BLANCHARD CLAIMS COUNTY.

EXPECTS A LARGE VOTE FOR SECOND CHOICE FROM OTHERS.

Sees No Reason Why His Chances to Secure Nomination Are Not Better Than Those of Any Other Candidate—Still Working.

(Special to MAINE WOODSMAN.)

WILTON, ME., April 8, 1908.

A correspondent of MAINE WOODS called upon Hon. Cyrus N. Blanchard today and questioned him about the progress his canvass was making for the Republican nomination for Congress.

"Everything looks fine," said Mr. Blanchard. "I have my own county as a unit, and have promises of support in other counties. I shall have a very large vote for a second choice. I see no reason why my chances to secure the nomination are not better than those of any other candidate. I shall keep hard at work until the day of the convention, and my friends will do the same. There is no truth in any of the reports which you mention that I am to withdraw."

Asked if he had seen an editorial in the Bath Times, a Sewall organ, in which great credit is claimed for Hon. Harold M. Sewall for "Saving the Rangeley Lakes," Mr. Blanchard laughed heartily and replied:

"I have not seen that editorial but have heard about it. It seems to me that some of the rest of us had a part in the matter. To claim that Mr. Sewall is the man who prevented the Rangeley lakes from becoming 'mill ponds' is too funny. I guess they would not have been quite as bad as that under any conditions. I understand that Mr. Sewall is sending that and other campaign matter into Franklin and Oxford counties in the hope that he may get support in these counties. I understand that he is not yet quite sure of a delegation from his own city. I am not disturbed by any efforts on the part of Mr. Sewall to cause a break in the Franklin county delegation."

ENTERPRISING, HUSTLING KINGFIELD

One of Franklin County's Prosperous and Busy Towns That Still Is Enjoying Rapid But Healthy Growth.

A Striking Feature of Its Business and Industrial Life Is the Large Number of Young Men Who Are Leading Its Various Enterprises—Excellent Schools and Modern Business Blocks Are Among Its Attractions—First Suspension Bridge In Maine Was Constructed There Across Carrabasset River.

Kingfield, Franklin county, Maine, in the picturesque Carrabasset valley, 20 miles north of Farmington, on a branch of the Sandy River & Rangeley Lakes railroad reaching the gateway of the great game section of the Dead River region, close by old Mount Abram and within sight of several glorious mountains of North Franklin county, presents today an example of what young men of Maine, given the opportunity afforded by railroad connection with the outside world, can do in the creation of a modern, hustling, thriving municipality where quite recently was only a sleepy hamlet envied with natural advantages of timber wealth and bountiful of fish and game.

On Dec. 3, 1884, the whistle of the first train into Kingfield awoke the dormant village and aroused the spirit of progress which has never since slept, and which with the beginning of manufacturing in 1885 by Mr. E. E. Jenkins, now the Jenkins & Bogert Manufacturing Co., has developed other lines of industry and produced a Twentieth Century town with a prosperous people enjoying the modern municipal conveniences of electric lights, sewers, water, fire alarm systems, graded schools, attractive business blocks and residences, churches, library, theatre and the assurance of continued prosperity and expansion founded upon its wealth of timber, its undeveloped water powers, its fish and game resources and the dominant spirit of progress evidenced by the young business men.

Since the opening of the railroad the valuation of Kingfield has trebled, the present figures being over $350,000, its population has increased greatly, fine residences, business blocks, factories, churches and a $10,000 high school have been built, and she has taken a place among Maine's "smartest" towns.

Following the railroad's entrance came the building of the Huse Spool & Bobbin Co.'s factory in 1900 and preceding that the organization of the Kingfield Savings bank in 1895, construction of the Kingfield Water Co.'s plant in 1898, the formation of the Al-under the supervision of L. A. Norton, with Leslie M. Wilkins principal of the Stanley High school—one of the model school buildings of Maine—in which Kingfield takes just pride.

The French opera house seating 500 is one of the up-to-date small theatres of the state, erected by Mr. C. W. French and containing besides a society hall, stores and offices. The Masonic and Alhambra blocks are also thor-miles distant, in Somerset county, after the opening of the railroad, and who have applied in the new home the characteristic Maine energy, spirit and progressiveness which have stamped the town with success, assured its future prosperity and development.

oughly modern and reflect the spirit of the progressive municipality. The water supply is ample and its quality unsurpassed coming from mountainous springs at the outlet of Tufts pond, a picturesquely located sheet of water abounding in trout and salmon. All around the village streams and ponds teem with gamy fish and big game stalk in the forests surrounding the village. The Kingfield House, in the fishing and hunting season, is filled with sportsmen going to or coming from the great sportsmen's haunts nearby, and the village is growing in

E. Jenkins started the novelty mill which in 1892 was incorporated as the Jenkins & Bogert Manufacturing Co. and which more than any other single industry caused the rapid development and growth of the town and is still a bulwark of its prosperity. The company manufactures novelty turned wood goods, drug and chemist boxes and does enameling and polishing and annually consumes about 3500 cords of birch, employing in the sawing season forty hands, and in the mill giving employment to 75 more, operating in connection at Lexington a birch square mill. A variety of novelties in hard woods enameled and polished are manufactured and shipped all over the United States through their distributing house of Bogert & Hopper, New York. The plant covers some eleven acres and comprises a two story main building 36x195 feet, an enameling building 25x75, engine house 30x60, and office 22x30, besides stock sheds 22x440 feet. The mechanical equipment is of the latest type and the power plant has a 100 horse-power engine, two 60 horse-power boilers, and a 250 electric light generator. The officers of the company are: E. W. Simmons president; E. E. Jenkins treasurer and general manager. Mr. Jenkins is a native of Rockland, Mass., and when quite young removed to North New Portland coming here in 1885 where his enterprise and energy have been responsible for this thriving concern which has largely builded up Kingfield. Always intensely interested in the development and progress of the town, Mr. Jenkins has been identified with all that tended to the advancement of her interests. He hambra Building Co., in 1895, and the erection of fine business blocks including the splendid French block in 1900, the Alhambra block, the Masonic block five years ago and the Stanley High school about the same time, together with many fine residences.

A peculiar fact evidencing the prosperity of Kingfield is that there has not been a town pauper in fifteen years, and the manufacturing plants and the large lumber operations in this section together with the wealth distributed by sportsmen annually contribute towards continued prosperity.

Besides the large novelty works of Jenkins & Bogert Manufacturing Co. the important Huse Spool & Bobbin Co. there are numerous smaller concerns, W. F. Norton, cant dogs and stocks; Mayo & Wilkins, worsted rolls; the Hudson Lumber Co. whose plant recently burned is to be reopened on a large scale it is said, and several saw mills.

There are four churches, the Universalist, Mrs. Lily Schafer, pastor; Baptist, Rev. L. Arthur White; Evangelical, Rev. Geo. Bruce and Free Baptist. The schools are excellent favor as a summer resort situated thousands of feet above sea level among the grand old mountains and in the midst of enchanting natural surroundings easily reached by the Sandy River and Rangeley Lakes railroad which has one of its termini at Bigelow 12 miles north of Kingfield at the entrance to the great fish and game region of Dead River.

Historically, Kingfield was the home of Maine's first governor, William King—the man largely responsible for the incorporation of the state of Maine—whose home, still well preserved, is the object of much interest to visitors. Gov. King and Thomas Otis were proprietors of the once famous "Million Acres Farm," ultimately owned by the former, as his estates in Kingfield, Lexington and Concord, were called, and after whom the town was named.

Here is Maine's first suspension bridge, built in 1854, the chains from which hang coming from England.

A striking feature of the Kingfield of today is the remarkable number of young men comprising its business and professional life, a greater portion of whom came from New Portland, six

NEW MILLINERY STORE.

MRS. ADDIE G. PARKER OPENS NEW ESTABLISHMENT.

Rooms Fitted With Modern Improvements

In Which Attractive Line of Spring and Summer Millinery Is Displayed to Good Advantage.

The fine new millinery rooms on Main street which have been fitted up with all the modern improvements were opened to the public last Saturday when Mrs. Addie G. Parker displayed an attractive line of spring and summer millinery. Mrs. Parker has been in Boston for two weeks studying the latest styles, and had an exhibition of 38 hats which were a credit to the millinery art.

A few of the most noticeable ones were:

A large black hat "The Merry Widow" of lace net with long black quills and owl's head.

A large straw of the new shade of Copenhagen blue, faced underneath with ecru net and trimmed on the side with lace wings bound in black velvet with black velvet trimmings.

Two white Leghorns, one trimmed in shades of brown roses and maline, and the other with a wreath of green and fine flowers, with black velvet ribbon and buckle.

Two black hats, one a large black chip, with velvet ribbon and feathers. The other a dainty little hat of black chip with black wings, ribbon and two large pins.

Also a striking hat in one of the blue shades trimmed with plaited ribbon of the same shade and two large white wings.

A green foliage turban composed of roses, green leaves and green maline.

Mrs. Parker has an especially choice line of babies' bonnets in various styles, fancy veillings, and a fine line of embroidery and Royal Society flosses. Each visitor to the store was presented with a pink and a business announcement card.

We hope and predict a successful business for Mrs. Parker.

To be set back from almost May spring weather to midwinter and to experience one of the most uncomfortable days of the season is a bit trying to the constitution. Better the first of April than the last however. As a friend frequently remarks, "There is always something to be thankful for."

John Savage of West New Vineyard, who was lately operated upon for appendicitis at the hospital in Lewiston, is progressing very favorably according to the latest reports.

Ed Cook from Rangeley was a caller at Maple Grove recently. Mr. Cook, who was operated upon for appendicitis not long ago, is not as well as his friends would like to see him. He resumed work too soon after the operation was performed.

Abner Searles, who has been employed lumbering at Rangeley for the winter arrived home the first of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Smith, who for the past few months have been living at Farmington Falls, have moved back with Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hollis.

S. B. Wellman had the misfortune to hurt one of his horses recently by getting him through a culvert in the road near F. C. Hutchins's.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

At the Union church Rev. Mr. Hutchins spoke from II Cor. iv, xviii. "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

There is a painting, the work of a great artist, which shows upon the canvas a boat holding three men who have passed through a ship wreck. The boat is nearing a coast whose low monotonous shores are unbroken by cliff or bluff. The picture is sad and depressing. The men seem to be talking, asking each other what is the greatest loss that has been sustained. But the loss of earthly treasures in the depths of the sea is not the greatest loss that may come upon a human being.

"Upon the white sea sand
There sat a pilgrim band
Telling the losses that their lives had known,
While evening ebb'd away
From breezy cliff and bay
And the strong tides went out with weary moan.

There were some who mourned their youth
With a most tender ruth,
For the brave hopes and memories ever green,
And one upon the West
Turned an eye that would not rest
For the fair hills whereupon its joys had been.

Some talked of vanished gold,
Some of proud honors told,
Some spoke of friends who were their friends no more,

And one of a green grave
Far away beyond the wave,
While he sits here so lonely on the shore.

But when their tales were done,
There spoke among them one,
A stranger, seeming from all sorrow free:
'Sad losses ye have met
But mine are sadder yet
For the believing heart has gone from me.'

'Then alas' those pilgrims said,
'For the living and the dead,
For life's deep shadows and the heavy cross,
For the wrecks of land and sea;
But however it came to thee
Thine, brother, is life's last and sorest loss,
For the believing heart has gone from thee
Ah! the believing heart has gone from thee.'

The things which are seen are temporal, and by and by their loss will cease to be felt, but the unseen, eternal things, if lost are an eternal loss.

The measure of the requisites of success are dependent upon our outlook. The business man looks into the future asking about the outcome of contemplated enterprises. He is willing to take risks and to suffer great present inconvenience if the final results will justify such measures. The success of his business he does not measure by present ease or opulence.

Religious life also looks into the future and asks what will be ours then. Religion emphasizes the present with its opportunities and experiences, but it should rightly balance the present, with its works and responsibilities, and the future with its rewards. Unless we take account of the future and its promises of eternal things we shall become discouraged.

For success in anything one must have an ideal. No man ever accomplishes anything of worth, ever reaches heights of excellence in anything unless he wishes to do something worthy, unless his ideals are of a high rank.

In our religious life our ideal should help us to grow characters like God's ideal for us. To be like unto him a good business man, a good student, a good Christian, alike have ideals toward which they are living. There are certain things that detract from the growth of the character, the things unseen. In the parable of the sower, although the good seed was sown in all places the growth is shown as depending upon much beside the seed. There are many dangers to spiritual life. We may consider some of them: First, lack of attention. After our Civil war, as has often occurred in the history of nations, the country was sadly in need of new life in business enterprises and in many things necessary to build up individual and national prosperity. Business men were aware of the gravity of the situa-

Elwell S. Crosby, Bath

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Representative to Congress from the Second District.

Elwell S. Crosby, now the Collector of Customs at the port of Bath, was born on May 9, 1856, the son of Josiah and Marinda Crosby. He received a meagre education at the town schools, trudging barefoot to and from school morning and night as did many farmer's boys at that time in similar circumstances.

At the age of 14 years he was compelled by force of circumstances to look about and dig for himself. He worked at anything which would turn him an honest penny and acted as water carrier for the laborers who were then engaged in building the Knox & Lincoln railroad. He continued to do general labor until 1873 when he went to Bath where he has since resided, having the munificent sum of 40 cents in his possession when he landed on the western bank of the Kennebec.

His first employment in Bath was at the cabinet shop of James and Eben Morse where he remained for a year and then entered the employ of George and Joseph T. Donnell at the old cordage factory, where he remained two years. From the factory he went into the Bath ship yards and for a time plodded behind a yoke of cattle, his duties being to attach the heavy chains by which the oaken timbers were dragged from distant parts of the chip covered yards to such localities as might be convenient to hoist them to their proper places in the hulls of the ships then building.

Step by step he worked his way upward until 1877 when he entered the employ of the old and well remembered ship building firm of Adams & Hitchcock, attending to the clerical work and tion, and unmindful of other interests and requirements gave themselves to work, work, work. At last they awoke to the fact that insistent demands of their bodies were being disregarded and that they were becoming a nation of dyspeptics with broken health and shattered nerves. Attention must be given to the needs of the physical system, and now we see the business man as a golf player, a tennis player, a fisherman or a hunter.

In an address given before a body of theological students met in convention at Richmond a few days ago, one of the wisest of Christian workers cautioned these men, whom you would think might be removed from need of such caution, to be careful lest their zeal for study, for work or for service should outrun their personal devotions. The spiritual life must be fed from the unseen.

There is danger of crowding out the eternal things by too great regard for the things that are seen. We may try to cling to all but we must choose and give the first place to seeking that which is eternal.

Another thing that is sometimes a hindrance is doubt, yet to honestly doubt is not bad. Doubt may be a stepping stone to stronger belief and faith. Let it lead to fair and honest investigation. The way in which truth is expressed, the letter, may sometimes change, but the spirit never.

Yet another thing that hinders in our gaining possession of God's great ideal for us is our troubles. It is foolish to attempt to explain the reason of their presence. Their use and purpose have been discussed and questioned again and again. We can only say that God in allowing them must be working out some wise and merciful purpose. Fannie Crosby, the writer of some of our most beautiful and sweet spirited hymns, speaks with assurance of the good that has been wrought through her affliction of blindness. Jacob, lonely, exiled from his home through his sin, seeking rest at night with no thought that God was near, in the wonderful vision that came to him learned that God was in the place, and taking thought for him. To many of us the vision which taught us God's presence and love has come in times of sorrow and trouble. In those times we find our Bethel and learn that in the unseen is our comfort and our hope.

where he remained until the death of the junior member, Samuel P. Hitchcock and the ultimate ceasing of business of the concern.

It was there that he got his first real insight into finance and where he commenced to learn keen business methods which developed and served the city's interests so well during the years of his membership of both branches of the city government and while mayor of Bath.

Following the winding up of the affairs of Adams & Hitchcock, Mr. Crosby decided to build vessels on his own account, and in 1887 commenced the construction of his first vessel. Having had many years of practical experience in the various branches of the ship building industry, he was enabled to conduct the work along practical lines, thus taking advantage of many details which would naturally bother a man of less experience. Many ship yard employees often speak of Mr. Crosby to this day, and never forget mentioning that if there was any trouble about the work in the yard, he was never afraid to take off his coat and work as hard as any man in his employ.

Practically continuously since 1877, Mr. Crosby has been connected with the ship building industry and in 1905 started a new fleet of schooners and before assuming the collectorship of the port of Bath had built about a dozen of the finest vessels ever built on the Atlantic coast and had expended nearly $1,000,000 for wages. His relations with his employees have always been the pleasantest and harmony has always prevailed in Mr. Crosby's ship yard.

For four years he served in the city government from Ward Two, first as a member of the common council and then in the aldermanic board and for two years was its president. All four of those years he was a member of the finance committee, during the administrations of Mayor Samuel R. Percy and Mayor Edward W. Hyde.

Mr. Crosby is an indefatigable worker and as a member of the Republican city committee did able work in getting out large gatherings at the ward caucuses and city, State and National elections.

In 1905 he was nominated mayor of Bath on the Republican ticket in the most sensational contest ever held in this city. His opponents were Hon. Edward W. Hyde and Seth T. Snipe, the present postmaster of Bath, his majority over his opponents being over 200. At the polls he was fought with the greatest vigor and yet captured the city by one of the largest Republican majorities ever accorded a candidate in Bath and his victory was conceded by even his opponents to have been something remarkable.

In the fall of 1905 he opened his campaign for the collectorship of the port of Bath. Opposed by some of the strongest party workers in the district he built his own machine, conducted his own campaign and took to Hon. Charles E. Littlefield a petition which that gentleman declared was the strongest he had seen since he had represented the Second District. Mr. Littlefield at once recommended him for the position. Through the treasury department and to the President the enemies of Mr. Crosby carried their fight but he stood by his guns and received the endorsement of the Senate of the President's appointment. Even then, after his confirmation had been printed in the Congressional Record, the fight was kept up and his appointment held up but he was still "game" and for a second time the Senate confirmed the appointment and after finishing his mayoralty of the city on the third Monday of March, 1906, he on the following day took the oath of office as Collector of the port of Bath, which office he now holds.

How to Save Money and Health.

Most people have some trouble with their health which they would like cured if it could be done easily and cheaply. Dr. Greene, of 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., who is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, makes the following offer: He gives you the privilege of consulting him, free of charge, through his great system of letter correspondence. Write him just how and what symptoms trouble you. He will answer your letter, explaining your case thoroughly, telling just what ails you and how to get strong and well. He gives the most careful attention to every letter, and makes his explanations so clear that you understand exactly what your complaint is. And for all this you pay nothing. You do not leave your home and have no doctor's fee to pay. The doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and is having wonderful success. He is the discoverer of that celebrated medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. If you write him at once you will doubtless be cured.

five storage sheds, each 200x20 are piled hundreds of cords of sawed material and the group of three connected buildings of manufacture present a busy appearance. This factory also supplies the town with electric lights, of which there are at present over 800 generated from a dynamo of 2200 light capacity. Besides its regular output the company is at present making thousands of large spools to supply the demand for the Diabolo craze. Mr. E. E. Jenkins is president of the corporation and Frank Stanley is superintendent, while the general management devolves upon Mr. H. S. Wing.

Kingfield Savings Bank.

Reflecting the progress and prosperity of Kingfield is the Kingfield Savings bank, organized May 23, 1895, and located in the Alhambra building, whose history has been one of healthy though rapid growth as a financial institution, with the record of having paid annually since its incorporation a dividend of four per cent, a large increase in deposits, and the pursuance of a wise and conservative policy which has made this one of the solid financial institutions of Franklin county. The total deposits are about $100,000, an increase of over 100 per cent in less than five years. The reserve fund and surplus amounts to about $5000 and its loans are so well placed that they are a source of constant revenue. The officers are all Kingfield men of prominence as follows: A. G. Winter, Pres.; H. S. Wing, Treas.; L. H. Hunnewell, Asst. Treas.; trustees, H. S. Wing, E. E. Jenkins, A. G. Winter, S. J. Wyman, C. O. Wilkins. The bank is under the direct management of Mr. Wing, assisted by Miss L. H. Hunnewell, assistant treasurer, and under his conservative policy the institution has become one of the most prosperous of the young banks of Maine.

Attorney H. S. Wing.

Numbered among the most prominent, successful and enterprising men of the hour of Franklin county and largely through whose endeavors the town of Kingfield has become a hustling, modern and hopeful municipality is H. S. Wing, Esq., who since coming here from Phillips in 1892, has been in the forefront in instituting modern developments which have been of such great advantage to the town. The organization of the Kingfield Savings bank, of which he is treasurer, the building of the Kingfield Water Co.'s plant, of which he is also treasurer, the formation of the Alhambra Building Co., in which he holds a similar office as well as in the Kingfield Land Co., were largely due to his initiative and endeavor, while at present he is also treasurer and general manager of the Huse Spool & Bobbin Co. and was for several years president of the Jenkins & Bogert Manufacturing Co., and in other ways is prominent in the commercial, business and professional life of Kingfield. Born in Turner, Maine, Mr. Wing was graduated from the Farmington Normal school in 1890 and studied law in the office of Hon. F. E. Timberlake in Phillips, being admitted to the bar in 1895 and locating here where he at once came into prominence and served as county attorney for three terms. In connection with his many duties Mr. Wing carries on an extensive fire insurance business and handles the policies of the well-known Home, Aetna, Hartford, Insurance Company of North America, Hamburg-Bremen and Phoenix companies. Mr. Wing is a member of the Masonic bodies and a Shriner and the self-reliant type of citizenship whom his fellow townsmen take delight in honoring.

S. J. Wyman, Dry Goods, Clothing, Etc.

Located in one of the finest business blocks in town, erected about eight years ago by C. W. French, modern in every particular and up to date in all its appointments, the large dry goods, clothing and boot and shoe store of Mr. S. J. Wyman compares favorably with the more pretentious city stores and excels the average in the amount of stock and its variety and excellence. Originally starting in the dry goods business 10 years ago, and removing to the French block upon its completion, Mr. Wyman last November purchased the large and finely stocked branch clothing store of Maines & Bonnalie in the adjoining store and threw them both into one now constituting a floor area of about 3,000 square feet, besides basement, the whole presenting one of the finest business establishments in Franklin county, completely stocked with ladies' and gentlemen's clothing and ready to wear garments and furnishings of all kinds from the feet to the head. Neatness in display of the varied stock, thorough-going business principles and courteous treatment of patrons have served to make "Wyman's" known all over this section of the county. Mr. Wyman is a native of New Portland and is director in the Kingfield Savings bank, prominent block built by Mr. John Winter and in charge of Mr. G. H. Winter, his son, who has acceptably filled the office of postmaster for the past nine years since he received his appointment from the late President McKinley. Recently a new post office cabinet has been installed and together with the cleanliness and accommodations furnished impresses one as a model fourth class office of the Twentieth century conducted with public spirit and courteousness. An attractive display of stationery of all kinds, artistic local views, and school supplies adds to the convenience of the public. Postmaster Winter before his appointment was for many years identified with the dry goods and clothing business here and for 10 years has been town treasurer. He is a native of New Portland and since coming to Kingfield has been prominently identified with all that tends towards the progress and advancement of the town where he is among her leading citizens.

A. G. Winter.

Leading in the commercial line in Northern Franklin county and among the most extensive wholesale and retail dealers in general groceries, hardware, lumbermen's supplies, hay, grain and flour and builders' materials in this part of Maine the firm of A. G. Winter, founded 60 years ago by the late E. S. Winter and conducted for the past 25 years by his son Amos G. Winter, occupies a prominent position. The establishment is located directly on the Sandy River & Rangeley Lakes railroad branch on Depot street and has unusual shipping facilities.

The establishment has expanded with the growth of Kingfield until today its patrons extend far over Northern Franklin county. Located directly at the railroad with a group of commodious buildings inclosing an area of nearly 8000 square feet comprising the main two-story building 30x70 with office 22x20, a grist mill with a storage capacity of 3200 bushels and a daily capacity of 40 bushels, a car shed 20x100 and other buildings for storage—the whole comprising a most complete plant for the handling of a very large business annually. Mr. Amos G. Winter is one of the best known business men in Franklin county and is a prominent factor in the business and social life of Kingfield where he has recently erected one of the finest residences in the county. He is president of the Kingfield Savings bank, director in the First National bank of Farmington, director of the Kingfield Water Co., and is in many ways closely identified with the life of the town where his prominence as a business man and progressiveness in behalf of his native town have made him one of the men of the hour.

L. L. Mitchell, Druggist, Apothecary. With an established reputation of over 30 years as one of the most reliable drug stores in Franklin county the pharmacy conducted for the past nine years by Mr. L. L. Mitchell, who succeeded C. W. Clark, its founder, presents the modern and up to date establishment in every particular where besides a complete line of druggist supplies and sundries may be found a large stock of paints, oils, window shades, wall paper, phonographs and records, novelties in post cards and souvenirs and all Twentieth Century goods usually found in a modern drug store. With a thorough experience in the compounding of prescriptions for many years, Mr. Mitchell makes this a specialty and accuracy and carefulness are the watchwords. Occupying a field alone, the trade is extensive throughout this section, grows yearly, and is in touch with the progress of the town. Mr. Mitchell is a native of New Portland and before locating in Kingfield was connected with a leading Farmington pharmacy where he became proficient in his profession in which he is a registered pharmacist of several years' standing. Mr. Mitchell is a member of the Masons and is prominent in all that makes for the advancement of Kingfield.

I. L. Eldridge.

Established for three years in the Larrabee block, Eldridge's, the headquarters in this section for sporting goods including guns, ammunition, fishing rods and gear, jewelry, confectionery, cigars, ice cream, soda water, phonographs, post cards and novelties usually found in up to date stores, has attained a reputation unexcelled in this section for square dealing and courteous treatment of patrons which have served to firmly establish the business on a sound basis. In each line of goods Mr. I. L. Eldridge makes a specialty and here the sportsmen at this time of the year turn to outfit for the fishing season, as well as the hunters in season, and throughout the summer the store supplies a needed want in the community with its variety of stock. A specialty of high grade phonographs and records is made. Mr. Eldridge is a native of Bucksport, Maine, and before coming here had many years of business experience in Maine and Massachusetts, which is reflected in his modern store and business methods. Recently Mr. Eldridge has bought a residence here and is welcomed as one of the progressive, and sound business men of the place.

A. C. Woodard, Harnesses.

Franklin For Fernald.
THREE weeks ago MAINE WOODSMAN took a straw ballot of the various towns in Franklin county as to whom was the favorite choice for the Republican nomination for Governor. A large percentage of those among whom the canvass was made declared for Mr. Fernald and the indications at that time pointed to his being the more popular among the candidates for the nomination.

An esteemed contemporary thought that the canvass we made showed much apathy, but to us on the contrary the results appeared to be all that could be expected. Such a canvass is indicative of the trend only of sentiment and that was all that we were trying to determine at that time.

We made no claim that it was a complete and thorough canvass of Franklin county, but there was no apathy shown at that time, nor is there any in evidence today.

Since announcing the result of the straw ballot, however, events have so shaped themselves that we now will declare that the sentiment then shown has become a reality and today Franklin county's choice for the Republican gubernatorial nomination is the Hon. Bert M. Fernald of Poland by an overwhelming majority. He has the county almost solidly for him and it will be an impossibility for any other candidate to acquire any material part of the delegates from this county to the State convention.

Mr. Fernald has always stood high in the esteem of the people of this section and he will make an ideal leader for next September's victory. He is a strong and able campaigner and can approach the people with a good record and bring strength to the party.

The demand for resubmission that was manifest two years ago has subsided largely and other issues will be more generally discussed during the coming campaign, Mr. Fernald's position on all important questions is well known and he will prove the strongest candidate in this section that could be nominated at the present time.

Franklin county is for Mr. Fernald, not half-heartedly, not perfunctorily, not in an apathetic manner, but devotedly and enthusiastically, and will welcome the opportunity of rallying under his leadership.

TO CURE PAIN.

Necessary to Treat the Nerves Both Internally and Externally.

Nervous headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, and other nerve troubles need internal treatment as well as external. Get right at the nerve centre with a small dose of Neuralgic Anodyne, which will soothe and quiet the whole nervous system. At the same time, rub a little Anodyne on the affected part, and it will find its way through the pores of the skin to the aching tissues and throbbing nerves.

Neuralgic Anodyne is so uniformly successful in curing all aches and pains that it is sold by dealers everywhere with the understanding that the money will be refunded if it does not do all that is claimed for it. A large-sized bottle costs but 25 cts.

Neuralgic Anodyne is also invaluable in quickly curing colds, croup, sore throat, etc., and in taking the soreness out of bruises, sprains, cuts and chilblains. Made by The Twitchell-Champlin Co., Portland, Me.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. Correct any constipation by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

Melville and Ardine Wood and another boy were playing on the interval Friday afternoon when Melville was shot in the right knee. The bullet was of .22 caliber and struck just below the knee joint and passed through. Dr. H. H. Purinton rendered surgical assistance and states that it will be several weeks before the limb can be used. The lad is about 13 years old and the son of Walter Wood. Just how the accident happened is a mystery. The boys claim that they had no firearms with them, and say that they heard no report, although claiming that the bullet was a stray one.

Local merchants are much exercised over a series of petty breaks that have been made of late at the various stores about town.

The trestle of the Farmington, Waterville & Wiscasset railroad over the highways near the Abbott school, has been removed. The structure was much decayed and dangerous to those passing beneath.

SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION.

District Convention of Knights of Pythias
Was Held at Rangeley.

The district convention of Knights of Pythias was largely attended by members of the order from Rangeley, Phillips, Strong, Stratton and Kingfield.

The event was a school of instruction and was attended by Grand Chancellor E. C. Plummer of Beth and by Mr. W. E. Ricker of Portland, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals.

The convention was held in Furbish hall and the three ranks were conferred, each by a different lodge. The rank of Knight in the long form was conferred by Rangeley lodge, and the work was the cause of much praise.

A banquet was served in Pythian hall that was greatly enjoyed and the whole event was one of much pleasure and profit to the members of the order.

Many Knights were in attendance ized craft to the great benefit of the American ship building industry.

Mr. Plummer is now one of the best known figures about Washington and is recognized as a national authority on snipping matters.

Anna Frances Parker.

Mrs. Anna Frances Parker passed away on Friday March 13 after a comparatively short illness of pneumonia, at her home in Farmingdale.

Mrs. Parker was about the house and assisting in the care of her husband, Z. S. Parker, who was lying ill, until within four days of her death, and none realized that her condition was critical.

Of a modest, retiring nature, a rare refinement of intellect and sweetness of character, Mrs. Parker was best and the return to their homes of the visitors was made after the close of the festivities by special train.

Edward Clarence Plummer, Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Maine, was born in Freeport, Maine, the son of a farmer. As a boy he began work in a cotton mill where he worked for years, carrying on his studies, and finally he worked his way through Bowdoin college, graduating in 1877.

He at once entered newspaper work, became the proprietor of the Bath Independent, studied law and has become one of the best known attorneys in the state.

During the Spanish war he raised a naval brigade, manned the monitor "Wyandotte" and remained in the service until the close of the war. The following year he was selected to represent the interests of the American coastwise sailing vessels at Washington—a position he still holds, having been very successful in removing burdens from those vessels and in defeating the attempts to secure legislation which would have permitted the crowding of repaired foreign built craft into the American coasting trade, taking the place of American built craft. Finally in 1906 he secured the repeal of the old United States statute under which the Commissioner of Navigation was authorized to admit such natural-known to her family and a few near friends.

She was a cheerful Christian, hopeful and full of faith even under severe trials, and her placid, trustful, forgiving spirit, has been a constant inspiration to those privileged to be her companions.

Mrs. Parker was born in Brunswick sixty-four years ago, the daughter of Josiah and Nancy (Holman) Simpson, and had lived in Farmingdale thirty-six years. She is survived by her husband, Z. S. Parker and three children, Mrs. Chas. J. Clement, of Everett, Mass., Millard L. Parker, of Farmingdale, and Myra V. Parker.

The services on Sunday, March 15 at 2.30 o'clock, were conducted by Rev. H. L. Nichols, pastor of the M. E. church in Hallowell, and by reason of illness of Mr. Parker and of Miss Myra, who was stricken with pneumonia on the day previous to that of her mother's death, were of necessity entirely private.—Hallowell Register.

Mrs. Parker spent her childhood and youth in Weld, in the family with Jacob E. Holman, and after her marriage lived for a time in Rangeley, where her two oldest children died and are buried.

A Common Mistake.

Many women mistake kidney and bladder troubles for irregularity peculiar to the sex. Foley's Kidney Remedy corrects irregularities and makes women well. Miss Carrie Harden, Bowling Green, Ky., writes: "I suffered much pain from kidney and bladder trouble until I started to use Foley's Kidney Remedy. The first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely well." W. A. D. Cragin, Phillips.

Must Believe It

When Well Known Phillips People Tell It So Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Mrs. H. H. Hamilton, of 43 Lancaster St., Portland, Me., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did for my husband what doctors and other remedies had failed to do. He had been a sufferer from kidney complaint for six years and was gradually growing worse. His back finally got so painful and weak that he was compelled to stop work for a few days, and one spell laid him up for two weeks. At that time we happened to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and sent to our druggist for a box. Mr. Hamilton was in bad shape when he began to take them but Doan's Kidney Pills cured him and he was soon able to resume work again. He has never had any suffering from kidney trouble since, for every time that an attack has appeared he used Doan's Kidney Pills and found prompt relief."

It is three stories high, 80x70 feet in dimensions, modernly appointed and is a credit to its builder and the town. German Humor.

The tendency of the German comic papers to employ continuously the same characters as "producers of mirth" is the subject of an article in a Berlin paper by Ludwig Bauer. The writer mentions as the most conspicuous of the funny figures the absent-minded professor whose habitual umbrella losing proclivities have made generations laugh. This figure had its origin at a time, he says, when the man of letters was a helpless person in the active world—a dreamer dwelling in realms away from the actual and therefore blind to his surroundings. In this form he has been represented in the comic papers. But Germany, he thinks, not the professor, has been and is being caricatured. The professor today must be a wide awake man, for science is no longer an island. These are not the days for sleep and for dreams. Another abused character is the lieutenant who, having no foe to fight, is always shown as making conquests where Amor has command. The old maid is another of the stock figures, and one of equal importance is Mr. Newlyrich. Of the latter it is said: "He is always full of fear and suspicion. He knows that he has been misplaced, and he sways from side to side like a timid rope walker. This makes him really funny, and we must laugh at his antics."

Too Slow to Be a Soldier.

In a room on the top floor of a large factory a boy was amusing himself by going through the bayonet exercise with a long handled brush in lieu of a rifle. His boss, coming quickly upon him, gave him a box on the ear for wasting his time. The sudden blow caused the lad to lose his balance and fall down the hoist shaft, but fortunately he kept his hold on the brush, the handle of which, getting across the shaft, broke his fall and enabled him to grasp the chain, down which he slid in safety. The boss was horrified at the effect of his action and rushed breathless and gasping with fear down the eight flights of stairs to the basement, expecting to find a mangled body for which he would have to account. He was, however, just in time to see the lad drop on his feet unharmed, so, recovering his self possession and his breath, he exclaimed: "Want to be a soldier, eh? Well, you're too slow for that. Why, man, I can walk down all those stairs quicker than you can fall down the hoist shaft."—London Answers.

Mild Hazing.

The proprietor of a plumbing establishment downtown has a poor opinion of goat imitations. A young man, dapper and twenty, came into his plumbing shop and asked to see an expensive porcelain bathtub. The proprietor explained at length the good qualities of a certain make.

"This seems to be an excellent one," said the young man.

Without warning he jumped into the bathtub, drew his coat closely around him and exclaimed: "Quick, turn on the water! I want to try it."

The proprietor thought he was insane and, soothing his head, said, "There, there, you're all right."

"Yes," the young man gurgled, splashing in the imaginary water; "it's very comfortable."

Then he began to squirm and splutter.

"Quick, quick!" he cried. "Turn off the water! I'm drowning!"

"Wait till I reach the faucet," said the proprietor softly, side stepping to the telephone.

Just at this moment two other young men, a trifle older, entered.

"Well, Bobby, had your bath?" they inquired.

"Yes."

"Then come down to the vegetarian restaurant and order a side of roast beef."—New York Globe.

Good as a Corkscrew.

"Do you know how to take a tight cork out of a bottle without a corkscrew?" was asked by a woman the other day at a gossip party. "It's a mighty good thing to know in an emergency."

"My sister and I were coming back from the mountains, and she got faint on the cars. I had a bottle of aromatic spirits of ammonia in my bag, but when I tried to get the cork out I simply couldn't make it budge."

"Let me take it out for you," suggested a man across the aisle.

"Then, borrowing my pocketknife and using his own with it, he removed the cork in a jiffy. He inserted the blades on opposite sides between the bottle and the cork, each one turned in a different direction. Then when the blades were firmly pushed in he simply pressed the two together, gave them a wrench sideways, and the cork came out without any trouble. I have since tried it on larger bottles with success. It is a trick worth knowing."—Exchange.

The Quest of Truth.

It is a good deal easier to poke fun at history than to write history meriting credence. Mr. Bodley when writing his "France" experienced the force of this in a curious way. He shut himself up in France for years to get the atmosphere and the knowledge necessary for his work. One of his trials arose over some question of electoral jurisprudence. It was not of international importance, but still interesting to students of comparative procedure. Therefore he wrote to a deputy who is a parliamentary expert to clear up the obscurity in which the text books involve the point and incorporated his reply in the text of the book. Later, being invited by an experienced mayor to be present at a poll over which he presided, Mr. Bodley put the question to him and received a quite different reply. Finally the author referred the point to a senator of indisputable authority, who showed that the deputy and the mayor were both wrong.—St. James' Gazette.

Woman's Wit.

An emperor of Germany besieged a city which belonged to one of his rebellious noblemen. After the siege had lasted for a long time the emperor determined to take it by storm and to destroy all it contained by fire and sword. He did not, however, wish to injure the defenseless women; therefore, he sent a proclamation into the town, saying that all the women might leave the place unhurt and carry with them whatever they held most precious. The nobleman's wife instantly decided to take her husband, and the other women followed her example. They soon issued from the city gate in a long procession, each one with her husband on her shoulders. The emperor was so much struck with the noble conduct of the women that he spared all; even the city itself was left untouched.

Wouldn't Tip It.

A Toronto man who visited England last summer appears to think that country the champion tip taker. He says: "Well, I had tipped every man from the swell gent who seemed to own the house of commons down to the hireling who gummed the wrong labels on my luggage, and I went into the waiting room on the landing stage at Liverpool to wash my hands of everything English, and what do you think stared me in the face when I had finished? A placard saying, 'Please tip the basin.' I'll be hanged if I did!"
