NEW TAGGING METHOD

Will Provide A More Accurate
Record of the Deer Kill This Season.

A new system of tagging and registering the number of Maine deer killed each year has been adopted by Fish and Game Commissioner George J. Stobie in an effort to provide a more accurate record of the kill.

Under the new plan, Stobie said, each deer inspected must have a numbered metal tag attached to either forward leg by a wire and self-locking seal.

Heretofore the department used pasteboard tags which were attached to any part of the deer and frequently became lost, Stobie said.

Each game inspector also must submit to the department inspection details on a registration blank signed by the inspector and the person who killed the deer.

The 1938 deer hunting season opens Oct. 16, in northern counties.

Women Voters League

Meets Here Monday Afternoon With League Official Speaking

A special meeting of the Rockland League of Women Voters will be held at 108 Talbot avenue next Monday at 2:30 p. m.

The League feels very fortunate in being able to have as its guest Mrs. Anne Hartwell Johnstone, program secretary of the National League of Women Voters, of Washington, D. C., who will be in Maine for that week. Mrs. Johnstone will speak to us on a most exciting subject at this time, Foreign Policy.

Mrs. Anne Hartwell Johnstone is program secretary, in the field of foreign policy, for the National League of Women Voters.

Since her graduation in 1928 from Leland Stanford University, Mrs.
Johnstone has made a special study of international relations. Before assuming in 1934 the secretaryship of the League's foreign policy department, Mrs. Johnstone acted as secretary of the international relations committee of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Johnstone is author of a popular League publication, "American Foreign Policy," issued in October, 1935, as a "guide to study of foreign policy." She also wrote another League pamphlet, "The U. S. and the Principle of International Consultation." In 1935 she was co-author with Elizabeth Armstrong Hawes of "Control of the Munitions Traffic," a 48 page pamphlet reviewing the problems incident to munitions control.

Travel and study in a number of foreign countries have contributed to Mrs. Johnstone's wide interest in foreign affairs. In 1929 she was in Europe for six months. In 1932 she attended the Disarmament Conference in Geneva. In 1934 with her husband, William Crane Johnstone, Jr., who is dean of the Junior College for George Washington University, she made a six months' study tour of Japan, China and Manchuria. On her return trip, Mrs. Johnstone attended the Pan-Pacific women's conference in Honolulu as a representative of the League of Women Voters.

Members of the Rockland League of Women Voters for 1938-39 are:
Mrs. Joseph Emery, Mrs. Russell
Bartlett, Mrs. H. C. Allen, Miss
Charlotte Buffum, Mrs. Carl H.

LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN

Mrs. Evelyn Hix Tells Local Service Club Of Her
Visit To Hammerfest

Speaking before the Rockland
Lions Club yesterday Mrs. Evelyn Hix gave a most interesting resume of her recent tour to the land of the midnight sun. Here appears the first installment of her story.

The first stop—eight days from New York was at Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland. The name, Iceland, suggests something desolate and cold but the name is, by far, the coldest part of the country.

The Island is surrounded by a warm current which makes the temperature quite different from what one would expect.

Iceland is about the size of the State of Kentucky, barely a quarter of it, however, is habitable.

There are many volcanoes on the Island and Hot Springs are found all over the Island and in almost every altitude. The country is constantly making more use of the water from these springs. Already the municipal buildings of Reykjavik are heated from the springs and it is now their plan to heat the whole city in this way.

The population of Iceland is 150,000—35,000 of that number live in Reykjavik. The Icelandic nation is of Norse origin, the Island being discovered about 870. By 930 the population had increased to such an extent that the necessity for organizing on a national basis was felt and a Republic was formed.

In 1930 the Island celebrated the thousandth anniversary of the founding of this Republic. At that time the United States presented Iceland with a splendid marble statue of Leif Ericson. You will remember that America was discovered about the year 1000 by the Islander Ericson—but apparently it of so little importance that he forgot to mention the fact.

The language is just the same as was used a thousand years ago. It is interesting, too, I think, that when no country in Europe outside Iceland attempted to write books except in Latin that country had a considerable literature in her own language. Another aspect of the language is the fact that dialects are not to be found in Iceland—the fisherman—all speak alike.

The general love of education is considered very high. There are a few very fine buildings.

The longest day in Iceland is June 22nd, which has 21 hours of sunshine—the shortest Dec. 23rd which has four. Reykjavik boasts several choral societies. One of these gave a concert on the Franconia. There were about 40 fine looking men in the group—all in correct evening dress. Their voices blended perfectly.

The first number on the program was the "Star Spangled Banner"— in Icelandic. It was a great pleasure to hear them sing the songs of their country and it left us all with a splendid impression of the Icelandic people.

The day after leaving Reykjavik we crossed the Arctic Circle or the Arctic Ridge as it is sometimes called. This is certainly a strange submarine freak. This ridge is considered as separating the Atlantic and the Arctic Oceans. It is a submarine mountain range extending from Greenland across the Strait of Denmark to Iceland, thence to the Faeroe Islands then to the Norwegian coast, passing just north of Scotland.

The depth of the water above the ridge varies from one thousand to 1900 feet, while north and south of the ridge the depth of the ocean is from 7 to 12 thousand feet.

The day we crossed the Arctic

Four Programs

Camden Nursing Association Will Benefit From the Series

The first of Camden's four weekly programs takes place on Tuesday night at the Camden Opera House.
Hugo Brandt, brilliant Polish-born concert pianist, will be featured in the family entertainment series sponsored by the Camden District Nursing Association and the University of Maine Alumni Association.

Brandt, said to be the physical counter part of Franz Schubert, will take the task recreating his personality in a musical tableau entitled "Franz and Sylvia" presented in Schubert's life. Assisting artists will be Jean Justin, soprano, in the role of Sylvia, inspiration for the beautiful song-
"Who is Sylvia?" and James Burdette, baritone, who appears as Schubert's friend Joseph von Spaun. Selections will include Schubert Melodies, Who is Sylvia?
The Erlking, The Serenade, March Militaire and the Love Theme from Unfinished Symphony.

A feature of this part of the program will be the musical medley played by Brandt, consisting of request numbers from the audience woven together impromptu.

Noted as a composer, Brandt, who came first to this country in 1912 to create the part of Franz
Schubert on a Nation-Wide tour, has written many songs, which have been included in the concert programs of famous pianists.

Miss Justin has won warm praises in appearances with symphony orchestras throughout the country.

Burdette received high honors
at his professional debut at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, and has since sung leading roles in musical comedy.

The second entertainment will be on Tuesday, Oct. 4, when Harold D.
Eide will give a lecture on his adventures in the Arctic Circle. On Oct. 11, J. Franklin Caveny and Company bring to the Opera House a happy combination of music and pictorial and sculptural art, presented by a company of three. The final entertainment is on Oct. 18 and is in the form of a play entitled "Mary's Other Huband." This is a sparkling comedy with a cast of five.

The proceeds will benefit the Camden Schools Milk Fund and the University of Maine Scholarship Fund.

Wardwell Was Held

Camden Man Found Guilty of Manslaughter In Belfast Lower Court

An Associated Press despatch from Belfast published in yesterday morning's papers said:
"Libbe E. Wardwell, 65, of Camden was held for Grand Jury action Tuesday on a manslaughter charge growing out of the motor accident death of Mrs. Lillian Stevens Raven, 19, of Thordike.

Mrs. Raven succumbed early Tuesday to injuries received in an accident in Knox last Friday.
Wardwell was driver of a car involved. State Trooper Roland Faulkham alleged.

Wardwell pleaded innocent to the manslaughter charge, and to charges of reckless driving and passing a stop sign, but Municipal Court Judge L. Ernest Thornton found probable cause.

Union Fair, Ahoy!

Next Week's the Big Week
—Pleasure Seekers Come
From Far and Near

The 69th annual exhibition of the Union Fair will be presented by the North Knox Fair Association Sept.
27, 28, and 29 with a program of events that should prove most interesting to all. One of the principal reasons for which this fair, as originally organized, was to promote the advancement of agriculture in this county, and the fact that each year finds increasing displays of farm produce, canned goods, individual farm exhibits, grange exhibits, larger classes of both draft horse and oxen pulling, as well as larger herds of cattle competing for the prizes offered by the Fair Association clearly demonstrates that "Agriculture" is still paramount at the Union Fair.

The race card for Tuesday has a 213 pace, a 217 trot, and a 222 trot and pace; for Wednesday a 217 pace, a 220 trot and a 224 trot and pace; for Thursday a free for all trot and pace, a 214 trot and a 220 pace. There will also be classified races, with overnight entries to fill the program, and from the fact that there is no other fair in Maine during this week and the large number of entries which race secretary R. M. McKinley in now receiving, one of the greatest programs of horse racing yet seen in this State this season is promised.

Glenn Raabe of Rutland, Vt., will be the official starter.

The pulling contests, both draft horses and oxen is another event that is attracting more and more people each year at Union, and well it might, as there are many thrills connected with this sport. From the fact that all class pulling at Union is open to teams from three counties Knox, Lincoln and Waldo, and with the sweep stakes open to any teams in the State surely promises a generous list of contestants in all events. This event has been so popular at Union that a new Grand Stand at the Pulling ring has been erected this year.

On the vaudeville platform will be shown an excellent vaudeville show, furnished by Geo. A. Hamid Booking House of New York.

Among the acts appearing will be Laddie Lamont Malen & Thomas, hand balancing; Merles educated Cockatoos; and the Recardos, doing sensational aerial acts. Mrs. Beane of Hiram will show her world famous educated oxen in front of the grand stand. Music will be furnished by the Rockland City Band under the personal direction of George A. Law of Thomaston.

The night shows Tuesday and Wednesday are fast proving to be one of the largest features of Union Fair. There will be band concerts, vaudeville acts, and this year in fireworks will be featured an exhibition shown but once before in New England—"Wells Fargo."

Maine Trail Ride

Will Be Over Eighty-Mile Course At Bangor Beginning Sept. 30

Lucerne-in -Maine will be the meeting place of New England Horsemen Sept. 30-Oct. 1 when the second annual Maine Trail Ride, a two day endurance ride will be held under the auspices of the Maine Horse Association.

The Bangor Boot and Saddle Club will entertain the visiting riders which include a number of out-of-State entries. Principal among these is "Rondo" the 800 pound Morgan-Arab mare from Horse Hill Farm, Marlboro, N. H., winner of the 1937 ride at Sanford. Other out-of-State entrants include Dr.
Arthur A. Libby of Reading, Mass., and Ernest Lamb of Brookline, Mass.

Another interesting entrant is Miss Ethel M. Dolan of Springfield, Maine, adjudged the "best sportsman" at last year's event. Miss Dolan is the rider who was nationally publicized as "the girl who took in washings to buy a horse." Her interest in horseback riding was so enthusiastic that she actually purchased a colt from her earnings that way.

Officials of the Maine Horse Association are not only aiming for the promotion of horseback riding and development of horse trails but also to attract attention to the beauty of the Maine countryside.

The scoring of the two day ride over an 80 mile course requires the contestants to travel over varying terrain, hills, valleys, woods and brooks. Reservations at the big Log Lodge at Lucerne-in-Maine are being booked for the entire Trail Ride week, as many riders who are not entered in the event are planning to explore the countryside.

Entries will close Monday night,
Sept. 26 with the Governor Lewis O. Barrows Prize Trophy as the incentive.

and soda (unlimited varieties.) I confess to a strong penchant for that concoction which consists of milk, ice cream and soda—stirred until it is in liquid form, ice cold.
In some stores they call it "velvet."
In others "frappe," and there is still another known as "cabinet"— all the same drink.

Three Names For a Drink

Maine now has three of these famous stores—the one above mentioned, one in Portland and one in Wells.

The Dutchland Farms are of a similar high class nature, but not nearly so numerous.

The fact that the Bay State was in the throes of a primary election obtruded itself wherever we went.
Political posters blazed from the walls of many buildings and sound trucks buzzed around the various cities, declaiming the merits of the several candidates whose names covered the cars. Rallies were being held here and there, but we heard none of the oratory, and we did not especially care to, after going through several weeks of campaign in our own State. Since our visit to Massachusetts ex-Gov.
Curley has won the Democratic nomination for governor, and Lev-erett Saltonstall had a walk-over for the Republican nomination. The real battle will come with the State election in November.

Friendly Irish Cop

I neglected to state that our quarters in Palmer, Mass., that Friday night were not far from a railroad station, an experience I once before had near Montreal, although the latter was a junction, and the trains never did stop running.

Palmer was selling eggs at 35 cents a dozen, and has a Dog Country Club. Filling stations were selling "Belcher Gas" unpleasantly suggestive.

Throughout the Bay State, and all other States, for that matter, the night is ablaze with ale and beer signs. Food has come to be almost incidental, and Coca-Cola alone holds its own amid the motley array.

In Springfield we stopped for an early morning breakfast at a cafeteria, and I wish I had thought to record the name of the exceedingly friendly Irish cop from whom we obtained some desired information.
He looked at our Maine car number quizzically and wanted to know if there was much snow and ice up around the lakes. A brief stay was made in Springfield while I called upon relatives.

Skunks Respect Nobody

They have skunks out in Massachusetts just like we do here in Maine, and at frequent intervals during our three days' tour we saw carcasses of the smelly critters who had not obeyed traffic rules.

Our Connecticut approach was through Hartford, the city of insurance buildings and quite a few industries. On these gawling gas tours time does not permit a protracted

Two Fine Speakers

Woman's Missionary Conference Will Meet Oct. 3 In Warren

Two speakers of interest to be heard Oct. 3 at the annual Women's Missionary Conference of the Lincoln Baptist Association, which will be held on that date at the Warren Baptist Church, will be Miss Jennie Lind Reilly, missionary to India the past 20 years, at home on furlough, and Miss Charlotte Hunsdon of New York, member of the board of Missionary Education.

Miss Reilly served at the Clough Memorial Hospital, Ogoe, South India, from 1919 to 1926, after which she undertook genuine pioneer work at Ramapatnam. In 1929, she opened her first Christian Centre in the railroad village of Tetu, beginning in this way a remarkable plan for rural reconstruction and for the training of Indian Christian Women who were heretofore prevented from doing village work because of social customs. Unmarried women were unable to live alone in villages, but now three or four single women could live together in a Christian Center, from which would radiate healing, teaching, and preaching, and daily living based on the love of Christ.

Four such centers are now under the supervision of Miss Reilly and her co-workers. Entirely staffed by Indian Christian women workers, these centers are already showing remarkable results in the places where they are located. By her work Miss Reilly has made an estimable contribution to the South India Mission.

"All castes and creeds come," relates Miss Reilly, "as our centers are so arranged that all are free to come. While we are caring for the bodies of some, the evangelistic worker is busy visiting in the homes or talking with those who are especially interested, or helping in special programs for the Gospel workers."

"If the center has a village school, we try to give a little thought to the younger generation. The resident nurse is responsible for the health of the children in school and all the minor ills are cared for before serious trouble develops. Perhaps a bottle of cod liver oil will provide that needed vitamin, or a few doses of quinine will ward off a hard bout of fever. We have discovered that children of the village have found our centers a nice place to spend out-of-school hours, so we always find a group eager for our message."

"Our center workers are trying to teach the village women to sew. We have at each center a hand sewing machine and all who come are encouraged to use it. This past hot season, during the festival time our workers earned almost two rupees within two days by sewing jackets for the pilgrims. We have tried to assist the villages to have a better kind of poultry by having some full-breeds at our center. We hope in time to see a larger egg procurable in the village. We have done little gardening except to grow flowers, and vegetables."

Miss Reilly is a graduate of Jordan Hospital in Plymouth, Mass., and of Gordon Bible school in Boston. She also attended Bethany College in West Virginia, and during the World War was with the Red Cross overseas.

The conference on Oct. 3 will open at 10 o'clock and close at 4, with luncheon served at noon by this committee from the local mission circle. Mrs. Nelson Moore, Mrs. Bessie Hills, Mrs. Charles Hysler, Edmund V. Oxtun, and Miss Tena McCallum.

The program: devotional service by Mrs. Clara Sawyer of Thomaston; welcome to the guests; reports of the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Brown of Camden; appointment of the enrollment committee; reports of the president, Mrs. Chester Wyllie of Warren; White Cross, by Mrs. Josie Grover of Rockland; reading of contest and literature; Mrs. Minnie Merrill of Belfast; World Wide Guild, by Mrs. Wyllie of Warren; Children's World Crusade, by Mrs. Howard A. Welch Sr. of Auburn; message by Miss Hunsdon; lunch; devotional, by Mrs. Sawyer of Thomaston; roll call of churches; outline of work for 1938 and 1939, by Mrs. Charles Marsteller of Rockland; address by Miss Reilly; election of officers for the coming year; prayer and benediction.

Present officers of the Missionary Conference are: Mrs. Wyllie of Warren, president; Mrs. Mabel Head of West Rockport, vice president; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Brown of Camden. The members of the nominating committee for the Oct. 3 meeting are: Mrs. Amy Nutt of West Rockport, Mrs. Lucy Silery of Thomaston and Mrs. Annie Tuttle of Camden.

OPEN PHEASANT SEASON?

Discussion of the advisability of Maine having an open season on pheasants this year will take place Sept. 26 before Fish and Game Commissioner George J. Stobie at a public meeting in the State House. Stobie said there never had been an open season on Maine pheasants. Sentiment against such an open season was expressed at a similar meeting of sportsmen a year ago in Augusta.

John Carney of Ashland Favorite To Win World Championship

Picked in the early betting as the next potato-picking champion of the world, John Carney, of Ashland, today officially entered his name in the second annual International Potato-Picking Championship Contest to be held in Fort Fairfield, Sept. 28.

Why Carney should be the favorite to dethrone Robert Hallet, of Mars Hill, the defending champion, was hard to determine. Last year, finishing second, Carney picked 78 pecks of potatoes in 15 minutes to Hallet's 86 pecks. An unconfirmed rumor stated that, in practice this year, Carney had far exceeded Hallet's record. This seemed the only basis for the shift to the Ashland picker.

It was generally admitted however, that Carney got away to a poor start last year, but finished very strongly. A natural athlete, he is unquestionably one of the best pickers in this, Aroostook County, which raises approximately one-seventh of all the potatoes grown in the nation.

Meanwhile, Hallet was far from being without admirers who are picking him to repeat this year. Deceptive, inasmuch as he seems to be picking far slower than he really does, he picked an amazing average of 172 potatoes each minute of the contest last year.

Although competitors from 19 potato growing regions in North America have been invited to compete, out-of-state, are not being given more than an outside chance of winning the contest. It being generally agreed that Aroostook pickers were far more proficient than any others. If an outsider should win, however, it is agreed that it will probably be one from adjacent New Brunswick where Aroostook picking methods are in vogue.

With a crowd of over 5,000 viewing that the initial contest last year, officials today were making preparations to handle at least twice that many here this year.

Prominent officials to be present will be Gov. Lewis O. Barrows, of Maine, Barzilla W. Clark of Idaho and various state and province agricultural officials. Barrows and Clark will also engage in a special picking contest as a feature of the day's proceedings.

Bowling and Other Sports Flourish At Community Building

Monday night the Kiwanis and John Bird Co. bowled a four string match. The John Bird Co. came out on top with a total of 196 pins. Chet Mason with 376, George Snow with 374, were high for the evening. George Brackett was high man for the Kiwanis.

John Bird Co. bowlers were M. Pitts, Don Cummings, R. Marshall, George Snow, and Chet Mason. The Kiwanis Club comprised Eddie Barnard, A. Grossman, F. Orne, H. Beers and George Brackett.

Tuesday night there will be a meeting of the proposed bowling league. It is hoped that all members of last year's league will be present.

Starting Sept. 28, ladies' night for bowling will again go into effect. Jim Planagan is in search of seven lady bowlers. Letters have been received from Bath and Camden asking for ladies' bowling matches.

Next week the highly talented Post Office team will bowl against the Bath Iron Works team.

Rockland Community team will bowl the Camden All Stars next week. The Camden teams have such star bowlers as Neil Magee, Bert Stevenson, George Boynton. Anyone wanting free bowling lesson had better watch these boys in action. Rockland Community team will be made up of such stars as Darryl Rackliff who can bowl with the best, V. Norton speed ball artist, and Fred Black who can also hold his own with the best of them.

Badminton gets under way Thursday night. Dick Perry and Chic McIntosh will give a demonstration of how the game should be played. Others who will participate are Wimp Chatto, Ruth Anderson and Virginia Snow.

The ping pong tables are set up and ready for action.

Charlie McIntosh is the first 1939 Community Building member.

Tonight the A & P, captained by Buck Clark, will bowl against the Post Office.

Get Comforting Relief from

RUNNY HEAD COLDS

DO THIS: Put some Vicks VapoRub up each nostril and sniff well back.

NEXT: melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; breathe in the medicated vapors for several minutes. This loosens phlegm and further clears the air-passages.

AT BEDTIME: rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back so its long-continued double action can relieve the misery of the cold while you sleep.

TRY IT—then you'll know why VapoRub is a standby in 3 out of 5 homes.

The Farm and Home Hour—Congressman Patman and Chain Stores

National Farm and Home Hour The United States Department of Agriculture has stood behind the famous Farm and Home radio hour for more than 10 years, and has co-operated with Four-H clubs, Land Grant Colleges and national farm organizations in making that hour one of the outstanding programs on the air by supplying American farmers with up-to-the-minute national news and expert counsel on rural problems.

Effective, Sept. 26, this well-known program is to be supplemented through co-operation by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, with a 15 minute daily sectional program giving information of vital local importance, including regional weather forecasts, shipping advice, commodity prices, sectional crop conditions and other such items. The result will be a specialized national and local information service of vast importance to American farmers. These localized sectional broadcasts will be furnished to farmers living between the Atlantic Ocean and the Rocky Mountains, and from Texas and the Ohio River to Canada, over a total of approximately 48 stations of the Blue network of the National Broadcasting Company. Assurances are given by the National Broadcasting Company that the National Farm and Home Hour will be greatly strengthened through the addition of these Goodyear sectional broadcasts.

Rattling The Chains Seventy-seven Members of the House of Representatives sponsored the Federal chain store bill—the brainchild of ye-well-known Congressman Wright Patman. The resourceful Texan invites "all Members of the House to become co-sponsors" of his measure at the coming session of Congress. Congressman Patman says that there are 15,000 stores owned by one concern in 40 States, and that 1,500 concerns are operating as retail chain companies. He tells how the big fish are planning to eat up the little ones. The 29 big interstate chains are "now trying desperately to obtain the assistance of the local chains, which they expect to be their next victims," says Patman.

Congressman Patman as his own way of rattling the chains. He would "restrain the greed of absentee owners" by restricting them in interstate commerce and confining them to the boundaries of one State.

"Restrains" such as these are designed to convince monopolists like the big 20's that the best way out would be found in selling their businesses to individual merchants. Before the bill to put a crimp in the big chains is reintroduced in the coming session there will be a getting-together of friends of this legislation on Capitol Hill, at which time there will be found additions to the lists of sponsors of the now Patman bill. At the rate Patman travels he may even muster enough sponsors to force the chain store bill to insure sliding through Congress.

Without attempting to say what's going to happen it is obvious that A. & P. and the other big interstate companies are taking their case to the public in hopes to escape having the chains riveted around their shaking ankles.

Looking 'Round The Corner Government economists are optimistic with assurances that the country is going ahead on the road to recovery. Predictions are that production will reach the 1937 level by the time that 1938 fades into the New Year of 1939. Private industrialists agree in one important particular, which is that the shelves and the stocks on hand—called inventories—are down. This situation indicates that employment and production will increase. With the support of the Government spending next year will likely be a "good year."

ARTHUR B. WALSH

Arthur B. Walsh, formerly of this city, died at the Veterans' Administration Facility in Bedford, Mass., Sept. 17, after a long illness. He was 51 years of age and a World War veteran. The funeral was held at the Catholic Church in Bedford, Monday morning with military services at the grave, in charge of the American Legion, with burial in Shaw Sheen cemetery.

Mr. Walsh went to Portland about 23 years ago to take a position with C. H. Farley Co. as glazier. He worked there until his illness forced him to give up. Besides his wife, who resides in Portland, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Bond, and two grandchildren of this city; three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Emma Ellingwood of Orono, Mrs. F. O. Cormier and Mrs. William Staples of this city, Charles Walsh of Greenville and Fred Walsh of this city.

Three of the four Maine colleges start their football season Saturday—Maine tackling the Rhode Island Rams at Orono; Bates playing Dartmouth at Hanover; and Colby playing Union College at Schenectady. All of the Maine teams have their work cut out for them.

Golden Rod Chapter, O.E.S., will meet Friday night, the officers to wear white. There will be no circle supper. The business session will be followed by a beano party in the banquet hall, all members wishing to play, contributing a ten-cent prize.

C. H. Berry, A. E. Hunt, George Parker, Lawrence Aylward and H. A. Harris of the Fireproof Garage sales force were in Boston Monday attending the Boston zone presentation of the three Oldsmobiles for 1939. Fireproof expects shipments in the near future of all three models.

IN SERIOUS TROUBLE

A difficult situation faces Community Chest at the present moment with a shortage of $1700 on the total basic budget of $7700. This loss has arisen through death and removal of many large donors and must be met by an increased number of small contributors. There are many citizens who could give something toward these five splendid charities who have neglected to turn in their money, either because they have not been solicited or through a sense that the need was not acute. The situation is now critical and the Chest will surely fail if every citizen does not do his part. Send contributions, directly to Community Chest at Community Building, Chamber of Commerce, or telephone 869 for a solicitor to call. It is no longer a question of buying one's charities cheaply, but a question of saving Rockland's Community Chest from disintegration.

Fifteen persons were hurt, eight of them seriously, when a bus bound from New York to Boston plunged into the Hockanum River at Manchester, Conn. Monday. Among them was Charles E. McLaughlin, 42 Fulton street, city. His son, Charles R. McLaughlin, left for Connecticut upon receipt of the news, but it was meantime learned that his condition was not serious. The hero of the accident was Albert Edgecomb, of Watertown, operator of the coach. His shoulder broken, his right arm paralyzed, Edgecomb worked his way from the motor coach and after breaking windows in the coach lifted the trapped occupants to safety.

Legion Auxiliary conducted a game party Tuesday night at Legion hall, special beano prizes going to Mrs. Emerson Sadler, Mrs. Jean Clough, Mrs. Hazel Nash, and Mrs. Elva Roberts. Other prizes were won by Fannie Holbrook, Carrie Thompson, Hazel Nash, Edna Thibodeau, Nettie Packard, Mary Nye, Mary Weeks, Bernard Winchenbaugh, H. S. Harlow, Gertrude Boody, Edgar Sukerforth, Mary Barker, Flora Ulmer, Lucy Rockliffe, Martha Moore, Harold Gerish, Eula Gerrish, Anne Alden, Margaret Anderson, Anna Seavey, Arthur Person, Bessie McCaslin, Annie Wade, Alma Hoyt, Maude Winchenbaugh, Althea Carroll, Elva Blackington, Elsie Nash, Elva Roberts, Ernest Campbell, Irma Upham, Pearl Huntley, Melba McCaslin, Frank Blackington, Nina Marshall, Fred Ingerson, C. IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our boy, Millard H. Watts who passed away Sept. 20, 1933.

Shall we meet those buds of promise blighted by death's chilling hand? Shall we see their fadeless beauty blooming in the golden land? Shall our hearts no more be bleeding 'neath the strokes of sorrow's rod? Shall love's bands no more be sundered, In the paradise of God?

Sadly missed by parents, brother and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watts.

NORTH WALDOBORO

"A good great man has three things—more sure than day and night—Love, Light and Calm Thoughts, regular as an infant's breath. And three firm friends that never fail when used aright—Himself, his Maker, and the angel Death!"

Mrs. Charles O'Dell and son "Buddy" of Salem, Mass., are visiting Mrs. O'Dell's mother, Mrs. Sadie Davis.

Miss Arlene Miller, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mary Mathews in Rockland, has returned home.

Foster Mank is ill, attended by Dr. Lenfest.

Lyndon Morse of Portland made a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Morse, Sunday afternoon.

"Dan" Savage has been cutting logs on the Benjamin Mathews place across Medomak pond, which Mr. Savage now owns, preparatory to building a cottage on a site recently bought from G. Cleveland Walter. The location is a little north of the old Jacob Burnheimer dwelling on the west side of route 220. Mr. Walter now owns the Burnheimer where he with his family reside.

Fred Jones and brother, Elden, are building a dam across the Glidden brook to sheer its waters into the Medomak river before it crosses the road between the homes of Fred Jones and Hudson L. Mank, as is its present trend. The town voted last spring to raise $600 to build a cement bridge, but some wise-head has devised the above plan, which will save the town from spending all of the appropriation, as a small aperture will be sufficient to take care of all drainage coming that way.

Victor Burnheimer has a crew on cementing a cellar upon which he plans to build an ell to his house.

Eggs are bringing a good price, and farmers are making good some of their losses in the past.

The Morses, Virgil and Junior are planning to build an ell to their farm house with a piazza the entire length. A cement cellar will be built under both, specifically to store the estimated 85 to 100 tons of cabbage in their yard this year.

The cabbage will be made into sauerkraut as the market opens for it. "Virge" does not propose to plow his crops under to increase the surplus to the poor. In other words, he is not a New Dealer.

Mrs. Maude E. Mank and Mrs. Winnie Sherman visited the Trask sisters in South Jefferson last Friday.

Mrs. Isa Teague, Mrs. Mattie Kallack and Maurice Watts of Warren were callers at Mrs. Maude Mank's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Burnheimer motored to Hebron Sunday to see their son, Victor Jr., who is doing his second year in Hebron academy.

Mrs. Lydia Morse, Mrs. Florence Mank, Mrs. Maude E. Mank and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Walter, attended Lincoln Pomona Grange with Eastern River Grange, Dresden, last Saturday. The program put over by the lecture, Mrs. Gladys Burk, was up to the usual standard-instructive and edifying.

Maple Grange conferred the third and fourth degrees on four candidates, one furnished by Willow Grange, Jefferson, last Thursday evening. The work was done by a young degree team from Bunker Hill Grange, Jefferson, in a very exemplary manner, using the ritual from memory without a skip. Members from Seven Tree Grange, Union, White Oak, North Warren, Meenahga, Waldoboro, Progressive, Winslows Mills, Bunker Hill and Willow, Jefferson were in attendance. There was one visitor from Gardiner, Mass. The whole program was carried out well.

Our Book Corner

In connection with the appearance of Edith Wharton's last novel "The Buccaneers" this month from the Appleton-Century Press, a charming booklet entitled "Edith Wharton" by Arthur Hobson Quinn has been prepared. Mr. Quinn who is professor of English at University of Pennsylvania in addition to sketching Mrs. Wharton's extremely full life, gives a complete list of her writings, and also a review of "The Buccaneers."

Phyllis Bottomo, author of "The Mortal Storm," arrives in New York from Canada early in October to begin a coast-to-coast lecture tour. A resident of Vienna for years she is well-informed on the present European situation.

"The Citadel" by A. J. Cronin, one year old in America—271,000 copies printed at this writing and still going strong!

According to recent reports, Simon Lake, noted inventor and the perfecter of the modern submarine, will use his undersea diving bell in the search for the body of Daniel C. Dodge, heir to the automobile fortune, who was so tragically drowned in Georgian Bay, Ontario, while on his honeymoon recently.

Mr. Lake last used his diving bell, "Explorer," in searching for the wreck of the British frigate "Husar," in the waters of Hell Gate, New York Harbor. Mr. Lake tells the story of his search in his autobiography "Submarine" published this summer by Appleton-Century.

Vera Brittain, author of "Testament of Youth" is enthusiastic about American food—our clam chowders, New England fruit juices, our plentiful fruit juices, our salads, our chicken a la King. She takes the early morning beauty of Chicago's water-front sky-scrapers, as she saw them from the train—like Titans in white shining armor—and she exclaims at our "inexhaustible American hospitality."

She has made many warm friends in America, and in her new book "Thrice a Stranger" (Macmillan), she tells of various experiences during her three visits here—of meeting Ellen Glasgow and President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Dorothy Thompson, Mary Ellen Chase, Georgia O'Keeffe, and other notable; of visiting a girls' school in Dallas where, she says, she would like to send her own daughter—now aged eight; of crowded days and nights on her lecture tours throughout the country, and of many amusing and surprising adventures all the way from Radio City to Tulsa and St. Paul.

The World House Traders Convention—the "last of the David Harum"—has recently been held in the small town of Almond, N. Y. Horse swapping and an auction were high-spots of this gathering so reminiscent of the days and ways portrayed in Edward Westcott's "David Harum." Incidentally this favorite American classic still enjoys a steady and vigorous sale.

To be published on Oct. 25 by Macmillan is "All this, and Heaven, too" by Rachel Field. This story, based on truth that is stranger than fiction, combines the drama of a notorious French murder case with scenes from life in New England and New York between 1850 and 1875. It concerns Henriette Deluz, a woman of rare gifts, who lived as a governess in the ill-fated household of the Duc and Duchess de Praslin and became unwittingly the pivot about which a famous crime revolved. It is, in fact the story of Rachel Field's own great-aunt, for after winning her freedom after pleading her case before the Chancery of France, Henriette took refuge in America, and married the Rev. Henry M. Field, preacher, editor and writer. In telling Henriette's story, Miss Field draws on history, rumor and her imagination—with the result that "All this, and Heaven, too" is as breath-taking a tale as ever reached the world of fiction.

"The World's Great Religious Poetry" compiled by Caroline M. Hill is the most noted modern anthology of religious verse. It contains nearly 800 pages of poems of religious significance from a wide range of ancient and modern literature. The selections are arranged in topical sequence and the book contains three handy indexes: titles, authors and first lines. This famous book is now made available for the first time at a popular price, with a new and improved binding and most attractive jacket—from Macmillan's press on Oct. 11.

In the group of biographies to come from the Macmillan Press we note "Edward Arlington Robinson" by Hermann Hagedorn. It is written by a man who was Robinson's friend over a period of 25 years, and he tells, for the first time, the story of one of America's greatest poets; a romance of 30 years' neglect, hardship, and struggle, culminating in such triumph as has come in his lifetime to few poets. It is a portrait of an elusive and lovable personality, in whom compassion and an acute perception of tragedy were blended with a penetrating sense of humor and a persistent faith in a "light beyond the stars."

For the housewife is "Cook at Home in Chinese" by Henry Low, with a foreword by Lin Yu-Tang, author of "The Importance of Living." Mr. Low not only gives recipes for many alluring Chinese dishes, but tells how to plan and serve Chinese meals, gives the names of some popular Chinese teas, and explains how they should be brewed, discusses appropriate Chinese sauces and wines and describes a Chinese chafing-dish supper. Here are some of the intriguing titles of recipes:

Shark Fin Soup with Crab Eggs
Chicken Giblets with Cloud's Ear
Snow Fungus with Chinese Ravioli
Steamed Chicken Stuffed with Bird's Nest

Directions are given for obtaining all the necessary ingredients and the dishes can be prepared in any American home. This book, one of the few of its kind in existence, will turn one's kitchen into a laboratory of glamorous invention.

Mr. Low has been for ten years head chef at the Port Arthur, one of the leading Chinese restaurants in New York. (Macmillan)

Circle and for three days following, we were in the land of the midnight sun. But because of fog the sun was not visible. Last year the people on the North Cape Cruise did not see the sun at all it was so foggy, and we began to feel quite anxious.

But when we reached Hammerfest the day was clear and bright. Hammerfest is a small town in Norway, its particular interest being that it is the northernmost town in the world. After a few hours here we sailed for the North Cape. The Cape is 400 miles north of the Arctic Circle. The sun's whole disk is visible here from the 13th of May to the 31st of July. During that time there is no sunset. The sun drops lower and lower—but stays always above the horizon, till at midnight it halts, hangs for a moment over the northern ocean, and then begins its climb to the meridian of another day. As we saw it that night, it was a gleaming goal. It was a wonderful sight.

It was interesting to watch the sun as we sailed south. We left the Cape at 2 a. m. by midnight of the next day we were some distance down the coast of Norway.

That night the sun, blood red in the sea mist sank a little lower and a small part of the sun's disk dropped below the horizon—then after a little, began its ascent. As far north as Stockholm, for six weeks in summer—the nights are nothing but a transition from evening twilight to the first glow of morning.

For several days we sailed in Norway's magnificent fjords. Other coast lines have their points but it is the consensus of opinion that none can compare with Norway for beauty. In many of the fjords the settlements are few, for the mountains rise straight out of the water and there is no land to cultivate.

In others the mountains are less precipitous and the lower slopes are fertile.

Less than three percent of Norway is under cultivation—so when there is a little fertile spot, though it is high up on a mountain, you will see one or two little houses. There will be long ladders leading down to the water. We stopped at Merck, which is one of the beauty spots in the fjords. From Merck we rode up the mountains 10½ miles to Lake Dyoprand. This lake, 3300 feet above sea level, is almost never entirely free from ice and sometimes is entirely frozen over even in mid-summer.

We visited the three largest cities of Norway—Trondheim, Bergen and Oslo—Trondheim being the ancient capital of Norway. In the beautiful Cathedral there the kings of modern Norway are crowned.

NIGHT RIDE

(By Charles Emery)

The whole thing was incredible, fantastic; utterly beyond the bounds of reason, far, far beyond. That she, Myrtle Paxton, considered one of the most refined citizens in the small town of Rockford, should at this moment be planning to take the life of another woman just didn't seem possible. Nevertheless, it was what she had in mind. It was what she had had in mind ever before this woman now beside her had climbed into their way through this quiet darkness, shifting off into a lonely road where not even a house existed.

Idly and not without some tremor, she wondered what her passenger might say if, at this moment, she were to turn to her and calmly say: "I'm bringing you out here to kill you. I'm going to kill you because your husband broke up my home, because he told my husband things about me that were not true, a lot of horrid lies. I'm going to make your husband lose you so that he'll know the torment I've passed through without the man I loved. I'm going to kill you, not because you have done anything, but because I must make your husband suffer for what he has done. This is an act of revenge and the innocent must suffer with the guilty..."

The things were only in her thoughts, but she could not help wondering what this woman beside her would say or do if she realized just how short her life was becoming each moment that the little roadster sped on through the darkness.

About a half mile ahead there was a grove of trees. This would be the period to their journey. This would be where she would draw her pocketbook and pointing it at the woman beside her, would close her eyes tightly and press the trigger.

Ethel Flint said: "You're going the long way around, taking this road, aren't you, Mrs. Paxton?"

There was not a hint of suspicion in her voice. It was merely a question asked in a half-curious, off-hand way, perhaps more with the aim of making conversation than for any other reason.

Myrtle Paxton pressed her lips firmly together and then after a moment said, quietly: "Yes, Mrs. Flint, we're taking the long way around."

She was glad that there was darkness all about them—that Mrs. Flint couldn't see her features from where she sat at her side. She was certain they were white and haggard, for they certainly felt so, but she also knew that, as well, they were determined with her decision.

Mrs. Flint was going to be a dead woman in ten minutes...

The car sped on and the hum of the motor seemed to sing persistently into the ear of Myrtle Paxton. It seemed to repeat and repeat its song which was one phrase, one phrase only: "You're going to kill her, you're going to kill her, you're going to kill her," it seemed to sing. And the faster the car sped the louder and more rapidly it continued: "... Kill her, kill her, kill her..."

"Grandmother, how large your mouth is!"—"The better to devour you with my child!"

In five minutes she would have taken a woman's life! ... "Your gloves show up in the dark," Ethel Flint said. "They're very pretty what I can see of them. Such an odd but pleasing shade of white! Would you mind if I get a better look at them... If I were to light a match and see them more clearly?"

"Not at all, Mrs. Flint."

There was a silence while Ethel Flint felt about in her pockets. At last she said: "That's very strange. I thought I had some matches in my pocket. I'm sure I lit the fire this morning when I had this coat on and that I didn't use it all. Perhaps you'd let me see if you had some in your pocketbook? That is, of course, if you truly don't mind..."

They were at the grove now and Myrtle Paxton thought: "She couldn't have asked me a question such as that at a better moment. It gives me both a chance to stop the car and to look in my pocketbook and withdraw the revolver."

The car drew to a stop and the motor died off and with it its monotonous, haunting song. "You're going to kill her, kill her..." Myrtle Paxton reached into her purse, saying "I think I have some in here somewhere, Mrs. Flint..." And her hand grasped the handle of the revolver and she set back its trigger with her finger...

She would hand Mrs. Flint the matches and while Mrs. Flint was busy engaged in lighting one, she would press the trigger and it would be all over. No one out here in this God-forsaken spot would ever hear the sound it would make...

Myrtle Paxton said: "Here they are, Mrs. Flint. I knew I had some somewhere..." And Mrs. Flint was scraping one against the sole of her shoe, evidently having found some of her own...

Mrs. Paxton was still holding her matches toward her passenger, one hand in her pocketbook, when a small flame illumined the interior of the roadster. Mrs. Flint held the burning match toward the gloves of the driver.

"They're beautiful," she said, an eager note in her voice. "I shall get a pair just like them. I'll divorce my husband this winter."

"Y—you're divorcing your husband?"

"Yes. This winter. I can't get along with that man another minute. I moved out on him three weeks ago. I've been staying at a hotel. He—he's become simply intolerable!"

Myrtle Paxton closed her pocketbook and started the car.

STYLIST CODE
FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Compiled as an aid for correspondents and writers to The Courier-Gazette

Place quotation marks before and after direct conversation; indicate change of speaker by a new paragraph.

Do not write "has accepted a position," but "has a position." Use date or day, but not both. Example: Next Tuesday or Jan. 10; not Tuesday, Jan. 10.

Maine is omitted in referring to towns and cities in this State. The major cities do not require the State: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, etc. State takes a capital "S."

It is not necessary to write: "Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Blank on the birth of a son." The regular birth column gives adequate notice.

Free notices of articles for sale, beano games, or any other form of unpaid advertising should not be incorporated in correspondence. Such matters are a newspaper's legitimate course of revenue.

When Grocers Meet

Will Be Asked To Get Behind Merchandising of Food Products

Over 1000 retail grocers from all parts of New England who will attend the Maine State Grocers' Food Exposition in Lewiston the week of Sept. 26 will be asked to "get behind" the Maine Development Commission's efforts in merchandising the State's food products, Arthur E. Charles, secretary of the Maine State Grocers' Association said today.

In addition, Charles said, a resolution will be presented to his association, which will convene during Exposition week, "endorsing" the Commission's activities in bringing to the attention of the American public the many advantages of Maine foods.

The grocer's group also plans "drives" featuring Maine apples, peas, blueberries, potatoes and seafoods, Charles revealed.

At the Exposition, he said, visiting wholesalers will be familiarized with Maine products and will be urged to feature them.

Last year the Maine State Grocers' Association sponsored various "weeks" designed to take up the slack in Maine agriculture by selling surplus crops.

At that time the organization was publicly commended by the Maine Development Commission for its "highly successful efforts" to promote the welfare of Maine agriculturists and commercial fishermen.

EAST LIBERTY

John Q. Adams who is working in Franconstown, N. H., was at his home here last week on a brief business trip.

Miss Katie McNeal of Avon, Mass., was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Kervin Rogers. Her friend Mrs. McLean who accompanied her was a guest of Mrs. B. A. Eastman.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cummings of Southampton, L. I., N. Y., were recent callers at G. W. McLain's.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown of Freeport were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy M. Howes.

Mrs. Clarence M. Howes entertained Frederick Alley and wife (Belva Davis) who were recently married in Portland. The latter is Mrs. Howes' sister.

Mrs. Harriet Adams and Etta Gilman had as guests on Sunday from Lewiston, Charlie Gilman, Miss Webb and Mr. and Mrs. George Gilman.

The South Montville Grange held its annual fair Sept. 16. The attendance was smaller than usual due to the farmers being so busy with their fall's work. However a good sum was netted.

TENANT'S HARBOR

A Victory Supper

Seventy-five members of the Republican party were entertained at the Ledges by Town Chairman and Mrs. A. C. Hocking on Friday evening.

An extemporaneous program was given: Songs, Mrs. Lee Andrews; duet, James Cant, Mrs. Andrews; violin and piano selection, Fred Smalley and Mrs. Herbert Hawkins; dance, Henry Allen and Philip Murphy; tambourine dance, Mrs. Merton Anthony. The Salt Water Hill Billies, Miss Isabel Clark, Wellman, Levi and Alden Hupper and Fred Hooper furnished other music. Games and stunts were enjoyed in which Henry Caddy proved the "best sport."

Birthday cakes were presented Fred Hooper and A. J. Rawley whose birthday it chanced to be. Refreshments of cake and coffee followed "Victory" cake and ice cream were served. Remarks were made by Chairman Hocking and A. J. Rawley.

Mrs. Hocking was assisted in serving by Mr. and Mrs. William Imbach, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hupper, Mr. and Mrs. Almond Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seavey, Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen, Mrs. Henry Caddy, Herbert Hawkins, Mrs. Lewis Barter, Mrs. John Reid, Mrs. James Cant, Mrs. Ralph Simmons, Mrs. F. Herbert Pierson and Mrs. Harold Watts. The guests departed at a late hour declaring both the party and the election a huge success.

WOOLWORTH'S NEW HOME

Fine Addition To Local Business Houses Has Informal Opening Tomorrow

Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock the new Woolworth store will officially open its doors to a highly interested citizenry. The great shop, occupying the entire Woolworth block, 396-402 Main street, corner of School street, is approximately double the size of the old store.

The new plant is characterized by District Manager S. B. Mills of Portland as one of the most attractive and thoroughly modern of the Woolworth chain in New England. It is 80 feet by 63 with four entrances and ultra-modern display windows. The interior is finished in Woolworth's well known colors with many departments added.

The new luncheonette on the south side is a most attractive feature, up to the minute in every detail. The huge candy counter is islanded and designed for quick service and good display. On the northern wall is something brand new in display cases, recessed, opened for handling of merchandise and brightly lighted through indirect illumination, the third display of its type in New England. The office is located in the rear School street corner as is the elevator for easy handling of merchandise from the commodious full area basement store rooms.

A highly interesting feature of this great store and something new for this area is the rest room section on the second floor for all employees. Access is gained by a wide stair case rising from the rear center, reaching a large airy room equipped with couches, tables, chairs of leather upholstery, deep and comfortable, with all conveniences and separate rooms for the men employees. Reading material and all the comforts of home will mark this charming employee's recreation spot, token of the consideration of the company. A door gives direct entrance to the roof, an element of both comfort and safety.

Materials and supplies for the remodeling were furnished by the W. H. Glover Co. Plumbing and heating contracts were carried through by William T. Smith and the painting contract was in the capable hands of John A. Karl Co. crew. Francis E. Havener handled the extensive electrical contract and the electric refrigeration was installed by Parker E. Worrey. Wotton's provided the wall linoleums. Special interest attaches to the new luncheonette in that it will open under direction of an expert dietitian of the Woolworth staff, Miss Douglass of Boston who will train Della Lowell and Arlene Havener for permanent work at the booth. The Frigidaire Liquid Carbonic fountain is the latest thing in automatic refrigeration.

The management of the store is vested in the capable hands of Arthur W. Doherty who has been located here the past eight years. Associated with him is Israel Snow Jr., as assistant manager, both working in close co-operation with District Manager Mills. Miss Helen G. Coltart is cashier and the staff includes Marie Dorgan, floor girl, Bernard Freeman, stockman, Beatrice Cross, Marguerite Gilmore, Eleanor Harper, Ethel Hayes, Helen Korpinen, Dorothy Monroe, Vera Thompson, Martha Whitehill, Anna and Josephine Pelicanni, Priscilla and Charlotte Staples, Virginia Wood, Victoria Anastasio, Jean Clukey and several extra girls.

PERRY'S MARKETS LEAD THE WAY

Both Local Stores Have Installed Amazing New Rentschlerizing Process—First In Maine

The Perry Markets of Rockland are the first in this State to make use of the revolutionary new Rentschlerizing process for the preservation of their meats.

The installation of this process in the meat storage refrigerators of these stores is attracting wide interest because it is one of the first practical demonstrations of a development that promises to solve one of the most important problems of the meat industry.

To prevent spoilage of meat and to assure Mrs. Housewife of fresh cut meat, all meat must be kept in constant refrigeration from slaughter house to the retail store. The low refrigeration temperatures necessarily result in relatively low humidity conditions which, in the past, have caused substantial dehydration of the meat. This robs the meat of some of its juiciness and taste.

How to prevent this loss has long been a problem. For many years scientists recognized the fact that ultra-violet rays of certain definite wavelength bands have a very powerful germicidal effect. Extensive research revealed how mold and bacteria could be prevented from growing on meat when exposed to the radiations of ultra-violet rays of certain wave bands and of controlled distribution of intensity. Recently the Research Laboratories of the Westinghouse Lamp Division have perfected an ultra-violet lamp known as the Sterilamp which is a practical generator of radiant energy of the wavelengths that are strongly germicidal. Through it a new process of sterilization known as Rentschlerizing has been introduced.

The Perry Stores, learning of this new development, immediately recognized what it would mean to them in providing better storage facilities for their meats and better meats for their customers. As a result, the Rentschlerizing process was installed in all of their meat refrigerators.

The Sterilamp installed in the meat refrigerators expose all meat to powerful sterilizing ultra-violet rays. Mold and bacteria is thus prevented from growing or accumulating on the meat surfaces. As a result the refrigerating storage temperatures and humidity can be raised and dehydration of the meat substantially arrested.

Thus the Perry Stores now offer their customers meat preserved by the newest and most scientific method.

Customers will be further interested in the improved sanitary conditions which result on the inside of the meat refrigerators. The Rentschlerizing process, provides a constant sterilization process within the refrigerator.

The development of the Rentschlerizing process is so important a discovery that it is expected that in the future its sterilization properties will be universally used not only for meat preservation but wherever sterilization is a problem.

Sterilization of the air in hospital operating rooms, sterilization of bakery products, of glasses and dishes in restaurants and many other applications are today becoming a practical reality through this new Sterilamp and the Rentschlerizing process.

HOME OF THE STORM KING

abode: "You're At Home When You're Not at Home." The number of places which cater to tourists these days is constantly on the increase, but few of them remain open all night, and it so happened that we travelled all the way from Lowell to Palmer before we saw a light that indicated a tourist's home was still open. A motherly woman was in charge, and I learned why the house happened to be open at 12.30 a. m. The proprietor was a member of the Grange and had been attending an important meeting. A glance at the speedometer of Ed's car showed we had traveled 250 miles since leaving home at 3.30 that afternoon.
