After Thirty Years

Melvin Pendexter Gives Out the Maine Central Pension List

Melvin Pendexter, an employee of the Maine Central Railroad has been granted a pension and went on the retired list Monday.

His services for the corporation, covering a period of 30 years, had their beginning in Waterville where he was employed in the carpenter's department of the car shops. Moving to Rockland he was assigned to duty in the coal shed in 1910.

While working there he shoveled nearly a carload of coal daily into the locomotives, besides taking care of 12 switchlights and sealing what cars the Lime Rock turned over. He has worked with car cleaning crews, and finally was transferred in 1916 to the round-house where he remained on duty to the time of his retirement.

His faithful services have richly earned him a future of rest and comfort.

Skippers and Ganders Eat At Same Table and Have a Merry Evening

Many readers of The Courier-Gazette, who would frankly admit that they do not know the difference between a candlepin and a candleabra, have been following with interest the graphic tales of the bowl-

Several of the valuable artists jockeyed for the position as toastmaster, but it was Gene who landed the coveted honor, and among his other achievements of the evening he did his famous telephone stunt ing matches at the Cascade Alleys in Vinalhaven as told by that master of the art, Postmaster O. V. Drew. A hectic season found the Skippers and the Ganders in a 26-game tie, the breaking of which was entrusted to a three-game series. Whether the Skippers were bowling over their heads in that series, or whether the several "feeds" were infused with some sort of chicanery will never be known, but the mariners walked away with three straight and sat in the amen corner when the big banquet took place at "The Shoe" Monday night.

"The Shoe," be it known is the summer estate of Leslie B. Dyer, located at Old Harbor. The origin of the name is said to be traceable to Dyer's numerous progeny, although the "Old Woman" may have something to say about that.

The feast was built about steamed clams and lobster stew, prepared with uncanny skill by Ed MacDonald. The menu cards, imported from the mainland, proved one of the hits of the evening, and called for double orders, as did the tempting viands.

The season's official statistics were made public at this time and from the records it will be seen that Vinalhaven's time-honored custom of bestowing nick-names is still in vogue.

WAS AN INEXPENSIVE TERM

Superior Court Lasted Only Four Days and Jury Had Lovely Time

The May term of Knox County Superior Court, which finally adjourned yesterday forenoon, was almost a record breaker in Knox County for various reasons. The traverse jury was impaneled and discharged the same day. No criminal cases were tried. The term lasted only four days and the total costs amounted to only $516.34; $190.76 of which was paid to jurors. Criminal costs totalled $51.68, and miscellaneous bills made up the balance.

The traverse jury was impaneled Thursday morning as follows: Alton E. Libby of Vinalhaven, foreman; Mrs. Beulah Ames, Rockland; Mrs. Nina Burgess, South Thomaston; Charles Dunbar, Hope; Robert Esancy, Appleton; Mrs. Edna M. Heath, Owl's Head; Henry Keller, Rockport; Mrs. Helen Leighton, Camden; A. Roger Norwood, Union; Fred G. Olson, Cushing; Mrs. Ida Simmons, Rockland; Mrs. Agnes Ware, Camden. Supernumerary, Mrs. Murdock Cramer, Washington.

Judson E. Benner of Warren, John A. Blackman of Rockland, Stanley R. Cushing of Thomaston, Mrs. Ethel Day of Friendship, John Lermond of North Haven, and Mrs. Esther H. Robinson of Isle au Haut were excused from jury duty.

Sentence of the court below was affirmed in the case of the State vs. Chester Reed of Rockland, for intoxication. Reed was committed to the county jail for a sentence of 60 days. A second case against Reed for the same offense was filed.

Dorothy Sullivan of Rockland, on a charge of being an idle and disorderly person, was sentenced to the Women's Reformatory. Sentence was suspended and the respondent was placed on probation for one year. Frank A. Tirrell, Jr. appeared for the respondent.

A suit in which the Town of Owl's Head was plaintiff and Town of Knox, defendant, and which has been a matter of public interest at Owl's Head for the past two years, was settled on the first day of the session. It involved the question of the pauper settlement of a family which the former town had been supporting and which it was contended should have been borne by the Waldo County community. Charles T. Smalley of Rockland for plaintiff; Fellows & Fellows of Bangor for Knox.

Carroll Maguire alias Harold Maguire of Washington pleaded guilty to a charge of cheating by false pretenses and was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail.

The probate appeal of Clarence E. Mason of Beverly, Mass., in the estate of Letta M. Dean, late of Beverly, was dismissed without costs.

Alan L. Bird appeared for the appellant, and Gilbert Harmon appeared for the appellees.

Eliza Swan vs. Arthur Rokes. This case, in order for trial Friday morning, was adjourned before hearing. Miss Swan, well known in this city as a long time employee of Fuller-Cobb-Davis, was injured in a motor accident which occurred at the corner of Grace and Broad streets last October, when a taxi owned by the defendant and driven by Milton E. well was in collision with a car operated by Leon White. The Rokes car was proceeding westerly on Grace street and the White machine was going south on Broad. Miss Swan, a passenger in the taxi, was thrown from her seat and sustained a fracture of the left arm and minor injuries. Treated in a Massachusetts hospital she has made satisfactory recovery. Charles T. Smalley for plaintiff; John J. Conner, Jr., of Portland and Fred A. Lancaster of Lewiston for defendant.

An entry of "Neither party, no future action for the same cause," was made in the automobile negligence case of Roland Dyer of Washington against Harry Joy of Camden. Frank A. Tirrell, Jr. appeared for the plaintiff and George F. Peabody of Bangor appeared for the defendant.

Dorothy Dyer of Washington, a minor who sued by her father, Roland Dyer, obtained judgment in the sum of $275 against Harry Joy of Camden. This case involved an automobile accident which occurred on a public highway in West Rockport, known as Route 17, on March 10, 1930. Frank A. Tirrell, Jr. represented the plaintiff and George F. Peabody of Bangor appeared for the defendant.

The first and only jury trial of the session was opened Thursday morning. Arno Bartlett of Washington sought damages for personal injuries from Harrison MacAlman of Rockland as the result of a motor collision on Route 17 in the Town of Somerville last January. Mr. Bartlett testified that as he was emerging from Clifford Road, so called, and after stopping at the warning sign which marks the intersection, he was struck by the defendant's car which was proceeding westerly toward Augusta. The Bartlett machine was forced from the highway and Mr. Bartlett sustained a severe laceration of the scalp and injuries to his neck and shoulder and has since been partially incapacitated. He was followed by Dr. C. H. Jameson who described the plaintiff's injuries in detail. The physician was on the stand when recess was called and before the trial was resumed a settlement was effected out of court.

Charles T. Smalley for plaintiff; William B. Mahoney and John B. Thomas of Portland and Frank A. Tirrell of Rockland for defendant.

Eleven divorces were granted. The list follows:

Virgil W. W. Gardner from Mayton N. Gardner of Camden for cruel and abusive treatment. Perry for libellant.

James Widdicombe of Rockland from Ruth E. Widdicombe of Ash Point for desertion. Wilbur for libellant.

Randolph C. Henderson of Thomaston from Pauline S. Henderson of Miami, Fla., for cruel and abusive treatment. Harding for libellant.

Emma H. Burns from David H. Burns both of Rockport for cruel and abusive treatment. Smalley for libellant.

James E. Sprague from Nettie E. Sprague both of Rockland for desertion. Wilbur for libellant.

Alice E. Anania of St. George from Frank R. Anania residence unknown.

[EDITORIAL]

THIRD TERM DISCOURAGED

Everybody who is interested in the approaching Presidential election—and that includes almost everybody—is following with unabated interest the surveys made by the American Institute of public opinion, and it must be admitted that the methods used in gauging public sentiment are both systematic and ingenious.

The current poll shows that only 23 percent of the voters favor a third term for President Roosevelt, as compared with 31 percent two months ago. In addition to the 23 percent who favor the third term idea, there was found to be an additional 10 percent who would be inclined to vote for him if he ran.

With this as the basis of his figuring Dr. George Gallup, director of the Institute, put to a test President Roosevelt's comparative strength with one of the Republicans who has been most prominently mentioned, Thomas E. Dewey, the racket-busting New York attorney, whose fame has become nationwide. The poll in this instance showed 55 percent favoring Dewey, the Republican; and 45 percent favoring Roosevelt, with 12 percent not expressing an opinion. The Institute went a step further by seeking to learn how the voters of 1936 feel today, and the result was highly interesting. It was found that 33 percent of those who voted for Roosevelt in 1936 would now favor Dewey, while only 4 percent of those who voted for Landon would vote for Roosevelt.

The Institute fairly points out that the Presidential election is still far away, and that the present findings are by no means conclusive, but after six years later, during which the Republican party was reported dead, they are very reassuring, and remind one of what Mark Twain said about the report of his death.

GAS MASKS IN PEACE TIME

Nobody ever expected to see gas masks being used in the United States during peace times, but that's what's being done in connection with strikes in some of the big cities. And what a pity it is that the country should be torn with labor dissensions while a political national enemy may have its eyes fixed upon our fair land. And what a pity it is, anyhow, that there must be constant bickering between Capital and Labor, when the two must go hand in hand if we are to have Employment instead of Bread Lines.

WATCHFUL DEMOCRATS

The interest which has been engendered in the approaching Republican contests for Governor and United States Senator have caused most voters to lose sight of the fact that the Democrats may be looking with covetous eyes on those prize political plums. Fulton J. Redman, who is expounding Democratic policies through the columns of the Portland newspapers, evidently has his eyes fixed upon the Senatorial nomination, while Paul C. Thurston of Bethel, who was recently replaced on the State Highway Commission, may undertake to capitalize on what the Democrats doubtless regard as friction in the Republican camp.

With four gubernatorial candidates on the Republican side of the fence, and a fair chance that new entries may be forthcoming, it of course follows that there will be disappointment on the part of those who support a losing cause, but there always have been losers in political contests, and the poor grace which is rarely shown by them is seldom shared by their followers.

Meet Your Mailman

"Jake"

The man who delivers mail on Route No. 3, Rankin to Cedar and East of Broadway is Earl J. Alden, but the average patron and the average citizen knows him much better by the name of "Jake."

He is a native of Camden, born June 26, 1885, but obtained his schooling in Rockland grades and graduated from Rockland High School in 1914. Prior to joining the letter carrier force Jan. 11, 1930, he had served in the shipping department of the East Coast Fish-eries Company, with the American Railway Express and as custodian at the Federal Building.

During the World War he enlisted in the Maine Naval Militia, serving in the Navy from April 6, 1917 to Aug. 29, 1919, as G. M. 1st class. He was aboard the battleships Oklahoma and Mississippi, and went overseas on the transport Cape May.

When you ask what Jake's hobby is you get a very prompt response: Legion activities. He is the present department executive commit-tee man from Knox County, and when Winslow-Holbrook Pool has any important undertaking in hand it will be easy to find this "buddy" because he has a faculty of being in seven places at once.

The lower end of Cedar street is being made ready for its gravel and tar service. The upper section of the highway was prepared last fall.

Ten Young Men

Are Wanted From Knox County For the Citizens' Military Training Camps

Knox County has been asked to furnish 10 young men between the ages of 17 and 22 as candidates for the Citizens' Military Training Camps for 1939. Two boys thus far have been enrolled according to reports from the Army Base at Boston.

The camp for basic students from Maine will be held at Fort McKinley, Portland harbor, from July 7 to Aug. 5. The purpose of the camps, which were established in 1921, is to bring together representative young men on a basis of equality and under the most favorable conditions of outdoor life. At these camps it is sought to improve the manhood of the nation by teaching young men the duties of American citizenship and stimulating the importance of national patriotism.

Enrollment at a camp carries with it no future military obligation of any sort. To those who complete the courses, over a period of four years, there is offered an opportunity to qualify as an officer in the reserve corps of the army.

All expenses are borne by the government, including transportation to and from camp and all expenses while at camp.

These camps have the endorsement of the press and leaders in education, religion, industry and athletics. Several leading universities have offered scholarships for award to outstanding enrollees.

Lieut. Harold F. Brown of Camden, Dial 2378, has application forms and information folders.

"The Black Cat"

By The Roving Reporter

I have been shown a letter which was written by I. O. Calderwood, now of Vinalhaven, back in 1915 when he was in the employ of a large dredging concern, and it goes to show that they had Black Cats in those days, and not always popular ones. The letter tells about the series of misfortunes which befell the dredge A. K. Lawrie after a black cat had been taken aboard. "I was amused," wrote Mr. Calderwood, "when they laid the matter to the black cat. One of the men informed me that about 10 days ago, they took the cat out onto the tug Monitor, and when it had been there only an hour or two the craft hit something on the bottom and broke its propeller. He immediately 'fired' the cat ashore—and 'fired' is the right word to use, because he threw her as far as he could. The next place the cat showed up at was in the office and we found a strike on our hands. The cat showed up again down around the docks and when it was put on the bridge the boom came down, so that in the minds of a great many of our employees, there is no question but that the black cat is responsible for our troubles."

Do you remember "Foggy Ferry," a drama presented by the Morrison Comedy Co. in Farwell Opera House many years ago featuring Eugene Powers and Allie Gerald? The Farwell Opera House staff at that time was made up thus: Stage manager, George Wentworth; assistant stage manager, Ellis Burroughs; musical director, D. W. Clark; chief usher, Sumner Austin.

And speaking of Farwell Opera House, which will ever occupy a warm corner in the memory of Rockland's older citizens, there was another drama which found popular favor there. It was called "Bag Harbor," and the star was James A. Herne. What a flood of memories these things recall!

Epicurean curiosity, which never killed a human being whatever its mortality among felines, is satisfied at the scores of restaurants and cafes of the New York World's Fair 1939. From the three-letter dish, pea, of the Pacific, the honey dripping dainties of the Near East, the lowly frijoles of Mexico and the hors d'oeuvres of the French chef, to plain American food, there will be delicacies for every palate and prices for every pocketbook. Sophisticated gourmets will rub elbows with countless individuals enjoying a hot roast sandwich and a glass of beer, and the sandwich will taste just as good, with a little mustard on it, as the poultarde supreme, canard Nanais a l'orange, soufflé aux framboises and other French succulencies.

A clam weighing 1½ pounds and another 13 ounces were dug this week at Owl's Head by Charlie Curtis. The largest measures six inches in length and 4½ in width.

Conveyed by Ed Gonia, The Courier-Gazette had an interesting visitor the other day in the person of George Armitage, a Boston commercial traveler, who has an especial fondness for cats, black or white; in fact for animal pets of all kinds. Tommy, "the Brook" cat to which he used to send Christmas cards, was missing when he called at Gonia's store this time, the feline having obtained a most comfortable home at a North Main street residence, with the best food obtainable and given complete mastery of the best chair in the house.

At The High School

(By The Pupils)

The Grammar School League is under way for 1939. Wednesday night, Rockland Junior High defeated Thomaston Junior High 1 to 0 in as fine a game as you would want to see. Both teams not only played fast, tight baseball, but showed that they knew what to do in the pinches. Fielding was sharp and clean on both sides, and the pitching excellent. The boys showed plenty of promise, with Rockland, Jr. High striving to make their baseball season as good as the baseball record. V. Murgita pitched three-hit ball, showing control, with plenty on the ball. L. Barnard was outstanding at shortstop, handling all chances cleanly. G. Bodman, catching, was always wide awake, playing fine ball. Coach Rossignol has reason to be pleased and hopeful for a great season. Robinson pitched a fine game for the losers, with a good snappy infield supporting.

Can we arouse a little interest in our team? We did in basketball, why not in baseball? We have a good team, we are going places, so let's get behind the boys. Let's go, Junior High!

Following is the order of the Physical Education program to be held Wednesday night at the Community Building.

The inter-class track meet will be held Saturday morning. The track team will go to the U. of M. Tuesday to run against the Maine freshmen with Bangor, Brewer and Oldtown, combined scores.

Bates Freshmen, Lewiston High School, Rockland and Gardiner. Bates freshmen scored 48. Lewiston 46, Rockland 16, and Gardiner 8. On the Bates trip, the boys were accompanied by the Coach and Mr. Topping, who renewed old acquaintances at Bates. Because of a conflicting date, Rockland will be unable to take part in a meet with Lincoln against Colby freshmen at Waterville next Monday.

The last of the series of special assemblies for this year was held in the auditorium Thursday. Mr. Gort gave a very interesting and entertaining talk on bird songs. He also imitated the songs and calls of different birds. This is the second time that Mr. Gort has been at Rockland High School.

Mr. Blaisdell attended the Principal's Conference yesterday in Augusta.

LINCOLNVILLE STUDENT

Ernest W. Connors, 19, of Lincolnville, University of Maine sophomore who disappeared from the campus April 18, has been located in El Paso, Texas. The boy's parents have received a post card from him stating that he is returning home and that he was very happy he had caused any distress. This was the first information university authorities had received about the student, since he was traced to Boston and the trail lost there.

Thomaston 15, Camden 1

If Colby Wood's Thomaston lads continue to hit the ball the way they did yesterday, "Dool" Dailey's prophecy that they will win the pennant this year, may not find too far out on the "limb" after all.

Thomaston played rings around the Megunticook entry yesterday and found itself well able to relax after scoring 11 times in the first two innings. The Sawyers proved a snappy battery, the gangling kids who used to chase fouts in the Twilight League having over night developed rugged, hard working ball players who are a credit to the dad who was playing good ball not so very many moons ago. They were given excellent support.

Ames and McFarland were both hit hard and often, with indifferent backing at times.

At Vinalhaven yesterday Vinalhaven defeated Rockland 4 to 1. St. George defeated Lincoln Academy 12 to 4. The full scores of both games will appear in Tuesday's issue.

Thomaston 8, St. George 1

The game which was to have been played in St. George Tuesday afternoon was transferred to Thomaston because the grounds were not in suitable condition.

The contest proceeded on even terms until the fifth inning when the home team began to lay up a few runs for a rainy day. In the end Thomaston had made the circuit of bases eight times to St. George's one, and the rainy day never came.

H. Sawyer was a bit wild in the box, but fanned nine men, and held the stickers from the seaside to five hits.

Bath Times: This lad Billings

who holds down shortstop for the Rockland High School ball club is one of the best looking schoolboy players to grace Kelley field in some years. The fielding of the Lime City star was flawless and while he went hitless at the plate, it was a case of just one of those days, the boy showing plenty of class with the willow. On his first trip up he caught an offering on the nose and rode it high, wide and handsome, a foot foul, into left field. The pellet curved out as it passed the pole, marking foul territory on the banking in deep left. It was near the top of the pole when it passed which gives you an idea of the toe hold the boy takes up there at the plate. Keep an eye on him.

Carroll, Miss Hazel Lane, Mrs. Lina Joyce, Mrs. Frederick Quimby, Frederick Quimby, Jr., Guy Young and Ray Easton.

An opportunity is afforded all members of the Garden Club to add to collection of seeds and seedlings for spring planting by attending the meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Heistad, when the annual seed and plant exchange will take place. This event was featured for the first time last spring and proved so highly successful that it was decided to make it an annual event and even greater interest is being manifested this year. Another strong drawing card will be the opportunity of inspecting the indoor rockery which Mr. Heistad has just completed. Owing to the full program, there will be no speaker. Members of the Farm Bureau will be special guests.

Miss Marion Weldman, with Miss Maud Pratt and Harry Pratt of Rockland spent Friday in Portland, guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Talbot.

Clarence Fish, who is a medical patient at Community Hospital, is reported as improving. During his illness, Maurice Miller is substituting as leader of the band.

The community was saddened to learn of the death of another of its highly esteemed summer residents, Charles Mickle, Sr. which occurred April 21 at his winter home in Pennsylvania from pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Mickle and son Charles for several years had spent summers at the Mann bungalow on Russell avenue and had made many friends here. Deceased was employed as mechanic to Josef Hofmann.

Married 62 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry Given Reception In Rockport Home of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sylvester of Rockport entertained a group of relatives and friends Thursday night to honor the 62nd wedding anniversary of Mrs. Sylvester's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Berry, Capt. and Mrs. Ralph Berry, Robert Berry and Ernest Berry of Camden, Mrs. Ethel York, Mrs. Mildred Colby, Miss Doris Sylvester and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry. The time was spent socially and refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry were married in Rockport by Rev. T. M. Davies of the Congregational Church and have ever since made their home on Spear street in that town. Mrs. Berry was also born on this street in the house now occupied by her son, Arthur Berry. Though 78 years old, she is in reasonably good health except for her eyesight which failed a few years ago. She is able to be about the house, however, and Mr. Berry whose age is 80, is unusually alert and active.

Their three children were all present at the anniversary party, and also three of their four grandchildren—Herbert Berry being unable to attend as he is at present in New Bedford, Mass., on Capt. Bain's dragger. Mr. and Mrs. Berry also have four great grandchildren and one great-great grandson—five generations of hale and hearty Maine stock.

THE TWO FLYING BILLS

One Is Down In Bolivia But Coming Back To Do His "Sky Santa" Turn

(Written by Hamilton Thornquist, aviation editor and city editor of the Boston Transcript. Cut loaned by the Transcript).

It may be 130 degrees under the banana trees down in the Bolivian mining camp where Captain William H. Wincepaw has been ferrying machinery for the last eight months, but come hell or high temperatures, Cap'n Bill will be back here next winter to make those Christmas Day flights to New England's far-flung lighthouses.

That's on the word of the Captain's son, William H. Wincepaw, Jr., who just returned from four range. You use oxygen on the way out, and the Fords have been equipped with Wasp 450-horsepower, supercharged engines and controllable pitch propellers. That's so you can get over one peak which is particularly threatening. It sweeps up to 22,500 feet. The top is always covered with snow, so when the clouds are heavy you can't see it. Just hit the plane's ceiling—about 23,500 feet—and hope months of flying with his father as pilot and co-pilot over one of the worst stretches of territory in the world. Young Bill, who is 21, was bowled over by one of the finest cases of jaundice ever seen in South America since Pizarro stole his first bar of gold in Peru. He turned a beautiful yellow, felt rotten, and couldn't eat. Last 20 pounds.

Young Bill began acting as co-

"Dad will be back for that Christmas trip. I'll lay my life on that," said young Bill. "He misses that, and is pretty upset about it."

Young Bill liked his experience in Bolivia, but the flying doesn't sound like any picnic. You take off from La Paz, at 15,000 feet above sea level, wind over the mountains and the jungle, then drop to the mining camp, which is at about 2000 feet.

It's fine on the way in, when your tri-motored Ford is heavily loaded. You wind up to 23,000 feet, then coast in, and all you have to worry about if an engine cuts out is that below you in the heavy jungle are cheerful natives; headhunters who would draw, quarter and skin you at the drop of a gold brick. That's one worry. Then, the trip in takes 45 minutes—but it takes five days to cover the ground by mules. Nobody's ever measured the ground distance. And sometimes the temperature hits 40 below zero as you soar over the higher peaks, yet when you land at the camp you find the mercury melting at 100 degrees.

The return flight to La Paz is no picnic. That takes an hour and 30 minutes, because the camp is at 2000 feet, and you have to climb right up to 23,000 feet to get over the nearby

The son says the Captain likes his work. Mostly, he flies in food and machinery for the Aramayo Mining Company, but soon they are planning to bring in three dredges by air, and re-assemble them on the ground for placer operations. Captain Wincepaw was taking in drills when the son started home.

Young Bill said it was pretty quiet while he was there. They hadn't had an Indian raid on the camp for almost three years. At the last party the Indians took machettes in hand and killed three white men. It isn't safe now to walk along by the river alone, or with only one person along, because if you have any gold the Indians see that you're liquidated, as the civilized people call it.

Young Wincepaw is staying at his old home in Winthrop now, and is planning to get his commercial license after more study at Inter-City Airlines. He has 200 pilot hours to his credit, but his total time as co-pilot, etc., runs up to about 1800 hours.

When he gets his commercial, he's going to take a job offered by Pan American. It's in Alaska, where they use Stinsons on pontoons for snail jobs, and Lockheed for the bigger work.

"It's a lot like most of the rest of my flying—down in Maine," said Young Bill. "And the country is not so very different."

He'd like to toss out the presents again when his father makes that Christmas Day flight next winter, though. He's sure the Captain will be back. The work is fun, but there are some uncivilized tribes around the jungle that don't wear any clothes at all. New Englanders don't trust people like that.

PENOBSCOT VIEW GRANGE

What was certainly the most interesting meeting that has taken place in this Grange was carried out at Thursday night's session, beginning with a bountiful supper, in the preparing of which the sisters outdid themselves, those hot biscuits were certainly an innovation rarely experienced at a Grange supper.

Visitors included two from Georges Valley Grange, Appleton, three from White Oak Grange, North Warren; one from Good Will Grange, South Warren, five from Owl's Head Grange, one from Megunticook Grange, Camden, ten from Pleasant Valley Grange, Rockland, three from Wessaweskeag Grange, South Thomaston, one from Progressive Grange, Waldoboro, and one from Meenais Grange, Waldoboro.

The final degrees were conferred on two candidates and the usual business was carried out. A very interesting program consisting of remarks by the visitors, piano music by Brother Scholler of Georges Valley Grange, songs by Brother Raymond Anderson of Pleasant Valley Grange; two solos by Constance McPhail of Owl's Head Grange. An original story by Elizabeth Sukeforth describing an imaginary shopping tour was an interesting feature and a humorous recitation by the lecturer of Penobscot View concluded the entertainment. It is hoped that more meetings of equal interest can be had in the near future.

Mozart was born almost a quarter century after Haydn, yet he attained eminence and died before the latter reached his pinnacle in the musical world.

So during his leisure hours he just sits on the porch casts a line over the railing and starts pulling in the salmon and trout to the legal limit.

To Promote Hewett

Will Be Placed In Charge Of All N. Y. A. Activities In Maine

A despatch from the Press Herald's Washington Bureau says: "Although no information is available, at the National Youth Administration here, it is understood that Charles Hewett, National Youth Administration director for Maine soon will be placed in charge of all NYA activity in the State, including the Work Experience School at Quoddy. Leon Crowell, now in charge of the Quoddy School will be transferred, and a new administrator, probably a Maine man, will be placed in charge of the school. The new administrator will be under Hewett and have a council of NYA directors in other New England states who send students to the school. There is talk of expansion of Quoddy later this year.

"Hewett was in Washington this week, incognito so far as the press was concerned, but he conferred with Representative Brewster of Maine, in whose district Quoddy lies, as well as with NYA officials."

Next Tuesday, after more than a quarter of a century of intensive work, Hadassah, together with the American Jewish Physicians' Committee, will dedicate a million-dollar medical center in the Holy Land. The new hospital will provide the first opportunity in Palestine for using clinical material for teaching purposes; it will become a center of research in endemic diseases long known to be the inevitable results of bad sanitation and backward social organization. It will gather together clinicians and research workers of university rank including outstanding German and Italian scientists. It will prove that the Jew in Palestine not only labors on the economic field in his national home but that he is also prepared to answer bigotry and scientific medievalism with the best answers known to man—with the applications of the findings of the laboratory, of non-sectarian good will, of steady, unswerving adherence to the ideals of pure research.

SERMONETTE

A Gracious Organist
To adventure anywhere with Hon. George C. Wing Jr., is always a pleasure and sometimes an education. Seated in his office recently, I expressed a desire to have him go with me to see the interior of the marvelous church of the Dominicans, in Lewiston, and to the enterprise we lent ourselves.

I had often wondered if it could equal the beauty of the exterior. It could and it did. The interior of the Immanuel Baptist Church in Portland is a true basilica with wooden sides and made of seasoned oak. The basilica of S. S. Peter and Paul is beautiful and restful. It is of the stone like finish of great modern churches. From narthex to apse it breathes an atmosphere of prayer and worship. Its simplicity makes it sublime.

Within its walls one feels constrained to pray, and scattered through this church men and women were kneeling in prayer before the altar—an altar so simple that its beauty breaks over and permeates your soul, appealing to your devotion. A few were making the rounds of the 14 stations of the cross, each station a loving memorial.

I asked one of the Dominican fathers the distance from the floor to the top of the Nave. He could not speak English and summoned another to answer. It proved to be their organist George G. Gibouli. He courteously invited us to go with him to the choir loft, where he explained the marvels of the great organ. For three quarters of an hour he played for us, at times so loud the great edifice shook with the vibrations and again so softly, with vox humans, that a little child could sing. He played some of the supreme music of the church, first on the great organ directly back of us and then on the organ over the altar, and then both of them in unison.

Music alone is truly Catholic. It knows nothing of creeds, only of God. This Church of S. S. Peter and Paul speaks of God, and its gracious organist interpreted Him to us.

The Tuesday night prayer service will be addressed by Adj. Beaver of the Salvation Army.

"The Prayer of the Prophet" will be the sermon topic by Rev. Charles A. Marshall at the Littlefield Memorial Church Sunday morning at 10:30. There will be a solo by Walter Griffin. The Church School meets at 11:45 and the Christian Endeavor at 6; praise service and sermon at 7:15, the topic being "The Place of Protection." The communion will be observed at the close of the service. Prayer meeting Tuesday night at 7:30.

"Adam and fallen man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon that will be read in all churches of Christ Scientist, on May 7. The Golden Text is: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Corinthians 15:22). Among the citations from the Bible are the following passages: "For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be; yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." (Psalms 37:10-11).

Ridge Church Burns

The Martinsville Baptist Church was burned to the ground early last night, the blaze having had its origin in all probability from a smoldering grass fire. Word from Selectman Smalley reached Rockland Central Fire Station at 9:15 and a few minutes later the Mack pumper was on the scene with Engine-men Gray, Day and Huntley as well as Chief Russell. The church was a roaring furnace but nearby buildings were saved.

This beautiful little edifice was popularly known as the "Ridge Church." A former Rockland boy, Rev. J. Wesley Stuart, was pastor.

Strand Theatre features next week are: Sunday, Monday and Tuesday Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck in "Union Pacific;" Wednesday and Thursday, George Raft and Ellen Drew, in "Lady's From Kentucky;" Friday and Saturday, "Stage Coach," with Claire Trevor and Andy Devine.

THE GLORY OF THE SEAS

As Embodied In Rockland-Built Red Jacket and Other Clipper Ships

Mr. Cutler's review of the Flying Scud's performance appears at pages 300-1 of "Greyhounds of the Sea".

"The Flying Scud was 'calculated' for speed. She was built by Metcalf & Norris of Damariscotta, which as we have noticed, appears to have been the first firm to lay down clippers in Maine. She was a large ship, registering 1713 tons and very sharp. The story is still told around Damariscotta that when she sailed from that port on her maiden voyage, her officers decided that her chronometers were out of order—being of the opinion that no ship could have run down the river and gotten to sea in the time they indicated."

"R. W. Cameron, her agent, advertised her as the 18th ship for Melbourne in his Australia Pioneer Line and, with an optimism not entirely foreign to the times, promised a 'sixty days passage' to prospective travellers. It is to be regretted that Mr. Cameron's judgment did not march with his imagination, for he sent the Scud on her way with her scuppers almost awash, a heavy deck load and trimmed two feet by the head. She was, therefore, extremely crank and in view of all the circumstances it is remarkable that she made the passage at all."

"She sailed from New York September 29 and arrived at Port Phillip Head December 14, in a passage of 76 days. In addition to the handicap of being out of trim two feet by the head and overloaded, she was delayed several days by having her compass deranged by lightning."

"Her log for the 6th of November contained the notation that on that day in lat. approximately 27 41 S. she ran 449 nautical miles. She further made 4620 miles in 16 days when running her easting down, a daily rate of nearly 289 miles. Further evidence that she was very fast is that in December, 1855, she went from New York to Marseilles in the record time of 19 days 20 hours deep loaded with grain and drawing 22 feet. She also has to her credit a very fine run to the East Indies, which will be noticed later."

"It is to be regretted that the log of the Flying Scud is not available to throw additional light on the claim of 449 miles in a single day. If it can be reasonably authenticated it would stand as the best day's run ever made by a clipper. In the absence of the log or other corroborative evidence there is always the possibility of error on the part of Captain Bearse in figuring his distance. On the one hand, however, it must be assumed that it would be difficult to make an honest error which would seriously affect the above result, and on the other an investigation of Captain Bearse's reputation in the neighborhood in which he lived and died indicates it was highly improbable that he would make a dishonest report of any sort."

"At the time of this passage he was already well along in middle life. He fettered a few years later to the little white cottage in Hyannis, where he was born. When somewhat more than 70 years of age he married his housekeeper, an event which she celebrated by taking him to a church supper. The double ordeal was too much for the stout old captain and he 'only lived a few days.'"

The generally accepted record for the fastest passage ever made in 24 hours by a sailing vessel is that credited to the McKay-built clipper Lightning which was credited with 436 nautical miles in 24 hours on a passage to Liverpool March 1, 1854. This is a record which has gained wide currency but as to which, as far as I can discover, no contemporary original record is now available. The fastest day's run has been credited to the Lightning, the Donald McKay, James Baines, Great Republic and Sovereign of the Seas for 436, 421, 420, 413 and 411 nautical miles, respectively. (Lloyds' Calendar 1931, page 307). Of all these claims the one performance which can be definitely established today by presently available contemporary record seems to be that of the Sovereign of the Seas. Her log book is available at the Weather Bureau in Washington. On March 18, 1853 her passage, which we checked most carefully, was some 4107 nautical miles (equivalent to 4729 statute miles) in 23 hours and 18 minutes. (See pages 251-2 of "Greyhounds of the Sea" by Cutler). While the matter of these sailing ship records is referred to, it may be well to quote the brief summary appearing at pages 85-7 of "The Heritage of Tyne" by W. B. Maloney:

"Foremost among the lines striving for supremacy in the Australian trade were the White Star, the same that is playing the Atlantic today, and James Baines' Black Ball Line."

"To meet the advantage gained by the Black Ball's possession of the Sovereign of the Seas, the White Star chartered the American clippers, Chariot of Fame, Blue Jacket and Red Jacket, the last, one of the few great Maine-built greyhounds. The Chariot of Fame, a McKay ship went out to Melbourne from Liverpool in 66 days; the Blue Jacket, out in 67 and home in 89.

"During the next two years the Donald McKay yards contributed to the Australian Black Ball fleet such wonder ships as the Champion of the Seas, James Baines and Donald McKay, and the Japan and Commodore Perry. All were record breakers; the Lightning and James Baines ran in twelve days and six hours from Boston Light to Rock Light, Liverpool; the Donald McKay from Boston to Cape Clear, Ireland, in twelve days, making a record 24 hour run of 421 miles.

"On her first voyage from Liverpool to Melbourne the Lightning did no better than the Sovereign of the Seas—77 days; but on her return passage she hung up the record of 63 days, making a run of 3722 miles in 10 consecutive days and doing 412 miles for her best day's work. On this voyage she carried $5,000,000 in gold and dust."

"The James Baines, sailing on December 9, 1854, on the same passage, logged 426 miles during a 63 day run. She came home in 65 days, thus sailing round the globe in 132 days."

"The Baines was a marvelous ship, as let her log of an Australian passage in 1856 bear witness:

"June 16th: At noon sighted a ship in the distance ahead; at 1 p. m. alongside of her; at 2 p. m. out of sight astern. The James Baines was going 17 knots with main sky sail set; the Libertas, for such was her name, was under double reefed topsails."

"June 17th: Lat. 44. S. Long. 106. E. ship going 21 knots with main sky sail set."

"This is the highest authentic sailing ship record."

"During the Sepoy mutiny the Baines, Lightning and Champion of the Seas were chartered as troopships by the British government. The Baines and Champion ran out to Hong Kong in 101 days; the Lightning in 87 days, beating the entire transport fleet, including a large number of auxiliary steam vessels."

"If the utility of the surgeon of the Flying Scud (printed in Maury's 'Sailing Directions') is authentic, then the Damariscotta, Maine, built Flying Scud holds the record for the world's fastest one-day passage of a sailing ship, having exceeded the performance of the Lightning by 13 nautical miles in a 24 hour passage."

Red Jacket Builder

J. H. Ambery Answers "Carl's" Request About Thomas Descendants

Boston, May 4

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—As a constant reader of your publication, and particularly of the Black Cat column, I noticed a day or two ago an item concerning the Red Jacket, and information requested by Edward C. Moran, Jr., United States Maritime Commissioner.

George Thomas, builder of the clipper ship Red Jacket, whose father's name was Joshua, was a brother of William Thomas, both of North Haven. The latter was my great grandfather. My grandfather, Capt. Joseph Otis Ambery, born at North Haven, married Mary Anne Thomas, daughter of the said William Thomas, making George Thomas my great-great-uncle.

I now have a title to a large portion of Ambury Point, North Haven, (an unpretentious summer home) quite near to, and probably formerly a part of the place where George Thomas was born. I also possess and treasure an N. Currier of the Red Jacket in the ice off Cape Horn while on her voyage to Liverpool August 1854, a beautiful picture which has been in our family for a number of years. My two sisters and a brother are among other direct descendants.

I trust that this is the information which the Commissioner desires.

Curator Lermond Reports Robins More Plentiful—His Hungry Pets

May Day

More robins this spring here in the Arboretum than ever before. My pets—a large gray, fat red, and a cunning little striped—come to the bungalow regularly morning, noon and night looking for their bread, crackers and cookies. A pair of woodcock have been feeding on "bugs" and earthworms, under the oak tree near the swing, for two weeks. Pheasants are scarce, ruffed grouse plentiful; rabbits are unusually scarce. Plenty of woodchucks!

Early in April, we received 15 Chestnut trees from the U. S. department of Agriculture, imported from Northern China.

Saturday, April 29, 13 members of the Pine Cone Girl Scouts of Thomaston, enjoyed a picnic here in the Arboretum. The painted tree-snails of Oriente, Cuba and the big rattle-snake attracted most attention of all the museum collections.

April A Bad Month
Saw More Motor Fatalities Than For a Number of Years

The month of April left Maine with one of its greatest increases in motor vehicle fatalities that it has witnessed in an exceptionally long period. This month's fatalities increased 175 percent and gave Maine an 18.75 percent increase for the entire year. Its death rate was seven more than was recorded for April, 1938.

Analyzing the motor vehicle fatalities by counties we find increases in Franklin, Hancock, Knox, Piscataquis, Sagadahoc, York, Cumberland and Aroostook. The counties of Lincoln, Washington, Oxford, Penobscot, Somerset and Androscoggin show fatality decreases.

The chief cause of our fatalities for this year has been the pedestrian and during the past month eight more were killed while walking along or crossing the highway, being met with sudden death on their journey. Two passengers of automobiles were killed; also one driver and one motorcycle operator.

There was a sharp rise in fatalities that had liquor associated during this month. The fact was brought out that not only is the driver of an automobile liable to be involved in an accident but also the pedestrian as four pedestrians that were killed had been imbibing in intoxicating liquors. The pedestrian seems to be constantly adding to an already deplorable situation and is leaving himself to the mercy of the motorist.

One of the most striking indictments of Maine citizens is their inability to control their motor cars, and their habits while walking.

Our accident experience in this State conclusively proves that the accident problem has not been created by a few habitually reckless drivers alone but by thousands of well-meaning drivers and pedestrians who do irreparable damage in a manner of thoughtlessness or in an instance of inattention to traffic hazards.

Searching for Equity in Wage and Hour Restrictions

The Nation's Capital, May 2. (Special to The Courier-Gazette)—Time was when quite a part of the nation's wearing apparel, especially men's wear, was made in the rural sections and a fair proportion of it in Maine. There were garment factories (often called "coat shops") in many of our communities. From a Maine standpoint, this industry was at its peak in the 1880's. These small factories might be regarded as branches of city establishments where the cutting was usually done.

The Maine register of 1885 discloses the following firms and individuals, among those in the garment industry of that period: Ingalls & Frothingham, Hussey & Conant, Henry Murphy, Norridge-wock, G. E. Kimball, J. H. Rich, G. J. Pendexter, Pittsfield; J. H. Digges, Mercer; W. A. Clark (flannel shirts), Belfast; D. D. Merri-man & Son, Reedfield; Q. L. Smith, Mt. Vernon; A. A. Luce, W. W. Woodbury, Monmouth; M. M. Richards & Co., Waldoboro.

Connected with this garment business was a good deal of "home work," so-called. The material, usually cut, as just noted, would be unpacked at a central factory or warehouse. It would then be distributed to village and rural homes where it furnished employment for the women of the household.

There were some things very nice about this. Mother and daughters could make this sewing fit in with household duties. It could be laid aside and resumed at will. The addition to the family income was most welcome. At the start it was possible to make quite good wages but there was never as much work as all the seamstresses in Maine could do. Manufacturers, driven by the wholesale clothing buyers, kept reducing the pay schedule until the Maine woman had to put in outrageously long hours to make a respectable wage. The development of "home work" in the cities soon followed, creating what became known as the "sweatshop" industry, and the old-time garment business in Maine was soon out of the picture.

There is yet some home work in Maine but along lines other than just described. The material is now usually sent from the city establishment directly to the country home. It is often knitting. When it approaches the production of garments it is likely to be the making of cheap dresses or aprons. Sometimes it is artificial flowers.

The price paid is always so low that making a decent living is impossible. It does supplement other income and, when the worker is too elderly for heavy tasks or if crippled can yet do something with the hands. It may ease a serious situation.

It is, of course, desirable that the handicapped worker shall have the opportunity to work for what he can earn. Otherwise, if the employer must pay a certain specified wage, he will be sure to hire the man best able to earn it. With so many seeking employment, these physically deficient would stand no chance at all. The Wage and Hour law, as passed by the last Congress, provides for this, as far as factory workers are concerned. But there is a good deal of piece work done in homes and as to those who labor in this way—usually but one or two in a household—the law made no provisions. Whether handicapped or able-bodied, under the original statute, the worker must be paid twenty-five cents an hour and must not work over forty-four hours a week.

For casual workers in the home and especially for such as were crippled or handicapped, this was a hardship and injustice. There was widespread interest. I received 671 protests for citizens of Maine; of these over 400 came from the Second Congressional District: The Committee on Labor, of which I am a Member, after studying this condition for a month or more, has reported an amendment which should correct the difficulty. It provides that the home worker, under certain conditions, shall be entirely exempt from Wage and Hour restrictions. It aims, however, to guard against the return of the sweatshop, specifying that the surroundings must be those of the home.

I am glad to join in this restoration of the home worker's privilege to work without wage and hour restrictions but am not wholly content with the situation as it will stand after this amendment is adopted. The pay for this home piece-work is pitifully low; we were unable to frame a statute to correct it. It is certain that the manufacturer will place his work where he can get it done the cheapest. Piece-work manufacture in many scattered homes is a slow process and the transportation costs are considerable, but the difference in labor cost between the home—unrestricted as to hours and wages—and the factory—which must meet the Wage and Hour law provisions—will, for a large proportion of the work, a great deal more than overcome these difficulties. To the extent that it does, the tendency to reduce factory output and increase home production will follow. This will keep the factory worker's pay at the lowest limit permitted by law and lessen his chances for steady employment.

In this problem, as with many others, it is impossible by legislation to reach the ideal and we must make the best of conditions as we find them.

Lady Knox Chapters

Hold Annual Meeting and Elect Mabelle F. Rose As Regent

The annual meeting of Lady Knox Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution was held Monday afternoon at the Rankin street home of the vice regent Mrs. George St. Clair. A covered dish luncheon was enjoyed by the members at 1 o'clock. Because of illness the regent, Mrs. Joshua Southard, was unable to attend the vice regent Mrs. St. Clair presiding during the business meeting.

Reports of the officers showed the Chapter to be in an active and progressive condition. Programs during the year have been varied and interesting. The speakers have been: Miss Elizabeth Read of Boothbay Harbor; Hector Staples, Rev. Guy Wilson, Capt. Keryn ap Rice of Rockland; Mrs. Fred Morgan, Saco, State Regent, and a most charming program of American Music by the members of the Rubinstein Club.

The Chapter has entertained the State Regent Mrs. Morgan; Mrs. Percy Tate, State chairman of Genealogical Records committee; members of Penaquid Chapter of Lincoln County and the girls from the Rockland schools who have been awarded the Good Citizenship Pilgrimage pins and the good citizenship medals.

Four picnics were held during the summer at the summer homes of Mrs. Southard, Mrs. Hester Chase, Mrs. Adele Morton and Mrs. Maude Blodgett. A special gift of $10 was made to the Knox Memorial and $15 to Opportunity Farm for a memorial bed. A Christmas box was also sent to Opportunity Farm valued at $15 and a box to the Mt. Berry School in Georgia.

The reports of the various committee chairmen all showed their interest in carrying on the work of their committees. They have placed flag codes in the schools in the nearby towns; presented flags to the 25 newly naturalized citizens during the year; fostered National Defense through patriotic education by the study of the Constitution of the United States and plays and pageants in schools based on the Constitution; presented a subscription of the National Historical Magazine to the Rockland Public Library and sponsored the Good Citizenship Pilgrimage and Good Citizenship awards in the Rockland and Rockport high schools; and many other projects sponsored by the National Society.

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coastguardsmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

Clippership, Red Jacket. Once swiftly flew. In rapid transit, over the ocean blue. Driven by winds from heaven afar. Guided by light of polar star. Made a record voyage of 13 days. That won for her everlasting praise. Clippership, Red Jacket. With sails and spar. Strong to bear her own waters afar. Rockland E. O. M.

Portland Head

In came May! We certainly are not wishing April back this year. It may pick up a little now and show us some good spring weather.

W. C. Dow of Portland was a caller Tuesday. Quite a number have ventured out the past week; seems like summer is on the way.

"Crazy time" arrived on schedule. Arthur Chute of Waldoboro was guest Tuesday of Mrs. S. G. Robinson.

Mrs. R. T. Sterling attended a bridge party recently as guest of Miss Jane Walker of Portland.

F. O. Hilt and Arthur Harlow called Sunday on G. L. Alley at the Marine Hospital.

Mrs. Robert Fickett of South Portland was evening guest recently at the home of Mrs. R. T. Sterling.

Mrs. Hilt and Mrs. S. G. Robinson enjoyed a short auto ride Sunday morning.

Mrs. F. O. Hilt and son Willard called on Clyde Grant and family recently.

R. T. Sterling and family entertained Sunday. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walker and daughter Miss Jane Walker of Portland.

Jack Robinson is in Boston for the weekend with Portland Junior College tennis team. The boys went from Portland Wednesday to Tilton, N. H.

R. T. Sterling and family were dinner guests Thursday evening at the home of Miss Jane Walker of Portland.

Little River

Miss Florence Corbett who has been in Florida returned home Saturday to spend a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Corbett.

Fred Dennison who has been a patient at the Alto Mountain Hospital in Washington, D. C., returned home Friday.

Miss Ruth Corbett who has been at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Johnson at Roque Bluffs, returned home Saturday.

Mrs. Geneva Dennison is visiting her father, Forest Stevens. Bickford Stevens who is employed in Bar Harbor spent last weekend with his father.

Purcell Johnson who has been working on William Corbett's house (ashore) has completed his duties and returned Saturday to his home at Roque Bluffs.

Doubling Point Range

The last of the river ice has finally gone out and it is encouraging to see the clear water again.

There is quite an increase in the shipping on the river this season.

A lighter is laying a much needed new water main between Bath and Woolwich.

We are coming all the way into the station in the car now, not having driven in since last December on account of bad roads.

The family attends Sunday School at Woolwich where Mrs. Woodward teaches a class.

We hope many of our friends will visit us during the summer.

Gravel is being spread on our road and is making a big improvement.

We miss seeing Keeper Powers but hope he will soon be at his station again, much improved in health.

Out of door work is progressing slowly because of the bad weather.

What Home Lacks

Too Little Attention Paid To Character Building On Christian Lines

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— That the welfare of every community is inseparably dependent on the quality and integrity of its motherhood is absolutely an acknowledged fact. The mother is the presiding guide or should be of the home. I would not be misunderstood as trying to usurp any credit from the noble manhood of civilization. They need no explanation or apology for their place in life.

In earlier days religious training was a part of children's education in most families of average intelligence and mothers were qualified to impart much of this development in child life and at least send them to Sabbath Schools in less ignorance of Biblical and Christian knowledge than is found to be the case all too often today.

Never has there been so great an interest in young life and development as there is at present, but much of it is confined to sports and nature study. Too little goes to home making and character building or Christian lines of thought. Are mothers generally content with this fact?

I believe they simply have not sensed the conditions and needs of the day and urgency for more studied discipline in the home and thoughtful direction there.

SAWFLY PARASITES

Forest Commissioner Waldo N. Seavey says that one hundred million parasites will be liberated this summer in Maine's spruce areas to "fight" the European spruce sawfly which has destroyed much State timberland. More than forty million parasites were distributed last year mostly in the large spruce areas of northern Maine. Seavey said twenty million of them are ready for distribution "as soon as favorable weather prevails."

A Lack Of Vision

Educational Preparation Has Been Lagging Behind Its Social Need

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Education is without doubt the most important single function for which public money is spent in a democracy. In fact, it is the foundation of democracy. The kind and quality of education given in the schools of today will without question determine the difference between democracy and dictatorship in the world of tomorrow. In a dictatorship, children have to be taught what to think. In a democracy, they must be taught how to think. The difference is opposite. Neither form of government could long survive on the educational philosophy of the other.

The weakness of democracy however, is its lack of vision. Educational preparation has been lagging about a generation behind its social need. The science of things has been moving faster than the science of thought. The problems of government have increased more rapidly than the ability of the people to understand them. In consequence the controls have slipped from the hands of the many to the hands of the few; in Germany and Italy to the hands of one.

This has tremendous meaning to the future of America. In the past, too much emphasis has been laid, in the schools, on the acquisition of factual knowledge alone, and not enough on the cause-and-effect relation of that knowledge. Too much time has been spent on teaching what events of history happened and too little on how and why they happened and the consequences flowing out of them. In civic education, too much emphasis may have been placed on what ought to be done and too little on how to do it and the will to do it.

It is constant training in the ability to think and the unselfish devotion of the individual to the progress of his community, state and nation that constitute the finest philosophy of American democracy. That is why expert professional training of thought is making rapid headway in modern education. That is why the public is beginning to demand more and more professional training for its teachers.

Lincoln Baptists

Lincoln Baptist Association held its 135th annual session with the Warren church, Wednesday, with 200 in attendance. The meeting was one of inspiration and great spiritual blessing.

Rev. W. G. Foot, conducting the morning worship, spoke of the evidence of power in the life of the Lord Jesus Christ. That the secret of his power lay in the fact that he was willing to give God his way in the hour of temptation. The reason the church lacks power is that we are not willing to obey the voice of God.

Rev. Charles Turner, in words of welcome to the assembly, read a digest of the circular letter of the Association meeting of 1939. Rev. J. W. Hyssong delivered the morning sermon, his subject being "The Need of the Day"—which is the power of the Holy Spirit in the believer. The Lord Jesus Christ promised this power, that we might be His witnesses to all the world. The nature of this power is not physical, or mental, but spiritual; using as an illustration the great physical power of Samson, who was just an ordinary man doing extraordinary things by the power God gave him. But, when sin came in he was just like a little boy, physically. Today we are suffering, because of trying by organization and education alone, to do that which needs spiritual power to accomplish.

Rev. N. J. Smith spoke on the responsibility of the whole church for definite Christian service, in the Holy Spirit. Scripture teaches we are born of the Spirit, cleansed by the Spirit, satisfied with Christ, and the natural outflow is definite Christian service.

Rev. Chester Bentley, missionary speaker, gave a very interesting description of work among the Crow Indians, of Montana. The method of this work is much the same as work in any part of our own State. They have active church organization, both Indians and whites cooperating in the work. He exhibited objects of worship by the Indians, and related the changed life which the entrance of the gospel message brings about.

Rev. George Bolster gave a stirring message concerning the work of Baptists in the upper St. John valley, where one young man is doing an aggressive and constructive Christian work, "hitch-hiking" over a territory 25 miles long, preaching several times each Sunday, holding prayer meetings and Bible schools, writing letters, and in every way ministering to the needs of these people. Even on one occasion suffering from freezing his hands, yet he continued to carry on.

Rev. W. F. Brown spoke on 1st Corinthians 13—which he considers a word picture of our Lord himself. Many things fall said he but, "love never faileth." Dr. F. T. Littore spoke of the three phases of his work as director of Christian Education, Evangelism, and the Youth Movement. In the program of Christian Education he said the need was to develop leadership, by training the youth. He also said there was a great need of "fellow-ship." Leaders can accomplish nothing without co-operation.

The young people need to be so organized as to realize they are a part of the great State organization. And the great need in Evangelism is, that every pastor shall be stirred with a passion to bring souls to Christ.

A duet by Chester Wyllie and Mrs. Fred Butler, and two selections by the male quartet of Warren, were enjoyed. Mrs. Chester Wyllie, Mrs. Gladys Kellar and Mrs. Charles Turner were pianists during the day. The following were elected:

Moderator—Rev. W. F. Brown, Camden.
Vice Moderator—Rev. J. W. Strout, St. George.
Clerk and Treasurer—Mrs. Lois F. Casens, Rockland.
Auditor—J. W. Robinson, Rockland.

Evangelistic Committee—Rev. J. W. Stuart, Rev. W. G. Foot, Rev. J. W. Hyssong.
Investment Committee—J. W. Robinson, three years; Mrs. Lois F. Casens, one year.

Obituary Committee—Mrs. Lois F. Casens.
State Nominating Committee—Rev. C. A. Marsteller.
Member State Convention Board—Rev. N. J. Smith, two years.

Preacher of Next Annual Meeting—Rev. H. W. Nutter; alternate, Rev. Donald Perron.

The place of the next annual meeting will be Belfast. Twenty-six churches responded to roll-call, by letter.

A MAID CALLED MILLS

Whom You Will Take To Your Heart When She Talks About Household Matters

BROADCAST BY MARJORIE MILLS

(Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 1:30 p. m. over Stations WNAO, Boston; WTAC, Worcester; WCSH, Portland; WTTT, Hartford; WICC, Bridgeport; WEAN, Providence; and WLBZ, Bangor).

There was a lot of nice, friendly "sassing back" about recipes in the mail the other morning, so interesting to me that it had to be passed on to you. For instance, Laura Bennett in Sanborn, N. H., whose family stem from Rhode Island, doubts if you'll get real Rhode Island Johnny Cakes unless you buy the stone ground meal. The nearest approach to the old home grown corn, ground with the stones set a certain way, is Boyd's Meal ground by the windmill on Governor Vanderbilt's estate in Portsmouth, R. I., she writes. We've had some wonderful meals from the old mill in Nantucket and from Harwich. The natives used to sail across Narragansett Bay, Laura Bennett says, to take their corn to the mill for grinding.

"Marjorie, my dear," writes Mrs. Mishou of Bangor Maine, you should know that fricasseed chicken in your column was the good old New England version. Georgia Fried Chicken, indeed. That's New England Brown Fricassee as opposed to Golden Fricassee, unbrowned and with egg in the gravy.

My great great grandmother made it that way one of the early settlers. She had a baby stolen by the Indians whom she didn't see again until he was grown. It's grand anyway but don't give Georgia all the credit.

A Northampton gentleman who stems from Vermont "pooh poohs" the idea that eggs poached in maple syrup should be credited to France. "That was a favorite breakfast 50 years ago in Vermont," he writes. And as we stand corrected on three counts and, as usual, love to talk back.

Now, for a few questions. We asked for you about retouching ceilings when the whole expense didn't need re-doing and three answers were telephoned in during the broadcast. Someone suggested washing the spots, applying shellac and then going over them lightly with calamine. A five cent cake of magnesia was suggested for touching up spots and someone else suggested the kind of chalk used in schools. We like that invention someone suggested for a spotted bedroom ceiling. Stars in varying sizes in a matching tint or in silver scattered over the ceiling spots. That's making a virtue of a necessity, don't you think?

Dozens of questions about cleaning oil paintings again this spring. Try a little corner first with a damp cloth and see if the paint will stand water. If it won't by all means have a professional clean your "ancestor." If grandfather doesn't mind a tubbing use pure, mild soap suds, patted on with a soft clean cloth wet with tepid water. When the painting is clean, don't wipe it dry. Give it a few jerks to shake off water and dry at an angle, not vertically or flat. If at all possible have a professional do the work.

Spring Relish Salad
Wash and stem a bunch of tender radishes. Peel two tender cucumbers, slice them paper thin, and put them to soak in ice-water. Wash two tender green peppers and remove the seeds. Add lemon juice and tarragon vinegar to Cain's Mastermix Mayonnaise to thin it to almost water consistency.

Place the drained cucumbers on a shallow oblong dish, and slice over them the green peppers in paper-thin slices, and then the radishes. Pour the dressing over 15 minutes before serving. Serve with cheese bread sticks.

Glazed Turnips
Peel 2 dozen tender white turnips, wash well and boil in salted water until almost done. Then drain well and place in frying pan with melted hot butter. Brown turnips carefully and season with salt and pepper and granulated sugar. Drain off the butter and add half a bouillon cube dissolved in water. Simmer the turnips until almost dry or until the juice is reduced to a glaze. Sprinkle lightly with chopped parsley and serve at once.

Chipped Chicken
Three and one-half to four pound chicken. 1 small onion, chopped. 3 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups light cream, salt and pepper.

Choose young tender chickens, remove meat from breast, and from second joints and wings, cut in inch and a half strips. Fry chopped onion in butter, add the chicken, and cook a short time until tender. Then dredge with flour, add the cream and seasonings and let sim-
