NINETIETH BIRTHDAY.

CHARLES H. CARSON OF AVON ENJOYS HIS FIRST AUTO RIDE.

Many Friends Enjoyed a Good Feast of Baked Trout and Many Other Good Things. A Fine Day Passed Amid Song and Laughter.

Monday, June 15, the family of Mr. Charles H. Carson and wife of Avon, with other friends and neighbors assembled at their home to celebrate Mr. Carson's 90th birthday. All enjoyed the delightful summer air, seated upon the lawn while listening to very fine music from the phonograph furnished by Mrs. J. A. Holmes. During the day several records were made by those present, both by talking and singing into the instrument.

Those that enjoyed the feast of baked trout and all other good things to eat for dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Carson, Wm. B. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler, and daughter Florian, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Webster, and daughters, Florrie and Emily, Eland Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Marden, and daughter Vivian, Mrs. Nell Nesbit.

After her school closed for the day, Miss Bessie Webster joined the company. All regretted the absence of Mr. Dana Carson and wife of Rockport.

At 2 p. m. Mr. D. W. Toothaker and wife arrived in their new Reo car and invited Mr. Carson to take an auto ride. Very seldom is it one's privilege to give a person their first auto ride on their 90th birthday, but such was Mr. Toothaker's privilege and he highly enjoyed doing so. It was not noticed that he ran over any flower beds; we do not think he did or has ever done so, as his car seems to be under perfect control.

A 4 o'clock quantities of delicious ice cream and cake were passed around, after which the company bade the aged gentleman good-bye with earnest wishes that June 15, 1909, might find him ready for another call from his many friends.

It is not often one finds a person of Mr. Carson's age, with mental powers so wonderfully well preserved. Ever a great reader and deep thinker, with a faculty to readily grasp all the problems of life, we find him at the age of 90 years a very interesting person to hold conversation with.

For over seven years Mr. Carson has been confined to the house from a stroke of paralysis that rendered the left side nearly useless, yet he has been cheerful and patient under the affliction all these years, and is looking forward to his release from earthly sorrows with great joy.

In Mr. Carson the world has a living example of a temperate, honest life, always possessing a clear conscience. Such a life adds many years to one's existence. All are hoping the century mark may be reached.

WING SHOOTING.

It Cannot Be Taught to Hunters by Reading Books.

Wing shooting can no more be theoretically taught than can riding, skating, sailing a boat, milking a cow or playing the violin. Practice and perseverance in this, as in all field sports, can alone make perfect, while the most persistent effort even then often fails to make a "crack shot." Certain rules, however, must govern the beginner, which, if observed, will materially aid him in becoming an expert.

When a novice takes the field for game he is very apt to become flustered, or "rattled," at the critical moment when the bird is flushed, and then he will stare, open mouthed, and wonder how it happened. This often occurs in the field, and the tyro invariably has some plausible excuse to offer. His "gun was not cocked," he "stubbed his toe just as the bird rose" or some equally weak explanation is made, or else he lays all the blame on his dogs, whose thoughts, could they but express them, it would be interesting to interpret.

The best wing shooters do not close one eye in aiming, nor do they follow the bird in its flights with the muzzle of the gun, but closing one eye is admittedly better than tightly shutting both, as many young would be sportsmen have been known to do.—James W. Dixon in Recreation.

HIGH SCHOOL RECEPTION.

Pretty Social Tendered Seniors By Junior Class.

The reception and dance given by the Juniors of the Phillips High school to the Seniors at Lambert hall, Friday night last, was one of the most enjoyable social events of the year and was largely attended.

The decorations were very tasteful and consisted of the class colors, red and white, predominating amidst ferns, wild flowers, etc. Dyer's orchestra played for the dance following the reception which began at 8 o'clock. Ice cream and cake were served.

In the receiving line were the graduates, Principal Hammond and the Misses Lura Dennison and Elizabeth Ott assistants in the High. The graduates were: Misses Gladys Dutton, Birdena Plaisted, Susie Davenport, Edith Morton, Hazel Beedy, Rinaldo Brann and Roland Hinds.

Miss Edna True of the Junior class introduced the assembly to the graduates and teachers. Other members of Junior class present were Miriam Brackett, Floyd Parker, James Norton, Ray Daggett and Harold Beal.

The graduation exercises of the class of 1908 take place Friday night in the Union church. Priscilla Alden's orchestra of Farmington will furnish music.

Brief Sketch of County Commissioner Recently Nominated.

bues and Mary Pottle Worthley. He still lives on the farm where he was born.

Mr. Worthley received his education in the public schools of Strong, and has served five years as road commissioner in the town of Strong. He deals largely in stock buying and selling through the summer and fall, and has lumbered a number of winters, quite extensively for the last few in Carrabassett.

He has always been a republican.

F. B. CIRCLE'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Mr. Frye the Monologist, Much Disappointed In His Audience.

The entertainment given last Saturday evening under the auspices of the Free Baptist society and Circle was a disappointment to all; primarily to the society who aimed at two objects, viz: First, to give an interesting and mirth provoking entertainment to young and old. Second, to add to the treasury. Mr. Frye must have been disappointed at the small and unappreciative audience. We consider him a good impersonator or monologist, but we infer that a majority of the audience, like the writer, are not lovers of "David Harum," although a widely read and much quoted and discussed book and character.

The evening proved to be inauspicious for any entertainment, however excellent, as it followed the reception given to the graduating class of the High school, which called and kept out until a late hour a large number, many of whom would otherwise gladly have attended an entertainment that promised to be so pleasing. Saturday evening in the summer especially is unfavorable for a large audience, as many own cottages by some lake or pond and go away Saturday to spend a day or two there. Also the weather at this season is always liable to be uncomfortable for any large indoors gathering, and it needed a large number to make a financial success, as the entertainer has been sufficiently successful in his work to command a high fee, for a small place.

When his business manager came to make arrangements with some church or society, with the limited time the interested and informed ones had to decide upon the matter, they failed to think of the obstacles to encounter in obtaining desired results. Therefore the time and place was booked and the entertainers fee guaranteed by the F. B. society.

No speaker or entertainer could be at their best with the interruptions that we trust were thoughtlessly made, when repeatedly people walked out in the middle of a recitation; the numbers rendered were short enough to allow those desiring to retire to do so between selections and the entertainer's sarcasm was not untimely, when, after repeated interruptions he stopped and allowed a party to walk out and said, "It is not courteous to interrupt an audience as they are passing out." It may be noted here that Phillips is gaining a little unenviable reputation in that line; it was very noticeable and remarked upon Memorial Day.

Self respect should show consideration to others. If it positively does demand that if one must leave a room during the speaking that they go quietly, tip toe out even if boots are heavy. Memorial day was conspicuous for the noisy walk of people going out during the address and it enraged many. It may become necessary for the presiding officer of such gatherings to ask those who wish to leave before the exercises are through to do so at intervals between speakers or speaking.

AN INTERESTED OBSERVER.

Thing—Will.

A very pleasant wedding party gathered at the home of Mr. George D. Will of Avon, Tuesday, June 9, when his youngest daughter, Grace, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry R. Thing of Livermore Center. Rev. H. A. Clifford of Strong officiated, using the single ring ceremony.

A few relatives were present to whom refreshments were served.

The bride has many friends in Avon and towns where she has taught, and was pleasantly remembered by gifts. The couple took the noon train with congratulations and a shower of rice.

They will be at home at Livermore Center.

Aurora Grange.

Tuesday evening, June 16, a regular meeting of Aurora Grange, Strong, was held in Grange hall, notwithstanding the busy season, a fair number of patrons were present. After the routine business was disposed of, the first and second degrees were conferred on a class of four. The new degree team did the work, and did well for the first trial.

A fine entertainment by a noted reader and impersonator, a Mr. Reynolds of Boston, was talked up and it was decided to procure his services for an evening in August.

The next regular meeting will be an all day meeting, Tuesday, June 30. The third and fourth degrees will be conferred.

South Africa's Locusts.

Millions and millions of locusts settle, and millions and millions continue flying to settle farther on. They have been settling in myriads for a hundred miles and more, and yet enough are left flying to hide the sun. On the ground nothing can be seen but locusts. So thickly do they pack that not a square inch of earth or grass is visible. As you walk through them a narrow wake is left for a few seconds in your track where they have flown out of your way, and as they rise in thousands before your feet the noise of their wings is like an electric power station.—Grand Magazine.

STRATTON, June 24, 1908.

The ball game that was to have been played Saturday, June 20, between the Strattons and Rangeleys fell through by reason of the nonappearance of the Rangeley team; who in the past have always been on the level and always done as they agreed, but this time they were shady in not even letting the boys know that they would not come.

In the future we will play with teams that are square.

The Stratton team would like to hear from any team in the county that wants to play ball, and will use all teams playing them as gentlemen and expect to be used the same.

Put This Stove in Your Kitchen

It is wonderfully convenient to do kitchen work on a stove that's ready at the instant wanted, and out of the way the moment you're done. Such a stove is the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. By using it you avoid the continuous overpowering heat of a coal fire and cook with comfort, even in dog-days. The is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is the ideal lamp for family use—safe, convenient, economical and a great light giver. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency. Standard Oil Company of New York (Incorporated)

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of the Phillips High school was preached at the Union church Sunday morning by Rev. Mr. Hutchins. The text was Phil. 4:8, "Finally brethren whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise think on these things."
In coming before this class today I am taking some things for granted. I am taking for granted that you realize that your education is not finished but is only beginning, that indeed it may never be finished. I am taking for granted that you do not look upon education as a process of pouring in, but of giving out; not simply receiving, but learning to use. You realize, also, that in this continued education, there are many externals in your surroundings whatever they may be and wherever you may be that will assist in the work,

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.
"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator. * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "In Helonias we have a medication which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea, atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and a general (thin blooded) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."
If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.
Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of Favorite Prescription, Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions and general enfeeblement, it is useful."
Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root: "In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."
Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal: "Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation)."

and that will be your teachers. Let us think of these things that help in your education as teachers, and consider some of them.

One teacher is work. Just physical exertion or exercise is a teacher, showing the possibilities for accomplishment that belong to us. Manual labor is not the only work to be sure; thought and study, all things that call for honest effort are also included. He who works with the brain and he who works with the hands are alike doers of good. When this is better understood we shall be doing away with much of the friction between classes, between the different companies of workers. Work is God's badge of nobility and usefulness.

Nature, also, is a teacher, and every where her lessons are being told to us. She has lessons to adapt to every quality of mind and questioning. Some there are who, as they walk among the flowers, are most interested in what we might term their botanical lessons. They are something to study in detail; something in which to observe the different parts and their relation to one another. It is fascinating to them to compare, to analyze. Nature teaches them as she taught Agassiz when

"Nature, the old nurse, took
The child upon her knees
Saying 'Here is a story-book
The Father has written for thee.'"

And others there are who, not having this analytical turn of mind, are yet learning lessons of even greater importance from Nature. Each flower may not be something to pick in pieces, even to wonder over the marvellous adjustment of parts, the strange likenesses and variations. But wherever seen they tell of God's love, of his infinite care and patience, and Nature whispers to those who thus see, beautiful truths about the Creator. Like Emerson and like many of earth's philosophers and poets they find many an uplifting lesson in the pages that they read from Nature's story-book.

Other teachers are persons—not our friends alone, but all persons, men and women, boys and girls, with whose lives our lives touch. Changing a little of Longfellow's lines about the children we would say that only they are living books and all the rest are dead. It is through touching human lives, through learning from them, more than in the study of philosophy or of theology that we learn the blessed lessons of sympathy and kindness. We find the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. We broaden our outlook and our understanding of the people of the world.

Books are among our teachers. A boy in Tennessee spent the years of his childhood in a spot shut in by mountains, knowing no place save the small section in which was his home. When, a few years having passed by, he climbed the mountains and visited relatives who lived beyond the small circle of hills known to him, great surprise came to him, and he wrote the home people that if the world was as large beyond his uncle's, as it was between there and home it was a pretty big world. A little journey of but 12 miles had enlarged his horizon and given him vastly different views of the world. A little excursion into the world of books will enlarge the horizon of our understanding and take us into the heart of men's thoughts. There are books of fiction, books of poetry that teach us to see more deeply into truth. Is it not because there are so many who have seen clearly and felt deeply that we have poetry? But the lessons most forceful and most important that come to us through books are the biographies that they bring us. And in the book of books, the Bible, in the New Testament, is not the help for us in their biographies? Moses the leader, Socrates the philosopher, Homer the poet, we know them through books and they are real to us. We hear Martin Luther in his unshaken steadfastness to the right that he saw. George Washington and Abraham Lincoln are our heroes and hold places in our hearts, because they through what is written of them are made real to us. Our friends may change. The great dead change not, and from their biographies brought to us in books we learn lessons of nobility and of true greatness. And surely the biography of Jesus brought to us in the New Testament unfolds to us lessons of the grandeur of life, of the possibilities before us, of the glory of a life, lived for others as we can learn them in no other way.

Greater even than these teachers named we may be taught by God himself. A certain great American statesman who was asked what one influence in his life had wrought most effectively in placing him in the position of honor and power which he occupied and had kept him true to high and noble ideals said: "The thought of a personal God to whom I owe love and obedience."

A company of men were watching one evening a German philosopher, honored among the learned men of his time. They thought to learn something of his methods of work, of his devotion to study which made his name famous. At bed time he, not knowing that others were looking or listening, read a little from the Bible and knelt in prayer. The students expected to hear expressions of profound thought, but this was what he said to God: "Father, everything is on the same old plane between you and me." God had been his teacher and he knew him as one present of whose sympathy and friendliness he was assured; as one between whose spirit and his own there was fellowship and harmony.

The last teacher that I will name is the propulsive developing power of a mighty purpose. You know that every year the rules governing the reception of immigrants into this country are becoming more and more strict. Careful questioning is made concerning the ability, the plans and the purposes of those who come, and often those who expect to see the portals of American liberty opening to receive them find that instead they are outside closed gates. Among those who arrived in a certain ship at Ellis Island was a bright young man, who in reply to the questions of the officials said that he had no people to whom he was going, that he came prepared to do no special work, that he had no money, not even sufficient to take him to Fall River, to which city he wished to go. Sorrowfully he listened to the verdict that he must return to his native land. As, disheartened, he turned away someone asked him what was in a cloth bag that he carried. He took from the bag a cornet and when asked to play raised it to his lips. At the first notes people stopped to listen, and soon the crowd of humanity ceased its tumult and listened to the strains of melody. The very officials who had ordered the return of the player contributed funds to take him to Fall River. His energies had been given to the accomplishing of one great object. He had learned to do that which he had made his one purpose to do.

Good resolutions are too often like pieces of resilient cork which toss back and forth upon the water. But a mighty constraining purpose will carry us onward. With one great purpose of life to which we are true we are like God who in all his work seeks to advance this great purpose, the development of that which is best in human character. May this class learn from work, from nature, from the lives of all who touch their lives, from books with their record of lives that have been lived, from God, and from a great purpose those lessons which will make life true and worthy. Following and mingling with these teachers, listening to them, your education will still go on. It is not finished, it will not be finished in middle life; it will not be finished in old age. God alone knows if it will ever be.

I remember that when going to school at North Anson I heard the theory of approximation, by which process one came nearer and nearer to finding real values without exactly reaching the truth. An illustration was like this: Start to go from New Portland to North Anson. Go one-half the distance, then again half, and yet again half. Continue this and theoretically one would never reach North Anson. Theoretically you would never reach just the point toward which you started. In reality you would reach a point so closely approximating to it that it would be the same. We may set before us God's great purpose of developing character. We may not be able to attain to his standard of perfect character, to reach a perfect likeness to him. But we may come nearer and nearer that ideal. Let this then be your great purpose to develop a Godlike character.

Everybody Talking About It.

Everybody is talking about the great free offer of Dr. Greene's the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and who discovered that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. He makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and all who accept his offer are astonished at the marvellous success of this method. His office is at 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., where he receives and carefully examines every letter sent to him by persons describing their cases and telling him their symptoms. After thoroughly studying each case he answers the letter, explaining the cause of each symptom and telling a sure way to get well and strong. He makes the patients understand exactly what ails them and tells them all about their complaint, and all this is entirely free of charge. They save the expense of a trip to the city, have no fee to pay, and have the benefit of the best medical advice and consultation. Here is an opportunity for you to get well, reader; you can either accept or reject it. Which will you do?

"Old Hundred" Scares Birds.

It is a strange but well authenticated fact that the wild creatures of the woods dislike the sound of that solemn hymn "Old Hundred." Muir, the naturalist, proved the truth of this by singing it in the woods of the Sierras to the birds and squirrels, which were very tame from never having been frightened by the report of a gun or other alarming sound. They would come and sit near him upon the branches of trees and listen to any lively tune he might sing, blinking their bright eyes as though they liked it, but at the first sound of "Old Hundred" they would beat a quick retreat to their holes or nests and never appear again until he changed the tune. This experiment was made in different places on various occasions with exactly the same result.—New York Herald.

A Grand Family Medicine.

"It gives me pleasure to speak a good word for Electric Bitters," writes Mr. Frank Conlan of No. 436 Houston St., New York. "It's a grand family medicine for dyspepsia and liver complications; while for lame back and weak kidneys it cannot be too highly recommended." Electric Bitters regulate the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at W. A. D. Taft and Sherman.
THE Great Republican National convention is over and Taft and Sherman are the standard bearers who will continue in power in the Republican party and the policies of Theodore Roosevelt. Of the character of the nominees ex-Governor, John D. Long of Massachusetts, a Maine man says:
"I heartily approve of the nominations and give them my unquestioning support. Taft is, as I said four months ago, especially fitted for the presidency by his temper, natural qualities and by his large and varied experience in public affairs, domestic and foreign.
"No man in recent years has had the range and training in these respects which he has had. Of his high character and mind there is, of course, no question. He rises to the ideal of the public man.
"I knew Sherman in Congress and served him. He is a man of good hard sense and of long congressional experience, entirely fit for the vice presidency. The country will be safe in his hand if he comes to first place.
This in brief is a biography of Taft's public life?

Fernald Sure.
It looks now as if Fernald would have nearly 800 in the convention and Haines not much over 300, not counting Boothby's. Fernald will probably get about 100 more, by the way things are going, and Haines can hardly expect half as many. Fernald has 34 more now than he actually needs, so if he can hold them all he need do is to sit tight and accept what comes to him in the future.
This places Fernald so far in the lead that his nomination on the first ballot is now conceded by all save his opponent, Mr. Haines.

Fined a Trust.
TWENTY-FOUR companies manufacturing Manila wrapping paper were fined $2000 each by Judge Hough in the United States circuit court Monday. They pleaded guilty Friday last to maintaining an illegal combination in restraint of trade. They were members of the Manila Fiber association.
The American Newspaper Publisher's association has been active in the prosecution of this and other illegal combinations which have increased unreasonably the cost of paper to the publishers. Let the good work go on!

Mr. Blanchard Better.
Hon. Cyrus N. Blanchard of Wilton, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, was able to walk about his room yesterday and hopes to be out again in a few days. Since his illness Gov. Cobb has appointed Mr. Blanchard one of the Trustees for the Home For the Feeble Minded.

MONEY SYSTEMS.
The World's Coinage Muddle and the Range of Units of Value.
Twenty-six different monetary units are used by the forty-eight principal countries of the world. Thus Great Britain uses the sovereign or pound sterling, France and six other countries of Europe use a unit equal to the franc, and Canada and the United States use the dollar.
In value these different units range from 4.4 to 494.33 cents of money of the United States. They are represented in their turn by coins the values of which are either multiples or fractional parts of the value of their own chief units, and there are no doubt at least 200 such sufficient coins not one of which seems to have a value equal to that of any commonly known unit of weight, as the gram, for example, or the ounce of gold, although forty-three of these forty-eight countries have accepted gold as their standard measure of values.
This lack of logical relation of coins to any widely used unit of weight of the precious metals may be due to the fact that money systems seem to have grown up haphazard, under diverse conditions of life, in different parts of the world.
Such diversity in moneys may have been of little moment when millions of people spent their lives knowing nothing of the existence of other millions and there was little traffic. But these differences in monetary units are of importance now that international commerce includes millions of tons of products of the toll of all lands and billions of dollars each year to settle its bills, for such differences put upon trade a wholly unnecessary tax. No account is made here of the burden laid on domestic trade by like variation in the value of such units at home, as of the tael of China, which has sixteen different values within that empire.—Moody's Magazine.

MARK TWAIN AS A BOWLER.

Bewildering Results He Achieved In His First Game.

More than forty years ago in San Francisco the office staff adjourned upon conclusion of its work at 2 o'clock in the morning to a great bowling establishment where there were twelve alleys. I was invited, rather perfunctorily and as a matter of etiquette—by which I mean that I was invited politely, but not urgently. But when I diffidently declined with thanks and explained that I knew nothing about the game those lively young fellows became at once eager and anxious and urgent to have my society. This flattered me, for I perceived no trap, and I innocently and gratefully accepted their invitation. I was given an alley all to myself. The boys explained the game to me, and they also explained to me that there would be an hour's play and that the player who scored the fewest ten strikes in the hour would have to provide oysters and beer for the combination. This disturbed me very seriously, since it promised me bankruptcy, and I was sorry that this detail had been overlooked in the beginning. But my pride would not allow me to back out now, so I stayed in and did what I could to look satisfied and glad I had come. It is not likely that I looked as contented as I wanted to, but the others looked glad enough to make up for it, for they were quite unable to hide their evil joy. They showed me how to stand and how to stoop and how to aim the ball and how to let fly, and then the game began.

The results were astonishing. In my ignorance I delivered the balls in apparently every way except the right one, but no matter—during half an hour I never started a ball down the alley that didn't score a ten strike every time at the other end. The others lost their grip early and their joy along with it. Now and then one of them got a ten strike, but the occurrence was so rare that it made no show alongside of my giant score. The boys surrendered at the end of the half hour and put on their coats and gathered around me and in courteous but sufficiently definite language expressed their opinion of an experience worn and seasoned expert who would stoop to lying and deception in order to rob kind and well meaning friends who had put their trust in him under the delusion that he was honest and honorable. I was not able to convince them that I had not lied, for now my character was gone, and they refused to attach any value to anything I said.
The proprietor of the place stood by for awhile saying nothing; then he came to my defense. He said: "It looks like a mystery, gentlemen, but it isn't a mystery after it's explained. That is a grooved alley; you've only to start a ball down it any way you please and the groove will do the rest; it will slam the ball against the northeast curve of the head pin every time, and nothing can save the ten from going down."

It was true. The boys made the experiment, and they found that there was no art that could send a ball down that alley and fail to score a ten strike with it. When I had told those boys that I knew nothing about that game I was speaking only the truth. But it was ever thus all through my life—whenever I have diverged from custom and principle and uttered a truth the rule has been that the hearer hadn't strength of mind enough to believe it—From Mark Twain's Autobiography in North American Review.

Who Kills a Good Book Kills Reason.

Unless wariness be used, as good almost kill a man as kill a good book. Who kills a man kills a reasonable creature—God's image, but he who kills a good book kills reason itself—kills the image of God, as it were, in the eye. Many a man lives a burden to the earth, but a good book is the precious life blood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life.—John Milton.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Of Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson, Reed's Mills.

(Special to MAINE WOODSMAN.)

Mrs. Vesta A. Sargent of Reed's Mills gave a reception to Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson in honor of their fifth wedding anniversary at her home in Madrid, June 16.

Her daughter, Mary was married to George Thompson of Rumford Falls five years ago at her home and all friends thought it very appropriate to hold the reception at the same place.

At an early hour relatives, friends and neighbors began to gather until about 100 were enjoying the festivities of the evening. The host and hostess seemed to be thoughtful and attentive to the pleasure of their guests. The smiling face of George seemed to be a prominent factor in the program, while Mary was ever thoughtful and present in entertaining and the evening was quickly passed in vocal and instrumental music, with varied selections on the Victor talking machine.

The young people entertained themselves in plays and games.

Light refreshments were served by the host and hostess. Many valuable presents were left the recipients. A W. Davenport thanked the donors in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and added that although they had been very popular among their friends and acquaintances during their married life, yet in two instances they were not really popular as the divorce record showed. They had not kept up with the swim in that line, and according to President Roosevelt's theory they had not made themselves popular in raising a large family, although the one son which they have was smart and bright enough for a half dozen.

At a late hour all bade the host and hostess good night and returned homeward feeling that a very pleasant evening had been passed.

Following is a list of presents and donors.

Pair linen towels, Will I. Sargent; pair towels, Frank Davenport and children; two pairs hemstitched towels, W. R. Davenport and wife; linen towel, Mamie Webber; door panel, George E. Stinchfield; aluminum picture frame heart shield, with photo's, Mrs. Ralph Penningille; one half dozen glass tumblers, Morrell Wing; fancy cake plate, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Rowe; meat platter, Milfred Dunham; fancy fruit dish, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heath; fruit picture, Mertie Heath; enameled coffee pot, Elvin McLaughlin; half dozen silver knives and forks, one silver tablespoon and lace door panel, Reed's Mill Sewing circle; two silver desert spoons, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davenport and family; silver cream ladle, Linwood Stinchfield; three silver tablespoons, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Davenport and Miss Carrie; French parlor clock, Hazel Sargent; hand embroidered center piece, Mrs. Mamie Carithers; English tea set, Leona Grose; linen table cloth, Anna Sargent; large bed spread, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Grose; glass cake stand and china tureen, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wing; oil painting, Mrs. Oscar Beede. The following gave money, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sargent, Mrs. Sam'l J. Sargent, Mrs. Hattie Grose, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Locklin, Miss Gladys Kinne, Mr. Frank Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McLaughlin, Mr. Frank Beede, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stinchfield, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. SLEEP AND DEATH.

Neither Pain Nor Consciousness at the Instant of Either.

The phenomenon called sleep may be summed up in the following propositions, says a writer in the Cosmopolitan:

First—Sleep is temporary death of the functions of the sensitive system, due to exhaustion by fatigue.

Secondly—This death is temporary because the vital system continues to perform its functions during sleep and restores the sensitive organs to their normal condition.

For our purpose death may be considered under the three heads—natural death, sudden death and death from disease. Natural death is death from old age. It differs from natural sleep only in degree.

The gradual loss of sensibility by the sensitive organs which precedes sleep now takes place in the vital system, and all the organs pass into permanent sleep together. There can be no pain preceding or at the moment of passing into temporary sleep.

Sudden death may be defined as death due to a sudden injury from without or within the body sufficient to destroy at once all irritability of both the sensitive and vital systems. It requires no argument to prove that a person who is suddenly stricken dead can suffer no pain. The element of time must be present in order to suffer physical pain, and in the sudden death of a person the element of time is absent.

We come now to consider the third and by far the most frequent form of death—namely, death from disease.

As soon as disease is established dying begins, which is but a more rapid than natural ceasing of all sensibilities, accompanied with more or less suffering, according to the cause which produces it. This dying and suffering, called disease, must terminate either in so called death, which is insensibility to it, or in recovery, which is removal of the cause of it. But in any event the suffering has been endured, no matter whether the final termination is death or recovery.

No one is conscious of or can recall the moment he passes from waking into natural or temporary sleep. Nor shall we, by a "supreme agony" or in any other way, be conscious of passing into permanent sleep.

Being born and dying are the two most important physiological events in the life history of our bodies, and we shall know no more about the latter event at the time it occurs than we did about the former.

A New England play entitled "Along the Kennebec" will be presented at Kingfield, Thursday, July 2; Phillips, Friday, July 3; Rangeley, Saturday, July 4. This company carries all its own scenery for the production and its stage settings are said to be extraordinarily pretty and well appointed. The play itself is a comedy pure and simple, with an absence of cheap sensationalism but an abundance of good, clean comedy, something that we can laugh at and understand afterwards what we laughed at. The funny duel scene in the third act is said to be a pretty good cure for the blues for the evening at least, and the splendid orchestra will please all lovers of good music.

Hundreds of Phillips Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—Backache, sideache, headache, early symptoms of kidney ills. Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

Mrs. A. H. Prince, of 122 Federal St. Portland, Me., says: "In the month of October, 1898, I gave for publication a statement recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. My husband had derived much benefit from their use when suffering a great deal from trouble with the kidneys. He got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at a drug store, corner of Middle and Free Sts., and used them according to directions. Since the time I gave this testimonial he has given Doan's Kidney Pills a more thorough test and has used them frequently on occasions when symptoms of kidney trouble became noticeable and they have never failed to give him prompt relief. Although it is six years since we recommended Doan's Kidney Pills we have never had any reason to change our opinion."

REMINISCENT.

The Phillips High School in 1850, by a Former Phillips Man.

To the Editor of MAINE WOODSMAN:

HARPER'S FERRY W. VA., June 24.

It was my very great privilege to attend the exhibition given at the close of the term in the fall 1850. That I walked five and a half miles, after a days work, and at the close walked home again, did not materially diminish the pleasure.

There were no Indian Devils at large in those days near the Border. I am not quite sure who taught the High school that year, but I think it was H. L. Butterfield.

I remember the year by a leading part in the exercises, an oration on the middle of the 19th Century. Till then, time had not divided itself into centuries, before my vision. While H. O. Butterfield was speaking I mentally added fifty years to my age, and thought what an antique specimen of humanity I should be if I continued to live till the year 1900. I did not know nearly all of the students who had parts, but it seems to me a rare performance; the musical renderings greatly impressed me and I think now they must have been fine.

Ben and Frank Brett, and the Dow boys were among the musicians. I am not sure that I have ever heard two finer voices than Ben Brett's and Henry Dow's; they seemed to me almost divine, though one of Brett's songs, "When I Went Out a' Sleighing" was very human as well as humorous. I remember Elbridge Heath's recital of "The Maniac" as impressive, but nothing pleased me quite as much as a dialogue between a British officer and a raw Yankee in Colonial times. The officer was training a squad of regulars in marksmanship. Jonathan a raw youth, looking on from a short distance, dressed in a short jacket and too short home made trousers, gave an uproarious laugh, at the poor shots made; the laugh brought a sharp rebuke from the Col. and an awkward apology from the Yankee boy. The parley led to a trial of his skill at shooting by the boy. When he had beaten them all, Jonathan laughed again, in spite of himself. The last outbreak, Jonathan explained was caused by his thinking what dad would say to see him shooting at half gun shots. Marion Everleth was the tall slim Jonathan. I am not quite sure of the British Col. but he might have been a young fellow whom I knew later as Joel Wilbur, I cannot quite place him.

How I longed to be numbered among the pupils of the Phillips High school, but there was too much work to be done on that old farm at West Phillips for me to get off in September and October, the school season. I had already had one short term of six weeks or so at Farmington Academy under that prince of educators, Jonas Burnham, and his parting words were ringing in my ears, "Fit for college Brackett, fit for college." BIRDS AS THEY SLEEP.

Quail Form a Dense Circle With All Heads Facing Out.

The nighttime preparations of the chubby little quail are very interesting. Each evening the covey forms in a new place, and this selection of the spot entails serious efforts. Bobwhite never quite loses remembrance of the many dangers which make his life in a wild state one great fear. A white throated male with soft clucks calls together a dozen of his comrades, and for a few minutes they all huddle together, but soon from the farther end of the aviary a clear "Whew-bobwhite" rings out, and off scurry the whole band, this time perhaps to settle for the night in the new place—a dense circle of little forms, heads all facing out, just as in their native stubble they rest facing in every direction, so that at the first hint of danger from any point of the compass the covey may explode and go booming off in safety. Poor little fellows, their wild life is strenuous indeed! Well for their race that every nest holds from ten to eighteen eggs instead of three or four!

The woodpeckers sleep resting upon their tails, even the flickers invariably following this custom, although during the day the flickers spend much of their time perching in passerine manner, crosswise upon a twig. Small birds, such as thrushes and warblers, sleep usually upon some small twig, with heads tucked behind wings in orthodox bird fashion, but they occasionally vary this in a remarkable way by clinging all night to the vertical wires of their cages, sleeping apparently as soundly in this as in the usual position of rest. A bluebird in a small cage slept thus about one or two nights out of each week. Any explanation of this voluntary and widespread habit among perching birds would be difficult to suggest.

The little hanging parrakeets derive their name from their custom of sleeping always in a reversed position, and when distributed over their roosting tree they resemble some strange, pendant, green fruit rather than sleeping birds.—Outing Magazine.

The Modern Way.

"Will you have this here woman to be your lawful wedded wife?" "That's what I loved I would." "Will you love, honor and obey her?" "Ain't you got that switched around, parson?" said the bridegroom. "John," said the bride elect, "don't you reckon the parson knows his business? Answer the question!" "Yes, sir," said the bridegroom meekly. "I reckon I'll have to."—Atlanta Constitution.

AN OLD STAGE LINE.

It Ran From Kansas to California In Thirty-five Days.

"Atchison to California in thirty-five days; fare, only $200 in gold."

This was the heading of an old handbill, yellow with age, which a traveler laid upon the counter in a railway ticket office the other day. It was an advertisement of a line of stagecoaches that ran from Atchison, Kan., to San Francisco during the gold excitement of years ago.

"People seldom stop to think what their poor ancestors had to put up with in the old days," the man said. He was comparing the old time table with a modern railway time table, which told of the luxuries one could have by traveling on that road, no dust, no jarring and all other disagreeable features eliminated.

The old time table was a double sheet of paper, torn and yellow with age. It was issued by the Atchison and California stagecoach line in 1857. The inducements it held forth were in strange contrast with those of the modern railroad advertisement. The stagecoach line advertised that it had recently refurnished the entire "road" with absolutely new wagonettes, and it told what kind of coaches they were, how the springs were made and of what strength they were. It even said that the coaches were painted in the "best manner possible." The horses that drew the coaches were described, too, as the best.

An inducement that was held out on the time table to prospective passengers was a stop over privilege.

"Passengers who had paid their entire fare from Atchison or other points to their destination," the paper said, "may register with our agents. A stop over privilege is then given for any place on the road."

The time of the stop over was unlimited. The time table provided that a passenger might resume the journey whenever there was an empty seat in the stagecoach.

"We make quicker time to California than any other stagecoach line and at a cheaper rate," the pamphlet stated. It went on to say that for $200 a person could ride all the way from Atchison, Kan., to the gold fields of California.

"The distance is 1,913 miles," was stated on the time table, "the longest distance ever attempted by a stagecoach line. Atchison to California in thirty-five days."

A boast was made that there were twelve telegraph stations on the road to California and that eating places had been established along the road where good meals could be had at the nominal price of $3. Every passenger was allowed twenty-five pounds of baggage, consisting of wearing apparel and other necessary baggage. All over that amount must be paid for at a rate of 40 cents a pound.

It was advertised that the risk on the return trip was very great on account of the amount of gold dust and nuggets being brought back from California. The company employed only the bravest men, fully armed all the time. But it declined to carry gold dust unless paid for at the rate of $3 a pound. The company refused to be held responsible for the loss of the gold dust by robbers, Indians or other means.

The pamphlet also advertised a fast freight line between Atchison and Denver. The round trip was made in the short space of twenty days. To ship by this method all merchandise had to be wrapped in waterproof packages. A package weighing ten pounds could be sent by that route for $5. All over that weight was sent at the reduced rate of $2 for five pounds.

In its advertisement for passengers to California the pamphlet, as stated before, allowed every passenger twenty-five pounds of baggage. However, it advised that as many persons wished to take more baggage than the weight limit it would be safer to send it to California by sea.

"And to think that we can get on a train tonight and be in Denver tomorrow," the railroad man said as he compared the time tables.—Kansas City Star.

Perilous Boating.

On the west coast of Ireland, near the mouth of the river Shannon, are several large sea caves which open into each other. The visitor seems to be floating through a submarine palace of many halls whose roofs are either as green as grass in the sun or blood red. But the visitor needs a good guide and a good boatman, for the sea is insidious and the labyrinth of caves intricate. On one occasion, writes Aubrey de Vere in his "Recollections," soon after a party had entered the boatman suddenly shouted, "Bend down your heads for your lives!"

No one saw any danger, but the boatman felt the placid water insensibly rising and knew that the tide had turned. At last the visitors knew this, too, for it was not until the boat had ascended within a few inches of the roof that it began to descend.

"Pull your best!" exclaimed the man at the helm. "If the second wave reaches us, we are lost!" But before the second wave reached the cave the boat had issued from its mouth.

CLIMBING AN ICE SLOPE.

Vain and Perilous Effort to Scale Mount McKinley.

The long trail to the north brings out the best in men and the worst, declares Mr. Robert Dunn in "The Shameless Diary of an Explorer." As a member of a party which made a vain attempt to reach the top of Mount McKinley he tells something of the hardships of one day's travel:

Furtively, imperceptibly, the steepness had stolen a march on us. As one line of footholds gave out we had to slide dexterously to another. The steeper slope was swept clear and hard. Steps had to be cut.

We have only three ice axes. As I never gave them a thought this morning, all of them were gobbled up when we started, and I was left with only one long willow tent pole. It was never meant to balance you in half cut steps that may or may not hold your toe.

As the steps changed from a stairway to a stepladder the other three betrayed no excitement, no uneasiness. Neither did I at first, but I felt both. It was not dizziness, not vertigo, but simply that as I looked down the sheer 2,000 feet from where we clung by our toes imagination resistlessly told over how it would feel, how long it would last, what the climax in sensation would be, were I to fall.

As hour succeeded hour I lived each minute only to make the false step. Courage is only a matter of self control anyway.

Climbing the highest mountain on the continent with a tent pole! Sometimes I boiled in those dizzy, anxious places that I had put myself in such a position with such men. Yet I must reap my own sowing. Once I asked if it wasn't customary to rope on such steep slopes, but no one but Fred answered, and he said: "Y' ain't goin' to ketch me tied up to anybody. A man don't want to take chances with any one but himself, haulin' him down from these places."

One requisite of explorers besides aversion to soap and water is insensitiveness. They can't see; they can't feel. They couldn't do these stunts if they did.

Variations of Cards.

There are an enormous number of possible variations of cards in card games. Every man when he takes up his cards at whist holds one out of 635, 015,559,600 possible hands. The total number of variations possible among all players is so great as almost to exceed belief. It has been calculated that if a million men were to be engaged in dealing cards at the rate of one deal every minute day and night for 100,000,000 years they would have exhausted only a hundred-thousandth part of the variations of the cards.

Crowded Out by Vain Man.

"I went into the office looking like a fright," said the woman. "I didn't have a chance to straighten my hat or pat my hair or anything. I had intended to primp going up in the elevator, but there was a man standing before each mirror twirling his mustache, and I couldn't even get a peep at myself."—New York Press.

HEALTH

means health in later years. As the child builds the adult shall be. Weakly, neglected children do not grow to vigorous man and womanhood. Childhood complaints yield easily to proper treatment—but they do not correct themselves. The weak stomach, pallid complexion, listless bearing, irritable temper, disturbed sleep, speak plainly of the ailments common to children, most of which have their origin in disordered stomach and bowels.

The greatest safeguard to children's health is

Dr. True's Elixir

For indigestion, irritability, constipation, poor appetite, peevishness, fevers, stomach and liver troubles, and worms it is unequalled. Parents of two generations have relied upon it. It restores sound, vigorous health when nothing else will. First it removes the cause, then aids nature to repair the damage; builds anew the waste, enriches the blood and sends a glow of health and vigor to every organ and tissue of the body. At all druggists, 35c. Write for free booklet: "Children and Their Diseases."

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quieting and relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles.

A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving bruises and sprains that the proprietors, The Twitchell-Champlin Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.
