Fire Field Day

Rockland Firemen Staging
Several Demonstrations
On September 5 and 6

Fire Chief Van Russell announces that the Fire-Fighters Field Day which is sponsored by the Rockland Fire Department will be held next week end on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 5-6.

The first day of the meeting will consist of demonstrations at the Central Fire Station and exhibitions of the latest in fire fighting equipment by various companies.

The station is open to the public on both days and Chief Russell emphasizes that the purpose of the event is for public information, to give the people an idea of the problems and running of an efficient fire company.

On Saturday, the center of interest shifts to Schofield-White Park where the day will be devoted to demonstrations of putting out various types of fires, including a magnesium fire and a large oil fire.

Chief Allan Payson of the Camden Department will direct his men in a demonstration of hose bridging and the Maine State Forestry Service will also put on a fire fighting demonstration. Other features will be a showing of Rockland's Quint truck and rescue work by a team from the Auburn Fire Department.

On Friday evening, City Manager Frederick Farnsworth will give an address of welcome, following which Colonel Wallace Lovell, State Deputy of Civilian Defense will report on progress made in his department.

One of the things a man can't understand is why his enemies have so many friends.

Lack Of Attendance Defeats
New England Competition

At the last meeting of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, it was voted unanimously to cancel our application to the New England competition of Drum Corps at Exeter, N. H., because of the lack of attendance at drills for the past three weeks.

It was also voted that we have our annual banquet in September on a Wednesday night to be set by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion. It will be a turkey supper with all the fixings, plus movies of parades that we have been in, taken by Maynard Haverer. There will also be some added attractions that you won't want to miss.

This banquet is for members, their wives, and boy and girl friends. All members are urged to be present next Wednesday night for drill practice.

It was also voted that we make the American Legion a gift of $50, something that we have wanted to do for a long time, but not able to until this year.

Democrats' Day

The Candidates Tour Knox
County, Aided By Carl
Moran's Oratory

The Democrats conducted a whirlwind tour of Knox County Wednesday and audiences in the several towns visited heard lusty speeches, strongly flavored with Democratic criticism and promises.

U. S. Senate candidate Roger P. Dube of Lewiston joined gubernatorial candidate James C. Oliver in calling for a sweep of Republicans from state and national offices.

Dube said his travels throughout Maine have convinced him the Republicans themselves—"with their reactionary records"—have "caused Maine citizens to look elsewhere to a more liberal and popular leadership."

Oliver, the principal speaker at Wednesday night's rally, at Oakland Park, criticized the "bureaucracy" of the State Sea and Shore Fisheries department. "If I am elected your Governor, I will recommend that every effort be made to study the feasibility of state-assisted cooperatives among our lobstermen," he said.

"I am convinced that cooperatives can overcome some of the obstacles now being faced by our fishermen, x x x and if such a means of correcting some of the current problems meets with their approval, I would do all in my power to further such a plan," Oliver added.

"The Republican party statewide stands for deflation. x x x They have no imagination to think in terms of expansion—expansion in economy to prevent our people from the state," Oliver urged.

He urged a changing of political leadership. "We cannot go along dragging our feet, breathing the dust of the rest of the nation."

Leland B. Currier, Congressional candidate, told the rally his opponent—incumbent Charles P. Nelson of August—has been absent 57 out of 157 Congressional roll calls. "A man who considers being a Representative a part-time job cannot do a good job for his District," Currier said.

National Committeeman Edmund S. Muskie of Waterville told the group Maine "has had a bankruptcy of ideas with the Republican-controlled legislature 88 out of the last 90 years."

"Cross is content to walk with the steps of a pigmy while we in Maine need the strides of a giant to make progress for our State x x x and to keep this state in step with the Nation," Muskie said.

Former Second District Democratic Congressman Carl Moran attacked GOP talk of Quoddy development.

"They can't go around hollering for Quoddy and damn the rest of the power projects around the nation x x x as they have been doing. x x x The Republican party had no great part in getting the $29,000,000 that was gotten for Quoddy but they had a great part in spoiling it," Moran said.

Moran lashed out at what he termed the addition of "McCarthyism to Maine politics."

"Why even Eisenhower opposes McCarthyism. x x x It's too bad. Even the better Republicans don't believe in that line. x x x The long line of the people and the long line of Republicans do not like guilt by association."

"I think it is unfortunate that the Republican party of Maine has sunk to McCarthyism x x x and I think the people will repudiate this type of campaigning."

Maine Drinking On the Increase

Liquor Research Commission reported two years ago that drinking of absolute alcohol had increased sixty percent in the last ten years. Do you want drinking to continue to increase?

This Commission reported "the greatest noticeable increase in drinking appears to be taking place among young people, which is all the more alarming because this is the phase of life when character is being formed."

... young people are the potential problem drinkers of tomorrow."

THE SHERIFF'S JOB

Now, this Sheriff's job is a curious one; Like the housewife's work, it's never done. Calls come by night and come by day; They may be near, or miles away. Do hurry up, says the voice of the caller; You're badly needed in Happy Holler. Paw's on a rampage; he's got a gun; Been looking for Maw since half-past one. So we jump in our flivver and hit the trail; And drive like a streamliner carrying the mail. Our only hope and all we can figure, Is to be on hand before Paw pulls the trigger. We finally arrive and amid confusion -- We learn the affair was a simple delusion. Paw with his gun was just hunting squirrels; Maw had gone to school with the two oldest girls. Next day we're hunting a mottled-faced cow; That night we referee a nice family row. Now, that's just a sample of what we do; An endless variety of the old and the new. It may be a prowler, a burglar, a drunk; He may steal your billfold, your watch or your trunk. We set out to catch him, and we do our best; We catch our percentage and lose the rest. We can't catch them all, for some leave no clue -- They don't leave their cards, like the candidates do. Sometimes they plead guilty, and the judge will scold, Then half the country will want them paroled. They blame the depression, the New Deal, the tariff -- But most of the folks put the blame on the Sheriff. So it's quite a game if you stay right in -- You'll get a pat on the back, and a sock on the chin. But, I like it, and I'm shedding no tears -- And I'd like to be your sheriff for another two years.

Maine letter carriers attending the convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers in New York from Sept. 1 to 6 will be uniformed for the first time.

Above, David S. Beach, Rockland carrier and delegate from the Rockland association, models the new outfit. White trousers and a short-sleeved white shirt and dark tie make up the outfit, complete with cane. The cap is the military, overseas type and is powder blue with with "Maine" embroidered in gold script on both sides. To complete the outfit, and at the same time get in a plug for Maine fisheries, the caps bear a miniature Maine lobster on each side.

Mr. and Mrs. Beach leave Saturday for New York, where he will participate in his fifth national convention of the postal workers' association. He has previously been to gatherings in Milwaukee, Atlantic City, Cleveland and Kansas City.

John Lane looked through the kitchen window Tuesday night and espied the new moon. Led his wife to remark, "See the new moon through the glass, sing of sorrow while it lasts." "But if I had gone out of doors I would still be looking through glass, and if I removed my glasses I wouldn't see the moon," was John's rejoinder. Always has logic at hand.

When Everett Blethen was attending a New York art school some 20 years ago, he was eating one day in a Long Island diner. The proprietor remarked: "I used to visit my uncle in Maine." "What part of Maine?" asked Everett. "My home is in Rockland," said Everett. "What was your uncle's name?" "Martin Scanlon," answered the proprietor.

The conversation ceased while Everett busied himself with pencil and paper. When he had finished he submitted an accurate sketch of Martin Scanlon, with whom he had worked in a shipyard.

"Gosh all hemlock!" exclaimed the proprietor. "That's Uncle Mart."

Blethen's clever cartoons have since gained him a wide reputation.

C-C THREE MONTH ACTIVITIES

Wide Range of Projects In Recreation, Trade and Industrial Fields Shown

With the return of its ambassador of publicity Capt. Ote Lewis, from the National American Legion Convention in New York City, Rockland Chamber of Commerce completes three months of activity which have been marked by extreme variety and extent of operations. As stated in its constitution, the Chamber's chief reason for being is "to promote the civic, economic, and social welfare" of Rockland.

Legion Convention Obtained

In June, Chamber promotional activity hit the state level when, through the co-operation of its members with the Winslow-Holbrook-Meritt Post, Rockland was successful in obtaining the State American Legion convention for 1953.

Promotion In Boston

In July, the New England region got an introduction to Rockland and the Maine Seafoods Festival when the Chamber was fortunate enough to have seven windows in R. H. White's in Boston, publicizing the city and the Rockland area. No other city in Maine has enjoyed such an opportunity for "selling" itself.

This past week, the Chamber sponsored the appearance of Capt. Ote Lewis in New York where, through contacts with Legionnaires from all over the country, and through his newspaper, newsreel, radio and TV publicity, he spread the name and attractions of Rockland at a national level.

Aids Festival Operations

In furtherance of its promotional work, the Chamber answers inquiries 12 months of the year regarding the Maine Seafoods Festival. However, during June and July this work intensifies and during the Festival itself, Chamber members were in the forefront of all phases of the three day activities. Also this year the Chamber worked closely with the "Life" magazine representatives on their coverage of the Festival, as well as with the National Association of Manufacturers in preparation of the film to be released over 48 TV outlets.

More Than Tourist Bureau

To many persons, a Chamber of Commerce is only a tourist information bureau. While it is true that, during the past three months, tourist traffic through the Chamber office has shown an increase of over 30 percent above 1951, the Chamber performs a variety of other functions, not apparent to the public, in addition to answering hundreds of routine inquiries concerning tourist accommodations, points of interest, and general information. Through personal contact and by mail, the Chamber has attended to inquiries concerning employment and business opportunities, hospitals, lighthouses, barber shops, lawyers, import and export commodities, real estate, lobster, lobster, lobster. Mail inquiries about Maine lobster outnumber all others by about three to one. In the period under consideration the Chamber has received mail from every state on the Country, Canada, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Argentina, the British Isles and Germany. As another incidental service it was in July that the Chamber arranged for supplying the U.S.S. Yellowstone with 1,000 pounds of lobsters and 5,200 pounds of produce.

Industry Service

It might be expected that, with the Summer's tourist traffic and its promotional work, the Chamber could have neglected some of its other civic functions. On the contrary, industrial and merchants activities have been sustained. During the three months period the Chamber's Industrial Committee has considered or entered into actual negotiations with no fewer than five industrial prospects, while the Merchants Committee has recently conducted another highly successful Dollar Days. Chamber officials have also worked with the Port District trustees on the Chamber-sponsored Port District project, continued activity through Washington on the long range Lermonds Cove dredging project, and co-operated with city officials in plans for airport development and improvement.

Rockland Conscious

That the Chamber may be considered to be fulfilling its job to "promote" Rockland is perhaps best shown by mail received, as well as by word of mouth reports. Letters from all over the United States demonstrate that the country as a whole is becoming increasingly "Rockland conscious." And, our merchants know, the more persons that can become interested in, and attracted to, Rockland, the more money will come into the city. Associated Press releases and items in trade and national magazines have added immeasurably to our publicity and, during the past few months, the Chamber has found more and more persons writing to Rockland for information about Maine, or other sections of the State; "Maine" and "Rockland" have become associated in their minds. It is anticipated that, during the months to come, continued Chamber activity will bring Rockland and the Knox County area to the attention of tens of thousands more persons throughout the country.

A Trade Show

Camden-Rockport C. Of C. Arranging For Event For Oct. 30

Plans for a full-scale Agricultural Trade Show were made Tuesday at a meeting called by Chairman David E. Brown, of the Camden-Rockport Chamber of Commerce Committee which is sponsoring the affair. The Knox County Poultry Association has accepted an invitation to hold its annual trade show at the Camden High School Gymnasium on Thursday, Oct. 30, and the Maine Blueberry Growers will also participate in this event. The show will encompass all phases of agriculture important to this area, with special emphasis on poultry, blueberry and dairy products and equipment.

Plans for the program were discussed at the meeting, held at the office of Chamber of Commerce President David A. Nichols, and attended by Ray Atherton, Gilbert Jaeger, Herbert Alexander, Darius Joy, Frank Leonard, Lawrence Hopkins, Charles Lowe, and C. C. secretary Betty Foxwell, Ralph Hunt, Lincolnville, will represent the Poultry Association on the committee.

There will be two speakers, one, an authority on poultry, and the other on blueberries. Other features are also being planned for the program. The show will be open from noon, on Oct. 30 through the evening.

Last year nearly 1000 persons attended the Poultry Trade Show, held at Union, and this year, with the program broadened to include other agricultural features, it is expected that the attendance will be even larger.

Instead of several separate admission charges for the gate, paddock and grandstand, the one admission fee at the gate includes all three. Evening rates are the same as in past years and children 12 to 16 are admitted at half-price both afternoon and evening. The vaudeville acts and stage

A SLIGHT LEAD

The American Institute of Public Opinion has interviewed a cross section of voters in the East and North Central States, with the result that 48 percent of them favor the Republican party and 46 percent the Democratic party. Six percent were recorded as "undecided." "Two things must be borne in mind in interpreting the results of today's survey," says Dr. Gallup.

"1—The Institute's average error in the eight national elections covered to date has been 3.4 percentage points. This figure must be taken into account in interpreting today's results.

"2—Today's figure is based on party strength in the four States. On the basis of candidate popularity, Eisenhower runs slightly ahead of his party in this section."

AIR LOSSES IN KOREA

A United Press despatch from Tokyo says that the Allies have lost at least 1,572 planes in the Korean war while destroying 644 Communist aircraft, United Nations headquarters said. The figures included United States Air Force, Navy, Marine and non-American-piloted planes. In addition, the Allies probably destroyed 144 enemy planes and damaged 1,499 others. Allies losses were announced as: United States Navy, 819; United States Air Force, 613; shore-based United States Marines, 75; foreign (Australian, South African and Korean), 65.

EXPECTS NEW YORK

Gov. Dewey is going to concentrate his campaign efforts on his own State of New York and expresses confidence that the Republicans will carry it. Dewey carried the Empire State in 1948, and it would be highly essential to Republican success this year.

THE GREEDY TAX MAN

The late Lamont du Pont left an estate estimated at $75,000,000, which doesn't sound quite so impressive when one is given to understand that taxes will take more than $50,000,000 of it. However the surviving relatives may rest assured that there will be no wolf at the door, and certain institutions will probably receive comfortable sums.

ISSUES MRS. HOWARD SEES

What do women know about politics? Apparently Mrs. Charles P. Howard knows quite a bit. She is the sole woman member of the Strategy and Policy Committee which is leading the fight for the Republican ticket. Here is what she says the party should concentrate its efforts upon: Crime, Corruption, Communism, Korea, High Taxes and the Cost of Living.

THE STEVENSON SPEECH

Gov. Stevenson made a fine speech before the American Legion Convention. It was well delivered, eloquent and witty. The subject was patriotism, which would ordinarily seem completely non-political. But the business of running for President is political in every detail, and certainly the Madison Square Garden speech was designed to persuade and to get votes.

But what was there to disagree with? Gov. Stevenson is for national strength, preparedness, security and peace. No one can quarrel with his analysis of true patriotism. His warning against veterans' pressure groups was courageous and well taken. Certainly every person above the boor's level will agree that a Negro, a Jew, a Catholic or a Japanese-American is as much an American as anyone. Most assuredly it is spurious and contemptible to attack Gen. Marshall's loyalty and integrity of motives; and the late Doctor Johnson's remark about scoundrels remains eternally true. Every thoughtful American, which means most of our 160 million also believes in "free enterprise for the mind" as well as business. Of course the great American majority does not wish "to burn down the barn to kill the rats." Neither, it should be added, do they want to coddle Communists or hear any repetition of the Truman "red herring." What is more, the bulk of citizens are quite able to repulse "indiscriminate attacks" on schools and teachers. All this was distinctly worth saying, even though there is no notable ground for controversy.

What, then, is the voter to make of Gov. Stevenson's first major address. His manner is that of implication rather than blunt and vigorous statement. The contrast with Gen. Eisenhower is striking. As of now, Gov. Stevenson has scarcely touched upon issues, the real political problems. He has, however, inevitably raised what must remain to the end of the campaign a vital question before the voters. Which of these two able citizens is the man of action, the one best fitted to lead the nation in a critical hour, calling for swift decision and strong direction? Which can best lead the country from its present quagmire of corruption and confusion? We are confident that as the campaign develops the voters will recognize clearly the commanding qualities of Gen. Eisenhower, who alone can provide the leadership so urgently needed in the world today.—Herald Tribune.

AWAITING SUNDAY'S GAME

Played In Rockland At 2.30 P. M., To Decide Second Half Championship

(By Bob Mayo)

At Warren Thursday night the Rockets dropped their third straight game by the margin of one run as the Tigers rallied for two in the seventh and final inning to win 5-4. Rockland had taken the lead for the first time during the game in their half of the seventh when an error and singles by Pooch Starr, Bud Chisholm and Al Barlow. This attack chased Wayne Haver who had relieved starter Jim Halligan in the sixth and brought on Johnny Jenkins to halt the threat.

Leo Laukka, Haver and Red Demmons singled around a couple of stolen bases to fashion the winning rally in their half of the seventh and pull the game out of the fire. Laukka also had a triple during the course of events to lead Warren at bat while Al Barlow had two hits for the Rockets, as did newcomer Dr. Guy Kibbe who relieved Billy Holden in the third and pitched creditably the rest of the way. Score:

Rockland 0 0 0 0 1 3-4-7-1

Warren 0 0 1 2 0 2-5-8-2

Holden, Kibbe (3) and Thompson; Halligan, Haver (6), Jenkins (7) and Hanna.

The question of the week is How is George Johnson going to have a football team at Rockland High with only 18 players out? Football is a game that exacts a certain amount of wear and tear on the players so that there are usually one or two a week out with various injuries, not to mention the need of having at least 22 men to practice in scrimmages which are essential if a squad is ever going to have a chance in competition.

Looking back in the files I find that only 23 showed up for the first session last year. This was small enough but at least there was enough material for scrimmage sessions at the start, though near the end of the season the coaches had to fill in for scrimmages. It is possible that more will turn out next week when Summer jobs are over and still more when school begins, however now is the time they are needed with the opening game two weeks away. Just for the record, 23 turned out last year. At Madison, which is certainly no larger than Rockland, 55 turned out for the opening of practice.

The play-off for the second half Twilight league championship between Thomaston and Waldoboro will take place at 2.30 Sunday at Community Park. Johnny Dana will probably go for the defending champions while Waldoboro seems likely to use either Don Bowman or the ageless Hank Lives.

Alden Watts called to inform me that the opening game of the three game series between the first and second half winners will be played Labor Day in Warren presumably at 2.30. Regardless of the opposition, the Tiger hurler will be Jim Halligan who twirled a no-hitter in his last outing. Alden also claims that the Thursday victory over Rockland puts the Tigers in a tie with that team for third place. Since my last wish is to offend the denizens of Heartbreak Ridge, I will go along with this proposition although it falls to jib with my previous figures. Here, then, is the final standing of the Twilight league:

The League Standing

AN EARLY SEPTEMBER TOUR

Early Stages Of Eisenhower's Campaign Will Be In the Southland

Eisenhower announced his first major campaign trip, a double-circle route that will carry him through strategic voting areas in the South and Middle West.

Leaving New York, Sept. 2, he will make appearances in 14 cities in 10 States. The itinerary:

Sept. 1, New York.
Sept. 2, Atlanta, Ga., and Jacksonville and Miami Fla.
Sept. 3, Tampa, Fla., Birmingham, Ala., Little Rock, Ark., and return New York.
Sept. 4, Philadelphia.
Sept. 5, Chicago.
Sept. 6, Rochester, Kasson and Minneapolis, Minn.

Sept. 7, (Sunday) Minneapolis.
Sept. 8, Indianapolis, Ind.
Sept. 10, Return to New York.

One of his aides said today the general will remain in New York for no more than two or three days before starting on an even longer swing, via the traditional campaign train with numerous "whistle stop" appearances. The route has not been fixed.

Probably during that period, Eisenhower will meet with Senator Taft.

One of the General's aides said Taft had told him in a telephone conversation that the senator has every intention of giving his best efforts to assist Eisenhower's campaign.

In Chicago, Eisenhower will confer with representatives from Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. In Cleveland, conferences are scheduled with party chiefs from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Eisenhower's speech at Convention Hall in Philadelphia will be a major effort, televised and broadcast by radio. Some of the other speeches will be broadcast, but the secretary said it is not certain whether there will be other television coverage.

At the National Plowing Contest at Kasson, Minn., Sept. 5, Eisenhower will cross the path of his Democratic opponent for the presidency. Gov. Stevenson, who is scheduled to speak the same day. From Labor Day onward, Eisenhower's backers said, "he will be in there swinging."

For a Republican presidential candidate to open his campaign in the usually solid South is a somewhat unorthodox move. But Eisenhower's advisers say they believe he has a chance to carry some stronghold.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire who visited the General said, "There is a fighting chance for him in three or four states." He named Texas, Florida, Virginia and "perhaps Tennessee."

When he completes the Southern circle, Eisenhower goes into two Midwestern states where Taft had some of his most solid support, Ohio and Indiana.

Representative Martin of Massachusetts, another visitor to Eisenhower's headquarters, scoffed at speculation that Taft's admirers would not give the general wholehearted support. "I think Taft's people for the most part, are supporting, like enthusiastically," Martin said.

Eisenhower also saw Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and other officials of the organization. Wilkins said the General re-stated his opposition to a compulsory federal fair employment practices act.

The general favors "federal action" toward the abolition of poll taxes and to outlaw lynching, Wilkins continued.

"He impressed me as being tremendously sincere," Wilkins told newsmen.

MEMORY LANE

Remember how for years the old zinc tub not only took care of the family laundry each week but Saturday night baths as well? Later, father installed a new fangled tin tub, just for bathing. That was really something. Then, it too was replaced. This time by a shiny white porcelain tub that stood on four sturdy legs. Remember?

Our services are planned so as not to be a financial burden on those who remain—never more than you can afford.

Rockland Lions

Two New Members Are Initiated—Mrs. Hopkins' Travel Talk

Mrs. Cleo W. Hopkins presented a most interesting illustrated lecture on her recent trip to Alaska and the Arctic Circle. She was introduced by Wilbur Senter, co-chairman of the program committee.

Jasper Hardy, chairman of attendance committee outlined a plan for the coming year. He also pointed out that Wednesday Sept. 3 will be celebrated by our club as 100 percent attendance week, in honor of Melvin Jones, founder of the Lions Club.

Two new members, Leroy Miller and Bernard Andrews were welcomed into the club with a hearty Lions roar.

International Councilor Larry Barnes conducted the initiation ceremony. Leroy was sponsored by Zane Chairman Gerry Grant. Bernard was sponsored by his father, Arthur Andrews.

Leroy Miller is manager of the Eastern Tire Service, Inc., of Rockland, and Bernard Andrews is connected with the Round Table Foundation at Warrenton, Glen Cove.

"Josh" Southard thanked the club for the honor bestowed on him in naming the Sea Scouts new boat the "Joshuway."

Josh also told the club of an experience during his recent illness. While in a coma, he had an imaginary conference with St. Peter for about an hour. St. Peter told him that he had a lot of work to do on earth yet, and to go on back to the Lions Club.

Efforts were made to present Senator Richard Nixon of California, on the program next Wednesday.

Senator Nixon is candidate for vice president of the United States on the ticket with Gen. Eisenhower.

Senator Nixon is scheduled to leave Rockland at 11 a. m. and speak before a joint Rotary-Kiwanis-Lions meeting in Auburn at noon. However, all members are urged to be on the Public Landing at 10 a. m. Wednesday, Sept. 3, and take advantage of seeing and hearing one of the most dynamic speakers in these United States.

The public has been cordially invited to attend by Carl M. Stilphen, Knox County member of the Republican State Committee.

That Generations to Come may Remember

In memory of our loved one, Edgar Critch, who passed away Labor Day, 1948.

When the evening shades are falling,
And we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing
If our loved one only could come home.

Do not ask us if we miss him,
Oh, there's such a vacant place,
Oft we think we hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.

Oft and oft our thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away,
Where they laid our loved one,
Four years ago today.

Never to be forgotten, wife and daughters, Edna, Kay and Bessie.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our grandfather (Pa) Edgar Critch who passed away Labor Day, 1948.

Oh, wouldn't it be wonderful, if we could see
Our loving "Pa" as he used to be,
Oh wouldn't it be wonderful to see him smile
And to have him back for a little while.

Could we be wrong in wanting him so
When the angels wanted him we know.

Never to be forgotten, Betty Lou Kennedy, Sonny Robinson, Gloria Dawn and Penny O'Sullivan.

Strand Theatre

Ring in a holiday season of great motion picture entertainment will be "Just For You," latest technicolor musical-comedy entry of Bing Crosby and Jane Wyman. Neither of these personalities are in need of an introduction as both are at the top of the success ladder in that land of make-believe called "Hollywood."

However it is wise to point out that their last celluloid vehicle together was "Here Comes The Groom," a film which was worthy of all the great superlatives thrust upon it. It is said that "Just For You" will gain even a greater place in favorite movie memory department.

The local engagement of "Just For You" will be inaugurated at 3 p. m. Sunday on the screen of Strand Theatre. Later in the day, which folds into Labor Day Eve will see a special Late Owl Show with the complete show starting at 10:30. This show is for the benefit of Holiday Celebrators in the next morning (you can who like to stay up late and sleep know).

On Labor Day (Monday) there will be a continuous show policy with the first performance beginning at 2 p. m. The engagement will continue through Tuesday and Wednesday with shows on those days beginning at 2, 5:40 and 8:45.

All shows of "Just For You" (including the Late Owl Show) will be at regular prices. It'll be a happy holiday "just for you."

Suggested give and take plan—give blood, and take all the defense bonds you can buy.

Mr. Motorist, child safety is your business! In September, nearly 200,000 children will be walking to and from school four times a day, using our Maine streets and highways. You cannot afford to make a driving mistake where even one of these children is concerned. Every time a child is killed or injured in a traffic accident, a multiple tragedy occurs. The child suffers, the parents suffer and the motorist suffers. However, remorse can never take the place of a little caution beforehand. So remember... drive slowly and extra carefully when in school areas and in residential districts. Always be ready to slow down... always to stop. Don't kill a child.

KNOX COUNTY CENSUS DATA

Males numbered 13,932 and females 14,189 among the 28,121 inhabitants of Knox County enumerated in the 1950 Census according to final figures announced by the Bureau of the Census.

The total population included 28,067 whites, 27 Negroes and 27 persons of other races.

The median age of the population was 34.5 years, while 14.4 percent were 65 years old and over. The number of children under five years old was 2,812. The number of persons 21 years old and over was 19,124.

Among the 10,600 males 14 years old and over, 7,081 were married; among the 10,948 females of these ages, 6,957 were married. Among the 6,549 married couples living together, 6,130 lived in their own households while 410 were sharing the households of others. The total number of households was 8,852 and the average population per household was 3.08 persons.

Of persons 14 years old and over

10,686 were in the labor force, comprising 74.2 percent of the males and 25.8 percent of the females in this age group. Of employed workers, 25.4 percent were engaged in manufacturing.

Of persons 14 to 17 years old, 83 percent were in school. In the group 7 to 13 years old, 97.1 percent were in school. The median years of school completed by persons 25 years old and over was 10.5.

The median income in 1949 of families and unrelated individuals was $1870.

The data on education and income are based on inquiries made of a sample of one in five of the whole population, while the other data are based upon complete enumeration.

Motorists, learn the three R's of safe driving. The Maine State Police say: Be on the Right side of the traffic laws... be Reasonable toward other drivers... be Ready to spare a child's life.

FARM AND GRANGE NEWS OF INTEREST IN KNOX AND LINCOLN COUNTIES

F. H. A. FARM HOUSING LOANS

Local Office Manager Joy Is Ready To Aid Farmers In Financial Problems

More than 12,000 families throughout the country have used the Government's four-year-old farm housing program to improve inadequate housing. The total thus far in the Knox-Lincoln area is 44.

Questions most often asked about the housing credit are answered below:

For what purpose may I get a housing loan? To construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace a house or other buildings needed to run your farm.

Am I Eligible? You are if you are a farm owner, unable to get suitable credit elsewhere, and lack the necessary capital to make the needed improvements. You must also be able to pay back the loan from farm and other income. Tenants and farm laborers are not eligible, but owners may borrow to build or repair houses and other farm buildings for their tenants or laborers.

What interest do I pay? Four percent a year on the unpaid balance.

How much may I borrow? The amount is government-controlled on both farm and city houses, so as to prevent inflation and conserve building material for defense purposes. Where the amount needed to repair or build a new farm house is more than $2500, the top amount you can borrow is limited. Loan limits are based on a percentage of the estimated cost of the proposed construction plus, in the case of a new house, five percent of the construction cost as an allowance for the building site.

What if I'm a veteran? Then you can borrow a larger proportion of the amount needed than other farm owners. For example, a veteran could be loaned up to $7980 on a new house costing $8900, while a non-veteran's loan for a similar house would be limited to $7350.

How much time do I have to pay off the loan? Maximum payment periods on loans are also restricted. Loans between $2500 and $12,000 are repayable in a maximum of 25 years and loans for more than $12,000 in not more than 20 years.

What security do I give? A mortgage on your farm, subject to any existing prior liens, and such additional security as may be necessary to reasonably protect the government's investment.

How large must my farm be to qualify me for a loan? Your land, operated as a single unit, must produce agricultural commodities for sale or home use which have an annual gross value of at least $400 based on 1944 prices.

Do veterans have preference? Yes, preference is given veterans of all wars and immediate families of veterans who died in war service.

What if my present income isn't enough to repay the loan? In that case, you may still be able to get a loan if you can work out and follow a program which, within five years, will enable you to improve your methods of farming and increase your income to a point where you can repay your loan. Then if you don't have the money you need to meet your payments during any of the first five years, the government may help you by writing off up to half the principal and all the interest due in that year.

What are the building requirements? It is expected that any building erected or repaired will have, when finished, a sound foundation, strong walls, and a tight roof, and will meet similar minimum construction standards.

Are loans made to buy and develop land? In some cases, they are. When buying more land or when improvements such as clearing, draining, fencing, and terracing will increase the family income enough to repay the housing loan, money may be used for land purchase or development.

What local aid does this program receive? County committees of local farmers who help administer the farm ownership and farm-operating loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration advise on the eligibility of applicants, the reasonable value of their farms, and the amount of assistance for which applicants are qualified. Where necessary, committees look over farms and talk personally with applicants before making their recommendations.

If my loan is approved, when may I start construction? As soon as your loan is closed. Farm housing funds cannot be used to pay for materials bought or labor hired before your loan is closed.

Where can I get more information or make application? Darius D. Joy Jr., F.H.A. County Supervisor, whose office is located in the Post Office Building, Rockland will be glad to explain the farm housing loan program to you. His office can also supply you with application blanks if you are interested in a loan.

State Chairmen

Lewis C. Guptill

Lewis C. Guptill, State Grange Master, has been appointed State campaign chairman of the 1953 March of Dimes, it was announced today by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. As Maine chairman, Mr. Guptill will co-ordinate the fund-raising activities of March of Dimes campaign directors throughout the state.

In announcing the appointment Mr. O'Connor explained that the National Foundation, through March of Dimes grants, has financed vital research into the causes of polio since its organization in 1938.

"At this critical point in science's fight against the crippling disease and with victory within sight, it is more than ever before necessary to support the March of Dimes," Mr. O'Connor said. "The pressing need for ample funds may best be found in the alarming polio incidence figures since the beginning of the year. They indicate another year with perhaps as many victims of the disease as in 1949, the worst polio year in the nation's history. If this proves true, then the National Foundation will end the year in debt as has been the case since 1948."

Mr. Guptill was born in Berwick and engaged in farming and the lumber business until his election as Master of the Maine State Grange. He is a Selectman of Berwick, a trustee of the New England Grange Building at Springfield, Mass., and a member and trustee of the Congregational Church at North Berwick.

For a small inexpensive scrapbook, you might use several sections of unprinted newspaper which The Courier-Gazette has for sale at a very modest price. 123-156

CENSUS REPORT ON KNOX FARMS

Drop Of 571 In Farm Total With Loss Of 20,341 Acres In the Period From 1945 to 1950

The Bureau of Census has released the following information on Knox County's farms. What it shows is not pleasing in many ways. However, it is interesting and informative and in part explains the changes found by the census takers.

The final figures of the 1950 census of agriculture shows that the number of farms in Knox County decreased from 1672 in 1945 to 1101 in 1950, according to Francis X. Griffin, supervisor of the Portland census district office. Griffin stated that, although some of this decrease can be attributed to the change in definition of a farm used in the two census, it is significant to note that, whereas in 1945 there were 122,412 acres in farm land, there were only 102,071 in 1950.

Concurrently, however, the average size of farms in this county rose from 73.2 acres in 1945 to 92.7 in 1950, which was consistent with the trend throughout the entire State of Maine.

The average value of farms increased from $3014 to $5676 per farm while the per acre value jumped from $41.17 to $63.49 during this same period.

Of the total acreage in farm land in this county, 93,641 acres were owned by the farm operators.

HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT NOTES

Tips For Making a Household Fan Do Triple Duty; Answers To Several Canning Problems Encountered

Dear Homemakers:

Did you know the different uses you can use your portable electric fan for besides helping you keep cool this hot humid weather? It can be a convenience as well as a comfort.

A fan can hasten the thawing of frozen fruit or meat, for example. Leave the food in its tight wrapping while the breeze helps thaw it, and turn the food from side to side for even thawing. A fan also may help in defrosting a home freezer. If ice has formed and is difficult to scrape off, the fan can help melt it by blowing warm air in and cold air out.

A fan can help in many drying jobs around the house, especially in humid or rainy weather. Placed at one end of an indoor clothes line or rack, it can help blow the clothes dry. Polishing floors with wax can be done faster if a fan blows on the wax as it is applied. A fan also can hurry the drying of varnish, shellac or paint.

Use fans in any room to clear out smoke, steam or odors. Set the fan in front of an open window in laundry, kitchen or bath to blow out stale or steamy air. When using a fan this way, be sure it stands on a wide enough surface so that it won't tip or fall. Be sure also that it stands on a dry surface.

To prevent mildew and mustiness in hot damp weather, direct a fan into clothes closets or dresser drawers.

Let your fan help you cool the house off at night by setting it so that it will draw the cool night air. Many homes can be made more comfortable if the accumulation of heat in the attic is fanned out at night. Run the fan during the night before an open attic window, leaving the attic doorway open, so it draws up cool air from below and also drives out the hot air.

Canning Answers

This time of year we get calls in the office concerning canning questions. Let's consider a few of the common ones and their answers.

What makes fruits and vegetables shrink in the jars?

This may be one of several reasons: Too loose a pack in the jar, or raw foods which were not pre-cooked enough, the produce may have been too ripe, overprocessing, processing at too high a temperature, uneven pressure in the pressure cooker when canning vegetables. If the seal is airtight, the food will keep even though the jar may be only partly filled.

What makes canned pease have a cloudy look?

The peas may have been too mature and the starch may have bleached out. Free running table salt, which contains starch, may have been used. Bag or dairy salt is recommended. Hard water upon boiling may give a white sediment, and they may have developed "flat sour" and spoiled.

What causes "flat sour"?

Flat sour may be caused by: canning produce that is wilted or not fresh. Letting jars of precooked food stand around before processing underprocessing, not having both boiling when jars are put in, or letting jars cool too slowly either by covering them with towels or by placing the cooling jars too close together.

What makes peaches, pears, and apples turn brown?

The action of substances in the raw fruit coming in contact with air causes browning. Browning also impairs the flavor. Sometimes the entire contents of the jar will be discolored.

In preparing these fruits they should be dropped into cold water, or salt water (1-2 tablespoon per quart.) The food was not covered with liquid. Containers should be filled with hot liquid so as to leave no air pockets, and as little headspace as possible in the top of the jar. Sweet corn, carrots and some berries will also turn brown, or sweet corn may brown if heated at too high a temperature or for too long a time. The sugar in the corn caramelizes.

Can peanut butter jars, mayonnaise jars, and other odd jars be used for canning?

Yes, but they must have a properly fitting lid. If the regular Mason jar cover fits, any two or three piece lids may be used. All covers and rubbers must fit the jars with which they are to be used, the processing time for old jars depends upon the thickness through them. Sterilizing heat must penetrate to the center of the jar if the food is to keep. For two-quart jars, if the thickness through is the same as for quarts, process one fourth longer than for quarts. Use only for fruits and pickles.

Most important, use regular jars for canning meat, poultry, fish and non-acid vegetables.

Sincerely,
Winifred Ramsdell

Foreign Students Visit The Courier-Gazette

Linotype operator Shirley Barbour shows the three girls in the group the operation of the complex Linotype machine which produces the type for The Courier-Gazette. Left to right they are: Wineke Dethmers of Holland; Inga Steindal of Norway and Janke Van Wyland of Holland.

Newspaper Plant Toured By Hollanders and Norwegian On Friday Morning

The Courier-Gazette received a visit from five interesting young people Friday morning. Four came from the Netherlands while the other is a native of Norway.

In the group were Peter Va De Voort, Jan Tieken, Janke Van Wyland and Wineke Dethmers, all of Holland, and Inga Steindal of Norway. All are agricultural exchange students in the area under the guidance of County Agent Gil Jaeger and his staff. All have made their homes on various farms in the area in recent months and are now working out of the County Agent's Office in Rockland until Sept. 13.

First, came the two men who made a complete tour of the busy newspaper plant which was rushing down toward a printing deadline at 3 p. m.

The three young ladies made their appearance in mid-morning and enjoyed a tour of the office, composition department and the pressroom.

By the questions they asked, it was evident that the visit was more than a time-killing tour. They were very much interested in the many processes which go into the production of a newspaper. Before they left the plant at noon, they undoubtedly had a good idea of what goes into delivering the news to homes all over Knox County.

Publisher John M. Richardson, left, shows Jan Tieken and Peter Van De Voort the operations of the Fairchild electronic engraving machine on which the pictures appearing in The Courier-Gazette are made. The unit is the latest in the field of engraving and was entirely new to the visitors.

All of the group are teachers in the agricultural and homemaking fields in their native lands with their duties approximating those of our county agents, home demonstration agents and 4-H leaders.

The group has traveled widely since being in this country and have made it a point to learn as much about the American way of life as possible to take back to their students in their homelands.

No. 1 Hog Killer

Animal Health Foundation Tells Farmers How To Combat Cholera

On the eve of another Fall campaign to check the multi-million dollar hog cholera losses suffered by swine producers each Autumn, the American Foundation for Animal Health today gave farmers a series of pointers to help them combat this No. 1 hog killer.

"The most frequent question farmers raise about hog cholera is when is the best time to have pigs vaccinated," Foundation authorities said. "The general practice is to have vaccination done when pigs are about six weeks of age, if serum and virus are used.

"Farmers also want to know what kind of immunization method should be used. This is something that should be determined by the veterinarian when he checks the drove to determine whether it is in condition for immunization.

"Still another question farmers ask is: 'If I didn't have hog cholera losses last year, do I need to vaccinate this year?'

"The answer is 'Yes.' Cholera is the most deadly of all swine diseases. It strikes without warning and usually kills within four to sev-

Much to Johnny's surprise, he was made Guest of Honor for the evening and presented a token of appreciation from the group for his wonderful leadership during the summer months by Dick Von Dohlen. ## The Garden Club

Sees Fine Demonstrations By Flower Arrangement Student

The importance of flowers for home decoration, and displays to promote the standard of horticulture in the community was the theme of Mrs. Donald W. Tozier of Augusta in her demonstration at the August meeting of the Rockland Garden Club. Mrs. Tozier is director of the Kennebec Valley Region Garden Clubs and has studied flower arranging with widely known authorities. Her home gardens are noted for their lovely color and constant bloom.

Mrs. E. Stewart Orbeton, program chairman, presided at the meeting held Tuesday with Mrs. Herve Allen as hostess, at the Copper Kettle.

It was reported that a "Flower Show Practices" and "Staging Better Exhibits" school is to be staged Sept. 10, 11 and 12 at Portland Junior College. It will be sponsored by the Garden Club Federation of Maine and conducted by Miss Anne Frances Hodgkins of Harswell and New York. This is Course III and is especially for those who have completed the first and second courses in Maine and other States. Beginners may enroll and receive help in workshop groups.

The lectures by prominent authorities on horticulture, flower arranging and flower show technique are open to all members of the Garden Federation and to non-members. The tuition fee of $10 for the enrollment in the school should be sent by Sept. 1 to Mrs. William W. Dennison, Bath, Maine federation treasurer. Further information may be obtained from Miss Anne F. Hodgkins, Route 2, Brunswick, Maine.

It was voted to pay the tuition fee to send the club president, Mrs. Lyford Ames to this school.

Mrs. Orbeton then presented Mrs. Tozier who was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Clifford Boyd of Gainesville, Fla.

Mrs. Tozier had prepared numerous arrangements which she displayed to illustrate the points in her talk. As her program developed she created several additional arrangements for Fall and Winter bouquets.

The three kinds of flower arrangements: Line, mass and naturalistic were aptly shown by her exhibits. The suitability of the arrangement to the container, rhythm, visual weight and texture were all pleasingly outlined for the club.

The next meeting will be held in September with Mrs. George St. Clair.

and Contest Notes

"Crickets"
The "Crickets" family "Gryllidae" contains three distinct groups, the mole cricket with fore legs developed for burrowing—tree crickets and true crickets, including the common field and house type.

Most of them are black in color or a dull green and purple—and are nocturnal in their habits. They are mostly herbivorous with few exceptions. You will find the American black field crickets most abundant in neglected or abandoned fields or where there are layers of old straw which furnish them with warmth and hiding.

They dig holes in the ground and set there during the day, chirping about their business at night. Their eggs are laid in loose soil, chiefly in the autumn and hatch in the Spring. The commonest species in the northeastern United States occasionally comes into the houses; but a proper house cricket is that of Europe which is especially fond of the crevices about fireplaces. This species is now acclimated in Canada as well as some of the northeastern states.

We have a cricket here in Maine, common in the New England states and the chirping of these insects, which begins in mid-Summer is produced by rubbing a file-like ridge of one wing over a scraping surface of the other. Only the male cricket produces this sound and it is believed he uses it to call the "mute" females.

There are a group of minute (very diminutive size) resembling tiny roaches; this species dwells entirely in the nests of ants both here and abroad.

An expression "It isn't cricket" (meaning it isn't sportsman like) is often used by Englishmen who play a game they call "Cricket" which has nothing to do with insects.

The so called "mormon cricket" ranges from Western Minnesota and Colorado west to the Sierra Nevada mountains of California and the Cascade Range or Oregon and Washington states. During the critical early days of the settlement of Mormons at Salt Lake City, the crops whose loss would have meant starvation and defeat were threatened with complete destruction by hordes of these insects.

As we were told in the introductory article, seagulls, those no doubt called the California gull, came to gorge on these insect pests and were credited by the Mormons as being agents of the Lord and with

Shibles Reunion

Held At Glen Cove Saw One 81 Year Old Member Make Trip From Needham

Ralph Shibles of Laconia, N. H., was elected president at the Shibles reunion recently, at Glen Cove Grange Hall. Mrs. Louise Shibles of South Portland was named as vice president and Loana S. Shibles of Rockport as secretary-treasurer.

Harry Shibles of Needham, Mass. traveled the greatest distance, especially for the reunion. Mr. Shibles is 81 years old and enjoys the reunion very much.

Mrs. Augusta Shibles, who is spending the Summer at the Shibles' Homestead in Rockport, was the oldest member present while John Magune Dunton of Glen Rock, N. J., who is spending the Summer with his grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Magune was the youngest member present.

Other representatives of the Shibles family present were: Mr. and Mrs. Barak Shibles, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Shibles, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shibles, all of North Berwick.

Mrs. Ralph Shibles of Laconia, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hahn, Miss Frances Hahn, Mrs. Martha Carter, all of Thomaston.

Mrs. Nellie Magune and Mr. and Mrs. Gershom Rollins of Rockland; Mrs. Dorothy Magune Dunton and Robert Gilley Dunton, Jr., Glen Rock, N. J.

Mrs. Edith Shibles Overlock, Mrs. Abbie B. Sylvester, John H. Bohn-dell and Lester H. Shibles, all of Rockport; and Mrs. Marieta Shibles Stiles, Mount Vernon, N.Y. The 65th reunion is to be held at Beaver Dam Grange Hall in North Berwick on Aug. 22, 1953.

nic last week at the Caram Place Beach.

There is real need for taxpayers' relief committees.

saving the crops. A large and impressive monument stands in Temple Square in the Mormon capitol a tribute to the gulls who saved their crops and their lives.

The adult Mormon crickets are preyed upon by various gulls, hawks, blackbirds and the sage thrasher as well as others. The thrasher, western meadowlarks also various shrews and mice are avid eaters of the cricket eggs; probably their most effective destroyer is a tiny wasp.

The adult crickets are preyed upon by several species of flesh flies and the larger black wasps, and as we told you before they were used as a source of food by the early American Indians who dried and roasted them.

As we stated at the beginning of the column, there are three distinct groups of crickets there is also a cricket called the "Pigmy Sand Cricket" a small burrowing cricket, much like the mole cricket. This insect is less than 3-8 of an inch in length. They jump about from water to sand surfaces and are found in damp spots throughout our region.

Some people whose superstitions predominates feels the "house cricket" brings them luck. A small foot stool much appreciated in Grandma's day is sometimes referred to as the "Cricket."

PENOBSCOT'S MEN OF STEAM

A pre-view of the tales of the men who operated the ships and the Steamboat Lines mentioned in Steamboat Lore of the Penobscot

by John M. Richardson

Two characters studies are presented herewith. The man in the iron hat has been highly important in steamboat operating circles and during the war-time emergency became the key man of the huge merchant ship building activity in the Portland area so important that his name and that of Newell of Bath were always linked in talk of ocean going tonnage and the building of swift destroyers. His name meant responsibility for years in the operations of the Eastern and this picture was caught on the pilot house steps of steamer Boothbay. It is safe to say that he don't wear this type of hat when he visits his beautiful Summer home, Blueberry Acres, in Rockville. "Who is he?"

The slighter of the two men in the second picture has also attained top success in his chosen vocation—a follower of the sea. It must have been chilly that day on the Boothbay, for these two men who have hands plunged deeply in pockets. The slender man is in characteristic stance, well remembered by crewmen and friends, and he wore captain's insignia then as today. The thought persists—when he enters New York harbor as master of a huge super-tanker with a responsibility covering millions of dollars and see his old charge—the Boothbay sputtering back and forth between the Battery and Redlin's Island with "Statue of Liberty Boat" painted on her tiny streamlined bow—does he think of his early days in Rockland, Maine, with his tall stacked, immaculate Boothbay, making her silent, dignified way across Penobscot Bay, morning night. He's in the "Big Time" and it was always apparent that he would be. "Who is he?"

SHE'S STILL STEAM AND GOING STRONG

Steamer Westport

The writer was privileged last Sunday to make the steamboat trip Boston to Nantasket. Nothing unusual about making the trip, but the accent on "steamboat." The steamboat in question is the sole survivor of Rockland's once sizeable fleet that remains steam propelled.

It is the steamer Westport, sound as a nut as to hull and in excellent condition mechanically. Only minor structural changes have been made in the fine old vessel and she handled the heavy crowd in comfort. To be sure the present day appearance of the engine room is far different than in the days of the regime of Chief Ervin Haskell, but the sturdy engine, built by the Atlantic Works' in 1911, still functions beautifully. Her present owners, the Wilson Line, operates her opposite their streamlined Boston Belle and appear well satisfied with the set-up.

At one time the wearer of the master's cap held an important place in the life of dwellers on Swan's Island, Deer Isle and North Haven. He was on the "Island boats" man and boy, rising from freight wrangler to captain, the position he held when the final steamboat sailing was made on the island run. He is now master of the Casco Bay Lines Emita, but remains true to steam and his loyalty to the sturdy Gov. Bodwell the able North Haven has never been questioned. Who is he?

'Want Things Done' Gov. Payne Believes That His Support Comes From Those Who Do

Gov. Frederick G. Payne, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, appealed today for support by voters "who want things done." Between campaign rallies—he now has covered 13 counties—Governor Payne said: "I have always liked to believe I was elected Governor in 1948, again in 1950 and hold the Republican Senatorial nomination today because people were interested in a man who would try to get things done. The record of my three and one-half years at Augusta indicates that my basic aim, as a public official, is the welfare of the people whom I serve.

"In my 1948 campaign, I advocated greater aid for education, an expanded highway program, more assistance for the aged and for those in our mental and tubercular institutions and elimination of overlapping in State government. "I think the record speaks loudly to show that Fred Payne kept faith with the people who accorded him the honor of serving as Governor. "We're in another campaign now with the opposition attempting feverishly to becloud the basic issues through personal attacks upon me and family.

"I will not glorify these trumped-up allegations by answering them and urge voters not to be misled by the rabble-rousing type of campaign being used against me.

"This is not an election of personalities; it is an election of issues. I'm talking issues and will continue to do so. I am not inter-

The Bird Hunters

Are Wondering How Drouth Will Affect the Coming Season

How will the prolonged drought this Summer affect the Maine bird hunting season in October? That is question many upland hunters are asking these days, with the opening but a few weeks ahead.

At the present time, woodcock covers are well sprinkled with long-billed timberdoles. Most guides and game wardens feel that these native birds will leave early, however, unless rain is abundant in the immediate future. Certainly, they say, if woodcock do stay around in October, they'll be lying near wet, ground or near edges of brooks and ponds. That is, again, unless the weatherman pours a lot of rain on the woods soon.

Woodcock depend on food found in moist ground; grubs and worms. If the soil is hard-packed, they must move to new areas.

Water is an important factor in the lives of all birds and game, of course. Many Maine outdoorsmen are saying there are fewer partridge than in the past couple of years. Others maintain that partridge are just as plentiful but that they are back in the woods, near water.

Forecasters agree that waterfowl have summered well, despite low water and dried up bog-holes, in some sections. Rainfall was heavy enough before the drought to allow successful nesting and once birds learn to fly they will find water, these forecasters believe.

The over-all picture for wing-shooters, then, remains in some doubt but birds have a way of showing up every Fall when hunting gets underway.

NEW YORK'S GREATEST PARADE

Furnished By the American Legion Convention Lasted from 10.06 A. M. to 7.53 P. M.

Fifth avenue was turned into a trail of violent colors and sound by 75,000 Legionnaires Tuesday.

The parade got under way at 10.06 a. m. and continued until 7.53 p. m.

The crowd gathered early. Many of them knew Gen. Eisenhower would be marching early, with his friends from Kansas.

Police Commissioner Monaghan said at 11.30 a. m. that there were 2,000,000 persons along the route. He said he expected another 500,000 would join them.

There was clowning and buffonery, but the most of the men walked stoutly to "Dixie," "Yankee Doodle," "Old Folks at Home," "East Side, West Side," "Over There" and other nostalgic airs.

There was levity—Legionnaires yelled at pretty girls young enough to be their daughters.

Then came Louisiana, given the place of honor at the head of the Legion's continental United States contingents—Kansas, had been slipped in ahead to get Gen. Eisenhower to the reviewing stand first, with Louisiana, which achieved the highest percentage of membership in 1951, were five members of its state motorcycle police. A band began to play "Dixie." There were rebel yells.

Colorado offered the first wild-west color to the folks back east. The drum and bugle corps, state champions, from Durango, Colo., were in full Navaho Indian garb. Streaks of red, gold, yellow and blue paint crisscrossed the faces of the musicians. And there was a drum and bugle corps from Colorado in cowboy dress.

Georgia, led by a drum majorette in purple, carried the first Confederate flag, the Stars and Bars, up the avenue. The Red Jacket band from Columbus, Ga., played "Old Folks at Home." Southerners led off high-pitched "ya-hoos!"

Eight coveting drum majorettes in white and crimson cut up in front of a high school band. A Mississippi marcher was passing out, and white candy sticks wrapped in cellophane. Gen. Eisenhower was handed a few sticks and he began to eat a piece. Miss Hospitality of Mississippi blew a kiss to the general.

Not merely in winning, for equally as important is the manner in which I win, should a majority vote be in my favor.

"The issues are clearly defined if the voter will but take time to ascertain them. Shall inflation continue? Shall we continue to spend loosely under the guise of national defense? Shall we continue to allow Communists in government? Do we want an Administration in power which by-passes the Constitution at every turn?

"These, friends, are important issues. I am confident our people, both in Maine and the Nation, will view these very important elections on merit, and vote accordingly."

A band in confederate gray from Nashville, Tenn., concentrated on Stephen Foster tunes as it moved along. Then came Minnesota. A banner proclaimed this state the "Land of 10,000 Lakes."

In mid afternoon Sen. Richard M. Nixon the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee, took his place with the California delegation and set off up fifth avenue. He was in his shirt sleeves and wore a Legion cap. He cut back and forth across the avenue as his unit progressed, greeting onlookers, shaking hands with well wishers and kidding with children.

Iowa Legionnaires brandished cornstalks. Texas showed off six mounted cowboys. New Mexico presented a Spanish-style band. Kentucky boasted two dignified colonels in broad-brimmed hats, goatees and morning coats.

The boys from Massachusetts got a ripple of laughter along the line with their "Leaping Lena" automobile, which reared back on its wheels and backfired. A drum major from Rhode Island excited everybody by tossing his baton 30 feet high. Nearly always he caught it.

The Missouri delegation didn't forget. At its head was a large mob. Members carried a sign "Meet Me In St. Louis," the city which has been selected as the site of next year's Legion convention.

The Pennsylvania group was led by Gov. Fine. He rode in an open car behind a unit of mounted Pennsylvania state troopers.

Units from Montana, New Hampshire, Maine, Virginia and Connecticut all pleased the thousands of New Yorkers who lined Fifth avenue to see somebody from their home states.

Gen. Eisenhower came abreast the reviewing stand at 11.25 a. m. A cheer rolled up the avenue announcing his approach. Women in the stands lining the west side of the parade route yelled "Hello Ike." Then, in busbies, white waistcoats and trousers of marine blue came the Old Guard of the State of New York an organization founded in 1836 as the Governor's Guard. Mayor Luppelt, a past commander of Rhineland Post, No. 6 moved briskly behind the Old Guard. "East Side, West Side" was played in his honor by the Police Department Band.

Up in the reviewing stand most of the important people were in their places. The United States Military Academy band had led a contingent of white uniformed West Point Cadets past the stand. The appearance of the smoothly marching men from the Academy sent a ripple of excitement through the onlookers.

Military band followed military band—the United States Marine Band from Washington, the United States Navy Band, the Air Force Band the Coast Guard Band the 1st Army Band.

Aug. 23-24 Saturday and Sunday of last week were wonderful days for me. With Pauline Bohn of Jamaica Plain, Mass., and Camden, and Anne Stevenson of Philadelphia and Rockport, I had a two-day outing on Mt. Desert Island, and don't let anyone convince you that "Two's company, three's a crowd" we were three and were so happy together every minute that we can strongly refute the old adage.

Saturday we spent riding over the island, seeing much of Acadia National Park, going along toward Hancock and Winter Harbor in the late afternoon to find a place to stay for the night. It was not too easy but we finally found Frenchman's Bay Lodge in Winter Harbor where there were two rooms available for the night.

A beautiful place—a former private Summer residence, built in 1936, which had been purchased by the present owners only three years ago as a lodge, but who have kept it still much as a private residence in its atmosphere. The house had been purchased with its furnishings almost complete, so everywhere one sees beautifully decorated furniture, marvelous dishes, fine pictures and linens, a profusion of books, and so on.

The living room has an enormous picture window which looks out on a wide sweep of Frenchman's Bay and Cadillac Mountain. The Lodge itself sets back from the road in an oval setting of lawn with border gardens which were a riot of color last week. We enjoyed our stay so much—the gracious manner of Mrs. Miller, one of the owners, the friendly atmosphere among the guests, and the quiet charm of the place.

The next morning we motored over to Schoodic Point, one of the most breath-taking sights on the Maine coast. Looking out over the wide expanse of ocean to Cadillac, the sunlight on Cadillac colored it with the exquisite shades of purple blue and gold we often see in Edwin Brown's lovely paintings.

For dinner we went to the fabulous French restaurant in Hancock—Le Domaine which is operated by Donald Purslow, who is the son of Mrs. Pierre Montoux. As we went into the parking space, we could well believe that this restaurant is known nationally for number plates showed us in Oklahoma, Wisconsin, California, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Quebec, District of Columbia and so on. We added Massachusetts to the gathering.

The restaurant is a neat building with lovely window boxes—it has a certain air of the "old world." Inside there are two sections—that on the left is reserved for students of Pierre Montoux's Conducting School—here long tables are set up and arrangements made for quick and easier serving.

The restaurant itself can accommodate perhaps 25 at a time. The mid-day meal is up to 2 o'clock when no more people are admitted—in fact, I think reservations have to be made in advance to ensure being served.

The interior is charming—tables covered with either blue and white checked or red and white checked cloths. Many gay prints are on the walls. A dresser similar to our Welsh dresser bears lovely and unusual ornaments and dishes, and here and there in the room are carry out the atmosphere. The other lovely and unusual things to waitresses dressed in white wear perky little plaids aprons.

It was interesting to have a little talk with Mr. Purslow who told us the restaurant was established in 1946 and that he is Mrs. Montoux's son. Perhaps I may have shown my interest unknowingly in his pronounced French accent for he said "I was taken to France when I was six years old." When I asked him if he had brought over a cook from France, he laughed and said: "Yes, I did; I married her!" Mr. Purslow in speaking of the forthcoming afternoon concert brought in Mme. Jean Madeira, of the Metropolitan Opera, who was to be a soloist in the program, so we could meet her. A stunning black haired woman, with gorgeous dark eyes and a very vivacious manner, quite Spanish in appearance. Mme. Madeira in response to a question asked by Miss Bohn said she had sung with the Metropolitan when in Boston last Spring, in "Rigoletto."

Our dinner was superb, and was the first really-true French cooking I had ever encountered. We began with onion soup—and is there any other nation on the face of the earth who can make onion soup to even approach the French! It was marvelous. Then I had scallops cooked in white wine with mushrooms, crispy hot French fried potatoes, green peas with herbs, a green salad with a superlative dressing and, of course, crepes suzette. I had hoped to have one of the famous meringues but they had all been served.

After dinner we strolled over the grounds. Saw the small pinkish house where Mr. and Mrs. Montoux live, with another small pinkish house across from that where presumably the Purslows live. Then we saw the pavilion where the concerts are given—a large building quite new in construction, painted dark green with maroon trimming, and with two flags flying over the door, bearing large notes and the initials "P. M." for the master as Montoux is called.

I was rather intrigued by the rows of settees on the porch and was told that is where the families of the musicians sit for the concerts unless there is room inside, which I judge there seldom is. The pavilion seats perhaps three to 400 when extra seats are put in. Over the stage the American and French flags are displayed. Then we strolled down to the shore where small buildings have been erected for the students and their families.

I was thrilled to have a talk with Mrs. Montoux who perhaps may be called the moving spirit of the undertaking at Hancock. She is a most attractive woman who was "a Hodgkins from Salisbury Cove" so she told me, before her first marriage. She is short and well rounded, with lovely snow white hair which she wears high on her head; very blue eyes and a beautiful clear skin utterly unlined and faintly rosy. She has great personality and must possess unusual executive ability to carry on the detailed work as she does.

ever, Montoux persisted and the result is most gratifying as was proven in the splendid work done by the group, numbering close to fifty. The chorus opened the program on Sunday and their numbers were:

1: Now Let Every Tongue Awake, Bach

Crucifixus, Thanks Be To God, Handel

The first two numbers were sung a cappella, the third which had an excellently done solo, had piano accompaniment. The group displayed many fine voices and a sensitivity for nuance and diction. The tenor effects in "Crucifixus" were truly exquisite.

2: Overture to Pina's Cave, Mendelssohn

Domain Orchestra with Dr. Joseph Barone, Director of the School conducting

The work of the players was really impressive, marked by clean attacks, attention to shading, and a commendable verve—it was the work of professionals, that could never be questioned.

At the end of the Overture, Mrs. Montoux announced that one of the three women players in the orchestra had on the day before conducted the overture in its entirety and had done a noble job; and also said the young player was to start on her way back to her home in Holland the following day, Monday.

3: Violin Concerto, in three movements, Beethoven

Kenzie Rosen, of the Seattle Symphony, Dr. Barone accompanying. Mr. Rosen, who was acting as concert master Sunday, played extremely well, displaying technique and command of his instrument. The cadenzas were exceptionally well done.

4: Mme. Madeira with her husband at the piano sang as a group: Stride le Vanpysa from "Il Trovatore" Verdi and as an encore "Seguidilla from "Carmen." Mme. Madeira was beautifully gowned, the silver accessories of a wide silver belt, bracelets and large earrings adding to the picture. She displayed a voluptuous mezzo-soprano voice, and gave her songs with vivid diction and expression.

A Spanish Love Song, de Falla

Habanera from "Carmen," Bizet

5: Pastorales (A Suite), Lisadore Freed

Composed of nine short pieces, eight of which were played: The Bells, The Mill, Hidden Brook, The Country Cart, Shepherd's Pipe, The Village Band, Gray Skies, At the Fair.

"Gray Skies" with its piano addition was perhaps the most appealing—utterly exquisite in structure and atmospheric charm. The music on a whole is modern, but at the same time enchanting in its tonal color and suggestion. Mr. Freed conducted the orchestra with skill and was accorded warm applause from the audience.

6: The Water Music Suite, Handel Orchestra with Dr. Barone conducting

This number one could never tire of. Beautifully done, it brought the concert to a perfect ending. It had lasted two hours—the combination of Mrs. Montoux's fascinating announcements and the performance itself—no intermission except a few minutes for a "stretch." But it had not seemed two hours—it all had been so intensely interesting. I shall always remember the experience and be grateful that it was given me.

Lions At Camden

Learn Much About Spain From Professor Donald Merriam

Howard Rollins, program chairman for the evening, came up with a fine program at the Tuesday meeting of Camden-Rockport Lions when he presented Prof. Donald Merriam, teacher of Spanish at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

Prof. Merriam toured a country which few tourists have visited in the past two decades—the country whose language he teaches, and he showed his very attentive audience for an hour a beautiful selection of Kodachrome pictures illustrating every phase of modern Spain—pictures he took personally on his six-week tour to every corner of Franco's country.

Speaking Spanish fluently, the professor was able to interpret every scene very realistically to the club and his lecture was as interesting as his pictures.

The Little League, composed of youngsters up to 12 years of age, and in which the Lions of Camden-Rockport sponsored the "Lions" had a remarkably successful first year and their report shows their treasury to be $403 to the good with all bills paid!

A fellow Lion, member of the C-R Club, will be the speaker at next week's meeting when Dr. William McEllan will speak on "Polio."

Sept. 9 is 100% attendance meeting, and it is the first real meeting of the active Fall and Winter Lions season. It is expected that all of the 70-odd members of the C-R Lions will be present when the speaker will be Dr. Russell Abbott, veterinarian of Rockland. Dr. Abbott is speaking on the Hoof and Mouth Disease and will tell how it will affect hunting in Maine this Fall. District Governor George Clements of Belfast will also make his official visit.

Summer Pike, former member of the Atomic Commission, is booked by Chairman Rawley for the meeting of Sept. 16.

All Lions: Be sure and hold open Sunday, Sept. 21, for "Governor's Day" at Kob's Lobster Pound, Searsport. Complete lobster dinner, singing, novelty skits, horseshoes, and swimming. Invitation is to the whole family. Tickets $1.50 and complete proceeds to charity.
