The Hunting Season

Opened Yesterday With Fine Prospects For the Sportsmen

The Maine hunting season got under way yesterday.

Inland Fisheries and Game Commissioner George J. Stoble predicted the season would be "the best in five years on some species" of game and "the best in 10 years on others."

He said bears were never so plentiful in recent years and that rabbits and birds were reported "in every corner."

Meanwhile, Stoble's department promised strict enforcement of laws regulating the shooting of waterfowl, particularly in the Merry-meeting Bay area where it was said,
"complaints of repeated violations"
had been reported.

Legal prey for the nimrods are bear, rabbits, gray squirrels, ducks, geese, woodcock and partridge.

The bag limit was four each of squirrels, rabbits, partridge, woodcock, and geese and 10 ducks daily with deer being safe until Oct. 21 when they may be hunted in six counties.

New Waldo Sheriff

Poland L. Woodbury, Republican of Morrill, was nominated Saturday by Gov. Barrows to succeed the late Hiram O. Burgess of Belfast as sheriff of Waldo County.

Woodbury, a farmer by trade, was runner-up to Burgess in the primary election last year and has been endorsed by many people of Waldo County, the Governor said.

The nomination will go before the executive council after seven days, probably at a special meeting, Barrows added.

[EDITORIAL]

ROOSEVELT GAINS A BIT

Because his foreign policies are much more to the liking of his party than his domestic policies, President Roosevelt has gained 3 percent the past month as a third term prospect.
This was fully expected as the result of the first war scare.
This sentiment is strongest in the South and in the West and Middle Atlantic States. In New England, according to the American Institute of Public Opinion 34 percent would vote for a third term and 66 percent against it. Other sections show these figures: Middle Atlantic, 46 percent for, 55 percent against; East Central, 32 percent for, 68 percent against; West Central, 37 percent for, 63 percent against; South, 61 percent for, 39 percent against; West, 47 percent for, 53 percent against.

OH, FOR THE TRUTH!

The college presidents and the college professors are being widely quoted as to their views on the war in Europe. It is to be taken for granted that an educator is in better touch with the situation than the layman, but alas! no two college presidents and no two college professors agree; so we are forced to the belief that the highly educated know no more about the actual situation than the average person who depends upon the newspapers or the radio broadcasts. The unfortunate thing about the radio broadcasts is that you get only partisan reports. Germany says her airplanes sink British warships, and England says they don't. Now if we could only have a middle ground report, and get the facts occasionally, how much better satisfied everybody would be.
And yet we are forced to believe they would still be skeptical.

DANGER FROM FRIENDLY GUNS

The hunting season opened yesterday, and the man with the gun is again loose in the woods. He is there legitimately, and he seeks good, honest, recreation. And he is careful—or means to be, yet when the season is over we find a recapitulation of fatal shootings which are sorrowful to contemplate.
Our advice to the hunter is brief, but we believe it to be to the point, where we ask you to be as careful for the other fellow as you would have him be careful for you.

DEATH INVADERS SANCTUM

For the second time within comparatively short years our esteemed Waldo County contemporary, the Belfast Journal, has lost an editor. This time it is Charles Swan Blackford, who has been doing editorial work of a high calibre for that paper since 1928. His last "30" has been written and the constituency of an ably managed newspaper has lost a valued servant.

THE SEA WAR

(Herald Tribune)

As between Mr. Churchill's and Field Marshal Goring's accounts of the air and naval action in the North Sea on Tuesday, one can only wait for confirmatory facts. But on past records for veracity, it is not Goring's one would be inclined to believe. Meanwhile, in Mr. Churchill's earlier statement on the submarine campaign, one has not only what would seem to be the ring of simple authenticity, but all the vigor, straightforwardness, modesty of promises but resolution—and even a touch of humor—in accomplishment that again show Mr. Churchill the incomparable war leader that he is.

The manner and tone of the statement at once re-established confidence where confidence was beginning to wane;
the facts which he adduces would seem to show that actually the naval war is not going badly for Great Britain. If the British have in fact destroyed seven submarines in the first three weeks of war, they are surpassing their best records in the latter years of the World War, when German losses rose to an average of five or six a month. At that time, moreover, the Germans were keeping from 40 to 60 boats regularly at sea, whereas now they probably have no more than 25 or so operating against British commerce at one time. The proportionate destruction would therefore be much higher, and this when British have not yet had time to create anything like the elaborate equipment of mines, nets, decoys ships and other apparatus on which the Allies expended so vast an effort in 1917 and 1918.

Mr. Churchill's tabulation or sinkings would work out to around 150,000 tons of British shipping in the first month.
This is roughly half the British losses in the peak month early in 1917 and only a quarter of total losses, neutral and Allied as well as British, in the same period. During most of this time, moreover, the Germans had only about 40 boats at sea;
on the other hand, the comparison is somewhat misleading because in 1917 the Germans were using unrestricted warfare, whereas they are operating on the milder basis of "cruiser warfare" and still appear to be showing some tenderness for neutrals. The sinkings today are certainly not negligible.
But Mr. Churchill's explanation of the unlucky series of chances which cost the destruction of the Courageous tend to soften the blow which that episode seemed to give to the convoy system, while the fact that the curve of sinkings has gone drastically downward from the first days to the present is the strongest reason for believing that the submarine threat will not be, in fact, a lethal one once convoy and other arrangements are fully in operation.

Mr. Churchill is right not to make any assumptions, for beyond the submarine there remains the threat of air attack on convoys, docks and ports, and there are always surprises in war. But his speech puts the submarine campaign itself in both a truer and more reassuring perspective—and as such is a model of democratic war leadership, giving an educated public as much of the facts as possible in a way that adds to a morale which does not need to be fed on mendacity and mysticism.

A Bangor Hospital

Osteopaths Get Charter For One—Camden Doctor a Director

Announcement that the Bangor Osteopathic Hospital has received its charter, is about to purchase land and building in Bangor, and will open shortly after the first of the year with 20 beds, an operating room, and a delivery room, gave point to one of the addresses at the semi-annual meeting of the New England Osteopathic Association at Poland Spring. The speaker, Dr.
Frank M. Vaughan, director of the Massachusetts Osteopathic Hospital, Boston and the osteopathic member of the State Board of Registration in Medicine, urged the creation of additional osteopathic hospitals in New England, in order that osteopathic patients may be assured of the services of their own physicians when hospitalization is indicated.
Dr. Granville C. Shibles of Westbrook (formerly of Rockport) director of the Osteopathic Hospital of Maine, in Portland, stated: "The announcement of the inauguration of the Bangor hospital is welcomed with the heartiest approval of the entire board of directors and the staff of our hospital. Every aid that can possibly be given to the physicians who have undertaken this progressive step will be extended by us."

The officers and directors of the new Bangor institution are president, Dr. George F. Noel Dover-Foxcroft; vice president, Dr. William E. Clifford, Bangor; treasurer, Dr. Roswell P. Bates, Orono; secretary and clerk, Dr. Alamanzar A.
Bergeron Oldtown; Dr. Henry J.
Pettable, Camden; Dr. Edwin E.
Morse, Belfast; Dr. Lloyd W. Morey, Millinocket; Dr. Jack R. Georges,
East Millinocket; Dr. George C.
Gray, East Corinth; Dr. John L.
Crowther, Milo.

Over 150 members and guest physicians were present at sessions of the Association. In charge of the program was Dr. Myron G. Ladd, Portland; arrangements, Dr. Albert H. Chittenden, Auburn, assisted by Dr. C. B. Robbins, Kittery, and Dr.
Eldred B. Wales, Winthrop.

Local Teacher Tells Garden Club Of Visit To Audu- bon Camp

An outstanding meeting of the Rockland Garden Club was held Sept. 26, at Community Building, with Mrs. Edward J. Heller as hostess chairman, Miss Caroline Jamerson was program chairman.

The conservation study for the month was given by Mrs. George W. Smith, who discussed Bird Lore articles that appealed to Maine nature students.

Miss Jamerson, by request, told the club in delicate words, her associations with the flower night blooming cereus, leading up to the beautiful description of the rare plant that recently held two blossoms, owned by Miss Edna Payson. Miss Charlotte Buffum added a bit of travel news at this point: In Hawaii she was one of hundreds who witnessed a hedge of the famous flower.

Mrs. Clara Emery presented the six white peonies in the name of Frances E. Willard, to be planted in the Hospital garden.

"And dark herbs scattered on the floor Wait fragrance down the lane."

Thus Mrs. Edward J. Heller spoke of Rockland's new Mattie-Ann Herb Shop, a special little place to visit any afternoon.

Miss Jamerson introduced the guest speaker, Miss Annie M.
Rhodes, a local teacher and a student for two weeks at Audubon Nature Camp on Hog Island. Miss Rhodes followed her diary in telling of her thrilling experiences while at camp. She held the undivided attention of the club members for one hour, telling about the fascinating and famous students, Camp dress, walks, talks, boatrides
—all jaunts in quest of nature's best.

Carl W. Buckheiser, the efficient camp director, was the dominating reason for the success of her summer and no doubt the inspiration for the big success Miss Rhodes was as a public speaker.

Recruiting For C. A. C.

Batteries E and F Will Be Increased To 88 Men, Each

Recruiting has started to raise the 240th Regiment, Maine National Guard, to its newly-authorized strength of 953 men. Under the President's limited emergency proclamation, 346 men will be added to the regiment's nine firing batteries, Headquarters Battery and the Medical Detachment. Only recruits who can qualify physically and who are "single and have no dependents" will be accepted, the staff announced.

The 165 mm batteries, E of Rockland and F of Thomaston, will be recruited to 88 men from the 62 now enrolled, as will the anti-aircraft batteries, G of Brunswick and H of Bath, and the searchlight battery I of South Portland.

The Headquarters Battery's new strength will be 133 men, an increase of 60, and 12 men will be added to the medical Detachment. Headquarters Battery includes the 40-piece regimental band.

No officers will be recruited, the staff announced.

The 240th became the first of Maine's National Guard regiments to receive the new automatic rifle for training purposes, the staff said, when the first issue arrived Monday.

LIONS CAPTURE VINALHAVEN

Zone Meeting Attracts 64 Of the Jungle Folk —Emergency Drag Of Lobsters

The Vinalhaven Lions Club was host to some 47 visiting Lions last Thursday evening in the G.A.R.
rooms as the first meeting scheduled in Zone 3 got under way to start off the current year of Lionism.

Four clubs constitute the make up of Zone 3 of District 41A, Rockland, Camden-Rockport, Waldoboro and Vinalhaven. The Camden-Rockport
Club sent a delegation of 16 members but the Rockland and Waldoboro Clubs were not represented. This was a source of deep regret to Zone Chairman O. V. Drew, and the members of the Vinalhaven Club, and to punish the offenders they are planning to send a big and hungry delegation, prepared to lick up everything in sight, when it comes time for the delinquent clubs to entertain.

The loss of membership from the Rockland and Waldoboro Clubs was made up however by roaring delegations from Skowhegan and Waterville, and these Lions certainly were a robust crowd
a bunch of the men wearing their pants with the hair side in. These three groups with 16 Vinalhavenites and two guests made a total of 64 whereas plans had been made for a much smaller number and the preparations had to suffer in consequence. However Lion Don Poole was sent scurrying out over the waters of Roberts' Harbor for another drag of lobsters and things were finally fixed up so that everybody got a taste.

The extra large crowd also necessitated the use of two boats instead of one to navigate across Penobscot Bay, and the delay in getting under way delayed the arrival of the Lions in Vinalhaven.
But finally the meeting got under way with King Lion L. B. Dyer presiding. Later the meeting was turned over to Zone Chairman O.
V. Drew who briefly outlined plans for the coming meetings in the Zone. Speakers during the evening included Past District Governors John F. Fogarty of Skowhegan and George W. Dyer of Camden, District
Deputy Governor William Niehoff
of Waterville, District Director Arthur L. Hinman of Portland, and International Director Fred Gabbi
of Portland.

The remarks of International Director Gabbi concerning the present war in Europe were followed with the closest attention by the assembled Lions. Others features of the evening were the singing and story telling of Lion Evariste Laverdiere of Waterville, tall twister extraordinary, the dancing of Lion Benny Stone of Skowhegan, the violin playing of Lion Saul Polisher of Camden, and the singing and piano playing sketch by Lion Eddie Harrison. "The Irish Hebrew Impersonator" of Waterville.

A calm sea, a full moon and an altogether perfect evening helped to send the seafaring Lions back to their respective homes with another happy event to store in the archives of memory. Before leaving some of the visiting Lions thought so much of the caricature posters that adorned the walls, that they took them home as souvenirs, probably to prove to doubting wives that they had actually been to Vinalhaven. One thing that was a bit too bulky to move however was the monument and tombstone erected and inscribed to a Vinalhaven Lion who as chairman of the attendance committee should have been right at his post of duty and on the job.
He played hockey to the Union Fair however, and his fellow Lions mourned his absence by erecting the tombstone with the following inscription:

HERE LIES THE BODY OF LION
GUY PEARLEE
The Body is Here But His Heart Is
In Union
"He went to the Union Fair and All the beads and the birds were there
They opened their eyes — then blinked in surprise
At the Lion without any hair"
We Shall Meet—But We Shall Miss Him

Following is a list of the visitors as deciphered by the handwriting expert of the Vinalhaven Club from the Club register. He remarked wryly that it looked as if some of the boys must have been suffering from writer's cramp.

The Fair Is Over

Saturday's Racing Events Marked By Spills and a Runaway

Union Fair ground was but a shadow of its former glory Saturday the Midway having folded its tents and moved to former quarters. The threatening weather of the morning probably kept away many hundreds who had intended seeing the fair to a finish.

Mina De Rose fell on the back stretch in the second race throwing driver Eddie Morgan and then running away. Dr. Hanover made a bad break in the third race and threw the driver, dashing around the track several times before being stopped.

The best payoff of the day was in the fourth race when Peter Simmons paid $72.40 to place. Other large payoffs were on Harry Aleck who paid $37 to win, Lawful Lure paid $28.80 and Henley Etawah paid $20.

"THE BLACK CAT"

(By The Roving Reporter)

Nothing but absolute truth is supposed to find its way into this column, but the following despatch from Herscher, Ill., cannot fail to raise a laugh:

Mrs. Lena Clough of Peoria, Ill., won the professional class in the Illinois Liars' contest with a yarn right out of her kitchen. She said:
"I make my own yeast. It is so powerful and rises so fast that I keep an iron lid clamped on the pan whenever I bake. One day when I was baking bread a car ran into the ditch in front of my house. I grabbed a pan of bread, put it under the car, unclamped
the lid and it lifted the car right out of the ditch."

David Hippie of Elgin, Ill., carried away the amateur medal when he told how he had fed his hens sweet corn during a sugar shortage. The eggs they produced were so sweet he could bake cakes without sugar.

Forty-eight million English subjects will soon receive their war ration cards. There is no reneging on the part of the Royal household.

will have exactly the same diet as their subjects.

So Rockland is to have night football! The experiment will be tried at Community Park the coming Saturday night when Skowhegan
High meets Don Matheson's boys.
Day or night this game will be well worth watching, and I look for a big crowd on the sidelines.

A Joint Meeting

The Local D. A. R. Chapters Have Enjoyable Session At "Montpelier"

A joint meeting of Lady Knox and General Henry Knox Chapters, D.A.R. was held Monday afternoon in the library at "Montpelier" in Thomaston.

Mrs. Richard Elliot, past regent of General Knox Chapter called the meeting to order, introduced the hostess of "Montpelier", Mrs. Anne Snow, who extended a cordial welcome to the chapters.

Mrs. Mabelle Rose, regent of Lady
Knox Chapter, then introduced Mrs. Appleby, State Organizer of children of the American Revolution who spoke briefly of the successful work being carried on in this State.
Miss Margaret McElroy, State vice regent, was speaker of the afternoon, having for her subjects "Approved Schools" and "Opportunity Farm". Her talk was very interesting, disclosing activities at the farm in New Gloucester and giving details of its operation.

The meeting was enjoyable and instructive and was adjourned upon motion of the hostess.

Mrs. Snow and an assisting committee served a delicious luncheon before the business session.

At its meeting tonight, Pleasant Valley Grange will give its Boaster program at 8 o'clock, all Grangers and friends invited. The entertainment is being prepared by the chaplain, Vallie MacLaughlin who promises a social evening and get-together well worth one's attendance. One of the features will be a calling contest, another a game enjoyed by youngsters, but this time by oldsters. Once each year the Grange and the Community hold a party and welcome all tonight at Pleasant Valley. Officers are urged to be present and ready at 7.30 sharp.

How You Can Express Yourself On Neutrality — A Western Union Idea

The flood of telegrams on neutrality reaching the Capitol since the special session of Congress started a week ago has reached such proportions that one telegraph company has distributed ready-made messages to help senders who don't know just how to word them. The company—the Western Union—remains neutral, however. It offers three messages for repeal of the arms embargo and three against the special session of Congress. Company officials say the sole purpose is to help senders, and there is no bargain rate as in the case of birthdays and holidays.

Following is the text of the anti-repeal telegrams:

"Hope you vote against any change in the neutrality act."

"Repeal of arms embargo unwise. Fear it will draw us into war. Hope you will vote against any change in present act."

People who favor the Roosevelt-Hull-Pittman-Bloom proposals may take their pick of one of these "pro" messages:

"Arms embargo unfair, should be repealed, and cash-carry sales permitted. Hope you will vote accordingly."

"Strongly for repeal of arms embargo and for cash-carry sales to all."

"Hope you will vote to amend present neutrality act."

The Postal Telegraph Company, while not making up any telegrams in advance, reports a brisk neutrality business of 1,000 telegrams a day. When Senatorial debate starts and a vote is likely, the "boiling point" will be reached, officials say.

HOLLYWOOD STAR-LITES

By Chuck Cochard

Hollywood—(Exclusive) — Moviegoers throughout the world have a real treat in store for them during the next few months when Hollywood studios will release to theaters everywhere the finest group of pictures in the history of the cinema capital.

David Selznick's "Gone With the Wind" co-starring Clark Gable and Vivian Leigh heads the long list of future "must sees." MGM brings Greta Garbo back to the screen in "Ninotchka" with Melvyn Douglas. From the same studio will come another picture that already has the entire MGM lot talking. It's "Babes in Arms" co-starring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland. Nelson Eddy and Ilona Massey have a real attraction in "Balalaika." And the screen's two-time Academy winner, Spencer Tracy will star in "Northwest Passage," and all-color film in which he will be aided by Robert Young.

"Drums Along the Mohawk" co-starring Henry Fonda and Claudette Colbert will be one of 20th Century-Fox's finest. It will be in color and will have plenty of action. From the same studio will come "Hollywood Cavalcade," which features Don Ameche and Alice Faye and traces the history of motion pictures from 1913 to the advent of "talkies" in 1929. In addition, there will be "Swanee River," a story of the life of Stephen Foster, which stars Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, and Al Jolson.

RKO Radio's gift to theater audiences will be Charles Laughton in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and Raymond Massey in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Paramount will give all-time favorite Ronald Colman in "The Light That Failed" and Mary Martin and Allan Jones in "Victor Herbert."

Two all-color feature length cartoons will make their debut. Walt Disney's "Pinocchio" and Paramount's "Culliver's Travels."

The above list following on the heels of "The Wizard of Oz," "The Women," "Stanley and Livingstone," "The Rains Came," and "Beau Geste" leaves even the most critical without enough praise for the men behind the great motion picture industry at a time when good entertainment is needed in a troubled world.

That celebrated trio of "The Awful Truth"—Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, and Ralph Bellamy—will return to the screen together in what looks to be another hilarious comedy tentatively titled "His Girl Friday" a story of the fourth estate.

Warner Bros. feeling the need for comedies during these critical times have purchased the screen rights to the famous "Tugboat Annie" stories. These stories are to be filmed as a series with Alan Hale in the male lead. No feminine name has been selected.

Applauding Rosalind Russell for performance in a tailor-made role in "The Women"—it was one of the best of the year... David Selznick for actually coming through with a great picture in "Gone With the Wind"... Miriam Hopkins for her fine performance in "The Old Maid"... The Technicolor company for supplying the motion picture business with the finest color we've ever seen.

Myrna Loy, currently starring in "The Rains Came" with Tyrone Power and George Brent, once taught dancing in a small dramatic and others in the picture seem to be characters in the world of 1939-40 now that half of the Continent once again has answered the call to arms—adv.

About Sam Sezak

Former Rockland Coach Goes To U. Of M. With a Fine Reputation

An Orono correspondent had the following to say about Sam Sezak whose appointment at University of Maine was announced in The Courier-Gazette last week.

Sam Sezak of Fairhaven, Mass., named assistant faculty manager of athletics at the University of Maine is a graduate of this school, has been a successful high school coach for several years and probably will assist with the freshman teams here.

Sezak was graduated from Maine in 1931 from the college of education. As an undergraduate he participated in baseball, basketball and football. In the latter sport he played center. He was a member of Phi Kappa Phi, an honorary fraternity, was president of the Maine Christian Association, chairman of the Junior Week Committee and coach of basketball in the intramural league.

Sezak attended public school in Wellesey, Mass., and was graduated from high school there in 1926. He went to Hebron for a year and then came to Maine. After his graduation from this school he went to Machias High School as a teacher and coach and produced the finest football team in the history of the school. His track team was runner-up for county honors. He went from Machias to Milbridge where he remained for two years.

After leaving Milbridge, Sezak went to Washington State Normal School and then to Rockland High. At Rockland, the football team claimed the eastern Maine championship and was runner-up for State honors. He coached baseball and in 1936 brought the school its first pennant in six years. Since that time he has been at Fairhaven, Mass., where he had been very successful.

He has attended coaching schools at Northeastern, Brown and Boston College. He has been in charge of boys' camps in Maine for several summers. He is married and has one son.

Does Not Protect Inventor

The phrases "patent applied for" and "patent pending" stamped on manufactured articles do not protect an inventor. The phrases are intended merely as notices to the public that application for a patent has been filed. The law makes no provision for the use of these terms. In the eyes of the law they afford no protection to the inventor, except so far as they may be a means of establishing a claim of priority in case of litigation in respect to the patent. The right to exclude others from making, using and selling a device does not exist until a patent has been granted.

If this fails to handle the situation there will also be installed a traffic signal which would require the motorists to come to a stop for 20 or 30 seconds. The volume of traffic does not require such a signal at present.

Ten Demandments
The following Ten Demandments came many years ago from Western Canada. It had been hanging in a discarded salmon cannery's factory.

1. Don't lie, it wastes my time and yours. I am sure to catch you in the end and that's bad.
2. Watch your work and not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short; and a short day's work makes my face long.
3. Give me more than I expect, and I will give you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.
4. You owe so much to yourself, you cannot afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt, or keep out of my shops.
5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men like good women, never see temptation when they meet it.
6. Mind your own business, and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.
7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. An employee who is willing to steal for me is willing to steal from me.
8. It is none of my business what you do at night, but if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you will last half as long as you hoped.
9. Don't tell us what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity but one for my dollars.
10. Don't kick if I kick. If you are worth while correcting you are worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

The books we think we ought to read are poky, dull and dry; The books that we would like to read we are ashamed to buy; The books that people talk about we never can recall; And the books that people give us, Oh, they're the best of all—Carolyn Wells.

Why not come to the library and borrow one of our latest books? Listed below are several books which are universal in popularity.

Fiction
"The Arrogant History of White Ben," by Clemence Dane. A fantastic, allegorical story of a scarecrow who became dictator of England and destroyed everything based on human reason.

"Mr. Emmanuel," by Louis Golding. A fine sensitive story about the German-Jewish problem. Mr. Emmanuel is a character from Mr. Golding's "Magnolia St."

"Captain Horatio Hornblower," by Cecil Scott Forester. An omnibus volume which includes Beat to Quarters, Ship of the Line, and Flying Colors, all of which are historical sea tales.

"Owenly Inn," by Joseph C. and Freeman Lincoln.

"Watch for the Dawn," by Stuart Cloete. The story of the hopeless struggle of the free Boers against English domination 20 years before the great trek that was so well described in the author's "The Turning Wheels."

Light Fiction
"Charley Manning," by Elizabeth Corbett is a portrait of a man about town.

"Our Ernie," by Alice Hegan Rice. "The Steadfast Light," Elizabeth Stancy Payne.

Non Fiction
"America in Midpassage," by Charles Austin Beard.

"Inside Asia," by John Gunther, author of "Inside Europe."

"Not Peace But A Sword," by Vincent Sheehan. A recapitulation of the past year's events in Europe; by a correspondent who saw history being made in Germany, Czechoslovakia, and Spain.

"Wind, Sand and Stars," by Antoine de Saint Exupery. Philosophical essays on flights and fliers, containing the elements of an autobiography of the French aviator-author who has flown the mail over the Sahara, and across the Patagonian Argentine.

Biography
"Days of our Years," by Pierre Van Passen. The life story of the one-time European roving correspondent of the New York Evening World. Born in Holland, with a stern Calvinistic background, the author became a theological student, served in the World War, and for the last fourteen years has served as correspondent in France, Germany, Morocco, Syria, Palestine, Ethiopia, and Spain. His book reflects the main political events of those years.

"Soaring Wings," by George Palmer Putman. A biographical tribute to the late flyer, Amelia Earhart, by her husband.

"Country Lawyer," by Bellamy Partridge. The story of a career, in the form of a son's account of his father's 50 years' law practice in a small New York town.

Did you know that Clemence Dane was born Winifred Ashton? Before she changed her name she was successively a teacher of French at a girl's school in Geneva, a student at the Slade School of Art, a prominent portrait painter in Dresden and a governess in an Irish feudal castle.

Major John W. Fogler, 95, of Skowhegan, well known in Knox County, has received notification that the Commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, Springfield, Ill., has appointed him as his Chief of Staff. "The mapping out of an 18-months' program to insure greater recognition of music as a moral force during the current world conflict will occupy the attention of 100 or more outstanding amateur and professional musicians and patrons of music gatherings in Salt Lake City Oct. 4 to 7 for the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Federation of Music Clubs, State and District Presidents and National Committee Chairmen.

Mrs. Vincent Hillier Ober of this city, who today made public some of the details of the program for the four-day meeting, will preside.

"Elected last May at the 21st Biennial Convention in Baltimore for a term which will conclude with the Biennial Convention scheduled for Los Angeles in the Spring of 1941, these directors, who are leaders in musical projects in every State in the United States, will concentrate primarily upon these fields: creation of additional opportunities for American musical curriculum in local school systems, and in colleges and universities; and the provision of instruments and instruction by which the talent of underprivileged young musicians may be preserved and developed.

"Pledged for some years to support a bill for the creation of a Department of Fine Arts with a Secretary in the Cabinet of the President, or a Federal Bureau of Music in the Department of Education the directors will listen to the report of the Legislation Chairman, Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Portland, Maine, and determine the basis upon which their legislative program will be carried on during the current year; whether they will press for the enactment of one of the various bills covering this matter which are now before Congress or introduce a bill of their own.

"Other Department heads who will have an important voice in proceedings will be Mrs. W. Carruth Jones of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, Chairman of the Department of American music; Dr. H. Augustine Smith of Boston, Chairman of the Department of Church Music; Mrs. George W. Langford of Ann Arbor, Mich., Chairman of the Department of Education; Mrs. Walter A. Knerr of Norristown, Pa., chairman of the Publicity Department; Mrs. D. C. Lea of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, Chairman of the Extension Department; and Mrs. John Alexander Jardine of Fargo, North Dakota, past president and Chairman of Finance.

"A topic which promises to evoke much discussion is what shall be the trend in view of the present international situation, of the work of the Committee for Music in International Relations. In previous years this committee, through exchange broadcasts, has popularized American music abroad and brought fine music from other countries to the United States. With radio time largely usurped at present with the broadcasting of war news some alteration may have to be made in this program which Mrs. Helen Harrison Mills of Peoria, Illinois, directs.

"Although a strenuous business schedule had been planned for the four days, there will be a numerous social interludes. These will include tea at the Governor's Mansion, visits to the Mormon Tabernacle, a presentation of the oratorio Elijah, by the Salt Lake Tabernacle Choir and a talented local cast, a concert at the Music Department of the University of Utah, a luncheon at the University, and a banquet at the Hotel Utah. Various groups will also be entertained at dinner at private homes.

"A committee headed by Mrs. Frank Johnson, president of the Utah Federation, with Mrs. Vera Frey Beason as local chairman is in charge of arrangements."

Representatives from Rockland will be Mrs. Faith Berry, State treasurer, Mrs. Grace Strout, district director, and Mrs. Nettie Frost, State auditor

School Time

College students will pay more than $158,000,000 for instructional fees this year at more than 1500 colleges and universities. One-half of these students will attend public institutions, and one-half private schools.

Approximately 110,000 faculty members carry on this great work in the United States alone.

We count these as wonderful days for American youth who can go to college in these United States and not to war. Many will work their way through the college course, wholly or partially, and they usually bring away the greatest store of knowledge.

We feel because of this dreadful war, students in this country will be more earnest than ever in gaining from this abundant educational experience the very best that can be. New courses in world affairs have been added in many of the colleges. This is a time when everyone needs to understand and appreciate mediums of communication, and curricular journalistic activities are introduced in many colleges and even in High Schools and they should be encouraged in these journalism courses and also public speaking exercises, says the Northwestern University. More books and high class periodicals are urged by teachers into their reading and study work.

K. S. F.

daughter of Orrington were recent guests of Mrs. Evelyn Pitman.

Mrs. Nellie Bradford, Lois Murphy Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Cummings of Augusta were guests Thursday of Mrs. Ethel Moody and Mrs. Gertrude Moody.

Mrs. Emma Jones of Union was a caller Saturday at L. N. Moody's.

High School Notes

A baseball game was played recently between the Washington High boys and Appleton at the local diamond. Appleton was handicapped by a lack of practice and a scarcity of players reporting for the game. The score therefore was rather one-sided with Washington leading 15-4.

The Freshman Reception is the next social event scheduled. This annual affair, to which all of the parents and friends of the school are invited will take place Friday night.

Elle Hill and Gertrude Wentworth have been assigned the two remaining parts in "Black Gold", the Senior play to be presented the last of October.

Demography is a statistical study of population and a demographer is one who does research on the subject.

A MAID CALLED MILLS

Whom You Will Take To Your Heart When She Talks About Household Matters

BROADCAST BY MARJORIE MILLS

(Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 1.30 p. m. over Stations WNAO, Boston; WTAC, Worcester; WASH, Portland; WTIC, Hartford; WICC, Bridgeport; WEAN, Providence; and WLBZ, Bangor).

The other day we urged you to buy a few new cook books this fall for inspiration and fun in feeding the family; we told you the one you started housekeeping with might be as out-dated as your trousseau. Now come the letters asking for recommendations among the new books. We suggest you browse through them all at the book stores but here are our favorites, not necessarily in the order of preference but hit or miss.

We like "Good Food and How To Cook It" by Phyllis Kraft Newell, selling at $2.50. We like "The Joy of Cooking" by Irma S. Rombauer, at the same price. "America's Cook Book," published by the New York Herald Tribune is a ponderous tome, full of inspiration and that costs $2.50.

Ruth Wakefield's "Tried and True Toll House Recipes," at two dollars we believe most of you own. If not, it's 202 pages are crowded with superb recipes that aren't too elaborate or too costly. There's a new edition too. There's also a 1939 edition of that perennial favorite, "The Boston Cooking School Cook Book" by Fannie Farmer at $2.50.

"The Yankee Cook Book" by Imogene Wolcott is a joy to own. Its fun to read with all its Yankee lore and quaintness and it contains the best recipes of some of New England's best cooks, collected and edited by Mrs. Wolcott. We always suggest "Good Cooking" by Marjorie Heseltine and Ula Dow for newlyweds. It's sound and full of careful explanations as well as Simmons-tested recipes. "Flavor's The Thing" by Florence LaGanke Harris at $2.00 has fine foreign recipes and rather specialized food information.

Oh, no, that isn't the list by any means. Those are the general recipe books. We have our best beloveds among special cook books for special occasions of for those with food hobbies.

"Modern Menus and Recipes" by Lucy Allen isn't new but it's one of our favorites for people who entertain a great deal. "The Wine Cook Book" by Cora, Rose and Bob Brown is on the elegant side too but if you entertain a great deal its recipes can make you famous. The Browns do right by the vegetables in a new book we love . . . as reading matter and for the recipes . . . "The Vegetable Cook Book" at $1.75.

Working girls who keep house all bless Hazel Young for her book, "The Working Girl Must Eat." It's very practical and brides like it too for planned menus and "just-how-it's-done" directions.

We're shouting from the house tops for Irma Mazza's new book, "Herbs For The Kitchen" because it's a good recipe book on herb cookery (arrived at last), because it's chatty and human and fun to read and because it's likely to jog most of us out of our complacent belief that we know about all there is to know about cooking and seasoning and what we're prone to call "out-landish" foreign dishes.

Now you see, there's no excuse for not owning at least one of these new or comparatively new cook books. If you can't own more than one, you can at least get the others at your local library and brush up on what the bright "gals" who write books on food have found out that would make your job more interesting . . . Both to you and to the family you serve as K. P. (Kitchen Police, you know).

Toll House Special

(From "Tried and True Toll House Recipes" by Ruth Wakefield) One dozen Hampton graham crackers, 1/2 cup dates, stoned and cut in fine pieces, 14 marshmallows, cut in fine pieces (1/4 pound), 1 cup nutmeats, broken in pieces, 1/2 cup thin cream or evaporated milk.

Put graham crackers through food grinder or crush with rolling pin, reserving half cup crumbs. Mix all ingredients together thoroughly. Form into a roll and cover with reserved crumbs. Place in refrigerator to chill. Slice and serve with cream. Serves eight.

Broiled Onion Rings

(From "The Working Girl Must Eat" by Hazel Young.) Cut three large Bermuda onions in 1/4-inch slices. Cook in boiling salted water about 10 minutes. Separate into rings and dry on paper towels. Dip in cooking oil, then in crushed salted cornflakes. Place under broiler and cook about 10 to 15 minutes, or until browned. Serve as garnish with meat.

Deerfoot Chowder

(From "Yankee Cook Book" by Imogene Wolcott.) One-half cup salt pork, cut in fine shreds, 1 medium sized onion, 1 medium sized potato, 2 cups boiling water, 2 cups canned corn, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons cold water, 1 1/2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon soda, salt and pepper.

Fry out the salt pork and saute the sliced onion in the fat. Add the potato and boiling water and cook until tender. Add corn and milk, thicken with flour blended with cold water and add the tomato heated with the sugar, soda and seasonings last. Serves six.

Corn Puffs

(From "Modern Menus and Recipes" by Lucy Allen.) Two cups boiling water, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup granulated corn meal, 2 tablespoons Land O' Lakes Sweet Cream Butter.

Boil water and salt about three minutes, then shake the meal in slowly so that the boiling does not stop, and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and beat in butter. Drop from a spoon on a buttered baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven (475 deg. F. to 500 deg. F.) for about a half hour.

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" starring Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Eugene Pallette and Claude Rains is an excellent picture that should please the most critical. It's the story of a young senator whose faith in the constitution remains unchanged despite his many struggles with crooked machine politicians. The entire cast is superb. A three Star-Lite picture.

"Honeymoon in Bali" featuring Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll, Alan Jones, Akim Tamiroff, and Helen Broderick is a grand comedy filled with rare dialogue. Fred MacMurray has a role tailored to his personality. He plays the part of a young man who comes direct from a plantation in Bali to New York and his fight for the lady of his heart who manages a smart Fifth Avenue shop. Miss Carroll is ideal as the girl. Alan Jones makes his return to the screen after a long absence and is fine as the opera singer who also wishes Miss Carroll's affections. This will keep you laughing the whole evening. A three Star-Lite comedy hit.

The frog-mouth, an Australian bird, sleeps during the day in an upright posture, thereby resembling a tree limb and making itself inconspicuous. The bark-colored feathers of the bird help to carry out the deception.

The attractive girl is Gloria Dickson, and her handsome hero is Dennis Morgan, sharing honors with Fred Stone in "No Place to Go," latest Warner Bros. attraction. The picture is adapted from Edna Ferber's never-to-be-forgotten "Old Man Minick," successful stage play and novel.

It Ranks Second

Among the Canned Fruits Of America — Story Of the Pineapple

"The second-ranking canned fruit on the United States market is a far-traveled commodity; pineapple," says Bulletin No. 3 in a series—Commodities: Common and Uncommon—issued from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Peach orchards, which yield the No. 1 fruit for canning, are a familiar part of the local landscape. But the pineapple, which stands a close second, must travel in tin from distant fields of subtropical warmth, chiefly Hawaii. Florida is the only State in the Union reporting a crop. The Hawaiian Islands can 80 percent of the world's pineapple.

Columbus Discovered the Pineapple. The exotic pineapple, however, is of American birth," the bulletin continues. "Wild pineapples, growing in highland forests of interior Brazil and Paraguay, resemble the ancestors of today's cultivated fruit—a fatlike three-inch 'apple,' full of black seeds and topped by a tuft of grassy spears of leaf. Several centuries of domesticated life have improved the species to a size approaching 12 pounds in weight and to a state of complete seedlessness. New plants are started from slips of old ones.

"Air plants, such as the Spanish moss festooning with dolorous gray the trees of Florida and Louisiana, are cousins to the pineapple. The fruit that went abroad to make its fortune shows its kinship with the air-eating moss by a surprising disdain for soil in which to anchor its shallow roots. The pineapple seeks food in the earth no farther than a foot from its base, and plants continue to thrive when all their roots dry up.

"The secret is that the pineapple uses its head, the rosette of waxy green leaves that makes it 'king of fruits,' by nature crowned." The crown forms a funnel of leaves spread like sails to sunlight, catching rain and dew to pour straight into the burgeoning fruit.

"An unsung discovery of Christopher Columbus was the 'pine' fruit he came on unexpectedly in 1493 when he landed at Guadeloupe in the West Indies. Mineral-minded Spanish Conquistadores, seeking silver and gold metals, overlooked the edible gold of the pineapple. They hastily observed that 'in shape and color this scale-coated fruit resembles the pine cone,' and thereafter to them it was known as 'pine of the Indies.' Later explorers from Portugal and France paused to learn the Carib Indian name ananas, the excellent fruit.

"The English, translating Spanish descriptions of a tropical delicacy 'delightful to taste and full of juice,' amended the name in 1604 from 'pine' to the more appetizing 'pineapple.'"

"The tropical fruit that is now anybody's for a can-opener was once a luxury for kings. A pineapple was presented to Ferdinand and Isabella, first financiers of the New World, as an early return on their investment. Their children's schoolmaster, Peter Martyr, put it into the natural history of the period, asserting that 'in softness it is the melon's equal.' When another pineapple survived the voyage to Europe, it was offered to Charles V as a dainty fit to set before a king, but the cautious monarch refused to taste the strange barbarian fruit.

"A Dutch gardener finally developed a strain that would grow more generally in Europe, and soon every large estate had a hothouse for cultivating the pineapple,—in 1769 the fashionable Test of good Gardening." The symbol of lavish hospitality in Colonial America, the pineapple was worked into the design of carved woodwork and furniture of that period along the Atlantic seaboard.

"Sixteenth century traders, exuberant at the new-found water routes in which they could follow Magellan around the globe, added pineapples to the new commodities they were feeding into expanding commerce between the hemisphere. The same progressive era that transplanted coffee and bananas to the Americas scattered pineapples throughout the Old World's tropics.

"The canning capital of the pineapple was Singapore until the end of the 19th century. Since 1892 Honolulu has forged into the lead. Other centers of commercial pineapple culture are Australia, the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies, and the Union of South Africa. Most of the fresh fruit reaches the United States from the West Indies, chiefly Cuba and Puerto Rico, and arrives in Europe mainly from the Azores and the Canary Islands. Since 1850 the pineapple has been a product of Florida, at one time ranking next to citrus fruits, but since the plantations of the Florida Keys have declined, the crop has dropped to about 20,000 boxes.

Basis of Hawaii's Second Largest Industry. "Shipwrecked Spaniards from Mexico brought the pineapple to Hawaii, according to one island tale. Another relates how the fruit washed ashore among the provisions of a sinking whaling vessel. 'Foreign pandanus' is the natives' title for it, in recognition of its recent arrival and its resemblance to their hala tree's fruit. As early as 1813 the foreign fruit, half-wild but juicy nevertheless, had its place in Hawaiian gardens as an exotic table fruit fashionable during the reigns of the Kamehamehas.

"Now the ruddy green-crowned foreigner supports the second largest industry of the Territory. Ripening at a different season and thriving in different soil, it forms an ideal supplement to Hawaii's first love, sugar. For the 1935-36 season, the Territory's pack amounted to an estimated 10 million cases of pineapple and two and a half million cases of juice—300 million cans in all. The most popular variety is the Smooth Cayenne, not so spiny as the Red Spanish of the West Indies.

NIGHT COUGHS

YOUR CHILD'S coughing at night—caused by throat "tickles" or irritation, mouth breathing, or a cold—can often be prevented by rubbing the throat and chest with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime.

VAPORUB'S SWIFT poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, clears air passages, tends to stop mouth breathing, and invites refreshing sleep. Try it.

the lead. Other centers of commercial pineapple culture are Australia, the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies, and the Union of South Africa. Most of the fresh fruit reaches the United States from the West Indies, chiefly Cuba and Puerto Rico, and arrives in Europe mainly from the Azores and the Canary Islands. Since 1850 the pineapple has been a product of Florida, at one time ranking next to citrus fruits, but since the plantations of the Florida Keys have declined, the crop has dropped to about 20,000 boxes.

Basis of Hawaii's Second Largest Industry. "Shipwrecked Spaniards from Mexico brought the pineapple to Hawaii, according to one island tale. Another relates how the fruit washed ashore among the provisions of a sinking whaling vessel. 'Foreign pandanus' is the natives' title for it, in recognition of its recent arrival and its resemblance to their hala tree's fruit. As early as 1813 the foreign fruit, half-wild but juicy nevertheless, had its place in Hawaiian gardens as an exotic table fruit fashionable during the reigns of the Kamehamehas.

"Now the ruddy green-crowned foreigner supports the second largest industry of the Territory. Ripening at a different season and thriving in different soil, it forms an ideal supplement to Hawaii's first love, sugar. For the 1935-36 season, the Territory's pack amounted to an estimated 10 million cases of pineapple and two and a half million cases of juice—300 million cans in all. The most popular variety is the Smooth Cayenne, not so spiny as the Red Spanish of the West Indies.

weeds and promotes a 20 percent greater yield.

"The plant develops a single stalk two to four feet high topped by its leaf rosette, immediately below which the stalk swells into fruit. The pineapple is really a composite of many individual fruits. Its collective nature appears in the flower cluster; a red-violet bloom of three petals forms at each 'eye' of the future pineapple. About a year and a half after planting, the fruit is ripe, yielding from 20 to 35 tons per acre.

Canning a Carload in 15 Minutes. "Two tons of raw pineapple make only one ton of canned fruit. Half gets to market as fruit, one-fourth as juice, and the other fourth in the form of various by-products, including pineapple bran for cattle feed, citric acid, and industrial alcohol, the latter being pineapple's third-ranking fruit in market value. Pineapple fiber was once used on the Pacific Islands to make the soft textile known as pina cloth, but machine-loomed cottons have eclipsed it entirely.

"About 1813, Henry Ginaca invented a machine to trim a pineapple down to canning size and rip out the core in one operation. The Ginaca machine is now coupled with a slicing machine and thousands of feet of belt conveyors.

"An up to date cannery in Honolulu can gulp down a carload of pineapples in two and a half minutes and 15 minutes later can shoot them out in cans. The quarter-hour of transformation includes peeling, coring, slicing, canning, sealing, cooking, and cooling. The output of one cannery is 150 cans every minute and one-half cans every second."

OCTOBER
[For The Courier-Gazette]
Alas, the summer months have flown. The swallows and the orioles have fled full many days. Even trees bright coloring seems pen- sive for their roundings. Along the roadside and over the hills there's gathered in brilliant mass. And blue eyed gentians smile goodbye as frosty mornings pass. In yellowing wood we hear the drop of nuts and leaves fall gently. And children playing by a stream find bird nests hanging empty. The maples in the swamps begin to flaunt their brilliant dresses. A scurry! The a pheasant shy. Aroused by footstep passing by. And high he wings for safety. Arresting glory fills the air. Magic cloud fire entrances. As sunset sinks in western sky And harvest moon completes the joy Of autumn's first advances. K. S. F. Rockland.

A Citizen Now

Mrs. David H. Buffum Gets Her Papers In Our National Capital

Elizabeth May Craig, Washington correspondent for the Portland Sunday Telegram, sends the following:

"Mrs. Annie Buffum, wife of David H. Buffum of Rockland, Maine, was granted U. S. citizenship here Sept. 26. Mr. Buffum has been in the U. S. foreign service since 1923. His first assignment was at Danzig, the Free City of the Polish Corridor—'What was Poland,' said Mr. Buffum, 'sitting at my desk in the visa section of the State Department.' 'His foreign assignment is Leipzig, and he was here on vacation when the war broke out and he was kept to help handle the rush.

"When will you go back?" I asked, but he shook his head. Nobody knows things like that nowadays. He is a consul, now.

"He was clerk to the Danzig consulate when he met Mrs. Buffum, born at Bronberg, in the Corridor—'what was the Corridor,' said Mr. Buffum.

"He and Mrs. Buffum came back to the United States in June and went to Rockland for vacation with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Buffum. Mrs. Buffum had never been naturalized, though they had been married 15 years. Under the law, the time during which she has been living with her American husband at his foreign post, can be counted as 'waiting time,' which ordinarily is three years. Mrs. Buffum did not have to wait at all because of her 15 years of marriage."

TONER-MOORE

The marriage of Miss Athale Moore to Charles M. Toner, both of Pittsfield is being announced by the bride's mother, Mrs. Jean Moore of Augusta. The event took place in Portland, Sept. 12, at the home of Rev. William Dawes Veazie, pastor of the Church of the Messiah before an intimate group of friends and relatives.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Eva L. Toner, mother of the bridegroom, while James Parsons, Jr., of Pittsfield was best man. The single ring service was used.

The bride graduated in June from Maine Central Institute where she has been violinist for the past four years in the MCI trio. She has attended the music camp at Castine Normal School for five seasons and received her teaching diploma from the American Institute of Normal Methods at LaSalle Junior College in Auburndale, Mass., this summer.

The groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Toner, Nichols street, Pittsfield, formerly of Rockland, graduated from Maine Central Institute in the class of 1938 where he was a member of the school orchestra and track squad. Last year, he attended Mechanics Institute in Rochester, N. Y., where he majored in photography. Since that time, he has been employed in Waterville and Portland studios.

Mr. and Mrs. Toner will reside at 60 Court street in Bangor where Mr. Toner has recently taken a position in the camera department of Dakin's Sporting Goods Store.

What Friendship Is

Friendship and love are beautiful in whatever sphere we find devotion. On Grove street, about half way between Union and Lincoln streets, one can witness real affection between what one might call a "Creole Angora" and a Caucasian or possibly Mulatto of nondescript age; having a white body and a black head, its quite difficult to decide about this gentle little doggy that has taken to his heart the fluffy kitty, with the most profound reciprocity on the part of the young cat. She cares little how old and decrepid her swain is—It's a case of real love. The writer has made friends with this gentle pair, at first with some difficulty as the Jealous Gentleman was fearful that his love being so beautiful might tempt a kidnapping—but after passing and greeting the pair for many days I find it something to look forward to as I pass up the street and find them waiting for a word to which they both respond in their own way.

'Twas A Good Buy

The Territory Of Alaska Is Becoming Increasingly Valuable

Ever since Seward pushed to a successful conclusion the purchase of Alaska, his critics have been forced to "eat their words." Alaska cost $7,200,000, an oversize sum for an ice box in 1867, but few investments of United States dollars in land have given better return.

Recently five hundred tons of oil drilling equipment were dispatched to new oil fields of southwest Alaska in the hope of adding petroleum to the long list of commodities now flowing from the territory.

"Without oil figuring in the role of an export, Alaska, last year, shipped to the United States products valued at nearly nine times the amount paid to Russia for the territory," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Alaska Spells It "Salmon"

"Alaska salmon canneries transported $42,036,365 worth of their products to the United States and fresh and cured salmon shipped were valued at two million dollars. Catching and canning salmon is by far Alaska's most important industry. It employs 25,000 people every year. Salmon are rapidly cleaned by efficient machines, called 'iron chinks' because they have replaced Chinese workers."

"Nearly every bay and inlet of Alaska has its waterside salmon cannery. Watch the shiploads of fresh fish pour in at one end and come out the other in a continuous stream of silvery cars, and you will realize that Alaska's factories produce more than half the canned salmon on world's pantry shelves. Because it is shipped to Seattle and distributed from there, Alaskans who want canned salmon usually import it from the United States. Last year they ordered $8,000 worth.

"Mineral wealth ranks next to fisheries in the territory. Last year Alaskan miners shipped to the United States nearly $7,000,000 worth of copper, about three times as much gold, and $71,000 worth of silver. The territory has extensive high-grade coal deposits, but costly transportation has hindered their exploitation.

Red, White, and Blue Foxes

"Ask a woman what Alaska means to her, and she will answer in one word: 'Furs!' Luxurious mink, sable, soft muskrat and beaver, and fluffy fox furs: blue, red, white, black, and silver—Alaska supplies these, as well as hides of hair seals, from which purses are made, and fur seal skins, which become popular, durable wearing apparel.

"The Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea are the breeding grounds of four-fifths of the fur seals in the world. The seals are protected by the Government and only immature males are killed. Last year 55,000 fur seals were taken. Nearly 1,000 blue fox pelts also were produced on the islands.

"Alaska has great forest resources of hemlock and spruce that have been only partially cut over.

"Vast acres in the territory, worthless for agriculture or forest, are used as grazing grounds for reindeer herds. About 1,280 reindeer were dispatched to Alaska in 1881-1902 from Lapland and Siberia. In 1938 there were 600,000 although many were killed to supply Eskimos with food and clothing. Last year the United States imported $16,000 worth of surplus reindeer meat and hides.

"Alaska is a good market for American goods, importing $42,860,774 worth in 1937. Largest single import was more than six million dollars worth of tin cans for salmon canneries. A million dollars worth of fish-canning equipment, and quantities of machinery and vehicles also were purchased by Alaskan industry. American ships brought to Alaskan ports meat and dairy products, nearly two million dozen eggs, grains, vegetables, and fruits, including, for the first time, canned peaches and pineapple. Farmers pointing to self-sufficiency imported 305,316 pounds of field and garden seeds.

"For Alaskan housewives made 'in the U. S.' baking soda, sewing machines and brooms, fancy soaps, perfume and cosmetics, and pianos were imported."

Krankenkassen, German's national illness insurance agency, has a membership of 20,000,000 persons, exclusive of family dependents of members who are also covered.

Are Not Fattening

The Current Belief Regarding White Potatoes Is Merely Superstition

The white potato, frequently shunned by persons trying to lose weight, is no more fattening than a large apple or a large orange, and provides the diet with valuable vitamins and minerals at low cost, says Miss Leone Dakin, extension foods specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Maine.

A potato is only 11 to 21 percent starch, and 78 percent water. Foods such as chocolates and rich starch puddings that contain large amounts of sugar and fats are considerably more fattening than potatoes, food specialists say.

Miss Dakin recommends that potatoes, whether baked, boiled, or steamed, be cooked in the skin. This saves most of the potato's food value. In baking potatoes, 450 degrees Fahrenheit is a good temperature if a crisp skin is desired.

"Since the pleasing mealiness of a baked potato is gradually lost as it cools or steams, the cook needs to do some pretty close timing to get the potatoes done just as dinner is ready. A good way to let the steam escape, and thus prevent soginess, is to cut a cross on one side of the baked potato after removing it from the oven and then to pick it up (in a cloth) and squeeze it gently until it bulges up into the cross-cut slash. Cutting alone does not serve the same purpose.

"If dinner is to be delayed, the potatoes might be scraped out of the skins mashed, seasoned, and beaten with cream or butter, piled back into the skins and reheated. Mature potatoes should be used for baking."

Moisture absorbed during cooking is the cause of soggy potatoes, Miss Dakin says. Steamed potatoes absorb less moisture than boiled ones and therefore are mealier, though not as meal as baked potatoes. To get the most mealiness, steaming should be rapid, and the skins of steamed potatoes removed at once after cooking.

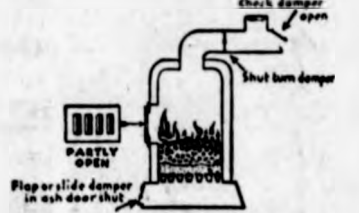

The rules for boiling, according to the food experts, are: "Have the water boiling rapidly when you put

HEATING HINTS

.. by John Barclay

ALTHOUGH banking the fire is a very simple operation, many people have trouble with it. Let me explain the method that I have found the most satisfactory.

First (and only if it is necessary to make room for fresh coal), gently shake the fire until you see the first red glow in the ashpit. Then with a shovel or hoe pull the live coals toward the front of the furnace, so that the fire bed slopes downward towards the back. Shovel the fresh coal carefully into the hollow thus formed. And, as in refueling, be sure to leave an exposed spot of live coals right in front of the fire door. This "hot spot" will act as a pilot light to ignite the gases given off by the fresh coal, preventing them from escaping into the house. When banking the fire for the night, the Ashpit Damper should be closed and the Check Damper open. The Turn Damper should be left as nearly closed as possible. And remember, it should never be necessary to leave the fire door open when the fire is banked. If you follow this procedure, your fire will stay in for the night and will deliver ample heat when you open the drafts in the morning. (4) the potatoes in, and cook them with the water boiling rapidly and continuously. Too vigorous boiling, however, makes potatoes go to pieces more quickly, especially pared ones.

"As soon as the potatoes are done, take them from the boiling water and remove the skins, for they'll get waterlogged if allowed to remain in the water and will be less fluffy if used for mashed potatoes."

The terms "longitude and latitude" came from ancient days when the earth was believed to be grouped around the Mediterranean sea. Since the sea was no longer east and west, the word "longitude" was used to denote east-west directions.

FRIENDLY ENEMIES

It's batting power vs. pitching skill when Joe DiMaggio and "Bucky" Walters meet face to face in the World Series. But they agree on smoking — they're both Camel fans!

Joe DiMaggio

William 'Bucky' Walters

LEADING BOTH LEAGUES in hitting — the great Joe DiMaggio. Can "Bucky" Walters stop him? Joe's a tough customer any time...an old hand at this World Series business...been in three World Series...batting for an average of .301. And Joe's a stone wall on the defense. Whether Joe or "Bucky" comes out on top, a Camel fan wins either way. "I'm often asked about my favorite cigarette brand," Joe says. "Well, it's Camels. Camels are long-burning. They give me the economy of extra smoking per pack—a real saving if you're a steady smoker like I am—they're milder, with a hearty flavor. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

Whatever price you pay per pack, it's important to remember this fact: By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—Camels give a smoking plus equal to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

1 MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
 2 ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE—LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!
 3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands. Don't deny yourself the pleasure of every smoker can afford.

"BUCKY" WALTERS...No. 1 pitcher of the National League...a hitter likely at any time to win his own ball game in the batter's box...It will be one of the big moments in the history of baseball when Walters and the Cincinnati Reds meet Joe DiMaggio and his New York Yankee team-mates. "Bucky" calls himself a "dyed-in-the-wool Camel fan." He says: "I've never found any other brand—at any price—that gives me anything like the downright smoking enjoyment that I get from Camels. Boy, do they taste good after a long, hard game! Camels burn longer, and that means a nice bonus of extra smokes in every pack."
