AND MAINE SPORTSMAN

VOY. XXXII. NO. 41—PRICE 4 CENTS.

PHILLIPS, MAINE, THURSDAY, MAY 12, 1910.

LOCAL EDITION—12 PAGES.

Quick and Sure!

Remington
AUTOLOADING RIFLE

YOU can shoot it 5 times "quick as you can think." You pull and release the trigger for each shot—the recoil does the rest. It is wonderfully accurate too. And when you hit your game it is yours, because every shot is equal to a one ton blow.

Like modern military rifles, the action is locked by a turning bolt. But a Remington is the only rifle in the world which encases this locked bolt action in a Solid Breech Hammerless steel frame. And moreover, the Remington loads itself.

Take a modern Remington with you. Made in .25, .30-30, .32 and .35 Remington calibers.

"Big enough for the Biggest Game."

Rowe Raises Trout.

Several years ago William H. Rowe of Cumberland Center began the raising of trout and he has made a success of the business. On his farm there he has a place peculiarly adapted to it. He also has the experience and the patience to conduct it in a way that produces the best of results. On his farm is a natural pond of pure water and a spring which are of the greatest benefit in the enterprise. There is a reservoir, and below this are three ponds which have been named Roland, Rowe's and Red Rock ponds. Near Roland pond is a spring of water which comes from a rock. This water is of great purity and is used by a large number of people in the vicinity. In the olden days this spring was known to the Indians, who used the water and considered that it has medicinal virtues. The three ponds form a chain. Roland is about 200 feet in length, Rowe's 300 feet and Red Rock 600 feet. The average width of the pond is about 150 feet.

The hatchery is situated at the head of Roland pond and near the reservoir. In 1908 Mr. Rowe hatched 800,000 eggs and he expects the coming year to produce over 2,000,000. For these he finds a ready sale and has sent them to Massachusetts, Iowa, Michigan, West Virginia and New York. Last season he sold a large number of eggs to the United States Fish Department and also to the Maine Department. He has already sold the Maine Fish and Game Department eggs which will be delivered next season. His contracts ready made for this fall amount to over $900.

At the present time there are about 10,000 adult fish in the ponds. These fish are from one to three years of age. Some of the large fish are sold for the market, and for these Mr. Rowe receives 65 cents a pound. In the season of fly fishing quite a number of fishermen come here, and for the fish which they capture 75 cents a pound is charged. Last season Mr. Rowe furnished some trout for the Poland Spring house tables, and the Messrs. Ricker would have been glad to have made a contract for many more, but Mr. Rowe was unable to furnish them.

At the foot of Red Rock pond Mr. Rowe has constructed a dam of stone and cement at a cost of over $1,000. The ponds and the reservoir are beautifully located. The upper ponds are surrounded by woods and near them are two handsome groves which are used by picnic parties.

During the spring, summer and fall the fish are fed daily and it takes a large amount of chopped meat. The feeding is a very interesting process. Mr. Rowe says that the fish know when the feeding time comes and insists that the fish know him. He says at his approach the fish will come to the shore, and that they are shy of strangers. When a handful of the feed is thrown into the water hundreds of fish make a rush for it and the spot is literally alive with the spotted beauties. Mr. Rowe took a dip net and brought to the surface a dozen or more of the fish for the correspondent to inspect, and to snap with his camera.

Thus far Mr. Rowe has given his attention only to the raising of the spotted trout, but he hopes to enlarge his ponds and be able to raise salmon. He says that it is generally conceded that the Maine trout is the best in the world, and for this reason they are in great demand for the stocking of ponds in other states.

Mr. Rowe is a young man who was born in Parkman in Piscataquis county. His father was a soldier in the civil war and died from the effects of a wound. Young Rowe was adopted after his father's death and has since made his home here. He has made a thorough study of the subject of the raising of fish, but says that he finds he had to learn many things from experience, as the real, practical part of the work cannot be learned from books. Perhaps there is no man in the state who knows more about this business than does Mr. Rowe. It has been suggested that he would be a most valuable man for the state to place in charge of its hatcheries.

The visitor to Mr. Rowe's place will be certain of a cordial reception, he will be charmed with the beauty of the place and will receive both pleasure and profit from an inspection of this model fish hatchery.

Wonderful Performance With the Stevens Repeating Shotgun.

On April 7th, 1910, at the Grand Island, Nebraska, Gun Club tournament, Mr. Albert Miller broke 97 out of 100 clay birds with a Stevens No. 525 Repeating shotgun. This remarkable shooting is all the more phenomenal from the fact that in securing this score Mr. Miller used the No. 525 Stevens gun for the first time.

An illustrated folder of Stevens Repeating Shotguns will be sent to any applicant upon request.

The New Marlin No. 24

Repeating Shotgun

This new 6-shot model is the simplest, surest, and fastest 12-gauge repeater made. It has the solid top, side ejection and double extractors—special Marlin features of comfort and convenience. The closed-in breech keeps the action clean and the shells dry—keeps out rain, snow, dirt, leaves twigs and sand.

The new take-down construction allows you to take gun apart in ten seconds for cleaning or packing, yet the joint is always as firm and rigid as in a solid frame, non-take-down gun. The fat forearm fits your hand and helps quick operation.

The full choked guns are guaranteed close-shooting, hard-hitting guns, and are unequalled for ducks, geese, foxes and all long-range work.

The Marlin Firearms Co., Willow Street, NEW HAVEN, CONN.

GOOD FISHING NOW.

FINE SPORT ENJOYED IN THE RANGELEY REGION.

Sportsmen Beginning to Arrive in Good Numbers and Many Are Coming this Week.—Heaviest Bookings Ever Known This Year.

(Special to Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman.)

Rangeley, Me., May 12, 1910. The memory of man goeth not back to the time the ice left the Rangeley lakes as early as this year, April 19. Many of the fishermen had not their tackle ready and thought their telegrams, "the ice is out," a joke. Even the trout and salmon were surprised, and did not understand why there was not plenty of "garden hackle" being offered them from all kinds of hooks.

Mother Nature has been so busy in other places, dressing the forest and the shrubs in the summer green, and scattering the bright flowers, one would think this part of the world had been forgotten, as there are no leaves on the trees, but the grass is green, and nature for the past few days has been having her face washed, until now everything looks so fresh, and the grass is green, while in nature's workshop business is being rushed and soon will catch up with the other parts of the country. The sky is so blue and the clouds overhead add to the wonderful picture as one looks over the lake.

The fish are in the lake, but not many fishermen have yet arrived, although every hotel is receiving letters that tell of the coming guests, and the season of 1910 gives every promise to be the best in history.

At the Rangeley Lake House, which was open May 2, everything is in perfect order, and the homelike place if possible, more attractive than ever. At the desk Mr. Wm. Marble, as genial and smiling as ever, has a welcome for the old and new friends that at once makes all at home. Mr. J. B. Marble is everywhere present and finds time to greet all and talk over "the good old days of the past."

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Phillips of Wenham, Mass., were the first to pen their names in the hotel register this season. They remained only a few days, and as the weather was bad, they did not open the fish record.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Caldwell of Philadelphia have just returned from a week's trip to Grant's, Kennebago, but on account of high water and the logs, they reported poor fishing.

Mr. E. Ledelley of New York arrived this week to remain until the hotel closes in October. Mrs. L. will join him the first of June, and as they have been here for several seasons, many friends will be glad to meet them. Tuesday morning Mr. Ledelley came down dressed in his fishing suit, but as the wind was blowing a gale and he rows his own boat, he remarked to a friend, "Don't think I will wet a line yet. Last summer I caught just 82 trout and salmon in this lake, and 52 of that number were record fish, and as I only killed three fish, I expect to have better luck this year; they have had time to grow." Here is luck to Mr. L. and every true sportsman like him.

Mr. W. C. Harmon, son of General Harmon, and friend, Mr. H. E. Adt, of New Haven, Conn., arrived here this week and are now at Grant's Camp, Kennebago.

Mr. F. W. Emery of Boston, one of the best known fishermen who comes here, is expected this week, and with Vid Hinkley for guide, intends to reel in some good ones.

The following party of Bostonians are to arrive Saturday, to remain for several weeks: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Prince, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Arnold.

Mr. Frederick Skinner is also expected in a few days.

"We have never booked so many guests at this season before," remarked Mr. Marble, when speaking of the coming guests.

One party who will be greatly missed this year is Judge James B. Dill and family, who have occupied "Outlook Cottage" for several years. The family are to take a European trip, and a host of friends wish them a pleasant summer, and will gladly welcome their return, for the Judge does not expect to find a more beautiful place than the Rangeleys.

Messrs. Joseph and Willard Wardsworth of New York are here for ten days. They are too busy to go a-fishing. During the past winter they have had Ernest Haley build them from our native woods a new boat, 27 feet long, that is a perfect beauty. They are now putting in the 30-horse power engine and soon expect to pass any boat on the lake, as they have named it "P. D. Q."

A crew of men are busy working on the golf links and making a new tennis court. The sweet peas are planted, and everything about the grounds looks fine. The road from the main street has been widened, and when the first automobile party comes, they will find room to pass the teams.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burrows and little son have arrived and opened Rangemere, their beautiful summer home.

Monday afternoon a special train from Phillips brought Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Mason of New York, who until June will be at their place, Camp Mason, on the shore of Gull pond. Their old guides, Eugene Soule and Joe Ross, are with them.

Mr. H. P. Smith of Boston, has opened his fine new cottage built last season, which was named "Nickowosoc." Mr. A. S. Foster of Boston is now his guest.

A number of the camps and cottages are to be open this coming week.

At the Rangeley Tavern everything has been put in the best of shape, and improvements made. Guests are arriving daily.

Mr. J. D. Lockwood of Skowhegan, who will act as clerk this summer, arrived this week. Many old friends remember him as a clerk at Mountain View. He is accompanied by Mrs. Lockwood, who will take charge of the dining room.

Tuesday J. W. Cummings of Portland, a popular traveling salesman, opened the fish record by bringing in a 4-lb. salmon, and Mr. Cookson, the proprietor, one of 3 lbs.

A good number of guests are expected during the next ten days, and there is a fine booking of summer tourists.

Mr. Isaiah Welch of Strong, a gentleman 78 years of age, who is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Emery Haley, went fishing Tuesday forenoon for the first time in his life. Emery Haley, who has guided for years, said it always takes the new fisherman to hook them, and the old gentleman had the time of his life for nearly an hour with a gamy salmon that weighed seven pounds.

Charles Harnden this week takes out his first party, Mr. Oscar Kohn and friend of Newark, N. J., and says he has had letters from a number of people who are coming for the first time.

For years I have, with others, claimed it would be far better for guides, hotelmen, fishermen and everyone else if the law did not allow fishing in any of these lakes until May 10 or 15. Today Mr. Harnden and several others have said: "You have been right, and now we agree with you and hope you will unite with us in trying to close these waters for fishing until May 10."

"Rangeley Board of Trade" is the latest, and applications for membership have been sent out. Senator Wm. P. Frye and others have sent in their names, and rooms over Russell's hardware store are now being finished off in fine style. This is just what a wide-awake prosperous village like Rangeley needs, and soon everything will be arranged.

C. L. Harnden has been chosen secretary, and the executive committee are Dr. F. B. Colby, E. I. Herrick and A. M. Hoar.

One can at any time spend a most pleasant hour in the taxidermist store of G. W. Pickel, who, during the past winter, has mounted for sportsmen 210 deers' heads; also for Prof. S. R. Morse of Atlantic City, three whole deer for the New Jersey State museum. There are many interesting and finely mounted specimens from our woods and waters in this state.

But my guide, Jack, has just come in to tell me "everything is ready, and I hope you have not forgotten how to land a salmon." If luck is mine, I'll reel off a good fish yarn for the next issue of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman.

Fly Rod.

MOCCASIN MAN FISHING.

Gets a 12½-lb. Salmon From Rangeley Lake.

Mr. Harry E. Merrill, proprietor of the M. L. Getchell Co., moccasin makers, of Monmouth, went fishing with Mr. Pickel, the taxidermist, on Rangeley lake on Wednesday and caught a 12½-lb. salmon from Hunter cove.

Senator Frye Better.

We are glad to learn that Senator Frye's health is improving, and it looks as if he would in due season be able to take his customary vacation at the Rangeley Lakes.—Lewiston Journal.

CAMPS NOT YET OPEN.

COLD WEATHER DELAYS DEAD RIVER FISHING.

Many Camps Will Open Monday and Parties Are Expected to Arrive Within a Few Days—Plenty of Trout.

Stratton, Me., May 11, 1910.

There has thus far been little fishing in the Dead River region this season on account of the cold, wet weather and because the streams have been too high for good or comfortable fishing.

Few of the camps are yet open, but those at Tin pond, and some of the others will open Monday. The first camps to open this year were those at Spring lake, which opened today.

Some of the residents of this section have tried the fishing and have found it good, though no large catches have been made, mainly because the bad weather has made fishing hard, uncomfortable work. No records of catches have yet been made. Several parties are expected to arrive Saturday and Monday, and others later next week, and with seasonable weather, excellent fishing is assured throughout the Dead River region.

Catches 8-Pound Salmon.

Oquossoc, Me., May 10, 1910.

R. E. Taylor, telegraph operator at Roxbury, caught an 8-pound salmon near Oquossoc Sunday.

Verdell Holman of Dixfield and Daniel Walker of Peru, who visited Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Weld at Oquossoc the first of the week, had great luck fishing, taking home all the law allows.

The fishing in this vicinity was never better than it has been the past few days.

Trouting.

Mr. H. D. Turner of Ashcroft, Mass., is again with Hon. Joel Wilbur of Avon on a fishing trip to Mr. Wilbur's camp on Rangeley lake. Mr. Wilbur and Mr. Turner have fished together for a great many years.

At Gull Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Mason of New York have arrived at their summer home on Gull pond, Rangeley. Mr. and Mrs. Mason reached Phillips Saturday noon of last week and took a special train for the pond from Phillips.

Gen. Dill at Varnum.

General Elliott C. Dill of Augusta, the adjutant general, was a recent guest of friends at Varnum's pond for a few days. While at that resort Gen. Dill captured several large trout and salmon.

Farmington Anglers.

Carl L. Curtis and John Daggett fished the Mitchell brook in Industry Tuesday and were rewarded with a handsome string of trout.

Big Catch of Trout and Salmon.

Dr. Ross of Rangeley went fishing this week and caught over 20 pounds of trout and salmon.

WEST MILLS.

May 10.

The little daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roy Kimball, who had been seriously ill with pneumonia, measles and whooping cough, died at one o'clock this week Tuesday morning.

Burton Chapman, who was quite sick with bronchitis and measles, is out around this week, but unable to attend school.

It is quite sickly through the village, although some are convalescent. The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Sawyer has been very sick with bronchitis, but is reported as improving.

Frankie, Bryant and Dora Patterson have whooping cough, and have all been quite sick with measles.

The C. C. Campbell family of children are having measles.

Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson and Mr. Thompson's mother, automobilized to Weeks Mills last Sunday and visited at Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Smith's.

Blanche Luce went to the Maine Central General hospital at Lewiston last week, and was operated on this week for appendicitis.

Miss Clara A. Johnson, who was ill very suddenly with heart failure, died at half past four this week Tuesday morning. This is a great shock to this community. The funeral occurs this Friday week at the Johnson homestead.

Miss Laura Patterson, who was operated on several weeks ago at the City hospital in Augusta, is visiting her aunts in Augusta, and will stay a while longer to avoid whooping cough.

Mr. R. F. Meador of the Meador Oil Paste Co., Solon, Me., was in town recently. He reports good sales. It seems to be a good article for all kinds of leather.

Miss Farmer of Farmington is teaching our village school, and is boarding at Lincoln Badger's.

Mrs. Julia Sawtelle has been nursing at the parsonage. Master Floyd Kimball is sick with measles and whooping cough.

Miss Vera L. Smith is attending school in this village and boards at Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bearor's.

Mrs. Bertha M. Bearor and little son, Bertelle, visited recently at Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Willis in Madison.

TROUT RUN BIG.

AN 8¾-POUND "SQUARE TAIL" TO OPEN THE SEASON.

Catches at the Rangeley Lakes to Open the Season Run into Big Figures as to Size and Numbers.

Oquossoc, Me., May 8, 1910.

The fishing season has opened big both on Rangeley and Mooselookmeguntic lakes.

The Damon party, of Fitchburg, Mass., are still at the Mountain View and are getting fish every day. Mr. Frank Pierce of Fitchburg is high line, having caught a square tail trout Sunday morning that weighed 8¾ lbs. Frank Harris, guide.

At the Mooselookmeguntic House there are 32 guests. They are having the best fishing for nine years.

W. M. Miley of Boston in one day's fishing caught a 4-lb. and a 2½-lb. trout and a 3½-lb. and a 3-lb. salmon.

W. R. Walker of Boston took a 4½ and a 3½-lb. trout.

S. G. Rhoades of Boston got a 3-lb. and a 2-lb. trout.

Hon. Henry O. Stanley of Dixfield in one day got a 4-lb. and a 4½-lb. trout and a 2½-lb. salmon.

T. L. Page got a 6½-lb. salmon.

The first automobile party of the season arrived here tonight, Mr. Albert Jenks and a party of six from Pawtucket, R. I.

Walter Weld, the Maine Central station agent here, caught an 8-lb. trout from Mooselookmeguntic lake.

NORTH JAY WHITE GRANITE CO.

New Corporation Formed to Handle Rapidly Growing Business.

The North Jay branch of the Maine and New Hampshire Granite corporation, one of the leading industries of Maine, has been re-incorporated as a separate company, under the title, "North Jay White Granite Co.," with the following officers: President, Hon. Frank A. Emery; vice president, H. L. Shepherd; treasurer, Francis Ferguson; secretary, James H. Raymond; general manager, I. C. Pert; superintendent, George E. Munroe. The principal office of the new company is at Portland.

The quarries at North Jay produce some of the best white granite in the world, and the business has grown to such an extent in the past few years that it was thought wise to handle it by an independent company, rather than as a branch of a large corporation with wide interests elsewhere.

The company and the village at North Jay are experiencing a season of great prosperity and the future prospects are bright in the extreme.

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

Edgar Parker is building a garage on his lot next to Chas. Sweetser's blacksmith shop.

Mr. Frank Blanchard, candidate for the state senate and Mr. W. B. Small of Kingfield, candidate for sheriff, were both in Phillips this week looking out for their fences.

It is hoped that after the extension of the Sandy River & Rangeley Lakes railroad to the Small farm in Madrid, the Berlin Mills Co., may find inducements enough so that they will start their mill again in Phillips. It is understood that Sandy River plantation, that will be opened up along with other valuable timber tracts by this extension of the railroad, has a very large quantity of good timber spruce on it and this of course will add greatly to the timber supply for this large lumber mill. We note that the Berlin Mills Co. have recently repaired their mill, and presume it could be started very easily any time they might deem it necessary.

DRYDEN.

May 8.

Otis Reed of Dryden caught a handsome togue in Wilson lake Tuesday which weighed six pounds.

Frank E. Ranger has sold the place (the so-called Crockett farm in Jay) owned by him, to George S. Kenney of Worcester, Mass.

Mr. Orrington Berry received word this week of the serious illness of his sister, Mrs. Luella Berry Golding, at Gray, Me.

Leon A. Luce of Bates 1910, was at home over Sunday to attend the dedication exercises of the church at Bean's Corner.

The first game of the newly organized Wilton Grammar school game was played on the grounds near the White schoolhouse, with the North Jay Grammar school, resulting in a score of 28 to 10 in favor of the Wilton Grammar school. Miss Merrill, principal of the Grammar school, was among the spectators.

DEAD RIVER.

Mr. Charles Green of Skowhegan passed through town with his friends last week, on their way home from Stratton.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of the Corporators of Phillips Savings Bank will be held at said bank on Wednesday, May 25, 1910, at two o'clock, P. M., for the following purposes, to wit:

I. To add by election the required number of corporators.

II. To elect five trustees for the ensuing year.

III. To transact any other business that may properly be considered at said meeting.

Per order of the Trustees, N. P. NOBLE, Clerk. Phillips, Me., May 12, A. D. 1910.

Pickford's Opens Monday.

Mr. Harry E. Pickford announces that he will open his Rangeley lake camps next Monday.

Fast Growing Trout.

One reason why the spotted trout grow so rapidly in J. W. Carlton's private pond in Phillips is because they have some of the best feed known. This artificial pond is filled with a plant that furnishes plenty of feed for trout. According to Commissioner Bowers of Washington, it is one of the four best kinds known.

WANTED ALIVE

OBITUARY.

Nathan Bryant.

Nathan Bryant was born in Letter E Plantation December 19, 1843, the youngest of eleven children born to Ichabod and Betsey Stinchfield Bryant. Of these children, a boy and a girl died in early childhood, another son soon after attaining his majority, a son in 1860, and three sisters within two years of his death. Of the four that then remained, three are now living, Mrs. Laura Peabody of Freeman, Mrs. Julia Carter, who lives in Ohio, and Mrs. Moores of Kingfield. When quite a small lad, Nathan moved with his parents to No. 6 Plantation, where he resided for thirty-five years.

On Nov. 10, 1867, he married Miss Eliza M. Berry of Phillips. In 1873 his father died and his mother in 1876. In 1885 he removed to Letter E Plantation, and in 1888 to Phillips. For fourteen years he lived in several different places in Phillips and Madrid, with the exception of residing for brief periods at Redington and other places, where he and his family were employed. In 1902, he moved onto the Samuel Wing farm in West Phillips, which was his permanent home to the time of his death. In his younger days he was a strong, able-bodied man, famous in the logging swamps as an ox-teamster and also a skillful man with an axe. He was handy in all sorts of outdoor work and also in saw mills. A combination of diseases brought on by overwork and exposure attacked him in January last and he continued to fail until the end came at 2.00 a. m. May 3.

"Uncle Nathan," as many called him, was in a general way a jolly, wide awake social sort of a man and it will be hard for his old acquaintances to realize that he is gone from them. His funeral was held at the schoolhouse in Madrid village at 7.00 a. m., May 5, Rev. Mr. Hutchins officiating, and his remains were interred in Madrid village cemetery. C. F. Chandler of Phillips had charge of the funeral and the bearers were Ezekiah Lufkin and William Mitchell of Phillips and Hannibal Smith and William Douglass of Madrid. The singers were Miss Florence Griffin of Farmington, organist and soprano, Mrs. Mary Reed and C. E. Crossman of Madrid, alto and bass.

He is survived by a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Lefa Whitney, now of Farmington, and Miss Esther M. Bryant of Phillips; also by two grandsons, Everett and Clarence Whitney.

Besides the near family relatives and more distant ones residing in Phillips and Madrid, those attending the funeral from abroad were Mrs. Moores of Kingfield, one of the sisters mentioned, and Mr. Richards, a nephew by marriage; Mr. Henry L. Lufkin and wife and two Hewey brothers, nephews of Mrs. Bryant, also of Kingfield; Mr. Peabody and sister of Freeman, a niece and nephew of Mr. Bryant; and a nephew, Mr. D. L. Bryant, of Wilmington, Mass. It is a remarkable fact that of all the descendants of Ichabod Bryant, but five are now living to bear his surname, two grandsons, Dennis L. Bryant of Wilmington, Mass., and Rufus R. Bryant of Orange N. H.; two sons of D. L. Bryant, Perley L.

of Somerville, Mass., and Leon R., of Williamantic, Conn., and Harry R. Bryant, a son of Perley L.

Mr. Bryant was a natural singer, very fond of music, and the selections sung by the choir at the funeral, "Shall we meet beyond the river," "I know that my Redeemer lives" and "We shall sleep but not forever," were favorite hymns sung by him during the conscious periods of his last illness and rendered by the choir at the funeral by the request of his family.

Jesse Wright.

Mr. Jesse Wright died in Phillips Sunday, May 1, 1910, at the good old age of 83 years, 4 months and 27 days.

Mr. Wright was born in Pittston, Me., and was the son of William and Sally (Wheeler) Wright. He was the oldest of a family of five children, of whom only one, Mrs. Sarah Getchell of Clinton, had preceded him to the higher life.

When a young man, Mr. Wright came to Phillips, where he was married in 1853 to Miss Olive J. Haley. To them were born three children, Adelaide, who died in 1899, Elton A., of Phillips, and Benjamin of Clinton.

Leaving Phillips in 1861, Mr. Wright lived for many years in Clinton. He returned to Phillips in 1885. Ten years ago he was bereft of the wife of his youth, and since that time has had a home with his son, Mr. Elton Wright, where he has been tenderly cared for down through the last declining years, and where he died after a long time of gradually failing health.

In addition to his sons and grandchildren, he leaves as near relatives, three sisters, Mrs. Nancy Labree of St. Albans, Mrs. Mary Tyler of Phillips, and Mrs. Julia Goodridge of Clinton.

The funeral was from his late home on Tuesday, May 3, Charles Chandler was the director, M. S. Hutchins was the officiating clergyman, and a large attendance of friends and neighbors bore evidence of their respect and sorrow. The singing by Misses Birdena Plaisted and Estelle Barker was especially beautiful and appropriate.

Leonard Ross.

Mr. Leonard Ross was born in Rangeley December 31, 1835, the son of Abraham and Abigail (Sedgeley) Ross. He was one of eight children, only one of whom, Abram, is now living.

Mr. Ross was married in 1877 to Miss Myra Locklin of Temple, who, with four children, Mrs. Austin Hinkley, Sabra, Daniel and Flora Ross, survives him. Mr. Ross had always lived in Rangeley and was a prosperous farmer. For a number of years he was a great sufferer from cancer but the cause of his death, which occurred March 30, was pluro-pneumonia.

The funeral services were held at his late home Friday, April 1, conducted by Rev. Mr. Millett of Phillips.

Harry E. Merrill of Monmouth, of the M. L. Getchell company, was in Phillips Tuesday on a business trip.

Franklin Politics.

Political interest is unusually active in Franklin county this year. The republicans of the county are awake and earnest, and it is felt that there is no doubt whatever that a good majority will be rolled up here for Governor Fernald and the ticket in September. Reports come from some sections of the state to the effect that there is dissatisfaction and a tendency to bolt the ticket, but there is no evidence of any such feeling among the republicans of this time county of Franklin.

One of the matters which is interesting to the people of the county, particularly the republicans thereof, at the present time, is the contest for the republican nomination for member of the state senate. There are two candidates in the field, Mr. Fred O. Smith of New Vineyard and Mr. Frank N. Blanchard of Wilton. Naturally the people of New Vineyard are earnestly in favor of the nomination of Mr. Smith. It is felt there that that section of the county which has not had a state senator for over 40 years, is entitled to consideration because of that fact. It is only a few years ago that the Hon. Cyrus N. Blanchard of Wilton, a cousin of the present aspirant for the place, represented the county in the state senate. Another argument which is being used in favor of the nomination of Mr. Smith is the fact that if a man from New Vineyard is selected this year it will not affect the claims of either northern or southern Franklin in the convention two years hence. We are so located that if a man from Phillips or Strong or Kingfield were to be candidate, or one from Farmington, Wilton or Jay, the fact that a New Vineyard man was in the last senate would not interfere with them on the grounds of locality.

Successful Business Man.

Mr. Smith is a young man of ability and long experience in public affairs. He is a successful business man and he numbers his friends by the hundreds, all over the county. He was born in Canton, Me., on August 25, 1864. He was educated at the North New Portland High school, was postmaster during President Harrison's administration, has been superintendent of schools, member of the school board, and for the past 16 years has served the town of New Vineyard as its treasurer.

Two years ago he was alternate at large from the Second Congressional District to the Republican National Convention at Chicago, which nominated Taft and Sherman. Mr. Smith has been a member of the republican county committee several times, and is now chairman of the republican town committee of New Vineyard.

In a business way he is very prominent here. He is at the head of the Fred O. Smith Manufacturing Co., being president of the corporation, and is treasurer and general manager of the Frank Luce Manufacturing company, manufacturers of turned wooden goods. He is also president of the New Vineyard and Farmington Telephone company, and one of the incorporators in the Franklin County Savings Bank of Farmington.

Socially, Mr. Smith is favorably known in all parts of the county, is a member of the Davis Lodge of Masons, No. 191, of Strong, of the Knights of Macabees of the world, and of Lemon Stream Grange, No. 216, of New Vineyard. Mr. Smith married Minerva E. Look, daughter of one of the leading citizens of New Vineyard. They have two children, Arthur L., who fitted for college in the Farmington High school, graduated from Bowdoin in 1909 and who is now associated with his father in business; and Harry F., who is seven years of age.

Mr. Smith is also a large owner of real estate, has one of the finest orchards in this part of the county, and owns a large amount of hay. His home is one of the most delightful in any of the rural towns of Maine, being heated by steam, hot and cold water in all parts of the house, and other modern conveniences.

Mr. Smith's library is one of the largest in Franklin county and he is himself a widely read and extremely well posted man in all branches of literature. If he is selected as the republican candidate for senator he will undoubtedly run well, for he is extremely well thought of by voters of both parties, and in the senate the people of Franklin county may be sure that they will be represented by him as a safe and conservative republican.—Portland Express-Advertiser.

OQUOSSOC.

May 9.

Rev. Fr. Barry of Rumford, who has charge of the Catholic Mission here, has opened the church for the summer. Mass was celebrated here and at Bemis and Rangeley last week. Mrs. Mabel Sawyer of Byron spent last week with her brother, W. S. Reed, Mr. Reed's parents, Mr. and A. O. Reed, and his brother and family of Phillips all spent the week end with him.

Keep the Balance Up.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventative that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance.

STRONG.

May 9.

A few of the many friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. William Albee of the Spaulding neighborhood, in the eastern part of Strong, made them a surprise party visit on Saturday evening of last week, the 7th of May, it being the 66th anniversary of Mr. Albee's birth. It was a happy surprise and a most enjoyable evening was the result. Many tokens of love and esteem were brought as mementoes of the occasion, of which the following is an imperfect list: Glass water set, from Mr. Geo. Hartwell and Mr. F. A. Spaulding's family; "McDonald of Oregon," book from Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Moore; shaving set, from Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Webster and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. E. Toothaker; purse, from John and Charles Allen; cup, saucer and plate, from Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding; maple syrup, from Mr. Bernard Vining's family; pin, from Mrs. Albee's sister, Mrs. James, of Auburn. Mr. E. Toothaker provided music for the occasion with his graphophone. Those present were Mrs. George Webster and daughter, John and Charles Albee, Mr. E. Toothaker and family, Mr. Ernest Vining, George Hartwell, Ray Spaulding and son, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Spaulding and Mrs. Albee's sister, Mrs. James, who unexpectedly arrived from Auburn Saturday afternoon. Mr. F. B. Spaulding voiced the appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Albee for the visit and gifts of their friends, and at a late hour the friends departed with many kindly expressions for the welfare of the elderly people whose home they had undertaken to brighten and cheer along the way they so well deserve.

H. O. Lishness, recently from Stratton, has taken possession of the Dennis Clark farm, which he recently purchased, and the people of South Strong are flattering themselves that they are to have pleasant neighbors who will take the place of the respected and revered neighbors so recently and so suddenly taken from their midst—from the home and farm opened up and so long occupied by the Clark family.

Bryeno Clark expects soon to depart for Southern California, where he is to join his brother Fred, who has been there for several years. Mr. Bryeno Clark has been in California with his brother, but returned home to assist his father to carry on the farm in his declining years. The old farm now goes entirely out of the Clark name. Mr. Clark and Miss Maud Witherell are both at present stopping with Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Moore, as did Mr. Lishness over Sunday.

Farmer Moore wants a handy young man on his farm, and to such can give an excellent home and something to go with it. Must be a clean and proper young man, however, with some knowledge of farming.

Quite a number of Strong people attended the opera, "The Mikado," at Farmington Friday evening, and were generally well pleased with the performance by amateurs. The ladies, especially in the leading parts, were excellent in their acting as well as in singing. Some of the male parts were better singers than actors, but the old opera was a pleasant surprise and source of much pleasure to all, especially by those who had seen it more than once or twice before. The whole fair was a credit to the ladies of Farmington, likewise to Mr. Harry White, whose praise was in the mouths of all, and he was very properly given a "good hand" as he assumed his position as musical director.

Lost—A pasture gate, good and strong. When last seen was under full sail down the Sandy river. The launching was done after a heavy lug over rough ground for half a mile, through sand and mud, where footprints gave the whole transaction dead away. Neighbors, objecting to "gates and bars" across the Maplewood pasture, were the cause for the "Hallowe'en" freak, and consequently Farmer Moore is pasturing his kine in the public highway rather than discommode the kid farmers "higher up."

It is reported that Farmer Moore contemplates the introduction of a large herd of thrifty Angora goats—just to keep things lively and at the same time keep the underbrush under control.

STRATTON.

May 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Handley have moved to New Vineyard, their former home, after residing for several years in this place.

Daniel Reed has bought the house formerly occupied by Roy Heald and moved his family there.

Mrs. M. E. Whitney has returned from Lisbon Falls and is packing and selling her goods, getting ready to move to Brunswick.

Oramandel and Royal Blanchard each purchased an automobile while in Lewiston recently.

Mr. John Hunnewell of Lowell, Mass. is visiting his cousin, Carlton Rand, and family.

H. O. Lishness has purchased a farm at Strong and will move his family there this week.

Royal Blanchard and wife and C. E. Gordon and wife took an automobile trip to Rangeley Sunday.

Miss Agnes Reed has gone to island, where she has a position as secretary for Alvie A. Berry.

TEMPLE.

May 9.

Miss Alice Conant of Milford, Mass., is spending some weeks with her cousin, Mrs. Helen M. Smith.

Mrs. Blanche Wing and three children of Phillips are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Jenkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Howard of Wilton and Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Howard of Readfield visited at A. S. Mitchell's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Preston, who have been working for C. T. Hodgkins during the winter, have returned to their farm.

Mrs. Will Locklin visited her aunt, Mrs. A. Halley, at Porter Hill Friday and Saturday. Mr. Locklin has a colt which is attracting a good deal of attention. It is a very light sorrel with silver mane and tail. It is in perfect shape and a very promising colt.

WELD.

May 10.

Alton Swett is attending Wilton academy.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Woodward of Birmingham, Alabama, arrived Friday to spend the summer in their residence in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hewey, Iva Hewey and Willis Hewey of Kingfield are visiting Mrs. Hewey's mother, Mrs. Adolph Robertson, for a few days to try the fishing.

Mrs. Grace Masterman Robertson of Thompsonville, Conn., is at home with her parents. Mrs. Robertson's father has been ill for the past few months.

Miss Thelma Maxwell underwent an operation at the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Portland last week, and is remaining there for treatment. She is gaining and expects to return in a short time.

Mr. Harold Smith, Bates 1913, of New Hampshire occupied the Congregational pulpit Sunday.

A crew of men is working on the state road between Weld and Dixfield. They are boarding at the Twaddle farm.

Mr. Charles Tobin had the misfortune to lose the end of a finger on his left hand while working in the saw mill. He is unable to work, but is gaining slowly.

Mr. Bert Conant returned Friday from a visit in East Winthrop.

Mr. Simon Tainter of Dixfield spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Tainter.

Mr. Eben Newman and Mr. Webster of Phillips were in town fishing a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Evander Judkins, Mr. and Mrs. Foss Judkins of Carthage and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stevens of Rumford Falls are at one of Scamman's camps for a short time.

Mr. Abel D. Russell of Augusta is in town for his annual fishing trip.

Miss Mary Payne of Augusta is visiting relatives and friends for a time.

The muskrat with an earning capacity of $1,700,000 a year has come to be well nigh, if not quite, the most valuable fur bearing animal in North America.

We are indebted to Mr. George M.
Houghton of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad for a specially bound number of the 1910 edition of the railroad's handsome book, entitled "In the Maine Woods."

J. W. Brackett of Phillips, who has for some years been a competent and conscientious member of the Commission of Inland Fisheries and Game, is a candidate for appointment by the governor as chairman of that commission. It looks to us as if Mr.
Brackett were the best available man in sight for the place. It would please us to see him nominated, and we are much inclined to think that his nomination would please the people of Maine more than that of any other man at all likely to receive it.
—Fort Fairfield Review.

Hon. Edward P. Ricker of Poland Spring has sent out a letter to the daily papers warning the citizens of this state against giving away franchises for water powers and at the same time allowing companies who get the right to sell the power for use outside the state. Mr. Ricker points out the fact that if all our power is kept within the state, in view of the very large amount of power that we have, we would be third largest in the Union with reference to undeveloped water power.
We can do ourselves an immense amount of good to make it necessary for factories, etc., to build on our powers, rather than making it possible for parties to transport the power outside the state cheaply and thus cut us off from the employment of labor in this state. We have no doubt but that the citizens of the state have found interest in this letter and have found a great deal of instruction in it and that they to a great extent will heed the warning that Mr. Ricker gives.

Game Warden Robert Phillips is looking strictly after the violators of the fish and game laws. He arrested
one man last week for trapping
beaver and took him before Trial Jus-

and promised to go out of the business. Others had better take notice.

Lobster Lake.

"It was the last time we were up
there that we saw so many moose," said Chas. Ogden of Hallowell, speaking of his camp at Lobster Lake in northern Maine.

"It was close time and they came right near us when we were out fishing. There was one that would come to the end of the wharf and put his nose down and rub it against the wood. He didn't seem to mind us at all and three times he came so close we could touch him. One day
he went on the point further down and my wife stood at one side to meet him and I was at the other.
We thought we had him cornered sure but we didn't. Away he flashed when we least expected it. Then one time I took a stick to him just to see if I could make him run the other way but he knew I didn't mean to hurt him and never a bit would he run."

One of the best known guides in Maine is Charles Ogden and his camp on Lobster lake is known to every sportsman who frequents that region.

"Just a temporary affair on the west shore of Lobster lake," said Mr.
Ogden. "It is on Sand point and there are small lobsters in the lake
but it is called Lobster lake on account of its shape. It is shaped like a lobster's claw. We have been going to the lake eleven years. My wife goes with me, sometimes. I like to go for the spring fishing, then in the summer it is a great place, and there's the fall hunting. I have had people from Denver and from other places even farther away. They come to Maine from all over the world.

A JOLLY PARTY ON MT. ABRAM.

"The lake has a reputation on account of the moose seen there. I have often seen a bull moose and young calves come close up to us.
The woods are full of game, and the fishing grounds are about as good as they make 'em here. We get lakers, squaretails and togue in the Lobster.

"You see Lobster lake is on the west branch and lots of people like it better than up the Allegash. The carries are long on the Allegash and it's a hard place for a woman to go.
"There's a good stretch of sandy beach on the Lobster, and then it isn't crowded with camps, like so many of the places up that way.
Some New York folks have a camp
not far from us, three miles across the lake, and four miles down on the southeast side are Mr. Long's camps. Everyone goes in canoes up there, sometimes as many as thirty canoes at a time will come in the lake. We go to the northeast carry and then two miles across to the west branch, and from there it's three miles down to Lobster stream.

"It isn't hard work the way we build our camp," laughed the guide.
"We put up the frame and then make the chimney right in the camp. It's a big chimney, and we have a crane
so that it is easy to do the cooking.
Can I cook? Well, I shouldn't be a good guide if I couldn't make a bluff at it. Doughnuts, johnny cake, fish, we get all we want to eat, and most always broil the fish. We're always hungry, too. Living outdoors gives one the keenest kind of an appetite. I've noticed a good many more women go into the woods every year, and I don't wonder. It's the best kind of a life for them, for anyone. The women, some of them, can hunt and fish as well as the men can.

Some of the women take their cameras along and they have a good time
hunting pictures while their husbands hunt game or fish, according to the time of year they strike out. I ran across a woman last season who liked taking pictures better than anyone I ever saw." The guide laughed.

"I was out near the shore of the lake and saw a man and woman step out of the woods and come toward me. The man said they were going home that day and wanted to get someone to row 'em round the lake.
Did I know of anyone? I wasn't guiding, so I told him I would take them, if so be they wanted to go out with me, though I didn't make a business of doing it. So they piled into the boat and we started. The woman didn't say much, but she had her camera with her, and she was looking all round for something to snap. The man said his wife had got a good many pictures to take back to New York with her, but she was anxious to see a deer at close range. She wanted a picture of one to show her friends. I knew pretty well where one came out of the woods most every day; it was close
time, so they weren't a bit scared,
and I told her I thought I could accommodate her. So I paddled over to the other side of the lake and we lay quite a spell off shore, and sure enough along came that deer

and the woman got a good view of him and a good picture, she said.
She was pretty sure it would turn out well.

"She was real pleased and when her husband asked her if she would be satisfied to go home now she had what she wanted, she laughed and said she guessed she'd have to be,
although she would like to see some young ones feeding, but supposed she wouldn't get the chance.

"I happened to think of a place where I'd seen a couple of fawns
one day not long before, so I told her I'd see what I could do. We went quite a way in another direction and stayed there a spell waiting, for I knew if they came at all,
it would be soon. Just as I was going to give it up and go back,
what should come down to the water's edge but a doe and those two fawns and go to drinking. The woman snapped 'em pretty quick and was awfully tickled at her luck.

"Are you satisfied to go home
now?" he husband asked her. She hesitated a minute and then allowed she wasn't quite satisfied. That it
it had always been the wish of her life to see a moose, so as to get a picture of one. That was quite a wish to be up against, but I told her not to give up hopes. That there were a good many moose in the Lobster region and maybe if we kept on paddling round the lake we might see one in the course of an hour or so. She was all for staying out and her husband he just laughed and said all right, go ahead. We hadn't been out more than ten minutes after we saw the doe and the fawns before we heard a splash in the water way off

carrying long lines of excursionists to Green Lake and Bar Harbor, has just gone along. If such a thing were possible, the dew is wetter than water on the grass, revealing the fisher nets of the spiders on the stubble, and showing off the great canopies of the fall web-worm with startling effect among the elms and cherry trees. The locusts are still embalmed and dormant in dew just beyond the line of invasion for the Plymouth Rock chickens. Across the barb-wire fence in the pasture a flock of bobolinks, all sober-suited and songless now, are crying "Spink,
spink, spink," with a metallic click,
such as one never hears in June.
And while the old birds and the young birds hunt for and find cold grasshoppers for breakfast, they are fighting like schoolboys and making a great fluttering of wings. It is hard to determine what the quarrel is about, for something like a dozen birds are engaged, although it may be over an equitable division of bugs,
which are everywhere and may be had by any bird for the picking up.

High on a limb of a cat spruce
two male song sparrows are hissing
and spitting, like a pair of rival Thomas cats, varying their loud talk with frequent flights, in aloft and then skimming close to the lawn, at which times they collide with trees
and arm chairs, and are not afraid to plump up against the bodies of human beings, so interested do they become in the battle royal. From a salt box nailed to the side of the barn a pair of white-breasted swallows are defending their unfledged
young against a bevy of English sparrows, which has just come out from the village to picnic of a summer
Sunday in the country. Still higher up aloft, where the air is cooler, a pair of adult king birds is piloting crows, hawks and blackbirds hastily to cover in the woods, so the young kingbirds may be secure against attack. In and out among the reaching and rough limbs of the big willow dash two rival robins, both males
and both beauties and both good fighters, with flashing eyes and loud voices, as if any kind of trouble could be decided by talk. A quiet pair of hairy woodpeckers, searching the bark of the big elms near the ground,
are forced into sudden and precipitate flight by the curious Plymouth Rock chickens, which have learned to attack most anything that lives and enters their domain. Although the kingbirds and swallows scream shrilly
in their fights with crows and English sparrows, the dominant note in this conflict among birds, is from the robins, both of which are fighting, as if for the championship belt and a prize of great value. All of which makes us wonder who the man or woman was who wrote:

Who killed cock robin?
"I," said the sparrow,
"With my bow and arrow,
I killed cock robin."

Here again you can see how criminally ignorant were all those old poets who undertook to write verses about natural history. Even Rev. Mr.
Long, who is the very prince among nature fakers, could have bungled the situation no worse. Theodore Roosevelt should have rectified Mother Goose and set the popular nursery rhymes right before undertaking his hazardous journey into the wilds of British East Africa. Neither in England nor in America was it ever possible—outside of a fairy story—for any sparrow to kill any robin. In both countries the robin is a much larger bird than any species of sparrow known, and while the English sparrow, which is now common and abhorred on both sides of the Atlantic, is a heroic fighter, it cannot be placed in the same class with the robin, for never can any sparrow be called more than a lightweight, while the robin comes very near to being a welterweight.

Let nobody presume for a moment that birds live in holy peace and sweet communion one with another throughout the long and glorious summer which they enjoy at the north.
Not only do the birds of prey, such as hawks and owls, know how to fight and go about armed for fighting, but a majority of our beautiful song birds and insectivorous birds can fight and fight savagely when they are put to it. No doubt the good God who made and watches over all birds, is a Lord of love and mercy.
Nevertheless He equipped a vast majority of His creatures for battling with their foes and then gave them
ample opportunities to learn the art of self defence. No doubt the time may come when the lion and the lamb can lie down together and when the lion shall not be hungry and the lamb shall not be afraid. And still we cannot conceive of such a condition so long as bird nature and animal nature and human nature continue as they are at the present time.

Grand Lake Stream,
Washington County, Me.,
May 5, 1910.

The weather is against good fishing and good sport, but evidently the fish feel it as good to be out in the lake, the way they come.

Never has there been better fishing, and the quality of fish is the best ever known. A notable feature is their abundance.

Six guests from Ouananiche lodge on the upper end of the lake took in 26 fish last Thursday. Eight were brook trout, the largest weighing 3½ lbs. The largest salmon weighed 5¼
lbs.

Halibut Fishing Off Matinicus.

(By Hart L. Woodcock.)

Herring had struck during the night and all the fishermen about the harbor at Cribhaven were spending the morning in picking their nets, which were stuck full of these fish.

Everything about the only wharf in the way of a receptacle was being pressed into service and filled with the shining herring. Big silvery scales sticking onto rubber boots and oil skins were sparkling in the sunshine till the fishermen looked for all the world like big ungainly harlequins. Alongside the wharf the dories and double enders all filled to the sinking point, were chafing uneasily at the painters waiting to be relieved of their burdens.

In these later days such a catch was almost unknown. Consequently the men were happy. Lobster bait is usually a scarce and expensive commodity, but, nevertheless, something they all must have if they wish to continue the winter's fishing. But now there was no further cause for uneasiness; here was bait in profusion and to spare.

All except Peter the Dane were busy salting their catch. He had finished and was seated on an upturned half-barrel, baiting his trawl. This interested me. For weeks I had been looking forward to a favorable opportunity to go trawling, and this seemed my chance.

"When are you going?" I asked. "And how about me?"

"I bait up tonight and we will start at daybreak," he answered. Peter was a man of but few words.

An alarm clock, which was all business, got me out of bed on time, a hurry-up dress and a quick lunch by lamplight had me out of the house in season to see Peter's lantern streaking along the beach in the direction of the wharf. Hurrying after, I found him poking about in a tub of big fresh herring which Ericson had just brought in.

"Dess we take a few of dese," he said. "Dey may come in handy."

We threw a bucket full into his dory, which was handy alongside, then we put in the tubs of baited trawl, oil skins, tumbled in ourselves, and pulled out across the tiny harbor to where his naphtha boat was swinging at its moorings.

By now the gathering dawn had made the lantern needless, but by the dim light we could see a long sullen swell making into the harbor and we realized it would be rough outside.

Not a breath of air was moving. The surface of the water was like polished steel. The slow rise and fall of the surge was like the deep chested breathing of animals made slow and strong by distress.

Stowing things snugly away on board the launch, Peter started the engine and we slid rapidly out of the harbor, out by Eastern Harbor point, down through the passage between Matinicus and Cribhaven.

To the eastward we could dimly make out Wooden Ball island, and nearer in Ten Pound, the Hoghead and Shag ledges. Then straight out to sea he stood till the low lying islands behind us became but a memory. All about was the heaving sea and the immensity of space. It was most exhilarating, this rush of cold salt air; you felt you must inhale great volumes of it and that there was joy and good health in doing so.

It would have been an impossibility for a tenderfoot to locate the fishing grounds, but Peter hadn't the least difficulty in doing so. Sighting this way and that, he dodged the boat about till he got his bearings exactly. Then, when all was ready, we threw over the grapple and the buoys, which fastened and marked the first end of the trawl. Then, with the engine turning slowly, I kept the boat headed well to the southward of the Rock lights and Peter threw out the long trawl, with its thousand or more baited hooks, as we sped along.

It was interesting to watch him. As the boat mounted the great swells of the water, the man threw the line from the tubs as fast as he could work, safely avoiding the flying hooks in a marvelous manner. When the end was reached, the last buoy and grapple was made fast and then thrown over, and the gear was at work.

"Dere, while dat is fishing, we'll go fishing, too," said Peter, as he straightened up painfully and looked about.

Swinging the boat around, we headed for the outer breaker which was breaking feather white a mile or more to the westward. The plucky little launch wasn't long in covering this distance, and soon we ran in to the eastward of the big Spar buoy marking the ledge, and anchored.

We came right on top of a school of big fish, evidently, for our lines were hardly down when the cod and haddock began biting ravenously. For an hour or more we took them in, pair and pair, as fast as we could handle our lines. But Peter broke all records by catching a pair of cod which weighed eighty-four pounds each. Don't shoot! I saw them weighed myself and they were so large there was no occasion to stretch the story.

By now it was time to go back to the trawl. Our bait was about used up, also; in fact, we had but two of the big herring left, so we hauled up our anchor and prepared to return.

Those two herring seemed to possess a perfect fascination for Peter as they lay on the seat beside him. He stood so long looking at them that I thought he must be hypnotized.

"What is it, old man?" I asked. "Are they coming back to life?"

show good fishing. If so, heaven only knew where the fish could be put, as the launch was already filled to about the limit.

We were destined, however, not to test its carrying capacity much further, as a school of dogfish had taken complete possession of the trawl, and the hooks which were not taken up by them held only mutilated fish mangled beyond all usefulness by these scraggy pests.

As we took them from the hooks, we killed the wiggling, unwholesome looking creatures and threw them overboard. Then, picking up the gear and stowing it away in the tubs, we were soon speeding on our way home rejoicing.

THE NESTING PLACE OF THE CHUB.

He looked at me in a foolish sort of way and said: "Spose I catch a halibut with dese two? Great halibut growed dest a little way off. By thunder! I go try, Yes."

He whirled the boat brace into instant attention. Carefully he started his lines up a foot or more, then struck with all his power. He failed to hook the fish, and with a grunt of disappointment hauled in his fifty fathoms of line.

"Dat was a halibut, Mr. W, and I knew it," he exclaimed, as the bare hook came in over the rail. Carefully he adjusted the one remaining fish and slowly sent the rig back to bottom.

His sinker had hardly struck when the bait was seized in such a fierce manner as to almost take him overboard.

Now all was excitement. It was a halibut beyond doubt and a big fellow, too; for as Peter succeeded in getting it up eight or ten feet, back it would go again, despite all his efforts to the contrary. Of course, it would never do to snub the fish too hard, as by so doing, the line or smood might part.

By now Peter's blood was up and it was a clean fight between fish and man for the mastery. Time and again, when half way up, the monster would rush back to bottom and put up a good sulking fight before it could again be started. The heavy line payed through the man's hands in a way that might have stripped the skin from any less thoroughly seasoned.

Finally the big fish was brought to the surface. I stood by with the gaff and, as Peter managed to get the halibut alongside, I sank the heavy iron deep into its head, no easy matter, threshing about as it was. Then came the battle royal. With a mighty plunge the fish rushed off till it was brought up all standing by the end of the gaff lash being reached. Recovering itself, it darted right and left, twitching the heavy boat about like a feather, and both Peter and I exerted our full strength to again overcome it and work it back again. Finally the fish gave up, exhausted. Then the question was how to get it into the boat. Had it been a dory, whose rail we could have brought down to the water, the thing would have been easy, for once the halibut's head is over, the body slides smoothly into the boat. But the launch was still with a foot or more of free board, and to carry that plan out was impossible. Again the fish still had lots of fight left, as every flip of its tail sent a bucket of cold salt water into our faces and over us, until we were thoroughly drenched. Despite its efforts, however, we soon tired it out and tugging together with all our might, finally succeeded in getting it over the rail into the boat. And none too soon, we found, as the hold of both gaff and hook showed signs of letting go.

Never shall I forget the grin of contentment which overspread the face of my companion as he stood and gazed upon our glorious catch. It certainly was a big morning's work for him, and, furthermore, we still had prospects, as the trawl might

Famous as a Fisherman.

One of the most famous of the veteran fishermen of Westbrook is Edward Gilman, or "Put," as he is familiarly called. Born with the keen air of Sebago in his nostrils, Mr. Gilman has never lost his love for the sport this famous body of water provides for the man who will be a patient philosopher in all kinds of weather and jeopardize his good health and temper in his quest of the wily salmon and trout.

It was some 40 years ago that "Put" started his successful career as a fisherman, or the spring of his eighth year, and from that time to the present he has missed just one spring at the lake and he is always in on the "second fishing" as well. The solitary season that failed to find the veteran at his accustomed haunts was quite a number of years ago when he had found it necessary to go to New Hampshire with a drive of logs and was unable to return in time to try his annual conclusions with the gamy denizens of Sebago.

At the time when Mr. Gilman had the first memories of the lake fishing there was but a single house at the mouth of the Songo river and that was the club house of the Songo club, an organization composed of some of the best sportsmen in the state. Among them were Jonas Hamilton, Charles Day, Charles Gibbs, Frank Gibbs, Robert Edes, William Center and others. William Center, according to Mr. Gilman, was one of the best fishermen and all-round sportsmen that ever visited the lake, as was Thomas Shaw, of Chaw, Hammond & Carney, Portland.

When Mr. Gilman, at the age of eight years, became a full-fledged fisherman, the fishing was done, for the greater part, in Songo river and such a thing as trolling in the lake for salmon was unheard of. The favorite stopping place for the fishermen on the Songo was at the home of Daniel Leighton ("Old Dodbugger-it" Leighton was his best known cognomen, derived from a favorite expression) and the fishing was so good and so little abused that it did not require a week as it does at present to make a good showing.

The second year of the veteran's experience was one that he remembered distinctly for it was this year that a party consisting of his father, Edward, Sr., his brother, William, himself and a friend, George Moses, landed 26 fish, 21 salmon and 5 red spots in one day and it was accomplished without trolling. The fishing was at that time done between the locks and the mouth of the river and only occasionally when a man was compelled to row from some other portion of the lake to the mouth of the river was trolling indulged in at all.

According to all known authorities at the lake Edward Gilman, Sr., even more famous as a fisherman than his son, made a business of trolling on Songo bar in the 70's and his first season netted him a salmon weighing 11½ pounds, and this fish held the record for years; in fact until that famous angler, Jonas Hamilton, one time superintendent of the Maine Central railroad, made his famous catch of a trout at the mouth of Muddy river which tipped the scales at 16½. Mr. Hamilton played this fish for about two hours and was finally assisted in landing it by Eugene L. Harmon of Westbrook, deputy under Sheriff Pennell. This fish held the record for a period of ten years and it was Sam Witham of Raymond who came to the front by hauling out a 20-pounder, the exact shape of which, made of wood, now serves as a weather vane on the Whitney homestead in Raymond.

According to the story of Mr. Gilman a man by the name of Pinkham of Portland claimed the record for a big fish at Sebago, buying the fish on the line and landing it himself. When weighed after being taken from the water it tipped the scales at 16½ but before it reached Portland its weight had mysteriously increased to 22 flat.

made fast to the stern of the boat, in which was kept the entire catch of a day's fishing and upon the return to camp each member of the party who had been so fortunate as to land a fish would sew a piece of colored thread in the back fin of his fish as a distinguishing mark and the entire catch would be placed in a pond to be kept alive until used as food.

Mr. Gilman removed to Westbrook shortly after this, but his interest in the sport has never abated and every year finds him at the lake at the outgoing of the ice and it is his proud record that he has never been "skunked," which means, in the parlance of the fishermen, failed to make a catch. While he has landed as many fish as anyone who has fished the lake the same length of time each year, the largest salmon that has ever fallen prey to his line and net weighed 14 pounds and 12 ounces and when one considers that "Put's" fishing experience dates back nearly half a century it will be easily seen that he has the right to show a certain amount of pride in the work of his son, George, who, when at the same age that his father entered upon his first fishing, created a big sensation at the lake by landing in one day three salmon weighing 9, 9½ and 18¾ lbs. This feat was performed only a few years ago and will be well remembered by those who follow the fishing annually.

In comparing the fishing of the present time to that of many years ago, Mr. Gilman said: "There is absolutely no comparison to be made. Why, I can remember when it was a poor day's fishing if a man couldn't land a dozen fish right at the mouth of the Songo, and now when a man goes on a trip lasting two weeks and brings home a string of five fish, he considers that his time has been well and profitably spent. On my first trip to the lake this season the ice had been out from the mouth of the river for several days and even with such fishermen as Jim Morris, Joe Brigham and Fred Decormier on the job, but two small ones had been landed.

"The best fishing on the lake today is to be found on the west shore and I lay this state of affairs to the fact that the Songo has been seined and wired in all ways known to fishermen until the fish have been driven to the other side of the lake and the number of fish caught off the Chadbourne will easily bear out my statement. I fail to see the desired results in the present plan of stocking the lake with small fry, and if the government would expend the amount of money required to do the restocking and protect the salmon sufficiently and allow them to spawn naturally the lake would be a better fishing ground than ever in a very few years."

Portland as a Summer Base of Supplies

Portland is the logical base of supplies for outsiders spending their vacation in Maine. In Portland they can supply all their needs, and would do so if they were informed of the fact.

In the special Automobile and Travel number to be issued by Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman in June, attention will be called to the facilities available in Portland. For those who make the automobile trip, Portland will be the terminal point at which the parties will separate.

If you have anything to offer these visitors to Maine—hotel or garage accommodation, transportation facilities, camp equipment, cottage furnishings, food supplies, personal accessories or clothing omitted when travelling "light," automobile parts, or conveniences of any kind—be sure to offer them in the advertising columns of this special number. It will be read by many while they are planning their vacation. Let them know how much of their shopping they can do in Portland.

The returns from such advertising will be sure and definite. The field is open; take advantage of it. Do not let this opportunity slip by. Rates and particulars will be furnished by nesday on business. This is the company that handled the Barker & Greenwood lumber last winter. They also handled more or less for D. F.

Field.

In the next issue of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman will appear a most timely and interesting article from the pen of a Phillips man who knows what he is talking about, reviewing the cream and dairying situation and offering some valuable suggestions to farmers. In two weeks
there will be printed a valuable article on fruit culture, and the possibilities in Franklin county for this line of farm development. Next week will be printed a list of the new books in the Phillips public library.
There will also be many other interesting features in the local edition of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman.

The street department has been straightening the Dodge road near the Avon town line this week. It looks much better. The town of Avon might well do some work of the same sort on its end of the road.

Miss Hilda Goodwin visited her grandparents in Farmington last week.

Miss Margaret Everett is suffering from a sprained ankle caused by a fall while going home from church
a week ago Sunday night.

Mr. W. C. Beal of the Mile Square,
Avon, celebrated his 80th birthday last Sunday, May 8. He spent the afternoon with his daughter, Mrs. L.
A. Worthley. Mr. Beal is still a very active man, doing the work on his farm with very little help. He has had cultivated strawberries for several years, and those that he markets are among the nicest we have. We hope that Mr. Beal will celebrate many more birthdays.

DR. BELL PAYS $500.

SETTLES MALPRACTICE SUIT TO AVOID FURTHER TROUBLE.

Eight Reputable Physicians from Portland and Elsewhere Testify at Auburn That Treatment of Broken Ankle Was Correct.

In the supreme court in Auburn Monday afternoon the case of Hortense L. Allen of Livermore Falls vs. Dr. Chas. W. Bell, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $5000 for alleged damages through the improv-
setting of her right ankle, was heard.

Newell & Skelton and John Merriman appeared for the plaintiff and McGillicuddy & Morey and E. E.
Richards for the defendant.

Hortense L. Allen, wife of Lewis
G. Allen of Livermore Falls, testified that while visiting in Freedom on Nov. 24, 1907, she was thrown from a carriage and her right ankle was fractured. Dr. Bell arrived in half an hour, administered ether and set the fracture. On regaining consciousness, the leg from the knee down felt as if it was twisted, Mrs. Allen said.

On the following morning the bandages were removed and the ankle was placed in a fracture box, without being properly supported to keep the bones in place.

She returned to Livermore Falls
Dec. 21, a day after Dr. Bell had removed the fracture box and placed the ankle in a plaster cast. Dr.
Smith of Livermore Falls removed the plaster cast Dec. 28 and found the foot pointing downward so that a yard stick would touch it at all points from the knee to the toe tips.
For several weeks she was unable to walk even with the aid of crutches. Dr. Smith treated her for about a year, finally advising her to go to the Central Maine General hospital.
She remained there only four days.

Dr. Abbott of Portland was next consulted. He came to her home, cut the heel cord, straightened the foot. Her condition was improved.
She was under the care of Dr. Sweet of Providence, R. I., who recommended that she wear a shoe with a thick
sole, raised heel and metal brace, which she cannot walk without. She can walk about the house without crutches, but cannot go up and down stairs. She now suffers intermittent pain in the ankle and her health has never been as good as it was before the accident.

The case was taken from the jury
Tuesday morning, having been settled between the parties.

Eight reputable physicians, including some of the best surgeons in Portland, testified that the treatment
was correct, but to avoid further trouble and annoyance, it is reported that
Dr. Bell paid $500 to settle the case.

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

Miss Maizie Butterfield of Farmington visited friends in Phillips over Sunday.

Most enjoyable was the music by the choral club last Sunday evening at the Union church. The special numbers were a duet by Mrs. W. B.
Butler and Mrs. C. E. Cragin, solo by Miss Mildred Mahoney, duet by Miss Algie Pratt and Miss Hewitt
and a violoncello solo by Maurice Wade.

Fred Sweetser has sold his house
on Sawyer street to G. B. Sedgely and has bought a farm in Farmington. We also understand that Will Stewart has bought the farm adjoining that one.

Wallace Grover, who has been at the Elmwood for some time, has finished work there.

Mrs. Marshall Brayman has been quite ill recently, but is now better.

Miss Lucille French has been confined to her home for several days with a severe cold, but is now reported much better.

Rev. L. N. Fogg, an evangelist of Saco, Me., is expected in town Friday and will commence a series of meetings at the Methodist church, assisted by the pastor. Rev. Mr. Fogg comes highly recommended as an evangelist and singer, having sung
at some of the large camp meetings, and expects to assist at some this season. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services, which begin at 7.30 each evening.

Albert Belcher Cragin of Waterville
and Miss Elizabeth Helen McFadden
of Augusta were married at the residence of the bride's parents, Hon.
and Mrs. Andrew L. McFadden, last Monday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev.
George Dana Sanders of Waterville.
The wedding was of an informal nature and none but relatives were present. The bride was attired in white crepe de chine over white tafa-feta princess lace. The groom is connected with the Hollingsworth & Whitney company at Waterville. Mr. and Mrs. Cragin will be at home at Waterville after July 10. Mr. Cragin was formerly a clerk in the drug store of his uncle, Mr. W. A. D.
Cragin, for several months and made many friends who extend congratulations.

In Dixfield items we notice that Hildreth Staples returned home from Farmington Saturday with a new automobile.

Miss Cornelia T. Crosby (Fly Rod) was at home over Sunday. She has been with friends in Massachusetts for several weeks and returned to her home via Rumford and Rangeley.
She returned to Rangeley Monday night.

The new books at the public library will be ready for distribution
on Saturday of this week.

Mr. Charles E. Barker went to Gardiner to begin repairs on the Berlin Mills company saw mill this week.

Floyd Parker writes home from the University of Maine that he has fully recovered his health and is enjoying his studies very much.

MILE SQUARE, AVON.

May 10.

Miss Evelyn Calden of West Phillips visited her friend, Miss Rena Hinds, over Sunday.

Miss Clara Beal of Phillips spent Sunday at her home on the hill.

Mr. J. Blaine Morrison of Phillips visited his sister, Mrs. H. W. Worthley, the first of the week.

Mr. Orlando Marden is on the sick list.

Mr. M. G. Bubier, Mrs. Rose Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Woodman Bubier were in Farmington one day last week, being called there by the serious illness of their relative, Mrs.
Archibald Bubier.

Mr. Thaddeus Flagg and Mrs. Miranda Haines of Rangeley visited at
M. G. Bubier's part of last week.

Mrs. Angella Bubier has returned from Farmington, where she has been caring for Mrs. Archibald Bubier.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hinkley of Rangeley visited her mother, Mrs.
Rose Campbell, last Saturday. They all spent Sunday at Mr. Elliott With-ee's in New Vinayard.

We were very sorry to lose Mr.
Joe Sweetser and family when he sold to Butterfield and Noble, but we find our new neighbors very agreeable people and they are planning to do quite a farming business.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Morton of Avon and Miss Ava M. Wilber of Somerset visited at H. W. Worthley's
Sunday.

Mr. Roland Hinds has finished work in the saw mill at Phillips and is assisting his father on the farm.

Mr. Ralph Haines and family of Rangeley visited at M. G. Bubier's last week. They went from there to their new home in Strong, having purchased the Daggett farm.

MADRID.

May 10.

Farmers have improved the few days that were not rainy, and sowed oats, wheat and peas. Onion seed has been sown by a few.

Charles Dunham is still on the sick list. All hope he may recover.

Andrew Wyman has bought a farm
in town and with his wife is visiting friends here.

Bonney Webber has finished his work as census enumerator.

Prominent Kingfield Man Dead.

The sudden death, from heart failure, of Mr. I. N. Stanley, which occurred at his home in his native town on May 4, came like a tremendous shock to the remaining members of his family and his many friends.

Isaac Newton Stanley was born in Kingfield, Me., October 18, 1841, the oldest son of the late Hon. Solomon and Apphia (French) Stanley, and he had, on his father's side, a famous line of Puritan ancestry, while on the mother's side, the family origin was of great interest and antiquity, going back to the first Duke of Normandy, and later traced among the Huguenots and Quakers of the early colonies.

Mr. Stanley passed the greater part of his life in his native town, holding many places of trust and responsibility. He was a man of unquestionable character and exceptionally good habits; of a retiring and sensitive nature and a physical organization poorly calculated to endure the many hardships which life held in store for him, but withal, holding in reserve the Puritan and Huguenot strength of purpose and courage to begin again when a phase of life failed to give happiness to those about him.

To those who knew Mr. Stanley as a passing acquaintance, there seemed little of unusual interest, but to one to whom it was given to read the inner thoughts and hidden feelings, there was much to marvel at and love. In the construction of his late home, he has left much that will speak for his ability and sense of the beautiful in the years to come. In all his work there was a thoroughness and completeness that bespoke the nature of the artist. The perseverance and patience with which he pursued his tasks when suffering physically, up to the last hour of his life, make a monument to his remembrance for all who may come after him.

His life of exposure while in the war did much to undermine his health, and as he advanced in years the severe winters compelled him to go south. In Florida he seemed to find relief and was a very appreciative traveller for several seasons. His ability to describe the country and the life there showed his keen sense of observation, as well as the stories of his army life.

He leaves a widow and two sons, Newton Fairbanks Stanley of Waterville, Me., and Carlton Fairfield Stanley of Newton, Mass.; three grandchildren; three brothers, Mr. F. O. and Mr. F. E. Stanley of Newton, Mass., and Mr. B. T. Stanley of Kingfield, Me., and one sister, Mrs. Chansonetta S. Emmons of Newton, Mass.

and Mrs. George C. Childs, Misses Inez and Grace Childs. One feature of the evening was the presence of the bride's mother, who wore a dress of wine-colored silk, in which she was married twenty-six years ago. The fact that it was Arlie's twenty-fourth birthday also made the event a little more interesting. After the ceremony congratulations were in order and a reception followed. Refreshments of fancy crackers, olives, ice cream and cake were served. The presents were numerous and included the following: Chiffonier, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pillsbury and family, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Nile and family, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Nile; clock, Merton Hoar; $5.00, Clarence Hoar; bedspread, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Hoar; one-half dozen silver teaspoons, Mr. and Mrs. Linton Hoar; berry dish, Ida Hoar; pair of towels, Frank Hoar; tablecloth, and pair of towels, Mr. and Mrs. Zephyr Raymond; towels, Lewis Nile; towels, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Nile; four fancy cake plates, Mrs. Emily Oakes; cracker jar, Grace Childs; water set, Inez Childs; tablecloth, pair dessert spoons, pair vases, Mr. and Mrs. George Childs; one-half dozen silver teaspoons, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Holman. The young couple have the best wishes of many friends for years of happiness.

KINGFIELD.

May 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Deming are receiving congratulations over the birth of a daughter.

E. N. Carter of Dryden was in this village recently, when he purchased several valuable cows.

Miss Marguerite Ricker of Wilton has lately been a guest in the family of O. M. Vose.

Mrs. L. P. Hinds is cooking at the Willows in Farmington for J. W. Jordan, formerly of this town.

Rev. Mr. Bancroft and family are now pleasantly settled in their new home at the F. B. parsonage.

Manley Knapp has leased the T. J. Horn house at West Kingfield and has moved there with his family.

Mrs. Lon V. Savage remains in poor health from a rheumatic trouble at her home on Maple street.

Mrs. Valdo Dumton and daughter, Daisy, of Bingham, visited the former's sister, Mrs. E. B. Horn, last week.

The first of the week Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Thompson of New Portland were guests of relatives in this village.

Warren F. Staples and family have moved from Pleasant street to the Frank Lander rent on Riverside St.

Over Sunday Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Hutchins were guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cushman, in Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Woodward were at Tufts pond the first of last week. Good catches are reported from there by local fishermen.

Miss Rosabell Stewart of Farmington visited her aunts, Mdms. Napoleon Champagne and Geo. A. Simons, last week.

Mrs. L. R. Mason of Chelsea, Mass., is caring for her brother, N. H. Peterson, and his wife, who remains quite ill at the family home on lower Main street.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Edson J. Hunt of their safe arrival in Buckley, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt left here April 11 on their wedding trip.

It is learned with much pleasure by the residents on Salem street that the tenement house which was partially destroyed by fire in December, has been purchased by Fred Hutchins, who will clear the lot, thus adding much to the appearance of that part of the town.

Grant's Camps.

Kennebago, Me., May 9, 1910.

The proprietors of Grant's camps at Kennebago are once more ready to welcome all comers, and numerous arrivals are registered for the past two weeks.

Several good catches have been brought in, among which were fish weighing respectively three and two pounds by Mr. Chas. B. Carter of Lewiston. The fishing will be greatly improved when the water, now very high to accommodate the rivermen, will drop. Then the fishing in the celebrated Kennebago stream will begin, and several sportsmen avow that their initials are on some of the monster beauties lying in the pools. The lake will be clear of logs by the 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Caldwell of Philadelphia are enjoying a few days' early fishing.

Mr. William C. Harmon, accompanied by Mr. Adie of New Haven, has arrived in camp. Their guides are Herman Hutton and Ed Morison.

Instead of a tame trout, at the present time, Ed Grant has tame partridges, several of them, who live in the immediate vicinity of the camps, nightly making a trip to the mountain ash trees, directly in front of the camp, for their supper. They seem to enjoy being noticed, and apparently do not mind the flies whizzing over their heads from the fishermen angling from the shore and float.

Chef Stephen Fahy of Lewiston is back in camp this season, and everybody knows Steve is an artist in cooking trout.

A busy May is expected; already the bookings have far exceeded any previous year.

Bald Mountain Camps.

Bald Mountain, Me., May 9, 1910.

Again Old Glory is floating at Bald Mountain Camps, and the beautiful forests are assuming their spring garments, making these charming camps one of the most beautiful spots on earth. Never have Bald Mountain camps been in better condition than at the present time.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have been on the sick list for the past month, the trusty employees have done their duty faithfully in making ready for the guests who are expected this week.

Never were these camps booked better in July, August and September, and the proprietor, Mr. Amos Ellis, is expecting a good business this spring.

Although the season is earlier than usual, fishing was never better than this year. More trout have been taken so far than there have been in years past in the early spring fishing.

Fishing at Sebago.

Several Massachusetts anglers are at Lake Sebago and have been fairly successful. Mr. Manner of Lowell took four salmon weighing from two to seven pounds. Mr. Murphy and Mr. Strout, both of Lowell, were also successful. Mr. Murphy took five fish, four salmon and one red spot, and his fish weighed from two to five pounds. Mr. Strout caught three salmon which weighed three, four and five pounds respectively.

The smelts are reported to be all out of the Sougo river and the brooks and the reason that the salmon are not biting better is thought to be because the weather has been poor.

Three Interesting Catalogues.

Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman is the recipient of three very interesting catalogues from Mr. C. E. Billings, president and general manager of the Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn. The company carries a full line of machinists tools, forging machinery, automobile forgings and tools, etc., and their catalogues illustrate the different parts and tools in excellent shape. The catalogues are made into an attractive little book, printed on good plate paper. One of the noticeable things about one of the catalogues is that on the back page is a picture of the company's factory in 1869, which consists of one large main building and two smaller ones. On the second page of the same book is another picture showing the company's plant as it stands today, which is a large set of buildings covering a large area. The growth of the plant is very noticeable.

Most attractive is the edition of 1910 "In the Maine Woods," vacationists' guide book, published by the Bangor & Aroostook railroad. The cover is a pretty shade of watered silk cloth, with letters of gold, and contains 168 pages of interesting reading matter and advertising. A few of the interesting subjects are: "Next to Nature," "A Vacation in Maine; Its Many Phases," "The Chase and Its Trophies," "Camping Out," "Canoe Trips," "Outing Hints by a Lady Who Has Been There," etc.

Deer Very Plentiful.

Ed West, engineer on the Sandy River and Rangeley Lakes railroad, reports that in going to Rangeley from Phillips one evening last week and running back the next forenoon, he saw thirteen deer from his cab window. In the lot was one deer that was almost clear white.

Criticizes an Item.

Saugatuck, Conn., May 2, 1910.

To the Editor of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman:

The article in the last issue of your paper, taken from the Biddeford Journal, relative to fishing at Grand lake, is unjust and uncalled-for—admitting that the fisherman referred to did land sixteen salmon. It is an unwritten law among those fishermen who go to Grand lake that only such fish that are needed for immediate use are killed, all others are carefully released from the hook and returned to the water. The fisherman referred to as a "fish hog" by the Biddeford Journal may have killed two or three fish. Having known the game warden of that section and the Grand Lake guides for several years, I can safely say: The game warden is a good officer, capable and attentive to his duties. The Grand Lake guides are an exceptionally fine lot of men, who do not encourage the "fish hog."

E. S. Wheeler.

A Good Shot.

Killing foxes is usually considered a little beyond the realm of woman and usually takes pretty quick work on the part of a man, but Mrs. Freeman Sanborn of Denmark, who is a grandniece of Daniel Whitehouse of Portland, has demonstrated that she can do the trick and do it well. Mrs. Sanborn lives on a farm, and as they raise a large number of chickens yearly, her husband finds it necessary to keep a hound on account of the large number of foxes in that section. According to the story which has come down from Denmark, Mrs. Sanborn saw the dog chasing the fox one day a week or two ago, and as her husband was not at home she took his gun and sallied forth on the hunt. It was not long before she got a glimpse of Mr. Fox, and, raising the gun, took a quick aim and fired, dropping him in his tracks. She dragged the game home and later sold the pelt for $3. --Kennebec Journal.

Lincoln Fishing News.

May 5.

The first of the week H. L. Bailey, Melvin Chesley and Percy Keene went to Long Pond falls and caught a string of beauties, the largest weighing 1½ lbs. One of the party said that people were saying that there are no trout there, and he thought he would like to show them the difference, and the result was shown Monday on their return. We are told by a person whose reputation for veracity is unquestioned, that every fifteen minutes of the day Monday a boat or canoe left the lower end of the pond for Long Pond falls to get the rest of the trout there.

Mr. H. L. Bailey displayed in the window of his drug store Monday forenoon the fish he caught at Long Pond falls, together with an attractive display of fishing tackle. Everyone stopped and looked and with watery mouths and shaking heads turned away. But Mr. Bailey encouraged all that he had time to and told them he could fit them out so they could have equally as good luck.

Messrs. J. F. Clark and Harry Osborne went Tuesday to Cold Stream pond and returned with a string of togue and salmon that excited the envy of many who saw the fish in Mr. Clark's window. They had received word that the fish were biting, so took time by the forelock and above is the result.

Not infrequently some nice fish are caught at the stone dam at the outlet of Mattanawcook lake. They say that Mr. Cyrus Lane is high line there and that he has caught several very nice trout there.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dolbier of Farmington were at Carlton's pond recently on a fishing trip, and had excellent success.

TYPESETTING MADE EASY.

WORK REVOLUTIONIZED BY THE LINOTYPE JUNIOR.

Latest Invention for Labor Saving in County Newspaper and Job Printing Offices—Readers Invited to See Working of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman Machine.

Many readers of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman have seen our new Junior Linotype typesetting machine work, and all have admired the perfected product, a complete and hand-somely printed newspaper. Those who have not should not fail to call and see it in operation, when they happen to be in Phillips during working hours. It is a marvel of accuracy and a great time saver, and is one of the greatest inventions of the age. The general public is unfamiliar with this wonderful machine, and a description of it and what it will do should be of general interest.

Frequently in the past we have been compelled to omit important items that reached us too late to be put in type in time for our regular edition, which must always go to the printer, which must always go to be in the mails so as to reach our subscribers promptly. Now all such contingencies are absolutely avoided. The machine will do the work of four or five hand compositors, so that we will never be at a loss in the future about printing a detailed story concerning whatever happens.

Added to this advantage, we can always present our readers with a paper printed from brand-new type, or slugs, as the product of the Linotype is called. After being once used for an edition of the paper, these slugs are not preserved, but cast back into the melting-pot or crucible of the machine, there to be reduced to a molten or semi-fluid state and subsequently recast into new slugs for the next edition.

While a great many of our readers may have seen a Linotype at some time or other, possibly very few of them have ever seen a Junior Linotype. For the benefit of such as have never seen either, a description of this wonderful machine is given herewith.

The Junior Linotype is a modification of the original standard Linotype, and, with the exception that its scope is somewhat limited, has all the strong features which made the parent machine famous. A few words about its evolution and development will be appropriate at this time.

About nineteen years ago John R. Rogers invented a composing and casting machine. In principle it was a good deal like the present Junior Linotype, but it was rather crude in its operation. It was operated entirely by hand, and its extreme capacity would not have equalled the output of more than two hand compositors at best. He sold his patents to the Mergenthaler Linotype company a few years later, and since that time has been at the head of the experimental department of that great company. Although the greater part of his time has been devoted, with Philip T. Dodge, the president of the Mergenthaler Linotype company, to improving the construction and increasing the versatility of the standard Linotype, yet he has always had a warm spot in his heart for his original idea.

He realized, however, that a one-letter, hand-operated, semi-automatic composing machine was but a makeshift at its best, and so, about seven years ago, the first Junior Linotype was completed in the factory of the Mergenthaler Linotype company, and was a direct descendant of his original machine. It was, to be sure, a one-letter machine, but was power-driven and automatic in its casting and distribution.

Mr. Rogers has admitted since that, while knowing the first Junior Linotype to be a great step in advance of his hand-operated machine, he did not know at that time, from a practical study of the conditions, just what would confront one of these machines in the average newspaper office.

Since those early days the Junior Linotype has been steadily improved in construction. Mr. Rogers has spent a great many days in offices where Junior Linotypes were in operation under various conditions, and from his keen observation has been enabled to develop the machine to meet those conditions in a way which has proved to be satisfactory to the users and to the manufacturer.

Since the early days of the Junior Linotype, and until February 1, 1908, of the operator from a keyboard of seventy-eight keys.

The one in office is driven by a gasoline engine. The metal from which the slugs are cast and from which this issue of the Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman is printed is heated in the crible of the machine by a gasoline burner.

The Junior Linotype produces finished matter of the highest quality, and permits three or four styles of type, body, and measure to be changed at will. The purchaser has the choice of many faces from 6- to 10-point Roman in combination with a black letter—bold face gothic or antique being the usual lack face. The body of this paper is set in 8-point Roman, while the headlines over the articles are set in 8-point gothic. Either of these fonts is the instant command of the operator. He can change from one to another at will. All that is necessary is the shifting of a lever. The operator can read and correct his matter as he proceeds before a line cast. Any person of intelligence in, in a reasonable sition in front of the mold. Here the spacebands or steel wedges are forced upward and into the line of matrices until the words are spread to the exact width of this column, and then a line of type or slug is cast from them. This spreading of each line to a uniform length is called justification. It is a slow and laborious process if done by hand, and is what makes hand composition so expensive. The operation of the justifying device on the Junior Linotype, however, is entirely automatic, and takes neither the time nor the attention of the operator. After the cast is made the matrices and spacebands return automatically to their respective places on the storage wires.

One great advantage in the Junior Linotype is that all the matrices bearing characters thereon are used an equal number of times, each dropping at the touch of the keyboard. Thus each matrix of the entire font or set receives equal wear, and the paper printed from the slugs will always have a clear and readable print.

There are seventy-eight keybuttons on the keyboard and eighty-one different wires, two extra ones being provided for characters which run as sorts and are not allowed for on the keyboard, and the other wire for the spacebands.

The mold can be changed, as before stated, from one body and measure to another in about one minute, making it possible to change the face, body, and measure on the machine in about five minutes.

There are about one dozen faces arranged for the Junior Linotype, ranging from 6- to 10-point. The faces used in this edition of the Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman are 6-point and 8-point Roman and Gothic, and 6, 7, 8 and 10-point bodies are used. This variety of sizes makes the machine very important in setting job work, such as town reports, agricultural society premium lists and similar work, for which we have already used it with much success.

The inventor, Mr. Rogers, had in mind when he developed this machine, that most of them would be located at points remote from expert help, and exerted his energies toward simplifying it as much as possible. How well he has succeeded is evidenced by the Junior Linotype now in operation in this office.

Besides straight and display composition, many different borders for use in advertisements and other job work can be set on this machine. We are thus equipped to handle our work in the job department more expeditiously than ever. The increased facilities which our Linotype gives us will enable us to do work which we had found it impossible to do heretofore.

The Junior Linotype occupies a floor space approximately 5 feet square, and requires but one-quarter horse-power to operate it. The net weight of the machine is about 1,200 pounds.

Pages of Maine Woods and Maine Sportsman could be devoted to a further description of this wonderful piece of mechanism, but enough has been written to give our readers an idea of the Junior Linotype and its marvelous accomplishments. A better idea can be gained by a personal inspection of the machine itself while in operation.

Our subscribers are cordially invited to call at our office at any time and see this paragon at work. You will be well repaid for the time so spent. Our latch-string is out, and we will be glad to demonstrate the machine to our friends who will favor us with a visit.

THE MACHINE READY FOR OPERATION.

the machine practically sold itself. Without advertising and handicapped by limited factory facilities, owing to the unprecedented growth of the standard Linotype business, there was still a small but steady sale of the machine, so that something over one hundred one-letter Junior Linotypes were installed in that period.

The company, believing there was a large field for the Junior Linotype, and especially for an automatic, easily operated machine that would set 3,000 ems or more of solid nonpareil an hour, saw fit to enlarge its factory facilities sufficiently to supply the increasing demand. In March, 1907, an eight-story addition to the great Mergenthaler factory was begun and plans were made to increase the manufacturing capacity to more than 25 per cent, and to allow a certain portion to be devoted exclusively to the manufacture of the Junior Linotype.

Mr. Rogers, in his tour of observation of smaller newspaper offices before mentioned, learned among other things that the majority of publishers wanted a machine which, in casting and distribution, would be not only entirely automatic, but which would set both the small headings in black face and the body matter in Roman from one set of matrices. This is what is meant by a two-letter machine. Such is the machine which is in our office today and is in practical and successful operation. It is neither an experiment nor a makeshift.

Since February 1, 1908, more than 400 Junior Linotypes have been sold and installed. It is the only machine within the means of the country publisher which is power-driven and which carries four alphabets—upper and lower case Roman and upper and lower case black letter—on one set of matrices, at the instant command

Commander Julius A. Pratt Post No. 143, Dept. III., G. A. R.

Mr. Isaac Cook, Commander of above Post, Kewanee, Ill., writes: "For a long time I was bothered with backache and pains across my kidneys. About two months ago I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and soon saw they were doing just as claimed. I kept on taking them and now I am free from backache, and the painful bladder misery is all gone. I like Foley Kidney Pills so well that I have told many of my friends and comrades about them and shall recommend them at every opportunity." W. A. D. Cragin, Phillips.

The Junior Linotype is guaranteed to be capable of producing 3,000 ems of solid nonpareil an hour, and this output is widely obtained and even exceeded every day. In many offices a speed of 5,000 ems of brevier an hour is not an unusual occurrence.

The Junior Linotype is known today in every state in the union, and in many foreign countries.

The Junior Linotype is not a typesetting machine in the ordinary sense of the word—on the contrary, it is a machine which, being operated by finger-keys like a typewriter, creates or produces type matter made for use on the press or stereotyping table. The machine shown marks a very wide departure from the ordinary method of using single-line letter type. It produces and assembles side by side metal bars or slugs, each slug the measure desired, and having on the upper edge the type characters to print an entire line. These bars, having the appearance of type and answering the same purpose, are called "linotypes."

When the slugs or linotypes are assembled side by side, they constitute jointly a "form" composed of ordinary type and adapted to be used in the same manner. After being used, the linotypes are returned to the melting pot of the machine to be recast into new lines, thus doing away with type distribution.

Each matrix hangs on a wire, and the matrices are used in rotation as the machine is operated. When a key is depressed, a matrix bearing a character corresponding to that on the keyboard is released from the storage wires. The matrices are assembled one by one, and whenever a space is desired, the operator touches the spacebar which releases a wedge shaped strips of steel which drop into their places between the word—the thin end in the line of matrices and the thick end projecting down below the line. They taper from .128 of an inch at the thick end to .052 of an inch at the thin end.

After the line is assembled, the operator pulls a lever which causes the line of matrices to be released from the assemblage and pass on to a po-

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Union Church, Phillips.

Melvin Sherburne Hutchins, pastor.
Calendar for week ending May 21.
Sunday, May 15: 10.30, morning worship, sermon, "An Ancient Drama—Are God's Ways Just?"; 11.45, Sabbath school; 7.30, People's service, subject of address, "Blaming it on the Comet," music by Phillips Choral club.

Thursday, May 19, 7.30 p. m., mid-week prayer service.

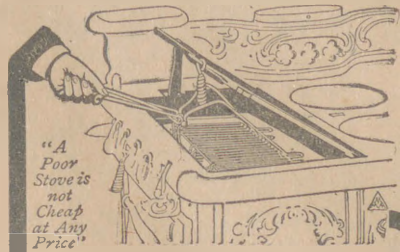

All are invited to attend these services.

Mothers' day was appropriately observed at the Union church last Sunday. The pastor read two passages as texts for the morning sermon: Prov. 23: 22, "Despise not thy mother when she is old," Isa. 66: 13, "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

The first has its authority in the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother." The founder of Mothers' day is Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who, keeping the day to commemorate the death of her own mother, saw in it a day when all might unite in a universal tribute to motherhood. The object, as given by her, "To honor and uplift motherhood, and to give comfort and happiness to the best mother who ever lived"—your mother. The observance—Loving remembrance of your mother (or her memory) through some distinct act of kindness, visit or letter. Floral badge—White flower (preferably carnation) or your mother's favorite flower, to be worn on Mothers' day.

This is not a denominational or inter-denominational movement alone, and every society and organization in the land—social, fraternal, civil, military and religious—is asked to unite in making the observance universal. Honor thy mother. This honor may be shown in many ways. We may honor her by the gratitude that remembers and acknowledges the love, the care, the unselfishness with which she has encompassed all our way. Let me read a little poem by Margaret Sangster:

"A Poor Stove is not Cheap at Any Price"

Our Lift Top Plate not only saves time and fuel, because it permits an even fire feeding, but you can here see how admirable it becomes for broiling. It does not swing out into space, but is lifted by one hand and held by an automatic catch, while the other hand holds the broiler. This is only one of twenty exclusive features incorporated in the which makes it impossible for any other range to equal it. Any broiler can be used, but our New Patented Broiler, which is sold by our dealer separately, holds your steak level, and opens in front, not backwards. We repeat, the unsurpassed cooking qualities of the STERLING come from numerous patented features which cannot be used in any other range, and it is also to your interest to know that solid cast iron radiates more heat than steel or sheet iron ever can. We have the detailed scientific investigation of Cornell University on this vital subject to hand you, as well as our booklet telling why it is only possible for the STERLING to "bake a barrel of flour with a hod of coal." Accept our dealer's invitation to inspect the range itself, and you'll become positively convinced of its vast superiority.

Ye may na hae her lang;
Her voice abune your baby rest
Sae safely crooned the sang;
She thought ye me'er a burden,
She greeted ye wi' joy,
An' heart an' hand in tendin' ye
Foun' still their dear employ.

Her ham' has lost its cunnin',
It's tremblin' now and slow,
But her heart is leal and lovin',
As it was lang ago!

Ah! dinna chide the mither!
O lip, be slow to say

Ay, rin to heed the tender voice
Wha crooned the cradle sang
An' dinna chide the mither, sin,
Ye may na hae her lang."

We may honor her by cultivating the virtues which she loved, and which are told us by the flower, the white carnation, which is the emblem of the day. By its color, white, it speaks of purity; the grace of its form tells of the beauty of character by which we may give the highest honor to her who is our mother. The wide field of its growth speaks of world-wide charity, which everywhere marks motherlove. Its fragrance symbolizes love which day by day she taught us. Its lasting qualities tell us of faithfulness, of motherlove which never fails us, and bids us cultivate faithfulness toward all the demands of life upon us. By these virtues in our lives we honor our mothers.

We honor our mothers by homage to universal motherhood. Last year in preparing a sermon for this day, I looked at many books of biography and I found almost without exception that those men who had become great statesmen, those whose lives had helped the world, had known the influence in their own lives of noble mothers.

We may speak of only a few instances: Washington's mother, Mary Washington, has always been known as doing much to mould the mind and character of "The father of his country." We have delighted again and again in the words of Lincoln saying that all he was, all he might become, and all he might accomplish he owed to his mother. It was to his mother, Susanna Wesley, that the founder of Methodism owed the impulse and inspiration that led him to that great work which made religion for the people something more than form.

Carlyle, in a letter to his mother written on his fifty-eighth birthday, sends her loving appreciation for all her help to him, saying that in all his words to the world, it is really the voice of his mother which speaks.

As we mourn with our mother country today over the death of her ruler, we look back over the life that has closed. Remembering the frailties of its earlier years, we ask what was the power that so transformed that life that in his short reign of nine years he has proved himself so wise a sovereign, so great a promoter of peace, and one of the most eminent of the rulers of the world. We must believe that it was largely the prayers and influence of her whom, when we speak of rulers of England, Alfred the Great, William the Conqueror, Elizabeth the Brilliant, we call Victoria, the Good.

There is another life of which I wish to speak. It is a sad commentary on human nature that drawing away from one error, we go to the other extreme and make mistakes sometimes equally grievous. Protestant churches, seeing the worship, even the deification, accorded to Mary, the mother of our Saviour, have given to her too little of honor and reverence. It was once my privilege, under the leadership of a wise teacher, to prepare a paper upon the character of Mary. Surely hers was an unusual and saintly character. We learn something of it in the words that speak of her pondering in her heart; in the holy utterances of the Magnificat; when in the sorrow of her widowhood she had thought of the happiness of others, fearing that disappointment and chagrin be felt at the marriage feast at Cana, and in her perfect trust in her son, as she bade the servants obey his bidding. We think of her suffering even to the shadow of the cross. I wish we might give more honor to Mary, the mother of Jesus.

There was another text, "As one whom his mother comforteth." When Isaiah wished to comfort and encourage the sad and afflicted Jews, he told them to return to God, to trust and obey him, and that God would comfort them as one whom his mother comforteth. I think this a beautiful compliment to motherhood. The Bible often makes use of illustrations in speaking of God, of heaven and of other things in a way that shows they simply illustrate something that words cannot describe. But this expression says that God's love and compassion and yearning to comfort is as a mother's. Nothing can go beyond that. But all motherhood is not perfect. Some mothers fail in the high place to which they are called. And then there comes a day when mother with all her love must go from us. The love of God passes not away, for his presence remains. Let us, then, trust God, know his perfect love, and receive his peace.

Henry Ward Beecher in a sermon on Peace said: "God says the peace of the man who loves him shall flow like a river, and if ours is not such, it is because its springs are not in Mount Zion—because its sources are the marshes and lowland, and not the crystal fountains of the hills." * * * The mother's arms encircle but one; but God clasps every yearning soul to his bosom, and gives to it the peace that passeth understanding, beyond the reach of care and storm."

Blessings of Competition.

Los Angeles has been trying to induce her two telephone companies to exchange service, so that a subscriber to either one of them will get a whole telephone instead of only half a one. At present, whoever wishes a complete telephone—one, that is, by which he can reach all other telephone subscribers—must rent an instrument from both companies, and not only pay two rentals, but be driven distracted by running to the wrong telephone, or discovering that the number he is clamoring for in a hurry belongs to the other system.

The money loss to the city through maintaining two systems which in part merely duplicate each other, and which together furnish a much less satisfactory service than might be had from a single, comprehensive system, has been estimated at a large sum.

The city thought the first telephone company charged too much. The only remedy it knew was the ancient panacea of competition—to get up a second company that would fight the first one, with duplication of plants and much waste generally.—Saturday Evening Post.

Great Demand for True's Elixir Abroad Will Compel Establishment of Foreign Laboratories.

Mr. William J. A. Bailey, representative of the great Dr. J. F. True & Co. laboratories, Auburn, Me., has recently returned from a round the world trip in the interests of this firm and tells many interesting experiences.

Mr. Bailey found everywhere a ready welcome for True's Elixir, and established depots for its distribution in Honolulu, Yokohama, Shanghai, Manila, Porto Rico, Sidney, Australia, and in India and Egypt as well as principal European capitals.

One fact was surprisingly evident to Mr. Bailey: Native peoples, in Asiatic countries, in spite of the fact that their medical practices are largely folkloric and nearly always mixed with the superstitious rites of the heathen religions, seemed to comprehend at once the great value of a medicine like True's Elixir.

This appreciation bids fair to develop a colossal trade and will undoubtedly compel the firm to build laboratories at many of the present points of distribution.

It seems very possible that the 60th anniversary of this house, which occurs next year, will see a world-wide distribution of Dr. True's Elixir. Certainly the volume of business done in the first three months of the present year would indicate it.

Just in time with kidney pills

Means curing the back

Before backache becomes chronic;

Before serious urinary troubles set in.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this.

Here is testimony to prove it.

Mrs. M. N. Marston, Court St., Farmington, Me. says: "For about six months I had symptoms which led me to believe that my kidneys were disordered. There was a pain in the small of my back, my feet and ankles became swollen at times and I always felt dull and languid. I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills spoken of as a good kidney remedy and I finally obtained a box. They brought me quick relief and before long the pain had entirely disappeared. The swellings in my feet and ankles also went down and I felt better in every way. I will gladly give my name in recommendation of Doane's Kidney Pills, as I have found them to be an effective kidney remedy."

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Croup and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It's a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Other Strong news on page 3.

The following recently appeared in the Kennebec Journal:

Rev. H. A. Clifford, the new pastor of the Winthrop Methodist church, was born in Monmouth 45 years ago, the son of Rev. N. C. Clifford. He is a graduate of Kent's Hill Seminary and of Wesleyan University, where his high rank admitted him to the Phi Beta Kappa society; he studied Hebrew and Theology under the late President Harper of Chicago University and in Boston University; he was for several years instructor of ancient languages and mathematics in New Orleans, and later traveled in Europe. He became a member of the Methodist church at twelve years of age and has served as pastor in that connection in Waterville, Richmond, East Wilton, South Paris and Strong. As an educator Mr. Clifford has served as school superintendent in the towns of Richmond and Wilton. Old Orchard and Paris and has been president of the Franklin County Teachers' association.

Mrs. Clifford is a graduate of Kent's Hill. Before her marriage she taught in Chattanooga University for four years. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford have four children: Nathan Clifford; Dr. Gerald Clifford of Detroit; Miss Marguerite Clifford, a graduate of Bates college and now a teacher, and Donald, a boy ten years old.

Wheat Cleaned Six Times

"The equipment for wheat cleansing is as extensive and expensive as that for grinding purposes. The freedom of flour from dirt and bacteria shows in its appearance."

Prof. Wm. Jago, in National Association Review.

Wheat specially selected for William Tell Flour is stored in hermetically sealed tanks, at Ansted & Burk's big mills.

It is cleaned six times before grinding. Everything—even the sewing of the bags—is done by clean, bright machinery.

Note how much purer William Tell is than other flours. This means wheat cleaning by the most complete equipment known to modern milling science. William Tell Flour has the brilliant bloom such as only Ohio wheat can make. Ask your dealer, and insist on having—

Saturday of last week.

We noticed by a recent issue of the Rumford Falls Times the death of Mrs. James H. Kerr, at the age of 37 years. Mrs. Kerr has been in poor health for some time, and has been under the doctor's care for tuberculosis. Her death was caused by internal hemorrhage. She was a member of Purity Rebekah lodge. It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs.
Kerr resided in Phillips some months while Mr. Kerr was on a contract here.

ted to Farmington jail on May 4 by Trial Justice D. R. Ross to await the action of the grand jury for breaking and entering the house of Jesse Voter. He was given a bond of $200 and couldn't furnish it. The break was made May 3. Mrs. Etta B. Parker was held for improper conduct with Willett. She failed to furnish $200 bonds.

Quite a number attended the May fair at Farmington last Thursday and Friday. A special train was run on Friday evening to attend the opera,
which was pronounced one of the best attractions ever placed on the stage there.

Deputy Sheriff Bell got Chas. Bal-

at the Elmwood Htel, Phillips. Mr.
Henry was sent bre by Dr. A. K.
P. Harvey of Wasington, who owns Camp Burnside at Long Pond, and spends his summer there.

Dr. Blanchard ofPhillips has a hen that has certainly made a great record. The doctor rports that he saw her standing in te front yard one day acting queerly and while he looked at her she "laid" two eggs. And there were other witnesses to the transaction. Dr. Banchard says that both eggs were sot-shelled ones, but were full size. Th doctor has eight hens and one of them is setting. The others are laying regularly, so that he gets seven eggs every day and some days nine.

The Kings daughters had an enjoyable evening at the home of Mrs.
Oscar Beede last Friday. Games were played and delicious homemade candies were served.

The decorations at the Union church last Sunday were in charge of the following committee from the Kings daughters: Misses Dallas Voter, Algie Pratt, Arvilla Hersey and Marion Wells. The church was prettily decorated with festoons of green and white crepe paper, potted plants
and a large bouquet of white carnations. The music was by some of the members of the choral club, Mrs.
W. B. Butler, Misses Malo Robbins,
Mildred Mahoney, Fern Voter, Messrs. Maurice Wade, Reno Atwood and Donald Goldsmith. Miss Mahoney rendered a fine solo.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Spaulding of Riverside, Cal., are planning to settle in Phillips soon. Mrs. Spaulding was Miss Ethel M. Worthley, formerly of Avon. Mr. Spaulding has rented the studio known as the McKeen studio and will do artist work. Having been in the photograph business in California, he comes well recommended.

The welcome sound of the whistle
at the Brayman Woodenware company's mill was heard last Tuesday for the first time. It is a good sounding whistle and we hope it will penetrate the ears of Phillips residents for many years to come. The company is hoping to be able to begin business in full swing next Monday.

The High Cost of Living.

I have visited the
CITY MARKETS

A second time this spring for new goods.

I now have the Automobile Bonnets

A stock of small hats for elderly ladies, in fact all sizes up to the largest.

Have new shirtwaists and children's heavy school hose.

NEW START

We are going to take a new grip and continue in business. We withdraw our offer to sell the business.
The business outlook for our town is fair. We expect to sell a few goods every day. We have not got any street lights, and I don't know as we need any. Personally, I don't need any. But if there are tax payers enough in this village and town who do want or need
the streets lighted I will make an attempt to get lights,
not for all night, but for half the night.

A Regular Tom Boy

was Susie—climbing trees and fences, jumping ditches, whittling, always getting scratches, cuts, sprains, bruises, bumps, burns or scalds. But laws! Her mother just applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve and cured her quick. Heals everything healable—Boils, Ulcers, Eczema, Old Sores, Corns or Piles. Try it. 25c
