GOOD FISHIN' UP THERE

Anglers Having Good Luck at Megunticook.

The fishing was never better at Lake Megunticook than at the present time. W. S. Richards caught a four-pound trout recently. Dr. Bisbee and Will Mero brought in two more Monday, one weighing four pounds. The Doctor hooked a salmon but failed to land him.

The roads are in fine condition now; in fact the best they have been for two years.

Supt. H. W. Libby starts to-day putting out 440,000 square-tailed trout fry which will go into Knox, Lincoln, Hancock and Waldo counties.

Walter I. Neal of the Fish and Game Commission was a visitor at the Hatchery last week.

Fishermen may procure boats and live smelts for bait at the Fish Hatchery, a fact which pleases them very much.

SUMMER FORESTRY CAMP.

The Maine College of Agriculture offers a summer camp in forestry from August 4-18, at the camp maintained last year near Staceyville. The short course is intended for men interested in forestry who cannot take advantage of a more extended course at the University; for graduates of high or preparatory schools who intend to pursue advanced work; and for guides, patrolmen, timber land owners and others interested in this work. A general idea of the methods of the profession may be gained in a short time and at minimum expense. Subjects like "Forest Measurements," "Fire Protection," "Forest Botany," and "Economics of Forestry" will be treated in an elementary manner. Lectures and discussions will be followed by practical field demonstrations. Professor Briscoe has charge of the work here at the University. The first camp course was held in Princeton, Washington county, in the summer of 1913. Last summer the location was changed to Camp Luckasco on the East branch of the Penobscot river, eight miles from Staceyville. This will be the permanent location as the camp and surroundings are excellent. There are no charges except for board and transportation.

ACCIDENTS IN THE WOODS.

The Best Antiseptics for the Immediate Treatment of Cuts.

Cuts, sprains and bruises are the things in the accident line which happen most frequently in the woods. The wise thing to do with any cut, no matter how small, is to wash it first, and then, as soon as possible, apply a good antiseptic freely to it, says an article in Outing. The best antiseptic for the purpose is tincture of iodine half the United States pharmacopoeia strength. The only trouble with this tincture of iodine is that it is liable to leak, or the bottle may become broken, which means an awful mess of everything else that is next or near it. This can, however, be avoided by using a capsule form which is on the market.

Another antiseptic, and one which can be carried in tablet form, a bichloride of mercury. This is such a dangerous poison that there are restrictions on the sale of it, but a fellow who can take care of himself and a gun in the woods should be able to manage a bottle of poison without any trouble.

HOUSE OPENS WITH GOOD PROSPECTS

Haverhill Gentlemen Landed All the Law Allows.

(Special Correspondence.)

Mooselookmeguntic House, Haines Landing, May 8.—This hotel opens to-day for the season of 1915 with every prospect of the best year ever.

To-night several parties are coming and the first guest, Hazen B. Goodridge of Haverhill, who, since Tuesday of this week has been enjoying life in one of the log camps, with Archie Luffkin guide, has found the fishing great, and had all the luck the law allows two days already, for besides a number of 2-pounders he has recorded a 3-pound trout and salmon weighing 3 pounds, 3½ pounds and 5½ lbs., and in our next we shall have others to report, as Mr. Goodridge is so glad to be again at Mooselookmeguntic where he has fished for years, he has no plans for reeling in.

Miss Cornelia T. Crosby of Phillips, Tom Splain guide, is the first lady to record a fish, which was a 3-pound salmon caught May 7.

Such a busy place as this has been since the ice decided to leave early. Mrs. Burns has had a good working crew and much has been accomplished and many are the improvements made. The new wharf looks as if it would stand the wind and waves for a century.

Garret Hobert has built for his own use a new wharf that adds to the looks of the shore, and here the "Autogo" and "Chore Boy" will land. The camp is all ready for Mr. Hobert's party, who are expected the middle of this month.

Camp Ridlon will be open the first of June and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Canner of Brookline, Mass., come then for the summer.

Mrs. E. S. Bennett, nee Ann Ryan of Waltham, Mass., who during the five summers she was bookkeeper and assisted in the office made a host of friends, is here for a week, and her successor, Miss A. L. Marble of Boston, who with Miss Cecile Browne of Lynn, Mass., are to help Mrs. Burns in the office.

Miss Carrie M. Foss of Bowdoinham will again have charge of the store and postoffice and as these young ladies were very popular with the guests all will be glad to have them back again.

The Little Brown House on the Trail, Miss Kathelyn Roeschner of Philadelphia will open in June and as usual serve tea and dainty lunches.

An hour with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Welch is always most entertaining and their store an attractive place. Just for "knitting work" this winter Herb has done a wonderful piece of wood carving out of pine 18 by 30 inches. This represents a 3-pound trout, rising for the fly in a swirl of water, and most perfect are the colorings. Already fish have been received for mounting. One came to-day from the well known fly fisherman, Wm. Allen of Johnston, Penn., who sent a 3½ pound rainbow trout the largest yet taken from the waters of that state. Mr. Welch has purchased a new auto, a Dodge car, and will have his garage ready when it arrives as soon as the roads are in condition to motor from Portland.

Bert Kimball has opened his studio and is already taking some handsome catches of trout and salmon.

Nothing Can Keep Fresh After It's Cut Up

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

schedule. No organization in the world will rival the league as it will appear next season and the interest displayed in prospects for another year already assure the officers that the league will wind up its most successful season next year.

Without an accident of any kind and shooting on only fair ranges, scores have been made by various teams and individuals in the league this year that is looked upon with envy by other clubs and shooters throughout the country. The league has attracted country-wide recognition by its grand work. Letters have been received by all three of the local papers and by President Filton H. Thompson asking how the league was started and for advice in maintaining such an organization. The best known rifle manufacturers of the country voluntarily offered prizes this year and one even went so far as to send a representative from Chicopee Falls, Mass., in order that he might tell the members of the manner in which the league has attracted the attention of his company and how the league compares with all others in the country.

Plans for next year are already under way. Undoubtedly they will go through as the enthusiastic members of the league, fully knowing that they belong to the foremost gathering of rifle shooters in the country, are energetic in their endeavors to make the organization one that will force world-wide recognition. It is planned to have all the matches shot on one range, in one evening, so that all the members will meet each other at least once a week instead of twice during the season. Ranges where it will not be necessary for a man to go and get the target after a member has shot his five bullets will be used next year and these ranges will be in one room. It is proposed that a range similar to that of the Myles Standish rifle club will be used and it is possible that the league will use that club's range.

One hundred and thirty-five members shot in the matches during the season just ended, a truly remarkable showing. Hard work on the part of President Thompson and the 12 captains made it a far better season than the first and it is the aim of these officials to make next year's record one that will live long in the history of rival shooting. Without a single bit of hard feeling on the part of any one of those 135 shooters, resulting from the matches, it is very evident that the foundation for the greatest organization of its kind in both the Eastern and Western hemispheres is solid enough upon which to construct the club next year in a far bigger form.

The Who Have Learning

Great talkers, without knowledge, are as the winds that whistle; but they who have learning should speak aloud.—Moliere

THE ELUSIVE CLAY PIGEON

Some Hints For Novices at the Traps.

There is an axiom that every novice at trapshooting should keep in mind: Always look at the spot where you want to put your load of shot. Don't aim at the target; look at it with both eyes open. The hand that holds the gun follows the eye and instinctively will point the gun where you are looking. To know the right spot is by no means as easy a matter as it sounds. Clay pigeons travel swiftly in their flight. Gunshot also covers distance at a goodly rate of speed. Therefore it is necessary to gauge the flight of each to a nicety if you would smash the target. And this requires judgment.

Experts, both amateur and professional, have by constant practice acquired a degree of skill that enables them to quickly gauge the flight of a target as soon as it leaves the trap. They can decide in an instant just where to put their shot and how often their judgment is correct is evidenced by the high scores they consistently make. With the beginner, however, the matter takes on a different aspect.

Opinions differ somewhat as to whether the targets shot at by beginners are more often lost by being shot under than shot over, that is, whether the load of shot goes under or over the target in its flight. Consensus of opinion, however, seems inclined to the latter fault as being most prevalent. The reason for this being based upon the claim that the novice does not appreciate that owing to the straight stock of his gun he should see the target well above the gun barrel; that is look, and consequently point the gun, at some imaginary point below the target. If he shoots quickly the target should as a rule be just clear of the barrel. If he is a slow shot the imaginary point will naturally have to be considerably lower, for by the time the shot travels out to the target that object will have passed the apex of its flight and commenced to drop.

Of course, the question of "lead," that is, the distance to hold ahead of the target, also must be taken into consideration. On quartering targets—those thrown to the right or left of an imaginary line drawn from the trapshooter's feet at the "score" through the trap-house—the element of "lead" becomes a matter of immediate importance. It has been stated that you should hold or look under a straightaway target. On quartering targets it is necessary to both hold and lead them; that is hold (look ahead) of them, gauging the right spot with a rapidity of calculation that can only be attained by constant practice.

Experts will tell you that it is almost impossible to shoot too far ahead of a target unless you intentionally try to do so. In other words, very few targets are missed by beginners by being "led" too much. The natural tendency is to hold too close to a target even if they have "led" it a bit. Another reason for allowing enough lead is the fact that a load of shot does not get out to the mark in a bunch. It comes stringing along to a certain extent and consequently if the "lead" has been a trifle more than necessary the chances are that the tail end of the load will often break the target—the bulk of the shot having crossed the line ahead of it.

Another point to keep in mind is: When shooting at quartering targets don't stop swinging the gun when you have pulled the trigger. If you do you will in all probability miss the target. Swing the gun and keep swinging it until you have seen the target break. Good advice to the beginner is to learn to shoot quickly, especially on straightaways. Don't hesitate. First impressions are almost always the best, but above all means be careful to avoid what is known as snapshooting.

FARMERS HAVE GUN CLUB

"Hello, is this you, Bill? Say, are you going over to the shoot Saturday?"

"Bet I am. Got my old gun all cleaned and oiled. Watch me drop the birds."

Such is the talk, says the Farmer's Review, that may often be heard over the rural telephones in the south part of Peoria County. Some thirty or more farmers got together about four years ago and organized the Northeast Gun Club. From the first it has been a howling success. The circle of cracker box seats at the country stores are deserted. The Government and politics have almost been forgotten.

Every two weeks, from November 1st to the following May, the members of the Club get together for a competitive shoot. There are now thirty-five members and the membership fee is $1.00. Any additional funds are raised by assessment.

The shooting is generally done in Saylor's Pasture, where the members gather after dinner, each providing his own gun and ammunition. The guns are mostly of the pump variety, twelve gauge, although there are a number of double barreled breech loaders. Several of the old-timers have long single barreled guns, but they are not allowed to shoot at the bird until it is some distance from the trap for fear they might hit it with the end of their guns.

Smokeless powder must be used according to the rules and one of the officials is detailed to preserve order and see that no booze is brought to the gathering, although we are informed the members are strictly temperate.

The birds are the regulation clay pigeon, which cost $4.50 per thousand. The usual program is for four members to line up behind the trap and each one in turn shoots five birds. The first time around, the bird is thrown to the left, the second time straight away, the third time to the right, the fourth to the left, and the fifth time straight away. The secretary-treasurer, William E. Doll, keeps the score and announces the standing at the end of the contest.

The program is varied with competitive shoots occasionally. It is then the duty of President Bert Parr to choose captains. The captains choose the men and the losing side treats with an oyster supper. On one occasion President Parr appointed Charles Duffield as a captain for one side, and for the other named Lem Fuller, but Fuller refused and appealed to Director Saylor who declared that anyone appointed must serve. President Parr promptly said, "Saylor, you serve," and Saylor said to serve, but he had the satisfaction of winning the contest at a score of 82 to 79. That night the Saylor crowd established some new records for oyster consumption.

To let the women folks in, Director Dan Zehr suggested a joint oyster supper in which the men should serve. Twenty-eight men reported all at one time in the kitchen. Seven gallons of oysters were used. The women say it got so hot in the kitchen that the butter began to melt. One of the men set it on the outside, and the cat got into it. The chefs, four in number, wore white caps and aprons, and the rest of the bunch were assistants. A number of guns were laid along the tables for decoration and clay birds were used as salt holders.

One of the most exciting and enjoyable events of the club was the celebration of Washington's birthday, when Capt. Ray Watson lead his team to victory by one point over the team of Capt. Thurman Scott. Watson used a 12-gauge pump, but had hard luck and fell way below his usual score. Two of his team broke 21 out of 25 birds. Capt. Scott shot a 12-gauge double barrel and broke 21 out of 25 birds. Four men made this score. The lowest was three out of 25 birds.

Proper Care of Books.

If a volume is left long near artificial heat, shrinkage and consequent loosening will ensue just as certainly as with a piece of furniture, says a writer in the Youth's Companion. Leaving a book constantly in the sunshine will have the same effect, and in addition will fade the covers. Damp places should also be avoided.

ICE OUT OF SEBEC THE 26TH

Best Early Fishing Two Weeks After Ice is Out.

The ice went out of Sebec lake the morning of April 26th. The first guests to arrive at Packard's Camps were Mr. Geo. Johnson and Mr. Shafer of Boston, who arrived at noon of the same day the ice went out. That afternoon they caught five salmon, all nice sizable fish. April 27th, Mr. and Mrs. Graves of Boston arrived. They are fishing with Walter Arnold and Sam McKenney as guides and are having great sport. Their first day's catch were eight salmon, the largest weighing five pounds and the smallest three pounds.

Mr. O. C. Bean and Mr. Charles Glass of Bangor, are having their usual good luck catching salmon at Packard's Camps. Mr. McNamara of Bangor, with Scott Cook for guide, caught six salmon in one day's fishing. Two of these weighed over five pounds each.

The fishing is extra good for the time of the year, yet the best early fishing is not looked for at Sebec Lake until about two weeks after the ice goes out.

Packard's Camps, whose postoffice address is Sebec Lake, Maine, has a number of New York and Boston parties booked for the spring fishing. A number of these parties come each season and have their guides and accommodations engaged a long time in advance.

Passengers from Boston should take the Greenville sleeping car and get off at Dover & Foxcroft, to reach these camps.

There were 127 salmon caught by the guests at Packard's Camps the first three days after the ice went out.

Nearly all of the fish were taken in the vicinity of Spider Island and Muddy River.

At South Casco—William Perry, South Boston, two salmon, 3½ pounds each; Mrs. Thayer, South Boston, one of 2½ pounds; Albert Harron, New York City, two of 2 pounds each.

At East Sebago—Joseph Shaw, one 4 pounder; Albert Martin, East Sebago, one of 7 pounds; W. A. Spears, Cambridge, one of two pounds; Silas Edwards, North Sebago, one of 3 and one of 4 pounds; George Knapp, South Bridgton, one pound salmon; Frank La Fond, Boston, two of 2 pounds each.

The following salmon and trout were caught yesterday at Peabody Pond which is one of the most remarkable small ponds at the opening of the season for redspot and salmon in this section of Maine. R. G. Sternberger, Boston, one 5 and one 10 pound salmon; John F. Beck, Dorchester, Mass., one of 3 and one of 7 pounds; William Mann, Roxbury, one 2½ pound redspot, trout and a 3½ pound salmon; Fred L. Hall, Winthrop, Mass., one 5 pound salmon.

The party was guided by Lionel Burnell of East Sebago.

Some of the most remarkable salmon fishing that has been reported in a number of years past has been available during the latter part of the week and with the return of some good weather it is believed that the sport will be simply ideal. The anglers at the lake are anticipating some great fun for the next week.

FISHING AT GREEN LAKE

Green lake was one of the most popular bodies of water in the vicinity on Friday and one of the best days of the season of salmon fishing was had, the number of fish taken being larger than any day previous and the size also much larger. Among the lucky ones were: Henry Gangan, one nine pounds; George Kratzenburg, one five pounds and one six pounds; R. Hemmy, one nine pounds; Fred Grace, one seven and one nine pounds; Rockwell Youngs, three; Peter McAuley, one; George Laird, one; John Callahan, one; Dan Laird, one; John Callahan, one; Daniel W. Nason, two; Kidder French, one; Connie McCosker, one; Reuel Kimball, two, and John G. Utterback, one. There were also a number of others on the lake and many were successful.

BROUGHT ACTION TO AN END

Appearance of the "Deceased" in Chancery Court a Blow to Army of Lawyers.It was a suit in chancery, and there was a great gathering of the deceased's family, quarreling, as relatives will, over the division of the spoils. The lawyers engaged chuckled, for the suit seemed likely to be prolonged and complicated.There were many lawyers, too, and the judge marveled at the immensity of the deceased man's family as silk and stuff rose in rapid succession, introducing themselves with the usual formula: "And I, my lord, am for the nephews, or nieces, or fifteenth cousins removed, as the case may be, of the deceased." The procession seemed interminable, but at last it came to an end. Then a small voice was heard timidly saying from the back of the court, "May I be allowed to speak, my lord?"There was dead silence as his lordship adjusted his spectacles and asked, rather dejectedly, "Who are you?"The answer was, to say the least, unexpected."I am the deceased, my lord," said the modest voice from the back of the court. That ended the action.Quite unknown to his relatives, the "deceased" had turned up from the wilds of Rhodesia. Obviously a man of humor, he must have taken a delight in watching how "the best-laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley."

is regretted by many friends.Laforest Voter has recently given this residence a new coat of paint.

Mrs. L. F. Kenniston. Arthur Ken-niston is also visiting his mother this week. Mr. Kenniston is from California and has been in Maine for several weeks.Mrs. Clifford Hunter and daughter figured in quite an exciting runaway last Saturday afternoon. The horse became frightened from the train at the station and made a mad dash for Hackett's livery stable, but came in contact with a post in front of Thompson's blacksmith shop, which freed him from the carriage. Miss Hunter was thrown out but fortunawagon was badly damaged.J. Blaine Morrison was in Range-passed through Phillips Thursday for a short fishing trip to the camp at Rangeley. They returned Monday and were the guests of their aunt,

Miss Luette Timberlake in Phillips.
They had some beauties for fish, both trout and salmon, some of them weighing five and six pounds.At the time the $45.00 was stolen from Mr. H. H. Vining a week or two ago suspicion was directed towards Clyde Mahoney, who had recently come to Phillips, having a furlough from the Reform School. Nothing was proven against him, and he went to North Anson. Word was received here that he was spending money freely, taking a crowd of boys into a drug store there and treating them to the amount of over $11.00.
Sheriff W. B. Small went to North Anson to look after the matter and the boy confessed to the theft at Mr. Vining's and Mr. Small returned with him and lodged him in the Farmington jail, as his trial will not be held until the September term of court. This offense is a serious one, as the penalty for breaking and entering a dwelling house in the night-time is 10 years' imprisonment.Arthur Shepard is making several

WHAT LIGHTS THE VOLCANO?

Eruptions May Be Caused by Heating Water in the Hollows of the Earth.A volcano is a great hollow mountain. It is named for Vulcan, the Roman god who was supposed to deal with fire, because fire comes out of it.
A volcano has a hole at the top called the crater, and this hole seems to lead down into the hot interior of the earth.The inside of the earth is always hot, yet volcanoes are by no means always in eruption, as it is called when they throw out fire and ashes. It must be, then, that something happens which sets the volcano in activity.
The possible cause may be guessed from the location of the great volcanoes, which, like Vesuvius, Etna and Hecla, are near the sea.It may be that the volcano communicates with the earth under the sea, and water passes into the hot interior hollow and creates vast quantities of steam or gas. This gas is formed under great pressure. It must get out somewhere and so finds its way to the crater and escapes with terrific force, sometimes carrying huge masses of rock high into the air.

Heine.

Matthew Arnold's study of Heine has the following passage:"Heine's intense modernism, his absolute freedom, his utter rejection of stock classicism and stock romanticism, his bringing all things under the point of view of the nineteenth century, were understood and laid to heart by Germany, through virtue of her immense, tolerant intellectualism, much as there was in all Heine said to affront and wound Germany. The wit and ardent modern spirit of France Heine joined to the culture of sentiment, the thought of Germany.
This is what makes him so remarkable; his wonderful clearness, lightness, and freedom, united with such power of feeling and width of range."

Willing to Oblige.

A lady warned her new gardener that her husband had an irritating habit of disparaging everything in the greenhouse, and of ordering in a reckless manner new plants to be bought, but on no account was the gardener to humor him. "Whatever he says, throw cold water on him, or he will ruin us with his extravagances."At this point the new gardener turned on her a white and startled face. "Ma'am," he said, "if he orders me to pitch every plant in the place on the rubbish heap, I shan't ever have the pluck to douse him with cold water. Won't it do as well if I get a drain of warm water out of the boiler and let it trickle gently down his neck?"

WHY HE CONTINUED PLAYING

Denman Thompson Could Not Allow Himself to Be "Outgentlemaned"
by a Gambler.Stories of Denman Thompson's quaint and characteristic doings still circulate along Broadway, now and then. Here is one which was told the other night by the attorney who managed Mr. Thompson's legal business for many years."I once went out to confer with Mr.
Thompson on an important matter," said he. "I found the hotel at which he was staying, in a western city, and waited for him to arrive. It was almost daylight when he got in.""I've been playin' faro bank," he explained, smiling cheerfully and shaking my hand.

"You played pretty late," said I.

"Yes," said he, "I played later than I wanted to. But I really couldn't leave."

"Couldn't leave?"

"No sir, I just couldn't leave. You see, when I started to play I lost all the money I had, about $2,000. I was goin' to quit, when the dealer tells me to go right along and play. He said that Denman Thompson's I. O. U. was good for any amount with him. Well, that was mighty nice, considerin' I never met the man before. I took out a couple of hundred dollars' worth of checks on credit, and I begun to win right away. In about three deals I had all their bank roll and they turned over the box. I was tired and ready to go home, but I sez to myself that I wasn't goin' to let any gambler out-gentleman me, so I just told 'em that their I. O. U. was just as good with me as mine was with them, and so I kept on playin' until they won all their money back."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

TO IMPROVE THE SUITCASE

Addition of Pockets Will Greatly Increase the Capacity of the Receptacle.The suitcase can be greatly improved, so far as convenience is concerned, by the addition of pockets.
These pockets may be made with or without flaps. If the flaps have snaps upon them the contents will not come out easily when the suitcase is tossed about.This lining is best made of denim or linen, and can be made detachable, so that it may occasionally go to the laundry. Narrower strips of linen are placed upon that covering the bottom, the inside of the lid and about the sides of the lining, making a double lining, into which rows of machine stitching are placed, joining the two layers of lining together, to form as many pockets as you desire. Three pockets or more can be very well accommodated in the lid, an equal number can be accommodated in the bottom, and several smaller pockets about the sides for jewelry, powder, etc. In this way everything can easily be kept in its place. The larger articles, of course, such as frocks, blouses, skirts, etc., are packed in the remaining open space of the suitcase. If you wish to make an elaborate lining, it can be made of heavy satin.

Beer Replacing Spirits.

Beer drinking is increasing greatly in India, according to the Civil and Military Gazette of Lahore, India. It is stated that this does not mean, however, that the population is turning in greater degree to alcoholic drinks; it simply means that beer is displacing whisky, rum and other strong tipplers.

Captain Landis.

Captain Landis, who commanded the Alliance in Paul Jones' famous sea fight off Flamborough head, and who acted so strangely in that engagement, was brought to trial and found guilty, but instead of being shot was simply discharged. There was a strong doubt as to his sanity.

Diseases Handed Down.

Noah and the other patriarchs didn't have nearly as many different kinds of diseases to face, because they hadn't enough ancestors to hand them down a variety. Consequently their constitutions were not constantly being weakened as are ours today. For example, there is no reference in very ancient literatures to a cold in the head. The Greeks and Romans seem to have been the first peoples to suffer from it.

Paper Covers a Protection.

Undenably, paper covers are of some aid in preserving the fresh appearance of books, but neither the appearance nor the feeling of a covered book is agreeable. Still, for those who have no objection to them, covers are a good thing. Nothing is better than ordinary brown paper, except in some unusual cases, as, for example, the cook book, which, as every good housekeeper knows, should be covered with oilcloth.

Goethe and the Cherry Tree.

When I was a boy, I planted a cherry tree, and watched its growth with delight. Spring frosts killed the blossoms, and I had to wait another year before the cherries were ripe—then the birds ate them; another year the caterpillars; then a greedy neighbor; then the blight. Nevertheless, when I have a garden again, I shall plant a cherry tree!—Goethe.

Marooned Fishes.

When the water of the Mississippi river and its tributaries falls after the annual freshets, it leaves many casual ponds and pools. In them are held captive great numbers of fishes, which the bureau of fisheries undertakes to rescue each year, before they are killed by the drying up or the freezing of the waters. During the fiscal year 1914 the bureau thus saved 2,500,000 fishes of all species—about three times as many as it saved the year before. Most of the fishes it returns to the main streams, but some it keeps for culture in ponds or to stock waters in other parts of the country.—Youth's Companion

Fly Rod's Note Book

BY FLY ROD

Rangeley Tavern,
Rangeley, Maine,
May 7, 1915.

There has been an unusual number of guests this week and it seems like the good old summer time.

The new comers are all much pleased with this attractive and homelike hotel, which is fast becoming well known. A party of New Yorkers, who came this week for their first trip to the Rangeleys are much pleased with the place. They are Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Mackinnon and son, R. A. Jr., and daughter, Miss Marjorie Mackinnon and Mrs. Mackinnon's sister, Miss E. L. Hayden. Eben Harnden is their guide and as they plan to remain for a number of weeks. They will no doubt have good fishing and see this country in all its June beauty.

Last night Mr. Ellis received a letter from the great-great granddaughter of Squire Rangeley, the Englishman, who so many years ago came to this then vast wilderness that now is known the world over by his name. Miss Nellie W. Rangeley lives in Lynchburg, Penn., and may this summer visit the home of her ancestors.

Edward Ledelley of Brooklyn, N. Y., who with Mrs. Ledelley have spent a number of seasons at the Rangeley Lake House, but last year was in Europe, and among the thousands who were glad to reach America, came Wednesday night to stay here until June first, when they will go to the big hotel to remain until October. Mr. Ledelley can tell good war as well as fish stories.

Frederick Skinner, the well known Boston angler has engaged rooms at this hotel and is expected this week.

Monday night when over 20 guests came, they were all greatly interested to know when the pair of salmon, one 3½ pounds, the other 2½ pounds, that were here in the office were caught, and who was the lucky angler. That afternoon Reed Ellis thought he would accept Dr. Stuart's invitation to drop the hook and in less than two hours came back with the pair of salmon and Dr. Stuart had a 3-pounder. That explains why "Rangeley salmon baked in cream" was on the menu to-day.

Richard Bullock, the Fitchburg, Mass., sportsman, with Joe Lamb his guide, can tell a good story about "that big salmon that got away," but has not brought in "a record" yet.

D. E. Miner of DeLand, Fla., who is to take charge of the golf links for the Rangeley Lakes Hotel Co., reached here last night, accompanied by his son and daughter.

Each morning little 10-year-old Miss June Ellis drives down from Lake View Farm to go to school, and when she reaches here turns the horse around, fastens the reins and says, "Maud you go right back to the farm," and alone the knowing animal returns, often passing a train or automobile on the way. Sometimes Mr. Ellis will want something, but is too busy to leave, so he will call one of the boys by telephone here at the Tavern and tell them what it is and say, "I'll send Maud after it," and it will not be long before the team is here waiting at the door, and when what is wanted has been put in the wagon and Maud receives the kind word, "now go right back to the farm, father is in a hurry," the old horse returns, and often passes a friend on the road, who understands why she is making the trip without a driver.

It was raining hard the other morning when I called at the rod shop of Ed T. Hoar, the "guide and philosopher," and had a pleasant hour's chat. The new shop just below Rowe's store has not been finished but soon will be. Ed was busy winding a rod, but stopped to show me several very handsome handmade rods, that he has completed, one a little beauty, 2½ ounce split bamboo fly rod. There was also a fine trolling rod made for C. W. Fowler of Washington, D. C., who will soon return for the summer days. Jas. E. Reynolds of East Orange, N. J., has his rods all covered with a new coat of varnish, waiting for his arrival. Also those of B. Ledelley of Brooklyn, N. Y. Many are the changes that have come to the Rangeleys since Ed, as a lad first caught a trout from these waters. Life has taught him wonderful lessons of charity, and no one can spend an hour talking with him and not realize that when we come to fold our hands for the last time, and answer to the call of the "silent boatman" we can take only the good we have done with us, the gold must all be left behind.

One of the things that prove the coming summer will bring many people from the city to this most attractive part of Maine, is the demand already made for cottages.

The very fine camp just below Pickford's Camps built for the summer home of the Ludeke family, which was also closed last season, has been leased by Mrs. Elizabeth Ludeke to Mrs. Harry Lane Eno of Princeton, N. J., who with her servants comes in June for the summer.

It is understood "Manaskootuk," the beautiful island in the Rangeley Lake owned by F. S. Dickson, formerly of Philadelphia is for sale.

Francis Shaw of Wayland, Mass., it is said, will spend the summer in the land of Evangeline, and not open his cottage before autumn.

Mrs. S. Wheatland of Salem, Mass. has been on a trip to California, but plans in June to open her cottage on the lake shore.

Wm. P. Mascen and family of Brooklyn, N. Y., will not remain long in the city after the roads are passable to the automobile.

Many will remember Col. John Caswell of New York, who distinguished himself by the hunting trip he made in the jungles of Africa, bringing back some of the best specimens of the wild animals now seen in the national museum. Roosevelt followed the route taken by the Colonel. It was also the Colonel, who with great skill brought to net the largest trout ever taken on a fly with a 2-ounce rod, and many a record trout and salmon from these waters, during the last two summers which he spent at Rangeley.

Now Col. Caswell is fighting for the Allies, for he went over to France and offered his services, and received an officer's commission. May the war end and the Colonel be welcomed back to this region before the summer is past.

Lewis Yerk of York Camps, Loon Lake was in town this morning and said he was to open his camps next Monday and that he never has made so many engagements before and if half those who had written came, he should have to build more camps to accommodate them.

A letter from friends at Upper Dam tells me that the first boat made a trip over to Bemis April 29.

and is now making the regular trips bringing passengers, mail and express.

Saturday night a party from Lynn, Mass., and others are expected for their usual spring fishing.

The water in Mooselookmeguntic lake is very low, only 13 feet high a full head is 21 feet. This makes it very hard for any except the small boats to make the landings.

Capt. Coburn has everything in order for the first fishermen and is making daily trips with his motor boat from Middle to Upper Dam.

Tuesday I went over to the Rangeley Lake House, where I was welcomed and spent a pleasant hour.

J. B. Marble, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Marble and son, Carroll Marble with a crew of more than 30 are fast putting everything in the hotel and about the place in order for the opening which is on June first.

Several new bathrooms, painting, papering, etc., have improved the house, while outside over 100 shade trees are being planted, the sidewalk and roads repaired, etc. The new boathouse 45 by 90 which the Rangeley Motor Boat Club have built on the shore near the old boathouse, all add to the place.

The golf links now in charge of Mr. Minor, a professional from Florida will be greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burrows and family will open Rangemere next week.

"We have every prospect of all the business we can do this season, for daily a large number of applications are being received not only from our former guests, but from those who wish to come for the first time," was the reply I received when I asked about the summer, and all know that if one once comes to this famous summer hotel they are sure to be delighted and come again.

"What is the weather in Rangeley, tell us more about it?" is the question asked by letters received every mail.

Well, we have been having for the last few days a much needed rain. True, the Rangeley Lake is up to the usual spring mark, but the other lakes are very low.

The roads are not yet in shape for the automobiles to come from Phillips, but they come and go daily from Oquossoc.

The season is much earlier than usual, one proof is that on April 5, Dr. F. B. Colby took a quick spin by auto over the ice across the lake and on April 15 went by road to Mountain View, just a month earlier than last year.

We have no doubt but what the fishing will be good as soon as it is a little warmer and the fishermen who are expected at all the hotels will arrive before this Maine Woods reaches its readers.

Agreement Is Far Away.

The pros and cons of dairy farming are likely to be discussed for a long time before an agreement is reached; and, in the meantime, the cow is pushing herself to the front in regions where she has not been highly esteemed.

Keeping Unprofitable Cows.

If you had a hired man who was not earning enough to pay his board would you keep him long? Then why do you keep the cow that does not make enough milk to pay for her keep? Many farmers are doing just that thing.

DAIRY NOTES

Young calves must be given every opportunity for health and growth.

Avoid putting too many cows in one pasture to reduce the feed to the smallest quantity for each cow.

Don't neglect any broken wires in the barbed wire fence where the dairy herd is pastured. Cut udders are not profitable.

If there is the least idea in your mind that any of your cows are troubled with tuberculosis, use the test at once.

When possible test the cow's milk before buying her, and remember it does not pay to buy a cow whose milk tests much below three per cent.

25 YEARS AGO IN PHILLIPS.

The Flag Presentation.

There was a large gathering at the Methodist church Friday afternoon. The Phillips Cornet band played inspiring music. It was an admirable object lesson in patriotism given the school children. Love of the flag means love of country. Although it is a quarter of a century that Capt. Robinson has been engaged in civil pursuits, it must have been the memory of his soldier days that prompted this generous gift.

The following interesting program was presented:

Music, Band
Singing, Vina Harden and Kelley Sisters

Presentation of flag, Capt. E. M. Robinson Response, F. E. Timberlake, esq.
History of flag, Mason Parker
Recitation, Sadie Brackett
Recitation, Mertie Davis
Music, Band
Address, Rev. C. E. Tedford
Poem, D. F. Hodges
Recitation, Cherry Bangs

After the exercises at the church the flag was unfurled in the school yard under the direction of two veterans, Commander S. D. McKenney and G. T. Jacobs. Three hearty cheers were given for the flag, the donor, Capt. Robinson, and the village schools.

We trust that the readers of Maine Woods in perusing this column will bear in mind that this matter occurred 25 years ago.

Notwithstanding that the heading of this article plainly states this fact, some of the papers in the state have copied the items as if they were affairs of the present time. Last week it was the item about the Strong toothpick mill which was just being started for operations at that time. Other exchanges have been running this feature in their editions, some making it 15 years ago and some 30.

We have been informed by several of our subscribers that they much enjoy this feature, and we shall publish each week, for the present, a few items taken from the Phillips Photograph, (now Maine Woods) of 25 years ago, so if there is anyone who does not want their age revealed, please notify us.

MANY ARRIVE AT BEMIS SATURDAY

Yonkers Sportsman Arrives the Day Ice Went Out.

(Special Correspondence.)

Bemis, Maine, May 10.—Saturday night when the train stopped at this, the only log station in America, more than 50 passengers arrived and huge piles of trunks, mail and express. Soon the steamboats were ready and Captain Barker started up the lake, and Captain MacCommick with parties for Upper and Middle Dam and several motor boats were waiting for those going to private camps. From now until October at train time this will be one of the busiest places in the Rangelys. True the toot, toot of the auto horn will not be heard, for the only way to reach this little hamlet on the shore of Mooselookmeguntic lake is by train, or by crossing the lake or following the trail through the forest as there is no highway that leads to Bemis.

Everybody, one would think, that lived here, could have fish for dinner to-day judging by the number who "reeled them in yesterday."

Joseph Hall of Byron with a 4½ pound trout and a number less than two pounds was high line.

S. M. Penney of Mechanic Falls, who is here for a few days, is having great luck and the string of trout and salmon he takes home with him will prove what a good angler he is, as there are a number of 3-pounders among them.

Messrs. O. B. Merrill and F. L. Perkins of Mechanic Falls are also here for the fishing and a number of two and three pounders are in their fish box.

Harvey Farrington of Yonkers, N. Y., came April 26th, the day the ice went out, and his sport is in making trips in his Evenrude boat to and from the Birchies, where during the day he enjoys life out in the open. His family will join him later and the camp they occupy at the Birchies will be an attractive one this season.

Philip R. Pottle of Lewiston was one of the first fishermen here this spring and had a good number of trout, but no large ones to take home.

John Trask of Dixfield as usual has been among the first fishermen.

C. B. Cummings & Company, who have one of the largest white birch mills in this part of Maine, have over 5,000 cords of wood to work up and are employing a big crew of men, and running the mill night and day. E. S. Cummings of the firm, who in winter lives in Norway came Saturday, accompanied by the following friends: Lawyer A. J. Stearns, James M. Fabor, Dr. H. J. Jones and Dr. B. F. Bradbury. The party have had good luck and share honors with the three pounders, and have a fine lot of fish to take home. Dr. Bradbury who is a surgeon for the Red Cross and spent several months in Europe, will soon return and resume duty in the hospitals in the war zone.

Yesterday Rev. Fr. T. J. McLaughlin celebrated mass at the school-house and over 60 were present.

Miss Jessie O. Neil has returned from a visit to Lynn, Mass., and will be the housekeeper again this summer.

Captain Barker has many letters from his old patrons who plan to return for the summer and others who expect to come for the first time, and no doubt there will be hundreds more than ever before at the lakes.

EVERYTHING SHIP SHAPE AT MT. VIEW

Hugh Chisholm Among the Parties and Having Great Luck.

(Special Correspondence)

Mountain View, Rangely Maine, May 8.—Another springtime has come to this, one of the most beautiful corners in this grand old state of ours.

Everything about the place looks as fresh and clean as it is possible even the white birch trees look as if they had been newly painted or as a city lady once remarked, "It must have been lots of work to paint that tree, never saw one so white before!" In the office, which has new paper and paint the open fire burns and crackles as if to give welcome to the new comer, and it doesn't seem as if a winter had passed since the same company was telling fish stories, as they piled high the big sticks of wood. The same fishermen are back and they never had better luck, or could tell more stories, for the fishing has been great the last three days. This jolly trio are Messrs. M. B. Damon and F. I. Nichols of Fitchburg, Mass., who have been here many years, and are accompanied by J. C. Murdock of Athol, Mass., who comes to the Rangelys for the first time. Al Sprague, Cliff McKenney and Chas. Toothaker are their guides. The reason Al rowed Mr. Damon back so early the last two days was because "the fish were biting too fast." Their big ones were a 6-pound and a 4-pound salmon. Mr. Nichols yesterday came in with a 3-pound trout, a pair of 3-pound salmon, one 6½ pounds and the day before a 4-pounder, and all the 2-pounders he wanted. Mr. Murdock thinks his 5-pounder a good one. The party have the first camp and will enjoy life there for several days, while their friends at home are having fish dinners.

The flag is now flying at the handsome home of F. C. Fowler of New London, Conn., who arrived this week and will as usual spend the season there. Ansel O. Hayford, who has charge, had everything in fine shape about the place.

The first special train to Oquossoc came in Friday afternoon with "Columbia," a private car, bringing Hugh J. Chisholm, who with the following well known New York friends are having great sport with the gamey salmon: Walter C. McClure of the banking firm of McClure, Jones and Reed, Martin S. Baldwin, Treasurer of the Otis Electric Company and C. B. Stuart. Mr. Chisholm, who entertains his friends in a princely manner, is an expert angler, whose favorite fishing ground is the Rangelys, and he has a pair of 8-pound trout to his credit as well as many a big salmon. On the arrival of the train the party were met by the big team from this hotel with Geo. Church driver and three guides, Fred Fowler, Walter Wight and Frank Fall, and they went over to the big lake. Mr. Chisholm had not reached Frye's camp before he had a pair of salmon for his supper, and when they came back at night each gentleman had good stories to tell. Mr. Baldwin was high line, as his catch included a 5-pound salmon, one three pounds and several over two pounds each, and here is hoping one of the party will have a 10-pound salmon to reel in before they go back.

PORTLAND PARTY AT SEBAGO

Peabody Pond Remarkable for Redspot and Salmon.

All day Saturday a steady drizzle fell at Sebago Lake, as it did in all other fishing regions throughout the State, but the ardor of the fishermen was not at all dampened and as a result of their perseverance some fine catches of salmon were taken, especially by Charles K. Bispham and party of friends, the members of the party taking 21 salmon. Mr. Bispham came through from Portland by automobile yesterday morning with Blon Bradbury and the party, and they immediately went out upon the lake.

Other catches that were taken by fishermen located at the camps of R. P. Thompson were as follows: C. L. Marran, Lowell, two salmon, the largest 6 pounds; Mrs. C. L. Marran, Lowell, one 5½ pounder; Bart Scanton, Lowell, three, the largest 6½ pounds; F. Bridgton, one 8-pound salmon; Frank Strout, Lowell, one of 3½ and one of 5 pounds; C. H. Cadman, Boston, four salmon, largest 5½ pounds; E. A. Simons, Boston, one 5½ pounder, David A. Hill, Boston, one of 7½ and one of 5 pounds; Richard Conant, Portland, one 6 pounder.

A New Questions and Answers Department of Interest to Shooters

C. T. B., Clifton Forge, Va.

What length barrel, whether modified, full choke or cylinder, will shoot most closely such shot as fowls and doves?

Ans. The length of barrel makes no difference. Full choke bore barrels will give closest shooting. Some full choke barrels as furnished by the makers will handle small shot better than large shot, whereas others handle the large shot better. In placing your order, it would be a good idea to specify the size shot you expect to use and the barrel could then be selected to give you the closest possible shooting with the size shot you intend to use.

E. G., Omaha, Nebr.

1. What rifle is the more powerful, the 10 MM Italian or the .41 Swiss?

Ans. They are practically the same.

2. What calibre rifle would you recommend for ducks, geese and wolves?

Ans. One of the .25 calibre metal case bullet cartridges would be satisfactory.

3. Do you think black powder would work as well as smokeless in a .41 calibre Swiss center fire cartridge?

Ans. The .41 calibre Swiss center fire cartridge is not made in this country. So far as I know black powder can be used.

4. Do you know of any firm that makes the 10 MM cartridges, moulds or reloading tools?

Ans. No.

Inquirer, Oconomowoc, Wis.

1. How many times more powerful is gun cotton than smokeless rifle powder?

Ans. This question is impossible to answer as you do not say what kind of smokeless rifle powder. There are a number of varieties of them of various powers. Gun cotton is, of course, very much more powerful than any of the regular smokeless powders. Gun cotton is made by treating cotton fibre with nitric and sulphuric acids. The process is of course very complicated and extremely dangerous unless carried out under proper conditions. Smokeless rifle powders are usually nitro cellulose powders made from wood fibre instead of cotton fibre. There are also a number of powders made up from nitro glycerine. In this case glycerine is used instead of cotton or wood fibre.

2. Would an explosive bullet shoot as true in a high power rifle as in other rifles?

Ans. There are no explosive bullets made, i. e., bullets containing explosive mixture.

3. Has the United States Government the Model 1892 Colts .38 or .41 calibre revolvers for sale? I think they were used in the Spanish-American war. If the Government has sold them to a company could you give me the company's address?

Ans. Francis Bannerman, No. 501 Broadway, N. Y., or any of the other companies making a practice of buying up discarded government supplies at auction will probably be able to supply you.

Subscriber, Chicago, Ill.

1. Kindly inform me which nationality won the first prize in the international rifle shooting contest, held at Camp Perry, Ohio, 1913, also the places of the other nations competing?

Ans. The Camp Perry program for the international shooting in 1913 presented a bewildering number of matches of all sorts. In the international championship of the International Rifle Association, Switzerland won 1st, France 2nd, United States 3rd, Sweden 4th, Argentina 5th, Peru 6th, Canada 7th. In the Palma Trophy match, which is considered the long range team championship of the world with army rifles, the United States was 1st, Argentina 2nd, Canada 3rd, Sweden 4th, and Peru 5th. I have not the records at hand to give you the figures for former years.

N. S. D., Batavia, N. Y.

I have an old sword with the enclosed writing on the back of it next to the hilt. It also has anchors on both sides of it. Can you tell me who made it or anything of the history of it?

Ans. I am sorry I cannot help you out with any information in regard to your sword.

G. P., Port Townsend, Wash.

What is a safe formula for mixing ammonia for removing metal fouling in rifle bore?

The formula for removing metal fouling is:

Ammonium carbonate, 200 grains.
Ammonium hydrate, 6 ounces.
Ammonium persulphate, 1 ounce.
Distilled water, 4 ounces.

To apply, cork up the breech of the rifle tightly and fit a short section of rubber tubing over the muzzle. Fill the barrel with the mixture and allow to remain about an hour, then pour out and clean the barrel thoroughly. Be careful not to get any of this mixture on any of the wood parts of the rifle as it will remove the finish. If allowed to dry on any of the metal parts it will cause rust. This should be mixed fresh as it is most effective when fresh. The stale solution is dangerous as it is likely to cause rust.

W. A. M., Lorain, Ohio.

1. What is the range and velocity of the .35 calibre self loading rifle?

Ans. The muzzle velocity is 1452 seconds ft. Range about 200 yds.

2. What is the point blank range of the .35 calibre self loading rifle?

Ans. There is no such thing as "point blank" range. Every bullet begins to drop as soon as it leaves the muzzle. Using the cartridge for the above mentioned rifle sighted in at 200 yards, the bullet would hit 12 1/2 inches high at 100 yards.

3. Can a .351 calibre auto cartridge be used in the .35 calibre self loading rifle?

Ans. No.

4. There are five notches on the rear sight of my rifle. Does the raising of each notch mean 100 yds., or how do they work?

Ans. The manufacturers of sights do not make them for any particular range. It is usually up to the shooter to determine for himself just what distances the various notches are for.

5. I am going to get a Colt .38 cal. Special. Can a person shoot better with the 7 1/2 inch barrel or is the 6-inch barrel just as good?

Ans. Theoretically a person should be able to shoot better with a 7 1/2 inch barrel than with a 6-inch barrel owing to the slightly greater distance between sights, but as far as barrel accuracy goes there is no difference. For all practical purposes the 6-inch barrel is just as good as the 7 1/2 inch barrel.

GETTING LOST

Did you ever get lost or turned around? I have been lost in broad daylight and in a settled country at that. After thirty-five years of experience, and taking one outing and perhaps two every season, I got turned around in a foolish little eighty acres of brush, and was an hour getting out. The brush was a little higher than my head, and before I knew it, I was circling, and the joke of it was I could see no high trees or spots of ground to lay a straight course by.

Anyone is liable to get lost. Why don't Indians get lost? They do, friend, just as quick as anyone else. The Indian guide you had last season, perhaps? Probably that Indian was born and raised in that particular piece of wilderness, and his people before him. He knows his native heath as we know the city we have lived in for a string of years. Take him away from that particular wilderness, and put him in another one far away, and he'll get lost just as quick as any other woodsman in a strange "neck of woods." You can bet your last dollar that the best of them get to circling sometimes, and win "hands down."

One doesn't get lost on his summer outing; he's usually on a river or lake, and knows this particular water. It's on the fall trip after deer. When going into a strange piece of back country for your fall hunt take a compass along. I am free to say that the compass is a little overworked when it comes to bringing you out on a certain spot where camp is; but it will keep you from circling and you will come out somewhere if you keep going, and follow its direction. But the best way is not to keep going; just stop going, when you find out you are lost. No man has any right going into a strange country without a map of that same country, and a pocket compass. Be sure and take the compass, because it's sure hard to see the sun set in the east for a lost man, and the map? Get a good government map, not the cheap plotches sold at 25 cents.

After procuring your map locate your camp on it, i. e., that number of the section, the township and range, also the county. If you can't do this ask some settler to do it for you. Perhaps the landlord where you get your dinner will do this, or tell you of some one who can. Get your camp located on the map, it's probably near some lake or creek. After this the rest is easy. What's that little lake on the map northwest of camp? Scales on the map six miles. If I was there I'd have to travel south-east from that lake to strike this creek or lake the camp is on. Yes, two thousand paces equal one mile, or one thousand double, or cruiser's paces, so I'd have to make six thousand double paces straight south-east to get from that lake to this camp. How would I do it? Well, if I was at that lake I'd just take out my compass, set her level, and turn the letter N under the blue end of the needle. After it had settled still, and was behaving itself, I'd note where the south-east was on the dial, then strike an imaginary line to some object, a hill, or stub, or large tree, south-east by the compass, and travel to it, counting the double paces, and noting

Then I would take out my compass and sight another line, south-east to another land mark, counting my double paces, and adding them to the first or the number of paces between the lake, and my first land mark, and so on until I had six thousand double paces counted off. Then if I hadn't struck the river I should begin to look for it. Hello! There it is, just through that brush. My paces were a little short. Now, is camp up or down river. There's the smoke up river about a quarter mile; swung a little from true south-east.

What's that big hill just south of camp? It isn't on the map. Well, we will just put it there with out lead pencil; then we will estimate the distance or pace it. Now get other land marks the same way around the camp.

In leaving camp in the morning note which side the wind strikes your face, to return you must have it strike on the opposite side if it hasn't changed, and if it has make a notation of it. I once got myself home to camp, in a bad storm, by heeding just this simple thing. Myself and friend had been putting nets under the ice for fish in northern Minnesota. It was a good size lake, six miles across, and our camp was on the opposite side. A blizzard was coming up and darkness coming on, when starting for the opposite shore I noted that the wind struck my right cheek quartering, and I kept it there. We were about half across, when my friend said that we were circling; I protested; he insisted that we were, I explained to him about the wind; he couldn't see it that way. It was pitch dark, snow and wind blowing a gale.

Finally he said he wouldn't be a fool any longer, and turned. I kept the wind in the right spot on my face, and in half an hour came out within a quarter of a mile from camp. He came out too, but it was on the same side of the lake he started from, and had to stay the night in a lumber camp, and he was a good bushman too, or was supposed to be.

If you make the discovery that you are circling, or are lost, keep your head, (and feet) by all means; quit traveling, as it is work thrown away; inasmuch as you don't know whether you are going right or wrong. Sit down and take a rest; fill the pipe, and take a smoke. Think it over, you are not more than a few miles from the camp anyhow; three miles per hour is mighty good walking, and if you went in a straight line from camp (which you didn't) you may be eight miles from it at the farthest. After you smoke, climb a tree or any high point, and see if you can see any of your landmarks. If not and it's getting along towards the shank of the day, then build a brush camp and a good fire, and get up lots of wood for the night, and make yourself comfortable. It's only a joke, anyhow.

You of course have matches; if not take a piece of cotton cloth, pick it into lint or tow, take a shell and pull the bullet out of it, and empty the powder out on a dry leaf. Then put part of it back into the shell loose, and put a piece of tow or lint on top for wadding, but not hard. Now fire this lead into another piece of your lint or tow, and you will have fire instantly. Of course you have some fine stuff already. Put your tow into it, blow it a little, and away you go for a good fire. Make your fire longish, then when ready to lie down, move it to one side, and lie down on this warm spot, with some brush, stone, or a log at your back for a wind break, and I will guarantee you won't suffer any. When morning comes pile a lot of green stuff on your fire, and make heap big smoke, and your pals will soon discover your whereabouts, and give you the horse laugh aplenty. Under no circumstances leave your camp, for you are not far from the main camp anyhow, and let them come and show you the way, and save yourself a lot of walking. Fire your rifle occasionally.

The worst time to get lost is when snow is falling. The whole country looks different then, and now is the time to mind the wind, as spoken of before. It's better than a compass. Wind seldom changes during a storm. Be sure when you start out from camp that you have your match box full; a good lunch; your compass and map, and I will guarantee if you are fit to be in the bush at all, you will get home O. K. Don't wait too long before starting a fire; don't wait until you are cold and chilled, and fingers numb so they can't hold a match. Many a good man has been caught in this trap and suffered much, and perhaps lost his life. Don't be afraid of starving; he it known that if a man gets lots of good water to drink he can go several days, a travel too, without suffering any bad effects, if he don't start eating lots of heavy food when he does get to it. Just take a cup of coffee with a crust soaked in it to start with until your stomach is fit for solids.—A. F. Wallace in Fur News.

L. Spotts of the same club.

The runner up of the contest was A. L. Chamberlain, of Bridgeport, Conn., who scored 190 of the clay birds. C. H. Newcomb, of Philadelphia, and A. E. Conley, of Buffalo, were tied for third place with a score of 189. The shoot-off, however, went to the former.

The Smith Gun club of Jersey City took third place with a total of 887 while the Portland, Me. Gun club romped home fourth with a score of 884. Other clubs competing were from the Boston A. A., Baltimore and Bridgeport.

The best continuous run prize went to A. B. Richardson who tallied 131, and the best average for the two days was credited to Mr. Lyon, who was first on both days.

The first ten men and the cities they represented, were as follows: Lyon, 192, New York; Chamberlain, Bridgeport, 190; Newcomb, Philadelphia, 189; Conley, Buffalo, 189; Randall, Portland, 188; Richardson, Dover, 187; Snow, Boston, 187; Heil, Philadelphia, 187; Ford, Philadelphia, 186; Burns, New York, 186.

The prizes for clean-up and paint-up week are on exhibition in J. A. Russell's window. Nearly everyone seems to be taking a great deal of interest in this campaign and many permanent improvements are being made. Don't forget that Friday and Saturday are haul off day and get your rubbish ready. Some of those old fence rails, etc., will make a dandy bonfire.

THE RED FOX MOST CUNNING

Misunderstanding as to the Nature of Red and Gray Foxes.

(Written for Maine Woods).

Osseo, Mich.

In some quarters there seems to be a misunderstanding as to the nature of red and gray foxes. The latter is sometimes mistaken for the valuable silver gray or white-tipped black fox the furs of both of which sell for their hundreds. In reality there is little real difference between the common red fox and the common gray fox. So far as their furs are concerned the red fox is the more valuable. In many sections both varieties live apparently in harmony. In others, trappers report that an increase in the number of reds always means a decrease of grays and the opposite. Like squirrels, the red variety seems not to be at perfect peace with his brethren of a different color.

The gray fox is more common in the south and those states bordering the line commonly drawn between the so-called northern and southern states. The red fox is more commonly found in the east especially in the New England States. As with most animals it is next to impossible to draw a strict dividing line by which to outline the grounds of both varieties.

Let us consider some of the peculiarities of difference between the red and gray foxes. The gray fox is inclined to remain more within timbered land than the red. From this fact it has doubtless drawn its habit of tree climbing, a peculiarity not at all common to foxes in general. Stories are told of the gray fox pursued by hounds having taken to trees with all the agility of a cat. This habit permits it to perform tricks tending to outwit the best of hounds since it may pass into an adjoining tree and descend at considerable distance from its place of ascent. During severe weather it sometimes holes up underground like its red brother and sometimes seeks shelter in a hollow tree. At other times it prefers to lie out in the brush where it has a good view of its surroundings.

The red fox is probably one of the most cunning of all animals. The gray fox on the whole is generally considered to be a trifle inferior in its ability to perform tricks on its pursuers but it is able to outwit the hounds of the best of packs when the occasion arises. It is not so fleet of foot as the red and is more given to running in circles while the red not infrequently leads its pursuers straight away for many miles before turning. Its habit of taking to a tree renders it more easily caught than the red since the latter when tired of running will often hole up in an extensive underground den.

May is the usual month for the birth of the young of gray foxes. The number, four to six, may sometimes be found in a burrow or hollow tree. The food eaten by old and young is much the same as that of the red fox varying of course with the season and latitude. It may be heard at night barking to a mate from some hill or other prominence though when actually out for food it becomes as silent as its red brother. Both will glide over the ground around a henry or a bunch of sleeping quail having more the appearance of shadowy spectres than very much alive flesh and blood creatures as their poor victims soon learn.

MAKES A SPLENDID DESSERT

Housewives Should Learn More About the Possibilities of the Humble Chestnut.

Few women are aware what delicious desserts may be made with the humble little chestnuts. French cooks know the worth of chestnuts full well, and their recipes are justly celebrated.

For chestnut mousse, a delicacy fit for the gods, or a luncheon de luxe, shell and blanch about two cupfuls of chestnuts which have been boiled until tender. Rub the chestnuts through a sieve, and stir them carefully into a pint of whipped cream, to which have been added half a cupful of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Add two teaspoonfuls of marmalade cordial, turn into a mold and pack away in ice and salt for five hours. Serve with whipped cream dashed with rum.

To make marrons glaces, a delicacy that is rather costly when bought at a confectioner's, yet which is of great value to the housekeeper who loves tasteful garnishing, select large, perfect chestnuts. Shell and simmer a pint of the nuts in boiling water until tender. Drain and toss into cold water to make them firm. Let the chestnuts drain a moment, then turn them out on a towel and see that each one is thoroughly dry. A sirup must now be made by boiling a cup of sugar in a pint of water, and in this simmer the chestnuts for an hour. Drain off the sirup and to it add a few drops of vanilla extract. Then cook it until it becomes brittle when dropped in cold water—as one tries candy. Set the pan of sirup in a larger pan of hot water to keep the hot sirup from cooling and candying, and dip in the chestnuts one by one, removing them and placing on oiled paper.

SPEED PERPETUATING STALLIONS.

By S. W. Parlin.

The Official Year Book of The American Trotting Register Association states that 30,974 trotters in America, up to the close of 1914 had made records in standard time, viz., 2.30 or better. The number that then were credited with standard pacing records, viz., 2.25 or better, was 22,878.

The total number of performers that then had made records in standard time in America was 53,852.

The number of stallions that sired these 58,852 performers was 10,651, making the average number of standard performers to each five and a small fraction.

The greatest number of standard performers ever yet credited to one stallion is 205 trotters and 58 pacers; total 263. That stallion is Allerton 2.09½, whose sire was Jay Bird 2.31¼, a son of George Wilkes 2.22. The stallion that comes next in rank as a sire of standard performers is Gambetta Wilkes 2.19¼, now credited with 111 trotters and 122 pacers; total 233. Gambetta Wilkes 2.19¼ was a son of George Wilkes 2.22.

The value of a standard-bred trotting stallion as a stock horse depends upon his ability to breed on; that is, to perpetuate standard record speed qualities through his sons and daughters, especially through his sons. Some stallions that have been very successful as sires of standard performers have not endowed their sons with ability to transmit standard record speed qualities to their offspring with so great uniformity as have other stallions, which were less successful as sires of standard performers. Wilson's Blue Bull 75, and Rysdyk's Hambletonian 10, were good examples.

Blue Bull 75 got 60 standard performers, 56 of which were trotters. Hambletonian 10 got 40 standard performers, all trotters. It will be seen that the number of standard performers sired by Blue Bull 75 was just 50 per cent greater than by Hambletonian 10; but the sons of Hambletonian 10 sired 1717 that made standard records, while the sons of Blue Bull 75 sired only 139. The sons of Hambletonian 10 sired nearly nine and one-half times as many standard performers as those of Blue Bull 75.

Daughters of Blue Bull 75 produced 182 standard performers, while those of Hambletonian 10 produced only 119.

The 60 standard performers sired by Blue Bull 75, added to the 139 sired by his sons, and the 182 produced by his daughters show that his number of standard record performers in the first and second generations was 391.

The 40 standard performers sired by Hambletonian 10, added to the 1717 sired by his sons and the 119 produced by his daughters, make 1876 of his descendants in the first and second generations that took standard records.

Although the ability of Blue Bull 75 as a sire of standard performers was 50 per cent greater than that of Hambletonian 10, yet the ability of Hambletonian 10, to perpetuate standard-record speed qualities, was very nearly five times as great as that of Blue Bull 75.

There is no fairer or more accurate method of measuring the speed

KEEP THE BALANCE UP.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength, and endurance.

perpetuating ability of any stallion, or of determining the relative ability of different stallions as speed perpetuators, than by learning and comparing the number of each in the first and second generations, which have made records in standard time, as shown in the Great Table of the official Year Book issued annually by The American Trotting Register Association.

The late Col. Walter T. Chester, author of Chester's Complete Trotting and Pacing Records classed as Aristocratic sires, all stallions which were credited with 50 or more descendants in the first and second generations, that had made records in standard time; and as Supreme Aristocratic sires, all stallions that were credited with 500 or more such descendants.

It has already been stated that the number of stallions which had sired one or more standard performers up to the close of 1914 was 10,651. According to a table recently published in the Horseman and Spirit of the Times the number of Aristocratic Sires or Stallions that were each credited with 50 or more descendants with standard records was 383; and the number of Supreme Aristocratic Sires or Stallions each with 500 or more such descendants to his credit was only 28. Their names and number of descendants are given in the following table:

The wonderful ability of Hambletonian 10 and his descendants to perpetuate standard record speed qualities is one of the most striking features of the above list of Supreme Aristocratic Sires. There are only 28 stallions in all which have gained that distinction. Hambletonian 10 is one of them, and 26 of the other 27, trace directly to Hambletonian 10 in the paternal line. Five of the 26 were sons of Hambletonian 10, including George Wilkes 2.22, that stands at the head of the list, and Electioneer 125, that is next in rank to George Wilkes 2.22.

The number of standard record descendants of George Wilkes 2.22 in the first and second generations is greater than has been produced by any other two stallions that ever lived. Eleven of the 28 stallions in the Supreme List were sons of George Wilkes 2.22. This is more than one third of the entire number of stallions in that list and more than twice as many sons as Hambletonian 10 has there.

Electioneer 125, that ranks next to George Wilkes 2.22 as a perpetuator of standard record speed qualities is not yet credited with a son in that Supreme list. He is credited with one grandson there, viz., Bingen 2.06¼, and the latter is the most successful standard-record speed-perpetuating sire of his age that ever has lived. His dam was by Young Jim 2009, one of the handsomest, best finished, and most blood-like 16-hand sons of George Wilkes 2.22, and his second dam was by Red Wilkes 1749, another 16-hand son of George Wilkes 2.22 and one of his most successful standard-record speed perpetuating sons. Bingen 2.06¼ also has gained the marked distinction of being the sire of the world's champion trotter Uhlman 1.58, the fastest trotter by the records that the world has yet produced. Bingen 2.06¼ is seven years younger than any other stallion in that noted list of the Supreme Aristocratic Sires.

Another very remarkable sire in that list is Alcyone 2.27, foaled in 1877, and died at Highlawn Farm, Lee, Mass., July 4, 1887. Alcantara 2.23 also in that list, was a full brother of Alcyone 2.27; was foaled one year earlier than the latter, and was 31 years old when he died. He got about five times as many living foals as was begotten by Alcyone 2.27.

The number of Alcantara's 2.23 descendants in the first and second generations that have made records in standard time is 870. The number of Alcyone's 2.27 standard record performers in the first and second generations is 847, or only 23 less than Alcantara's.

The Year Book shows that 80 sons of Alcantara 2.23 were credited with 504 standard performers, while 56 sons of Alcyone 2.27 were credited with 716 that had made standard records. The 80 sons of Alcantara 2.23 had sired an average of a fraction more than six standard performers each, while the 56 sons of Alcyone 2.27 had sired an average of about 13 standard performers each. This shows that the ability of Alcyone 2.27 to perpetuate standard record speed qualities was considerably greater than that of his full brother Alcantara 2.23.

Some of the best blood of Electioneer 125 through Bingen 2.06¼; and some of the best strains of George Wilkes 2.22 blood through his noted speed perpetuating sons Alcyone 2.27, Baron Wilkes 2.18 and Red Wilkes 1479 is found in quite a number of horses and mares in Phillips and adjoining towns, and will prove of great value to such of the horsemen of this part of the state as realize the great importance of breeding in such manner as to combine in the foals which their mares produce the best and most successful of speed producing strains. There is much more satisfaction, and far greater profit in breeding and raising choice animals, than those of inferior quality, and blood is sure to tell.

The four stallions that furnished a greater number of new standard performers in the first and second generations of their descendants in 1914 than any other four, were Bingen 2.06¼, credited with 160; McKinney 2.11¼, with 84; Baron Wilkes 2.18, with 78; and Peter the Great 2.07¼, credited with 76. No other stallion was credited with as many as 70 new standard performers furnished in 1914. It will be seen that Bingen 2.06¼ furnished nearly as many new standard record performers in 1914, as any two of the other most successful speed perpetuating sires.

McKinney 2.11¼ and Baron Wilkes 2.18 combined, furnished 162 new standard performers that season which is only two more than were furnished by Bingen 2.06¼ alone. McKinney 2.11¼ and Peter the Great 2.07¼ combined furnished 160, which just equals the number furnished that season by Bingen 2.06¼.

These plain facts gleaned from the official Year Book show that, as a speed perpetuator in the first and second generations, George Wilkes 2.22 surpassed any other stallion that ever has lived. His nearest rival as shown in the table was Electioneer 125. The speed perpetuating ability of George Wilkes up to the present time as shown by the table was more than 50 per cent greater than Electioneer's 125.

The closest rival of Bingen 2.06¼ as a progenitor of new standard performers in 1914 was McKinney 2.11¼ the most distinguished son of Alcyone 2.27; but the number furnished by Bingen 2.06¼ was a fraction more than 90 per cent greater than by McKinney 2.11¼ and a trifle more than 105 per cent greater than furnished by either Baron Wilkes 2.1 or Peter the Great 2.07¼. The wonderful ability of Bingen 2.06¼ as a perpetuator of standard record speed qualities is becoming more apparent with the issue of every Year Book.

BLACK TROUT EXCITES CURIOSITY

Wonder If Maine Trout Will Relish a Foreign Worm.

Oxbow, Me., May 3, 1915.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

We are in Oxbow, (latitude 46 degrees) north central Aroostook county, for the third consecutive season and find things just as attractive and restful as before. It may in truth be said: "Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety." As an ideal country for rest and relief from the hum of machinery, the shrill blasts of whistles, the 'ting-a-ling' of all sorts of bells, the demand of business cares, and the hurly-burly of maddening crowds, I freely and confidently commend this favored spot. The chief value of a vacation lies in a complete change of environment. The city chap seeks the forests, lakes and streams of the open country (if he is wise) and avoids the more pretentious hostilities of fashionable resorts. The patient farmer seeks the city and the seashore, with their multifarious attractions, and unwonted sociability. Boys and many girls, like to fare far a-field, camping, fishing, and indulging in liberty which is change indeed. The fever for the great out-of-doors is easily excited in some men, especially in the gray-haired old sport. I stood not long ago this spring in front of a window of Ivers-Johnson's store, Washington street Boston, looking at a trout mounted by Herb Welch. The fish was the blackest trout I ever saw and it excited many curious remarks from passers-by. Two gray-heads stood beside me, and as we reasoned the why of the curious colors of the fish, I told them of the splendid fishing and hunting to be had in northern Aroostook. Pretty soon the eldest man said, "see here, young man, shut up, please. I can't stand any more. I wish I could start to-day." If all the books on fish and fishing could be gathered into one pile, probably it would o'er top the tower of Babel, and the language therein would be quite as discordant, perhaps. Our streams at the Bow are too muddy and too full of logs for any fishing at present. Expulsion of dynamite, used to burst the jams, are frequent, and much hard work is required to move the logs off the rocks in the river bed.

It was a curious sight when the ice broke, to see an 18-foot birch come sailing down stream, standing upright, its roots firmly embedded in a large cake of ice and soil. When it struck the new steel bridge over Umcolous it bowed backward, passed under and re-appeared on the other side, resumed its upright angle and passed out of sight. Whether it reached the Aroostook I don't know. It was an unusual occurrence and worthy of a photographic reproduction.

Some plowing is going on; the pastures are spreading their carpets of green; buds are swelling; robins, bluebirds, song sparrows are singing their sweet spring melodies and black birds and crows are pleading their "caws."

We have just received a consignment of angleworms, (by parcel post) from Massachusetts. It's a question whether Maine trout will relish a foreign worm. Just as soon as the logs roll by we are going to test the matter to the limit. We should be glad to hear from any of your thousands of readers upon this new subject while we wait for the floods to subside. The worms were two days en route, but arrived in good form, though awfully hungry.

Our west end school is not open yet; a suitable teacher has not been secured but Fred Tarbo of Waterville is expected to-day. It is quite likely that this unfortunate delay will extend the session farther into the heated term of summer than will be for the comfort of both teacher and scholars.

Much rain has fallen during the past week, giving a better pitch to the water, but much more would be welcomed. Pitch and rolls are a daily number on the menu of most ships at sea. To one who can stand it without squirming, the delightful poly-poly motion is like riding on the back of a colossal elephant, and one long to be remembered.

We extend to Maine Woods our hearty thanks for a copy of the laws passed to be enacted by the Legislature of 1915. We are more than glad to know that the non-resident hunter's fee has been restored to $15.00. Personally, as an out-of-state fisherman, we would gladly have paid a small fishing fee, but the wisdom of the majority, (I dare say) has decided to invite us to come and avail ourselves of the great privilege of fishing without money and without price. It costs a lot to get to these parts, but the recompense of reward in fish and game, and all that makes life worth living, is far greater, we believe, than any other northern state in the Union can possibly offer. We speak of what we have seen and heard.

These husky river drivers! What a nimble set they are! Their feats of gymnastics on rolling, tumbling logs, beat any horseback, bareback riding you ever saw. We often hear much talk about political log-rolling, and I am free to say that many politicians need calks in their souls as much, if not more, than these free and easy river-log-drivers do in their soles.

Ice in our great lakes is fast crumbling; we look for clear water on or before May 5th. A few trout, all of good size, have been caught in open spots near the dams.

"A little fish will grow, if live be spared, a great; But then, to let him go, and for

P. S. As I stop writing, the ground, and all trees, are covered with fresh snow nearly a foot deep. Log driving is held up for a day or two, and the mercury stands at 36 degrees Fahrenheit. ICE GOES OUT 18 DAYS EARLIER

Two Salmon Caught from Float by Proprietor Carville.

Spring Lake, Me., May 1, 1915.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

The ice went from Spring Lake Tuesday, April 27, which is eighteen days earlier than last year. We are painting the boats and getting ready to open the camps Monday, May 3.

Yesterday morning before breakfast I caught two salmon from the float one weighing 2½ pounds the other 3 pounds. There are no boats in the water yet, but will be to-morrow.

Last year the thirteenth day after the ice left, a party of six, with Arthur Wright and Cliff Wing as guides caught eight lake trout that weighed 58 pounds, one square tail trout 1½ pounds, two salmon 3 pounds each. From this time on the fishing was all one could ask for. I know of no reason why it shouldn't be equally as good this year. Come and try it.
