BEAR AND MOOSE HUNTS.

INDIAN AND CANADIAN HAVE EXPERIENCES LONG AGO.

Summer, 'Me, Feb. 22, 1911.

A short time ago the writer was passing an afternoon in camp, visiting a couple of wood choppers on the south west side of Long mountain and not very far from Sumner.

It was a very rainy day, just the day for telling hunting stories. We had not talked very long when I called on my old friend, John Matthews, who is a veteran moose hunter of Shelburn county, N. S. with upwards of thirty-five moose to his credit, to tell of one of his real moose hunts as I was sure it would interest very many readers of Maine Woods.

John said, "I hardly know at so short notice which one to give you. I have been on so many. But here goes:

"In the year of 1900 Tom Paul, a full blooded Indian pard, and I packed up our necessary supply outside of meat, for what we thought right for a week's stay in the woods and left Lockport the last of December for Cooper Trap Woods where we had a cosy little camp which was twenty one miles from where I lived and ten miles from Tom's home, the latter being all very heavily wooded. While going over Oak Hill we saw moose tracks at every hand. When we reached camp the sun was almost down. We laid down our supplies and guns and began to pick up dry wood for night. A short distance from us we saw a large bull who had taken fright at the noise from our axes. He crossed a little barren meadow right in plain sight. We kept as quiet as possible, gathered up our wood and went to camp very tired. We built the fire, ate a very hearty supper and turned in for the night.

The next morning we arose very early but the weather was against us for moose hunting, so we ate breakfast and got rested in good shape took a walk up an old log road towards Mud lake. We saw plenty of signs but did not leave the old road for the wind was nno tin our favor and we returned to camp.

We put in a good night's rest and the following morning the wind seemed to be all right and after eating our breakfast we enjoyed a good long drag at our pipes and set out for six moose ridge. We had not gone far when we saw where seven moose had crossed the trail. Tom said, one of them "had snowshoes" on. We followed them until they yarded. The wind had died out and as it was night we thought it best to leave them and on our way back Tom, who was in the lead came to a halt suddenly and said, "big bear, John, quick," and as I was about two rods in the rear I hastened to where Tom was standing and at the mouth of a den made by two mammoth trees blown up by the roots, the bear was looking out at us. Very soon she disappeared but in five minutes we could see her again. I fired in on her this time and she was our bear.

While we were hauling her out we saw a cub in the den also. I fired in on him and as it was quite dark in the den I only broke a fore leg and out he came and Tom landed him with a shot from his rifle.

We covered up the old bear and picked up the cub and again started for camp.

On arriving at camp we made a good fire, ate and enjoyed a good smoke and talked over the day's experience and went to bed.

The next morning we arose early, skinned the cub and had some of his steak for breakfast.

It seems as though I can taste it now. If you never eat any cub steak you do not know what you have missed. We lit our pipes and started for the big bear. She was a monster. We cut a strong pole and with a hitch rope each of us carried in our pockets.

We lashed her to this pole by putting one around her body by the flank and the other just back of the arms and both around the pole, each taking one end of the pole on our shoulder.

WINCHESTER

REPEATING SHOTGUNS.

Winchester Repeating Shotguns are not only safe to shoot, but sure to shoot. They are easy to load or unload, easy to take down or put together, and strong and reliable in every way. That's why the U. S. Ordnance Board endorsed them as being safe, sure, strong and simple. Over 450,000 satisfied sportsmen are using them.

E. T. HOAR, Rangeley, Maine.

ders. We started for camp and it was a heavy trip. We were happy boys when we reached camp and laid her on the snow. She measured seven feet and two inches and had the nicest skin we ever took off from a bear. When we got both bears quartered and hung up, it looked like a meat market. When we got this job done it was time for dinner and we broiled some of the cub steak and made a good strong mess of coffee and after supplying the wants of the inner man we laid back on the deacon seat and lit up our old pipes, which were nearly strong enough to walk. We spent the afternoon in camp talking over our experiences in and around this good old camp that Tom and I built more than ten years before and we have not missed our annual trip. Game seasons we have made two trips here.

My eyes glanced up at the camp (Continued on p. 3.)

The Marlin Repeating Shotgun

Made famous by its dependability. The solid top and side ejection keep gases and powder away from your eyes; help quick, effective repeat shots. Rain, sleet, snow and foreign matter can't get into the action. The mechanism is strong, simple, wear-resisting. The double extractor pull any shell instantly; two special safety devices prevent accidental discharge while action is unlocked, and an automatic recoil block makes hang fires harmless. All Marlins are strongly made, finely balanced, accurate, hard hitting guns, and are the quickest and easiest to take down and clean. Illustration shows Model 24 grade "A" 12 gauge; it has all the features that make for a perfect gun.

"Welcome brother hunters. Build a good fire, sit down and be happy. If there is anything in the little cupboard that you need, help yourselves. And when you break camp leave plenty of good dry wood for at least a good day's fire. Yours for camp life, John Matthews and Tom Paul, owners."

Towards night we went out in the yard I said to Tom, "there is moose hunting in the air for us in the morning." It was coming in very black in the west and was beginning to snow a little. We were running quite short of grub and worse yet our tobacco was most gone. The next morning we found it had snowed about four inches; enough to soften up the crust and make good moose hunting and day light found us leaving our little camp on our way for a moose hunt. We had not gone more than one fourth of a mile when we came upon the tracks where five moose had crossed our road only a few minutes ahead of us. Tom was paying close attention to the tracks and I had turned around for something and to my surprise in a thick clump of hemlocks I could see a moose just getting up from where they all had spent the night. I whispered softly to Tom and he fired. The moose was not over twenty paces from me and face to me. Both of us pulled on the moose and it was ours.

In the morning it was my turn to take the old road for civilization after Mr. Corbett who lived in the nearest house, who had hauled a good many moose and bear out for Tom and myself. He has a fore quarter of each animal for his pay.

On my return home and at one of my neighbors there was a man from New York that had just come out of the woods with a guide, and owing to bad hunting conditions had not reaped a harvest. When our ship pulled in we sold him the two bear skins and one quarter of the big bear meat for $45 and every body was happy. The New York man said his folks would laugh at him if he went home empty-handed.

Yours for Camp Life,
Emerson P. Bartlett.

STATE OF MAINE.

The Adjutant General's Office,

Augusta, February, 17, 1911.
General Orders No. 9.

1. On and after March 1, 1911, postage stamps for official use of officers of the active militia will be issued on request to The Adjutant General. Such requisitions will be made on Form No. 46 and no other items will be included on a postage requisition. First requisition will be made with a view to covering probable needs for the period ending June 30, 1911. Thereafter requisitions will be made quarterly in advance in the months of December, March, June, and September. When the time is insufficient or it is otherwise impracticable to secure postage stamps on requisition, officers may purchase the same but will in each case secure a receipt from the party from whom the purchase was made, such receipt to be submitted as a sub-voucher to claim for reimbursement. Expense vouchers for postage up to and including February 28, 1911, will be allowed without sub-voucher, but no claim for reimbursement for such expense contracted after that date will be allowed by the State Auditor unless supported by sub-voucher herein mentioned.

II. Hereafter regimental and corps commanders will seasonably notify The Adjutant General of any vacancy occurring or about to occur in the commissioned strength of their respective commands and at the same time will recommend convenient date for holding the election to fill such vacancy.

III. In accordance with Special Orders No. 25, Headquarters Department of the East, Governor's Island, New York City, January 31, 1911, the inspections scheduled in General Orders No. 2, this office, c. s., will be made by the following officers of the Regular Army:

Coast Artillery Corps—Captain Harold E. Cloke, Coast Artillery Corps.

Second Infantry—First Lieutenant John B. Barnes, 5th Infantry.

Medical Department—Hospital Corps—Major William W. Reno, Medical Corps.

By Order of the Governor:

Elliott C. Dill,
The Adjutant General.

THE MOUNTAINER.

By John Ritchie, Jr.

Today the members of the Appalachian Mountain club to the number of one hundred and twenty-five or thirty are on their way to Jackson, N. H., for the principal snow-shoe outing of the year. It is now a good many years since this place was selected for the winter trip, the first party to this village being in 1889. The first trip, a purely tentative one, was to Arden Cottage then in its first year, this being really the first public house in the village the construction of which was suited to the needs of winter. This party was a group of adventuresome individuals, men and women, who were to brave the perils of the Arctic season in New Hampshire, where the thermometer drops on occasion to thirty or forty below, and in the accoutrements of fur and wrappings the members would put to shame even the bulky trappings of the chauffeur of today. One pair of snowshoes graced the outfit, and saw service in the ascent of Thorne, where, the record hath it, the mountaineers were able to rest in the lee of a rock in the sunshine without the need of outer coats at all.

The real snowshoe work of the club came a few years later when a small party, including the Mountaineer and

Semi-Smokeless Cartridges

Still hold the world's record in 22 cal. indoor shooting, 2481 out of a possible 2500, made by W. A. Tewes at Grand Rapids, Mich., in 1906. SEMI-SMOKELESS Ammunition, for nearly 15 years, has defied competition and imitation. It is the original and only SEMI-SMOKELESS—others have tried to produce something just as good, but have failed.

PETERS SEMI-SMOKELESS cartridges have made good, and have won their present leading position in the ammunition world on merit. Do not be misled; specify PETERS SEMI-SMOKELESS and do not accept a substitute, but stick to the kind that has made and holds world's records.

Mountaineers, the latter the only one of her sex daring to brave the conditions, made headquarters for a week or more at the Eagle Mountain House, which from its elevated location made the mountains that close the upper valley of the Wildcat about equally accessible. Tobogganing in two slides down the road to the village, three-quarters of a mile distant, was the tamer of the experiences, the toboggan chute proper, at a gradient of perhaps sixty degrees was more exhilarating, while the free toboggan lazily sliding down gentle slopes, indifferent apparently as to which end should be the prow and always a question as to which edge of a flat-iron-nosed embarkment it would take, was always a delightful sport. The snowshoes on this occasion, more than twenty years ago, took the trampers into a good many unusual places. The summits of Thorne, Tin, Middle and Double Head were easily gained; the party mounted high up on the almost vertical side of Carter Dome, gaining Pulpit Rock, but with too little time for the summit, which was made the next year by starting an hour earlier from the house. Tuckerman ravine was another splendid climb, then first tried in the winter time, the pioneer of a score of subsequent visits of large parties. Subsequent years have added to the list of achievements on snowshoes every mountain in the vicinity. Parties have climbed Kearsarge and Moat, others have pushed their way up the valley of the Rocky Branch and have gained Resolution. Giant Stairs; the related peaks of Wildcat and Carter Dome have been scaled; parties have attacked the mountains about Crawford Notch and the list has been increased from modest Willard of the first year to all of the peaks in the Great range from Clinton to Munroe, while Washington has been ascended every year by small parties, including one or more women. There are therefore no new worlds to conquer at Jackson, but its hotels are used to winter mountain parties and it takes two of them to accommodate the present party, and there is always a pleasure in doing a second time and usually more easily the difficult work of past years. So the present party in its ten days of absence will climb everything in sight from its hotels, send a party into Tuckerman, some members of which will ascend Washington, and in the spare time there will be rambles through the winter woods, races and sports on the whitened campus, a swift run to Crawford's and a lot of evenings filled with entertainments of varied kinds.

The earliest snowshoe party of the club during the present season was that already noted at Christmas time to Wilmington, Vt., in the Green Mountains with Haystack for its principal climb and about thirty members "assisting." The second was last month with about twenty-five to Gorham, N. H. The weather and snow were not very favorable but the usual climbs were taken on the Moriah range, with two members of the party achieving Mount Washington. These men, J. W. Hillburn of Salem, and Guy L. Shorey of Gorham, walked up the carriage road and on the return coasted the four miles from the Halfway House on a toboggan, which they had rigged with brakes.

Finely Artistic Printing

TONES up a sluggish business wonderfully, and is bound to improve a business that is already flourishing. Does your business show signs of a decline? We trust not. Still, you could probably stand still further prosperity.

We hold the key to the situation, and have in preparation a handsomely illustrated booklet, beautifully printed in colors, which tells all about it. It is free, and we shall be pleased to receive your request for a copy early.

Incidentally we are doing as fine printing as can be turned out anywhere, and our prices are moderate. We have the latest and most pleasing styles of type and material. Write, telephone, or call.

at the foot of Mt. Zircou, the third highest mountain in Maine. It is surrounded by farm and timberlands of seven hundred acres. Has an artificial pond fed by two natural trout brooks of pure spring water from the mountain and is alive with trout varying from 1-4 to 2 pounds. Protected by state laws. We took from the trout last year over 200,000 eggs which went to the state hatchery at Oquossoc, Maine.

There is not a more ideal spot in the state of Maine for a private summer home or a club house. The scenery is beautiful with nice paths through the forests, where are plenty of deer, partridge and small game. There is a large level plot suitable for a golf course or tennis court. The property occupies the entire valley, is only about four miles from Rumford Falls and the Maine Central railroad and is reached by a good carriage road.

We offer this property for sale.

THE REAL ISSUE IN MAINE.

A TALK ON PROHIBITION.

(Written for Maine Woods.)

I have read somewhere recently that alcohol will remove stains from summer clothing, but do you know that it will do more than that. It will remove the summer clothing, and the winter clothing, and the furniture and the smile from the face of the wife and 'appiness from the home.

It is said that Col. Ingersoll and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher were speaking in the west at the same time and that the friends of both were anxious for a joint debate. Mr. Beecher met the Col. and said to him at the dinner table,

"Col. Ingersoll, I saw a sad sight today."

A Young Hunter.

"What was it?" asked Col. Ingersoll with interest.

"A man was on crutches and trying to make his way along through life as best he could and another man came along and knocked the crutches from under him," said Mr. Beecher.

"The villain," said Colonel Ingersoll with indignation and Mr. Beecher said to him,

"Col. Ingersoll, thou art the man."

Every man ought to be a moral giant perhaps, but every man is not.

Every man ought to be able to walk alone and unaided, but every man is not and unless others help them their end will be dark and awful.

As long as there are saloons men will find them no matter how remote they are. How? You and I perhaps may not know any more than we know why a shark can tell two miles away the presence of carrion, but shall we because we allow the saloons to exist continue to tempt them? There is a scientific prohibition. A noted authority recently said that alcohol even if taken in minute doses paralyzes the white cells of the blood. Those who drink cannot stand against the assaults of disease.

There is prohibition everywhere and we cannot trust those who make darkness light and light darkness.

It is claimed by some that the liquor business would bring great revenue into the state and increase the industries of the state. A Kentucky newspaper gives the following analysis of the product of a bushel of corn when it is turned into the channel of the liquor industry:

"The distiller gets four gallons of whiskey, which retails at $16.80. The farmer gets twenty-five cents. The United States government gets four dollars and forty cents, the railroad company gets one dollar, the manufacturer gets four dollars the drayman gets fifteen cents, the rumrunner gets seven dollars, the consumer gets drunk, the wife gets hungry, the children get rags, the politician gets office."

In 1890 the drink bill of the United States was $1,550,425,167, while the debt of all the states and territories combined the previous year amounted to $1,135,210,442. With the drink money for one year, it will be seen, this country could have paid off all the debts of every state and territory in the union and then had the magnificent sum of $415,214,725 for national improvements.

The saloon is not necessary for revenue, in spite of the fact that this argument is repeatedly used as a bait to get the unthinking.

The Hon. Mr. Gladstone, speaking to the London brewers on this question, said: "You need not give yourselves any trouble about revenue. The question of revenue must never stand in the way of needed reforms. But give me a sober population, not wasting their earnings on strong drink, and I shall know where to obtain revenue." Nothing further than the words of this prince of legislators is needed on this phase of the question.

Three years ago the figures show that Ohio under high license had an increase in pauperism of 138. High license Illinois had an increase of 176 per cent, while under inefficient prohibitory legislation in Maine pauperism decreased 245 per cent. Ring it out; tell it abroad. These results are satisfactory to any thoughtful citizen of the state. We need better enforcement but even under the conditions which have obtained the showing in this connection is not detrimental to the state.

May God ever bless the workers for temperance. Their cause is the cause of God. Let us never forget that the real issue in Maine is to protect our people from the power of the rum traffic. And the most effectual weapon we have to do this with is our present prohibitory law impartially enforced. The highest issue of all must be the protection of our homes, schools and churches. And if Maine is true to this grand, true great and inspiring issue, the business of the state will not be neglected, neither will she fail to prosper.

"God give us men! A time like this demands

Strong minds, great hearts true faith and ready hands;

Men whom the lust of office does not kill;

Men whom the lust of office cannot buy;

Men who possess opinions, and a will Men who have honor, men who will not lie;

Men who can stand before a demagogue,

And scorn his treacherous flatteries without winking;

Tall men sun-crowned, who live above the fog

In public duty, and in private thinking—

For while the rabble with their thumbworn creeds,

Their large profession, and their little deeds,

Mingle in selfish strife, Lo, Freedom weeps,

Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps."

THE CHARITY CLUB.

BEING A STORY OF SEVERAL GIRLS IN CAMP.

The Outdoor Life, Boating, Fishing and Rambles in the Woods—Sports Freely Indulged in Bring Health and Happiness—What the Maine Woods is Doing for Wise People.

(By H. L. Goodwin.)

Near the end of the first season of Camp Charity, Mollie had one of her calls to the wild, which resulted in an experience she will never forget, and which apparently has, at least partially cured her of her weakness. As it happened only last season it is still very fresh in her memory and none of her companions can think of it now without a shudder of horror. After a sleepless night of tossing on her soft bed, she exclaimed to Louise Bradley, with whom she slept: "I can't help it, dear; I've just got to do it. I can't stand it a moment longer. I've got to get away from it all for a whole day and Rufus Anthony has got to take me and bring me back safe to-night."

"But—" expostulated Louise.

"There are no buts about it," hastily interrupted Mollie. "I've just got to go. I know it seems mean and all that, when there is so much to do; and it is mean; and it is very hard on you girls. But if I don't go I shall go wild before night, and do something terrible. Now don't say another word; that's a dear." And nobody made any further objection though Rufus Anthony was cautioned again and again by the other girls, to take care of their restless friend, which he promised faithfully to do, though he little knew what a task he was giving himself.

Mollie asked Rufus to row her to a cave on the opposite shore of the lake, which she had expressed a desire to explore, and he promptly obeyed, not without some misgivings. Arriving near the mouth of the cave, she told the young man to make his boat fast and bring the lunch basket ashore.

"Rufus," she said pathetically, "I've got to see the end of that cave. I've dreamed at night and thought of it by day until I can neither sleep nor think of anything else, and I've got to have it over with. Of course you'll come with me?" Opening the lunch basket the girl drew out a pack age of candles a small lantern and a bunch of matches which she had carefully stowed away without the knowledge of her friends.

"Of course I shall go with you if you go, Miss Mollie, but you'd much better stay out of there. It's a fearful place and nobody has ever seen the end of it. There's strange noises in there and strange things that make the blood run cold. Lots of people have started to find out what's there but nobody ever staid long enough to and I reckon nobody ever will. I wish you wouldn't go, but I can't let you go alone, no matter how fearsome it is," replied the young man hesitatingly and undeniably very much afraid.

Though a man in stature and twenty years of age, when young Choate entered the cave, lantern in hand, followed by the girl with a lighted candle, his teeth chattered, hard as he tried to keep them still. The girl noticed it.

"You are not afraid are you, Rufus Anthony?" she questioned wondrously.

"Well, Miss Mollie, I don't think there's much that scares me except girls (he was fully aware of his bashfulness), but this is an uncanny place and there isn't a person hereabouts that dares go a hundred feet in here and I suppose I'm no better than the rest. But if you go I guess I can," was the half-hearted reply.

"What is there to be afraid of, I should like to know? There are no wild animals about here that can do any harm, and as for ghosts, I don't believe in them, so they don't have any terrors for me. Now, what is there, Rufus, to be afraid of?"

"I don't rightly know what it is, Miss Mollie but there's something about it nobody can understand, and I guess if you go in you'll find out as much as I know about it, and maybe more, soon enough."

Rufus entered the cave as bravely as he could, and the girl, who had no superstitious fears, followed eagerly. The entrance was not much wider than a house door, and was well covered with bushes, but twenty feet in the passage broadened into a wide, high cavern in the side of the mountain. The place was bare of vegetation and as they proceeded cautiously the musty smell as of stagnant air, increased, suggesting poisonous gases or possible animal life, and strange noises seemed to be ringing in their ears. Still the girl urged her companion on; "I've got to see the end of it, Rufus; then we'll go back and I'll be satisfied but never before. If you're afraid, give me the lantern and I'll go on alone."

"No, I'll go where you do, no matter what happens," was the chattering but determined reply.

The cavern gave an abrupt turn to the left, and its very suddenness deceiving them, they bumped into the slimy earthen wall for the place was full of moisture. The girl gave a faint little scream and tremblingly grasped her companion by the hands dropping her candle in the operation. It sputtered and went out. The boy calmed her as best he could and lighted another candle. She took it timidly and with a piteous little quaver admitted.

"Oh, Rufus I guess I'm afraid after all. Take care of me, won't you please? Oh, I must see the end of it; then I want to go."

"I will take care of you," was the determined reply.

They proceeded slowly and cautiously, almost by inches but still advancing, the boy and the girl holding hands like frightened children. Suddenly the girl gave a piercing scream, dropped her candle and threw her arms convulsively around the startled boy's neck. He looked and saw a dozen round eyes of fire apparently peering at them from the blackness. There were strange noises, too, but he did not know what they were. Nor did he care, he was too much absorbed in the work before him. He had promised to take care of the girl.

Clasping the warm body tightly in his arms the terrified lad groped his way back through the darkness to the light. His lantern had been knocked from his hand, and the light had gone out when she grabbed him; he ran into the walls of the cavern half a dozen times before he saw a dim light ahead though the opening; but after what seemed an age he reached the open air panting and breathless.

Then he looked at his burden still inert in his arms, the soft sweet face lying almost against his own. He could not resist the temptation; he kissed the girl twice on the lips. Then he laid her gently down on the grass by the water, and moistened her forehead and chafed her hands.

"What did you kiss me for, Rufus?" was the question that greeted his startled ears while he still though her unconscious.

"Wh-wh-who kissed you?" stammered the young man, blushing a furious red.

"You did; you know you did!" was the surprised, half-hurt, yet pleased exclamation of the girl. "Now don't deny it; you kissed me when you thought I was in a faint and I want to know why you did it. Tell me at once, Rufus Anthony."

"Be-be-be-cause I love you and I couldn't help it. Pl-pl-please forgive me. I didn't think you would ever know it, and I didn't mean any harm. Please forgive me."

"Silly, of course I forgive you, and I could have forgiven you sooner. But what is there in that cave that frightened us—I mean me—so? I want to know as badly as ever I did. What was it, Rufus Anthony, dear?"

"Dogs, just wild dogs," was the brief but happy reply.

And as Rufus Anthony rowed away they saw half a dozen gaunt, wild-eyed creatures devouring their dainty lunch; but they didn't care; they had other things to think of.

The young ladies at Camp Charity felt terribly scandalized when Mollie told them her love story and of her engagement, but she bore their scorn with rare good will. She still has calls to the wild, but they are of a different nature and she doesn't go alone.

The Charity Club made such a success of its first season with summer boarders that it now owns Camp Charity free of debt, and is looking forward to other profitable seasons, not without good reason.

The Hermit.

I am not lonely in my forest home,
Forsaken not—these are my bosom friends,

The lordly moose and e'en the loon that sends

His heart piercing cries down paths I roam,

In wildernesses where the sun glows ever bright

In summer's close embrace that lends

Fervor unto my soul. Winter that attends

My roaring fire thru the dim chimney's flight.

I am not lonesome there!

But on the city's dusted street I grope—

It seems my heart sinks to the filthy stones.

Faces I see each mark a forlorn hope—

A ship cast on the sands. The smothered moans

Ame writ upon their brows. Yea, I am lonely there!

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

The King's Daughters will meet Friday evening, March 3, with Mrs. Bertha Chandler.

The regular meeting of Sherburne Chapter, O. E. S., will be held Wednesday evening, March 8. The entertainment committee for this meeting consists of Elma Byron, Ruth Austin, Flora Kelley, Mary Cushman and Mary McKenzie.

The Ladies Social Union will meet with Mrs. C. F. Chandler next Tuesday afternoon, March 7, at 2.30 o'clock.

The engagement is announced of Miss Emma P. Gleason, teacher at the Austin school Kittery, formerly of Phillips, to Mr. Edward B. Craig of Amesbury, Mass.

Miss Estelle Barker was in Portland last week.

Mrs. C. H. Kenniston was in Farmington Saturday.

Joseph C. Holman of Farmington was in town last week.

Dr. C. W. Bell of Strong was in town Tuesday.

The officers of the Eastern Star are requested to meet at the hall next Tuesday evening, March 7, at 7.30 for a rehearsal.

H. L. Goodwin and daughter, Miss Hilda L. Goodwin visited friends in Farmington last week, going by team.

According to the programmes for the Carnival of Nations at Farmington last week three Phillips young men have engaged in new lines of business. Cannoll Knapp advertised pigs for sale, DeBerna Ross advertised pressed hay, and strictly fresh eggs seem to be the specialty of J. Blaine Morrison.

Mrs. Edward Greenwood of Farmington was in Phillips the guest of Mrs. N. H. Harnden several days last week.

Mr. Lester Bean of Bethel, who has been teaching the grammar grades this term has been engaged for the spring term in the same position.

Mrs. Sylvader Hinkley of Rangeley Superintendent of schools in that town attended the Interscholastic speaking contest Friday evening, and spent Saturday with friends in town.

The next event in the Union Sunday School Lecture Course is the lecture on Abraham Lincoln to be given Thursday evening March 16, by J. Everist Cathell S. T. D of Indiana who is one of the foremost platform speakers of the country. It is seldom that in a small town one is privileged to hear a lecturer of such eloquence and ability. It is possible now only because he is to appear in Farmington the following night. Dr. Cathell has now more than one hundred engagements in advance and in some large cities is to be paid one hundred and fifty dollars for the same lecture that he is to give in Phillips.

Richard G. Woodridge, pastor of the First Congregational church in Wallingford, Conn. says of this lecture "In language simple, chaste and beautiful, a masterly orator gave us a picture of a master of men."

Let all avail themselves of this opportunity of listening to the story of Lincoln's life from one who from the remembrances and observations of his own childhood is able to enrich the portrayal of this greatest of Americans: Union church, March 16, 1911.

Miss Birdena Plaisted has been spending a few days with Mrs. A. B. Toothaker.

Chester Wing recently purchased a nice colt of Badger & Son.

Miss Mildred Toothaker is spending a few days with her brother, Mr. Fred Toothaker.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Toothaker were guests at Mr. Fred Davenport's Sunday last.

W. V. Larrabee went to Madrid one day last week on business.

Mrs. Sarah Cates was the guest of her daughter Mrs. Otto A. Badger one day last week.

Miss Edith Harris of Salem was in town last week to attend the High school contest, she was the guest of Mrs. Cora Knapp.

Mr. Henry Badger and Miss Ella Oakes of Rangeley were in town the first of the week.

Miss Alice True has come to Kingfield to assist her sister, Mrs. R. D. Knapp, with the house work.

A very enjoyable whist party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Graffam last Saturday evening; the following participating: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Haley, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Russell, Dr. and Mrs. E. T. Currier, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Beedy, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Morton. Gilded walnuts held the place cards tied with blue ribbon. Delicious refreshments of sandwiches, fruit salad, cake and coffee were served.

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

The Monthly Business meeting of the Congregational church will be held in the vestry Tuesday evening, March 7.

Mr. M. W. Harden has had another attack of rheumatism this week and has been unable to attend to business.

Mr. Eugene Soule was in town Tuesday en route to his home in Rangeley after a stay of two months at Karsdale, N. S.

There will be a rehearsal of Hope Rebekah degree staff this Thursday evening. All members will please be present.

Mrs. Edward Greenwood was the guest of Mrs. N. H. Harnden several days last week, returning home on the Sunday train.

Mr. C. E. Parker of the Phillips Hardware company left Sunday for a month's trip South.

Miss Louise Atwood of Auburn was in town over Sunday.

Miss Edna True returned Monday from a visit in Portland and Dorchester, N. H.

Mrs. H. B. Austin, Miss Ruth Austin, Mrs. J. W. Brackett and Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Field spent last week at the Augusta House, with Messrs. Austin and Brackett and attended the Governor's reception and ball.

The special music by the Choral club last Sunday evening was a duet by Miss Pearl Johnson and Charles Hammons; solo, Mrs. Mildred Mahoney; solo, Miss Johnson. Rev. M. S. Hutches gave another very interesting illustrated lecture on the Philippine Islands. There was a very large attendance which was most encouraging to both pastor and Choral club, who are trying very hard to make the Sunday evening services interesting and profitable. We hope the citizens will continue their appreciation. It means much work for Hon. N. P. Noble, who is director of the club, and for the members to meet for rehearsal each week and an hour or so each Sunday before the service.

Those persons who are gladly hoping for the coming of the time when minor religious differences will be forgotten and the spirit of unity prevail, will be interested to know that the pastor of the Union church has received a circular letter from Robert Codman, Bishop of Maine, requesting that throughout the Lenten season public prayer be offered for the increase of harmony and unity among the churches of Christ. Such a request is the happy result of a recent action of the Episcopal church of America when a board was appointed to work for church union.

The story published a while ago to the effect that the price of toothpicks had dropped from $28.80 to $8.00 a case proved to be a faker. We have it from the best authority that there has been no general decline in the price of toothpicks but that one kind only has dropped from $28.80 to $14.40 and a few cases have been sold lower than that.

Mr. Willard M. Chandler is at the National Soldiers' Home, Togus for the winter.

The next regular monthly business meeting of the teachers and officers of the Union Sunday school will be held with Miss Albertine Butterfield Monday evening, March 6.

Monday morning many relatives and friends of Ralph B. Smith and Mary E. Sullivan witnessed their marriage at St. Anne's church Manchester, N. H.

Henry McKeon acted as best man and Miss Mary Sullivan, bridesmaid. After a wedding breakfast at the brides home Mr. and Mrs. Smith left amid rice and confetti for a trip to Maine. Mr. Smith is a son of the late George L. Smith of Augusta and is well known there and in Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith of Livermore Falls has been visiting Mrs. Smith's parents Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Dill for a few days.

WATER WORKS TALK.

Correspondent Says We Should Buy As Farmington Did.

Phillips, Me., Feb. 28, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

The fact that there was a little freeze up in our water main for a few hours a week or so ago, should not discourage anybody about the Phillips Village Corporation ultimately owning the water works. Farmington village corporations paying every cent of her taxes from waterworks profits. Phillips can do exactly as well. Our waterworks are well constructed on the gravity system.

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

We have been obliged to omit much valuable news this week consisting of the Whiten-Houghton wedding at Weld county correspondence, report of ladies' day at the Grange, etc., but expect to be able to use the entire matter next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Dill, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dill, Carroll and Glendon Dill were guests at Dill Bros. Sunday.

Louis A. Phillips, who was shot by Ernest H. Swain at Farmington as reported a week or two ago and who died at the Central Maine General hospital from the effects, was a son of the late Charles Phillips of Avon and was well known in Phillips. He worked on the Phillips and Rangeley railroad gravel trains quite a good deal and will be remembered by a peculiarity in his speech. The remains were brought to Avon. His age was 30 years, 5 months, 20 days. Swain was arraigned on the charge of murder in the municipal court and bound over to await the action of the grand jury at the September term of the Supreme court. Counsel for Swain made a plea for the release of the respondent on bail, but Judge Holman refused and ordered him to be locked up.

Mrs. Myra Dill Smith of Livermore Falls visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Dill, over Sunday.

The Ladies' Social Union, met with Mrs. F. A. Lawton Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. The following committees were appointed: Executive, Mrs. Belle Butler, Mrs. Jennie Dutton, Mrs. Nell Parker; social, Mrs. Jennie French, Mrs. Bertha Austin; entertainment, Blanche Kenniston, Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. Hiltor aprons, Mrs. Ida Morton, Mrs. Edith Haley; fancy work, Mrs. Esma True, Mrs. F. A. Lawton, Mrs. Addie Parker; white work Mrs. H. L. Goodwin, Mrs. Ina avenport, Mrs. Blanchard.

The Wilton town basket ball team defeated the Phillips Athletic association team Saturday night 25 to 20. The summary will be given next week.

TWO COMPANIES ASK LEGISLATURE FOR CHARTER RIGHTS.

The fact that the Phillips Electric Light and Power Co., is asking for a charter enlarging its powers and that a new company to be known as Sandy River Power and Development Co., is also asking for a charter to do business in Phillips, Avon, Strong Rangeley and Madrid is creating a good deal of interest here.

Neither charter asks for the right to take over any water power by the right of eminent domain.

Both charters ask for the right to erect and maintain dams acquired by purchase.

The Sandy River Power and Development Co., further asks for the right to acquire the property of the Phillips Electric Light and Power Co. and if they cannot agree upon the purchase price that the price be established under the direction of the Courts in the same manner as is usual in such cases.

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

Charles Dow of Avon, was arrested Saturday night by Deputy Sheriff H. E. Bell for intoxication and disturbing the peace at his home and spent Sunday in the Phillips cooler. Monday morning he appeared before DeBerna Ross, esq., plead guilty and was fined $5.00 and discharged. He was arrested on complaint of Frank Oberton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton entertained a party of friends at whist, Wednesday evening February 22. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Graffam, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Haley, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Beedy. Card board hatchets were used for place cards. A fine lunch was served of creamed chicken, cheese, sandwiches, cake and coffee.

There seems to be a little misunderstanding at the present time in regard to the Boys' Orchestra of Phillips. Two of the members, Donald Goldsmith and Joseph Stewart, have gone to Boston to take a course of music at the Boston conservatory, but in the place Malcolm Barker, a former member of the orchestra, will resume his place as cornetist and Leon Ladd will supply at the piano. These boys are first-class musicians and the orchestra is no way crippled and they want it understood that they are open for engagements at any time and will furnish most excellent music as in the past.

59. Act to incorporate Phillips Electric Light and Power Company.

Too Attentive.

"People who write begging letters are entirely too persistent," said a charity official. "They remind me of a summer resort episode. A young man went there for his two weeks' vacation. He put up at a cottage. He paid about $9 a week. Well, when he came to depart this young man said to the boarding mistress:

"Madam, you have been most attentive to me during my stay here."

"Thank you, sir; thank you very much," said the lady.

"Yes," continued the young man, "you have been most attentive, and not only you, but everybody—everybody in the house, if I may say so—has been most perseveringly attentive to me day and night, and, madam, to show my appreciation I am going to offer you a small present."

"How very kind!" said the landlady, and a bright, expectant smile lit up her face. Then the young man thrust into her extended hand a packet of insect powder and retired hastily."

Puzzling Orchid Imitations.

Orchid imitations are a puzzle to flower scholars. The whole appearance of the flower is suggestive of some insect, sometimes to quite a remarkable degree. It does not seem easy to find any real purpose that could be served by this resemblance, yet no one imagines that it can be accidental. Any one who knew of the bee orchid, a native of Europe, and came upon it for the first time would at once recognize it. It seems to be a large, velvety brown backed bee variegated with yellow. The two petals might serve well for the wings of the insect. In the center of the lip of the fly orchid there is a small bluish spot like the body of a fly. The two lateral petals are slender and curiously like the antennae of an insect. The whole illusion is complete and suggests to the casual glance that a few flies are hanging on the stem of some plant which has cast its flowers.—Chicago Tribune.

Points on the Market.

Old Gentleman (in broker's office)—Now, what do you think I might buy? Broker—You ought to have some Chartered. Old Gentleman—Why, I was only thinking coming up in the train that I ought to sell some Chartered. Broker (who wants a commission)—Well, that's not a bad idea, either.—London Financial Times.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, confidential, and always helpful.

Chinese Laws.

In lemon colored silk a Chinese diplomat talked about Chinese laws.

"Some of our laws, you know, are very stimulating," he said. "For example, Chi owed money to a money lender. Chi would not pay, and the money lender hanged himself on Chi's doorpost. Chi was condemned to death. You see, he was really responsible for the money lender's death."

"A son able to support his parents is imprisoned for life if he won't do so. A son unable to support them is imprisoned for three years, as we hold—and quite rightly—that there must be something wrong with a young man who can't support his parents."

"Our police are excellent, thanks to the stimulus of our law. When a crime is committed a sleuth is put upon the case and given, say, thirty days to land the criminal. If the sleuth fails he himself pays the penalty of the crime, less two degrees. That, too, is a just and stimulating law, for if the police can neither prevent nor punish crime then they should be themselves punished for their rank incapacity."—New York Press.

Superstitious Remedies.

For whooping cough a cooked dormouse is good. In the eighteenth century this remedy was employed in Scotland. Here is another medicament for the same complaint: "Watercress is a very good thing, sir, with a little bit of that brown sugar what you uses to put on to bacon and some honey mixed with it. And I'll tell you what's a good thing for croup but a rusty bacon fat fried down and afore it resolves add some pepper and vinegar. It opens the pipes of the lungs, d'ye see." And if you are adventurous you may try this for "phlegm on to the chest." Catch a "dear little dotty frog" and tie a bit of string to one of its back legs. Then you "keep on letting it go down your throat and pulling it up again." The narrator of this added to T. W. Thompson, who sets down these stories: "It's the truth, young fellow, and it cleared the phlegm out of his throat bootiful, but we wouldn't do such a thing as that."—London Chronicle.

The Englishman.

Just as there is no being more disliked in his own country than the Oxford man who displays what is (most unfairly) described as the Oxford manner, so there is nobody who does more harm to our good name abroad than the Englishman who carries his insular conceit all over the continent—his evident belief that the people, the country and the institutions under his condescending review are obviously and painfully inferior to those he has left behind him. That is the sort of optimism which has to be kicked out of a man before he becomes a tolerable citizen of the world.—London Outlook.

Wounded Dignity.

Undersized young husband calls at the registrar's to give in the name of his firstborn.

Registrar—What is it you want? Husband—To report the birth of a son.

Registrar—Go back, my little man, and tell your father he'll have to come himself!—Liverpool Mercury.

An Ingenious Interview.

An officer once asked Frederick the Great for an interview, which was granted on condition that he only said two words. He presented a petition. "Sire," he said, "sign." Frederick, highly amused, surrendered.

"Ox Eyes" For Two.

The drawback of fancy names for dishes is their tendency to be deficient in prosaic information. Would you order "angels on horseback," for instance, if you did not know what sort of thing it was? And to appeal to the waiter to interpret is humiliating. A correspondent recalls his own fate in the matter of "ochsenaugen" (ox eyes). Having repeatedly seen them on the menu among the pudding class during a tour in Germany, he and his wife eventually ordered them. "Two portions?" asked the woman waiter. "Oh, yes, two portions." It proved that two portions of ox eyes meant six fried eggs—as the final course of a hearty meal. And, as the wife had the moral courage to refuse to eat more than one, the cowardly husband, unwilling to give away that he had not known what he was ordering, had to worry down the five others.

A Startling Hat.

A lady's hat which would no doubt create as great a sensation today as it did at the time of its first appearance in 1352 was that worn by Blanche de Bourbon, queen of Castile, wife of Peter the Cruel. It cost £35 and was made in Paris. The hat itself was composed of de chypre and relieved with great pearls, garnets and enamel work. Children, carved in the whitest of ivory, were depicted picking acorns of pearls from the oak and scattering them to the swine below. Birds were singing in the trees, and at the foot were bees stealing honey from the flowers springing up from the verdure.

MAINE GUIDES' CANOE CONTEST

OPEN TO ALL REGISTERED GUIDES

On Monday, June 26, 1911, Maine Woods will give away a Maine manufactured guide' canoe absolutely free of charge. The canoe will be disposed of through a voting contest and will be given to the registered Maine Guide who receives the largest number of votes. Any registered guide in Maine may compete and the one having the largest number of votes at the close of the contest will be the winner.

Rules of the Contest.

It is essential to the contest that the names of not less than two contestants appear and remain actively engaged until the close. In the event of the withdrawal of all active candidates but one, there can be no contest and the prize will be withdrawn.

A coupon will be printed in every issue of Maine Woods until and including Thursday June 22, 1911, which will contain the last coupon. The contest will close at this paper's business office at 7.30 o'clock p. m. the following Monday, June 26, when the votes will be counted by a committee representing the leading contestants.

- For every yearly new subscriber to this paper (8-page outing edition) at $1.200 votes will be given. For every new subscriber for the local edition (12 pages) at $1.50 a year, 300 votes will be given. A new subscriber may pay as many years in advance as he wishes, and receive votes at the rate of 200 for each $1, and 300 for each $1.50 a year paid, but all these payments must be made in advance at one time.
- For each $1 paid by present subscribers, either arrearages of accounts or in advance on present subscriptions, and whether for the outing edition or local edition, 100 votes will be allowed.
- Changes in subscription from one member to another of the same family, etc., made for the obvious purpose of securing the increased number of votes given to new subscribers, cannot be permitted.
- Each issue of Maine Woods will contain one coupon which, when filled out and delivered at the Maine Woods office, will count as one vote.

There will be no single votes for sale; votes can only be obtained as above set forth or by clipping from the paper the votes that appear below.

Votes will be counted each Thursday during the contest, and the figures of such counting printed in the following issue of the paper.

When a subscription is sent in, please mention the name of the party whom you wish to receive the votes, as no votes can be given if not taken at the time the subscription is paid.

All communications should be addressed to "Voting Contest, Maine Woods Office, Phillips, Maine."

A SUCCESSFUL HUNT.

the tree for future reference, in showing other sportsmen where I had come so near killing two bucks fighting. Mr. Oberholtzer stood where I had stood when I fired at the buck as he ran out and I went in and showed him where the buck ran out from and where my ball had cut the tree. Mr. Oberholtzer said, "Well, you did not have such a good shot anyway," so I felt better, as I had felt that I should have hit that buck and do believe yet I would if I had not hit the tree, but I had no time to pick out a perfectly clear course for my ball, as the buck was running as if he was licked and expected the other buck was after him, but he was not as he ran off the other way towards where I found afterwards the doe had been standing. The snow continued soft for the next two days and all got deer except Jenkins and I, and felt good over it and began to think of breaking camp to get home before Thanksgiving.

So the next morning Herman Harlow took his boat down to the dam through the thin ice and I met him there and found the ice had cut through the thin cedar. I told him I would send him some copper to repair it with when I got home. We left our coats on the dam and got the doe that was hanging north of the dam and carried her towards the boat passing Jenkins and Oberholtzer going up the trail. We walked with them awhile and said it was hardly worth while hunting as the snow had frozen again and made too much noise to get near the deer. However, they went on up the trail and we took the doe on to the dam and left her there and went over on the west side of the dam and had only gone a short distance when a buck sprang up out of a slight ravine and ran up the hill. Herman hollered, "Hey there, hey there," and the buck made a fatal mistake in stopping and turning half way round to look back at us and see what was wanted. He found out and the first jump he made he sprang square against a tree and flew back like a rubber ball and away from sight. Herman said, "You hit him." We went up to where he had stood and saw a trail of blood and followed it a short ways and saw him lying dead. He was a fine eight point buck. We dressed him and dragged him down to and across the dam to our boat and loaded him and the doe on and took them into camp. When Oberholtzer and Jenkins came back to the dam on their way back to camp, Oberholtzer said, "Look there, they have taken another deer," but Jenkins said, "No, that is where they dragged the doe across." Oberholtzer said, "No, they had the boat on the other side and this is fresh blood and we heard Dan's gun over on that side." Jenkins would not believe it was another deer until he saw the buck in camp and heard the story. Then he said, "Well you lucky beggar, to think you should just go over there for a few minutes and get that buck so easy. I might as well give up, as luck is against me."

That night it snowed one inch and early the next morning I said to Jenkins and Oberholtzer, "Now, today is our last day's hunt and I want you to go with me south west from camp," where I had hunted several of the previous days and found when I started deer on south of the trail, they would run down and across near an old lumber camp and when I started deer on the north of the trail they would run down and cross the other way at the same place.

We started early and had not gone very far when Jenkins began complaining about going so far from camp and that there were no more deer signs there anyway. But I urged them on and said, "There will be plenty of signs when we get up into hard wood timber." So we went on up and long before we got up I said, "Now I am going off here to the south. You and Oberholtzer, go on over the trail until you come to the old lumber camps and watch there, I am going across to that knoll. It will take me some time, but I will come around your way unless I start something the other way."

Jenkins looked at me and said "Hang you, Streep, ringing us a way off here from camp and we will not get anything after all." I did not reply, but went off and they went on over towards the old lumber camps. I soon saw two deer feeding in the hard wood timber. They ran into cover before I got a shot at them. I took their tracks on over the knoll and down through the thick growth of green stuff and saw them ahead close together walking. They did not run again and as they got down on the bottom I knew they were not far ahead of me and were heading for on over towards old lumber camps. I hurried along carefully, expecting to see them again every step I took, but as I came nearer the crossing I heard two shots fired close together and I called "Look out, there are two coming." When I heard the third shot fired and Jenkins called to me that he had both of them, I came out to him as he was bleeding the first one and said, "Now you will 'Hang Streep' will you, for bringing you so far from camp and getting two deer in about one-half a minute?"

He laughed and was well pleased that his luck had changed on the last day of our hunt. We dressed them and got back to camp early in the afternoon and made full arrangement to go out of camp the next day, which we did, going by way of Bog Brook and saw the working of the beaver. We cut off some butts from the trees and limbs that the beaver had cut off with chisel-like teeth to show our friends at home. We arrived at the Ledge House in time for dinner where we found Thomas and Nichols already there they having taken the shorter way over the trail. After dinner Nichols challenged Jenkins to shoot at a target. He said "All right, I am your man." They went out and Nichols threw up a small tin can and Jenkins put a ball through it. Then Nichols said, "That was a good shot, but you can't do it again." Jenkins then threw up the same tin can himself and put another ball through it. That satisfied Nichols, he had no can to shoot against Jenkins. He put up a target at 150 yards and came within four inches of it and explained his sights were not adjusted right. He then adjusted his sights and fired again and came within two feet of the mark. Then Jenkins advised him to get new sights on his rifle, which he said he would do by next year. The sled arrived with our deer and baggage and after farewell greetings started off for Carrausset and went as far as Kingfield that evening, so we could take the 7 o'clock train from there the next morning and get home at 5 o'clock Thanksgiving morning well pleased with our thirteen days' of hard hunting.

Let's all join in voting aye to the hunting in Maine, and hope for many returns of the day when we can invite the hunters of Maine to dinner again.

As the toasts seem to have a sort of a ring to them the club rang the warm reception and a standing invitation to come again.

Hunting Record of a "Yaller Cur."

[Morocco Correspondence of Indianapolis News.]

L. N. Barker of the northern part of this county owns a coon dog, commonly known as "yaller cur," which in the last four winters has caught furred animals to the value of $674.85. The dog bears the marks of numerous encounters with raccoons. Its face and body are seamed with scars and only the stubs of its ears remain.

COL. DOOLEY GETS PERFECT SCORE.

Fine Targets Turned In At Myles Standish Range.

There has been little excitement at the Myles Standish club the past week. Colonel Dooley's possible, which he turned out a week ago, is still the talk of the club, but unfortunately it has yet to find a companion. The colonel has been shooting 45s and 46s a plenty, but the 50s seem to be a shy bird. Harry Stevens thinks they are too, for he has been trying to better his 997 prone for several weeks without success. There has been a little shifting around the twelfth prize position and Hall an Dooley have each bettered their score off hand by seven points apiece. John Stevens has started in to do some prone work and has easily slipped into the fourth prize position. Hall has just completed his 20 targets in this position and his total of 960 gives promise of something a great deal better when he gets going. There have been some slight changes in the pistol scores, but none to affect the relative standing of the competitors. Another two-weeks' re-entry match has started but there has been little interest taken as yet in it. Nesmith is the only man who has completed his 10 targets with the pistol, but two other entrants are nearly completed and still others will probably enter next week. The following are the figures in the several matches, correct to midnight Saturday:

CAMP LOCATION WANTED.

Philadelphia, Penn., Feb. 18, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:
A party of us here in Philadelphia wish to form a club and either lease or buy a tract of 50 or 100 acres in Maine. We want good fishing and shooting, and I know of no one better qualified to advise us than you. We would prefer a tract on the new extension of the Somerset Railroad between Bingham and Kineo where we could build a modest camp on a lake not more than a mile or two from the railroad.

A party spoke to me the other day regarding a suitable location in Maine to start a Girls' Summer School and I told them I was going to write you regarding the camp and would also mention the matter of the school to you. This of course should not be too far from civilization and near a town where suitable supplies could be obtained. Any information which you are able to give will be greatly appreciated.

Very truly yours,
C. H. Bowden.

PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST.

CUPS WON BY PHILLIPS AND KINGFIELD SPEAKERS.

The third annual Interscholastic Prize Speaking contest between the Kingfield, Phillips, Rangeley and Strong High schools was held in Lambert hall, in this place, on Friday evening, Feb. 24.

The hall was filled to its capacity, every seat having been sold in the early part of the week; and many additional ones were put in, to accommodate the great demand.

At the preliminaries, which were held in the different towns a week or ten days ago the following speakers were chosen to represent their schools: Miss Flora Amanda Norton and Mr. Orren Luce, Kingfield; Miss Estelle Whitney Barker and Mr. Everett Philo Knapp, Phillips; Miss Mytie Emmet Russell and Mr. Fern Lawson Philbrick, Rangeley; and Miss Lula Mae Phillips and Mr. Neil Glendon Luce, Strong.

The selections were each and every one delivered in a most creditable manner, reflecting much credit upon the speakers. The judges were all from Farmington, namely: Rev. R. H. Clapp, pastor of the Congregational church; Miss Katharine Abbott a teacher in the Normal school; and Prof. A. M. Thomas, sub-master of the high school. They decided that the honors belonged to Miss Estelle Barker and Mr. Orren Luce, thus the cups went to the Kingfield and the Phillips schools. In announcing the decision, Rev. Mr. Clapp, chairman of the committee, said in part: "This is without exception the best speaking, the best contest of this kind that we have ever heard anywhere. It was the unanimous voice of the committee when we met, that at no time and at no place have we ever listened to such an excellent program. None of you are losers, we are all winners."

Miss Estelle Barker who won the cup for the Phillips school, displayed a marked ability in the speaking line, easily winning the first place. She was also the winner of a cup in the first contest, which was held three years ago. Last year she did not compete for the prize on account of illness.

Miss Amanda Norton, who represented the Kingfield school, has also competed before, winning a cup for her school last year at the contest, which was held in Kingfield.

The other cup was won by Mr. Orren Luce of Kingfield, who succeeds his brother, Emmons, in that honor. The other speakers all did exceptionally well in their parts.

The hall was decorated with flags and the banners from the different schools. The stage was transformed into a reception room, which was very effective and artistic, the decorating being done by the committee appointed for that purpose: Misses Helen Hilton and Algine Pratt and Messrs. Lew Noble, Everett Knapp and Malcolm Barker. Much credit is due Mrs. W. I. Blanchard, who so kindly helped the committee in the work. Many are the words of praise that have been heard regarding the fine appearance of the hall.

Immediately following the contest there was a reception in Wilbur hall to which all those who attended the contest were invited and to which invitation nearly all responded. In the receiving line were the principals from the Kingfield, Phillips and Strong schools and an assistant from the Rangeley school, the principal being unable to attend on account of the illness of his mother, and the speakers.

Fruit punch and fancy crackers were served and a social hour enjoyed until time for the special trains to leave. The hall was very beautifully decorated with crepe paper and the banners from the different school this work being done by the reception committee which was composed of: Misses Ruth MacGregor, Mildred Mahoney and Ina Badger.

The entertaining committee was composed of Misses Dallas Voter and AVOID HARSH DRUGS.

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels.

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredients odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with other well known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons and aged people as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in two size packages. 12 tablets 10 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents. Remember you can obtain them only at our store,—The Rexall Store. W. A. D. Cragin.

Ruth Austin and Messrs. Reno Atwood and Hollis Holt.

At the Phillips preliminaries, which were held at the High school on the afternoon of Friday, Feb. 17, the following members took part: Misses Anna E. Beal, Nellie M. Reed, Estelle Barker and Laura Libby and Messrs. Everett Knapp, Lew Noble and Henry Scammon. The committee which was composed of Rev. M. S. Hutchins, Mrs. O. H. Hersey and Dr. Berna Ross, esq., after a due and careful consideration decided that Miss Barker and Mr. Knapp were best fitted to represent the Phillips High school.

The following is the program which was carried out so successfully at the finals last Friday evening:

Newcomb's Definition of "Magnet."

Personally Newcomb was an agreeable companion and a faithful friend. His success was due largely to his tenacity of purpose. The writer's only personal contact with him came through the Standard Dictionary, of whose definitions in physical science Newcomb had general oversight. On one occasion he came into the office greatly dissatisfied with the definition that we had framed for the word "magnet"—a conception almost impossible to define in any logical way. We had simply enumerated the properties of the thing, a course which in the absence of authoritative knowledge of their causes was the only rational procedure. But Newcomb's mind demanded a logical treatment, and, though he must have seen from the outset that this was a forlorn hope, his tenacity of purpose kept him, pencil in hand, writing and erasing alternately for an hour or more. Finally he confessed that he could do no better than the following pair of definitions: "Magnet, a body capable of exerting magnetic force," and "magnetic force, the force exerted by a magnet." With a hearty laugh at his beautiful circuit in defining he threw down his pencil, and the imperfect and illogical office definition was accepted.—North American Review.

Old Time Quackery.

The eighteenth century was the golden harvest time of the quack, against whom some of the fiercest shafts of Hogarth's satire were directed. The quack loved to surround himself with an atmosphere of mystery, which was calculated to impose upon the credulity of his victims. His room was decked with skulls and skeletons. A

Do you know that of all the minor ailments, colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold itself that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that it often leads to. Most of these are known as germ diseases. Pneumonia and consumption are among them. Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your colds while you can. For sale by—W. A. D. Cragin.

brisk trade in quackery was carried on by women. J. G. Wright in his book, "The Good Old Times," records the fact that in the year 1789 "a Mrs. Joanna Stephens was awarded £5,000 by the English government for a proper discovery made by her for the cure of the stone." This 'proper discovery,' adds Mr. Wright, "consisted of a powder, a decoction and pills, the last named being formed from calcined snails, with carrot seeds, hips and haws, the compound being burnt to blackness and then mixed with soap and honey."

A Ludicrous Experiment.

Holmes was one of the many eminent men who have attempted to solve the riddle of the universe. In his case the result was ludicrous. From the sublime thoughts that came to him while under the influence of chloroform he thought he might arrive at some solution. Placing himself in his armchair, with pen, ink and paper at hand, he inhaled the anaesthetic. As drowsiness stole over him the nature of things seemed revealed. By a vigorous effort he seized his pen and wrote—he knew not what, for before he had finished he fell back unconscious. When he recovered he turned with trembling anxiety to the sheet of paper, on which written in scrawling characters, but quite legible, he found the awful revelation, "A strong smell of turpentine pervades the whole!"—London News.

An Accommodating Boy.

A Newark woman who lives in an apartment house changed her iceman not long ago, and the next day the youth who drove the team for the new man put the piece of ice on the dumb waiter in the basement to be hoisted up. She pulled away.

"Heavens," she exclaimed, "that new iceman certainly gives good weight!"

After much effort she got the dumb waiter up to the kitchen level. To her amazement, there was a small boy sitting upon the ice. With what little breath she had left she demanded: "What in the world did you make me pull you up here for?"

"Why," replied the youngster, "I thought maybe the cake would be too heavy for you to lift, so I came up to help you off with it."—Lippincott's.

Navigators' Date Line.

The international date line is an irregular line drawn arbitrarily on the map of the Pacific ocean near the one hundred and eightieth meridian of longitude, marking the place where navigators change their date on the trans-Pacific voyage. This change is necessary on account of the lengthening of one hour for every fifteen degrees of travel westward. By traveling eastward a day will be gained, westward a day will be lost.—New York American.

Some Curious Weathercocks.

The weathercock had its origin at a very early date. Marcus Vitruvius Pollio, a noted Roman architect and engineer, who was born about 80 B. C., in his works calls a vane a triton, probably because in his time it had the form of a triton. The usual form on towers, castles and secular buildings was that of a banner, but on ecclesiastical buildings it was a representation of the male of the barnyard fowl. There have been other forms of vane. The one over St. Peter's, Cornhill, London, is in the shape of a key; that over St. Mildred's church is a gilt ship under full sail. The grasshopper of the Royal Exchange, London, is the vane that formerly surmounted the former exchange. The dragon on the spire of Bow church, Cheapside, is another celebrated vane. One of Mother Shipton's prophecies was that when the dragon of Bow church and the grasshopper of the Royal Exchange should meet the streets of London would be deluged with blood. In what way they should meet the old dame did not explain, but it is known that at one time these two vanes were side by side in the yard of a stonemason in Old Street road, yet there was no shedding of blood.—London Answers.

His Awful Mistake.

A FIERCE NIGHT ALARM. Is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis (Chamblin of Manchester, O., R. R. No. 2) for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. MRS. J. C. TIRRELL

MISS CORNELIA CROSBY.

"Fly Rod" as is known in the news paper and sporting world arrived in town Thursday afternoon for a few days visit on her way to Kingman, Me. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burnham being a friend of the latter. There is probably no woman in the state and very few men so well posted on the inhabitants of the wood and stream as Miss Crosby. She has a world wide reputation in that respect. She has a large number of friends and acquaintances among the Indians and her serving as bridemaid at a well known wedding some years ago is well remembered. Miss Crosby is a very fluent writer in her line and there is a great demand for her writings. She held a brief reception at Burnham's drug store Thursday afternoon for a few friends and newspaper men which was most pleasant and she showed that entertaining was not a lost art with her.

SIMPLY NEGLECT.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

A clipping from your paper has been handed me, reporting that a certain woman and children have hauled their firewood, etc. As many people naturally blame the husband for that circumstance, I wish to say that the wood referred to was piled up to be hauled by team when snow came. On one of his trips home the husband found a part of the wood hauled and understood the work was being done, why it was left unfinished he was not told and it would seem the case was one of simply neglecting to finish the work and having to pay the penalty. The subject of the sermon preached by Rev. M. S. Hutchins at the Union church Sunday morning was "The Public Schools of Phillips." The scripture text or motto was that which has been taken in the four preceding sermons preached by Mr. Hutchins, sermons having to do with God in the land and in the life: Sam 137; 5 and 6.

Doubtless every Jew who heard the words in what was to him a prison-house under alien skies at once felt his thoughts go back to the home land, the land of his fathers, and of his God; at once thought of the homes, thought of his home in far Judea. So, to us, they may speak of home and of God. We have a right to use them to call upon our memories, and to help us to think of those things that have worked, and that do work, for the strength of the nation through home and church and school.

If we were asked what it is that differentiates the American nation from all others of the world we should answer that it is her systems of public schools.

All civilized nations have believed in education. They have seen that those who directed the affairs of state must have wisdom born of knowledge. In the far-away centuries of early history there were schools. Assyria maintained them so, likewise did Babylon and Egypt, Rome and Greece. All these gathered together much learning and many students. But these schools were not for all. They were for the few favored by birth and wealth.

Of all the early nations the Jews came the nearest to the American thought of education for all. Their homes were the God-given which for carrying light and knowledge. In every Jewish home the law was read and the children were taught to know it and to read it.

Very early in the history of the Plymouth colony schools were established. It was not long before they had out grown the confines of New England and were found in New Amsterdam, New Jersey and Delaware.

Then pushing on from that little beginning in New England. Schools were established in Virginia, among the iron mountains of Pennsylvania along the shores of the Great Lakes on the western plains at every cross road telling of a community to be reached, along the region of the Rockies, yes, to the shores of the Pacific. Everybody throughout the land was carried the public school. It is a glorious record. Under God the institution has been blessed to the upbuilding and strengthening of the nation.

Public schools in America stand for many things that should be sought after. There are some things for which they do not stand. They do not stand for a place where children shall be sent that they may be out of the way and that the parents may have great ease, and divest themselves of responsibility.

The schools stand for gladness in the life of the child. For a place where they may spend happy hours growing strong in mind and in body. They stand for the acquisition of knowledge; for the storing in the minds facts which shall be useful in their application to future work. They stand for thought. The arousing and fostering of thought is indeed among the most important of the results attained by the public school. The public school stands for the spirit of true democracy, for social rule visited in the many.

Some years ago a representative of the Japanese educators visited the United States for the purpose of observing her school system. His most severe criticism upon the system was that it did not teach morals. The public schools are not primarily to teach ethics. But let us teach that true patriotism which is ready to serve one's country and which demands morality for her good. More might be done to inculcate patriotism. An occasion for its emphasizing comes on Memorial Day when with the thin blue lines of veterans march the children of the schools.

Much of the teaching that might be given in ethical matters depends upon the understanding of the quality of goodness. It does not lie in religion creeds. True religion may be taught without creed. Most of us remember some faithful teacher whose teaching opened for us little avenues of light to greater and better things in life than we had seen.

I believe the Bible should be in the schools. Thank God it is in the schools of Phillips. No teaching of ethics that neglects it is trustworthy. A great deal of a certain kind of wisdom may be acquired without it but it is wisdom that may lead to evil.

Dr. Noble, in his fundamental book The Pilgrims, tells that he believes after much study of the purpose and motives of the Pilgrims, that the chief reason for the schools which were so soon established, was the wish that all should be able to read the Bible. May the Bible not be taken from the public schools. Rather may it find a larger place in them; not only for reading in the devotion of the morning, but for supplementary reading. Not for teaching any creed, but to teach the ethical standards of God as made known to us by Jesus. May the time be hastened when throughout the schools of the land this shall be done.

The gardner wishing to train a tree to a form of symmetry and grace works upon it while it is yet small. So also the mind should receive the impetus that shall send it toward beauty and worth in the days of its early years.

What is our duty toward the school which hold in their keeping so much of the welfare of the children and young people for whose sake they exist? We should endeavor to teach those who are in the schools to appreciate the fact that the days of childhood and youth are the days of preparation for life's graver tasks, and that in school they may prepare themselves for later years. Do not selfishly take from them any of its days because of social cares that rest upon you. The schools demand more of us than the payment of taxes for their support.

Teach respect for the teachers in the school. It is not often that an unworthy teacher is found there. If they fail to prove themselves worthy they are not long retained.

As citizens we have obligations beyond the payment of our taxes toward our schools.

If the needs of the children demand another playground, see that it is provided for them. Let them see in us that patriotism and that moral worth which the schools should uphold. Let us always and in every place by hope, by word, by explanation, by cultivation of charity toward those whose creeds or beliefs differ from our own, strengthen the esteem with which our schools are regarded. There are many ways in which we may help. Other nations, we trust, shall acknowledge the worth of our school system and introduce its merits into their own.

If we do not remember our schools with our encouragement and our efforts, we are not fulfilling the demands of patriotism upon us. Our obligations toward them open for us an avenue of service, which is a part of real religion and is a part of that service which Jesus taught.

LIFE GUARDS.

The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forming part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British heart is proud of them. Not only the King's household, but yours, ours, everybody's, should have its life guards. The need of them is especially great when the greatest foes of life, disease, find allies in the very elements of life, influenza, catarrh, the grip and pneumonia do in the stormy month of March. The best way that we know of to guard against these diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla—the greatest of all life guards. It removes the conditions in which these make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tone to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a genial warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the greater the exposure to disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the system strong.

quarterly conference of the Salem Evangelical church.

The conference convened at the home of Edgar Wills at 7.30.

The reports of the pastor and officers of the church were read and showed that the church was making advancement in all departments of the work, more money having been raised this year, than in any former year.

After the quarterly conference the annual business meeting of the camp-meeting committee was held. The workers for the next camp-meeting were chosen and the matter of building a new tabernacle was acted upon. The committee voted to build a modern tabernacle that would accommodate, approximately a thousand people.

The association is planning for a large and interesting meeting next year.

The many friends of Mrs. Lora L. Wight, wife of Robert B. Austin of New York, are very sorry to hear of her death which occurred Saturday, Feb. 18. She was a daughter of the late John and Mrs. Wight of Mount Vernon. Mrs. Austin was a graduate of the F. S. N. S., class of 1894, and it was while attending school here that she met Mr. Austin, the oldest son of the late D. W. and Mrs. Anna Betts Austin, who were residents of this village for a number of years. After teaching for some time she was married and Mr. Austin removed to New York, where he was a practicing lawyer. The family have passed their summers here and at Mount Vernon and at the Austin camp at Clear Water pond, Industry. She leaves beside her husband and three children, her mother, three sisters and one brother. Her death was caused by pneumonia.

The breeches Bible.

One of the books which a bibliomaniac handles reverently is the famous Geneva Bible, better known as the "Breeches Bible." This name is due to the rendering of Genesis iii, 7, where Adam and Eve are said to have "sewed fig tree leaves together and made themselves breeches." This had been the reading of the first English Bible, Wycliffe's version, but later translators had substituted the word "apron" for "breeches," and the Geneva Bible reverted to the original. The fact that only one edition of the Geneva version contained this sentence makes the limited number more precious to the book gatherer. The title page of this edition announces that it was "imprinted at London by the deputies of the queen's most excellent majesty" in 1599. The first edition appeared in 1560, and for sixty years this was the favorite Bible with the people, who reluctantly laid it aside for the authorized version in 1611.

It's Your Kidneys

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Phillips Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Phillips people testify to permanent cures.

Elbridge Dill, Phillips, Me., says: "I am very willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. While I did not have any serious trouble from my kidneys, I at times felt in need of a kidney remedy. When suffering from a dull ache across my back and a weakness of the kidneys, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Cragin's Drug Store. I used them according to directions and the trouble from my kidneys soon disappeared. My back is now strong and I feel better in every way."

A most successful Charity Flinch Party was enjoyed by the members and friends of Oppalunsi Chapter O. E. S. at Masonic hall Feb. 22.

The hall was appropriately decorated with flags in honor of the birthday of Geo. Washington. Flinch was played until nine, when a short programme of vocal solos and readings was given, after which refreshments consisting of sandwiches, doughnuts, cookies, and coffee, were served.

Souvenirs of the occasion were conundrum menus written on Washington birthda. cards. A grand march lead by W. M., Mrs. Nina F. Sprague and W. P., Mr. W. I. Smith, was the next thing on the program, followed by games, singing of patriotic and old familiar songs, was enjoyed by everybody and the party broke up at a late hour, hoping for more good times in the future.

There were no schools Feb. 22, it being observed as a holiday.

Set up and take notice all of you who are buying of mail-order houses. What it the world are you thinking about? Sending your good money away, out of your own reach, and out of the reach of your neighbors and friends. Spend your money in or as near as possible to your own town, and you will get some of it back and your neighbor will get some of it, and it will help the trader, and help to build up the town, county, and state in which is your own happy home. But when you send this hard earned money to Boston, New York or Chicago is your chance very good at getting any of it back? Does money spent in Chicago build up Maine? But you say that you don't care where your money goes after it leaves your hand. Is not Maine worth trying to build up?

Berchard Wintman has taken rent in S. G. Haley's house on Dodge St. Last Saturday evening about fifteen young people met at the home of Silas Blodgett to give Mrs. Mary Tyler, who makes her home there, a surprise party, it being her 80th birthday. Mrs. Tyler, who is blind, is a ready conversationalist and always enjoys having callers. She particularly enjoys singing and the guests promptly responded with the songs she liked best. Quite a few tokens of remembrance were left her, among them being 17 quarters, from as many friends, who were unable to call. Peanuts, apples and candy were generously passed by Mrs. Blodgett. At the close prayer was offered by Rev. M. S. Hutchins and the guests departed, wishing Mrs. Tyler good health and many more happy birthday.

The bride to be had the air of one who is unreconciled to the existing state of affairs. "Can't we take a wedding trip, as we planned?" she asked plaintively.

"Not just now," said the young man, "on account of my partner's illness."

"I thought it would be such fun, taking that six days' journey in the cars," she sighed.

"Well, now, see here," said the young man. "If we take the flat I looked at yesterday it'll be just the same as living in the parlor car state-room, except that the scenery won't change."—Youth's Companion.

The Book For Him.

There was a backward student at Balliol who for failure to pass an examination in Greek was "sent down." His mother went to see the master, Dr. Jowett, and explained to him what an excellent lad her son was. "It is a hard experience for him, this disgrace," said the old lady, "but he will have the consolation of religion, and there is always one book to which he can turn." Jowett eyed her a moment and then answered: "Yes, madam, the Greek grammar. Good morning."

The Judge's Slip.

A judge once made the following charge to a jury: "You have heard the evidence. The indictment charges the prisoner with stealing a jackass. This offense seems to be becoming a common one, and the time has come when it must be stopped or none of us will be safe!"

The Test.

Nell—But how is a girl to know when she is in love? Belle—I suppose when she thinks as much about a man as she does about her dressmaker she may know it.—Philadelphia Record.

Entrancing View.

"What do you think of the view from the hotel veranda?"
"Magnificent! I can see four hair-esses right from where I sit."—Pittsburg Post.

The following story is vouched for by Brother Moore, formerly of Seattle: "At the Hotel Washington, in Seattle, was stopping a couple of very nice and proper ladies, who, one night, essayed to attend the theatre, the "Moore", in the same block as the hotel, and as the affair was of some note, the house was crowded and the best the ladies could do was to get seats on the aisle and one in front of the other.

After taking their seats, the lady in the rear seat discovered that her next seatmate was a rather austere and dignified looking gentleman who appeared to be wholly alone, at least, he was not entering into any sort of conversation with the lady who sat on his other side.

A happy thought occurred to lady No. 2 (in the rear) to this effect: the man, being apparently alone, probably he would be willing to swap seats with lady No. 1 and thus secure a seat on the aisle for himself and bring the two friends together in the seat back of him.

After conferring with each other, Lady No. 2 quietly addressed the gentleman on her right thus:

"Please, sir, are you alone?"
No response was made to this, and soon it was repeated and still no response, though she thought the man stirred rather uneasily.

Nothing daunted, the lady again whispered, "Please, sir, are you alone this evening?"

Then out of the corner of his half-closed mouth hissed these words, to the evident discomfort of lady No. 2 and possibly to the amusement of lady No. 1.

"Get next! Get next!" hissed the dignified gent—"this is my wife on the other side."

The performance on the other side the curtain was of less interest for the remainder of the evening.
