POLIO HALTS ACTIVITIES AS PEOPLE OF AREA REACT TO DEATH AND NEW CASES

Second Case, Possible Third Following
Kalloch Death Causes Cancellation
Litte League, Swimming, Picnics

Polio is in Rockland but not necessarily epidemic. Since the death Wednesday of 14 year old Carolyn Kalloch from bulbar polio, parents have besieged officials to learn the true situation locally.

A second case has been reported to Dr. Charles D. North, the city health officer. The child, Donna Penney, age three years nine months, is confined to her home on Gay Street Place. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Penney.

The child was moved to the Eastern Maine General Hospital in Bangor Friday afternoon with the local polio group making arrangements for transportation, treatment and financing.

A third case in Cushing is being checked but there is no definite word as yet.

Thomaston Schools

School Board Chairman Beniah Harding of Thomaston has issued a statement that schools of that community will not open on Sept. 2 as planned. He advises in an advertisement elsewhere in this edition the opening will not take place until the following Monday, Sept. 8.

Rockland Recreation Stopped

City Manager Frederick D. Farnsworth stated Friday that all swimming classes of the municipal recreation program have been cancelled.

In the morning, Friday, it was intended to allow the two city playgrounds to remain open with the supervisors instructed to not let the children become overtired.

Shortly after noon, on the suggestion of Dr. North, both areas were closed entirely.

Two children reported at one playground and four at the other. The usual attendance is upwards of 75 in each spot.

Legion Picnic Cancelled

Winslow-Holbrook-Merritt Post American Legion has cancelled its picnic for 100 underprivileged children planned for Sunday. This step, according to Chairman E. Allen Gordon, was taken on the advice of Dr. Charles D. North, city health officer.

Class of '42 Changes Plans

A family picnic and class reunion planned for Oakland Park Sunday has been cancelled by the Rockland High School Class of 1942.

The adults will meet for a banquet at Craigair Inn Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Little League Halted

Postmaster James Connellan, who is secretary of the Rockland Little League, and head of the polio group in the county, cancelled future games for the youngsters.

Connellan advised all players to turn in their uniforms to their managers as play would not be resumed for this year.

Festival Not Involved

George Parsons, local polio chairman, stated Friday that the children who now have polio could not have contracted the disease at the Festival of the past week-end.

He pointed out that physicians familiar with the disease state that the germ must be in the blood stream several days, possibly weeks, before it attacks the nerves and the first symptoms appear.

A rumor which was about the city Thursday and Friday that the Kalloch girl worked in a Festival booth is absolutely unfounded.

The child and companions were at the Festival Sunday for a brief time as spectators only.

Financing Diagnosis

James Connellan, head of the Infantile Paralysis groups in the county, said Friday afternoon that his organization would finance costs of diagnosis where polio is suspected. This is in order that no child or adult would have to go without a proper check if the disease was suspected at all, he said.

Polio Foundation Suggestions

Aware of the desire of parents to protect the health and safeguard the welfare of their children during the polio season, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis issues an annual message about this disease bringing factual information about it into every home at a time when interest and anxiety are greatest.

Still without scientific means of controlling polio, medical authorities can offer no positive preventive steps. There are, however, several simple precautions which everyone can follow easily. They are listed in the National Foundation's annual Polio Precautions in a series of "dos" and "don'ts", based upon scientific studies financed by the March of Dimes.

On the positive side of polio, parents are urged to allow their children to play with the friends they have been with right along but to keep them away from new people, especially in the close daily living of a home. This advice is based on the scientific belief that once polio has appeared in a community, the virus is probably widespread. At times like these, the children in your home have probably come in contact with the virus already and may be developing a degree of resistance to it.

Polio Precautions

Other positive recommendations of the National Foundation included in Polio Precautions, and the reasons for them, are:

Do wash hands carefully before eating and always after using the toilet. This is especially important when polio is around. Also, keep food covered. Hands may carry polio infection into the body through the mouth. Scientists have determined that large amounts of virus are excreted from the bowel and throat of a patient as well as from the healthy carrier during seasonal outbreaks.

Do watch for signs of sickness, such as headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, sore muscles, stiff neck or back, extreme tiredness or nervousness, trouble in breathing or swallowing. Polio starts in different ways. Because symptoms vary from the very vague to actual paralysis, all of them should be watched closely during this period.

Do watch for signs of sickness, once, away from others and call the doctor immediately. While paralysis cannot be prevented, doctors have determined that early bedrest and prompt treatment influence progress of the disease and lessen the severity of disability.

The polio "don't" recommended by the National Foundation are:

Don't get over-tired by hard play, work or travel. Scientists believe that once a person has become infected with polio, a delicate balance exists between the polio virus and the body's ability to fight it. A recent study showed that heavy exertion in the early stages of the disease resulted in more severe and extensive paralysis.

Don't get chilled: don't bathe or swim too long in cold water or sit around in wet clothes. Research has indicated that chilling and physical exertion seem to lower the body resistance to the virus once it has entered the body.

Don't have mouth or throat operations during a polio outbreak. Recent surveys have demonstrated that tonsillectomies performed at this time increase the risk of getting bulbar polio (the most serious form) by 11 times.

Don't use another person's soiled towels, dishes, tableware or the like. Virus is excreted from the bowel and throat and may be transferred unknowingly by these means.

Don't take children to places where there is polio; ask your health department for advice. Moving the child might needlessly expose him to the polio virus.

Don't take your child out of camp or playground, where there is good health supervision. He probably has already been exposed to the virus by the time a case has been reported. Routine daily living under proper supervision, such as good camps and playgrounds offer, is a safeguard to his health.

Above all, don't get panicky or lose your head if the doctor's diagnosis is polio. Remember that at least 50 percent of all diagnosed cases get well without any crippling. Another 25 percent recover

Fisherman Drowns

Chester Havener, Friendship Lobsterman Found In Cove Thursday Night

The body of Chester Havener, 64, Friendship lobsterman, was found floating in Hatchet Cove at Friendship about 9:30 p. m. Thursday. The body was discovered by Melvin Simmons who notified Sheriff Willard Pease at Rockland.

Dr. Charles D. North, Knox County Medical Examiner, rendered a verdict of accidental drowning. Mr. Havener was known to have been under treatment for a heart ailment.

He had earlier told his wife that he was going to his lobster boat to shut off the gas line which he had not done when he came in from hauling his traps.

Those familiar with his practices in caring for his power boat believe that he suffered an attack as he climbed from a small boat into the larger craft, slipping into the water in a semi-conscious condition.

Mr. Havener had been a fisherman for 40 years and was a native of Bremen. He was born in Bremen July 30, 1888 to Lewis and Cora Nash Havener.

Surviving are his widow, Alfretha Miller Havener; a son, Sterling of Friendship and a daughter, Mrs. Isabelle Thibodeau of Friendship. Also, four sisters, Mrs. Hattie Prior, Friendship; Mrs. Abbie Simmons, Bremen; Mrs. Mildred Kuhn, Waldoboro and Mrs. Edna Genthner of Bremen.

Two brothers, Winfield Havener of Waldoboro and William Havener of Friendship also survive him as well as three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held from the Advent Christian Church in Friendship at 2 p. m. Sunday, with Rev. Everett Pender officiating. Burial will be in Harvor View Cemetery.

with no disabling after-effects; 17 percent may be severely paralyzed, and about eight percent may die.

Telephone your local Chapter of the National Foundation if you want advice or need help. The local chapter head is George Parsons whose telephone is Rockland 644. County Chapter head is Rockland Postmaster James Connellan whose business telephone is Rockland 485.

Remember that no patient need go without adequate care for lack of money. The National Foundation Chapter will pay what the family cannot afford. The local Chapters, supported by your contributions to the March of Dimes exist for this purpose.

Owl's Head Women Seeking Equipment For Central School Dining Hall

The School Improvement League met in the new central school for the first time Wednesday night, with Mrs. Elizabeth Walker, president presiding. It was voted to hold a public supper, Aug. 27, in connection with the dedication ceremonies of the new building which are to be held that night.

It would be greatly appreciated if all those having dishes to donate to the kitchen would take them to Mrs. Elizabeth Walker or any of the League members or call them if transportation is needed. Compartment trays and silverware have been purchased for the children's school lunch program, but dishes of all kinds, plates, cups and saucers, bowls, large pitchers, serving spoons, cutting knives, dish towels and cloths, pot holders, sugar bowls, cream pitchers, salt and pepper shakers, etc., are urgently needed for the coming supper. Anyone having dishes or kitchen equipment of any kind please call 943-M1.

It was also voted to hold a rummage sale, Sept. 27, in Rockland. All those having articles for this sale may contact Mrs. Yvonne Oakes, chairman.

The doll, with wardrobe made by Mrs. Polly Lowell, will be given away at the October meeting.

The new kitchen was christened by Mrs. Margaret Knowlton, chairman of the refreshment committee, assisted by Mrs. Annabelle Stone, Mrs. Olive Dow, Mrs. Elizabeth Walker, and Mrs. Inez Montgomery, who served doughnuts, coffee and cheese. Others present were Mrs. Florence Young, Mrs. Vera Mathieson, Mrs. Mary Dyer, Mrs. Thelma Murray, Mrs. Alma Walker, Mrs. Yvonne Oakes, Mrs. Tillie Hooper, Mrs. Mary Epps, Mrs. Lucy Mahon, Mrs. Arthur Marriner, Mrs. Willard Roberts.

FIRE FIGHTERS DEMONSTRATION

Rockland Department Host, Instructor To Maine Firemen In September

The Rockland Fire Department is sponsoring an instructive demonstration of modern fire fighting methods and equipment here on Sept. 5 and 6. Chief Van Russell said Friday that it would be the largest such demonstration ever held in Maine.

The Rockland Department will give a complete demonstration of salvage methods on the opening day and there will be talks by various authorities on different phases of fire fighting.

Chief among the guests is Fire Chief Paul Hines of New Haven, Conn., who is recognized as an expert in the field.

The outdoor demonstration will be held on the sixth at Schofield-White Park and will include the Lobster War?

A warrant charging assault with intent to kill against Allen Fifield of Stonington was dismissed in Municipal Court Friday morning when the complainant, Kenneth Hildings of Vinahaven, refused to press charges.

Costs of $22.90 were paid by the defendant.

The two men are lobster fishermen. The warrant alleged that Fifield had rammed the boat of Hildings with his own boat, after an argument in waters off Vinahaven on July 29, causing the latter to sink while being towed to port. Hildings was taken into Fifield's boat after his own sank.

It is understood that Fifield will make restitution for the complainant's boat.

Blue Baby Dies

David Neubig Of Friendship Succumbed Following Rare Operation Thursday

David Myron Neubig, 6, of Friendship died following a blue baby operation in a Portland Hospital Thursday.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kaler Neubig had been at the hospital twice previously where preparations were made for the operation which, it was hoped, would restore him to health.

He is survived by his parents and a brother John Neubig, Jr., and a sister, Mary Ann.

Funeral services will be held from the Friendship Methodist Church Sunday at 3 p. m. Rev. Kathleen I. Weed will officiate. Burial will be in the family lot in Friendship.

Bearers are to be Kenneth, Stanley and Merland Simmons, William Minder, John Appel and Myron Wotton.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Waltz Funeral Home in Waldoboro.

Highway Roped

Near Crash At Rockville On Thursday Caused By Rope Stretched Across Road

The Sheriff's Department is investigating today an incident at Rockville Thursday night which might well have killed a motorist and occupants of his car.

Maurice Miller of Rockland and his family came within inches of being the victims of what was a most vicious act.

As Miller tells it, the family was driving through Rockville about 9 p. m. when Mrs. Miller who was at the wheel slammed on the brakes of the car, tossing their two children out of their seats and shaking up both she and her husband.

Inches ahead of the front of the car was stretched a three quarters inch diameter rope, just at windshield height. The rope was securely fastened to utility poles on opposite sides of the road. Had persons in an open car come along and not seen the rope, it could have decapitated them.

The trick is one practiced in Germany just after the war and one which killed a number of American troops operating Jeeps.

Sheriff Pease sent Deputy Maynard Ingraham to the scene. When he arrived minutes after Miller had reported the incident, the rope had been removed. Friday, a house to house check was made of the area to locate the rope if possible and track down the children, or adults, who might have roped off the highway.

Town Gives $300; Dance Is Set For Wednesday Night At Spruce Head Hall

The drive for funds to purchase a tank wagon for the South Thomaston Fire Department has been bolstered by the town which has given $300.

Voters in a special town meeting Wednesday evening, voted the sum to aid the volunteers in obtaining the needed equipment. The tank truck will carry water to fire locations for use by the town's fire truck which is a combination tanker and pumper.

First contribution in the drive came from Seth Tripp of New Hampshire who read of the drive in The Courier-Gazette. Mr. Tripp sent one dollar and his best wishes for success.

Next step in the drive is a fireman's ball which the department will hold at the Spruce Head Community Hall Wednesday night August 13. All profits from the dance and the refreshment booth will go to the truck fund.

MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING

You cannot buy brains. You cannot buy the artist's touch, the musician's ear or the gift of song. You cannot buy a good name, an easy conscience or a stainless reputation.

You cannot buy a big, manly heart or the faith of a little child. You cannot buy a good man's confidence or a woman's love.

Neither can you buy happiness—often it has a way of running from the person with great possessions.

Much less can you buy self-respect, the right to pray or a place in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Gen. Eisenhower Presents 10-Point Program For a Lasting Peace

Gen. Eisenhower has sketched his plans for America "closer to our hearts' desire"—a 10-point program for lasting peace, honest government, equality for all and loyalty in Federal service.

Greeted with a rousing ovation from old comrades in arms at the 53rd annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), the Republican presidential nominee called, too, for protection of the people's earnings and savings from a "double toll of high prices and taxes."

In advance of the speech, Eisenhower reviewed a colorful VFW corps parade in Los Angeles' huge open-air coliseum.

The General's speech was billed as non-political, but the program he outlined was regarded by his advisers as the basis for his fourth-coming campaign.

Flanked by Gov. Earl Warren and VFW National Commander Frank Hilton, of Reading, Penn., Gen. Eisenhower watched the veterans parade with obvious enjoyment. On the same platform sat the General's running mate, Senator Richard M. Nixon, GOP vice presidential nominee.

Eisenhower wore a white VFW cap bearing the insignia of Kansas Post No. 3279.

The parade included VFW units from many States and service bands from Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps installations throughout Southern California.

In his speech the General set for the these "positive objectives" for America:

"1. To increase America's strength: Spiritual, creative and material.

"2. To win a just and lasting peace secured by the strength of the free world.

"3. To build a prosperity not based on war.

"4. To make America's promise of equality a living fact for every American.

"5. To protect the earnings and savings of the people from a double toll of high prices and high taxes.

"6. To serve the worthy interests of every group of our people, yet make the test of each policy; is it good for America?

"7. To restore honesty in government.

"8. To insure, by means which guard our basic rights, that those who serve in government are Americans of loyalty and dedication.

"9. To revive in every American the faith that he can achieve a better future for himself and his family."

Eisenhower said: "These points are not a program of impossibilities."

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET FOR PRESIDENT, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER FOR VICE PRESIDENT, RICHARD NIXON

[EDITORIAL]

CLAIRE IS WILLING?

Former Congresswoman Claire Booth Luce is definitely interested in the U. S. Senatorial appointment in Connecticut, but only in the event that Gov. Lodge does not want it himself. Luce and Smith, what a team of feminine Senatorial workers that would make. We are not familiar with Connecticut's political workings, but would not be averse to seeing it come about.

REPUBLICANS BEST PLEASED

Dr. Gallup has been making a poll of the country to see how the voters liked the recent national conventions. And here is what he found: With the Republican convention 72 percent were pleased, 17 percent were not pleased and 11 percent were undecided. With the Democratic convention 54 percent were pleased, 26 percent were not pleased and 20 percent were undecided. Further inquiry revealed that a larger percentage read the newspaper accounts than saw the convention on television or heard it on the radio.

DEMOCRATS ARE PLEASED

The decision of Gov. Byrnes of South Carolina to support the Stevenson ticket naturally causes much elation among the Democrats, who had feared that the State might slip into the Eisenhower column. The Democrats have every right to be pleased for the influence exerted by Gov. Byrnes will go a long way toward solidifying party support. There continues to exist a strong feeling of unrest below the Mason and Dixon line, however. Another evidence is found in Louisiana where the Shreveport Journal has come out with a front page editorial endorsing Gen. Eisenhower. It marks the first time in the Journal's 57 year's history that it has given its support to a Republican candidate. We have already told of the large number of Democratic newspapers in the South which are supporting the Republican ticket.

IMPROVING OUR ROADS

When all of the roadbuilding which is now in progress in this city is completed Rockland will hardly know itself. How important the improvements are can best be judged when the wheels begin to roll on the rebuilt stretches.

TRUMAN TAKES A LICKING

In his home state of Missouri, President Truman's personal selections carry little weight with the voters. He has thrice meddled in local politics in the last six years and was rebuffed every time. The margin of defeat has grown substantially on each occasion. In 1946 Mr. Truman managed to purge Congressman Slaughter in the Democratic primary but lost the general election. Two years ago Senator Jennings got the Democratic nomination in a close fight against the President's opposition. It might appear that Mr. Truman would have learned his lesson, but nevertheless he stuck his neck out again, and suffered the greatest defeat of all. On Tuesday, Stuart Symington won the Democratic nomination for United States Senator by two to one over the President's candidate, State Attorney General J. E. Taylor, in a record outpouring of voters. Even the Truman home precinct in Independence went for Symington, 114 to 20.

In this landslide the Missouri Democrats simply refused to be bossed. They voted for the man instead of the party. Mr. Symington was obviously the better candidate. He made a vigorous and intelligent campaign, visiting practically all of the 114 counties. He emphasized America's part in the world, and spoke forcefully for governmental efficiency and against corruption. His record was plainly one of the best—as a successful business man, as first secretary of the Air Force and as cleanser of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It was a case of ability against a machine politician whose chief claim for support was that Mr. Truman called him "one of my best friends in Missouri." The party electorate chose with discrimination. In St. Louis, for example, the same voters who chose Symington also kicked the notorious Callahan machine out of power. All in all, it was a fine day for genuine independence in politics. The voters refused to be bossed, by President Truman or anybody else. —Herald Tribune.

Pfc. Hugh Williams of Fort Dix, N. J., is spending his furlough with his mother, Mrs. Charles Sumner Williams.

Mrs. Merle Plummer and cousin of South Portland and Mrs. Redington Robbins of Thomaston called on the Olivers last Sunday.

Mrs. Ralph Simmons of Boothbay formerly of this town, is staying at the home of Melvin Simmons, during her husband's illness. He is at the Eastern Maine General Hospital in Bangor, and was released from the hospital Wednesday Aug. 6 very much improved from his recent operation.

The Farm Bureau picnic will be held with Dr. Platt Friday, Aug. 8. Don't forget to take lunch including a beverage. Anyone wishing to invite their friends may do so.

Sidney Carter and sister Rosa Carter and his mother Mrs. Jane Carter Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Pottle Gruen and Gordon Winchenbach were in Rockland Saturday.

TOUGH NUT TO CRACK

But Bun Thompson's Homer Did the Trick—Holden Again a Winner

(By Bob Mayo)

The Rockets won their fifth straight game Thursday night over Camden by a 2-0 score. The visitors offered surprisingly strong resistance and their pitcher, Johnny Crabtree, proved a tough nut to crack. The illustrious Bun Thompson took care of this however, as he blasted a homer over the left field fence with none aboard in the second inning to provide the winning run. The Rockets notched an insurance marker in the eighth without benefit of a hit—two errors, a passed ball, an infield out being responsible.

The Rockets started Billy Holden expecting to use him only a couple of innings, but were forced to leave him in over the route to protect their slim margin. He pitched one of his better games, fanning 13. Thompson had a single to go along with his homer and was the leading sticker. Sumner Ward doubled for one of Camden's five hits.

It appears that St. George and Waldoboro were supposed to meet Thursday night to play off their Wednesday game which was postponed by rain. St. George and the umpires were ready but only about five of the Waldoboro players put in an appearance. Art Kinney said Friday the game would probably be played later but the umpires were supposed to work the game and made the trip for nothing were not too happy about the situation Thursday night. Score:

Rockland 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 x—2-7-0

Crabtree and Young; Holden and Thompson.

The Lions nipped Rotary 6-5 Thursday night with big Julian Rubenstein staggering through for his fifth straight pitching triumph. A sixth inning Rotary rally fell one run short. The win puts the Lions a half game behind league leading Rotary. Doug Raye homered in the first with no one aboard for Rotary and Red Lunt had two hits for the Lions. Score:

Lions 1 1 0 0 1 3—6-8-1
Rotary 1 0 0 0 4—5-6-1

Rubenstein and Jordan; Freeman and Mitchell.

The Tigers bested the Wildcats 9-7 in a Waldoboro LL game Thursday with Gary Robinson the hero. He relieved in the third to halt a wildcat rally and held the Cats scoreless the rest of the way while his mates caught up and went ahead. He contributed three hits to the cause also. Billy Dow and Roger Wilson had two hits each for the Tigers. Score:

DR. STEIN GIVES CARDIOGRAPH

Vinalhaven Health Group Receives Gift From Summer Resident In Campaign

The Vinalhaven drive for funds with which to purchase needed medical services equipment has been given a decided boost by an island Summer guest.

Dr. Paul Stein of New York, eminent cardiac specialist, has donated a Beck-Lee cardiograph unit to the Island Community Health Services and the Vinalhaven Community Health Council. The unit, one of the devices which the group intended to buy with the funds raised, is valued at approximately $750.

In addition to the gift, Dr. Stein has offered to instruct in use of the equipment and to serve as consultant. He is on the staff of three New York City hospitals: City Hospital, Gouverneur Hospital and Montefiore Hospital.

The gift is described by drive committee personnel as being of tremendous importance to the expanding services offered Vinalhaven residents and those of the outer islands.

Dr. Stein said, in making the gift, "I am happy to present and dedicate this cardiograph to the people of Vinalhaven and the outlying islands to help raise the level of medical services available. I know that it will be used to best advantage for the health of our island people under the auspices of the Vinalhaven Community Health Council which is performing so great a service to the community."

The fund drive, which ends Aug. 9, now has reached a total of $2900; $600 short of the goal of $3500. However, promised funds from persons who have not yet donated or pledged, may take the drive over the top.

Townpeople and Summer residents alike have taken an active part in the drive.

Municipal Court

Sterling Proctor, 5 Donahue Lane Rockland was found guilty of drunken driving in Municipal Court Thursday morning and was fined $100 and costs of $2.70. He appealed and furnished $200 bail for his appearance at the November term of Knox Superior Court.

The case had been continued from Monday to await result of a blood test which was found to be over the minimum. He was arrested by Rockland Police on Park street Sunday night.

Elliot Copeland, listed on the warrant as of Rockland but whose address was unknown to police, was found guilty of drunken driving. His case had been continued from Monday to await results of a blood test which was found to be over the 15 minimum. He paid a fine of $100 and costs of $8.

Richard Rogers, 137 Thomaston street pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without a license and paid a fine of $10 and costs of $3 in Court Friday.

He pleaded innocent to another complaint that he left the scene of an accident without making himself known but was found guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs of $1. He also arranged to make restitution for damages to the car of Howard Kennison which he sideswiped on Main Street Wednesday night.

Somewhere along the line there must be a limit fixed for both taxes and expenditures.

Lincoln County Club Will Support the Democratic Nominee

A Lincoln County Oliver-for-Governor Club has been organized. Ralph B. Cheney, prominent Damariscotta Real Estate Dealer and president of the group, announced.

Cheney, long active in Maine Democratic circles, declared that the group would "wage an intensive campaign battle to swing Lincoln County behind Jim Oliver." (Democratic candidate for Governor).

Declaring that the group's membership includes both democrats and Republicans, Cheney said that the club would be a "bi-partisan effort to give Maine a progressive, alert State administration headed by James C. Oliver."

The Damariscotta man announced that Alton G. Winchenbach of West Waldoboro had been elected vice chairman and that Mrs. Arlene MacKeechne of Damariscotta would serve as secretary-treasurer. Executive committee members include Mrs. Alice Hanrahan of Waldoboro, Edwin Collamore of Bremen and Mrs. Phoebe Farrin of Walpole.

Quoddy Project

Gov. Payne Says That Interest In It Is Higher Than Ever

Money for an engineering study of the proposed Quoddy tidal power development will come "only if the present administration changes in Washington," Gov. Frederick G. Payne said.

"The Republican Party, both in the state and Nation, is dedicated to the development of water power wherever possible and feasible," Payne said. "A United Republican Congressional delegation working closely with a Republican National administration can accomplish more for Maine than we have been receiving."

The Governor GOP candidate for the U. S. Senate, spoke at the second in a series of county rallies in the campaign for the Sept. 8 election.

He said interest in harnessing the high tides of Passamaquoddy Bay is higher than ever among the public and Republicans in high places. "This is the result," he said, "of a constant reminder to them that industrial expansion, so necessary for our defense effort, can be increased greatly with the development of greater power facilities."

ANALYZING BASEBALL FINISH

Expert Says It Seems To Have Narrowed Down To Yankees vs. Cleveland and Brooklyn vs. Giants

By Ed Rumill
Sports Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

In the major leagues, the big clock on the clubhouse wall is ticking faster now. Time is running out on all clubs trailing the leaders. This is the stage of the campaign when the schedules take on added importance. Do the unplayed games favor the Yankees or Indians in the American League, or the Dodgers or Giants in the National?

This seems as good a time as any to take a look, with rains shortening the schedules throughout the East. For two nights in a row the Braves and Phillies have been rained out of twilight-night double-headers and were to try again this evening.

In the National, no matter what folks in such towns as St. Louis and Philadelphia may be dreaming, the pennant race has now narrowed to just two clubs. Leo Durocher caught the Braves a year ago, but can he do it again? Rival ball players and managers think he cannot. They say the percentage is against a club running off two sensational finishes two successive years. And, besides, they think the Dodgers will not collapse again.

However, the answer to this question probably lies hidden in the official schedule. There we find 12 more dates involving the Giants and Dodgers, and it may be significant that in 10 meetings to date, the Durocher men have walked off with seven victories. If Leo can keep that up, he has a chance, obviously.

The Giants may get help from other sources. For example, they play only nine games with the much improved Phillies, while the Braves play 12. Leo has 13 dates with the Braves. Charley Dressen has just nine—and the Braves have not been doing too well.

The Dodgers play five games with the tough Cardinals, the Giants only four. Dressen plays a total of 15 games with the Reds, Cubs and Pirates, while Durocher plays 16. The difference may be slight in some of these cases, but in a close race, one game could be the difference.

In the American League, we find the schedule smiling on the Indians, who trail the Yankees by only a few games.

First and perhaps foremost is the fact that during the month of September, when the pressure will be the heaviest, the Yankees are called upon to play 18 games on the road and just five at Yankee Stadium. The Indians, meanwhile, will play the fat number of 18 home dates and just four away.

The Yanks and Indians meet only three more times, not leaving Al Lopez much chance to take personal care of Casey Stengel. But it is important that while the Tribe is playing 29 more games with the Tigers, Browns and White Sox, the three least potent outfits in the American League, the Yankees will be playing a similar number versus the Red Sox, Athletics and Senators. That may turn out to be too large an order for Stengel, even though ball players still think he has the best balanced club in the circuit.

The Liquor Probe

Attorney General La Fleur Says He Wants Prompt Action

The attorney general's investigation of Maine's liquor monopoly will be "pushed all the harder," he said, despite refusal of the Chief Justice to call a special grand jury session to hear more evidence.

Alexander A. LaFleur said Chief Justice Harold H. Murchie's decision that a special court session is not warranted will have no effect on the probe.

It "absolutely" will be continued, he said. He added that "I have assigned additional personnel to it," both from within his department and outside. "We are working day and night," he said.

Asked whether he planned to renew the matter before the October grand jury in Kennebec County, LaFleur said, "We hope so. We've got to. That's the earliest time we can get in."

The June grand jury considered liquor matters for nearly a week after a Legislative Research Committee hearing produced sensational charges of graft and influence peddling connected with the State liquor commission.

It adjourned June 13, however, without making any decisions, and asked LaFleur to continue his investigation. It asked to be called back into session to hear further evidence, if any, on Sept. 9, the day after the State election and a month before the next regular term.

LaFleur decided he would be ready sooner and asked Murchie to call the jury into session Aug. 18. He argued that to wait until October would mean that the present grand jury would be discharged and that it would be expensive to repeat all the evidence that was given earlier.

Opposes Bigotry

"Tactics Of the Communists" Declares Gen. Eisenhower

Gen. Eisenhower denounces appeals to prejudice and bigotry in political campaigns. He said "those are the tactics of the Communists." The Republican presidential nominee made the statement in expressing wholehearted approval of a resolution calling on all GOP candidates for public office to:

1. Reject political arguments and appeals based on religious or racial prejudices.
2. Censure attempts "to subvert the American tradition" through such appeals.

The resolution was adopted by the Minnesota GOP State Executive Committee, which also urged Eisenhower to endorse it. A copy of the resolution was presented to the general today by Mrs. Elizabeth Heflinger, Republican National committeewoman from Minnesota.

A Tribute

Mrs. Clara Emery Packard Was Member Of Distinguished Family

With the death on May 28 of Mrs. Clara Hope Emery Packard, a distinguished member of a distinguished family closed life's book, leaving but one member to carry on its traditions.

Mrs. Packard was born April 17, 1872, at Rose Hill Farm, Owl's Head, the family have for many generations, her parents Bradford Alden Emery and Elizabeth Madocks Emery. She was married to Franklin Marlborough Packard in February 1908 and to the union was born one child which died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Packard made their home in Boston for a number of years, returning to Rose Hill Farm for a time prior to the death of Mr. Packard in 1938.

Following his passing Mrs. Packard made a visit of three years in India, a great highlight in her life. Once more in America she spent several Summers at her beloved ancestral home and then went to North Edgcomb there to make her home with her niece, Mrs. Elizabeth Addison Speed (Mrs. Harold C. Speed.) Death came to her on May 28th of this year.

The only living member of the family remaining is Mrs. Faith R. Emery Hurd of Boston. Mrs. Packard is survived by four nieces: Phyllis Addison Russell, (Mrs. Paul F. Russell) now in Rome; Faith Addison Peacock (Mrs. Alfred G. Peacock) Chaplain, Air Force Base Puerto Rico; Ruth Addison Coggin (Mrs. Paul F. Coggin) Glen Ridge, N. J., and Elizabeth Addison Speed, (Mrs. Harold C. Speed) North Edgcomb, Me. Funeral services were held in Boothbay and the remains cremated, the ashes being scattered in her favorite woodland spot. She was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston.

By request of a friend a portion of the story printed in a Portland newspaper relating to Mrs. Packard's experiences in India is repeated.

Clara E. Packard of Rose Hill Farm, Owl's Head recounted today how she returned to this country from three years in India—a trip aboard a huge naval transport that took 32 days to reach New York after being forced to take the long route by war conditions.

Mrs. Packard who was visiting her nephew and niece, Dr. and Mrs. Paul F. Russell, malariologist for the Rockefeller Foundation lived with them in the palace of a Rajah in Coonoor, near the seaport of Madras on India's southeast coast.

When the Japanese took over Burma, Mrs. Packard continued, and the doctor's term had expired in India, they were fortunate in getting to Bombay in time to catch the last boat out of India with 500 other Americans.

The same boat which took them from Bombay had come from Singapore where it had been bombed with loss of life, Mrs. Packard said, and subsequently during the long voyage home during which the great ship was without convoy until it reached North Atlantic waters it was reported five times to have been destroyed by the Japanese in various places.

The 32 days were under great tension, Mrs. Packard continued, everyone aboard being considered as a member of the crew and wearing lifebelts constantly with a bag also packed ready with necessities in case of attack.

During the last week of the voyage the big boat was conveyed by an American warcraft.

Then one day early this Spring, the transport slipped quietly without fanfare into New York Harbor and Mrs. Packard admitted she was thoroughly glad to be in this Country again.

PRESIDENT WYMAN'S LETTER

Description Of Central Maine's Condition Financial and Otherwise

In his second quarterly stockholder letter President William P. Wyman reported CMP's kilowatt-hour sales for the first five months of 1952 were 3.6% higher than for the similar period last year, despite the fact that industrial sales of energy were down 2.9% for the same period. While this is not as favorable a comparative gain as was recorded the previous year, it certainly indicates increased use of electricity among all general classifications of customers.

The decrease in industrial sales was largely due to the lower production levels of some textile plants and currently this industry too is showing steady improvement. "Water conditions have continued at better than normal for the year to date and all storage reservoirs were filled at the end of the Spring runoff," Mr. Wyman reported. "This has benefited earnings as it has reduced the amount of output required from the Company's fuel burning plants. Earnings for the 12-months' period ending May 31, 1952, were equivalent to $1.48 per share of common stock now outstanding."

The status of the two major construction programs finds that the first of the two new units at Mason is nearly ready to go, and the 45,000-kw hydro development at Indian Pond has been re-scheduled for completion by December 1954.

Mr. Wyman also reported on the New England-New York Inter-Agency Committee hearing which was held in Augusta on June 12 at which a number of industries other than the electric companies also voiced opposition to the government developing the State's natural resources.

In mid-May the annual meeting of stockholders re-elected all members of the Board of Directors who then held a meeting and re-elected all CMP officers.

Several special items were considered at the meeting, including (1) the proposed increase in the number of shares of common stock from 2,500,000 to 3,250,000 and of preferred stock from 300,000 to 330,000; (2) the by-laws change which would permit cumulative voting by stockholders at elections of directors, thus allowing a stockholder to multiply as many shares of voting stock as he owns by the total number of directors and either casting them all as votes for one individual or distributing them as he sees fit; (3) the by-laws change which increases from one-third to a majority the number of votes representing outstanding shares of capital stock required for a quorum at stockholders' meetings.

Mr. Wyman explained in some detail the reason for the by-laws change resulting in cumulative voting for directors as follows: "The matter was originally brought to the Company's attention by the staff of the Public Utilities Division of the Securities and Exchange Commission at the time of our financing last December. We were then given to understand that these steps were necessary to bring our by-laws into conformity with the standards evolved by the Securities and Exchange Commission for registered holding companies and their subsidiaries. While the Company received no written communication from the Commission fully setting forth its position the expressed views of the staff did not differ in effect from those outlined in a letter on this and similar matters to another utility company, the American Gas and Electric Company, from the Director of the Public Utilities Division of the Commission. Part of that letter reads as follows:

"Such amendments can, of course, be effected by the company on its own initiative by filing a declaration for that purpose with the Commission and obtaining the necessary affirmative votes of the company's stockholders."

"Unless the company initiates such action and obtains the affirmative vote of the stockholders, we would regard it as necessary to raise these questions in connection with applications or declarations which may be filed by the company, or to recommend that the Commission proceed on its own motion to place these matters in issue and take the necessary corrective actions. We appreciate that such questions might require an extended hearing and that, if they were raised in connection with a matter such as a financing application, the incident delay might materially affect the planned scheduling of such financing. We have therefore thought it appropriate to give you our views on these matters at this time so that you may consider whether you will wish to initiate such proposals for submission at the company's next annual meeting."

Under the circumstances the board of directors felt that it was to the best interest of the Company that the by-law changes be adopted."

Dividend checks were mailed with the letter to stockholders of record June 19, 1952.

FARM AND GRANGE NEWS OF INTEREST IN KNOX AND LINCOLN COUNTIES

Food Guide

Three U. of M. Specialists Collaborated In Writing New, Free Publication

How Maine people can get what they need from foods grown or marketed throughout the state is described in the recently reprinted "Food Guide for Maine People." Maine Extension Circular 268, Free copies may be obtained from county Extension Service offices at Rockland or by writing to the Extension Service, University of Maine, Orono.

Circular 268 points out that eating the foods you need will help to grow a sound, healthy body; do your best physical and mental work; resist and overcome fatigue; resist and get well from disease; and get the most satisfaction from life.

The leaflet explains that we need many different combinations of foods. There is no one best combination. But the kinds of foods that can be grown at home or bought economically are affected by soil, climate and transportation. The circular makes use of studies at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station to help people in this state eat for better health.

The leaflet outlines the basic seven food groups, which include the foods the body really needs. Some food from each of these seven groups should be eaten each day. It's especially important to get plenty of fruits and vegetables and milk products.

Authors of the circular are Dr. Kathryn E. Briwa, Extension foods specialist; Dr. Mary M. Clayton, nutritionist of the Experiment Station; and Dr. Marlon D. Sweetman, head of the department of home economics of the University of Maine.

County Agent's Corner

Dear Farmer:

Finally, we have some rain. I presume that you all know that, but thought to mention it anyway. It's nice to be able to say, and there are a few things we should think about, too.

Several farmers have had their cows on regular pasture all through the dry spell and let the cows nibble it down until there was practically nothing left. It would seem to me that the cows should be off this kind of pasture for a time, anyway, until the grass and clover has had a chance to recover somewhat.

I think that it is very important for us to remember the very important point of Ladino clover taking 21 days, in Maine, after it has been fed off, to replace the nutrients in the roots that were used up in growing the plant above the soil. I am afraid that if we let the cows keep chewing and munching this pasture land, the plants won't have enough time to replenish the food in the roots, and we will have just that much more winter killing.

Apparently, Ladino can be fed in the Fall just before winter provided that, before the last pasturing, this three week period of grace to the plant has been allowed.

If at all possible, I'd suggest giving the pastures a chance to come back before pasturing again.

Naturally, we are all sorry that the rain didn't come in time to help the blueberry men. Not only does it hurt them directly, but every one of us who are not directly farmers are going to get hurt as well.

I'm just wondering how many more irrigation set-ups will be in the county next year. In one day last week, I talked with two men who have written to companies supplying irrigation equipment. Think over the size of your business, the cost of the equipment, the cost of operation, the possible benefits, before you leap.

Sincerely,

Gil Jaeger, County Agent

HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT NOTES

A Busy Fall Period Is Planned For All Extensioners With Many Projects Due

Dear Homemaker,

It seems that August is a popular month for Extension projects too. Come September, and it's back to regular meetings.

Let's see what on the docket for Fall meetings. There will be two training classes—one for clothing leaders on "Plastic Pocketbooks". Some time will be given to "Christmas Suggestions". The date for this training class is not definite but training leaders will be contacted early enough so that they may make arrangements to attend.

The second training class is for the foods leaders—"Plain and Fancy Yeast Breads", Sept. 12 in Rockland; Sept. 1 in Hunkton Hill. Food leaders too will be notified individually before the training classes.

The Fall agent meeting is "Clothes For All the Family". Due to the type of meeting to be held, it will be necessary to make a change in plans and hold only two area meetings; one in each county. These will be all day meetings with a meal at noon. Each extension group will be taking some part in these meetings.

Notices will be sent to groups giving the date and place of meeting. In many communities, it will be necessary to have transportation committees so all who wish may attend these meetings. Sounds like a busy Fall schedule, but interesting, yes?

Have you had the misfortune of getting a cherry, peach or soft drink stain on your outdoor clothes at some outing? The heat of strong summer sunshine may set and darken stains containing tannin, such as those from cherries, pears, peaches, plums, soft drinks or mustard served at picnics.

Give such stains first-aid immediately by sponging with cold water while they are moist and fresh. If any traces remain, they may be treated by rubbing with glycerine or soapless shampoo into the stain and then sponging with cool water. Sometimes it helps to apply a few drops of vinegar to the stain after the glycerine or shampoo treatment and then rinse thoroughly with cool water. Never use soap or heat until the stain has been removed.

To campers and picnickers, we add that sunning may make other stains more difficult to remove. Grease, for example, may penetrate fabric more deeply if heated in the sun. Egg, milk and meat stains may be "cooked" into fabric by hot sunshine. Proper treatment of these stains means longer wear for your Summer clothes.

A recipe for your cookie file:

Oatmeal Peanut Cookies
1/2 cup shortening, 1 cup molasses, 1 egg beaten, 1 1/2 cups flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 cup milk, 1 1/4 cups rolled oats and 1/2 cup chopped salted peanuts.

1. Cream the shortening. 2. Add molasses mixed with beaten egg. 3. Sift together the flour, salt and soda. 4. Add with the milk to the first mixture. 5. Add the rolled oats, nuts and raisins. 6. Mix well. 7. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet. 8. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F).

ACP Program

State Committeemen Okay Plan For '53 Schedule

Conservation practices to be offered to Maine farmers under the 1953 Agricultural Conservation Program have been approved by the State committee of the Production and Marketing Administration.

In making this announcement, Harry E. Umphrey, chairman of the State RMA committee, said the practices had been developed with the assistance and cooperation of the Soil Conservation, Forest, and Extension Services; Maine Agricultural Experiment Station; University of Maine, College of Agriculture; Farmers' Home Administration; and the State Department of Agriculture.

Recommendations from county PMA committees, supervisors of Soil Conservation Districts, and county representatives of the above agencies were considered in the development of the 1953 ACP, Umphrey said.

A few changes have been recommended for the purpose of making certain conservation practices more effective on Maine farms.

Following final approval of the program by the ACP Branch in Washington, the conservation practices will be discussed with all farmers for their consideration and application in their own farm operations, Umphrey concluded.

Green Pastures

Maine Judging To Commence Late In Month; U. of M. Professor On Board

Herbert A. Leonard, associate professor of animal husbandry of the University of Maine, will be the Pine Tree State's representative on the six-man judging committee for the New England Green Pasture Contest.

Judging of the three top pasture programs in each New England state will start August 18. The judges will reach Maine last, probably not until August 25 or 26.

Serving as New England Green Pasture judges, in addition to Leonard, will be William A. Manchester, dairyman and 1951 state winner, Warren, R. I.; George Witham, Windham county agent, Putnam, Conn.; W. G. Colby, agronomist, University of Massachusetts, Amherst; E. A. Adams, Stratford county agent and farmer, Rochester, N. H.; and E. M. Root, superintendent of the University Farm and assistant to the dean, University of Vermont, Burlington.

Final enrollment figures for this year's Green Pasture Program are Maine, 492; Vermont, 1,134; Massachusetts, 947; Rhode Island, 120; Connecticut, 156; and New Hampshire, 388. This makes a total of 3,237 farms enrolled in the pasture and roughage improvement program.

WHAT IS A TREE FARM?

State Taking Up National Program For Woodlot Improvement This Summer

By Lewis P. Bissell
Forestry Specialist
Maine Extension Service

Soon you'll be seeing "Tree Farm" signs along roadsides in the State of Maine. Your natural reaction will be "What Is a Tree Farm?"

Well, Maine is going to adopt the national Tree Farm program. The American Tree Farm System fold explains, "A Tree Farm is an area of privately-owned land dedicated to continuous growth of forest crops for commercial purposes."

Started In Washington State

The Tree Farm program was started in the State of Washington in 1941 and has grown to include more than 3500 owners in 33 States. Seventy-five percent of the owners have small woodlots. Today there are approximately 25 million acres of privately-owned forest land in Tree Farms. The American Forest Products Industries, Inc., promotes the Tree Farm system nationally, as well as the Keep America Green movement. In Maine, Tree Farms are sponsored by the Maine Forest Service and the Maine forest products industries, assisted by many public-spirited groups.

To Issue "Tree Farm" Signs

Briefly, the Tree Farm program gives public recognition to the owner who has shown outstanding ability and initiative in managing his forest land by good forestry practices. A certificate is presented to the owner, and a large sign is erected by the Tree Farm organization in a prominent location near the woodlot. The certified Tree Farm is a demonstration to owners and the public that good forest management is practical and can pay for itself in greater returns to the owner.

Checking Before Approval

The owner's application will be checked by Joel Marsh of the Maine Forest Service, who is committee secretary, and then forwarded to a local inspector who has been trained in the evaluation of the owner's forestry work and application of the minimum standards of good forestry practice. The inspector, who in most cases will be a local forester acting voluntarily as inspector, will prepare an inspection report for return to the committee.

The committee must then check the inspector's report and decide whether or not to certify the woodlot. Should the woodlot not measure up to minimum standards of good forestry, the owner will be encouraged to find out why, and modify or improve his efforts so as to qualify for certification at a later date.

If the inspector and the Tree

Farm committee agree that the applicant's forest holdings are managed by good forestry methods, they will certify those woodlands as a Tree Farm. The sign will be put in position by the committee, and the certificate will be awarded the owner with suitable ceremony. A chance of ownership or destructive cutting practices will be reason for the committee to declare the woodlot no longer a Tree Farm and take back the sign and certificate.

Minimum Standards Established

The Tree Farm committee and inspectors will be guided by minimum standards of good forest management in determining eligibility of applicants. The owner must have managed his forest land by good practice for at least three years. A number of woodlots in Maine have been managed well for 20, 40, or even more years. Protection must be provided against fire, insects, disease, and injurious grazing. Proper harvesting of the forest crop may be adequate protection against fire, insects, and disease by removing mature or defective trees with a minimum of logging slash.

Must Be Privately Owned

The Tree Farm must be privately owned and be managed under a system of forest cutting to provide a repeated harvest of forest products. The planting of forest trees is not a requirement, since many well-managed forest areas re-seed naturally to valuable species. When planted, trees are a part of the woodland, however, improvement cuttings, weedings, and thinnings should be made at the proper time to insure a crop of valuable logs or pulpwood. There are no limitations on the size of Tree Farms in Maine, although any areas less than 10 acres must be under exceptional management to be considered.

Rigid Program Setup

The intentions and efforts of the woodlot owner to grow trees of valuable species, to make regular harvest of forest products, to prevent destruction of the forest by any agency, and to maintain the productivity of the committee. Each woodlot must be considered separately, and no specific rules of management will cover all cases.

First Recognition Soon

Formal dedication of the first two or three Maine Tree Farms is planned for late Summer. Certification of other Tree Farms will follow this Fall.

GUPTILL KNOX POMONA GUEST

August Meeting Held At Glen Cove Wednesday; September Meeting Scheduled For West Rockport

Louis Guptill, master of the Maine State Grange, present Wednesday evening at the August meeting of Knox Pomona, held with Medomak Valley Grange, Bricketville, pointed out the benefits received by those who attend Pomona meetings.

Mrs. Guptill, Flora of the State Grange, also present at the meeting, spoke briefly. Mr. Guptill also played a violin solo.

The Pomona degree staff conferred the Fifth Degree on the following candidates for Limerock Valley Pomona Grange: Lucie Lewis, Janet Cummings, and Harold Cummings, members of Penobscot View Grange of Glen Cove.

Mrs. Hilda Stockbridge of Appleton, chairman of the Knox Pomona booth to be at Union Fair, Aug. 19 through the 23d, requested that all members on the committee meet early Sunday afternoon, Aug. 17, at Union Fair Grounds.

Program numbers during the evening included the welcome by Lorenzo Linscott of the host Grange, and the response by Mrs. Florence Calderwood of Union. Also numbers by Mrs. Ida Goss of Union, Mrs. Gladys Linscott of Bricketville, Mrs. Ruth Allen of Rockland, the Vinals of Thomaston, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Benner of Warren. Pioneer Grange of East Union won the attendance ribbon.

The September meeting will be held Sept. 3 with Mr. Pleasant Grange of West Rockport.

Grange Corner

Pleasant River Grange

Pleasant River Grange held its regular meeting Wednesday evening Aug. 6, followed by a program presented by Sister Muriel Chilles, acting lecturer. Refreshments which included a beautiful birthday cake, made by Sister Jennie Webster for Brother Herbert Calderwood, were served.

Brother Calderwood is a charter member of this Pleasant River Grange and the oldest member who attends regular meetings regularly.

Owl's Head Grange

The fair and supper to be put on by Owl's Head Grange this month has been postponed until a later date.

Socials are being held every Tuesday. On August 12, Margaret Greeley will have charge of refreshments.

Saucers And Sense

"Challenges Enough Without Breaking Stride Over Heterogeneous Oddities"

It is possible that the "flying saucers" (and other aerial lights, objects, etc., that are making the headlines and the radio briefs) carry exploring visitants from some other inhabited planet or planets. But it is not probable.

It is possible that at least some of these fast-traveling formations of illusive shapes are revolutionary aircraft engaged in scouting missions for a hostile power. The Department of Defense cannot ignore such a contingency. But the probabilities here, too, are very slender.

It is possible that a few of these mysterious celestial strangers are experimental airplanes or guided missiles under top-secret development by American armed forces. The probabilities here are higher. But they, too, could apply to but a small fraction of what is being seen or reported. They follow no recognizable pattern of form, speed, direction, or other behavior that can be reasonably traced to any purpose, man-made venture.

Which narrows the probable explanations down to "natural" phenomena—so far incompletely understood—the conditions of our day, and the vagaries of the human mind.

All that radar will and will not "pick up" is not yet fully known. During the late war many a hostile ship was salvaged, many an enemy plane intercepted that wasn't there. Thousands of people today are watching the sky. And they are sky-conscious and aircraft-conscious. What a generation ago would have been put down to sun-spots, or meteors, or straying sparks from the aurora borealis, and hugely enjoyed as a nine-day wonder, today is attributed to deliberate if not malign human purposes. When all things were neatly explained in terms of comprehensible physical laws. Today is the day of atomic fission which has shaken the tangible world of matter and argues that the patently impossible may be already accomplished. Today, also, is the day when nations battle with ideas as well as with guns. And many old bell buoys of danger have been set adrift.

One element is not new; it is as old as the rout of the Midianite host by Gideon's 300 with their trumpets and lamps and pitchers, as modern as Orson Welles' radio "invasion" from Mars. And that is the outrageous suggestibility of the human mind.

This is something anyone of even ordinary good sense and balance can do something about: Refuse to accept just anything he hears; refuse to pass along every rumor; refuse to be titillated by mystery, or by ghost-story fear. The American people have challenges enough to their courage, their steadiness and staying power to surmount, without breaking their stride over either heterogeneous oddities which so far display no menace or outbreaks of fancy without credible foundation.—Christian Science Monitor.

Flower Bulletin

Anybody May Have Latest Information On Flower Gardening For Asking

"Flower Gardening In Maine," Bulletin 363 of the Maine Extension Service, has been revised and reprinted. Free copies of this popular, 28-page, illustrated bulletin are available from County Extension Service offices or by writing the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Maine, Orono.

Roger Clapp, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Maine, is the author. Professor Clapp has covered the subject thoroughly, from planning the garden to care of the garden in the Fall.

Subjects included in Bulletin 363 are planning the garden, preparing the soil, growing plants from seed, dividing perennials, securing good plants, transplanting, fertilizing, composting, garden care in the Spring, Summer, and Fall, keeping records, recommended plants for Maine, hardy bulbs, garden roses and flowers in the garden after frost.

This bulletin has been written to explain just how to flower garden under conditions as they occur in Maine. Much of the information is based upon the author's long experience in the extensive flower gardens of the department of horticulture at the University of Maine.

G. O. P. CAMPAIGNERS COMING

Will Visit Knox County Saturday, Aug. 23
—Speak At Union Fair That Night

Maine's political leaders will spend August 23 in Knox County, devoting the entire day to spreading the party gospel which they so well represent.

In the party will be Maine's popular Junior Senator, Margaret Chase Smith; Gov. Frederick G. Payne, who seeks to become the Junior Senator; Burton M. Cross, who is the nominee for Governor; and Representative Charles P. Nelson.

In the evening the four speakers will be heard at Union Fair, as a fitting climax to the week's festivities there.

On the eve of a crucial presidential campaign the speakers will have much to say of general interest and the patrons of the Fair are sure to enjoy the talks regardless of their political beliefs.

The distinguished visitors will be heard briefly in various parts of the County during the day.

The committee which has charge of raising campaign funds in Knox County comprises Councilor Frederick H. Bird, chairman Carl M. Stulphen, Christy Adams, County attorney Curtis M. Payson and Sheriff Willard Pease.

The committee has fixed a goal of $3500 which is intended to cover both the September and November elections.

Edna Payson's Night Blooming Cereus Again Attracts Attention

Annually great interest attaches to the time when the night blooming cereus plant owned by Miss Edna Payson, Grace street, comes in bloom. One bloom opened Monday night, three on Tuesday night and one on Wednesday night of this week and were observed by many interested persons.

Miss Payson has owned the plant for 21 years. The first eight years no blossoms whatever appeared but since that time they have been an annual event except for two years. The blooms are pure white and there have been 40 on the plant during this period which have been observed by about 900 persons from 16 States.

It has long been a Southern legend that the Night Blooming Cereus has been named The Christ in the Manger plant. This lovely plant blossoms at night and when the bloom is full blown one can look into the center of the flower and see what looks very much like the cradle holding the baby Jesus. One of the stamens has a star like end which holds itself above the others, this representing the Star over the Manger.

ters and banks, they are unable to cover all suburban and rural locations, Mr. Lewis said. It is people in these areas that the new service is intended to reach, he added.

More than 1700 Lincoln-Mercury dealers throughout the country have been invited to co-operate in the Summer blood drive of the Red Cross. Joseph E. Bayne, general sales manager, and the division's regional and district sales managers have written all dealers to describe the urgent need for blood for use in Korea and urge dealer support of the program.

At the request of a local Red Cross office, according to Mr. Lewis, any Lincoln-Mercury dealer will provide free transportation to the nearest blood donation center from the donor's home or place of work. Prospective blood donors should first contact the Red Cross centers, who will in turn call the dealers. Volunteer Red Cross drivers are used wherever available.

'Old Bristol's' Show

Club Is Holding Its 22d Annual Event In New-castle

Novel exhibits in varied categories will accent 22d annual flower show of the Old Bristol Garden Club opening Aug. 20 in the Lincoln Academy gymnasium at Newcastle.

The two-day horticultural display, housed in new surroundings for the first time in many years, will be devoted to the theme "Maine and Her Pageantry of Nature," and will number among its features flower compositions portraying State weather forecasts, agricultural abundance, and manufactured natural metal resources.

This club has been famous for its notable staging and exhibits. It is enhanced this year by Mrs. M. Money Penny Huntington's original and detailed program as president, and the work of Miss Helen Piper as chairman of the flower show. Schedules include eight children's exhibition classes and an array of special presentations, such as a hive of live honey bees, birdhouses, tuberoses, begonias, and garden photography.

A feature of the show will be the Maine State Seal against a vivid background of agricultural products, grouped by Mrs. A. R. Benedict of Medomak, Maine and Montclair, N. J., nationally known flower arranger.

The new locale of the show makes it more readily accessible from the Newcastle railroad depot and main automobile routes than that of former years.

The committee chairman of the show are: Miss Helen J. Piper, chairman; Mrs. Wallace Ripley, assistant chairman; Mrs. A. R. Benedict, general consultant; Mrs. M. M. Huntington, staging; Mrs. Raymond Brown, schedule; Miss Emma F. Norton, properties; Mrs. Harry Clifford, classification; Mrs. Philip Corey, judges; Mrs. Otto Mills, horticulture; Mrs. Madeline Hopkins, juniors; Mrs. Edward Denny, Jr., hostesses; Mrs. Walstein Weeks and Mrs. Charles Day, refreshments; Mrs. Philip Corey and Mrs. Murray Peterson, clerks; Mrs. Ella Pierce, tickets; Mrs. James Cook, cleanup; Mrs. Harry Flory, special exhibits; Mrs. James Lee and Mrs. Wallace Ripley, publicity.

MAINE SEA GODDESS OF 1962?

Just as cute as any royal lady could be is little Miss Cynthia Marie Karl, Junior Sea Goddess of the Festival last week. Chosen by her playmates at the Community Park Playground, she rode the Recreation Department's float in regal splendor, maybe in a forecast of what may come 10 years hence when she might be named Maine Sea Goddess. Should her winsome beauty stay with her over the years, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Karl of North Main street may well be a candidate for the honor in 1962.

Listening For Fish

An Interesting Research Project Is On At Gloucester

Local fishermen will be interested in the following Gloucester despatch in the Christian Science Monitor:

A research project to find out if commercial fishermen might be able to find schools of fish by listening for them on underwater sound detecting devices is under way here this summer aboard the 90-foot schooner Bowdoin, Arctic exploration vessel owned and skippered on many voyages to Arctic waters by Capt. Donald McMillan.

Sponsored and jointly financed by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and the Old Dominion Research and Development Corporation of Erica, Va., the project is endeavoring to determine if certain commercially valuable fish, such as tuna can be heard by characteristic sounds and they can be lured to the surface by sounds projected from a fishing vessel.

The expedition is directed by Capt. Carl H. Holm of the Old Dominion firm and Virgil E. Harris, electronics scientist with the Fish and Wildlife Service. Captain Holm is serving as skipper of the Bowdoin, chartered for the summer from explorer McMillan.

If it is discovered that certain fish do give off characteristic sounds, an attempt will be made to develop equipment sensitive to such sounds, Mr. Harris discloses. Tuna fishermen, as an example, would then be able to put to sea with "tuna phones" whereby they could hear their quarry and avoid much loss of time looking for them on the surface. The "tuna phone" would flash on a signal in the pilot house when tuna were in the vicinity.

Presumably, "herring phones" and "mackerel phones" would also follow, if it is found that such fish also make underwater noises peculiar to their kind.

The Bowdoin is scheduled to put to sea for its first cruise this week. Although the project has been under way for several months, laboratory work preparing for the ocean studies has occupied the attention of Mr. Harris and his associates so far.

Camp Tanglewood

Good Progress Being Made By Young Folks There—And Good Times

Classes in canoeing are growing at Camp Tanglewood with girls from the Middle Annex taking canoeing instruction at the two pools at camp. The following girls have been learning "T" strokes, stern sweeps, bow sweeps, back water and other strokes: Beverly Goodman, Denise Simard, Sara Brewer, Sally Higgins, Margaret Edgar, Barbara Weymouth, Johanna DeCourcy, Patsy Shaw, Betty Nutt and Peggy Emple. Next week some of these girls will go to Lake Megunticook and try to pass their camp beginners' canoe test.

Middle proper girls taking canoeing are Catherine McConnell, Betty Ann Carroll, Judy Harriman, Martha Lowe, Mary Cowie, Janet Thorpe, Elana Hambrecht, Donna Rush, Linda Gepte, Carol Sherwood, Judy Brown, Alma Harvey, Susan Wood and Linda Peterson. Ten senior girls went to Lake Megunticook for an overnight stay. The girls passed some of their Red Cross skill tests in swimming, and had the opportunity to paddle the canoes. The following girls passed their beginners test in canoeing: Irene Sargent, Nicole Simard, Jeanne Cleaves, Gail Strang, Carolyn Jones, Louise Toussaint, Beverly Fournier and Nora Clair. Judy and Beth took a group of campers to Lake Megunticook for an afternoon. The following girls paddled in the lake and enjoyed themselves learning new canoeing techniques: Dorothy D'Amboise, Jeanne Cleaves, Janet Lowe, Noreen Faulkingham.

vid Roberts were honored at a party given by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Arey, Saturday, Aug. 2, at their home on East Main street. Many friends and neighbors called to greet them and presented them with 50 one dollar bills, cleverly arranged as a corsage, by Mrs. Dorothy Thomas Maline. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts were also recipients of many other gifts. Refreshments were served, which included a beautiful anniversary cake, made by Mrs. Vera Johnson. The anniversary supper was served to the family group: Mr. and Mrs. David Roberts, Mrs. Helen Arey, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnson and son Richard of Hopkinton, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Arey. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts were born in Wales, but have been residents of Vinalhaven 30 years. They have two daughters, Mrs. Leon Arey, Mrs. Ernest Johnson and one son, Eilyn Roberts of Chicago, Ill., and four grandchildren.

Carlene Harvey, Nora Clair, Joyce Prouty and Judith D. Higgins.

This week more senior girls went on an overnight canoeing trip. The following girls passed their beginners tests for canoeing: Elaine Irish and Janet Lowe. Other girls who had previously passed their beginners canoeing test went along to start working on their intermediate canoe tests.

The Middle Annex campers have reason to be proud of their eight girls who passed their Red Cross beginners skill test. They are Mary Rutledge Haffner, Sally Higgins, Judith Alice Higgins, Jane Fuller, Julie Giddings, Mary Bird, Jean Hadlock and Lucy Williams. The two Middle Annex girls who passed their intermediate tests are Patsy Shaw and Margaret Edgar.

The Middle Proper unit has 14 girls who have completed their Beginners' Red Cross skill tests and the following will be awarded certificates: Ellen Gray, Judith Anderson, Elaine Grant, Judy London, Linda Peabody, Flora Emery, Linda Peterson, Beverly Keys, Gale Kegel, Judy Segal, Alma Harvey, Linda Gepte, Gloria Lamb and Janet Thorpe. Three girls from the unit has passed the Intermediate skill tests and they are Kalja Pajari, Linda Redfield and Judy Harriman.

As usual the older Senior unit has many fine swimmers. The following passed their Beginners' tests for Red Cross: Patricia Doak, Rita Dumont, Sharon Drake, Judith Higgins, Joyce Johnson, Joyce Prouty and Sandra Oldenburg. In the Intermediate classes those who will receive their certificates are: Lucy Nightingale, Evelyn Achorn, Nora Clair, Nicole Simard, Carolyn Jones, Beverly Fournier, Irene Sargent and Marcia Rideout. Swimmers for the seniors are Louise Toussaint and Janet Lowe.

Whenever possible for the past six weeks the four maintenance boys have been working on their senior life saving course. They have completed the necessary work and are now qualified American Red Cross life savers. They are Richard Warren, Douglas Campbell, Donald Payson and Arthur Ellingwood.

Campers who arrived Sunday for the remainder of the season include Marilyn Simmons, Damari-scotta; Gayle Carver, Judith Carver, Penelope Kaler, Patricia Stevens, Carol Sulin, Darleen Suomela, Rockland; Donalene Dow, Mary Morse, Waldoboro.

Many music lovers in this section are planning to attend the concert in Damariscotta Friday night, August 15, when Philip Wentworth, tenor, of Hope and Cleveland, Ohio, will be presented as featured artist in the third and final offering of the Damariscotta Community Concert Series. Bess Batty Gowdy, pianist, of Thomaston, will be Phil's accompanist and present a group of piano solos.

We need little introduction to Phil, as his Summer concerts in Camden have demonstrated to us that he is a very able artist. He possesses a most pleasing voice which he uses with commendable artistry and skill. His poise and great charm of personality make him the ideal concert artist.

Since going from New York to Cleveland Phil has been engaged in television work, not only working in the studio (Station WXEL) to "learn the ropes," but having his own program, no small triumph in the short time he has been there. This program, incidentally, has won marked praise from one of the special reviewers of TV programs. Phil also holds a church position and is continuing his vocal studies.

Mrs. Gowdy will add interest to the program, too, for she is one of our outstanding pianists in this area and her appearances always win acclaim.

I am to have Phil's program which will be shown in this paper in a later issue. The concert takes place, as I said before, on Friday, Aug. 15 at 8:30 p. m., in the Damariscotta Baptist Church. Anyone desiring more detailed information regarding this concert than I am able to give may obtain same by contacting Edward B. Denny, Jr., Round Top Farms, Damariscotta, who is chairman of the series.

August 15 has another importance, if not local, for on that date Mrs. Marian MacDowell, founder of the Edward MacDowell Colony for creative artists, will be honored by the townspeople of Peterborough, N. H., where the Colony is located, and by friends who will include many men and women of note who have been enabled to take their place in the world of arts, thanks to her.

The plans for Aug. 15 include a celebration which will have a chorus, a band, a concert by Claudette Sorel, 1951 prize winner in the Young Artists' group of the National Federation of Music Clubs, and readings by Thornton Wilder from works he has written in the area.

Edward MacDowell loved Peterborough, and when he built a log cabin there for his own private retreat, he had dreams of establishing a retreat to which other artists might repair for long Summer days of refreshment of body and spirit and for inspiration. It had to be only a dream with him, for he had slender financial means and his fine mind became mentally clouded in his last years.

But thanks to the unflagging zeal and the amazing energy of his devoted wife, the dream was realized. For more than 40 years now the MacDowell Colony has functioned successfully, to the enhancement of the arts—music, painting, poetry, fiction and drama in America. Such notables as Thornton Wilder, Willa Cather, Elinor Wylie, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Stephen Vincent Benet, and many others have worked in the Colony. In the group of creative artists who have Summered there have come 20 or more Pulitzer winners. This in itself indicates the worth of the Colony.

The success has been brought about and maintained largely through the exceptional executive ability and tireless industry of Mrs. MacDowell, who despite handicap (crippled) and frailty of health, has journeyed throughout the length and breadth of the land, giving lectures and recitals of her husband's music, and using practically every penny for the Colony. The Colony now functions under an association with membership dues, augmented of course by subscriptions, donations, etc.

The National Federation of Music Clubs, as well as State Federations and individual music clubs, have always held this work close at heart and given support and encouragement over many years, recognizing the worth of the undertaking to promote culture in this country.

If my memory serves me right, Mrs. MacDowell must be close to 90, if not already arrived there.

Gleaning through an article Olin Downes wrote about the Colony some years ago, I note that he says the Colony is not a local but a national institution. Artists come from all over the country, from distant California to Maine, from Florida to Michigan. They profit not only from their healthful conditions and surroundings, and the opportunity to work in isolation for concentrated effort, but from the bringing together for the exchange of ideas and acquaintances with the principles of other arts than the one they practice.

Mr. Downes in his article expressed the hope that Mrs. MacDowell might live to see her objective completely achieved—the funds established and the conditions formulated, by which, long years after this generation has passed, the MacDowell Colony will continue to perform its priceless service to American art.

A letter from Alcada Hall Desjardins calls attention to Federation Day at the Eastern Music Camp tomorrow (Sunday, Aug. 10) and expresses the hope that several members of the Rubinstein Club—as well as other music lovers—will make the effort to attend the afternoon concert at 3:30. The collection will be devoted to a scholarship for some talented student in music. This year the State Federation sent two girls from Cape Elizabeth to the camp—a pianist and a violinist. (Incidentally Mrs. Desjardins hints that these two gifted young musicians would make a most interesting program for the Rubinstein Club.)

Many of you will recall the talented young cellist who played in the Rubinstein's Club Spring concert—Barbara Pye of Augusta. Mrs. Desjardins says that Barbara is at the Music Camp this Summer and is making a most favorable impression on her teacher—Peter Farrell of the Eastman School of Music. There is great hope that a scholarship of some opportunity be provided so that Barbara may be able to continue her studies, perhaps starting this Fall, with some major music school. She is definitely talented and a conscientious student.

Mrs. Desjardins enclosed the review of last Sunday's concert, calling attention to the writer, Raymond Rendall, who is a brother of the lovely Florence Rendall Cross, soprano, who has delighted Rockland audiences. The article is extremely well written. Mr. Rendall who teaches piano at the Camp has just received his master's degree at Yale and is to teach piano at Wesleyan next year.

The New England Conservatory of Music has sent me its Summer bulletin and it makes for interesting reading, especially to those in this section who have attended the Conservatory or have some special reason for attachment.

Harrison Keller, Director has been elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Sixteen members of the faculty have been members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center this Summer—Raymond Allard, Richard Burgin, Sarah Caldwell, Gino Cliffo, Joseph dePasquale, Georges Fourel, Boris Goldovsky, Alfred Krips, Georges Laurent, Rosario Manno, Georges Moleux, Willem Valkenier, Roger Volein, Relix Wolfes, Alfred Zighera and Bernard Zighera.

Two distinguished graduates of the Conservatory and members of the Metropolitan Opera Company were honored at a reception at the Conservatory during the visit of the Metropolitan to Boston—Eleanor Steber and Mildred Miller.

As part of the artistic center at Castle Hill, Ipswich, Mass., this Summer for the first time, the Conservatory is conducting two courses of musical instruction especially designed for children.

Two Conservatory graduates have been appointed to the Boston Symphony for next season—Kauko Kaahila to the trombone section and Everett J. Pirith to the percussion section. Ma So Hon has been appointed to the violin section of the Cleveland Orchestra and Dorian Chertavien has been appointed to the clarinet section of the San Antonio Symphony.

Norman L. Proulx, organist, graduate of the Conservatory, has been awarded the first prize in organ and improvisation at the Conservatoire National de Musique de Paris. Mr. Proulx is the first American to be awarded this prize, and also the first American to be admitted to the regular section of the organ department at the Conservatoire. He has been studying with Marcel Dupre in Paris and has held a Fulbright Award for two years.

Speaking of that fabulous place, tional institution. Artists come from all over the country, from distant California to Maine, from Florida to Michigan. They profit not only from their healthful conditions and surroundings, and the opportunity to work in isolation for concentrated effort, but from the bringing together for the exchange of ideas and acquaintances with the principles of other arts than the one they practice.

Mr. Downes in his article expressed the hope that Mrs. MacDowell might live to see her objective completely achieved—the funds established and the conditions formulated, by which, long years after this generation has passed, the MacDowell Colony will continue to perform its priceless service to American art.

A letter from Alcada Hall Desjardins calls attention to Federation Day at the Eastern Music Camp tomorrow (Sunday, Aug. 10) and expresses the hope that several members of the Rubinstein Club—as well as other music lovers—will make the effort to attend the afternoon concert at 3:30. The collection will be devoted to a scholarship for some talented student in music. This year the State Federation sent two girls from Cape Elizabeth to the camp—a pianist and a violinist. (Incidentally Mrs. Desjardins hints that these two gifted young musicians would make a most interesting program for the Rubinstein Club.)

Many of you will recall the talented young cellist who played in the Rubinstein's Club Spring concert—Barbara Pye of Augusta. Mrs. Desjardins says that Barbara is at the Music Camp this Summer and is making a most favorable impression on her teacher—Peter Farrell of the Eastman School of Music. There is great hope that a scholarship of some opportunity be provided so that Barbara may be able to continue her studies, perhaps starting this Fall, with some major music school. She is definitely talented and a conscientious student.

GIVEN A FREE VACATION

New York Family Coming To Christmas Cove Guest Of Maine Development Commission

Mrs. Kay M. O'Connell has always laughed at people who write letters to newspapers. She was down on her knees in the kitchen of her six-room frame house Flushing, Queens, scrubbing the floor—her two-year-old daughter had knocked over her milk—when the telephone rang. The call was from Everett Gration, executive secretary of the Maine Development Commission. Mr. Gration told Mrs. O'Connell that because she had written a letter to "The Portland (Me.) Express" the State of Maine wanted the O'Connell family to enjoy a free vacation at one of its seaside resorts.

Mrs. O'Connell who is 38, and her three children—Billy 11; Betsy 9 and Carol 2—were in a high state of excitement. Mrs. O'Connell's husband, William E. who is employed as a foreman in the forestry department of the New York Department of Parks, had not come home yet. Mrs. O'Connell said she had telephoned him just after she heard from Mr. Gration, but that all her husband would do was "laugh and laugh." But the O'Connells are planning to leave for Maine by plane or train Saturday or Sunday for a week's free vacation at Christmas Cove.

"It all began just after the Fourth," Mrs. O'Connell, a slim, blonde woman said. "I was sitting there on the chair reading a newspaper about the dedication of the site in Maine where Admiral Peary sailed from.

Billy came in off the street. He was hot and I was hot and we started talking about Maine. He wondered if the boys there really knew how nice it was to live there. "Well, Billy went out and I just sat down and wrote a letter to the Portland paper. In the heat you do lots of funny things. I've always laughed at people who write letters to papers."

To the best of her recollection, Mrs. O'Connell said in the letter that she hoped "the kids in Maine appreciated what they had." She said she wrote that "there is no pleasure going to the beaches here because for two hours you're bumper to bumper and there's too big a crowd at the beach, anyway."

"The Portland Express" published a feature story built around the letter on its front page several days ago.

Billy is a freckle-faced, rusty-haired kid. Asked what he wanted to do in Maine, he said, "just fish, and any kind of fishin' will do."

Betsy, blonde and also freckled, has little to say about the Maine trip. "I'd love it," she said, and grinned at her mother.

As the children obligingly posed for photographs, Mrs. O'Connell twitted them unmercifully. She was in good spirits.—Herald Tribune.

THE DIET FOR "DOG DAYS"

Don't Coax Children To Eat If They're Listless—Ice Cold Drinks Not Harmful

Summer is far from over. August dog-days are upon us. And September has yet to come. Thus, we are still faced with the problem of what our diet should be on those days when the memory tries to push the top of the thermometer or when the humidity—well, the less said about humidity, the better.

It really makes no difference whether we eat hot or cold meals during the Summer, according to Health Information Foundation of New York. Nor do we have to have "at least one hot meal a day" as some people feel necessary. Hot or cold meals, if properly balanced, have the same food value.

The important thing to remember, the Foundation says is what one eats. It is best to avoid sweets and starchy and fatty foods as often as possible. But lean meats, milk, eggs, fruit juices and fresh fruit, fish, green vegetables are always good to eat, Winter or Summer.

And as for thirst quenchers, water is by far the most satisfying. Other liquids are thirst quenchers too, but only in relation to the amount of water they contain, while sweet drinks are surcharged with calories and therefore more fattening than cooling.

When to eat, whether three times a day or more often and in small quantities, does not have too much effect on weight. With children, it is always best not to coax them. If Castle Hill, Donald Merriam writes me that he has attended one of the concerts there this Summer, and was of course entranced by the beautiful setting as well as by the music. And Helen Emmons wrote me quite a while back that she planned to take in one or more of the concerts and promised me a story. That is something you will hear about later.

From Rolf and Lilly Heistad in Seattle, comes a program of the First Annual Scandinavian Music Festival held in Volunteer Park in that city, which boasts a large number of Scandinavians in the population, on July 27. The program featured orchestral numbers, folk dances, choruses, solos both instrumental and vocal, readings, etc., and were given by Norwegians, Swedes, Finns, Icelanders and Danes. Many of the performers wore national costume which added greatly to the general effect. The folk dances by the Norwegian and Finnish groups won particular acclaim. It sounds most worthwhile.

And of course you have the annual Warren concert in mind, to be given in the Baptist Church Thursday, Aug. 21. Rand Smith, one of our "pet" baritones, will be the featured artist, and Chester Wallie writes that he is formulating other plans that should appeal to music lovers. Rehearsals are progressing in a most encouraging manner, and everything points to the usual triumph this annual musical event enjoys.

Although a total of 16,026,600 fishing licenses were sold in the United States in 1951 for a gross of thirty-five and a half million dollars, Maine finds no place in the 10 top States listed where most of this business took place.

Nearly every State noted an increase in license sales over the preceding year except California which was off 694.

Wisconsin attracted the most out of State anglers with 282,702 non-resident licenses issued and Michigan had the largest total sales at well over a million, but was listed in third place for non-resident sales.

Hunting licenses will just about double this figure. All States do not issue the convenient combination hunting and fishing license like Maine and some States have separate designated licenses for various kinds of game which may be taken within their boundaries.

See by the papers that Jim Carr of the Richmond affiliate, Maine Fish and Game Association who has been much concerned over the duck hunting season in Maine since the advent of the split season believes the State will have a straight 60-day season this year. Just what the dates of opening and closing will be have not yet been released.

Personally I never heard much comment on the split season around Knox County. The first half gave us a fair return on locally reared blacks and wood duck and some of the early migrating teal.

The interval between the two seasons usually let some of the early migrating blacks get through unscathed and the last half (depending on North country freeze-up) gave us a crack at the big Canadian red legs, whistlers and buffle heads. This area gets only the fringe of the Eastern flyways heaviest flight of blacks. Real nasty weather in the last half puts a great many ducks inshore, but their stay is short because Knox County lacks good feeding grounds for puddle ducks.

Several thousand usually winter in the Georges just below Thomaston and short hop flights to whatever fresh water feeding spots we have free of ice during the last half of the season provides good hunting.

Readwater Slough in Lincoln and Waldo County, Edgecomb Bog and shallow portions of the Georges River above Warren had many flocks of migrating feeders last season.

The largest concentration of Red Legs sat into the Keag Marsh and lower Georges after the season was all over in 1951.

Selecting the dates for best hunting on a straight season is almost a gamble. Mid October to mid-December would seem to permit good hunting here, but wood duck and teal get away early. They hardly contribute much to the sport however as this area is primarily a black duck area.

Northern freeze-up practically governs the shooting conditions here and an early Winter usually gives us the best returns.

A party of quail hunters driving along the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains came upon a small cabin which was surrounded by some excellent quail cover, so they stopped to ask permission to hunt there.

The owner was very agreeable and said he would be pleased to accompany the hunters, but when they started getting out several fine bird dogs he was quite disturbed.

"We don't use no dogs a-huntin' quail here" says he. And when asked how the coveys were located, he replied "We use grand-pappy." Well, in due time grand-pappy was located and the hunt was on.

There were plenty of quail and in a short time each hunter had shot his limit of birds.

The hunters thanked the landowner and they returned to the city, quite amazed.

The following year they decided to again take a hunting trip to the small cabin, but this time they left their dogs at home. As they drove up to the cabin the owner came out and they shook hands all around. Then looking in their cars he asked "Where's yer dogs?"

"We didn't bring them, we thought we might use grand-pappy again," one of them replied. The landowner shook his head sorrowfully. "Nope," he answered "grand-pappy's dead. He got to chasin' rabbits and we had to shoot him."

The August 2 issue of Life magazine has one of the most striking pictures of Ralph Rackliff-Randall Hopkins weir just north of Waterville Beach that could be imagined and the publishers didn't slight the subject on space for it's a full two-page double spread reproduction in colors and a creation in aerial photography that is a credit to the art.

The subject is beautifully centered and the symmetry of weir construction which is seldom noticed by us grounded humans from any angle is brought out in perfect detail by the birds eye view, which must have been taken slightly South of Eden Island.

The photograph was made by Lawrence Lawry staff cameraman for Life magazine. It was taken when there was a slight ripple on the green water and even shows a white gull flying about the weir far below the plane.

Let's see. Believe I have a few late details on the Fish 'n Gamers Cookout and Outing. The time: All day Sunday, August 17. The place: Fosters Beach, South Thomaston. Open to members, their families and friends with an invitation extended to the warden's service, Press and non-members who are contributing personal service or other facilities for the event.

Dinner will be a free clam back to all who wish it. Others may bring their own lunch.

It is expected that live lobsters will be available on the grounds and will be cooked to order.

Bring your own frankfurts and rolls, pickles, mustard and sweet-food. Frankfurts will be cooked at the beach.

Cold soda will be available. The outing committee's plan to serve roast corn with the dinner has been seriously effected by the long dry spell. If you have some corn of your own bring it along. The chef will cook it for your family.

Entertainment and games have not been fully planned and will be announced later.

It is expected that there will be music by records from a public address system.

How to get there: Proceed South out of Rockland on South Main street keeping straight on black top road over Ingrahams Hill and past the Head-of-the-Bay into South Thomaston. Road signs will be posted from South Thomaston to the picnic grounds at all turns.

All committee men should be there by 9:30 a. m. Cooking, assistance and supplies committees please come as early as possible.

Dinner served from 1 to 2 p. m.
