proceeds for the benefit of the R. H. S. Athletic Fund!

At a pep rally Friday afternoon the school was delighted to hear James Connellan and John Richardson, as guest speakers, who predicted success, gave encouragement, and advised attendance at today's game.

GAME POSTPONED

The Morse High-Rockland football game scheduled for this afternoon has been postponed to Monday, Oct. 19, 2:30 at Community Park.

Joseph H. Murray, the suspect brought from Aroostook County, was released by Sheriff Ludwick yesterday. A thorough grilling convinced the officers that he had nothing to do with the murder of Mrs. Ada Mills of Camden.

A fair sized audience at Rockland High School Wednesday saw the first showing of the Lions Festival Nights, the King's Ambassadors Quartet being the entertainers. The applause from the audience and comments from music lovers indicated that this was an excellent program. The quartet numbers were varied and of superlative quality. The solos were exceptionally well sung, while the bell ringing ranked peerless—how those four professionals could play! The selection, "The Bells of St. Mary" was alone worth the price of the entertainment.

An important matter of policy was approved by the general committee of the new Community Building at its Thursday night meeting to the effect that the Rockland High School should have preference over other groups in the use of the new auditorium which it is hoped will be ready for use before Christmas. The new auditorium lends itself admirably to basketball and athletic drills with about 1000 permanent seats and a standard floor. By some this move is thought to presage the cutting up of the small gym at the High School building into class rooms to relieve the existing congestion to some extent. It is thought in some quarters that the large recreation rooms at the new building may be used temporarily for school purposes to eliminate extreme overcrowding.

IT WAS "STEAMBOAT NIGHT"
And Jolly Crew At the Baptist Men's League
Enjoyed It To the Utmost

The Baptist Men's League held its first meeting of the season Thursday night, and there was a decidedly nautical flavor, both in the appearance of the vestry and the character of the conversation.

It was "Steamboat Night" and those who had charge of the affair were momentarily transformed into hardy sea dogs, the other members serving as interested passengers.

The location of the pilot house may have been a bit incongruous, but the "no admittance" sign savored of maritime strictness. Signs indicated the hurricane deck, saloon deck and galley, while the port and starboard lights were the real articles.

President Frank H. Ingraham, a relative of the late Capt. Otis Ingraham, one time commodore of the Boston and Bangor fleet, appeared temporarily as captain, and at the captain's table sat that gallant old tar, Capt. David Haskell, Edward O'B. Gonia, Almon B. Cooper formerly steamboat agent at North Haven; and John M. Richardson, formerly an employee of the Vinalhaven & Rockland Steamboat Co., now turned marine historian.

Captain Ingraham sounded two bells for supper, the gong on which the signal was sounded having formerly done duty on the ill-fated tug Irvington which rests beneath the waters on the southern edge of Knox County. When the tug was abandoned the bell was removed, and has since done duty on the local tug John Chester Morrison.

Life on the ocean wave would be ideal if they always served meats as good as the one which the women folks provided on this occasion. There might, however, be considerable resulting mal de mer.

When supper was concluded opportunity was given to examine the many scores of steamboat photographs which had been assembled from many quarters, but chiefly from the elaborate collections of Frank H. Ingraham and John M. Richardson. An album, once the property of the late Capt. Otis Ingraham was examined with much interest.

Two new members were admitted to the League—Supt. George J. Cumming and Gerald E. Beverage of North Haven—shanghaied into the "crew," one might almost say. Special guests were Arthur Robinson and Donald Matheson.

Capt. Haskell said he began his seafaring career at the age of 13, and it must have been that early in order to provide the proper background for his many experiences. The Levi Woodbury's deck was the scene of his apprenticeship. "I have had many hard knocks," said Capt. Dave, adding that that familiar twinkle in his eye—"and lots of fun."

He told how he once navigated the steamer J. T. Morse between two rows of yachts while entering North Haven harbor in a heavy sea. According to Northwest Ledge.

"Could cut circles around the Bodwell," said Capt. Dave

According to his veracious account the wharf was moved 10 feet, 11 1/2 inches when the Morse swung into it. He told also how he beat the Bodwell on one occasion while in command of E. M. Lawrence's boat the Princess. The latter was carrying a group of Elks to Vinalhaven, and when somebody offered to bet $100 that the Gov. Bodwell could beat the Princess back home the sports passengers were ready to bet $10,000 it couldn't.

Capt. Haskell's talk was punctuated with humorous incidents, which came to the surface on Captain Ingraham's prompting. He told, for instance, how the editor of the Star had reported him dead when he went to High Island and failed to return next day. The irate captain threatened to punch the editor's head if he reported him dead again.

County Attorney J. C. Burrows read with excellent effect Holman F. Day's poem, "The Tale of the Kennebec Maria."

F. A. Winslow told of early voyages on the old steamer Pioneer, and of newspaper connection with the wrecking of the City of Rockland on Northwest Ledge, the loss of the steamer W. G. Butman, the loss of the cement steamer Pollas on Old Cilley Ledge; and the last trip of the steamer Belfast.

John M. Richardson, whose recent steamboat article served as an admirable booster for "Steamboat Night" told how he had been lured by the sea ever since he used to spend his summer vacations with Capt. Peter Richardson on the tug Sommers N. Smith—and incidentally how he came near being hurled overboard when he undertook to scoop a pail of water from the sea. He was on board the Smith when it arrived early on the scene of the City of Rockland's disaster at Northwest Ledge.

Ed Gonia steered ten steamers

Referring to his connection with the Vinalhaven & Rockland Steamboat Co., he vigorously defended the Bodwell's speed record. Speaking of his amassed steamboat material he told of having 55 ships in his collection. Eloquently descriptive was his reference to the last trip of the Belfast.

Almon B. Cooper's reminiscences were product of 15 years in Penobscot Bay steamboat service at North Haven. He recalled the packet Greyhound and the Sylvia—the latter presented to Capt. Philbrook, and later sold to the Vinalhaven & Rockland Steamboat Co. He reviewed briefly the competition between the lines owning the Gov. Bodwell and Vinalhaven and said that no craft ever performed more hazardous service than did the Vinalhaven, when Capt. Alvah Barbour was master. "He would chew a whole plug of Spearhead tobacco on one trip," said Mr. Cooper.

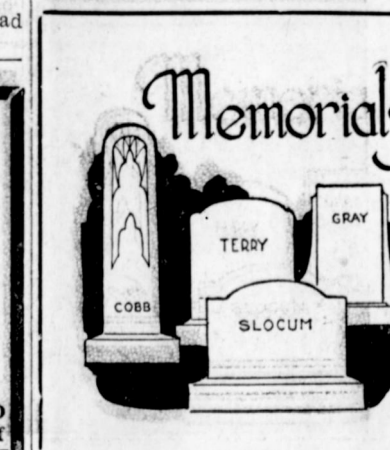

Capt. Ingraham read a letter from Capt. Barbour, now located in Abington, Mass., in which the writer told of the 106 courses which it was necessary to run. "I think of the boys now in every bad freeze," said Capt. Barbour in conclusion.

Capt. Ingraham suggested that Mr. Gonia tell something about his experiences when he was shipwrecked on Robinson's Rock with the Masons, adding the information that he was the owner of the Rock.

Mr. Gonia had been jotting down some memoranda on his cuff during the meeting and found that he had served on ten steamers. He recalled some of the humorous incidents in connection with the wreck on Robinson's Rock—for there was humor as well as near tragedy on that occasion. Forty-six Masons were on board. Mr. Gonia "fired" for a time on the Gov. Bodwell. He became mate of the Army mine planter Royal T. Frank, and was its master when the ship came to this port in connection with the Pelican Day celebration. Later he was transferred to the cable ship William Graham. Mr. Gonia has a wonderful array of data in connection with steamboats and sailing vessels. If modesty did not prevent it one of his most interesting stories would relate how, while master of a mine planter, he saved a steamer from going onto the rocks at the Pacific entrance of the Panama Canal.

Throughout this interesting session there had been several references to F. S. Sherman, who was so long and prominently connected with the steamboat industry. Everybody paid tribute to his fine service.

His son, R. S. Sherman, armed with a collection of steamboat books, added to the reminiscences already given, and said that one of the Pioneer's houses was to be seen as part of a Southend structure. His story of the Cobb Club's trip to Bangor on the steamer Penobscot recalled many interesting memories with some of those present.

David, the Sheep Tender

A young man was born in Bethlehem, a little village, in the year B. C. 1085. He was the youngest of ten sons. There was nothing to single him out from his fellows. He was unknown and poor, yet the first time he appears in the annals of mankind we are introduced to his whole family.

Saul was king of Israel and the kingdom was no larger than Wales. David was tending sheep. He probably knew little, if anything, about the King and certainly the King knew nothing of the boy. David was red headed, with bright eyes and a strong body but short in stature. He was stamped with good health for his out of door life had given him strength and alertness. It is said of him that his arms were strong enough to break a bow of steel. He loved music and nights on the mountain side he watched his sheep and sang and played upon his harp.

This boy loved music and he knew not fear. Only one incident of his lonely life has come down to us—his conflict with the lion and the bear. By and alone, you would say his chance in life was poor indeed. Nine older brothers and he a sheep tender. Under those shepherd garments was the heart of a genius. One day his opportunity came and he stepped into the pages of history, never to be obscure or forgotten again.

God had marked the Shepherd lad. Today history is being made faster than in centuries in David's time. God is reaching for young men with courage. Perhaps some young man within reach of this article, to place him in the ranks of latter day history.

THE DIGEST POLL

Landon Maintaining His Decisive Lead Except a Small Percentage

Landon captures 32 States and Roosevelt 16 as 1,811,488 ballots are reported from all States in the quarter final returns of The Literary Digest's nation-wide Presidential poll.

Though the Republican nominee's lead decreases slightly percentage-wise he still retains a substantial majority of close to 3 to 2 in the popular vote represented by the poll returns.

The seventh week's tabulation shows Landon with 1,004,086 poll votes to Roosevelt's 728,088 and Lemke's 61,981.

Initial returns are reported in this seventh week's tabulation from eight additional States. Vermont and New Hampshire go approximately 3 to 1 and Connecticut nearly 4 to 1 for Landon.

Delaware gives the Republican candidate an edge of less than 5 to 4 while West Virginia is shown indicating a Republican majority of nearly 3 to 2.

South Carolina's first batch of ballots gives Roosevelt a lead of over 6 to 1. North Carolina votes for him about 3 to 1 and Virginia goes Democratic by over 3 to 2.

Of the 40 States from which ballots were reported last week 22 show an increase lead for Landon, 17 show a decrease and no change is recorded in one.

His own State of Kansas and also Kentucky and Missouri give the Republican nominee substantial increases, while Idaho, Michigan and Wisconsin cut his majority sharply percentage-wise.

Due to the addition of metropolitan city votes Landon's majority is cut in New York from nearly 3 to 1 last week to less than 2 to 1 this week and his majority in Pennsylvania declines over 7 per cent.

The magazine states that the returns from Illinois do not as yet include Chicago nor are returns from Cleveland in the Ohio column yet.

Over 70,000 votes from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are included in the Pennsylvania totals and over 45,000 New York city ballots are in the New York State tabulations in the current report.

All ballots, the mailing origin of which the magazine states it cannot identify, are classified as "State Unknown" which grouping gives a much closer cleavage of the major parties vote than do the main poll totals. This 49th State shows Landon with 6045 votes to Roosevelt's 5714 and Lemke's 602.

A division of the Electoral College vote of these quarter final returns indicate Landon would receive 370 electoral votes to Roosevelt's 161.

"For the first time, The Literary Digest's 1936 Presidential Poll lists returns from the 48 States," the magazine states in its current issue.

"In report number seven, 556,773 new ballots have been entered, checked and tabulated. Eight States appear for the first time.

"For the sixth consecutive week, President Roosevelt has picked the lead captured by Landon in the initial scoring. Landon's percentage this week is 55.4; Roosevelt's, 40.1.

"Still to be counted in, however, is much of the big city vote. Only 45,490 New York city ballots are included in this week's report; 53,181 from Philadelphia; 17,268 from Pittsburgh, none from Chicago or Cleveland."

"Since commentators had repeatedly stressed their belief that the vote in the largest cities, with preponderantly industrial populations, would show a significantly different result than that in other cities, The Literary Digest decided this year to treat the major cities separately, sample the voters there more earnestly and more exhaustively. Hence, these returns necessarily must lag behind the poll as a whole.

"So far New York city returns show 28,327 for the President, 13,694 for the Governor. Illinois results do not include Chicago, Ohio figures omit Cleveland. In Philadelphia, Roosevelt leads with 52.8 per cent to Landon's 41.4; Pittsburgh, scene of the Chief Executive's recent fiery address at Forbes Field, shows a similar lead, with 53.5 per cent to 38.5.

"A great deal has been said about the part relief workers and other beneficiaries of Federal aid are likely to play in the election. Certain observers, insisting that the issue will be tightly drawn between the "haves" and the "have-nots"—i. e. the taxpayers and investors and those on the receiving end of Federal funds—have assumed that the relief vote is the most important factor in the election. Is this true?

"According to an official statement from Washington there were, as of Sept. 1, 2,250,000 persons on the rolls of the various New Deal relief agencies. Since 1933, it is estimated there have been approximately 16,250,000 beneficiaries of doles, AAA benefits, etc.

"On the other side of the picture there are 63,000,000 life insurance policyholders, 45,000,000 gainful workers over 21 years of age, 40,000,000 savings banks depositors, 24,000,000 security owners, 22,500,000 passenger automobile owners, and 10,650,000 residence telephone subscribers, according to recent surveys.

"Obviously, even if one took the liberty of assuming that 100 per cent of the 16,250,000 who have received aid from the government will vote for Roosevelt, there would be the temptation to place a disproportionate emphasis on this minority of the electorate.

"As a matter of fact, about one-eighth of these on relief, according to an official New York survey, will not be eligible to vote at all. And judging from some of the farm State returns, a considerable number of beneficiaries will none the less vote for Landon.

"Lemke wobbles along in the rear, with 3.4 per cent of the vote, his strength showing principally in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Iowa and his native soil of North Dakota. Virtually seven-tenths of his 61,981 ballots come from the Democratic voters of 1932.

"Two more Literary Digest poll reports remain: Oct. 24 and Oct. 31. By then the complete city, industrial, agrarian and other ballots will be in. And the election will come only three days after the last report."

"GRASS ROOTS" POLL

For the first time in five weeks Governor Landon's lead over President Roosevelt in the "grass roots" poll being conducted by the Publishers' Autocaster Service and "The American Press" through 3000 country newspapers throughout the United States showed an increase. The Republican nominee's majority of the popular vote rose 5 per cent to 56.5 per cent, giving him a majority in 27 of the 39 States in which votes have been recorded.

Landon has polled 522,083 votes to 340,053. The States showing a majority for President Roosevelt are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas and Utah.

ROUND POND

Mrs. Diana Robinson of Harrington has recently visited her son, Charles Robinson, who is in ill health. Mr. and Mrs. Amos P. Loud were also recent guests at the Robinson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Poland have moved here for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Loud of New York have been visitors recently at the home of Mr. Loud's sister, Mrs. Helen Poland.

NORTH HAVEN

Mr. and Mrs. William Warren of Boston were last weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tabbutt.

Foy Brown went to the mainland Monday on business.

At the church Sunday night Dr. Nathaniel K. Wood of Boston gave an interesting account of the Harvard Centenary and the significance of this event to education, culture and religion. An adult choir assisted in the service. Dr. Wood is a Harvard graduate and was present at the exercises.

Miss Blanche Cushing and Mrs. Amy Ladd, after spending the summer here, left Wednesday for Sarasota, Fla.

Arnold Beverage of Boston, Milton Beverage and Samuel Beverage arrived here Monday, making the return trip two days later.

One of the largest attended funerals ever held upon the island was that in the church Tuesday afternoon for Ralph C. Beverage, whose death was recorded in a previous issue. It was a touching expression of heartfelt sympathy for the bereaved family.

Practically all island residents were present. Among those from out of town were Frank Ames of Kenduskeag and daughter Miss Alma Ames. There was a wealth of floral tributes. The High School attended in a body, as did members of the Grange and the North Haven band in which deceased was a trumpeter. The burial was in Sea View cemetery. The bearers were Alton Calderwood, Arthur Calderwood, James Brown, Ernest Brown, Edward Beverage, Clarence Waterman, Clifford Parsons, and Nat Stone.

Rally Day at the Sunday school will open Sunday at 10 o'clock. Parents and everyone interested in the church and young people of the island are invited. There will be special features. Mrs. Crockett's adult class is asked to meet at the opening of the school and hold a session with her at 11 o'clock; sermon by the pastor; evening service of song and a brief address by the pastor at 7:30.

FORD FOR LONDON

Henry Ford formally declared his support for Gov. Landon as the Republican Presidential nominee purchased a cross-state campaign for Michigan's electoral votes. "I admire and believe in him; I hope he is elected," the motorcar manufacturer said in a statement after conferring with the Kansas Governor. "I am not criticizing the New Deal," Mr. Ford continued. "I am only saying that we have had enough of it, we have had about all the country can stand."

THE SNAPSHOT GUILD

Don't Forget to Turn the Key or Else—?

It is a rare occurrence when a double exposure does not spoil two good pictures and waste film.

THE above picture of a Brooding-magician young lady miraculously reclining on the surface of the sea amidst a fleet of sailboats reminds us that while modern cameras are indeed close to being robots in their performance, they still demand the cooperation of human intelligence in order to function with the result expected.

The photograph is the curious consequence of a double exposure, illustrating the fact that the film behind your camera lens will not move over for the next picture by the exercise of its own free will. About that it is totally indifferent. You have to perform this operation yourself. If you forget it, and find that you have twice or thrice exposed the same frame of film, you may by chance get a picture as amusing and worth keeping as the one above, but in most cases you will have a meaningless jumble of superimposed shapes and shadows that will interest nobody, not even a Cubist. Result, you have lost two or three pictures that perhaps you can never take again and have wasted film.

Most of us have had this experience. Then why not get the habit of turning the key to the next exposure the very instant after you have taken a picture? If you haven't this habit as yet, and times come, as they always will, when you hesitate because you are not sure whether you turned the key, play safe; give it another turn rather than take the chance of spoiling two pictures.

Of course, you can find plenty of amusement in deliberately making double exposures in order to produce freak photographs. But these need careful planning to be successful. They must be done usually with still subjects and require minute accuracy in the focusing. A tripod is a first necessity. Astounding pictures may be produced by double exposures deliberately planned, but if you have success in such efforts, let your friends be your guides when you exhibit them.

OUR BOOK CORNER

The fall list of the Oxford University Press, New York, offers many interesting publications, such as:

The Oxford Shakespeare, edited by W. J. Craig. In one volume, this is a beautiful new edition, with the well known Oxford notes and glossary, and the text prepared from the First Folio of 1623, and quartos issued during the lifetime of Shakespeare. It is an unexcelled reference book, and is priced at the ridiculous figure of $1.

Name This Child, a dictionary of English and American Christian names. Explaining the meaning and derivation of a large number of first names, the book gives much out-of-the-way information and much entertainment into the bargain. A perfect present for new parents.

The Lonely Wayfarer Man: Emerson and Some Englishmen; by Townsend Scudder.

The Wynne Diaries, Volume II, (1794-1798) edited by Anne Fremantle.

Gabriele Rossetti in England, by E. R. Vincent.

The Methodist Book Concern announces in its new list "Victorious Human Living" by E. Stanley Jones, one of the foremost American missionaries in India. It is said that Dr. Jones has probably addressed larger congregations and led more men to think of the underlying principles of Christianity than any other Christian teacher and preacher in all of India. His ministry has made its appeal more especially to the high-caste Brahmins, the Hindus, and the Mohammedans.

"Us folks" down here in this part of Maine were truly thrilled and proud to read the excellent article about Wilbert Snow appearing in last Sunday's Portland Sunday Telegram, and also to gaze upon the fine likeness portrayed of himself and his lusty children, and to peruse some of his poems which have that tangy salty touch so dear to us. The writer of this column read with particular interest "The Hungry Shark," recalling having heard Mr. Snow include this poem in a Thomaston lecture a few summers ago. He introduced it in his readings in manuscript form and stated that he used it to entertain his sons. He read it in a delightfully informal manner and had the audience joining in with him after each verse on "And under the place where he had no chin. The shark was a-tucking of his napkin in."

The Rebekahs Install

The officers of Ocean Road Rebekah Lodge were installed Tuesday night by Blanche Fuller, D.D.P. and Inez Crosby P. P. of Rebekah Assembly.

The new officers are: Noble Grand, Arlene White; V. G., Helen Orcutt; R. S., Hilma Webster; F. S., Villa Calderwood; treasurer, Sada Robbins; warden, Violet Baum; conductor, Beulah Gilchrist; chaplain, Mae Lawry; R.S.N.G., Hester Ames; L. S. N. G., Cora Peterson; R.S.V.G., Eleanor Conway; L.S.V.G., Cora Bunker; inside guardian, Ruth Billings; outside guardian, Aubrey Ames.

Mrs. Mary Hurley president of Rebekah Assembly, and Annie Whitten, outside guardian, both of Skowhegan were special guests. The degree work was exemplified and a banquet served.

ambush, Indian blood-lust, ruthless massacre, and so on. Full of thrills, courage, perils, and drama of the old West, Zane Grey is unquestionably one of America's favorite authors. His novels have been translated into some 20 languages. In every country of Europe he is one of the handful of American authors who are widely read. As a man Zane Grey is a retiring person of simple tastes. Though born and educated in the East, he is a Westerner by adoption. He is a keen sportsman, and is one of the most famous and successful fishermen living. The great American West, past and present, he loves with passion, and few are better informed about the country, its people and its history.

The newest thing in the magazine field is a co-operative literary quarterly to be called "The American Yellow Book." It is to be owned, issue by issue, by those who contribute to it. The editors will serve without pay and each contributor will be expected to bear his share of the cost of producing issue in which his work appears and will have a proportionate share in the earnings of that issue. But where an author of merit is unable to pay for his share of the issue in which his work is printed, he may be financed by the magazine. In that case, his share of the cost will be deducted from his share of the earnings. The editor is Joseph Baker, from the Middle West the home of the co-operative movement. The first issue will appear in January. Manuscripts for it should be in the editor's hands by Nov. 15. The address is American Yellow Book, 16 Fales street, Hartford, Conn.

Gone With the Wind, by Margaret Mitchell.

A FRESH EGG LAW

Maine Poultry Dealers Have Started Genuine Movement For One

A "genuine movement" has been started by Maine poultrymen, Charles M. White of the State Department of Agriculture said Thursday, to draft a "fresh egg law" for presentation to the legislature in 1937.

"The poultrymen," White said, "feel such a law would help the consumer know the quality of the eggs he is purchasing and likewise aid the producer in keeping a high standard of egg quality for his own sales benefit."

A committee appointed by the Maine Poultry Improvement Association to draft such a bill discussed the proposal at a meeting Friday in the State House.

The committee said a tentative draft of the proposed bill would be presented to the executive committee of the State Poultry Association.

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coast guardmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

When I was down beside the sea
A wooden spade they gave to me
To dig the sandy shore

My holes were empty like a cup
In every hole the sea came up
Till it could come no more
—Robert L. Stevenson

"The Coaster Man"

Having gained no little recognition and success as author of the volume, "Lighthouses of the Maine Coast," Robert Thayer Sterling, assistant keeper at Portland Head Light, announces that he is soon to start writing a new book, a story of shipping days along the Maine coast.

Mr. Sterling's book, which will be entitled "The Coaster-Man," will recount true experiences of Maine sea captains and seamen, who in the last century carried on an active cargo trade in sailing vessels along the coast.

In a couple of weeks Mr. Sterling plans to leave for a trip down the coast. He will interview a number of old sea captains who were active in the coastal trade, and will take pictures of sailing ships along the shores which have long lain idle at dock or pulled up to rot.

His itinerary will embrace all of the well known shipping centers, Rockland, Bar Harbor, Jonesport, Rockport, Camden, Belfast and other places. His book will be a record of the trade during its prime, particularly in the 90's, and will contain accounts of outstanding voyages, thrilling tales of adventure and shipwrecks.

The coaster-man no longer is found in Maine. At one time there were as many as a hundred vessels at a single time in Portland harbor. Now modern motor trucks and the railroad have absorbed all transportation.

Among some of the most noted coaster-men of the past century, who are still living are Capt. Frank O. Hilt, keeper of Portland Head Light, and his brother, Capt. Cyrus Hilt of St. George, and Capt. Arthur Mitchell of Fort Point Light, Penobscot Bay.

Capt. Harry L. Nye, keeper at Doubling Point Range; Joseph H. Gray, Bass Harbor Head; James M. Anderson, Goat Island Light Station; Willie W. Corbett, Little River Light Station; A. B. Hamer, Owl's Head; W. H. Woodward, Monhegan Light Station; Arthur J. Beal, Whitehead Light Station; E. L. Coleman, Cape Neddick Light Station; E. D. Elliott, Cape Elizabeth Light Station.

Mr. Sterling's book, when completed, will be published by a former Maine man, John Hooper of the Stephen Daye Press, Brattleboro, Vt. This writer's acquaintance with the coasting trade on the Maine coast during his early newspaper days will help make a very interesting book.

William Powell, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy in "Libeled Lady"

Jean Harlow—William Powell—Myrna Loy—Spencer Tracy, all in one picture! There's a collection of outstanding film names each of which is capable of ruling a motion picture cast in his and her own right. Only once in a movie moon is such a stellar aggregation of stars gathered together for one production. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has assembled them for its extravagant production of "Libeled Lady," the new season "special."

It is a well known fact that when a film company loads four of its greatest personalities into one picture, that picture has what it takes. "Grand Hotel" and "Dinner at Eight" are outstanding examples of star-studded hits of the past. Now comes "Libeled Lady," engrossing story of an heiress slandered by a metropolitan newspaper and suing for libel to the tune of five million dollars! The move involved four principals—the heiress, the newspaper's managing editor, the girl whom he is pledged to marry, and a very clever gentleman of the Lothario school who has achieved a unique reputation for his unrivaled ability to quash just such libel suits.—adv.

ON A THOUSAND-MILE FRONT

Towns With Single Street

We saw a few houses with thatched roofs, we saw many of those wells, with the old fashioned well sweeps; we saw an old-time top buggy which savored of almost a century before, and we saw a large flock of turkeys which, like the hogs, seemed to have the right of way. No prudent motorist runs over expensive birds like these, especially when his explanations would probably go for naught with an irate French farmer.

I noticed, too, that most of the towns seemed to consist of a single street, quite lengthy and thickly settled, and with a permanent road already built I thought I could see where the highway commissioner would have abundant time to listen to the radio broadcast of the Big League games, or play crib. Certainly it would be no place for a man with Jont Gardner's vitality.

Sorel, our western turning point lies at the end of Lake St. Peter, where the St. Lawrence River gets back to normalcy. It was only a hop, skip and jump to Montreal, but we had already been lost once in that big city, and as we were emulating Alexander we headed due south toward New York State.

Another French Meal

The next town was St. Ours, and we headed for its principal cafe—or hotel they would call it. The waiter was easy to look at, but her beauty and her language were both of the French type, and once more we found ourselves at an impasse.

Presently there came from the kitchen another young woman, who might have been French, but she talked good boiled dinner English, so we ate the things we liked, including the delicious steak to which I have referred.

Signs on the cafe walls intrigued me. They told in French what was being offered for the inner man, but in a rash moment I asked the English speaking waiter what "oeuvres and jambon" meant, and I am still nursing bruises on both shins where I kicked myself, when she said: "Ham and eggs." And I took a course in French at Rockland High School without being able to remember anything as simple as that. Fi done!

Following the Richilieu

St. Denis is next on our itinerary, and we confer as to whether it should be advisable to recross the Province, according to our original plan; or to keep on toward New York. Heads won, and it was New York.

We traveled for miles along the Richilieu River whose broad bosom wore a peaceful mien, its level surface reminding us of those vast tracts of prairie land which we crossed after leaving Pont Laperriere. Again we saw tugs and barges, but nary a sailing rig.

Once we crossed a covered bridge where the sign read: "Pass at your own risk," or words to that effect. The shelter had a cant toward Sawyers, and the floorboards creaked, but we crossed safely, and motored through the towns of St. Charles, St. Hilaire and St. Mathias coming to Richilieu, where the Chevy had dinner. One of the chief industries of Richilieu is the manufacture of imitation leather done by the Bennett Manufacturing Co.

How St. John's Says It

Crossing the Richilieu River we followed Route 47 to St. John's, marveling as we did so, at what seemed to be a canal running parallel with the river but at an elevation of several feet higher. Perhaps some reader of this article can enlighten me.

Since the above was written I have talked with John Pomeroy, who lived for a while in the Province of Quebec, and who served with the Canadian Engineers during the World War. He tells me that the strip of water referred to is an old barge canal. Mr. Pomeroy also offers the suggestion that I would find the northern side of the St. Lawrence River much more interesting and that I should not fail to visit the Isle of Orleans where natives still maintain the primitive customs of three centuries ago. And I have promised myself just that treat another season if I am still Roving.

A sign-board at St. John's fairly effervesced with good fellowship. It said, as nearly as I could make out in passing, "Thank you, merci, bon voyage, and venez encore." To somebody that might sound like "Here's your hat, what's your hurry," but the good citizens of St. John didn't mean it that way at all.

The highway widened into three lanes, and before we knew it we were passing customs at Cantic. Passing customs is exactly what we did, and we passed so fast that we went right by the customs office, and were brought to a realization of our offense by a shrill whistle thrice repeated.

Quite a circus we had before we finally finished with the customs officials but perhaps that will keep until the next letter.

Landscaping Authority Addresses Club
The October meeting of the Community Garden Club was held in the Community House Thursday night with Arnold Davis, an instructor at the CCC Camp in Augusta, as a speaker.

His talk was on landscaping which presented interesting and instructive especially the suggestions on the making of lawns and transplanting of trees and shrubs both of which are essential in laying out grounds or making a garden. Mr. Davis has had considerable experience in both of these lines for he worked on the State Park project in Augusta where over 4,000 trees were moved in from the woods and pastures, some of them after the snow was on the ground with the loss of very few.

Land that had been used for dumping purposes was reclaimed and made into a park where all of the trees native to Maine may be found and almost all of the shrubs carefully labeled for easy identification. Almost any tree up to 12 feet high can be transplanted if a little care is used in the digging and many of the vines, ferns and shrubs found growing wild adapt themselves readily to new surroundings and with a little cultivation the results are surprising.

The next meeting will be Nov. 12 with Mrs. W. H. Crowell, Mrs. Joseph Brooks and T. B. Brown in charge of the program.

FINNISH GIRL WINNER
The appended story, wireless to the Boston Herald, we are confident that paper will allow us to bring to the attention of our down-east readers. We are always glad to notice what is going on among the Finnish people, who are much in evidence among Knox County's population and valued because of their good citizenship. The Herald article reads:

Bay State Domestic Takes Award In Swedish-Finnish Competition
Helsingfors: A sensation was caused Wednesday when it became known that the Finnish born Sally Salminen, at present a domestic in the family of a Massachusetts millionaire, had won the first prize of $20,000 marks ($20,000) in a literary competition inaugurated by two big publishing firms in Finland and Sweden for the best novel written in the Swedish language. The book was unanimously chosen from among 76 competitors.

Miss Salminen is 30 years old, was brought up in the Aaland Islands in the Baltic. She belonged to a family of 12. She lost her father when she was seven years old. She left school at 13 to earn a living and emigrated to America. Miss Salminen's realistic novel "Katrina," a first work considered an outstanding literary event in Scandinavia is already being translated into several languages.

Knowing well the autumnal grandeur that abounds in Maine at this time of the year, Mrs. Ruth (Wentworth) Charlton was prompted to make a hurried trip to Maine, her native State. Mrs. Charlton arrived from Norfolk, Va., Monday and returned for that city a few days thereafter. Mrs. Charlton confided to friends her intense longing to visit scenes of former years and to fully enjoy the beauty of Maine, particularly in this section at this time of the year, after an absence of several years. Mrs. Charlton regretted deeply that her limited sojourn made it impossible to call on several relatives, friends and former pupils.

MRS. EMMA ROBBINS

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma E. Robbins were held Wednesday afternoon from her late home on Oliver street, Rev. J. Charles MacDonald of the First Baptist Church officiating. Oldtime friends were present in large numbers, and the bereaved ones were greatly comforted by the many handsome floral offerings which were sent. The bearers were Charles K. MacWhinnie, Frank Crockett, Peter Edwards and Isaac B. Hooper. Interment was in the Robbins yard.

The deceased was born in Bucksport, April 8, 1860, coming to this city after the demise of her father, Colby Eldridge, who met death by drowning. She was married to Frank A. Robbins in 1879, and her decline in health followed his death three years ago.

Mrs. Robbins was a member of no organization; home life claimed her time exclusively. The devotion between her and the members of her family was mutual, but her loving kindness did not end there. It extended to her neighbors and to other friends who stood in need of a friendly hand.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Robbins, but only one lived beyond childhood—Mrs. John L. Beaton. Mrs. Robbins is also survived by a half-brother, Frank Eldridge, in New York.

They were surprised with gifts and while Mrs. Wales played the wedding march a very pretty cake, decorated with a miniature bride and groom and fancy frosting was presented to them to which they responded very gracefully. NECESSARY NEEDS
(For The Courier-Gazette)
A rose would be no rose
Without a hidden thorn;
Blue skies lack in beauty
With never clouds at morn;
Earth would be a desert,
If there were no rain;
Spring would not be spring
If leaves came not again.

Autumn leaves and goldenrod
With their beautiful hues,
Would lose their morning sparkle
Without the frosty dews.
Winter would be dreary
With no carpet white,
To glisten in the sunshine
Or hide bare earth from sight.

Where would be the pleasure
Of living day by day,
If no clouds o'ercast the sky,
No shadows crossed our way?
'Tis life's joys and sorrows
And changes ever new
That lift the soul to greater heights
And create joys anew.

MUSICAL MARVELS

Pietro's Accordion Company
Appear Wednesday Night
In Lions Course

The Mordella Merry-Makers will entertain next Wednesday at Rockland High School, featuring two piano-accordions that know their masters' touch. Pietro Mordella, New England's celebrated accordion virtuoso, brings his daughter Flora, the "girl with the golden voice," to exchange musical pleasantries with him across two liting, thrilling piano-accordions.

Pietro learned to play his favorite instrument experimenting with those made by his father in Boston, the first accordion-maker in this country. His piano novelties have made his name famous throughout the East, in addition to his accordion playing. Pietro was again last June the musical sensation of the Harvard Reunions at Cambridge. He has often appeared there at the banquets and festivities of the "Old Grads" who have known him since their student days.

Daughter Flora, a charming and attractive young lady who plays piano, accordion, musical saw, flexophone, sings popular and classical works, and reads with feeling and interpretation, this last season won the all-New England Beethoven prize for voice.

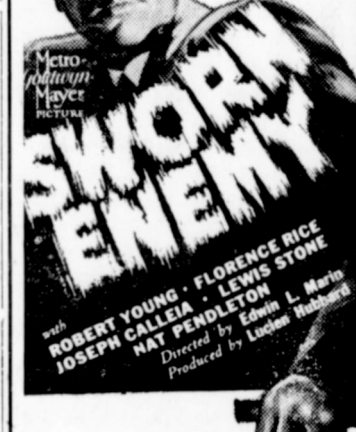

Starting with a medley of grand operatic selections, they swing through patriotic melodies, folk-songs, pianologues, and costumed numbers that reveal showmanship, ability, and the native Latin love of music.

works with which his name is associated. These include part of the first movement of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, a Schubert impromptu, and Liszt's second rhapsody.

Once upon a time, comments Variations in Musical Courier, it meant something to be a maestro; now it is the radio title for any band leader.

2 Billion People Envy You!

TWO BILLION people are a lot of people. It's the rest of the world's population, in fact. Yet this vast number envy you...the way you live...the things you have...the future ahead of you.

This envy is really admiration, too. Admiration of the way you have marched forward under our American plan of living. To shorter working hours...higher wages...more home comforts and luxuries...better health and happier life.

But sometimes you don't realize how much you do have under the American plan of living.

Well, do this. Add up in your mind what it would cost to replace all the possessions and services you have or enjoy. Suppose after a fire, you had to start again—rebuild your home—with its furniture, rugs, books, pictures, radio, refrigerator, washing machine, furnace and vacuum cleaner.

Count in your auto, your clothes—and your family's clothes...your kitchen and all its utensils. It all amounts to quite a tidy sum, doesn't it? Add to it your insurance...and the total rises. And what is true of you is true of most of your fellow Americans.

Back to Yesterday

Everybody's memory is short. We tend to forget how things used to be in the "good old days." You've read about them in school. Let's refresh your memory.

How were things then? Look...

Men worked ten to twelve hours a day...about 72 hours a week. The factory—or shop—was hot in summer, cold in winter...poorly ventilated always. Tools were crude. And labor hard.

Little progress had been made in aids for good housekeeping. Woman's work was never done. She worked hard from early dawn until late at night.

Sure...the "good old days." You can have them!

Has the Picture Changed?

Today, many ride to work in their own cars...or on a fast bus, trolley or train. They work about forty-eight hours a week in a modern plant, or office.

Wages are up. Eighty-five per cent of all our national income goes to those who work for a living. Cars, radios...a thousand comforts and luxuries are in most families. Amusements are plentiful and there is time to enjoy them. A housewife can have time to better plan her children's education...shop, play bridge, visit a beauty parlor, read—and enjoy countless other pleasures—because she has modern industry working at home for her. Families enjoy fresh vegetables all year round. We don't have to live in California or Florida to have oranges or grapefruit. Children go to good schools...and there's a doctor and dentist nearby.

The average man...and his family...gets more from the American plan of living than the average person anywhere!

Americans have more suits of clothes, shoes and shirts than their foreign brothers. Just as our wives and sweethearts have more dresses, silk stockings, hats. With us many luxuries—auto, telephone, electric lights—have become necessities. We scarcely think of them as luxuries.

And you have liberty under the Constitution. You give up no personal liberty, no human right to obtain more of life's good things, and greater leisure in which to enjoy them.

More for More People

What brought this about? Simply an American plan of living. A sound, proved plan which depends on producing more for more people.

We've been pretty good at that sort of thing here in America. Better than any other nation. In fact that's why we have more.

You...and every one of your friends...all of you stockholders in the United States, Inc., want this progress to continue—for your sake—for the benefit of generations to come. There's no reason why it can't.

As this nation grows, you grow. As this American plan of living grows, you grow. Keep faith with it...support it...believe in it. It's you and you are it!

Measure our American Standard of Living

BY THESE YARDSTICKS:

I. With only 7% of the world's population, and but 6% of the world's acreage, the United States has:
More than half the world's foodstuffs;
Half the world's communication facilities;
Nearly half the world's railway and electric energy.

We consume:

Half the world's coffee;
Half the world's tin;
Three-fourths the world's silk;
One-third the world's coal;
Two-thirds the world's crude oil.

In comparison with Europe, we have:

Nearly three times as many radios per person;
Five times as many telephones;
Nearly a dozen times as many automobiles;
Four times as many miles of railroads.

II. The American home is more comfortable and more sanitary. For example:

70% of houses in the U. S. have electricity;
(over 11 kilowatt hours can be bought for an hour's wage in the U. S., as against 5.59 kilowatt hours in the European country nearest approaching us in that respect.)
10,000,000 vacuum cleaners are in use;
10,500,000 washing machines are in use;
21,000,000 electric irons are in use.

III. Among the many social benefits in our standard of living are:

Health facilities:

Hospital beds increased 100% from 1909 to 1930;
Clinical laboratories in hospitals increased 45%, 1922-30;
X-ray apparatus increased 64%, 1922-30;
Death rate dropped about 50%, 1890-1933 (19.6 per 1000 to 10.7 per 1000).

Education:

30,000,000 are enrolled in American schools;
College and normal school enrollment increased from 237,000 in 1900 to 1,144,703 in 1932;
AMERICA SPENDS MORE FOR EDUCATION THAN ALL THE OTHER COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD COMBINED.

Recreation:

Americans spend $10,000,000,000 a year for recreational purposes.

If you are interested in this subject, learn more about it. A free copy of a comprehensive booklet, "Two Billion People Envy You," now being prepared, will be sent you. Write to Room 2036, 11 West 42nd Street, New York City.
