GOV. COBB RESIGNS

As Chairman of An Important Committee At Bowdoin College

At the Bowdoin College chapel service yesterday President Kenneth C. M. Sills made the following statement:
"It is with great personal and official regret that I have to announce that former Governor William T. Cobb of the class of 1877, of Rockland, has been obliged on account of ill health to resign as chairman of the visiting committee of the governing boards. Governor Cobb was elected an overseer in 1903 and a trustee in 1908. He was immediately appointed on the visiting committee, and in 1925 on the death of President Cole of Wheaton became the chairman. In that capacity he has rendered most conspicuous and devoted service to the College.
"In the past 25 years I have been associated with countless committees of one kind or another. In all that experience I have never known such an ideal chairman as Governor Cobb. He knew exactly what the business was. He treated each and every member of the committee as if his views were of equal importance, and he won the admiration and affection of every man who had the privilege of working with him. His annual reports, submitted at Commencement, were models both for clarity of their views, precision of style and common sense, and will be invaluable material for the future historian.
"This record of 28 years of service on perhaps our most important committee deserves the gratitude and appreciation of the College, and it is and must be an inspiration to the undergraduates and younger members of the College to realize that this tribute is paid to one who is universally regarded as the First Citizen of Maine, and to one who in his long and active life has always regarded his work for the College as one of his chief satisfactions.
"We all hope that a release from routine duties will enable his health to be restored so that he may resume his duties as trustee of the College."

DR. BRITTO'S CAR

Diarist Takes a Hand At Fixing Date—Harrison Dow's Experience

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
James E. Rhodes, 2d, of Hartford, Conn. must have been right concerning the time of the arrival in Rockland of Dr. Britto's automobile for I find in my diary under date of Wednesday, July 25, 1900, the following entry:—"Saw Britto-mobile." A short time spent in looking over Courier-Gazettes near that date, fails to reveal any item concerning its arrival, but such an item might easily escape one's notice. I am wondering, who in Rockland owned automobiles in 1900.

The Diarist
Harrison Dow remembers the Britto auto as a Locomobile Steamer, with the tiller in front and boiler under the seat. He undertook to drive it one day and the marks are still on the curbstones he hit.

SPRING IN HOPE

Mrs. Perry Notices Signs Which Are Dear To All Nature Lovers

North Hope, April 12
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
In view, as I write, the brook over in the pasture is tumbling down over the big rocks in its bed—centuries old—and sparkling in the sunshine. How good it seems to see the sun after so many dull and cloudy days. My perennial beds still wear their winter coats except along the south porch. I notice the elm buds are swelling and the cherry notes of the robin and other early birds make mornings interesting. When their happy notes ring out during a spring snow storm such as reached here the past week, it makes one ashamed of harboring a grouse because of weather conditions.
A letter from a friend in Kentucky, informs me that gardens were being made there the last week in March. These friends were not in the flood zone, but they had friends who lost livestock and all their possessions. One marvels at the courage of those people who had the will to go back to their flood-damaged houses and begin again. Mrs. A. I. Perry.

Battery E, 240th C. A. Regiment Passes a Most Successful Inspection

The members of Battery E, 240th C. A., strutted their stuff in their new armory on Spring street Tuesday night and earned the commendation of the inspection officer Lieut. Col. Rufus F. Maddox, instructor of the 211th C. A. 1st Corps of Cadets, Boston. With that official on the annual federal inspection, which also included Battery F of Thomaston last night were Major Willis McD. Chapman of Portland, senior instructor of the 240th C. A. Regiment; Major George W. Blaney, junior instructor assigned to the 2d Battalion; Battery Commander Alonzo B. Holmes of Major George W. Blaney, whose work as instructor has borne rich fruit

Brunswick and Warren G. Feyler of Thomaston, adjutant of the 2d Battalion.

The above officers headed the group of 11 guests at a 6 o'clock banquet at Hotel Rockland, with Captain Charles G. Hewett of the local battery as host.

Inspected with Battery E were Chaplain Corwin H. Olds, of the 152d Field Artillery, and George J. Cumming, Rockland's superintendent of schools, who is a battalion staff officer of the 152d.

The inspection Tuesday night began with floor maneuvers, which impressed onlookers as a distinct credit to the expert instruction given by Major Blaney and the Battery officers. The drill was followed by an inspection of the various infantry subjects—riot duty, gas drill, first aid, general duty, physical drill, assembly, display of equipment, etc. etc.

Visitors who had not seen the interior of the old Arcade building since it was remodelled into an armory were frankly amazed by the transformation which has been effected through the work of a W.P.A. project, with the assistance of Mayor Leforest A. Thurston.

At the eastern end of the building in which a portion of the balcony was formerly located is the so-called "day room," designed for the comfort of the enlisted men of Battery E. It will be provided with games, reading matter, etc., and will be open from 9 a. m. until the users are willing to call it "a day."

The middle room is a property room in which will be found the individual equipment—overcoats, raincoats, dress uniform, work uniform and fatigue clothes. Located here, also, is the full field equipment—rifles, belts, helmets, etc. The dressing room is in the northeastern corner.

Under the ground floor at the eastern end of the building is a concrete boiler pit. The huge stoves which heated the building over a long period of years, have disappeared, and a very comfortable temperature is maintained through the medium of steam heat.

Battery Commander Charles G. Hewett surveys with pardonable pride the comfortable quarters which have been provided for his use. The window hangings for this office, and all other rooms, were made by Mrs. George W. Blaney, who has always shown a personal interest and pride in the battery of which her husband is instruction officer. A shelf supports the numerous silver cups which the Battery has won in various contests.

The non-commissioned officers' room contains the switchboard, synchronizing the artillery lay-out. The plotting room is one of the most interesting units in the armory, but no attempt at a description is here made because of its purely technical character. Officers in the Coast artillery have plenty of work cut out for them in the study of these devices, but it is fascinating withal.

Across the broad floor where bowlers, roller skaters and polo players once disputed, is the tool room, and up stairs the caretakers' quarters and battery kitchen.

A cement base of reinforced concrete, 30x55 feet, has been provided for the Battery's equipment which includes a 155 m. m. gun, designed by Fulloux. It can toss a shot something like 20,000 yards, its middle range being 12,500 yards. Also included in the equipment here stationed is a 10-ton tractor, a Browning 30 calibre machine gun, 62 rifles, 65 pistols and two 22-rifles for indoor practice.

The walls of the Armory have been painted maize color, the ceiling white, and the woodwork has been enameled, a transformation which has eliminated almost the last suggestion of the dingy old Arcade.

The work of remodeling the building was begun Feb. 8, and has progressed steadily. Two thirds of the lumber which has been used in the work came from the dismantled Littlehale building, a contribution from Mayor Thurston which resulted in a material saving of expense. One side of the roof has been covered with asphalt, and the other side will be in due season.

The Coast Artillerymen revel in the fact that they have double the floor space which was provided for them in Spear block, but Captain Hewett sighs. Like Alexander, he wants more.

Battery E has its full complement of 62 men and is making an excellent record for itself. By order of the Chief of Coast Artillery in Washington it has been awarded the Red E for excellence in Coast Artillery practice in the summer of 1936; and a year ago was credited with the rating of "excellent" on its 1935 Federal inspection.

The Battery has responded faithfully to the teachings of Major Blaney, who displays a personal interest in the development of the units which he is assigned to instruct.

Captain Charles G. Hewett, the battery commander, is one of the State's best known military men, and is the most efficient. His work is ably supplemented by the efforts of 1st Lieut. Everett K. Mills, and 2d Lieutenants Edgar McCobb and Burton White.

The enlisted personnel of Battery E follows:
1st Sergeant—Charles Collins.
Staff Sergeant—Herbert Day.
Battery Clerk—Private Richard Anderson.

Sergeants—Frank Elliot, Earl Chandler, Clarence Ingerson, Earl Young, Erwin Chase, George Halstead, Ernest Whitney.

A MILE OF GRANITE

This Story Concerns the Live Industry Conducted By John Meehan & Son At Clark Island

A mile of granite paving blocks is what The Courier-Gazette reporter saw yesterday as he followed the lead of Supt. Alfred C. Hocking in a hasty inspection of John Meehan & Son's plant at Clark Island.

Many thousands of neatly hewn blocks were assembled along the mile course awaiting the moment when they will be slid aboard the barges and transported to New York for the purpose of giving the residents of the great metropolis a better foothold as they navigate the city streets.

Meehan Assume Control

It was about 18 years ago that the Meehan interests took over this plant, now the largest in the country de-stines of the granite firm of John Meehan & Son belongs to a family which has a nationwide reputation in business and industrial circles, and one of his specialties is the granite business which he has handled in a manner highly satisfactory to the residents of St. George.

Other Granite Interests

In addition to the Clark Island plant his granite interests include Swan's Island, Granite Quarry, N. C., Ryan, S. C. and Elberton, Ga. The company's main office is at 916 West Dakota street, Philadelphia. The New York office is located at 90 West street.

The Meehan operations at Clark Island began 18 years ago with what is known in granite circles as a few "motions." Today he not only has the largest granite paving quarry in the United States, but is regarded as the leading quarry manufacturer in the county.

He is a frequent visitor to the Clark Island plant and is known in Rockland for his business astuteness. He is one of the directors of the Knox County Trust Company, whose officers speak in highest terms of his ability.

He Has Two Hobbies

He confesses to several hobbies chief among which is his devotion to the race track. He owns one of the best horses in the country's running race circuit. Between whiles he likes to stroll out onto the Rockland Country Club's golf links and show Sam Dugan, owner of the St. George Granite Co.'s plant what golf sticks are made for.

Mr. Hocking, who succeeds the late William Thomas Hocking in charge of the Clark Island plant was born with the scent of newly fashioned paving blocks in his nostrils. After graduating from St. George High School he took a course in higher accountancy with the LaSalle Extension University in Chicago. He specialized in cost systems, and studied to such good purpose that he eventually became the author of the systems now extensively used by Eastern granite manufacturing plants.

The New Super

Mr. Hocking taught school two terms, but the pedagogical instinct gave way to the lure of the granite fields, and in 1912 he entered the employ of the Booth Bros. & Hurricane Isle Granite Co. as assistant bookkeeper and store manager. Later he took over the complete accountancy system and management of the store. While with that concern he also had charge of the company's plants at Vinalhaven, Sullivan, Somes Sound and Jonesboro and became receiver for the Waldboro Granite Co. The 25th anniversary of his advent on the Booth Bros' pay-roll he found himself accepting John Meehan & Son's offer to become superintendent of the Clark Island plant. Eastern granite circles know him as an official of exceptional ability.

He has served St. George as town auditor, is clerk of the First Baptist Church of St. George, past president of the Knox County Fish & Game Association, a director of the Knox County Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Thomaston Board of Trade, a member of Eureka Lodge, F. A. M., Henry Knox Chapter, R. A. M. of Thomaston, King Hiram Council R. S. M. of Rockland, Claremont Commandery, K. T. of Rockland, St. George Lodge, I.O.O.F. and Naomi Chapter O.E.S. of Tenants Harbor. He is one of the Republican leaders in Knox County, but though frequently mentioned for office has never been a candidate.

Supt. Hocking was married in 1918 to Gladys B. Barter of St. George. They have three children, Darold B., who graduates from St. George High School in June as salutatorian and who will enter Hebron Academy; and Arnold T. and Erdine D. twins.

JOY OF THE MORNING

I hear you, little bird,
Shouting a-swing above the broken wall,
Shout louder yet: no song can tell it all.
Sing to my soul in the deep, still wood:
'Tis wonderful beyond the wildest
word:
I'd tell it, too, if I could.
Or when the white, still dawn
Lifted the skies and pushed the hills apart.
I've felt it like a glory in my heart—
(The world's most mysterious stir)
But had no throat like yours, my bird,
Nor such a listener.

LIBERTY—EQUALITY

Dr. Lowe's Stirling Address Before the Lions Club—Sit Down Strikes

Sit down strikes are nothing more or less than a concrete recrudescence of what happened in Russia when the government took over industry and property," declared Rev. Dr. John Smith Lowe in a powerful address before the Rockland Lions Club yesterday.

Dr. Lowe's subject was "The Power of Self Reliance." It was a discussion of Liberty on the one hand and Equality on the other. Trying to get out of self, he said, we sometimes run amuck. Getting something for nothing is a tempting illusion. There are those who would set up in various civilizations where the individual is merely a cog in the wheel, a government that will supply all we need, with very little effort on our part, instead of a government that safeguards those who do things themselves—a government in which a sort of super-State lump all men and women together in a fancied and fantastic haven of economic equality. No such government ever existed or ever will. We cannot maintain an automatic Jack in the Box government, and those who are so anxious to set up one would see at once the complete and utter failure of the scheme.

In our system of government there is profound wisdom. Liberty and Equality of life are not Siamese Twins. Liberty is diametrically opposed to complete equality of life. A government founded on that idea is a government under which there is no liberty for anybody. It would be held down to despotic and tyrannical authority.

The more equality of life, the greater loss of Liberty. Framers of the Constitution did not contemplate it, and we can choose only one of those conflicting objectives. The framers elected to take Liberty, and that is the ideal to which the government is dedicated. There has been erected in this country a system which has no parallel in history for the stupendousness of its accomplishment. We have not achieved perfect Liberty, nor have we achieved perfect Equality of life for all of our people. We have never gone in for that; instead we have gone in for Liberty with a premium on Self Reliance. Equality would penalize self reliance, and place its fruits upon the shoulders of the incompetent. Under Self Reliance a citizen of this country is able to say: "I am still the architect of my own fate." No man living in Russia, Germany or Italy is able to say that. Liberty and Self Reliance have constituted our aim in America, and we have preserved the essentials of Liberty despite all defects. We have maintained the equality of opportunity for the humblest man to a degree unknown in any other nation on Earth. In the long run we shall continue to be a happy and increasingly prosperous people.

But we are producing an increasing lot of citizens determined to set up a Jack in the Box government which would have us forsake a system which gives us Liberty for a fantastic European dream. God save us from fate!

Dr. Lowe, nearing the close of his address made it plain that he was not indicting the administration in Washington or any other administration in particular, but was directing his remarks against any communistic move which would seek to set up a Jack in the Box government.

"Our trouble was not born in 1932," said the speaker. "It has been here for a long time working insidiously to discredit and destroy everything we have built up."

George Steeper reported that the net receipts of the Lions Easter ball were $211.22.

A. B. Allen, home from St. Petersburg, Fla., was given the enthusiastic welcome he always receives, and told of the lively club with 70 members which exists there.

Among the guests yesterday were Lion Charles T. Stockton of the Houlton Club, who plans to meet with the Rockland Club well into the summer; Lion "Link" Sanborn of Vinalhaven, and Stuart C. Burgess, the latest addition to Rockland's list of attorneys.

Anderson Camp S.U.V. had a very profitable session at Grand Army hall Wednesday night. Supper was served at 6:30 by women of the Auxiliary, with Mrs. Carrie Winchenbaugh as chairman. The evening meeting was presided over by Commander Basil Winchenbaugh in a dignified manner. The degrees were conferred on Arthur Marks with special dramatic features, and the flag charge was impressively given by Chaplain H. R. Winchenbaugh with appropriate music interspersed. All of the allied patriotic orders were invited to the ceremonies. After the initiation a program was given featuring the Spruce Head Hill Billies; a tap dance by Miss Ruth Rogers and remarks by William Clavier of Rockland Beach. Edward Mullin then presented the Camp with a cup for receiving the largest number of candidates; Theodore Elwell sang after which Charles Shaller dedicated a march to Anderson Camp. The program closed with several more musical numbers by the Hill Billies. Anderson Camp has been invited to attend a get-together May 1 in Belfast at which time the degree teams of T. W. Hyde Camp of Bath and E. A. Clark Camp will compete for honors. Supper will be served from 5:30 to 7 and a parade will be held if the number warrants. The meeting then closed without form and Anderson Camp may well feel proud to have been able to hold so pleasant and profitable a session.

Fred A. Norwood W.R.C. will observe Grand Army Day at its meeting Friday night. A camp fire will be featured. Members may invite guests.

BENSON'S ANIMAL FARM

A shipment of Holland waterfowl, including black swans, arrived in Boston the other day aboard the steamer Spaarndam. In a screened-off section in the 'tween decks section were 100 white swans, while two pairs of black swans shared a small room with a number of white ducks. The collection also included 10 white peacocks, a rare species, with the upknots and plumage all of pure white.

The entire lot comes out consigned to the John T. Benson animal farm at Nashua, N. H., which is known as "The strangest farm on earth."

At the W.C.T.U. meeting Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the class room, corner of Main and Summer streets, a health and safety program will be presented under the topic "Our Community: Is It Safe for the Children?" Devotions and music will be under the leadership of Mrs. Lillian Joyce. Guest speaker on "Health," Miss Eliza Steele; on "Safety," Patrolman George I. Shaw. This is a mothers' meeting and invitation is extended to all mothers to attend. Miss Miller, treasurer, will be present and glad to receive dues for 1937. The 50th annual convention of the Knox County W.C.T.U. will be held in Rockland May 10. Rev. Ada Mae Hagler will be speaker.

MAINE LIKES THE PRIMARY

Nominating Conventions Are "In the Past," Says Cong. Smith, and Iniquities Forgotten

(By Clyde H. Smith, Representing Maine's Second Congressional District.)

The Nation's Capital, April 13.

Special to The Courier-Gazette:—

The defeat of the Philbrick bill in the Maine House and Senate, last week, may well remind us that our State was quite in advance of most of the rest of the country in adopting the Direct Primary for making nominations for public office. Professional politicians were hostile from the start. Their dislike grew to horror as the primary came to be enacted. Amendments have been adopted but the essential principle—direct and convenient expression of the voter's preference—has been defended and retained.

The referendum vote by which Maine adopted the Direct Primary law, in 1911, was about three to one. In another reference to the people, in 1927, the law was emphatically reaffirmed. Bills, seeking destructive modification or repeal, have been introduced in most legislative sessions, all these years, meeting defeat in every instance, as did the Philbrick Bill in the present legislature.

Three States only—Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New Mexico—have without the primary. New York has abandoned it. New York has returned to the convention for nominating its Governors, United States Senators, and Congressmen, but retains the primary for all other offices—95% of its nominations. Massachusetts, some years since, adopted the Pre-Primary Convention, much as was proposed by the Philbrick bill, but it appears will soon repeal it.

I like the primary system of making nominations and hope, without offending good taste, to speak as one experienced in such matters. The people of Maine have been most generous. Forty-eight times, in town county, and finally in congressional district, with never an adverse majority, they have approved my public service; in early days by caucus and convention, in late years by the direct primary. From abundant experience with both, may I say with all the emphasis at my command, that if "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," the primary is by all means the preferable method of making nominations.

Nominating conventions are at least one generation in the past and their iniquities are to quite an extent forgotten. Their era was having time for wealth and the wealthy candidate. The humble citizen of modest means, however well deserving, faced an almost impossible situation. The same factors are yet in evidence—have an unfortunate and undue prominence—but the primary gives the man of moderate fortune the only real show he ever had of aspiring to public office. That is the real reason why the politician of ancient viewpoint hates and scorns

it. The primary is much less costly than the convention. The Philbrick bill would have increased the expense by adding a third contest—the pre-primary convention—to the June primary and September election, already in use.

Now a word as to party strategy. We Republicans have permitted the ultra conservative element to dominate party councils to such an extent as to peril the proud leadership, held by us for so many years. The enactment of the Philbrick bill would have been but another step in this unfortunate program. It would have unnecessarily offended and alienated organized labor, the farmers, and the great middle classes. It was a proposition out of step with the times and an affront to Dame Fortune, already somewhat out of patience with us. We may well look upon the defeat, from a party as well as from a public standpoint, as a calamity averted. Minor changes may be needed in the primary law. If so, let its friends get together at some convenient date, next summer, and study them. Caution all on the same date, throughout the State, instead of varying dates as now, might be wise.

Increasing the number of signatures enabling a man (especially if defeated in the primaries) to become an independent candidate in September, is suggested. It is also proposed that names be placed on the primary ballot (and the September ballot as well) in rotation, instead of alphabetically as now.

None of these suggestions may be adopted but they may well be considered along with others which may be offered. I shall be pleased to join in such a study, so long as the central principle—convenient and direct choice by the voter, not confused or set at naught by pre-primary conventions or similar devices, be retained.

Illustrated bulletins on spring's awakening continue to arrive from The Saunterer's haunts in Middlesex Fells, Mass. The latest report results in the discovery of a cowslip, and for the benefit of the poor, benighted layman, "Boze" patiently postscripts with all the clarity of an Einstein theorist that his previous find, "turban migratorius" is nothing more than a large "bold" allied to the "turban planesticus." YOU CAN WIN $500 CASH

Why Hesitate When Seven Cash Prizes and Hundreds In Cash Await the More Ambitious Ones

Have you come to a full realization of the wonderful opportunity the Rockland Courier-Gazette is presenting to you to make your spare time, the next few weeks, many times more valuable to you than any full time employment you can imagine? Soon in these columns the short list of those already nominated in this $1,500. Free Gift Distribution will be published. Will your name appear in this list. Opportunity is knocking for you now—grasp it today.

Your spare hours are valuable. You individually, or you, with the cooperation of home folks, have a remarkable opportunity presented to you to participate in this gigantic free gift offer.

Desire For Better Things

In the heart of everyone is a natural longing to enjoy some of the better things of life. In the heart of every mother and every father is the desire to provide for the children opportunities which the parents lacked or had to fight for. Desire is the accessory to attainment. So, if you desire to participate in the huge array of valuable gifts offered by the Courier-Gazette, if you desire to help yourself to some of these generous presents, you have but to act to make your desire a reality.

The Courier-Gazette in the announcement of its great Free Gift Distribution, has done nothing more than present that opportunity. It is then fairly up to the readers, and the public in the wide-spread circulation territory of this newspaper to take advantage of that big chance they have often dreamed of. Some there are who might be prone to accept the impression that it would be very nice to acquire the ownership of one of these valuable gifts and at the same time feel that they are far beyond their reach. This is true only so far as one fails to make the start. Anything worth having is worth working for and here is the opportunity to win the maximum reward with a minimum of effort in comparison to the usual style of attainment.

Do not hesitate, thus wasting golden hours. Do not allow some little fear of failure decide for you to pass up altogether the greatest offer of its kind ever presented in this great territory of which Rockland is the hub. As the people of this section are known for their progressive tendencies just in the same proportion should the response to such an opportunity be evidenced.

The territory served by the Courier-Gazette, both in news and trade announcements, is of miles and miles in extent. There are hundreds of homes which now recognize this paper as an institution in their lives, and there are other hundreds who have yet to learn just what it means to have a modern and progressive news gathering service reach them twice weekly. There is more business to be written than all the candidates who will enter this Gift Distribution offer will reach. There is room for you. A hearty reception is awaiting you in your work. Don't be an idler or a dreamer. Let's do.

Compensation for your effort is certain. The least you will make is 10 per cent of your cash collections. Could there be a fairer offer? Think of the possibility of winning $500 cash $250 in cash or $100 in cash together with other substantial cash prizes, constitutes awards for success in this campaign. It takes no argument to convince that they are worth the spare time effort which will win them within the next few weeks. And remember, the basis of this distribution is 10 per cent of all your collections if you fail to win a prize. The only thing to be decided is whether you wish to take ad-

ON A SCIENTIFIC TOUR

Rockland Students Invade Bates College and See Much To Marvel At

(Abstracts from paper written by Gardner Brown)

Friday after school, a group of teachers and boys of Rockland High, made their way to Lewiston to see a science exhibition at Bates College. We went first to Hedge Laboratory. Nick Pelloni showed us how two substances phenol and formaldehyde, when mixed together and heated for about four hours made a liquid with a very high consistency. This liquid hardened when it came in contact with air. This dark brown substance was heated more and the result was some light amber colored crystals. Nick exhibited buttons, imitation wood, bakelite and many other fixtures which were made from these resins. He also showed us sheets of dark brown paper which are displacing the use of glue in the making of plywood. The paper is put in between the sheets of wood and heated just enough to melt the resin. The wood was then stuck together so that it wouldn't warp or water wouldn't make it come apart. He had a vinyl-acetate resin from which imitation glass has been made, this changed to a dark blue. This was done by a solution of sulphurous acid and iodine acid. The sulphurous acid set free the iodine in the iodine acid and some starch in the solution showed it up dark blue. Starch is the test for free iodine. Our noses guided us to the next exhibition. They were making perfumes and synthetic pineapple juice. The synthetic pineapple juice smelled like it all right. The correct name for this synthetic juice is ethyl butyrate.

The next on the program was an exhibition of how grain alcohol was made from old newspapers and sawdust. The wood was dissolved in concentrated sulphuric acid, and barium carbonate was used later to get the acid out. You then had a liquid which was acted upon by yeast. This solution fermented and the grain was distilled off. There was a system of fume hoods and ventilating devices which made the campus smell about once a year, so the students said. In the course of their work they make hydrogen sulphide, which smells like rotten eggs. All this gas is blown out in the air, near the campus. However even with all the reactions going on that evening no unpleasant odor was smelled on the campus, so, it must take an awful lot to be noticeable there.

As we passed by the entrance of a young co-ed offered us a drink of synthetic punch, boy was it good! This part of the program was not enjoyed by the more skeptical people of the party. I guess they didn't trust it. Quantitative chemistry is one of the hardest parts of chemistry, because of this we were attracted to a department which was testing iron ore for the amount of iron in it. This one came from Mt. Katdind. It tested about 51% iron. They said that this was pretty good but some mines in the West give about 70% iron. In this quantitative analysis they use scales which would weigh .0001 gm., so you can see how accurate they must be.

Mr. Durrell wanted to find out if he was in good condition, so he had his blood count taken and his blood tested for sugar. His blood count was low normal, which is fair, but they said he needed more fresh air, exercise and sunshine. His sugar test was .79, which is fair. They had to puncture three of his fingers to get enough blood.

We saw a Bomb Calorimeter in which number of calories in a piece of food is determined. An electric arch burns the food and the rise in temperature is noted and the rest is done by the method of mixtures used in our own school. They were asked how many calories a teacher should have a day, and someone said that they don't need any. Mr. Durrell tried to tell them that they need about 5,100 calories which is more than a lumberman requires. A student takes 2,500. In one corner of the laboratory they were silver-plating. There were several spoons laying nearby which they had been plating during the evening. In one room they were testing for acetoacetic acid in diabetic urine. They had a very complicated apparatus in here to show this. They also explained the chemicals used, to show up this acid. One of the most interesting things at the exhibition was the making of rubber. They had some latex, the raw substance from the tree. This was coagulated by acetic acid. The coagulated rubber is then dried and it will bounce. The rubber is then vulcanized with sulphur. In the biological department of the Carnegie Science Building we saw eggs which had been heated in an incubator and the chicken had started to form. The eggs were cut open and you could see the hearts beat. In this room also human embryos were to be seen.

Here in the biology department we met Wilbur "Tate" Connon. We of Rockland should feel quite proud of the fact that "Tate" was the only Freshman in this department to have an exhibit. His drawings were certainly of professional calibre.

There was a short wave transmitter for experimental purposes and there was a demonstration of mechanical advantages in pulleys. The expansion of a wire when heated was shown.

While we were on the lower floor, questions were being asked of different people in the crowd. The answers were amplified and were heard over the entire building by means of a system of amplifiers.

At one end of the hall there was an exhibition of light. The first thing that we saw was an electric eye which counted the people as they came in. Fred Perry ducked under this but this was made up for by Kent Stanley who waved his hand in front of it a couple of times.

A liquid that was yellow on one side and green on the other would look queer to anyone and so it was to us. The explanation was that this liquid would transmit yellow light but would reflect the green light. This liquid was called translucent.

In a darkened room there was a Cathode Ray Oscillograph. This showed the vibrations of the sound emitting from a radio. The vibrations in the announcer's voice seemed to be quite regular showing that he was pleasant to listen to. A vibrating cord was demonstrated. It was moved by a vibratory electromagnet and was for the purpose of showing the nodes and loops in a vibrating cord. It works the same way with sound.

An induced current large enough so that it would hold a piece of iron on the end of an electromagnet so that you couldn't move it was generated by merely turning a crank a few times.

We attended a class showing the fluorescence of metals in Polarized light. The metal to be tested was ground down to the thickness of 1-3 of a piece of paper. This has to be very thin because light has to pass through it. This is viewed by a microscope. The picture is projected upon a screen so that we could all see it. A polarizer was also connected to this arrangement. The polarizer is then turned so that the crystal is a multitude of colors. The idea is to get the polarizer so that the crystal is the brightest possible. This position is recorded by means of a graduated scale. The polarizer is then turned so that the crystal is entirely black. This angle is recorded also. The difference between the two angles is called the angle of extinction. Only one kind of metal has the same angle of extinction. All different metals have different angles. The metal which we viewed had in it mica and several other metals. Each department of analysis seemed to think their method was best.

Here I wish to say how courteous the demonstrators were. They would answer any question that they knew, and would go to great pains to answer one that they didn't know. We are all looking forward to another exhibition at the University of Maine, April 17, in the afternoon and in the evening.

Maine as a great vacation state has had very little to say about its ocean fishing for sport. Other states have been stressing this feature for a number of years and have developed a sizable industry. I believe that our salt water fishing could be made to rival the taking of the fresh water species, in popularity and the Department is making plans to conduct a lot of activity for its development.

Last year we distributed several thousand mimeographed lists of the boats available for tuna and other salt water fishing. This season we expect to have a more complete publication, in a more attractive form. We will encourage the boat owners to rig for sport fishing parties and carry on a general promotional campaign.

Some of the most skilled sea fishermen have pronounced our tuna fishery as the finest in the world. These big fellows run from 200 to 1200 pounds and range along a large section of the coast every summer. They are usually in Maine waters by the first of July and remain until October. Large and fast, these streamlined demons strike with terrific force. Sometimes they leave the water entirely and go into the air as much as 10 feet. They will fight to the finish and many a battle has taken several hours before the fish was landed.

We have all heard a lot about tuna but few realize that we have several other species that will provide great sport for the rod and reel fans.

The Gulf of Maine is the chief center of abundance for pollock or Boston Bluefish and here is a fish that should certainly interest all sport fishermen. They may be caught frequently by trolling on the surface especially when the current runs strong and the water is comparatively cool. They will take a bright colored fly and once a fisherman strikes one with a light rod he has as much of a battle on his hands as if the prize was a big sea salmon. They reach as high as 40 pounds but will average between 15 and 20. In action they are compared with the Florida barracuda.

Fly rod fishing for mackerel is a sport that is rapidly coming to the front. There are several ways of fishing for them. One is to procure troll bait or "chum," preferably chopped up clams, though the oil from a punctured can of cheap sardines slung over the side is an acceptable substitute. The boat is anchored across the tidal flow and the fishing is done with a twelve foot line on which is a leaded mackerel jig with a clam for bait. There are other methods but this is one of hall, State Master F. A. Richardson and Mrs. Richardson of Strong. Mrs. Nellie Hascall, State secretary of Auburn, Hartley Stewart, State lecturer of Houlton and Mrs. Fausta Howes, State chairman of the home economics committee were in attendance. Eight Granges in the county were represented. Dinner was served by the members of Good Will Grange.

Walter Delano has employment on a yacht in Camden.

Good Will Grange conferred the third and fourth degrees last Thursday on four candidates and nearly 70 were present to partake of the hark vest feast.

Mr. and Mrs. Swansea Burns of Southport, Mrs. Phoebe Burns and

Mrs. Georgia Burns of Friendship were visitors Sunday at the home of Mrs. Rose Marshall. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spear and children of East Union were callers Sunday at Mrs. Leila Lemond's. Mrs. Mabel Jordan was guest Sunday at the home of her son Henry, Jordan in Rockland.

Band Renewal Activities

After a winter's layoff, the Vinalhaven Band had a business meeting and rehearsal in Fremont's hall Tuesday night, and from the interest shown the oft-expressed fear that the band was extinct as a local institution, seemed somewhat remote.

Officers elected were: President, O. V. Drew; secretary, Al Townsend; treasurer, A. F. Creed; business manager and leader, J. W. Kittredge.

The members realize, however, that they are not growing younger, and that for any institution to live, it must have new blood at times, so to any young men musically inclined, the band extends an invitation to learn to play some instrument. A few instruments owned by the band are available and anyone interested may call upon the leader, Mr. Kittredge.

Charles Leland Robinson, widely known as clerk at Burpee & Lamb's, and prominent in Masonic and band circles, died at 11:30 last night in Knox Hospital, whither he was taken in an extremely critical condition last Saturday. A surgical operation was performed Tuesday in the vain hope of prolonging life. Mr. Robinson regained consciousness for only a few moments.

The funeral will be held at the Congregational Church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Aurora Lodge, F.A.M. will conduct its ritual service, and escort duty will be performed by Claremont Commandery, and the Rockland City Band.

The deceased was born in Warren May 17, 1875, son of Hilliard W. and Odella (Haskell) Robinson. He attended Warren High School, working during his vacations and odd moments in the general store of Henry Russell at North Warren and George W. Newbert's store in Warren. For several years he was employed in the shoe factory of Rice & Hutchings. He came to Rockland to enter the employ of W. J. Perry, shoe dealer, and relinquished that position to become a clerk for Burpee & Lamb.

It was in this last named position that he spent the greater portion of his life, so well known and so well liked, that he became an institution on the "street."

Two organizations rejoiced in his active membership. One was the Masonic fraternity in which he had risen to the 32d degree. He was made a Mason in St George Lodge at Warren, and belonged to the Chapter, Council Commandery and Scottish Rite bodies in Rockland. He served as secretary of the Warren lodge prior to coming to Rockland, and held a similar position here with the Chapter, Council and Commandery giving those organizations the benefit of his loyal and efficient services. He was also a member of Ivy Chapter, O.E.S. of Warren.

He was justly proud of his connection with the several Rockland bands which had existed in Rockland during his residence here, and in the development of which he had played no small part as a musician, manager and leader.

He was a staunch Republican, though never seeking or holding office. Staunch also in his countless friendships.

Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife, formerly Annie Macomber, a long-time invalid; and by his brother, Deputy Sheriff William H. Robinson of Warren, to whom the bereavement is especially severe as the last member of that family.

SOME FAMOUS WINDJAMMERS

Ten Of Them Were Six-Masters and One Alone Carried Seven Sticks

Remember the days of the six-masters, the days between 1900 and 1925 when 10 of the big windjammers, the only vessels of their type ever built and nine of them constructed in Maine ship yards, stretched thousands of square yards of billowing canvas to make sailing history along the Atlantic Coast, beautiful vessels commanded and manned by some of the best seamen in the world out of the Port of Portland?

The 10 vessels of the fleet were the George W. Wells, launched in 1900 to become the first of her type afloat, the Eleanor A. Percy, sent down the ways only a few weeks later, the Addie M. Lawrence, the Alice M. Lawrence, the Edward J. Lawrence, the Ruth E. Merrill, the Wyoming, the Edward B. Winslow, the Mertie B. Crowley and the William L. Douglas, the latter the only steel vessel and the only one built outside of Maine yards, taking her baptismal dip at Boston. The Wells and the Crowley were built at Camden and the other seven at Bath, in the Percy & Small yard.

The vessels immediately started making history as the George W. Wells and the Eleanor A. Percy, launched only weeks apart late in 1900 and the only six-masters afloat at the time, by a freak of fate collided June 29, 1901 off Cape Cod in dense fog, the Percy crashing into the Wells amidships. The Percy was bound for Boston from Newport News with a cargo of coal and the Wells was bound in ballast from Boston to Newport News to load a coal cargo.

The rest of the fleet followed within a short period, built chiefly for the coal trade between Hampton Roads and Portland and Boston, carrying cargoes totalling from 4000 to 6000 tons.

The Ruth E. Merrill, described as not particularly speedy but beautifully handled by Capt. George Wallace, established enviable records early in her career, including a round trip to Norfolk and return in nine days. She also proved her ability on her first trip, when she was towed out of the Kennebec by Capt. McDuffie. The towboat continued to Portland making 10 knots but the Merrill sailed past making at least 15. Capt. McDuffie declared, and was already out of sight when the tug arrived off Portland Head. She came to Portland 10 days later and made her second arrival here in another 10-day round trip. The Pocahontas collier Oakley L. Alexander, now running regularly here and known as one of the fastest vessels in the coal trade along this coast, has made a round trip in less than five days with the same loading facilities and favorable winds, the Merrill would have cut many hours off the Oakley's time, the veteran towboat master averred.

The fleet eventually dwindled, however, the Alice M. Lawrence being the first to go to her final resting place. In 1913, while bound out of Portland for Hampton Roads, the schooner in command of Capt. Willis Wormwell of Lubec and Portland, piled up in a gale on Tuckernuck Shoal at Nantucket. The following year the Mertie B. Crowley also went ashore on Nantucket Shoals while in command of Capt. William Haskell.

Capt. Joe York was master of the George W. Wells in 1915 when the light vessel, pounding to pieces in a howling gale off Diamond Shoal, off Cape Hatteras, broke her back and was driven ashore in the most favorable spot available to save the lives of her crew. On the trip before her last the schooner, capably handled by Capt. York, established a record of 36 hours for the passage from Boston to Baltimore, time seldom equaled today by supposedly speedier steamers.

In 1917 two of the vessels made their last voyages, the Eddie M. Lawrence near St. Nazaire, France, and the Edward B. Winslow at practically the same spot. Strangely enough, both vessels loaded at the same time on this coast, the Winslow sailing only a week after the Lawrence for the same destination. Fire started in the Winslow's cargo just as she arrived within sight of the French coast and she went down a mass of flames while the crew took to the boats. The fire was commonly believed to be the work of the German engineer aboard the vessel, in sympathy with his native land and determined that the munitions carried should never be delivered to the French forces.

The only trace of the Eleanor A. Percy ever found was the vessel's log book, with the last entry apparently written with difficulty, giving the schooner's position enroute from the River Plate to Copenhagen and the dramatic statement "Sprung a lik, sinking." The end came in a terrific storm in 1918, with a woman in England finding the log book as it drifted ashore several days later.

The next loss was not until five years later, when the Ruth E. Merrill, bound to Portland in command of Capt. Robert J. Johnston, pounded to pieces in L'Hommedieu Shoal, off Woods Hole. Capt. Johnston survived the wreck and later became pilot commissioner in Boston.

The William L. Douglas, after a few years in the coal trade, was converted into an oil barge, and was towed in Southern water with her fate undetermined.

The largest six-master of the fleet, the Wyoming, 329 feet long and built in 1910 at Bath for A. W. Frost & Co. of Portland went down without a trace in 1924 off Pollock Rip Lightship. The schooner, commanded by Capt. Charles Gleason, was last seen by Capt. Charles Publicover, now retired and living in Portland, but then master of the five-masted schooner Cora F. Cressey. Both vessels were anchored off the lightship in a howling gale steadily becoming worse. Capt. Publicover, deciding that the anchorage could not be maintained, worked his vessel to shelter behind Isle of Shoals. He later declared he thought he saw sails going up on the Wyoming but she never was seen again.

The last of the fleet, the Edward J. Lawrence, built in 1903 at Bath, burned in the lower harbor here on Dec. 27, 1925, marking the end of the line and leaving a clear path for the steamer. The downfall of the big sailing vessel of this type came with the close of the World War, as so many steam vessels had been launched during the conflict that shipping men were inclined to abandon the sailing craft and no more were built to carry on their name and fame.

By another coincidence Capt. Joe York commanded the first six-master in existence the George W. Wells, and the last of the fleet, the Edward J. Lawrence, during his highly successful sailing career. Capt. York, master at 17 of a three-masted schooner and in command of practically every type of sailing and steam vessel during the following 44 years, has been described by waterfront veterans as probably the most successful master ever to sail out of an Atlantic coast port, taking good ships and bad as opportunity offered and making the very most of the facilities at his command.

But One Seven-Master

Capt. York also was one of the very few men to have command of a seven-masted schooner, the Thomas W. Lawson, the only one ever built. While serving as first mate under Capt. Arthur Crowley, Capt. York took the vessel as acting master during two or three trips when the former was forced by illness to remain ashore. And command of such a vessel must be classed as a job only for an expert, although Capt. York declares the Lawson loaded was the best schooner he ever commanded.

The seven-master, 385 feet over all and carrying 40,617 square feet of sail, was a three-deck all steel schooner, built at Quincy, Mass., and launched on Friday, July 11, 1902, for the Coastwise Transportation Company, now operating a fleet of coal steamers which occasionally visit Portland. Friday proved an unlucky day for the huge schooner, for she was lost on "Friday the 13th," in December, 1907, in Broad Sound, Scilly Isles, off the English coast.

After three years in the coal trade carrying between 8300 and 8500 tons, according to Capt. York, the Lawson was chartered by the Sun Oil Company as an oil barge, stripped of her topmasts. Two years later, however, her topmasts were restored and she sailed on her last trip, from Philadelphia bound to London, in command of Capt. George W. Dow of Melrose. Deima L. WINDJAMMER

By Richard Mathews Hallet

Starting Monday, April 19, in The Press Herald

Richard Mathews Hallet, of Boothbay Harbor, famous for his sea stories, tales of Salem traders and old-time prize fighters, has written a 10,000 word short story about his experiences on the square-rigger, Juteopolis, during a trip from New York to Sydney, Australia.

The story, "Windjammer," will be published exclusively in the Press Herald, running in 10 consecutive installments, starting Monday, April 19.

Hallet has had a varied career. A graduate of Harvard he was afflicted with wanderlust early in life and has sailed before the mast, sheared sheep in Australia, prospected for gold, served as a fireman and in between times written stories and sold them to the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines.

You'll enjoy "Windjammer." Make arrangements with the Press Herald carrier boy in your town to start the paper Monday. Or, if you prefer, tell your local newsdealer to save you a copy every day.
