The Jefferson Camp

Gov. Barrows Assured That It May Be Kept In Operation

Gov. Lewis O. Barrows said, following his return from Washington, he was given "some encouragement" by federal officials that Maine's C.C.C. Camp at Jefferson "would not be closed after all."

Barrows was advised a few weeks ago by Director Robert Fechner of the Federal C.C.C. that decision had been made to discontinue the Jefferson camp May 31, in accordance with a plan to decrease C.C.C. camps throughout the country.

"Under a plan now being considered in Washington," Barrows said, "the Jefferson camp, as well as others slated to be closed in other sections of the country, may be saved. I was given some encouragement along this line in Washington."

The enrollment at the Jefferson camp, one of the first to be established in Maine about five years ago, totals approximately 150 men.

Seven C.C.C. camps at Rangeley, Lewiston, Flagstaff, Millinocket, Patten, Beddington and Kokadjo have been discontinued within the past three years.

Rockland Lions

Lecture of Absorbing Interest Given By Past President Charles T. Smalley

Charles T. Smalley, who has made trips to Florida during the past six winters, was prevailed upon yesterday to give some of his impressions to the Rockland Lions Club, which he at one time served in the capacity of president.

His story was a departure from the timeworn travelogue style, taking up instead some of the unique industries of the Everglades State.

That portion of his lecture began with Key West, the city which found itself in such extreme financial difficulties that the Government was forced to step in. Patriotic citizens came to the fore and volunteered to shoulder picks and shovels.

New roads were built, unsightly buildings were removed and the overseas highway which was damaged by the destructive hurricane of 1936 was repaired.

Today Key West caters to the tourists of the middle class.

Mr. Smalley painted a highly interesting picture of the sponge fishery at Key West and Tarpon Springs. He also spoke of the tung oil industry at Gainesville; the raw sugar industry in the Everglades with a huge processing plant at Clewiston; and the new underwater motion picture plant at Marine land, near St. Augustine.

Because of the fact that Mr. Smalley received invitations to deliver this lecture in several other places an extended abstract is not here made.

Mr. Smalley spoke fluently, and in the entire lecture there was never any lapse in the keen interest which his listeners felt.

The Lions stood in silence for one minute, as a mark of respect to the late Ralph L. Smith, who was one of the Club's most valued members, and who was present at the previous week's meeting.

The members applauded lustily the announcement that Past President Blake Annis was having a birthday, and a cordial greeting was extended to the day's guests, Mayor E. R. Vozick of Rockland and Postmaster O. V. Drew, a member of the Vinal Haven Lions Club.

Ensign Otis was present yesterday after a long absence, and received an unanimous and enthusiastic invitation to tell the members about his experiences at the recent Mardi Gras Festival at New Orleans.

FINGER PRINTING EXPERTS

Hold a Banquet In Rockland and Perfect Their New Organization

The Maine Identification Officers' Association, outgrowth of the new law on fingerprinting, held its first meeting Tuesday, and Rockland, home of its vice president, C. Earle Ludwick, was chosen for the honor.

Forty-three members and guests gathered at The Thorndike Hotel, and fraternized during the serving of an excellent dinner. Seated at the tables were:

Lieut. L. P. Shepard, Augusta, President.

C. Earle Ludwick, Rockland, sheriff.

Alan L. Bird, Rockland, attorney.

Arthur Freeman, Augusta, State Police.

George C. Abbott, Bar Harbor, Chief of Police.

R. S. Sherman, Rockland, Bangor News.

E. C. Dow, Rockland, Press Herald.

Beryl Randall, Oakland, Lie Detector.

Frank J. Allen, 85 John street, New York City, Special Agent.

Warren J. Tribou, Bar Harbor, Deputy Sheriff.

Frederick E. Tripp, Cooper's Mills, State Police.

Alfred Poirier, Waterville, Chief of Police.

Laurier Poulin, Winslow, Chief of Police.

Charles W. Messenger, Sheriff of Sagadahoc County.

Carroll W. F. Black, Augusta, Desk Officer, Police Department.

Turelle Veilleux, Augusta.

Joseph Z. Ouellette, Brunswick, Chief of Police.

James J. Spaine, C.B.M., Rockland, U. S. Coast Guard Patrol force.

Homer S. Parnum, Bryant Pond, Deputy Sheriff.

Lloyd Underhill, Richmond, Deputy Sheriff.

Paul E. Demers, Gardiner, Chief of Police.

Ernest P. Reid, Gardiner, Deputy Sheriff.

printing and footprinting played a conspicuous part.

Citing Identification Investigation and Observation were the chief essentials of detective work and that no Police Department could get along without its Identification Bureau.

That day has passed. Like the sailing vessel on the sea it has disappeared. The word "cannot" has been eliminated.

Specializing in arson investigation Mr. Allen declared that it made no difference whether there is insurance on the burned property or not. The investigators naturally take fingerprints into account and dovetailing into them are the footprints.

In a case of arson the matter of odor is very important and the fireman first to arrive becomes a detective.

"Preserve your evidence" cautioned the speaker who said that too often important evidence was carelessly lost or discarded. "Officers should be constantly on their tiptoes. We don't expect them all to be shining lights but there is much of value they can do by acting promptly."

Mr. Allen's address was punctuated by the recital of actual cases mainly in New York State, and the details of the detective work were followed with keenest interest by his listeners.

After the banquet the finger printers adjourned to the Superior Court room where a prolonged business session was held.

At the afternoon session the Association adopted a constitution and by-laws. Four new members were admitted, Deputy Sheriffs Robert A. Webster and Ernest Gray of Rockland and two from Portland.

O. E. Wiseman of Rockland and Mr. Watson, chiefs of Legion Police, were made associate members.

Some interesting experiences were related, and at least one conviction was shown to have been obtained by a member of the recent finger printing school. Different finger printing patterns were discussed.

The next meeting of the Association will be held at Portland in May.

Ripley's Warning

You'll See Things You Never Knew Existed Says Legislative Candidate

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Today we are living in a world filled with crime and distrust! Today people do not place trust in each other.

We are losing faith in everything and everyone. There must be a reason for this. Could it be that those we should have the most respect for have betrayed us? It could be.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH PICTURE?

Rockland Considers City's Economical Situation Form Very Practical Standpoint

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—The forthright manner in which N. O. Piker has set some real, even if unpleasant, facts before us places us all in his debt. He placed no special stress on what has or has not been accomplished through past efforts, yet succinctly pointed out what we are headed into. His analysis is all too logical; we should give it prompt and serious consideration.

Let us be as frank with ourselves as N. O. Piker has been with us. Our harbor is wholly inadequate for modern water transportation. We just have not those facilities and are not likely to acquire them. We are located on the end of a railroad. We should begin our study by accepting these facts.

If shoe factories and other large industrial operations are not as desirable as some of us have thought they might be, and if (as is probably true) the concern which has to be bribed is not worth having; we then find ourselves in the position of seeking out and inducing small industries to locate here. Or, possibly carry surveys to a further point than they have been carried and make a thorough study of what we ourselves have at hand; not in the spirit of "booster" boasting, but in the light of the cold facts.

When we take account of stock what have we?

1—We have a great deal of unskilled and unemployed labor.

2—We have adequate power at reasonable rates.

3—We have rail transportation which undoubtedly would be made adequate to our requirements.

4—We have the resourceful ingenuity and ability which is inherent with the Maine Yankee.

What is wrong with this picture? Answer, raw materials.

Out of five requisites for employment and production we possess four. Surely the fourth is no insurmountable obstacle.

It is at this connection, however, it must be born in mind that capital tied up in "bricks and mortar" is not an earning asset.

If machinery and equipment can be provided through subscribed capital, the financing from the purchase of raw material through to the collection of accounts receivable should be a simple matter.

These comments are being made with the hope that they may prolong the discussion which N. O. Piker has started—prolonging it to a point at which something tangible may be developed. Needless to say destructive criticism, controversial argument, recrimination will be of profit to none.

Someone to town every 10 minutes for a handful of nails.

"Yard owners say that high prices are usually caused by the failure of yachtsmen promptly to pay bills, and point out with some truth that their difficulties increase progressively as shipwrights die off leaving no apprentices to fill their shoes."

In these days of labor unrest, too, the yacht owner should realize that he is apt to be viewed as an over-privileged individual who is quite fair game for a little exploitation. Such downright dishonesty (with its consequent menace to life and limb when the ship is at sea) is not thought so scandalous by many as it was in an earlier day.

So Mr. Tompkins has found out from his wide experience in American and foreign yards what Rocklanders have known all along—that the work at I. L. Snow Yard is unequalled anywhere.

The Easter Dance

Chamber of Commerce Will Sponsor Ambitious Affair April 18

The annual Easter Monday Ball, sponsored by the Rockland Chamber of Commerce and to be held April 18 in Community Building will be the one big carnival night of the season. The whole great building has been hired for the occasion and no effort will be spared to make it the banner event.

A sensational beano game will be operated with greatly to be desired prizes. Bowling will be a special attraction with prizes for men and women. The entertainment will be radically different with the several clubs of the city competing in brief programs the crowd to be the judge.

Dancing is of course a major attraction with many prizes offered for a variety of reasons. There will be a refreshment booth and two grand door prizes. The Rockland Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the affair and the proceeds will be devoted toward completing the equipment of the beautiful new Chamber of Commerce and Information Bureau offices in the West which are immediately at hand, if we could do that we would have all five requisites of employment and production.

What have we in the way of raw materials which could be converted into a finished product. As a first thought, we have quantities of timber—birch, spruce, pine; we have scallop shells; we have peat.

Can we put the timber to any use? A prosperous community has been built up out of utter desolation in the Tennessee mountains by converting otherwise useless hickory into furniture. We could manufacture furniture out of our native pine, it is very popular just now.

Could buttons or novelties be produced from scallop shells, now a waste product?

Could we make use of our peat deposit by converting it into commercial form? Very large quantities are being imported for agricultural uses and poultry litter.

Should not all simple possibilities as those mentioned be given an exhaustive study. The development of one or two or three very small units might well grow into something real and substantial; a half dozen small manufacturing units far out-weigh in advantage one large one. Here is a suggestion to The Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations.

A thorough and complete survey of every raw material immediately available; an analysis of every possibility of conversion of every raw material into a finished product; a study of production costs; a study of markets and competitive lines.

At about this point it is pertinent to enquire, "What about capital?" It has been said that as much as $20,000 was pledged by our business men to meet the requirements of one business considering Rockland as their location (they did not come). One-half that amount, judiciously handled, would finance a real business of our own.

In that connection, however, it must be born in mind that capital tied up in "bricks and mortar" is not an earning asset. If machinery and equipment can be provided through subscribed capital, the financing from the purchase of raw material through to the collection of accounts receivable should be a simple matter.

These comments are being made with the hope that they may prolong the discussion which N. O. Piker has started—prolonging it to a point at which something tangible may be developed. Needless to say destructive criticism, controversial argument, recrimination will be of profit to none.

On another occasion the Merry Meet Club went to the summit of a neighboring mountain—Battie I think—and had another jolly time, in the course of which the late Congressman Littlefield's horse was painted to resemble a zebra, and duly photographed for posterity's sake. The existence of the Merry Meet Club formed the happiest chapter in the lives of its members, I feel safe in saying.

It is interesting to note the morning migration of the seagulls, as they leave their Lermond's Cove cafeteria and hit the trail for their new buffet lunch alongside the Pleasant street iron bridge. They go singly, in pairs and in flocks and never seem to have indigestion.

I recall a Rockland pastor, long since gone to his reward, who was to deliver a lecture entitled "Punctual People" at the Methodist Church. He was 15 minutes late in keeping his appointment.

"The Black Cat"

By The Roving Reporter

Tuning in casually upon Station WOR shortly before 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon I was much surprised to hear the operator of a Rockland short wave station talking with "Herby" in Belfast. The reception was much stronger than I usually get by long wave and I am still wondering how it could be expected to fit in with long wave kilocycles. The operator admitted that it "interfered quite seriously with nearby sets," and that he was under agreement to sign off at 6 o'clock. It was my first encounter with short wave interference as bold as that, and I wonder that it is permitted. There may be some simple explanation; if so I shall be glad to learn it.

Nathan F. Cobb has a fund of valuable information when it comes to matters nautical, and he replies to the request of Miss Josephine Thorndike by saying that the bark Golden Era, commanded by her father, was built in South Thomaston in 1850 by G. Thorndike—a craft of 443 tons. He obtains this information from Eaton's History, which has ever been considered an infallible authority.

A Waterville friend asks me for information about the tramp chair, now owned by Ernest C. Davis of Broadway. My first recollection of it was when this chair sat on Fred Collamore premises near the entrance to Oakland Park. I wrote a newspaper-story about it, and eventually lost track of the curious contrivance until it turned up on Ernest Davis' lawn. Mr. Davis told me that the chair originally belonged to Fred M. Blackington's father William, and was used for hauling tramps, who were then very numerous to police headquarters. Fred gave it to Mr. Davis, who had it for a long time at his Angler's farm in Union. Tourists who visited that section were tremendously interested in it, and scores of them sat in it to have their pictures taken. And when the chair was brought to Rockland there were similar experiences. Mr. Davis believes it to be between 65 and 75 years of age, but there appears no way to authenticate its age.

And while I am on the subject of Ernest Davis I hear from him some of the jolly pranks which were played by that social organization so prominent in Rockland affairs 30 or more years ago—the Merry Meet Club. One of the meetings was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Bisbee in Camden, and Ernest was unable to be present on account of illness. The club dispersed at a late hour, and when Mrs. Bisbee awoke next morning she was greatly mystified to know why so many persons were looking at the house. Going outdoor she found that her late guests had hung Ernest in effigy from one of the upper windows. Even now the dummy is in Mr. Davis' possession, and like Charlie McCarthy may be due for another appearance.

RAINBOW

Out of the greyness
Shone this lovely thing—
So on dead thoughts
Do the nightingales sing,
And from a drab earth
Sweetest roses spring.

Suddenly it came,
But I could not see
Where it had begun
Or where it could be;
Suddenly it shone there,
Beautiful, for me.

Someone stole the yellow
Of the daffodils,
And the misty blue
From the far fading hills
And caught up the green
The ripening apple spills.

Someone snatched the red
Of a sunset's glow,
The blushes from the thirt
And the sun-warmed sloe,
And robbed the woods where the violets grow;

And spun of them a dream,
And hung it high
Between the dead stars,
And the clouds that swing by,
Hung it in the grey and sullen sky.

"We haven't any sidewalk up here," said Mrs. Doherty, "and I've lost my rubbers walking in the muddy highway. Also we have asked every mayor for 25 years to do something about it." She told her story into sympathetic ears, for at 6.30 next morning men from Commissioner Gardner's department were putting in a new sidewalk walk. And are the Dohertys and other residents of the street pleased. "This is a Democratic street, but a Republican mayor had to save the day," said Mrs. Doherty.

The motor trawler Huntington Sanford, owned by Oscar Johnson of Rockland, Me., was towed into Norfolk today by the Coast Guard cutter Dione after being helpless at sea for some hours. The trawler was sighted four miles outside the Virginia Capes by the destroyer Blue, which sent a radio message to Coast Guard headquarters here requesting aid be sent the fishing craft.

Ocean Trip Prizes

Offered By Propeller Club In a National Poster Contest

Ten ocean trips on American ships are offered by the Propeller Club of the United States as capital prizes in a nationwide poster contest, open to young Americans residing anywhere in the United States, announced by Charles H. C. Pearsall, national president of the organization.

The purpose of this contest is to interest the coming generation of voters and taxpayers in the necessity for a strong American Merchant Marine, adequate to serve the nation economically and efficiently in the development of United States foreign trade, in the transportation of American goods in domestic and foreign trade, and for the national defense.

Posters entered in the contest must be emblematic of the American Merchant Marine and must bear, somewhere in the design, the slogan: "For Freight or Trips—Use American Ships." To the young artists submitting the ten posters considered the best by the judges' committee, will be awarded as prizes free ocean trips on American vessels—to the Mediterranean, to northern Europe, to England, to the West Indies, the Panama Canal and South America. These prize trips have been donated through the courtesy of leading American flag steamship companies.

In addition, numerous cash prizes have been provided, ranging from $25 to $10, to be awarded to contestants submitting posters of merit.

The contest is limited to young Americans, either male or female, of 21 years of age or less on May 22, 1938, and who are residents of the United States.

Posters must measure 18 inches in width and 24 inches in height over all—that is, inclusive of margin or border. They may be executed in any medium, in black and white, or in color. All posters must be in the hands of National Headquarters of the Propeller Club no later than May 1st, 1938, accompanied by, entry blank, properly filled in, attesting to the age of the contestant.

Josef Hoffman Superb In Closing Concert At the University of Maine

(From the Miami Herald)

Before an ever enthusiastic audience that packed to overflowing the large auditorium of the Miami Senior High School, the sixth and closing subscription concert of the University of Miami Symphony orchestra was given featuring as soloist the famous pianist, Josef Hofmann in the "Golden Jubilee Year" of his American debut.

Here was youth, trained and skilled and intensely interested, united with professional age, neither reflecting the years, the years of inexperience nor the years that may dim the spirit. Both were merged in the common love for and understanding of the ageless art that is music, that is culture and beauty, that is the poetry of sound, the total creations that endure.

The splendid orchestra under Conductor Arnold Volpe was never better in its execution of the intricate and heavy and delicate music of Brahms and Beethoven.
Opening the program with the overture, "Sakuntala" by the Hungarian composer, Carl Goldmark, the orchestra followed with the four movements of the Brahms Symphony No. 1 in C Minor, a work of major importance that only the finest of orchestras would attempt or could perform. Needless to say the Miami aggregation accomplished it to perfection.

After the intermission came Mr.
Hofmann, who honored Miami and the orchestra in his notable tour, signaling 50 years on the American concert stage. He was given a golden trophy by the orchestra, with the presentation by Charles Staltman, flutist.

For his numbers with the orchestra, Mr. Hofmann played the three movements of the Concerto No. 4 in G Major by Beethoven, with particularly lovely refrains, the background musically painted in by the orchestra, producing a rare grandeur, an audible spectacle, the artist and the orchestra flowing into a common tonal greatness.
In response to the demands of the insistent audience, that included many members of the State Federation of Music clubs in session at Coral Gables, Mr. Hofmann responded generously with five en-cores, including several of his favorites. These ranged from the quicker tempo, the pianissimo, the andante, allegro and largo to the crashing crescendo. At times his fingers are as gentle in their touch as the butterfly, again they thunder out the notes of the tempest. Always the master of his instrument, Mr. Hofmann proved that he remains so after all these years.
It was another historical event in Miami's musical records.

Last year 24 poultrymen in Knox-Lincoln county had 26,044 hens tested for pullorum without a reactor. These men are selling thousands of chicks to poultrymen in the county. There were three other counties in the State that had a perfect record: Twin (Androscoggin & Sagadahoc), Franklin, and Waldo counties. There were 243,580 hens tested in 314 flocks and only 516 reactors.

For Cancer Control

Women's Field Army Goes Marching On — False Modesty Attacked

Mid-way in their campaign against cancer, women of the State enlisted in the Women's Field Army, Maine Division of the American Society for the Control of Cancer made known through their State Commander, Mrs. William Holt of Portland, the almost universal sympathy with their cause which they are finding as they seek enrollments to carry on the educational work.

"Even in homes where only a small gift is possible," said Mrs. Holt, "a desire to help in some way is being shown, because in almost every family there is one who has been or is afflicted with the disease."

Answering the question, "Who has cancer?" Mrs. Holt said, "Everyone may have this disease and everyone should be on the alert against it, but 95 percent of it occurs in those over 35 years of age." She suggested that Mother's and Father's Days might well be dedicated to the fight against cancer since mature men and women are particularly vulnerable to it. Mother's Day occurs in just a month.

Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon-General of the United States Public Health Service sets the total number of cases of cancer in the country today at more than 400,000. We know that one out of nine persons over forty now die of this disease. Forty percent of the cases now fatal to women are cancer of the breast and uterus, yet two types of the disease are, in their early stages, curable in the large majority of cases.

Speaking at the rally meeting of the State workers in Portland last week, Dr. Frank H. Lahey struck at the false modesty which has been responsible for the deaths of many persons afflicted with cancer who refused to submit to an examination before it was too late.

This year Maine women seek $25,000 for their educational work. Of the funds raised $3,500 will be budgeted for the educational program in Maine and the State Headquarters maintenance.

The bulk of the funds raised will be used to continue the Dr. Joseph W. Scannell Memorial Fund. Dr. Scannell, a prominent Lewiston physician, was, at the time of his death, Chairman of the Cancer Committee of the Maine Medical Association and was instrumental in the establishment of a branch of the Women's Field Army in Maine. In order to do the greatest good for the greatest number of needy cancer sufferers through this fund, the State Advisory Board, headed by Dr. Edward H. Risley, of Waterville, decided to limit the purpose of the Scannell Fund to treatments by radium and diagnosis and treatments by X-ray.

fund, the purpose of which is to take care of first-aid expenses at state 4-H club meeting. W. G. Hunton, Maine Central Railroad, Industrial Agent, established this fund in 1936 with a contribution of $350. A. B. Graham of Washington, D. C., organizer of the first boys' and girls' agricultural club in the United States, Emil Rosen, New Sweden 4-H leader, and 71 Maine 4-H clubs have brought the total to $422.50. Knox-Lincoln county clubs on this honor roll are: Jolly Trollers 4-H club, Thomaston, Mrs. Esther Harjula, leader; Champion Chick Raisers, Thomaston, Mrs. Jennie Anderson, leader; Abnakis 4-H club of Tenants Harbor, Mrs. Claribel Andrews, leader; Jolly Islanders 4-H club, North Haven, A. Bart Kirk's Rise

More About Rockland Boy Who Is Now M. C. R. R. General Agent In Bangor

In Tuesday's issue of this paper appeared a brief announcement that "Bart" Kirkpatrick had been promoted to general agent of the Maine Central Railroad in Bangor. A Bangor despatch adds the following information:

"Promotion of Bartholomew C. Kirkpatrick, assistant general agent of the Maine Central Railroad at Lewiston, to be general agent of the road at Bangor, was announced in Bangor Tuesday, by T. M. McLaughlin, superintendent of the Eastern Division. He will assume his new duties at once, succeeding James Gibbons, who resigned to apply for pension on account of ill health."

"The new general agent, who will have his headquarters in Bangor, was born Sept. 30, 1892, and has been connected with the Maine Central Railroad since Feb. 21, 1912, when he entered service as a clerk at Rockland. He later was transferred to Brunswick and, after his return from service overseas in the World War, was promoted to cashier at Waterville. In May, 1925, he was promoted to chief clerk at Rumford and in January 1935, promoted to the post at Lewiston, which he has held until April 9. He married Clara Cronin of Waterville in 1922. They have two children, Joan, 15, and Clare, 7."

The increasing recognition which Mr. Kirkpatrick has received from the railroad corporation is very gratifying to his relatives and friends in this city, and it goes without saying that it has been merited. T. M. McLaughlin, above referred to, is a former Maine Central agent in this city.

But Between Their Color and Accent They May Not Be Recognized

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29 Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— "Well," said Phil Howard last night, "Ah has done heard the Call of the North an Ah reckons Ah bettah be gittin' maself some fur lined britches fo the journey. Ah aims ter git back while they still can understand me up there."

"Henery, he's set on shovin' off right soon now, providin his social engagements don't interfere none with his schedule. Ise fixin to drag along somehow—in the meantime Ah bids fo spades."

It was not last night in the smart little apartment where the Howards have spent the winter. The windows were all opened wide and the draperies of each window were pulled aside and tied to the draperies on the next window. This arrangement allowed an occasional warm breeze to drift into the room and cool the bearings in Phil's brain as he labored to justify a bid of four spades on a hand whose peice de resistance was a ten spot of diamonds.

"Yes, sir," said Phil. "Mebbe you-all hadn't noticed what Ah was sayin', but the fact is Ah's been down yere mos' six months now an this climate is comin' out in mah' speech. Ah jes can't talk natural any mo'."

"You-all souns right fashionable to me Mistah Howard," I said mildly.

"Sho enuf, Sho enuf," agreed Phil. "Ah would, but what you-all don't know is that you soun worse than Ah do. You got it an Ah got it an we-all all got it. Ed. Brown went home talkin like a Kentucky Colonel and dere's somepin about you that reminds me of a mint julep right now. When we-all gits back to the clam country where we belongs, between the way we talk an the way we looks, people won't know us a-tall. Look at Hez Pales he left here browner than the baked beans he was homin for, an Ah'll wille to bet that he'll have to spend a week in Harriet Silsby Frost's greenhouse gittin' acclimated 'fore they allow him out doors."

"Now Phil," observed Mrs. Howard, "You-all pay some attention to what you're doin. You're down three already."

"Yeah, Well there's goin to be a chapter in mah' forthcoming book on what a man has a right to expect from his partner. I saved the rubber anyway."

"I saw Caro Littlefield yesterday and she was brown as a berry," said Mrs. Reed, "and I think the winter down here has done us all a lot of good. Sue Keizer and Mabel Spear are looking better than I ever saw them look and Arthur Torry in his white hat, white shoes and white trousers, looks like a fashion plate in Esquire magazine. Harriet Luce said this morning before she left for Miami that she's had a much better time than she expected to have and I haven't seen anybody from Rockland who hasn't thoroughly enjoyed their winter. In more ways than one I shall be sorry to leave."

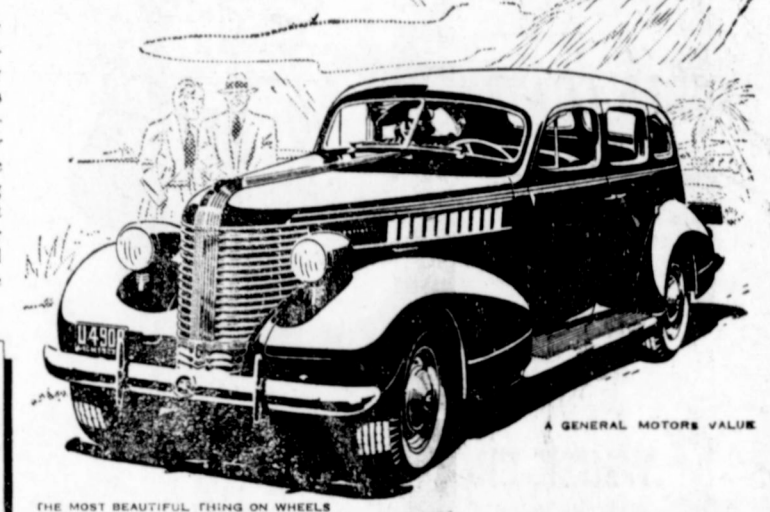

"Way down here in de lan' ob cotton, What I bid, Ise done forgotten," "Who said we all didn't have a good time down here," asked Phil.

I've swum so much I've got a speakin' acquaintance with every pompano north of Key West, eaten everything from paypays to Minjol bread, had a few previews of the coming World Series in baseball and even decended so low as to betray a slight interest in golf—to say nothing of arguing with Henry Bird over a score in scuffle board. I've been on safari from Tarpor Springs to Sarasota and on a diet which included everything from grape fruit to bales hay. I'm brown as a Seminole Indian and talk like Uncle Tum's Cabin, and what I want now is something flavored with fried clams and maple syrup. Now, am I right?"

When Phil put this question we paused for a moment and considered it. Outside the house a big round moon hung high in a cloudless sky. Subdued sounds of domestic activity from the open windowed bungalows round about drifted up on the breeze, and the air was full of the odors of a bursting spring. It was warm and pleasant and comfortable and, quite suddenly, it was also oppressive.

"through the jam of traffic at the moonlight a long ribbon of concrete started and it rolled on before us far up through the Carolina hills, the interminable reaches of Virginia. It crossed the bridge at Washington and reached up through the jam of traffic at the entrance to the Holland tunnel. It ed us around the turns of the old Boston Post Road and there, suddenly, was the bridge at Kittery and the hills of Maine.
