ONE WEEK FROM TODAY

Occur Elections Which Mean Republican Come Back Or New Deal Endorsement

(By the United Press)

The 1938 election campaign enters the home stretch this week with Republican leaders publicly forecasting sweeping Congressional victories, but privately conceding that only a major and unexpected upset can wrest control of the 76th session from the Democrats.

Voting in all states except Maine, which balloted on Sept. 12, takes place Nov. 8.

At stake are 432 House seats, 34 Senate seats and 32 governorships. Three of the Senate seats are held by Republicans, the remainder by Democrats. Republicans hold five of the governorships, Farmer-Laborites and Progressives one each, while the rest are held by Democrats. Maine voters re-elected three Republican Congressmen and a Republican governor.

Recognizing that they cannot win control of the Senate this year, because seven of the 34 seats at stake are in the "Solid South," Republican leaders have concentrated most of their fire on attempts to whittle down the huge Democratic House majority and on gubernatorial struggles.

Smashing New Deal victories in 1932, 1934 and 1936 gave the Democrats not only top-heavy control of the national legislature but also enabled the party to entrench itself in state governments from coast to coast.

At the close of the 75th Congress Democrats held 76 Senate seats, Republicans 15, Farmer-Laborites 2, Progressives 1, Independents 1 and there was one vacancy. In the House there were 328 Democrats, 88 Republicans, 5 Farmer-Laborites, seven Progressives and seven vacancies.

The 48 gubernatorial chairs were held by 39 Democrats, seven Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one Progressive.

Probably the most optimistic forecast of Republican gains in the Senate came from Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., chairman of the G.O.P. Senatorial Campaign Committee, who said his party may win as many as 15 seats in the Upper House. This prediction was branded as "absurd" by Senator Prentiss M. Brown, of Michigan, head of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Estimates of probable Republican Senate gains range from two to seven, and House gains from 25 to 80. Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R-Mass.), chairman of the Republican Congressional Elections Committee, once placed his figure as high as 85. Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican National Committee, has limited his forecast to "extensive" G.O.P. victories.

The closing week of the campaign finds some New Dealers in trouble and others involved in hot contests. President Roosevelt is scheduled to speak at Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 4 in behalf of the New York Democratic ticket headed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. Lehman, once described by Mr. Roosevelt as "my good right arm," has as his Republican opponent young racket-busting Thomas F. Dewey.

Also seeking re-election in New York is another of Mr. Roosevelt's close friends and advisers, Senator Robert F. Wagner. His Republican foe is John Lord O'Brien. The short term Senatorial fight is between Representative James Mead, a New Deal Democrat, and Edward Corsi, Republican.

Lehman's defeat would be a staggering blow to the New Deal, despite the fact that the governor broke with Mr. Roosevelt over his Supreme Court expansion bill. Likewise, it would automatically raise Dewey to the fore as a leading contender for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1940.

Reports from Michigan indicate that the gubernatorial contest between Gov. Frank Murphy, Democrat, and Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican, will be close. Murphy's defeat also would be a wallop to the New Deal and a personal reversal for Mr. Roosevelt who last week strongly defended the Michigan chief executive's policies during the sit-down strikes in the automobile industry last year. He criticized the House committee investigating allegedly permitting itself to be used by disgruntled Republicans to influence adversely Murphy's campaign.

Senator George McGill, New Deal Democrat and co-author of the new farm bill, is reported in trouble in Kansas. Farmers are said to be disgruntled over the low price of wheat and are reportedly critical of the New Deal's efforts to curb crop surpluses. McGill's Republican opponent is former Gov. Clyde M. Reed, a member of the party's liberal wing. Sharing interest in the Senatorial race is the gubernatorial contest in which Walter A. Huxman, Democratic incumbent, is opposed by Payne H. Ratner, a liberal Republican who is serving his second term in the State Senate.

Democrats are hopeful of picking up a Republican Senate seat in Oregon although G.O.P. leaders there have swung sharply to the left of accepted party policies. For example, Charles A. Sprague, Republican candidate for governor, announced his opposition to the initiative proposal to restrict labor's right to strike and picket, before a similar pronouncement came from his Democratic foe, Henry L. Hess, who has New Deal support.

This proposal, sponsored by open-shop employers and fought vigorously by the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, will be voted on Nov. 8 and is one of the leading issues in the state's campaign. The pledges and identify of the Democratic and Republican candidates for the Senate and the governorship have drawn the line clearly between conservatism and liberalism.

Democratic registration in California was said to exceed the Republican registration by more than 800,000. Carrying the Democratic standard for the Senate is Sheridan Downey, who has endorsed California's famous "ham-and-eggs" so-called "funny money" pension plan, and for the governorship, Culbert L. Olson of Los Angeles.

Olson who has promised to pardon Tom Mooney, serving a life term in prison in connection with the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing outrage, if he is elected, is opposed by Frank Merriam, incumbent. Downey's Republican opponent is Philip Bancroft. Neither Merriam nor Bancroft has taken a stand on the initiative proposal, while Olson has taken no definite stand on the "ham-and-eggs" scheme.

Blazing campaigns are drawing to an end in New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. In the Bay state the fight revolves about the gubernatorial contest between Leverett Saltonstall, Republican, and former Governor James M. Curley. Curley has full New Deal backing. The state has 10 Republicans and five Democrats in Congress.

Connecticut Republicans hope to win at least five of the six Democratic seats in Congress. In New Hampshire Representative Charles W. Tobey, Republican is making a whirlwind campaign to retire Senator Fred W. Brown a New Deal Democrat. Reports indicate that the gubernatorial race between Gov. Francis P. Murphy and John L. Sullivan, Democrat, who was nosed out by Senator H. Styles Bridges in 1934, will be nip and tuck.

Why Alton H. Blackington Got Such Good Lecture Material

The Chatham (Mass.) Monitor had this to say about Alton Hall Blackington, who comes back to his native city, Nov. 8 to lecture in Community hall:

"Mr. Blackington has taken more than 250 pictures in full color, of the disastrous tidal wave and hurricane which struck New England on Sept. 21. He was in New York then crossed Long Island Sound and arrived at New London just before it was swept by fire. He made his way along the Connecticut and Rhode Island coast, photographing the awful scenes of devastated homes and water swept villages.

Arriving on the Cape at daybreak after the storm, Mr. Blackington photographed the storm scenes at Buzzards Bay, Palmouth, Onset and Wareham. He returned and photographed other scenes along Rhode Island shores. In all he travelled 2,000 miles through devastated areas. His lecture and pictures shown in full color on the screen, will give an account unparalleled for vividness and reality.

Eastern Star Fair

Supper and Beano Features
Well Patronized—Bertha Borgerson, Chairman

Booths decorated with Halloween symbols where homemade candies, fancy articles, samples, aprons and cooked food, etc., were on sale, formed an appropriate setting for the Eastern Star fair, last night in Temple hall.

A large number enjoyed the splendid menu prepared by the luncheon committee and many of the patrons remained for the beano game. The chair set went to Mrs. Lena Stevens, table mats to Mrs. Hester Chase, and decorated cake to Mrs. Clara Curtis. Several articles sent by former out-of-town members, were disposed of by the rapid auctioneering of Milton Griffin.

Worthy Matron Bertha Borgerson was general chairman, other committees consisting of Mrs. Bessie Church, Mrs. Frances Morse, Mrs. Nellie McKay and Mrs. Carrie Winchenbaugh in charge of fancy articles; sample booth, Mrs. Riah Knight, Miss Pearl Borgerson and Mrs. Clara Watts; cooked food, Mrs. Doris Jordan and Mrs. Clara Curtis; candy, Mrs. Sarah Griffin and Mrs. Vencie Clark; aprons, Mrs. Laura Macey, Mrs. Anna Nelson and Mrs. Ivy Chatto; luncheon, Mrs. Helen Chapman and Mrs. Hattie Davies; kitchen, Mrs. Grace Rollins, and Mrs. Mattie Spaulding and beano, Mrs. Millie Thomas.

The stage was filled with numerous awards for the beano game, specials going to Mrs. Clara Overlock, Mrs. Ethel Campbell, Mrs. Nellie Hall, George St. Clair and Milton Griffin. Other prizes went to Mrs. Florence Knowlton, Miss Evelyn Church, Mrs. Susie Newbert, Mrs. Josephine Findley, Mrs. Mabel Thorndike, Mrs. Nina Marshall, Mrs. Muriel Drinkwater, Mrs. Maude Blodgett, Mrs. Bessie Church, Mrs. Lella Smalley, Mrs. Sarah Griffin, Mrs. Clara Watts, Mrs. Flora Ulmer, Mrs. Jessie Wall, Mrs. Hattie Davies, Mrs. Carrie Winchenbaugh, Mrs. Leola Noyes, Mrs. Frances Morse and William Foster.

The Coca-Cola Co. had an attractive booth and passed cool drinks to all players and spectators, who voiced their appreciation. The successful event was well planned and had the hearty co-operation of all members.

Edwin B. Shea

South Thomaston Loses One Of Its Most Prominent Citizens

The community lost one of its best known and most highly respected citizens in the death of Edwin V. Shea which occurred at his home in Spruce Head Oct. 25, after an illness of several months. Mr. Shea was born in South Thomaston, Nov. 3, 1879, son of the late Captain Alden G. and Bertha (Coombs) Shea. After attending the local schools, he joined his father in the fishing business on Flag Island, one of the Muske Ridge group. This venture resulted in a close association between father and son and proved very successful. At one time they owned several other islands in this group, as well as Flag Island, later selling them when the fishing business was at its height. Mr. Shea then moved to the mainland and occupied the homestead that had been in the Shea family for many years. He took much interest in town affairs and was elected to the board of selectmen. Many turned to him for counsel and advice and his friendships extended throughout the town and beyond, as he numbered among his friends many Knox County people.

In 1921 he was married to Maude Simmons of Spruce Head, this marriage resulting in a happy union until death severed it. Mrs. Shea gave him loving attention, especially during his last sickness, and in this had the constant assistance of Mrs. Nellie Grotton who did much to make him comfortable.

Funeral services were held at his home Friday with Rev. N. P. Atwood of Rockport, who supplies the Spruce Head church, and Rev. J. Charles MacDonald of Rockland officiating. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Interment was in South Thomaston cemetery. Raymond H. Rackliff, Edgar L. Newhall, Joseph W. Robinson, Arthur S. Baker, Joseph Emery, and Homer E. Robinson were bearers.

Besides his wife, Mr. Shea is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Nettie McHenan of Bernard, Mrs. Hollis Gilchrist of Thomaston, and Mrs. Fred C. Dyer of Warren and by several cousins, nephews, and nieces. Another sister, Minnie, wife of Elmer Rackliff, died some years ago.

THE GAME WE WANTED

Rockland Comes From Behind To Show Gardiner a Thing Or Two

A score of motor cars rolled in from Gardiner early Saturday night, their occupants in a very gleeful frame of mind. Coach Don Matheson was smiling, his gridiron warriors were smiling and the followers of the Orange and Black were smiling. At intervals they gave vent to the famous Rockland High School yell.

And there was every reason for rejoicing, as the local football team, sliding along through a most satisfactory season had just taken the scalp of its toughest opponent, Gardiner High, outplaying the Kennebec team in a manner so decisive that there can be no alibis when the sessions of the Winter Stove League are held. And one of the happiest spectators on the grounds was a Gardiner man, William H. Robinson, former Warren baseball star, who never fails to spout for any Rockland team, which shows up in his territory. The Sports Editor acknowledges the kind regards he sent and only wishes that he too might have been one of the highly excited spectators on the Rockland side of the field.

To Coach Matheson his first victory over Gardiner was like an unexpected drawing of the capital prize in the Irish Sweepstakes. At last accounts he had not eaten one of his regular meals in three days. Too excited.

It didn't look like pie for Rockland—the way in which the game opened.

Rockland kicked off to Gardiner, which soon found it necessary to punt. And then came a tough break for the visitors. A fumbled Gardiner punt was recovered by a Gardiner man in midfield, and walking the ball straight down the field carried pigskin across from the one yard line, failing to convert, however.

Rockland received the kick-off and on a pass from Billings to Huntley the ball was carried on a sleeper play to Gardiner's 40-yard line. The lads from the Limerock City several times threatened to score, but couldn't quite make the grade. Gardiner's line was too good and so the first quarter ended with the score Gardiner 6, Rockland 0.

In the second quarter the ball was always in Gardiner's territory, and on the very last play Rockland also failed to convert, and the half found the contending teams all tied up in a knot, six of one and half a dozen of the other.

"The Black Cat"

By The Roving Reporter

The tremendous wave of football enthusiasm which is sweeping the country is more than ever in evidence here in Knox County where hundreds of persons who never saw a college game are listening to the radio reports as they did the baseball broadcasts in summer, and are showing keen interest in the outcome of the State series, which is the most spectacular in many years.

When I began attending the State series years ago I question if Rockland was represented at those contests by more than ten persons. I do not know how many Knox County sent to the Maine-Colby game at Orono Saturday, but I should say 75 to 100, and there will probably be more than 300 at Bowdoin-Maine game in Brunswick next Saturday in spite of the licking both teams received last week.

Riding between Topsham and Augusta Sunday afternoon I stopped for refreshments at Northey's way-side stand. "I used to know Ira B. Northey when he was deputy warden of the Maine State Prison," said I. "You didn't happen to know him?" "Oh, yes," was the reply; "I am his son." The former deputy warden is still living but advancing years finds him in somewhat enfeebled health. The son was at one time a resident of Rockland and attended the Rockland Commercial College.

There used to hang in a local office this motto: "If you never do more than you get paid for you will never get paid for more than you do." And what a lot of meat there is in that maxim.

With the closing last night of Beach Inn at Lincolnville Beach the curtain was rung down in this section of the State. The McIntires have had the best season since they started their modest establishment by the side of the road, the popularity of which has been emphasized by the large attendance in the closing week.

Why should a dog be more affectionate to his master than a cat to her mistress? And yet I think everybody will admit that the canine possesses a vastly greater amount of affection. This may be rank disloyalty considering I espouse the cause of a feline.

An advertisement appearing in a Rockland newspaper seeks "a housekeeper in good health; one now getting old age assistance." It was a Rockland, Massachusetts, paper, by the way.

I like that new three-cent stamp dedicated to Thomas Jefferson. I like the color and I like the design. Thomas Jefferson would have liked it.

One of the largest spots ever seen on the sun is reported by Dr. Allen Hynek, of the Perkins Observatory of Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio State Universities. Dr. Hynek said it was about 130,000 miles long and 35,000 miles wide. He described it as nearly twice as big as a spot observed a year ago and said that it could be seen by persons looking through a smoked glass or an exposed photographic film. If it is responsible for the peerless weather we have enjoyed the past week we're strong for more spots.

And if you do not believe that four women out of five turn to the left in going across a street crossing just observe for yourself. And see if you can tell me why.

Passing through Bangor Saturday, enroute to the Maine-Colby game, I saw this sign which had no punctuation, and will have to be accepted by the reader as he sees it: "Slow Children Playing." I have always thought that Bangor was a bit "fast," if anything.

One year ago: Search was being instituted for John Brannigan. Andrews Island lobster fisherman believed lost.—Chief Justice W. H. Fisher was presiding over the term of Superior Court.—Milton A. Philbrook, formerly of Rockland, was elected president of the Maine Principals' Association.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had my life to live again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

THE WHITE BIRDS
I would that we were, my beloved, white birds on the foam of the sea!
We tire of the flame of the meteor, before it can fade and flee;
And the flame of the blue star of twilight, hung low on the rim of the sky.
Has awaked in our hearts, my beloved, a sadness that may not die.

A weariness comes from those dreamers, dew dabbled, the lily and rose;
Ah, dream not of them, my beloved, the flame of the meteor that goes,
Or the flame of the blue star that lingers hung low in the fall of the dew.

For I would we were changed to white birds on the wandering foam: I and you!

I am haunted by numberless islands, and many a Dhanau shore,
Where Time would surely forget us; and Sorrow come near us no more;
Soon far from the rose and the lily, and free of the flames would we be,
Were we only white birds, my beloved, out on the foam of the sea!

Henry A. Howard Entertains Lions With His Recollections

Henry A. Howard arose from a sick bed yesterday to keep his appointment as guest speaker for the Rockland Lions Club, and gave his listeners a highly interesting recital of affairs in this city a half century ago.

Came to Rockland as a small boy on a wood coaster commanded by his grandfather who carried wood from Bluehill to Rockland. It was his grandfather's custom to read a chapter from the Scriptures each night, and in his household was always a copy of the Youth's Companion which had such noted contributions as Charles Dickens, William E. Gladstone, Theodore Roosevelt, Grover Cleveland and Thomas A. Edison.

Boy-like he coaxed his grandfather to tell him tales of the sea, one of these being the loss of the schooner Meridian bound from Baltimore for Boston in 1854, with a cargo of coal. The craft capsized off Long Island with all sails set.

With such an environment it is not surprising that young Henry became much interested in the sea, and in all of the pictures he has since painted there has figured some sort of a vessel.

Goods were purchased in large quantities in those days, when Rockland was known as "The Mud City." There was no jay walking because the mud was so deep that the citizens had to cross the street on planks.

Young Howard had never seen a steamboat or a railroad train. His grandfather on that first trip gave Henry and his cousin a nickel apiece. Henry spent his at W. S. Hemingway's store, but his cousin was "Scotch" and elected to keep his nickel, only to lose it through a crack in the plank walk which crossed the brook. It was Billy Hemingway who recovered it.

Henry attended the McLain Grammar school one term, and yesterday commended the naming of the Grammar School building for "Tommy," as the principal was affectionately known. The members of the school committee at that time were John Lovejoy, Charles E. Littlefield and Freeman W. Smith.

The speaker was much interested in launchings and worked on the schooner Nahum Chapin which was launched at Cobb Butler & Co's yard.

"We talk about depression and recessions," said Mr. Howard, "but we have heated and lighted houses, telephones and radios, and we have the movies and other forms of amusement. I guess we don't really know much about hard times."

Mr. Howard's father, Octave P. Howard, was a stonecutter and worked 10 hours a day for $1.25. The cutters were paid $2 a day if they went away from home.

The speaker said he began teaching at $4 a week. The homes had no heating conveniences except the cook stove and parlor stove, the latter being used for "company." Residence phones were unknown and sewing machines and pianos were luxuries. Very few young people went to High School. The class of 1894 contained eight graduates, all girls. The class of 1938 contained 128 graduates about equally divided. Living conditions were entirely different. The housewife did her own cooking and laundry work and had no washing machine or electrical appliances. There were no autos, no movies, no bridge clubs, no beauty parlors, and no time to meddle in politics.

The speaker told of hearing William J. Bryan's famous "cross of thorns" speech in a talking machine at the Thorndike Hotel, and of riding a bicycle to Bath with three other boys to hear Bryan speak there.

He said there were 30 places in Rockland selling liquor and that on Saturday nights the cops were busy running in "drunks." He wondered what had become of the houses of ill repute.

A guest yesterday was Mr. Howard's partner, ex-Mayor E. L. Brown, whose lecture on somewhat similar lines is well remembered by the Lions Club.

WHITE RIBBON CONVENTION

Mrs. Quimby Induced To Serve Another Year As Its President

(By Mrs. Clara Emery)

Delegates returning from the State W.C.T.U. Convention, convening last week in the Chestnut Street Methodist Church, Portland, report that the sessions were well attended and held interest through to the closing. Many new faces were seen among the officers and delegates, the number of younger women coming forward in the work was especially noticeable.

The Knox County delegation was greeted upon arrival by Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, whose husband holds the pastorate at South Portland Methodist Church. Rev. A. D. Parker, pastor of the entertaining church, brought greetings, saying in part: "I do not know the time when your work was more needed in town, State and country than today. The liquor interests are trying to make their business respectable, but it never can be done. There are being employed in the bar rooms of the country one million hostesses, women that are young, attractive, appealing; they are paid a commission on the number of drinks they can sell to customers. So insidious is this traffic that in six months they become lower than their victims. If America continues for ten years as she has been in the past three years she will be the most drunken and corrupt nation on earth. But I believe we are beginning to see a decided change in the attitude of the thinking people."

In responding, Mrs. Quimby said there were one and one-half million W.C.T.U. women, working and educating against this evil.

New members of the executive board were presented from the platform. Mrs. Dorothy Hutchins of Fort Kent, director of Medical Temperance and Narcotics, succeeding Mrs. Evie Studley of Medomak, deceased. She is a young woman, mother of three small children, has done outstanding work in Aroostook County. Miss Margetta Flanders of Bangor, director of Social Morality, succeeds Mrs. Augusta Christie of Presque Isle, who was made vice president at large of the State organization. Mrs. Mildred Rhoades of Rockport was appointed page for the convention.

Rev. Mr. Pinkerton of Dresden Mills was presented, also an old friend. Rev. J. R. Corson, formerly of Rockland, now of Gerry, Penobscot County. Mrs. Corson has recently been elected W.C.T.U. county president.

Miss Margaret Sargent, recording secretary, reported 520 new members, with 3560 dues-paid members in the State. Cumberland County had the largest number of new members, 112. Skowhegan, showing the largest gain in local union, had increased their membership from 45 to 102. Special effort for the year had been securing new members, raising the culinary fund and working on the "Vote No" campaign. Miss Elsie Hannaford in her report on literature said that besides the regular amount of W.C.T.U. literature, papers, etc., used throughout the State, she had sent out 80,000 leaflets and 50,000 Vote No cards for use in the campaign.

A moment of reverent silence was observed in memory of Gertrude Stevens Leavitt, lately departed editor of the "Star in the East." Ralph Ames Leavitt, son of Mrs. Leavitt, was introduced and gave words of testimony to the faithful service of his mother in the W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, National President, and guest speaker of the convention, was presented by Mrs. Quimby. Mrs. Smith spoke that night over Station WCHS.

Mrs. Martha Gould, director of Christian Citizenship and Key Woman for the Frances Willard Centennial celebration, had a fine exhibit of material, a large map of the United States, sepia on fine white cloth, showing where memorials of Frances Willard were located. She asked that every Union purchase a map for exhibition in its town.

A map of Maine showed where pictures and other mementos of Frances Willard were located and where the white peony bulbs had been planted. Copies of the monologue "The Uncrowned Queen," seven dramatic episodes from the life of Frances Willard, were on sale, and a copy of the new book Frances Willard of Evanston, a biography on exhibit.

Mrs. Mildred Washburn, delegate to the National Convention in San Francisco, and State director of Youth Temperance Councils, gave interesting items of her trip. She said the Palmer method of alcohol education had been adopted in 44 percent of the schools in the country. Millions saw the picture The Beneficent Reprobate, a scientific presentation of what alcohol is and what it does. The Y.T.C.'s showed great growth and enthusiasm. One of the features was the unveiling of a bronze plaque, gift of the California North W.C.T.U., at Inspiration Point, where Frances Willard caught the vision of a World W.C.T.U. At the reception following Y.T.C., youths dressed in Spanish costumes, served California fruit juices from large glass barrels carried on push carts. Many people seeing Mrs. Washburn's Maine badge, said "you are from that beautiful State of Maine."

The National Convention of 1939 will be held at Rochester, N. Y., near the birthplace of Frances Willard. Miss Caroline Chase, director of D.V.B. schools department, said 1560 children had been reached with alcohol education in the summer schools. Miss Caremae Bradford, director of the department of Motion pictures, said the Neely-Pattangall bill so many had written letters to congressmen about, had been passed, the first legislation on motion pictures ever enacted. It has to do with Block Booking and Blind Selling.

Mrs. Clara Emery presented her report on medal contests for the year, and offered the new department banner to the county doing the best work. Knox County held the banner on its record of having done work in three grades, Junior Bronze, Silver and Gold Medal contests.

Mrs. Myrtle G. Ames gave a report on Loyal Temperance Leagues, and a group of L.T.L. children from South Portland gave a demonstration of their regular work. Mrs. Ames said the work of L.T.L. through the years had been the basis of temperance education. We must begin anew to enlist the children, the greatest menace against the increasing inroads of the liquor traffic. Speakers of the afternoon were invited by the press to pose for their pictures.

The membership tea was served at the Eastland Hotel, all those having won five new members. were guests, others were privileged to attend by buying a ticket. A very pleasant social affair.

A feature of the Wednesday night program was the processional. County presidents and department directors, dressed in white and carrying their banners, paraded the auditorium. Mrs. Quimby called attention to a liquor advertisement appearing in the Portland Express and Bangor Daily News, edition of Oct. 21, using a picture of the State House. A vote of protest was sent to Gov. Barrows.

Mrs. Alice G. Ropes, president of the Massachusetts W.C.T.U., brought greetings from the White Ribboners of Massachusetts to the sisters in Maine. "We are not shutting our eyes to the changed conditions since repeal. It is painfully evident on every side. The liquor traffic is called Public Enemy No. 1. It is a traitor, an undesirable alien, a racketeer. No amount of man-made laws can legislate away the effects of beverage alcohol." Entertainment features were the beautiful solo singing of Mrs. Carl Dods of Portland, and the xylophone playing of Elden Bailey, Deering High School student.

Thursday morning reports of directors was continued; outstanding was Exhibits and Fairs by Mrs. Edith Thomas, Caribou. She asked that directors in every department co-operate with her in using some form of exhibit for growing visual alcohol education.

Mrs. Frederick W. Roble of Augusta, director of Non-Alcoholic Fruit Products, had a fine exhibit, each county setting up a tray of fruit juice drinks, attractively decorated and adapted to each month of the year. She asked members to send in receipts using native fruits and berries, and she would compile them in a booklet for general use.

Mrs. Roble is the wife of the Secretary of State and a new director in this department of the work.

At the election of officers a great protestation arose when word went around that Mrs. Quimby and Miss Shapleigh were both retiring from office. However, she was prevailed upon to accept office for the ensuing year, when her 25 years of service might be fittingly celebrated, along with the Frances Willard Centennial, and that time might be had for preparing a candidate to succeed her in office. Mrs. Augusta Christie of Presque Isle was named vice president at large.

The high lights of the afternoon program was the awarding of mont ribbons to the gold star and honor Unions who had paid in 100 percent and 50 percent on their quotas to the Culinary Fund, Rockland, Camden and Appleton were Gold Stars, Thomaston and Friendship Honor Unions. Knox County has contributed $450 to the fund.

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith gave a brief address to members on "Why and the Way," urging them to strive to carry out the five point, new year program and complete their quota of the Centenary Fund which is still lacking some $6000. Invitation was extended to the convention by Mrs. Marion Dow Eaton to attend a reception and tea at the Neal Dow homestead, which was generally accepted. In the receiving line with Mrs. Eaton, who is the granddaughter of Neal Dow and daughter of Col. Fred Dow, and present occupant of the homestead, was Mrs. Quimby. Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Roble and Mrs. Christie. Tea was served in the dining room, the whole house was opened for inspection; it was replete with fine pieces of antique furnishings, oil paintings and many choice and beautiful memoirs of the Dow family. Attention was called to the chair, a gift from the school children to Neal Dow and to the library, the largest private owned collection in Maine, if not New England. This homestead will become the property of the State W.C.T.U. upon the demise of Mrs. Eaton or at her request.

Thursday night a large audience greeted Mrs. Smith and gave interested attention to her address on "Streamlined Power," which has been well reported by the press.

The report of the committee on resolutions and the president's recommendations were adopted by the convention. Friday morning session all unfinished business was cleared. Mrs. Esther Hews of Presque Isle gave an episode from the monologue "The Uncrowned Queen."

A large group was there for the closing when according to the custom they joined hands around the church and sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

IN ANY RACE

They were discussing the North American Indian in a school one day when the teacher asked if anyone could tell what the leaders of the tribes were called.

"Chiefs," answered one bright little girl.

"Correct. Now can any of you tell me what the women were called?"

There was silence for some time, and then a small boy frantically waved his hand for recognition.

"Well, Frankie?" said the teacher. "Mis-chiefs," he announced proudly.—B. & M. Magazine

CARD OF THANKS I wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy to my son and his wife during the loss of their loved one. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Robbins and son John.

HUNTERS SHOULD KNOW

Maine's hunting season swings wide open Tuesday morning with 15,000,000 acres of forest land in all 16 counties stirring nimrods into action. Forest fire threats have passed and Inland Fish and Game Commissioner George J. Stobie is of the opinion that the closing of any areas will not be necessary for the balance of the season.

Rain and wind during the past few days have improved hunting conditions throughout the State. The woods are quieter and foliage practically disappeared. From all indications there will be many hunters in the state and Stobie advises those seeking game to be on hand early before heavy firing drives the deer and other animals into the back country.

Deer can be taken in Aroostook, Somerset, Piscataquis, Penobscot, Franklin, Oxford, Androscoggin, Cumberland, Kennebec, Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc, Waldo and York counties until Nov. 30 and in Hancock and Washington counties until Dec. 15.

The bear season will remain open in all counties until Nov. 30. Muskrats may be taken in Franklin, Hancock, Penobscot, Piscataquis, Somerset, Oxford and Aroostook counties until the 30th.

First Baptist Girls Guild will meet Thursday night at 7.30, at the home of Mrs. Lucy Rankin, 74 Rankin street.

After four days' hunting in the region of Springfield, Edward Merrill and son William returned Saturday with two deer.

The regular dance Friday night at the Glen Cove Grange hall will take the place of the Halloween dance advertised in error for tonight.

A short stretch of cement sidewalk is being built on the southern side of the Woolworth building and will be the finishing touch to that attractive looking corner.

Frank D. Rowe of Warren was elected second vice president of the representative assembly, governing body of the Maine Teachers' Association in Bangor last week.

Baptist Elections

Organization Squares Away For Busy Year—Cassens Heads Sunday School

The annual meeting of the First Baptist Church School was marked by the resignation of Charles H. Morey as superintendent, and the election of Deacon G. Carl Cassens as his successor. The retirement of Supt. Morey was noted with much regret, as his entire service covers 40 years, the last half of it in the capacity of superintendent.

The elevation of Deacon Cassens to that position is regarded as an excellent move, his association with and work for the school having been of a valuable character. His assistants will be Kenneth Hooper and Leslie A. Packard.

Other officers elected were: Millard F. Hart, church clerk; Mary P. Ulmer, membership clerk; Sidney Pierce, treasurer of benevolences.

Deacons elected were A. B. Butler, V. A. Leach, C. H. Morey, F. H. Ingraham, R. S. Sherman, O. A. Palmer, J. W. Robinson, M. R. Snow, G. C. Cassens, and F. A. Carter. Deaconesses are Mrs. G. C. Cassens, Mrs. Evelyn McKusick, Mrs. E. J. Morey, Mrs. F. M. Ulmer, Miss Eleanor Griffith, Mrs. Hope Brewster, Mrs. H. W. Frohock, Miss Alice Erskine, Mrs. F. C. Ryder and Mrs. Frances Hall.

Baptismal committee, Mrs. F. C. Ryder, Mrs. Ada Post, Mrs. Ada Dalzell, Mrs. Abbie Hanscom, Mrs. Hope Brewster, Ralph E. Stickney, Mrs. Margaret Gregory, Miss Alice McIntosh and the deacons.

Missionary committee, Mrs. H. W. Frohock, Mrs. W. O. Fuller, Mrs. F. M. Ulmer, Mrs. Lettie Whitten, Mrs. E. J. Morey, Mrs. Helen P. Knowlton and Mrs. Clara Gregory.

Press and news committee, R. S. Sherman, Frank H. Ingraham, Mrs. Edith Follansbee and Miss Helen M. York. Treasurer of communion fund, Mrs. Edward J. Morey. Nominating committee, Ansel Young, Mrs. William Grant and Mrs. Alice Kaler.

Director of religious education: Mrs. J. Charles MacDonald. Evangelistic committee, O. A. Palmer, F. H. Ingraham, Mrs. Abbie Hanscom and Mrs. Evelyn McKusick.

Sunday school officers: Mr. Cassens, superintendent; Mr. Hooper and Mr. Packard, assistant superintendents; Miss Barbara Perry, secretary; Ansel Young, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Morey, assistant secretary and treasurer; and Mrs. Fred A. Carter, auditor.

Superintendents are: Mrs. J. C. MacDonald, intermediate; Miss Virginia Egan, assistant; Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson, Junior; Mrs. Ansel Wooster, assistant; Mrs. Walter E. Snow, primary; Mrs. Addie Rogers, assistant; Mrs. Hattie Richards, beginners; Mrs. Eva Stanley, assistant; Mrs. Charles Morey, cradle roll; Mrs. Fred M. Kittredge, assistant; Mrs. F. M. Ulmer, home; Mrs. Elsa Constantine, Mrs. Lillian Joyce and Miss Helen Mills, church school music committee.

Rev. J. Charles MacDonald presided at the church meeting. The following reports were presented: Society treasurer, J. W. Robinson; treasurer of benevolences, Sidney Pierce; Sunday school secretary, Barbara Perry; Sunday school treasurer and C. E. secretary, Ansel Young; treasurer C. E. Virginia Egan; missionary society, Gladys Mills; women's association, Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson; Kallach class, Miss Elizabeth Morey; Opportunity class, Mrs. Ada Post; Brotherhood class, Edwin H. Crle; Googo class, Gerald Beverage; Men's League, I. Lawton Bray; Boy Scouts, Gerald Beverage.

Pastor MacDonald suggested that a goal of 25 percent over last year be set, and that the church motto for the year be "Looking Unto Jesus." An excellent supper was served by a group of members of the Woman's association.

When we were kinds (and men wore celluloid collars) we used to say: "You're a great dancer. You have just two minor obstacles to overcome: your feet." Then we'd laugh. But we were kids, and so the wisecrack was excusable. But when grown men, after deep thot, can make the following observation, something must be wrong somewhere. This is the proud summation of a job well done, by Neville Chamberlain, Prime Minister of Great Britain: "The Housing Problem is solved... except for two strongholds—the destruction of the slums and the elimination of overcrowding."

Will Take Place Entertainment Sponsored By The Grand Commandery

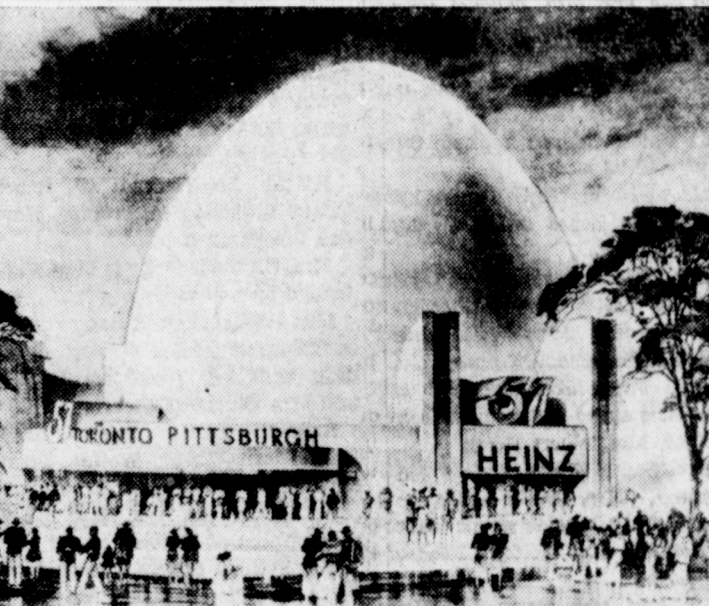

The Grand Commandery of Maine, Knights of Templar, of which Frank E. Southard of Augusta is Grand Commander, has invited the entire membership of the State to two entertainments and dances, one to be held at City Hall in Camden Nov. 4 and the other at City Hall in Portland Nov. 5.

The entertainment will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening at both Camden and Portland. The entertainment consists of six acts, including Eddie and Eddie, European jugglers, who also do a slack wire performance; George Gillette, who is one of America's foremost humorists; a novelty instrumentalist, who has been in great demand in Massachusetts; a duet consisting of Harvey and Lanem, who offer a number of vocal selections; an acrobatic team of Bates and Beverly; and a comedy act by Potas and Polson, which has won wide acclaim. Dot Gleason's all-girl band will furnish music. Dancing will follow the program.

Invitations have been sent to all Knights Templar in the State and their ticket of admission is their uniform, which will produce a colorful spectacle on the dance floor.

The Post Office Department reports that thousands of letters were mailed last year without addresses. All we know about it is that none of our creditors mailed any of those letters.

New York World's Fair Honors Its First Completed Exhibitor's Building

NEW YORK, October 15—Flags of the great nations were raised over the New York World's Fair today when the first of the exhibitors' buildings were completed. It is a huge dome, towering 90 feet and 150 feet in diameter, and will be occupied by H. J. Heinz Company.

Grover Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation, members of his staff and others were the guests of Howard Heinz at a luncheon at the Terrace Club, Fair Grounds, after the party had inspected the building.

"We enlarged our plans when we reached the conclusion that this would be the greatest fair in history," Mr. Heinz said in an informal address, "and we agree with Mr. Whalen in anticipating an attendance of at least 60,000,000. It is logical to expect improvement in general business and this feeling is justified by barometric statistics. More employment and larger incomes will assure the success of the Fair, especially since it is being directed by such an able and energetic man as Grover Whalen.

Mr. Whalen, in response, said: "I feel certain it would be impossible to find a community any-

SIGN OF GOOD LINES

A linen with lots of weight and a firm, strong weave will give the best service in wear and durability. But the careful purchaser will make sure that the weight of the linen is due to the flax fiber itself and not to the dressing applied as a finish to the fabric. Hold the linen in a strong light to judge the firmness and balance of the weave. Unbalanced weaves—signs of weak spots that wear rapidly—can usually be spotted this way. Loose threads in the fabric are also signs of a poor weave. Top quality linen damasks have 450 threads to the square inch.

Hotels, which give hard wear to linen, usually buy damask with a thread count of from 160 to 270.

A Night At "Lumina"

Vinal Haven Lions Club Visits Summer Home of King Lion Calderwood

For two weeks the Vinal Haven Lions Club has been looking forward to a delightful outing at the summer residence of Past King Lion Isaac Calderwood, known as "Lumina" and situated on Calderwood's Neck, and last Thursday night their anticipations were realized. The weather was auspicious, just cool enough to allow for a cheery fire in two of the three fireplaces in the spacious old New England type farmhouse. Host Lion Calderwood with the aid of a very fat cook book and a couple of cub assistants had prepared a splendid meal especially appealing to Vinal Havenites, and served according to the following menu:

Steamed Pleasant River Clams
Hard Tack Soda Bread
Fried Mill River Clams
Pickles Drawn Butter
Clam Chowder (Seal Bay Clams)
Mince Pie Coffee

Apple Cider
After doing justice to the meal (and there was some to spare) the tables were cleared and the business of the meeting was transacted. Committees were appointed to investigate and report on the Lions Club annual Thanksgiving masquerade, a card party, and the purchase of emergency and first aid equipment.

King Lion Drew opened the meeting from an aluminum chair, one of the first made by the Aluminum Corp. of America, with which Lion Calderwood has been associated for many years as a construction engineer.

Lion Alfred Creed, as member of the program committee, read a very interesting paper on the automotive industry and gave some personal experiences in the garage and repair business in which he has been active since Henry Ford first began making automobiles. He in turn introduced Lion Calderwood who gave a detailed and instructive account of the early settlers who were his ancestors, and how they were connected with the house in which the meeting was being held. One of the most interesting things brought out by him was the story of gold mining on Calderwood's neck. According to Lion Calderwood's story gold mining had progressed so far during the gold fever of the early 70's that there were several in operation on the Neck and one that was ready to float a stock issue. Although Lion Ernest Glidden could vouch for the early diggings, he nor nobody else could vouch for the finding of any gold. Another item of interest was the story of how the Carrying Place Bridge came to be built.

At this moment Harold Vinal, who was a guest, was called upon for remarks and he obliged with a poem, dedicated to the old house, and which he had composed within a few minutes after arriving for the meeting. Your correspondent was unable to get a copy of it, but those who take the New York Times may find it on the poetry page of the Times, if, as Harold claimed, they would pay $10 for what the Lions got for nothing.

Another guest, John Hildings, favored the meeting with a selection on the concertina, and with Lion Daggett fingering the keyboard of his piano accordion, the members were loath to break into song. Not to be outdone by guest Vinal, who had just finished directing a number, Lion Ed Carver mounted the director's stand and injected new pathos and understanding into that old club favorite, "When It's Spring-time In the Rockies."

It being Nay Day, King Lion Drew then called upon Lion Leslie B. Dyer, ex-marine, who had done considerable sea voyaging on Uncle Sam's battleships, and Les gave a very humorous account of the troubles which befell him on the battleship Texas, when the Admiral of the fleet came aboard for his inspection of the ship.

Other guests to make brief remarks were I. S. Littlefield and Frank Grimes.

Time moved so swiftly in the mellow atmosphere of the old farmhouse, that it was nearly 10 p. m. when the meeting broke up and the Lions and guests retired to their rubber wheeled and iron lunged steeds to carry them back over the Carrying Place Bridge, thence to Carver's Harbor. There were many in the party, who although having lived in Vinal Haven all their lives, had never been inside the old Calderwood ancestral home, but there was no one, when they left, but what would gladly welcome a chance to go there again.

In April, 1894 she was married to Roscoe G. Ingraham and all her married life was spent in Rockland where she had hosts of friends.

Services were conducted by Rev. E. O. Kenyon at the Russell Funeral home in Rockland. The bearers were Donald Leach, Albert Marsh, Thomas Fleming and Francis Havener. Interment was in Achorn cemetery.

Mrs. Ingraham is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Pratt of Tenants Harbor; Mrs. Emma Gilchrist of St. George and two brothers, Adelbert Williamson of Thomaston and Edw. Williamson of Rockland; also several nieces and nephews.

A Trip To Quebec

Miss Hazel Day of Chestnut Hill, Mass., Mrs. Lizzie Ames and Mrs. Kate Gould of Rockland with Mrs. Luther A. Clark of this town as driver, left for Quebec Oct. 18. They had a nice, out-door picnic lunch at Lakewood, the day being very warm, and visited Wyman Dam early in the afternoon. They then went on through the Jackman woods, where the leaves were very pretty, the oak leaves still being a bright red.

The first night they stayed at the Armstrong Inn, and the next day three of the party went to an English School in Jersey Mills, Canada, where the school teacher gave them a hearty welcome. All the children, gave perfect lessons each speaking correct English very intelligently. The school house was papered and painted as homes are here and the school room was immaculate. This was a school to which French children came to learn to speak English, and they raise money there for Red Cross work.

From there the party went back to Armstrong, where they spent another night at the Inn. The next day they started for Quebec, going to Scott, where they stayed at the Chat-A-Vue, which gave them a beautiful view of the Governor's Garden. The evening was spent at the Hotel Chateau Frontenac, where a large banquet was being held.

Friday a French chauffeur, Leopold Levesque, drove the party around, going in the morning to St. Anne, where they visited the Cyclorama. They had dinner at the Hotel Biledeau, which is a real French Hotel at St. Anne De Beaupre. In the afternoon they visited old Quebec. Miss Day and Mrs. Gould visiting the British liner, which was one of the largest made. The inhabitants told the party they expected the Queen and King to arrive on that liner when they come to Quebec next year.

That evening Mrs. I. C. Duchesneau took the visitors in her car to the Capitol Theatre, where they saw The Bell Hawaiians play, the cast being dressed in the native costumes of Hawaii. They had a very nice evening and considered it well spent. The French chauffeur again drove for the party Saturday taking them through new Quebec, the Plain of Abraham, the Fort and the Governor's home. The tourists then started homeward, driving to Therford Mines, then on to the East Angus Hotel, where they spent the night.

They left East Angus Sunday for East Herford, where they passed the usual Custom Officers before getting back into the United States. Then once more they went to Colebrook and Lancaster, N. H., where they saw the recent hurricane damage all along the way in the forests. They then took the new route built from Jefferson Notch to North Fryeburg, which is called the Evan Notch, and the party considered this the most beautiful of any of the notches in the White Mountains. This night was spent in Ye Old Inn in Fryeburg, where Miss Day had spent several days last year.

The next day, Monday, proved to be very rainy out-of-doors, but they were not a rainy crowd, for that day was enjoyed as well.

Mrs. Gould called on her sister, Mrs. Strout at Mechanic Falls and at Auburn Mrs. Clark found out she had gassed up at the Penny Gas Station, which is a much talked about place at the present time. They drove on to Lewiston Fair Grounds and called on Mr. and Mrs. Franz Simmons, where they learned that the former had been made a judge at the races this season. They all enjoyed that call very much and wished they could have stayed longer, but on they had to travel, reaching home at Thomaston in time for a delicious supper which Mrs. Aaron Clark had waiting for the return of their happy party; one more trip to be long remembered.

The Girl Scouts were entertained Friday night by the Girl Scouts in Rockland.

This And That

By K. S. F.

For a nervous patient at a hospital: "You've no need to light a night-light. On a light night like tonight. For a night-light's a slight light. And tonight's a night that's light. When a night's light like tonight's light. It is really not quite right. To light night-lights with their slight lights. On a light night like tonight."

When one hears the north wind whistling, possibly it is on its way south where the weather is nice and warm.

Now they are asking those who listen in Sundays to the fine sermons that come over the radio, to contribute. Better go to church in your home city. There's always a welcome, good music and excellent service.

It was Lord Tennyson who ranked true humanity the foundation of all virtues. Do not forget this when you send your check to the Knox County Hospital fund.

And now the wise ones at Washington have attacked the poor old scare crow and say it has never yet frightened a bird away from field crop or kitchen garden. Probably electric fans or swing bands might be of help.

This is life as we see it: Twenty years a-growing Twenty more in bloom, Twenty years a-stopping And twenty more declining.

While the leaves come drifting down Rakes are busy all over town.

The Boston Transcript gave this one:

U Old T's Oh, woman in your hours of E's. You spend an awful lot of V's. Poor man must mind his P's and Q's To earn the X's that you use.

Real Indian Summer should be here during a part of November.

In this Administration's Reorganization Bill the Congressional committee found no guaranty for efficiency and really little direct mention for economy.

"If any member of my audience," said the man on the stage, "will call out the name of some female character in Shakespeare, I will portray that character."

"Florence Nightingale" came a shout.

"I said Shakespeare, Sir; I am not familiar with Dickens."

The nimrods are out and the game is plentiful. A young lady saw a lovely deer by the brookside at The Meadows this week.

What a lot of signs and sayings the human mind follows and really takes thought upon:

A scratch on one's body means a journey for that person.

Say "Rabbit." The first word spoken the first day of the month and it will bring good luck. Luck comes from "Rabbit" or "It." I do not know.

Do not open an umbrella in the house—sure sign of death soon to come in the family.

Always look at the new moon over your right shoulder for really good luck, then make a wish.

With almost 4,000 persons visiting "Montpelier" this year and fully as many last year, one realizes the importance of that great institution as a memorial to Gen. Henry Knox and Thomaston.

Who can tell the name of the tree which holds its leaves longest in the fall—not counting the evergreens?

The secretary of the Wawenock Club tells me they are simply a bit delayed in their opening, but have a fine program ready for study this year.

New motor cars are showing a greater variety of colors than ever before in the new models this fall.

The girls in a reformatory school are instructed in laundry work,—"Wring out, wild bellies," they sing.

The way things are now we have somehow become a world of enemies, both in thought and action. And we believe this is civilization.

Here is an old one: An Englishman discussing the Civil War with a Virginian, said, "Don't you think something could have been done to avert the disaster?"

"Only one way" replied the Virginian, "If Plymouth Rock had landed on the Pilgrims instead of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock, the war might have been averted."

Happy Hope Farm

All Readers Will Sympathize With Mrs. Savage In Father's Death

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

The following notice is taken from the Westerly, R. I., Sun, Oct. 22:

James L. Steadman

"James Stanton Steadman, 78, a resident of Wood River Junction for 45 years, died early this morning at his home after a long illness. He was the husband of Ella Elizabeth (Thayer) Steadman. He was born in South Kingston, Jan. 30, 1860, the son of Stanton and Sarah (Tucker) Steadman. Besides his wife he leaves two daughters, Miss Sarah T. Steadman of Wood River Junction and Mrs. E. I. Savage of Waldeboro, Me., and a son, James S. Steadman, Jr."

Funeral services were at the Avery funeral home in Hope Valley and then "Dad" was laid to rest in beautiful Riverside cemetery, Wakefield, R. I.

"My Dad"—he was a good husband and father, a kind neighbor, a man four-square in all his dealings. He believed in God and tried to practice His principles. One of my precious memories of Dad is the vision of him resting in his easy chair, with the old Bible that had been read by several generations, open on his knees.

If he had lived until February, 1939, he and mother would have celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary. In February, 1930, they celebrated their 50th anniversary and one of their keepestakes of that event was congratulations from the President of the United States, Herbert Hoover.

Because of circumstances, I could not go to see Dad laid at rest, but roses—red roses, for he loved them—expressed my last farewell to all that was mortal of dear old Daddy. But somewhere, in a fuller, better life, that knows no parting, his youngest child, now with silver in her hair, trusts that her beloved Dad has renewed his youth and life. God bless the memory of him who was the best of fathers, to us, his children.

DEFINITION OF A JOURNALIST

A good journalist is one who can expand the material for a paragraph into a whole article, but never does so if he can avoid it; who is widely informed, but respects the limits of his information; who is violent in expressing his opinion, but reasonable in forming them; and who seeks to win the agreement of his readers, but would rather inspire their indignation than their indifference.—Nation and Athenaeum (London).

"A Wild Scheme"

Said Abraham Lincoln, But Transcontinental Telegraph Line Was Built

One of Western Union's major contributions to the salvation of the nation was the first Transcontinental Telegraph line, built in 1861 when the telegraph company was only five years old but already rapidly combining eastern lines and building new ones into the nation's first unified telegraph system.

To bring home to Americans an appreciation of the pioneer courage involved in the construction of the first transcontinental line, a celebration of its 77th anniversary was held Monday with meetings all along the historic route from Omaha to Sacramento, and a dramatic re-enactment of the joining of the lines of the east and west at Salt Lake City.

Heeding the pleas of a half million settlers isolated on the Pacific Coast for rapid communications with the Eastern States, and anticipating the vital need of the Union, faced by Civil War and the need for the gold and support of the west, Western Union sent Edward Creighton, pioneer line builder, west in 1859 to select the route for a transcontinental line. The middle route, followed by the Pony Express, was selected early in 1861. Hiram Sibley, president of Western Union, decided to build the line, although President Abraham Lincoln told him it was a "wild scheme," and that it would be "next to impossible to get your poles and materials distributed on the plains, and as fast as you build the line the Indians will cut it down."

Western Union's Jephthah H. Wade was sent to California where his strategy forced consolidation of small lines in that state to form the Overland Telegraph Company and construct the line east to Salt Lake City. Wade then headed the Pacific Telegraph Company which was formed to build the line from Omaha to Salt Lake City, and Creighton was placed in charge of construction of the eastern line, with W. H. Stebbins building east from Salt Lake. James Gamble was placed in charge of the western line, with I. M. Hubbard, superintendent of construction, and James Street, general agent.

Beginning work three months after the start of the Civil War, the forces constructing the line were divided among numerous wagon trains scattered along the route, hauling poles, heavy reels of wire, insulators, batteries, etc. Both eastern and western builders experienced difficulty in getting poles, some of which were hauled as far as 200 miles. Creighton, Street and other leaders were successful in making friends with the Indians, thus avoiding trouble with them.

Racing against each other to win prizes, the eastern and western forces steadily closed the gap which the Pony Express riders spanned. Given ten years to complete the line, Creighton amazed the nation by finishing it in three months and 20 days. But Creighton did not vault to fame on a telegraph pole alone. He added to his fortune by operating wagon trains and founding the western cattle business. Banker and owner of vast real estate, Creighton was the wealthiest cattle dealer of the nation when he died. Today his memory is kept fresh by Creighton University in Omaha, which was founded by his widow 60 years ago.

When the eastern forces won the race, making their final joint at Fort Bridger, Utah on the night of October 17, the first message from Salt Lake City was sent by Brigham Young, leader of the Mormons, stating that Utah had not seceded but was firm for the Union. The western forces completed their line on Oct. 22. The lines were then joined at Salt Lake City, and on Oct. 24, 1861, the first transcontinental message was sent by Stephen J. Field, Chief Justice of California, to President Abraham Lincoln, expressing the loyalty of that state to the Union.

TENANT'S HARBOR DAYS

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—I have been interested in reading the lists of "Students of Old Rockland Commercial College." In the summer of 1881 I attended a business college in New York State, the youngest student at that time.

In the list of 1885 at Rockland Commercial College, I found the names of three students who I knew slightly—John K. Monaghan, Clark Island; O. L. Beverage, North Haven; and R. M. Davis, St. George. I first met John Monaghan when I went on the island to work in the store in 1882. He afterwards became Dad's next door neighbor and smelting companion.

O. L. Beverage, if my memory serves me aright, taught school at the old red schoolhouse at the Harbor. As many another teacher has done before and since, he was married to one of his fair pupils in 1887 and later came to Boston and was master of a school in Dorchester. His widow still lives, and the family of five men and two women, and all with a college education.

Richard Davis was my age, and at one time in the early 80's was my partner in a writing school at the old red schoolhouse. We had been pupils of F. O. Young at writing school and as private pupils. "Dick" was an artist with the pen, and had he lived would have been a very fine penman. I do not know when he died, but his name appears in the History of St. George as of November 1892 as receiving mail at the Harbor. He lived in what is now Wallston (O. S. Gabletown).

My fellow townsman, W. J. Hutton, across the continent in Los Angeles writes: "A Port Clyde storm, Sept. 8, 1869." My memory is fairly good, but on the above date I lacked four months of being five years of age, so it did not leave its imprint. As I was caretaker of the Sch. R. F. Hart then building in the harbor yard, head of the "Clyde" all I could attend to keeping the storm blowing away.

In 1869 it was not Port Clyde but Herring Gut, not quite so euphonious a name as the former but really meant something, for herring did go through the Gut. I found in a book on Nova Scotia that on the extreme Southwestern end there is a Port Clyde on the Clyde River, and probably some Bluese thought it looked like his home port and got the folks to change the name.

The Sept. 21st blow reached my hill in Somerville, but I was fortunate. Trees down, roofs off, windows broken, etc., but I am thankful that the water never touched me.

I have heard a lot about the "Forgotten Man" but now comes the "Unknown Man," the Roving Reporter. I have been contributing articles to the Courier-Gazette for almost 31 years and strange to say I have met him face to face only once in 1935. I do know his name and if Will Hutton will scan the news in the "Talk of the Town" and notice the name of the man who is always hopping about, like a Mexican jumping bean, lecturing here, there and everywhere, he will find the "Unknown Man." Write again soon, Will. Boze

Blightless Spuds

Here's a New Discovery Which Will Help Potato Growing Industry

Dr. Theodore E. Odland, head of the department of plant industry at R. I. State College has announced development of a potato seed which will produce a potato immune to blight. Dr. Odland said he would have to limit the information about the seed because it would be impossible to meet anticipated demand for it.

The seed, he said, will be distributed in limited amounts to growers by the State College and the U. S. Department of Agriculture station in Maine. It was the U. S. Agriculture Department, he said, that developed the seed.

Dr. Odland predicted that the new potato will revolutionize potato growing in Rhode Island, Maine, Long Island and Idaho. He estimated that it will take four or five years for the seed to become common enough to grow on a wholesale scale.

He pointed out that potato blight has spelled ruin for thousands of farmers in the past. Up to now, he said, the farmers' only weapon against blight has been constant spraying, which failed in many cases. Although potatoes immune to blight have been developed before, he said, the potatoes have not been good for table purposes.

Raising Raccoons

Supt. McNeil Brown, Former Rockland Boy, Trying An Experiment

An indication that Maine's experiment in raccoon propagation might prove successful on a larger scale was seen here this week in the report of McNeil Brown, State Game Farm Superintendent, that he had successfully raised 25 of the bandits in a two-year project carried on at the Dry Mills establishment.

Starting in the spring of 1936 with 16 young raccoons picked up by wardens and others and turned over to the farm for protection the family has grown to 41. Six were successfully raised as a result of breeding two of the yearling females during the first winter and 19 more were added this year after eight of the original 10 females were bred.

In addition to this number Brown also has 30 other 'coons of undetermined ages which were turned over to the farm by people who had been keeping them as pets or for dog training purposes. This was a result of the law passed in 1937 which imposed a $50 license for the privilege of keeping wild animals in captivity.

Brown said that he planned to continue his experiment this winter and culling out and liberating the non-productive stock next spring.

Although no plans have been considered for including raccoon propagation as a major Fish and Game department activity, officials believe that the success of the two-year experiment could serve as a foundation for raising the species on a much larger scale.

Coon hunters in the southern part of the State have reported a scarcity of the bandits during recent years, a condition more acute by the increased interest in the sport of night hunting the animals with dogs which has been fostered by numerous field trials this past summer.

Although a season limit of 20 was imposed by the 1936-37 legislature and the single night's bag limit reduced to two many hunters have expressed the opinion that more stringent measures or stocking may be necessary to increase the population.

So far as is known Maine's experiment has been the most successful ever tried. Ohio and Massachusetts have both tried to propagate the species in captivity but their efforts were not conducive to raising the animals on a large scale.

Brown believes, however, that the methods he has followed would be successful in the event that space and money permitted. The project thus far indicates that the average litter in captivity would be three but he is of the opinion that selective breeding might increase the production if large-scale operations were possible.

There is no danger of the animals becoming too tame for self-sustaining in the wild, he declared, citing numerous instances of pet coons escaping and reverting to the wild state.

PERSONALITIES IN MUSIC

HOAGY CARMICHAEL, A. S. C. A. P.

Lawyer Into Songwriter

By Daniel I. McNamara

"HOAGLAND CARMICHAEL, Attorney-at-Law."

If the owner of the shingle bearing this legend had been content to remain an obscure young lawyer in Florida, the music-loving American nation might never have sung "Stardust." For Hoagland Carmichael, attorney, and Hoagy Carmichael, composer of popular songs, are identical. Chief difference in the extremes of his dual personality is that the lawyer was a dud—the composer a top-ranking success.

Today Carmichael is one of Hollywood's creators of songs with dozens of the nation's favorites to his credit. "Lazybones," "Rockin' Chair," "Georgia On My Mind," "One Morning in May," "Little Old Lady"—these are a few of the songs that have spread his fame as a composer, and effectively buried all recollections of his having ever been an aspiring young attorney.

Carmichael learned to play piano by ear from his mother, whose ragtime playing was the delight of the Bloomington, Indiana, neighborhood where he was born. He played his way through law school in Indiana University with a three-piece orchestra, and by way of diversion composed "Riverboat Shuffle." A group of professional musicians, the Wolferines, liked the number, learned it from Hoagy and recorded it. A New York publisher heard the record and printed the music. It was Hoagy's first published work. Then Paul Whiteman picked up his "Washboard Blues," but even that distinction did not impress Hoagy with his aptness in music. His mind was on the law.

He entered a New York bank as a step towards a legal career, declining an offer from a New York publishing house; then went to Florida to hang out his shingle. Clients failed to materialize. He returned to Indiana, wandered for a year between law and music, then joined Jean Goldkette's orchestra. A few months later he organized his own orchestra, in Indianapolis; then with the completed manuscripts of "Stardust" and "Lazybones" set out for Hollywood. His reception was disheartening. He returned to New York, entered a music publishing house as arranger, and after two years, resurrected the almost forgotten "Stardust."

It was an overnight sensation. The young lawyer-composer vaulted into the spotlight. He was besieged with offers. "Lazybones" followed "Stardust," Hollywood called. He has been in the film capital for three years, interrupting his work in pictures occasionally to write a song or two for musical shows, for example, "Little Old Lady," which was the hit of Beatrice Lillie's Broadway vehicle, "The Show Is On." Hoagy is of medium stature, slim, athletic, a crack tennis player. Happily married, he enjoys his Hollywood home; is a culinary expert, and confesses he'd rather cook an appetizing new dish than turn out a new song hit.

Federal Housing

How Uncle Sam Hopes To Settle "Little Business Man's Problem"

The "Little business man's" problem of procuring funds for alterations and repairs of his establishment is met by the new regulations of the National Housing Act Amendments of 1938. This was pointed out by John H. Magee, State manager for Maine of the Federal Housing Administration.

In fact, the problem of procuring funds for the repair, alteration or improvement of existing commercial and industrial establishments, as well as securing the financing from private lending institutions for the construction of certain new structures is given specific treatment in the new modernization credit plan, Mr. Magee said.

While the Federal Housing Administration does not lend any money for these or any other purpose, its insurance under the property improvement credit plan up to 10 percent of the aggregate amounts loaned by private lending institutions for such purposes provides sufficient security and incentive for such institutions to make such credit available, Mr. Magee explained.

Under the new regulations, ample provision is made to cover the financing needs of the smaller businesses of the country for repair, alteration or improvement. No limit is placed on the amount of funds which may be borrowed from private lending institutions for such purposes, Mr. Magee explained, although the maximum insurable amount of a loan on any single piece of property is $10,000.

The proceeds of such improvement, repair or alteration loans from private lending institutions which hold a contract of insurance with FHA may be used on any existing structure such as garages, service buildings, office or commercial buildings, manufacturing or industrial buildings, hospitals, hotels, clubs and similar structures.

Under another provision of the new modernization credit plan loans not in excess of $2,500 for any single piece of property for the erection of entirely new structures are insurable. Such structures as garages, wayside, stands, gasoline stations and similar buildings are included in this category.

Machinery and equipment which, under the regulations are not considered a permanent part of the structure, are not eligible for loan insurance under these Title 1 provisions of the National Housing Act, although building improvements planned to take care of such installations will be eligible. Heating systems, including stokers, oil burners, coal gas and electric furnaces, when made a permanent part of such structures are considered alterations or improvements to real property and are thus eligible.

Loans from private lending institutions for the purpose of alteration, repair or improvement as well as loans for the construction of new business structures have a period of repayment set under the regulations at 5 years and 32 days. The maximum permitted finance charge for loans of both classes is equivalent to a $5 discount per $100 original face amount of a one year note to be paid in equal monthly installments.

Under the original modernization credit plan provisions, more than $500,000,000 in modernization notes were insured by FHA on commercial and business establishments for repairs, alterations and additions. Included in this amount, though, were loans for the addition of equipment and machinery.

"Freezing Weather" Warning Issued to Nation's Motorists

WARNING motorists that first freezing weather is at hand, the American Automobile Association urges all owners to take immediate steps to improve, if possible, last year's good record of car protection.

"Last year, car owners poured some 40,000,000 gallons of anti-freeze solution into their radiators," the A.A.A. bulletin says. "Experience with the ravages that have caused motorists generally to act at the first hint of freezing weather."

Cars should have their cooling system cleaned and tightened, and all hose connections carefully inspected before any protective solution is put in, the engineers point out. Without this precaution, there is grave danger of loss of anti-freeze, and many kinds of damage to engine parts beside that of freezing.

Damage by overheating through loss of anti-freeze solution, is one of the commonest winter motor ills in these days of high compression, high temperature engines. The only sure protection against both extreme cold and extreme heat is anti-freeze of the permanent, non-boiling type. This gives the modern engine the safe high temperature range needed for efficient operation, and at the same time prevents loss of protection through boiling-away of the anti-freeze solution.

Before having the cooling system thoroughly cleaned and tightened, the A.A.A. recommends a change to a lighter oil, adjustment of carburetor to provide a richer mixture, adjustments of the ignition system, particularly the breaker points, and checking of the battery, brakes and tires.

Contrary to popular belief, September brings first freeze-up weather to nearly half the states of the Union. October practically completes the first cold-spell visitation for all parts of the country. Only six states normally experience their first freeze as late as November,
