Dear Mrs. Daniels:

We are very grateful for the copy of the HISTORY OF STETSON which has reached this office. We are placing it in our Maine Author collection, which is an autographed collection of books by Maine authors. We appreciate the trouble you have taken to send this item to us; it is a valuable addition to our library.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mrs. Daniels;-

I have just been making a brief note of your History of Stetson for the April issue of our library bulletin. May I have your home address; I assume that the Florida address is only a winter one. May I have a few biographical details about yourself? We like to have in our special files biographical notes on all of our authors.

We are very glad to have a copy of the History of Stetson; such town histories have an interest and value out of all proportion to their size, and this one is interesting to persons who, like me, have never seen the town.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mrs. Fuller:

Let me thank you for your courteous criticism of my History of Stetson, Maine. In common with many writers, I often find myself wondering, when a writing is completed, whether it really is worth the reading and whether the great amount of effort which it has required might better have been spent otherwise. Probably, in many cases it would have been better otherwise. So you see it is a source of comfort when some friend helps to allay the misgivings.

Your letter followed me here where we are living for the present since my husband is Government construction engineer building the new Atlanta Post Office. It, by the way, will be very beautiful, costing two millions plus another million for the lot.

Regarding your request for biographical details, I am enclosing data from which you are at liberty to select whatever seems to fit your needs. If your bulletin is for public distribution, I should appreciate receiving one.

Please let me know if anything more is needed.

Cordially,

Lilla Wood Daniels
