The tiny boy had been taken for a motor ride by a friend of the family.

On his return his mother said to him: "Did you thank Mr. Blinks for taking you for a ride?"

There was no answer. The mother repeated her question, but still there was no answer.

"Jimmie," she said, "did you hear me? Did you thank Mr. Banks for taking you for a ride?"

"Yes," whispered Jimmie, "but— but he told me not to mention it."

ON SAWFLY'S TRAIL

State To Release Fifteen Million Parasites To "Kill Off" The Menace

Maine has 15,000,000 parasites working in an effort to "kill off" the European spruce sawfly which Dr. H. B. Peirson, State Entomologist, said was "one of the greatest threats our forests have ever faced."

The parasites, part of the 30,000,000 which the State plans to raise and release this year, have been placed in more than 60 townships, mostly in the northern sections, "where the outbreak is most severe," Peirson said.

"Approximately 5,000,000 more are to go into the field this week," he said.

"Land owners have established a camp near the mouth of the Allagash for collecting cocoons of the sawfly to be used for rearing stock, and the CCC has a camp of 50 boys above Portage for the same purpose."

The two camps collect approximately 200,000 cocoons a week, he said. The parasites, reared from the cocoons, are liberated from small screen-covered boxes.

LAUDED BY WOOLLCOTT

Cecelia Loftus, Impersonator Of Wide Repute, Will Appear At Camden Opera House

To keep large audiences entranced and breathless is no novelty for Cecelia Loftus, beloved actress, who is to appear with her famous impersonations and impressions at the Camden Opera house Aug. 29 as the last of the Town Hall Series.

The 62-year-old actress has been appearing successfully since the mid-1890s amusing English and American audiences with her uncanny ability to reproduce perfectly the voices, mannerisms and personalities of such well-known stars as Sophie Tucker, Sarah Bernhardt, Harry Lauder, Ruth Draper, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, John and Ethel Barrymore and stars of yesterday, Vivian Duncan, Yvette Guilbert, Florence Reed, and Ada Rehan.

Her gift for mimicry probably was inherited from her mother, Marie Loftus, a Scottish music hall singer, who delighted the patrons of Harry Miller's in the Bowery with such ditties as "I'm So Shy."

When she went on a tour of the United States, Cissie, then six, was left in a school in Cambridge, Mass. Her father, Tom Brown, was a member of a trio who played the music halls the world over in a minstrel skit called "Black Justice," playing that skit and nothing else for 45 years. Cecelia made her own debut at the age of 16 as a ballad singer in a Belfast (Ireland) music hall. London discovered her the following year.

Born in Glasgow, Miss Loftus still speaks with a very slight brogue. Her bobbed white hair stands out around her head like an aureole. She is a charming picture of surviving youthfulness and continual amazement her audiences with her vitality and hearty humor. It is an astounding gallery down which she walks, some times in high spirits and again with deep feeling—full of variety achieved with a flickering gesture, a twist of inflection. She is a hundred different people.

Alexander Woolcott's Comment

"If I were to approach you without warning, and in a muted contralto gurgle, were to observe irrelevantly, 'That's all there is; there isn't any more,' you might think it odd of me, but at least you would know what I was up to. Unless you had once been dropped on your head by a careless Nana or had lived all your days in a unique and enviable seclusion, you would realize immediately that, for no good reason, I was giving an imitation of Ethel Barrymore. And you would be wrong—pardonably but characteristically wrong. For I would not be giving an imitation of Miss Barrymore at all. I would be giving an imitation of Cissie Loftus."

"I was reminded of this nice distinction once when I was contentedly wedged in the audience that packed the Little Theatre. There Miss Loftus was giving a brimming program of her uncanny caricatures—brief, infallible materializations of all the old fry of the theatre from Sarah Bernhardt and Bert Williams to Pauline Lord and Fannie Brice. The Loftus mimetic gift appears to have lost nothing by long disuse. If all the people who would take deep and astonished delight in her present performance were to know it was going on, the Lyceum Theatre would scarcely serve her purpose. No, nor Carnegie Hall either. She would need Madison Square Garden.

"You see most of what are palmed off on us as imitations are doubly that. They are really imitations of imitations. The true gift of caricature is rare. But once some one born with it—a Max Beerholm, let us say, or a Frueh or an Auerbach-Levy—once one of the elect sees that a Theodore Roosevelt can be done with one line for the sombrero, a curve for the spectacles and a few quirks of the pen for the radiant teeth, then all the rest set it too and follow suit.

"And the true caricaturists of the stage and of the printed page are further alike in this that they are always secretly contemptuous of the gift which really makes them distinguished. I have no doubt that, in the depths of his foolish heart, Frueh yearns to paint murals. Cissie Loftus, to my fury and astonishment, changed her name to Cecelia and, if memory serves, played Ophelia to the Hamlet of E. H. Sothern. Strange. I should think it would be so pleasant to be able—like Ruth Draper or Paul Robeson or Segovia—to do something, anything, better than any one else in the world can do it. Yet even now when Miss Loftus dazzles us with her imitations of Florence Reed in 'The Shanghai Gesture' and of Constance Collier in 'Dinner at Night,' I suspect she thinks it foolish of us to enjoy such nonsense and would respect us more if we rose in a body and remanded that she give her own idea of how the sleep-walking scene in 'Macbeth' should really be played.

"As the final curtain rose and fell a dozen times, I was smitten with a sudden regret that I had with me no flowers to hurl across the footlights. Wherefore I have put this bouquet together and hereby toss it across the footlights and across the years, with love and admiration, to Cissie Loftus."

Old Age Payments

Checks Mailed To 11,173 Persons In July—Steady Increase

Maine's old age assistance payments in July, State officials reported Thursday, increased 1100 over the June total of approximately 10,000.

Harry E. Henderson, director of the old age assistance division, said checks mailed to the 11,173 persons eligible for assistance amounted to $229,572 for July.

"Old age assistance payments are increasing each month, Henderson said, "and already this month the commission which approves applications has sanctioned payments to an additional 600 persons."

Henderson said the average payment was "about $20.55" to each of those on the eligible list.

The federal government matches dollar-for-dollar state funds expended for old age assistance.

TO BE DRAMATIZED

Sergeant Francis J. McCabe Plans Radio Series In Campaign To Save Lives

Sgt. Francis J. McCabe, Director, Highway Safety Division, Maine State Police, announced today a series of special radio broadcasts—dramatizations of motor car accidents—to cut down the appalling automobile death and injury toll.

The new program, which will begin Sunday, Aug. 21, will be heard over Station WCHS, at 10:30 a. m. that day and every Sunday thereafter for more than three months, under the title, "It Happened So Quick."

Actual accidents will be re-enacted, with the events leading up to them, and the causes of the crashes, together with the tragic results, will be shown. The programs are highly dramatic, and they serve to emphasize things not to do, how and when not to drive an automobile.

"By dramatizing these accidents," Director McCabe said today, "we hope to bring home to the thousands of motorists in Maine the tragic results that come from taking chances, from failing to observe the rules of the road, from so-called 'minor' infractions of the law."

"It Happened So Quick" is a non-advertising program of 15 minutes' duration, produced by a special cast. It is expected to rank highly among dramatic offerings and simultane-

STATE HONORS TO ROCKLAND

Maine Press Association's Award For Community Leadership Given Courier-Gazette

Knox County has a new State championship on its rolls, and The Courier-Gazette blushing takes the bow. At the Maine Press Association's annual meeting yesterday the award among Maine newspapers for "conspicuous community leadership" was given this newspaper.

Prof. Reginald Coggeshall of University of Maine, Professor Myhrman of Bates College and Frank Hoy, manager of the Lewiston Sun Journal were in charge of the contest.

Prof. Coggeshall's report is hereby incorporated.

In the consideration of papers submitted for the award for Conspicuous Community Leadership, the judges found one paper offered an interesting display of a continuous, sound policy of news concerning social and economic conditions in its community. This paper did not limit itself to personal items but served its readers by also giving them constructive news coverage. It is an example of alert news sense on the part of the editor.

Another paper offered an energetic support of a campaign for Christmas toys for needy children in its community. Generous of space, effectively supported by pictures, the paper sided considerably a good cause. There was, of course, a certain element of promotion in the campaign, and it was carried to a point of high success in a season when the spirit of giving was abroad.

A third paper submitted its campaign against community prejudice and inertia. The W.P.A. had been induced to build a community center. Once built, it remained for months closed and unused. It was a white elephant. Political partisanship pulled and hauled; the building meanwhile deteriorated, and the municipality expended money to heat a vacuum in order to avert actual damage.

Sharing in a drive to overcome rather immature obstinacy, the paper got behind a drive to accept the fact that the building did exist and could serve the community. The paper gave an outstanding example of getting behind and sticking to the finish to a conclusion of a campaign which ended in success after a long fight against three obstinate opponents; unpopularity, prejudice, inertia.

Today the building is a very busy center of community life. It is not only saving the municipality every cent of maintenance cost but it is making money which is being invested in improvements and extension of its service.

The judges were extremely interested in this example of community leadership. We even visited the town and without the aid of the publisher, we checked on the facts. We went over the building from cellar to roof, asking about conditions and utilization of space at the start and at the time of the visit; we checked on attendance figures; groups reached in the community, etc. We were struck by the number of urchins and older boys who were using the building. We, thereupon, checked at police headquarters, where we were told the building had justified itself only by its service to the adolescents of the community. Young boys who formerly had only had pool rooms or movies as recreation centers, now found normal play facilities in the athletic equipment, checker room, etc., of the community building. Minor delinquencies, the police said, had fallen off sharply with the opening of the center.

The judges, therefore took genuine pleasure in awarding the certificate for community leadership to a paper that had achieved a real accomplishment.

"The Black Cat"

By The Roving Reporter

If names count for anything the teacher of the Hope School must have had a tough time of it in the olden days. Henry Payson, who has given The Black Cat many tips since the feline's career began, recalls that there were at one time in that school three pupils named Cross, Savage and Baird. But names are somewhat deceptive, and perhaps the teacher wasn't thrown out into the snow drifts after all.

I wonder how many persons recall that Rockland once had a thoroughfare called Hibernia street. Ran from Hall avenue to Maverick street. You know it now as Jefferson street.

Port Clyde counts itself fortunate to have such charming summer people as Stow Wengenroth, a New York artist; his wife (Edith Ackley of doll fame) and their daughter Tekla. One of Mr. Wengenroth's prints attracted much attention in the recent exhibit at the Rockland Public Library, and admirers will be interested to know that he is finding excellent material for his lithographs which are to be published and shown in the Art Galleries this winter.

Eels are slippery critters but $25,000 worth of them failed to slip back into their native element this season and will add that much to the catch of Maine fishermen. Of the total probably a quarter of a million pounds will go out from the Penobscot County region, with Lincolnton for a center for shipment. More eel traps are being set than ever before. What is probably the largest eel trap in Maine has just been located on the East Branch of the Penobscot River at Grindstone, about six miles north of Medway. Stretched across the river this trap is about 1000 feet long of "V" shapes to better control the current. Boxes to catch the eels, two in number are at the point of the "V." The trap is at a shallow point and sunk to the river bed being fastened in place on poles. A man is kept at the trap at all times, during the season to keep the boxes clear and to rake out the eels.

G. A. Achorn hands to The Black Cat a copy of the Rockport News which he unearthed the other day. To the younger generation it will be news that Rockport ever had such a publication. The copy shown to me was dated Feb. 24, 1893, and was edited by my late and lamented associate John W. Thomas, who was for a long time connected with The Courier-Gazette in an advertising capacity, and who will be remembered in sporting circles as one of the finest bowlers the State ever produced. That they had some political troubles up there in those days may be judged from this editorial:

As the time passes it becomes more and more evident that the distribution of the Selectmen is unfair. Rockport village has one representative, so has West Rockport and Glen Cove. A minority of the board is not doing justice to the village. The business portion of the town should have at least two representatives. It is in the village where the greater portion of the valuation is represented and yet the minority valuation can rule the majority. Let our friends in West Rockport and Glen Cove be fair about this and do what is for the best interests of the town.

Rockland had five banks at the time the "Old Directory," was published: Limerock National capital $122,000; George W. Berry president, T. H. McLean cashier; North National, capital, $100,000; S. M. Bird president, E. F. Berry, cashier; Rockland National, capital, $150,000; John S. Case president; G. Howe Wiggin cashier; Rockland Savings, E. H. Lawry president, Edward D. Spear treasurer; Rockland Trust, capital $100,000; A. F. Crockett president, C. M. Kallioh secretary.

One year ago: A desperate attempt was being made to save the Deer Isle bridge project from going into the discard—Frank W. Gorden, widely known Union business man, died.

Ralph Doherty is no collector of "butts," but in this office yesterday he completed smoking a cigar which was presented to him many years ago by Henry Wall. It was a J.W.A. a very popular smoker once manufactured in this city.

Deer Isle Bridge

Work Going So Well That Completion Is Expected Next April

Construction work, which began late in February on the substructure of the P.W.A.-financed Deer Isle-Sedgwick bridge, is nearing completion.

The project, it was estimated, is about 60 percent, complete, while erection of the structural steel on one main tower pier is well under way according to James R. Gardner, resident engineer inspector, who is supervising this work for the P.W.A.

Completion of this construction work, bridging Eggemoggin Reach, will annex Deer Isle to the mainland.

The work to date has involved many deep water difficulties and has required much technical skill, constituting what is regarded as one of the most notable projects in the State.

The sub-structure consists of two anchorages, seven piers and an abutment at each end of the bridge. The two main piers extend to a depth of approximately 80 feet below the surface of the water in Eggemoggin Reach to rock foundation and extends 25 feet above the water at mean tide.

The steel towers will extend 183 feet above the main piers to a total height of 208 feet above the water. The floor of the bridge will be suspended from cables supported by these towers and which will be securely anchored in large blocks of concrete at each end. The total span between the two main piers is 1080 feet and the total length of the bridge will be 2471 feet. There will be a clearance at the center of 85 feet at high tide to the floor enough to allow a large craft to pass through with ease.

A survey of the employment furnished by this project shows that over 100 men have been employed at the site daily. Of this number 80 percent have been hired locally through the Maine State Employment Service who have taken these men from the list of unemployed. The remaining 20 percent employed being skilled labor used in the operation of the highly specialized equipment required to do this work.

Much employment has been produced in the State in the production of materials used in this construction. For example all of the cement incorporated in this project, approximately 60,000 bags, was purchased in the State of Maine; all the form lumber and timber, comprising 250,000 board feet, were produced in the State of Maine; 10,000 cubic yards of washed sand and gravel, which was necessary for the concrete piers and anchorages, were produced near the site; 2500 tons of steel, which will be used in this project will have to be transported across the State of Maine by its railroads, trucks and boats. Statistics show that for every man employed elsewhere in the production and transportation of the construction materials.

The total estimated cost of this bridge is $970,000 and is being financed by a P.W.A. grant and money appropriated by the State of Maine. The work is being done by the authority of the Joint Board Deer Isle-Sedgwick Bridge District. The Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corporation of New York City are the contractors for the substructure. The Phoenix Bridge Company of Phoenixville, Penn., are the contractors for the superstructure.

Work on the bridge is progressing as scheduled and completion is expected by April, 1939.

SPEAKING OF FAMILIES

North Newcastle Mother, 29 Looks After Thirteen Children

Mrs. Vernon Brown of North Newcastle lays claim to being the youngest mother of the largest family in Maine.

Mrs. Brown, who is 29 years old, has had 13 children, 11 of whom are living. There are six girls and five boys in the family, their ages ranging from 13 years to five months.

When school opens in September, eight of the children will attend. They have to go by bus for one school is two miles from their home. They all take lunches in the severe part of the winter, but on good days, six of them come home with their father for the mid-day meal.

Mrs. Brown does all her own cooking, washing and sewing with the help of the oldest children in vacation, and finds it quite a problem to keep them suitably dressed.

The four oldest children belong to the Jefferson Juvenile Grange where Irwin, 13, is on the executive committee; Patricia, 11, is lecturer; Charlotte, 10, is Ceres, and Muriel 9, is Pomona.

The other children are Robert,

Not Man-Made

Scarcity of Fish Raising Havoc With the Sardine Industry

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—These are times of trying and changing conditions. New records are being made in all walks of life and, likewise, a new record is being made in the history of the sardine industry on the coast of Maine.

When spring and summer came to the shores of Maine, in other years, along, too, came large schools of sparkling silver fish, or herring, to be converted into sardines. This year the sardine industry from Portland to Quoddy is experiencing a dearth of fish. Such a scarcity has never happened before in the history of the industry, which dates from back in the 70's. To be sure there have been years with more or less of a scarcity when the output would be below normal but never before were any of the factories completely idle for four or five weeks, right in the middle of the best fish conditions, without turning a wheel.

From the fishermen up through the line there are usually approximately 25,000 people depending on this industry for a livelihood, or a large part of it. Right at this time these people, or most of them, are only marking time. Boats and anxious boatmen are at the wharves patiently awaiting instructions. The uneasiness of the employees, as they make their regular calls and inquiries, is not to be questioned. To these people there are certainly trying and depressing times, and, too, the hungry look in the eye of the saucy gull as he circles over, glides down and then with a flip of his tail is off in a surly depressed mood. It is all so unusual.

The pack of sardines, to date, is not quarter of what it was a year ago at this time, and if conditions do not change for the better very soon other sections of the country besides the coast of Maine will have a spell of anxiety and some hungry looking eyes. However, this developing record on scarcity of fish is not "man-made" so we shall just have to abide by the laws of nature, or, in other words, "take it and like it," and when the first opportunity comes, try and make up for lost time.

A Deserved Tribute

Paid By North Haven Man To the Memory of Dr. Charles G. Weld

North Haven, Aug. 19, Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—To the citizens of North Haven, Maine:

Aug. 20 is the birthday of the late Dr. Charles G. Weld, who was one of the first of our summer friends to locate on the island and build the fine estate that now stands on Iron Point. For many years he occupied this cottage and did so many generous things for the island people that his memory still lingers in the hearts of the people and for this I want to pay my tribute to the North Haven people for this most kind hearted and generous man who died 26 years ago. Many sick people were cared for by him and he helped in sending them to hospitals. Others were helped by giving them education. The first steamboat service was made possible by the steamer Sylvia which was built and given by him, which we all remember was such an improvement over the old packet Greyhound. The "catboat" fleet he designed and which was built by Ossie Brown marked the beginning of the racing fleet. The fine yachts that he came in—first the cutter King Philip, then the Adeleter, then the Malay, all were yachts that we can picture and remember with pride as they steamed in and out of our harbor.

Many things could be told which this wonderful man did to make life happier for others but words cannot express them. I close by expressing my deep and loving memory of this dear man.

Hefman W. Crockett.

STRAND SUNDAY, MONDAY, TUESDAY

Maureen O'Sullivan and Robert Taylor in "The Crowd Roars"

Robert Taylor plays his first prize-fight role in "The Crowd Roars," action-packed story of the modern prize ring, opening Sunday at the Strand Theatre for an engagement of three days.

Maureen O'Sullivan, who played opposite the star in "A Yank At Oxford," is once again cast as Taylor's heroine in the new picture and an exceptional cast of prominent screen names includes Edward Arnold as a racketeer, Frank Morgan as Taylor's father, an ex-vaudeville "ham," William Gargan, Lionel Stander and Jane Wyman.

Based on a story by George Bruce, author of "Navy Blue and Gold," the picture reveals behind-the-scenes activities of the boxing game, with Taylor as a pawn in the shady manipulations of a gambling syndicate.

"The Crowd Roars" offers Taylor in the hardest-hitting role of his career as Tommy McCoy, the boy from the wrong side of the tracks, who fights his way up from the slums to a chance at the light-heavyweight championship.

Three smashing bouts in the colorful setting of Madison Square Garden climax the eventful career of the young fighter, who finds a battle with racketeers more serious than his challenge for the title.

The screen play of "The Crowd Roars" is the work of Thomas Lennon, George Bruce and George Oppenheimer. The picture was directed by Richard Thorpe.—adv.

Technocracy

Part 1

Technocracy originated in 1919 by Thorstein Veblen, distinguished educator, Charles P. Steinmetz of General Electric, Howard Scott, and members of Columbia university. A survey was made of the North American continent and the same operating technique is to be applied throughout that territory. The facts gathered make it certain that none of the political economic ideas, many of them introduced under primitive conditions, could be used, consequently technocracy had to enunciate a true policy of procedure, just as a technician would do in placing a stalled machine to maximum efficiency and production.

It was found that we have here a potential condition of plenty, plus skilled workers—the finest in the world—and also they found on the other hand, millions of destitute, hungry, tattered homeless people and insecurity in every walk of life. They found that notwithstanding industry has increased its man power 39 percent since 1930, power machinery has produced goods in such abundance, that no longer can purchasing power be maintained so as to support the profit system.

Thus, a paradoxical situation namely, that the lack of purchasing power of approximately 20 million people, make it impossible for both big and little business to continue under the enormous debt, interest and tax load. Thus the price system fails because official managers refuse to accept the evolution of a technological age. The economic condition of federal, state and municipal governments are daily becoming more serious because of profit in political positions overshadowing the general welfare.

State and federal government management is not different from General Motors, A. T. and T. and other important concerns. If these companies would not select efficient men to keep the equipment on high efficiency, how long would the general public receive the service they are entitled to, and in fact would not have these major companies been forced into insolvency long ago? The comparison of efficiency and inefficiency simply recites a clear-cut case of cause and effect.

The profit system through false information to the masses, has made it impossible for an efficient candidate on a specific platform, to be elected to any county, state or national position, consequently the government operates on a basis highly detrimental to the general welfare.

This is the first of four installments explaining technocracy.

A Strange Tale

How Cargo of Soap Caused the Loss of the Barque Fillibillio

Rockland, Aug. 18.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

This is the strange tale of the Fillibillio Capt. Ezekiel Tanner and "49er" days, as told by that old salt, my paternal grandfather. "The Fillibillio, Capt. Ezekiel Tanner and crew of 22 men, sailed from Frisco April 11, 1850, for Australia and way islands, laden with a general cargo, one item of which was a larger shipment of soap. I will skip ordinary details of the voyage and carry you to the main event.

"Soon after reaching latitude 30° North, we experienced a strange commotion of the deep, as though the ocean were boiling, which indeed was a fact. We were directly over a subterranean volcano and had the same experience as a chip in a kettle of boiling water. The constant pitching and tossing finally started the seams and we took much water, which required constant pumping by the crew, until we were exhausted. This was bad enough, but soon a new horror burst upon us. The action of the hot water began to work on our shipment of soap, the result was—soap suds! Oodles of it. First it oozed through the deck seams. We removed a hatch, in order to jettison the soap, but no living being could work in such a mess. Soon there was a foot of soap suds on the deck, then more and more. The forecastle and cabin were soon filled. The cook barricaded himself in the galley but the suds seeped in, and required super-human effort to effect his rescue.

The cook was supposed to be a negro but the action of the soap revealed to us a Caucasian, sans a 30-year accumulation of grime. He discarded his name—Spade—and was henceforth known as White.

Well, eventually we had to take to the boats and the sea having subsided a little, we hove to at a safe distance to see the finish. The soap suds boiled up to the height of the top sail yards. Then on the fourth day the barque sank, leaving on the ocean an immense mess of soap suds at least 40 feet high and 75 feet long.

Eventually we were picked up by a Portuguese ship, whose captain was attracted by what he thought was the phenomenon of an iceberg in equatorial waters. We never un-deceived him. Subsequently he reported having rescued the crew of a vessel lost in collision with an iceberg in Lat. 15° North, Long. 150° East, in the vicinity of what is now known as Wake Island. As his account sounded as plausible as ours, we let it go at that.

KNOX TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Pirates Only Half a Game Behind St. George For the Bok Prize

Coming Games

This afternoon—Waldoboro at St. George.

Sunday afternoon—Waldoboro at Rockland (two games); Camden at Thomaston (two games, first at 1.30).

Monday night—Rockland at Thomaston; St. George at Camden.

Tuesday night—Camden at St. George.

Wednesday night—Camden at Waldoboro.

The Rockland Pirates miss Lee Thomas, who was playing such a brilliant game in the outfield. They also welcome the return of Sam Glover, who has been playing with the Thomaston team the past two seasons.

Camden and Thomaston will play a double-header Sunday in Thomaston, the first game beginning at 1.30.

At a meeting of the managers of the Twilight League held last night at the Maine Music Store, the last two games won by Waldoboro were disallowed and will have to be re-played, owing to the fact that ineligible players were used. It is understood that Waldoboro will continue in the League as a re-organized team.

And at last we are able to publish the official standing, as furnished after last night's meeting of the managers:

	W	L	P.C.
St. George	6	3	.666
Pirates	6	4	.600
Camden	4	4	.500
Waldoboro	2	4	.333
Thomaston	2	5	.285

Waldoboro and Rockland will play a double-header at Community Park Sunday afternoon, the first game beginning at 2 o'clock.

Rockland 4, Camden 3

Maintaining their reputation of playing better ball abroad than they do at home the Rockland Pirates Thursday night took the Camden Shells across in one of the best games of the season—certainly one of the most interesting. The handful of Rockland fans in the Camden stands were highly elated with the splendid showing made by their representatives.

The finish was a thriller, and produced one "Chuck" Ellis in the role of a rescuing hero as the story will presently unfold.

Rockland drew first blood with singles by McBride and Perry, a sacrifice by Winchenbach and a double by Ellis. Camden's answer to that challenge was a pair of scores with singles by Heal and Plaisted and a double by Wads-worth.

The Pirates again took the driver's seat in the third on singles by Winchenbach and Perry and a beautiful triple by Pendleton, netting two scores.

The Camden machine got out of gear in the fifth and the Pirates picked up what proved to be the winning run, on three errors. One of these is charged against that Holloway, sec. of the speakers' bureau, Ohio, are completing a series of meetings in Maine's second district in the interest of Hon. Clyde H. sendites are holding a big field day. Congressman Smith will also be on the program. Tonight the party will go to Waldoboro and hold a meeting in the Grange hall, winding up one of the greatest Townsend campaigns ever held in Maine.

This is the party's first visit to this State which ranks high in its favor, for its scenic beauties and hospitality. Their visit has included a tour of Camden and Cadillac mountain and many other places of interest in this part of the State. Mr. Newell was greatly impressed by the Bok Amphitheatre and declared that it was the most beautiful setting for a lecture that he had ever seen.

It was estimated that 1000 people heard him deliver a one hour and 20 minute lecture and wanted more. A record audience heard Mr. Newell at K. P. hall last night. After the Damariscotta field day at Clark's Cove Sunday the party will leave for Cleveland with the same impression that all visitors have after touring this beautiful State.

SERMONETTE

Ezekiel's Commission

It was a strange and solemn commission God gave His prophet. Out of the North a whirlwind; in its midst God, Ezekiel, prostrate, heard the voice of the One Who spoke, "Son of man, stand upon thy feet and I will speak unto thee."

The spirit entered into me and sat me upon my feet and I heard him and he said unto me, "Son of man, go unto the house of Israel and speak unto them. For thou art not sent to people of strange speech and of a hard language whose words thou canst not understand."

Had I sent thee to them they would have hardened unto thee, but Israel will not harden unto thee for they will not harden unto me. Fear them not, neither be dismayed. Just tell them "Thus saith the Lord God; whether they will hear or forbear," Ezekiel says, "I went in bitterness, but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me."

So many of us rebel when we are moved by the spirit within us, which we call conscience. We serve God readily when it is easy so to do, but bitterly when the hand of the Lord falls strong upon us. And what, after all, did God ask of Israel? What he asks of us today, "Turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin." "For why will ye die? For I have no pleasure in such death wherefore turn yourselves and live."

So God's flaming angel often sits across our path to turn us lest we die.—William A. Holman

HARRY W. FRENCH

The death Wednesday morning of Harry W. French marked the passing of one of Rockland's best known and best liked citizens.

The deceased was a native of Lincolnville, born May 8, 1872, son of Capt. Samuel and Mary (Gardner) French. He became a resident of Thomaston at the age of 15, and there was married to Lizzie Comery Aug. 29, 1894.

The hardware business was destined to be his life vocation. He first entered the employ of the late Cornelius Doherty for whom he worked 12 years. He was then employed three years at Fred I. Lamson's store in Stonington. From there he went to Bangor as a member of the staff of the Dickey Hardware Co. Returning to Rockland he entered the employ of the Rockland Hardware Co. and at the time of his death had been employed for a number of years by the Crie Hardware Co.

Mr. French's death is an especially severe blow to the Rockland Odd Fellows whom he had served so faithfully over a long period of years. He was a past noble grand of Knox Lodge and past chief patriarch of Rockland Encampment and was secretary of both at the time of his death. He was also a Modern Woodman.

He was a staunch and lifelong Democrat and his popularity with the voters found expression when he was elected alderman from the iron-clad Republican precinct, Ward 3.

Mr. French is survived by his wife, a son, Gardner L. French; a daughter, Mrs. Bernice Freeman; a sister, Mrs. Lena Beverage of Stockbridge, Mass. Mrs. Ella McMillan is the only surviving aunt in a family of 12.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Mr. French's late residence on Rankin street.

Away Below Normal

The Word From Eastport
Concerning Season's Delayed Sardine Pack

An Eastport despatch says: With the season sardine pack of Maine canneries about 750,000 cases below normal, packers are looking ahead to the receipts of smaller herring if the usual output of the factories is to be equalled this year. There is no question that the general scarcity of herring plus the absence of the smaller sizes, has had an adverse effect on local plants and those along Maine's eastern coastline. Receipts of oil pack herring is the only salvation for Quoddy's sardine industry, it is believed in many quarters.

Already come reports that one Canadian factory has ceased operations for the time being, due to the prevalence of large herring—too large for packing purposes under almost any conditions. This plant, the H. W. Welch Company, Ltd., of Deer Island, although not of as large capacity as many American plants, has a payroll that will be greatly missed among the islanders. This over-supply of large herring has resulted in the production of greater than the normal amount of fish oil, at least. This, plus the fact that herring are very fat this season has increased the oil output. The oil is pressed from the fish as a part of the process of manufacturing fertilizer; it is then refined and during this process the fish odor is removed. The oil is then shipped to St. Stephen and other points and used in the manufacture of soap.

The great difference in the price paid by Canadian and American packers to the fishermen is one cause say experienced observers of the scarcity of herring in Washington County plants. Latest reports are that packers on the other side are buying outright by the hoghead and paying eight dollars while eastern Maine packers are buying on the "pack-out" plan which amounts to about four or five dollars per hoghead. In some instances, less than 20 cases of sardines have been packed out of a hoghead of herring received. This means a very low price to the fishermen and a great waste of fish, although this waste is turned into fertilizer.

 Old hands at the game figure that it is all up with the sardine business for Quoddy this season if herring of the oil pack type do not strike this month. This size of fish should pack out at least 30 cases to the hoghead as against half that number in certain receipts of the larger herring.

THE FINAL CONCERT

Curtis String Quartet Ends Series at Eells Boat Barn Sunday Night

The final concert in the series given by the Curtis String Quartet at the Captain Eells Boat Barn, Rockport, will take place Sunday evening at 8:30.

While the Haydn and Beethoven works selected for this program are of distinguished beauty, peculiar interest centers in the Barber composition. Remembered by the unusual and artistic concert given in Camden some summers ago, Mr. Barber is not unknown in this section. A nephew of the famous former Metropolitan contralto, Louise Homer, Mr. Barber has won many awards for his brilliant musical ability, and stands today in the front ranks of the most renowned American composers. Already to his credit are compositions for orchestra, string ensembles, and voice.

It is not amiss to stress once again the rare opportunity offered music lovers in this section to hear one of the great string quartets of the present day, and to hear it under ideal conditions. Due to limited seating capacity in the Boat Barn, it is advisable to have seats reserved in advance. This may be done by communicating with any member of the quartet here at Rockport. The members are Jascha Brodsky, Charles Jaffe, Max Aronoff and Orlando Cole.

Otho Thompson returned to Medford, Mass., Tuesday after spending several days with Mrs. Thompson and their daughter, Mrs. Helen Yeo. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kendrie, located at Penaguid for the summer were callers Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Vinal. ## Shurtleff Is Coming

City Planning Expert Will Address Garden Club's Midsummer Meeting

Flavil Shurtleff, Counsel of the American Planning and Civic Association and for 25 years director of the National Conference on City Planning will address the midsummer meeting of the Rockland Garden Club at the Community Building next Tuesday, at 2.30. A graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, Mr. Shurtleff has specialized in Municipal Law as related to community development.

Organized two years ago under the leadership of Paul Cloke, Dean of the School of Engineering of the University of Maine, the Maine Chapter of the American Planning and Civic Association ranks as one of the most active in the United States.

For 25 years the American Civic Association and the National Conference on City Planning were the only national organizations exclusively devoted to popular education in the field of planning and zoning. These two groups merged four years ago to form a stronger national agency for service in this field. Twenty states now benefit from the activities of separate chapters of the American Planning and Civic Association.

As counsel for this organization, Mr. Shurtleff has been particularly interested in the establishment of planning commissions and zoning ordinances, and more recently has been actively engaged in urging legislation in several states to restrict the flagrant misuse of billboard advertising on highways and in rural districts.

Mr. Shurtleff has written extensively on this subject and has lectured at several New England colleges. He is now giving a course in city administration at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

His talk before the Garden Club Tuesday will point out the value of city planning, zoning, and roadside control to towns in this district, and will stress the necessity for more comprehensive citizen education along these lines.

This meeting is open to all interested men and women.

"On The Mall"

American Legion Festivities

Drew Throgs To Thomaston—Tip-Top Parade

The activity of Thomaston continued to center in the Mall all day Thursday; and as every year there gathered friends from near and far to renew acquaintance, lunch out-doors, buy the wares displayed for sale, view the fine parade in the late afternoon, and make every possible contribution to the Legion treasury through this annual event in its behalf.

To mention all who worked for the Fair would be to list the people of the town and many outside as well; but particular mention may be made of those who sold at the several booths and helped at the games.

The important refreshment table across the west end of the Mall was looked after by Olive Brazier, Lucetta McNeil, Alida Simmons, Doris Spear, Mattie Spaulding, Margaret Spear, and Mertie Grover. Among those who served ice cream were Weston Young, Edna Young and Bernice Knights at one booth, and at another Neil Libby and Norman Rogers with other Scouts. Sadie Chaples dispensed grabs, and Enoch Clark sold popcorn. Helen Grant assisted by Evelyn Hahn took care of the customers at the home-cooked food table, and at the candy counter were Blanche Lermond, Doris Simmons, Helen Studley and Ella Edgett of Belmont, Mass.

Plain and fancy aprons were sold by Shirley Williams, Lillian Conery and Lilla Williams; and many of the gay tiny aprons that trimmed the booth were coveted and bought by customers.

Very attractive was the display on needlework table run by Helen Lynch, Carrie Carroll, Mary Crie, Helen Dana and Charlotte Williams; and the few articles remaining will as always find ready sale later to those in search of hand-made gifts.

Edna Smith, Lillian Dornan, Selma Biggers and Nellie Vose were at the fragrant pillow booth and did a good business till sold out.

Among those who worked at the beano tables were Ralph Carroll, Arthur MacDonald, Bowdoin Grafton, William Robinson, Curtis Goodwin, Charles Smith, Albert Anderson, Joe Jameson, Albert Shepard of New York, Ronald Lachance, Edgar Cobb, Pauline Burnham and Marjorie Woodcock; and some of the others helping at various games were Stanley Copeland, Orvel Williams, James Carney, Herbert Lewis, and Ted Libby.

Andrew Stone's fine oil painting a gift from him, was awarded to Patricia Roes; the doll to Mrs. Orvel Williams; the tool chest to Miss Clara Spear; the tablecloth to Mrs. Glennon at the Samoset Hotel; the blanket to Mrs. William T. Smith; the beautiful braided rug to Lottie Pitcher of Waldoboro. Mrs. Henry Montgomery received grand prize at beano a lamp.

Edward Dornan was general chairman, and Esther Cobb and Olive Fales Auxiliary cashiers. Harry Stewart, Legion finance officer, served as cashier, with Edwin Lynch, Charles Starrett and Mabel Achorn. The gross receipts are approximately $1800, with report of expenses not yet available.

The great event of the day to many, the parade justified the high expectations of the thousands that lined the streets. W. B. D. Gray, chairman, modestly disclaiming any credit, attributes its admitted excellence to the whole-hearted cooperation of everybody. He wishes to extend sincere thanks personally and on behalf of the Legion for the fine work done by those in it. A full list of the entries and winners of awards will appear in the next issue.

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coast guardsmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

HARBOR LIGHTS

[For The Courier-Gazette]
Between the afterglow and dark the harbor lights appear. Like fireflies they flit about from boats and barges, in and out—giving an aerial magic touch to the space encircled there. By heavy parapet of stone. Protecting ocean crafts that chance the harbor's friendly home.

Fishermen in laden boats of cod and hake. Scallop men with lobsters too, come late from long days' toil and roaming; watch for distant beacon's spark. As through the waters, chugging craft. E'er 't'night for harbor lights and homing.

Pleasure crafts, yachts trim and gay. A scow, a pinky, then a pilot boat. Barkentine of other days, warships and every craft afloat. Come in to harbor, for the lights invoke their comfort and welcome tenure of safe anchor.

Happy sailors heaving boats to landing. Wharf men hall them for their prowess. Ending with a full day's measure—Then home, and night of pleasure.

TOWN HALL CONCERT

Noted Artists Will Be Heard In Rockport Next Friday Night

Prominent among late summer musical events will be the concert at Rockport Town Hall Friday, Aug. 26, when these artists will be presented: Felix Salmond, cellist, Daniel Karpiwsky, violinist, and Edith Evans Braun, pianist, their program to afford solos and trio numbers. All three artists are musicians of the first water, Mr. Salmond and Mr. Karpiwsky having won world wide fame. While Mr. Salmond and Mrs. Braun have been heard by local audiences, it will be Mr. Karpiwsky's introduction to music lovers of this section, and the opportunity cannot be lightly dismissed. It may be rightly said that this concert will stand as one of the great musical events of this part of Maine.

This concert will be for the benefit of the Rockport Children's Christmas Welfare Fund, a cause close to the heart of Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, who is lending whole hearted interest in the concert to raise money to make a Christmas for many children who otherwise would not know it. The artists are giving their services, a most generous act which in itself merits a full house.

Tickets are being put on sale at The Village Shop in Camden and at Champey's Store in Rockport. They may also be arranged by communicating with Mrs. Gladys St. Clair Heistad at Rockport, telephone Camden 2432.

It's About Robins

The Bird Lovers Will Be Given a Thrill By This Nature Story

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

It might be of interest to the bird lovers to hear more about the "persistent robin" who has visited us for three seasons in succession. I didn't feel sure that it was the same robin, but readers who have written me think it is.

Those who read about it will remember that I, my broom, nor my dog could make that robin change her mind about building a nest over the front door. When we put a board over the place she was trying to occupy, she gave up and went to the house below here. She built a nest on a shelf under the eaves, where I could watch her every move. She laid two eggs there and when they hatched she brought the pretty blue shells up and left them on my lawn. The rest of the story, I would not believe unless I had seen it. Here it is and it is perfectly true.

The morning the two birds were ready to fly I saw the pair of robins on the ground below the nest and the two little ones were out on the shelf, making their wings flutter, and hopping around. I thought they were getting ready to come down as the other birds seemed to be calling them. I went out and stood beside the house in plain sight of the birds. When the first one came down the mother bird chirped to it a few times, then started to hop. She would hop a little way then wait for the little one, who would hop right up beside her. In this manner she led that baby robin right up to me. They came over a piece of land having nothing but grass on it then. I could hardly believe my eyes.

It was the most cunning sight I ever saw. Those two birds had come to me just as straight as a line could be drawn. The mother bird stopped and the little one flew up to the window of the house but didn't quite make it. I reached down to pick it up and it flew up on to the sweet pea wire, it could not seem to balance itself there, then flew onto a nearby apple tree.

After it got sure footing, didn't it just chirp at me? The mother bird had stood right there looking on at the time. I left them, and later found the whole family in a hedge of nearby lilacs, where they stayed until they could fly away.

Some days they would be on the lawn and get started toward the road. I would go out and walk slowly behind them and I could always drive them back to the lilacs, as if they were a hen and chickens.

After this family of two had gone, the robins went back to that nest, had a regular house or nest cleaning time and raised another family of three. A garden has grown up now between the two houses, so I did not see the second family get up here, but they came and lived on the other side of the
