MID-SUMMER RUSH IN SEPT.

Extreme Heat of Cities Keeps Many Guests at Lake House.

(Special Correspondence.)

Rangeley Lake House, Rangeley, September 15.—Mid-summer in September! and every one who is fortunate enough to be at this charming spot, surely is to be congratulated, for word comes from Boston and New York that the last two days have been the hottest ones of this summer.

There are now more people than ever before enjoying the hospitality of the Rangeley Lake House the middle of the last month of the season. This is just the time for the automobiles to come from all directions, some to tarry only for dinner while others remain for days.

John Mason Tilney, who has been in New York this week is expected to return on Saturday.

The morning dancing classes of Miss Gladys Gilman of Bradford, Mass., continue to be very popular both with the little ones and the grown ups. Mrs. Myron L. Whitcomb of Haverhill, Mass., comes this week to be the guest of Miss Gilman at the farm.

Mrs. Ralph Kendall has returned from a week's trip to Boston and Providence, R. I.

Hon. and Mrs. F. E. Boothby of Waterville were heartily greeted by their many old friends on their arrival Friday for a week's stay. Mr. Boothby who for many years was General Ticket Agent for the Maine Central Railroad took a great interest in the development of the Rangeleys as well as other parts of the state and no one has done more to help make known Maine as this play ground of the Nation. Mr. and Mrs. Boothby have done much to help forward many a good cause and they are known and loved all over our state. They are accompanied by a well-known Washington, D. C., lady, Mrs. J. Eiken Gadsby, who has for years been prominent in the Daughters of the Revolution. This is the first time she has had the pleasure of visiting the Rangeleys and is charmed with the region. Mrs. Gadsby has with her an original pen and ink sketch on parchment by the great artist Rembrandt of himself, done in the year 1635, which is a work of art that those who are interested have much enjoyed seeing.

Theodore DeWitt of New York, after several weeks at Grant's, Kennebec, was here for a few days this week.

Mrs. A. A. Tilney and daughter, Miss Bertha Tilney of Brooklyn, N. Y., were heartily greeted by old friends on their arrival this week and plan to stay until the hotel closes.

The following party from Germantown, Penn., after a week's stay, left here to-day in their car for the trip through the White Mountains: Mr. and Mrs. W. P. M. Braun, Miss Mildred Braun, Miss Anna E. Holm, Miss Emelie Baker.

Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Little of Bridgewater, Mass., have been enjoying the past week at this hotel.

Mid Summer Luck In SeptEmBeR

The following party who are touring in their automobiles reached here to-day and will tarry a short time: Dr. and Mrs. Herman C. Pitts, Dr. Lucius Kingman, Mrs. E. A. Kingman, Miss Kingman of Providence, R. Bristol, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Pitts of C. F. Hutelins of Boston came by train Monday night and Tuesday was joined by Mrs. Hutchins and their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Crocker and child, who came by auto and as usual will spend the last weeks of fishing at Rangeley.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Fay of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo W. Cole of Auburndale, Mass., who have been at the Balsams, Dixville Notch, coming by the chain of lakes reached here last evening and express themselves as greatly pleased with this their first visit to Rangeley.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Jordan, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., are among the late comers who plan a ten days' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Adams and daughters and Miss Jackson of Nayatt, R. I., while touring Maine in their automobile spent part of the week here.

J. F. Liscumb and Jos. W. Kilborn of Portland were here for over Sunday.

Judge M. J. Mulqueen and son left for New York this morning and the family who have been here for the season remain ten days longer.

The following party of well-known Portland people motored up for over Sunday: Mrs. W. H. Milliken, Miss E. B. Milliken, Mrs. S. E. Cole and Mrs. George D. Libby.

Col. John Caswell of New York, who has been in Vermont for two weeks has returned for the last of the fishing.

Miss L. V. Griffith and Miss J. K. Hood of Philadelphia, who came from their home by auto are delighted with this hotel and remain for some time.

(Special Correspondence.)

The Barker, Mooselookmeguntic Lake, September 14.—Prof. Edward Goodridge of Southborough, Mass., who has for several weeks been at the sea shore is enjoying the September fishing and expects to have a partridge for his supper to-morrow night. This week he has brought in a good pair of salmon, weighing 4½ pounds and 3 pounds.

Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Ingalls of Hartford, Conn., after a stay of over a month went home Sunday, and the Doctor found this just the place for rest and returned ready for a winter of hard work, but his 3½ pound salmon was the largest he caught, as Mrs. Ingalls took the fish and the honors too, for luck was with her and all congratulated her on landing a gamy 5¼ pound salmon that kept her on the anxious seat, for more than an hour before she brought the fish to net and David Haines the guide landed him. A 4½ pound salmon that she caught just before going home was a beauty.

M. Hampton Todd who is here for the season with Ernest Goodwin guide, this week landing a pair of good salmon, one a 3-pounder, the other 5½ pounds.

Mrs. Harry Farrington of Yonkers, N. Y., with Henry Bunker guide, records a 3¼ pound salmon. Mrs. W. H. Stevens of Englewood, N. Y., one 3½ pounds. Otis Mason guide.

Some of the younger people have been successful with rod and reel. Master DeQ. Richardson of Germantown (Continued on page four.)

SALMON, THE KING OF FISH

Pennsylvania Angler Praises the Ouananiche and the Fishing at Upper Dam.

By W. A. Allen, Johnstown, Pa.

The tale of a trout-fisherman grown up to an appreciation of the wonderful sport offered by the ouananiche or land-locked salmon is the burden of this little story. Also perhaps its moral is that the light trout tackle, if it is good, is big enough even for the monsters of the Upper Dam pool, which only the elite of the fishing cult attain, and where the retention of anything less than a three-pounder is a crime against all the laws of men and anglers.

From trout fishing in the mountain streams of Pennsylvania to luring the salmon from the pools of the Kennebec region might seem to be a far jump, but in reality it is not so different, except in the size of the fish. He who would visit the Maine paradise in search of the lordly salmon may count also on such trout fishing as he has seldom seen, for four-pound specimens of fontinalis are not rare.

And for fear that a note of jubilation herein may be taken as one of too great self-esteem, I am going to let it be known that so far as the salmon are concerned I was a veritable green-horn until last year when I made my first trip and got a taste of the wonderful sport offered by ouananiche. And so, when this year I journeyed to the famed Upper pool and with a 3½ oz. rod cast my little flies forth on the waters that shelter monsters, I had to face a battery of skeptical eyes whose owners were devoted to heavier rods and leaders; and the greenhorn may be pardoned a little note of self-congratulation when it is recorded that he upset the traditions of the pool, the theories of the salmon fishermen of years' experience and the stolidity of the Maine guides by taking the most and the largest fish with his little Pennsylvania stream outfit (at least his record stands highest of the year as this is written).

From John W. Cook and George Fig, Jr., and a few others around my home city of Johnstown, I had heard much of Maine fishing and last year made my first pilgrimage to that region. The result is, as an ardent disciple of Old Izaak, I have put Maine on my list as the place above all others where I want to go each year, and if fortune smiles, I shall build me a place in that angling paradise and spend the fishing moons there each year.

When I went this year to the famed Upper pool, I took with me an outfit that seemed to arouse the pity of the experienced salmon fishermen on that pool. My companion, T. J. Fearl, of Johnstown, I had advised to take a heavier outfit, but I was determined to see whether I could handle the big fellows on the lightest of tackle, and it surely was some gratification to confound the good-hearted sportsmen, who took me aside and tried to point out the error of my outfit, by taking more salmon and bigger salmon on my feather-light rig, during my stay than did any of them, and some of them not have the strength to meet the emergency presented by a lively four-pounder.

Not presuming or to be or posing as an expert, I cannot generalize on the salmon and his ways, nor yet do I care to spin my theory on tackle in detail. Such information, as was gained by my experiences, however, I will be glad to give for the benefit of the brethren, for like every true fisherman I want to see the other fellows try things my way once or twice.

Presuming that ye angler has equipped himself with the best to be had in the way of rod, line and leaders, I shall go on to the flies, for there are one or two things I learned about flies for salmon that seem interesting to me. I find that the medium sized flies are the best, and No. 10 and 12 hooks seem to be the most killing sizes. Color I believe in, but not shades. If a salmon is inclined to rise to the fly, it makes little difference what fly you use, but when they are lying dormant one must have proper and effective flies to attract the fish. I daily life. Nowhere else can you get so close to nature and to God's outdoors as in camp.

Some of these camps are virtually small hotels where you have the best of fare and attractive rooms where the anglers and guides hold nightly sessions to tell their stories. The majority of camps are a series of cabins, some having as many as 25 grouped around a large cabin which contains the dining room, office and assembly room. The individual cabins are very comfortable with a good-sized living room, a fireplace, from one to four beds and hot and cold water. These cabins form a cozy community, connected by board-walks to the dining room.

The salmon is the greatest and gamest fighting fish the world knows and the opinion is that there are more salmon in Maine to-day than there were 100 years ago. This is due to the intelligent and well-administered fish laws, and the careful watching of the guides and wardens, with the abundant stocking of the streams. Early in the spring the smelts are scattered in all parts of salmon in one day, prohibiting you from transporting them out of the state and compelling you to have a licensed guide who will be a deputy fish warden.

A man may have all the material to build a house, but if he is not a carpenter he has trouble to build a chicken coop out of it. It is the same way with the fisherman. He may have all the material to fish with for trout, but if he has not studied the habits of the fish he will be better paid by sticking to bait, though the real sport is lost to him. Salmon fishing reminds me a great deal of fishing for Brown trout. Salmon rise very slowly to the fly and do not take the fly coming up, but take it going down, therefore, you must give them more time. But when you hook one of them you would think the river was full of submarine boats. They cut up the funniest capers you ever saw. A good salmon will sometimes take out 100 to 200 feet of line on the first rush and at such speed that your reel becomes hot, then out of the water he goes from one to six feet, shaking every inch of his body while in the air, trying to dislodge the hook. Then he is off for another leap for life, and this continues until your salmon is tired out and your guide lands him in a net.

I find that salmon do not feed like trout. They do not rise so freely in sunlight as they do before the sun comes up or after the sun goes down, although I caught several nice ones during the day by numerous changes of flies. I was more successful during the daytime on the No. 14 Midgel with very fine leaders. The salmon do not rise like trout. There may be 50 salmon in one pool and you may cast over them 50 times and never get a rise. I wasted a great deal of time trying to find a reason for this but finally got good results by going back from the stream and sitting down where I could get a good view of the pool. When I saw a salmon roll or churn, as they call it, I would get busy and cast right where the fish rose. Nine times out of ten the fish got my fly.

Later in the evening you can use much larger flies and brighter patterns. When the fish are feeding No. 6 and No. 8 are very good killers. But a salmon will fight much longer and harder in the daytime than in the early morning or late evening.—In The Open.

SOME UPPER DAM BEAUTIES

have made this pool their Mecca for years and know every stone in it.

Lest the unwary reader be deceived, however, into trying any such stunt with ordinary American-made tackle, however, I will say that my leaders and flies came all the way from England and are the finest and strongest that can be made, that the little rod has been tried and found true and strong as steel, and that I would not think of depending on any ordinary outfit of the weight of mine, because I know it would believe that color is the great attraction in such cases. You must also have the proper hook for the waters you are fishing, a heavier hook for heavy running water and a lighter hook for the still pools and slow clear water.

I believe this advice is sound, but I am ready and willing to change my opinion, if shown. Practice and study should be the motto of all salmon fishermen and all other fishermen too, for that matter, and I believe that one can learn more about salmon-fishing by spending a few hours along a good salmon stream with an experienced fisherman than he could from all the books that were ever published. It makes no difference how wise you are on other fish. The salmon is a law unto himself and I have seen some awfully good fishermen fall down flat when they went up against the salmon. They are great fighters and no man can foretell the point they are going to start for or where they are going to stop, but there is only one thing you can be sure of and that is that sooner or later the body of the fish is going to flash in the air once, twice, three or perhaps 20 times as he leaps high out of the water and tries to shake the hook from his mouth.

There is no sport that takes quite the same grip on a man as fishing. It is a sort of tender passion that grows in strength as long as we live and the first salmon, dripping fresh from the water, brings a feeling of exultation nothing else can. More and more every year busy men take time to go fishing, one of the simplest and most innocent of delights.

Just a word about the character of the places which offer hospitality to the salmon fisherman in the Kennebec region. These are divided into three classes—the farm boarding house, the camps and the hotels. Camp life is to most people the ideal woods life, offering the comforts of civilization with sufficient touch of the primitive to make you feel you are in the woods. It is a complete change from your

the lakes and have not yet commenced to run up the brooks. As soon as the call to spawn comes they congregate in millions around the mouths of these brooks and are easy prey for the salmon. The salmon are gorged with food and will not take any lure but live bait. The smelt run lasts from one to two weeks and when this is over good salmon fishing starts. The salmon himself is still much a mystery of the deep whose coming and going no man has yet charted and proven. The salmon puts an angler to the test in selecting his lure. The simple truth is that only a small proportion of early fish are taken on the fly. When fly fishing is good it is preferable to bait fishing. The bait fisherman, too, must know just what the salmon are taking, where the bait is to be obtained and how, and how to secure and use a half dozen substitutes. After the fish is hooked on bait the same skill is required to net him as if one were fishing with the fly.

About August 1 the fly fishing starts. Then comes the real sport. Just think what you would do with a five-pound salmon jumping out of the water six or eight feet with a No. 12 fly in his mouth. It takes from 15 to 30 minutes to land your fish. Talk about your Rough Riders. If he doesn't take you over the rocks up and down the river bank I'll eat my hat.

A number of Johnstown sportsmen are taking a keen interest in the salmon. I would not be surprised to see salmon introduced in the waters of Pennsylvania. The fish was brought here way back in the '70s and hundreds of thousands were hatched at Donegal and distributed in various lakes with very poor returns. There have been various changes in conditions of water since then, and the salmon is more domesticated, so I would not be a bit surprised if an attempt at planting now would be successful. But first we must have a law allowing you to kill only two he sticks to Sickle plug and slices off each pipeful as he needs it.

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

Mooseheadmeguntic House, Haines Landing, September 11.—"We are glad to be here, and shall stay until the last day possible, for our friends all write from the city it is very hot and we can always find a cool place up here," said a New Yorker when asked, "How soon do you go home?" There is now a good deal of travel across the carry, for these are the days when people like to take the trip over the lakes and through the White Mountains.

The night Pullman that arrives every Saturday morning has been very popular during the season and three gentlemen came to this hotel this morning for a few days' fishing. E. L. Rankin of Boston, Messrs. J. W. Norcross and E. H. Phinney of Springfield, Mass., and they intend to have a good fish story to tell before going home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bethall and son, Master Franklin and daughter, Miss Janet Bethall, have since the first of August greatly enjoyed log cabin life. Tom Canadian is their guide, and it was great sport to watch the little miss land her first salmon of 3 pounds that she caught trolling and her little brother only 12 years old, caught one 3 1/4 pounds and has become quite an expert with a fly rod and is proud of the eight trout he caught in Kennebec stream.

Harrison Cassard of Selden, Va., who with his wife came in June, have had a most delightful summer. Mrs. Cassard went home Wednesday and Mr. Cassard, with Tom Splaine guide, has gone over to Magalloway for a camping and fishing trip, planning to return the last of the month.

L. A. Kniffin of Westfield, N. J., who had a pleasant time last autumn has returned, accompanied by his friend, E. F. Stevenson of Plainfield, N. J., who comes for the first time and with Irwin Fancy guide, expect a good time fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Drummond, R. R. and H. H. Drummond and Mrs. Wheeler of Portland, coming by automobile made a short stay this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Carr of Boston were here for two weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Briggs have closed Camp Frye for this season and have returned to Washington, D. C. The flag will fly for this month, telling that Mr. and Mrs. Garrett A. Hobart will be there and entertain friends before returning to their home in Patterson, N. J. The family have been at Poland Springs as usual for the summer, now and then making a run by automobile for a short stay in camp.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Spotts, who for the season have been at "Doraljo," their beautiful summer place opposite Camp Frye, are now in New York, but we understand plan to return before the season ends.

Camp Houghton was closed on Wednesday and the Ashton family returned to their home in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Midebengue of Bay Shon, N. Y., and Mrs. Midebengue's mother, Mrs. Drumm of Montreal, Canada, have greatly enjoyed the past month in one of the comfortable and home-like log cabins.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Warnock and party of Jamaica, N. Y., who came the first of July for their annual summer in camp, returned home this week, also Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gilmore of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carpenter of Providence, R. I., have closed their camp for the season.

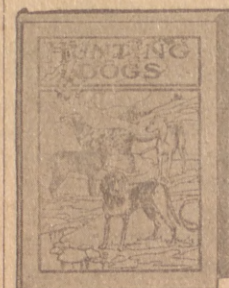

Thursday morning everyone was much interested in watching the crew of A. L. Savage here at the Landing. The men came across country from Green's farm with 12 horses, hay, provisions, etc., which were loaded onto the big scow and towed the lake by Capt. Barker's boat and through the wood road they went to Richards ponds, where as last winter Mr. Savage will carry on extensive lumbering operations. The men go this early to have the camps built, roads made and everything in readiness before the snow comes.

Herbert L. Welch and Jim Cameron have a wonderful fish story to tell. They went up to Kennebec and with Charles Cushman guide, on the Middow grounds caught on the fly 42 trout none of them weighing less than 2 pounds. They killed only three of the number that weighed just 12 pounds.

CURATOR JAMES IS A PEARL HUNTER.

Curator James of the State Museum is a pearl hunter. He searches Maine waters for Maine pearls. Altogether he has gleaned about 40 pearls this summer, the majority of them of small value and some of no real value. He recently made two finds in one afternoon, both which were entirely worth while and either of which would have made him happy over the result of his hunting. He first found a very beautiful pearl, almost round, of high luster, and weighing perhaps five carats. It was a beautiful find and he was pleased with it. Within a few minutes he found a yet more beautiful gem, weighing probably about 14 carats. This pearl is a perfect one, oblong in shape, a lustrous white, and of the same appearance over its whole surface. Curator James has decided that this,

SPORTSMAN HAS BIRTHDAY

New York Sportsman and Sons Back from Long Canoe Trip.

(Special Correspondence.)

Mountain View House, Sept. 14.— Mr. Archibald Montgomery, Jr., the popular sportsman of New York annually celebrates his birthday in the woods on September 12th.

Mr. Montgomery has been on a canoe trip the past month, accompanied by his sons, Kenneth and De-Forrest, Judge W. Roger Fronefield, of Moylan, Pa., and four guides.
The trip was planned a year ago and covered a distance of over 500 miles by train, automobile and canoe, "to say nothing of the 497 miles we walked," added one of the party in telling of their journey over to Moosehead, then through the wilderness to Fort Kent and up the St. Johns River.
Owing to the low water and other weather conditions the trip proved to be a hard, although an enjoyable one.

However, through the weeks in the wilderness, they kept track of the days and returned on the noon train the 12th, as planned, met by a large delegation of friends at the railroad station with cheers.

At 4.15 p. m., automobiles and carriages left the Mountain View for Dodge Pond where the birthday was to be celebrated in the camps occupied this summer by the Fronefield family.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. De-Forrest Montgomery, of Beacon, N.
Y., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Montgomery, of Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs.
Ben. B. Bryan, Arnold C. Sayer, E.
W. Snyder, of New York, Mrs. I.
Newton Lewis, Miss Kathryn McInerney, Miss Jessie Moise, of Greenwich, Conn., Miss Cornelia T. Crosby, Phillips, Judge and Mrs. W.
Roger Fronefield, Miss Elizabeth
Fronefield, A. Herman Wirz, of Moylan, Pa., Mrs. N. R. Schommaker of Nyack, N. Y., and F. A. Newlin, of Boston, Mass.

The dining room camp was decorated with firs and the place cards hand-painted by the mother, Mrs. Bryan.
The artistic centerpiece for the table was a birch log which had been hollowed out for a scroll of birch bark, hidden amid wild flowers and autumn leaves. The scroll contained the following poem:

"When the twelfth of September is over;

And this party a thing of the past;
When we're scattered and far from each other,

(For only sweet memory can last.)
We shall have, and I hope we'll enjoy them,

Each, a picture of this great event,
As a little material token,
Or the wonderful evening we've spent;

And those of our friends who are absent,

And no one shall think of the future,
But only the present and you,

And so Mrs. Bryan and Kathryn have thought out the plan for the fray,

And sent for the 'kodak' and Kimball,

To celebrate "Monty's" Birthday."

The menu consisted of olives, salted nuts, stuffed dates, steamed clams, lobsters, broiled chicken, corn

on the cob, etc., etc.

The handsome birthday cake, decorated by Little Louise Fronefield with 55 candles and a wreath of pansies, contained a ring, thimble and coin, and "Dame Fortune" is supposed to favor the recipient of each.

Mr. Montgomery was seated at the head of the table, and at the right, Mrs. I. Newton Lewis, the witty toast mistress.

During the feast, one of the guests appeared as a Western Union Messenger Boy with a large number of telegrams, saying, "Here are words of cheer for Monty Dear, from friends both far and near, 'I'll read them right away.'"

Twenty-eight gentlemen of the New York Produce Exchange, of which Mr. Montgomery is a member, sent this message: "Cheer up, old boy, we all have to have birthdays, but we admire your courage in celebrating them. We wish we could be present to enjoy with you the festivities and hope you may have many happy returns." The Crescent Athletic Club also sent a message of congratulations. Mrs. M. M. Menken's message read:

"A picture comes before me, 'tis bright with color's glow,
A happy group of faces, yes, many
there I know,

Good cheer surrounds the table, the woods they ring with song,
For Monty at the birthday feast is host of all the throng.

He loves a pipe and hammock, he paddles a canoe,
When sunset gilds the heavens with red and golden hue;

When fishing season opens, he gets the biggest 'catch';
My blessings rest on Monty, for Monty has no match."

All were delighted to have Mr.
Montgomery's two sons and their charming wives present for the first time to participate in his birthday celebration. Each guest contributed in some way to the program by responding to the call of the toast mistress with original poems, songs and congratulations, to which Mr.
Montgomery in his usual gracious manner responded and all made merry until a suggestion was made to adjourn to another camp where a little stranger awaited to welcome the "bunch." This little stranger was a queer one, the hands and voice were recognized, but they did not belong to any one person. The little wizzard had a limerick written by Commodore Newlin for each member of the party which was accompanied by a pretty gift.

The hours passed all too quickly by in merrymaking when much to our surprise the call was heard to "Break Camp." Reluctantly we too to the canoes and slowly left the romantic surroundings, amid sweet singing, accompanied by the soft dip dip of the paddles.

ABOUT FORMING RIFLE CLUB

Bangor, Me., Sept. 14.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

Answering your favor of the 4th inst. will say that I have passed your letter to our Secretary, Mr. L. W.
Somers, of this city, who I think will be pleased to send our scores to you when we begin shooting on our indoor range. These scores, which are unofficial, may at times vary slightly with the official scoring on the same targets in Washington; this for the reason that it sometimes happens that the value of a shot is so close that it cannot be determined absolutely within one point and we always feel in those cases that it is fair to expect the contestant to have the benefit of the doubt. The targets as you may know in the Inter-club Matches are sent to Washington at the end of every week's shoot for official scoring and they do not always rate them in accordance with our scoring but their decisions are usually final.

I hope you may be instrumental in bringing about the formation of several rifle clubs. We have here in Maine a large number of men who are really splendid shots as any rifleman will learn who attends the shoots at the summer outing of the Maine Sportsmen's Fish & Game Association. I don't see why that class of men which can be found in almost every town in our state do not get together and form clubs.
They should write to Lieut. Albert

S. Jones, Assistant Secretary of the National Rifle Association, 1108
Woodward Building, Washington, D.
C., and ask for instructions as to how they should proceed. It is all very simple and when they have completed the formation of the club
they should apply for club membership in the National Rifle Association and should also enter the Interclub Contests which are shot one match each week in a series of ten matches; ten men may shoot and the five highest scores are reported as the team score.

This is not an expensive game
after the equipment has been acquired. The shooting is at 75 feet indoors with an artificial light.
Any 22 caliber rifle may be used and any make of 22 caliber ammunition. The rifle should not weigh much less than ten pounds and should be equipped with metal target sights and a sling. Personally I prefer the Stevens rifle and I am using the Remington Arms-Union Metallic Cartridge Company's 22 long rifle "Indoor Target" cartridges but the Peters, United States, Winchester and Robin Hood ammunitions all have their advocates and will all shoot better than the average man can hold. I certainly would advise any man who means to do fine shooting with metal sights to write to Mr. Thomas Martin, who I believe is the best sight maker in the world, 8
Drummond St., Grove Hall Station, Dorchester, Mass., and ask him to send data on sights.

This rifle shooting I consider one of the cleanest of sports and I hope the time will come when a sufficient number of the better shots in the Maine Sportsmen's Fish & Game Association will form a team as they can demonstrate an ability with the rifle that will be a credit to any institution.

Very respectfully,
Langdon S. Chilcott.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION AT STON- INGTON MANOR INN FOL- LOWS MARRIAGE.

The following extracts from the recent account of the wedding of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Atwood, who have an elegant summer home at Kennebago will be read with much interest by many friends of the family who are readers of the Maine Woods who will unite in extending congratulations for a long and happy life to Mr. and Mrs.
Dodge:

"The social event of the season was the marriage on Wednesday evening of Miss Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Atwood of the boro, and Frank Foster Dodge of Westerly. The ceremony was performed in Calvary Episcopal church at 8 o'clock by Rev. F. R. Sanford of Calvary church, assisted by Rev.
W. Frederick Williams of Christ church, Westerly. The bride was given away by her father.

The best man was William Pendleton Dodge of Providence, a brother of the groom, and the bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Constance Atwood. The ushers were Franklin Chesley, Rev. John Groton,
Rev. Nathaniel Groton and William Sing.

The church was decorated with tall gift vases of pink gladioli and pink mock roses. The chancel rail was backed by a hedge of the gladioli surmounted by candles. Bunches of gladioli were tied to the pews and the windows were backed with the same flowers and with ferns.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin embroidered in silver and seed pearls. The court train, hung from the shoulders, was also embroidered with pearls and caught to the gown with a cluster of orange blossoms.

The bridal veil was of old Flemish lace and tulle bound by a fillet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Constance Atwood wore a gown of pale pink tulle over pink satin festooned in pale grey ribbon and pastel flowers, and a picture hat of pale grey Neapolitan straw trimmed in the same flowers. She carried a pannier of pink and yellow snap dragons.

Mrs. Atwood, mother of the bride, wore a gown of cream colored lace and champagne taffeta trimmed in silver.

A stringed quartette from New Haven, led by Edward Wittstein, gave the program.

Following the wedding ceremony,
guests went to Stonington Manor Inn which had been attractively decorated with autumn flowers and with mock roses and autumn leaves. Here the bride received. Supper was served at small tables on the north porch, while the bride's table, decorated with the wedding cake and clusters of lilies of the valley and white roses, was in the yellow dining room.
On the south porch the orchestra played for dancing which was generally indulged in, the handsome gowns of the ladies making a scene of unusual brilliancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodge are among the popular young people in their respective localities and have a great many friends who wish them future success. The bride is a native of Stonington and is a graduate of The Castle, Miss Mason's school for girls at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, and the groom graduated with the class of 1907 at Harvard. After a wedding trip of a few weeks they will make their home in the boro.
The display of gifts was unusual.
There were many out-of-town guests.

Although the open season on partridge and woodcock began Wednesday, September 15 in certain counties, these birds may not be bagged in Kennebec county until October 1.
The open season has begun in Somerset, Oxford, Franklin, Piscataquis,

the season's sport.

NEW JERSEY GIRL EXCELLENT SWIMMER.

Miss Eleanor Anderson, fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
John S. Anderson of Sanford street, East Orange, New Jersey, is one of the best of the girl swimmers who have been at Taylor Pond this summer. Miss Anderson spent several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark at their cottage, "The Roost," returning home but a short time ago.

On her first attempt to swim across the Pond, she made the trip in 23 minutes. Later she succeeded in crossing in 19 minutes. Miss Anderson did not take up swimming until two years ago. She has been interested in athletics for some time, however, and is a member of the Ladies Gymnasium of New York City.
Not only is Miss Anderson an excellent swimmer, but she is also a fine pianist. She expects to return to Taylor Pond to spend her vacation next year.

PRIVATE CAMPS ON LOBSTER LAKE

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Greenville, Me., Sept. 14.—One of the prettiest bodies of water in all of Northern Maine is Lobster Lake, so-called from its formation, shaped like a huge lobster with a long tail and two monstrous claws. It is bounded on the two sides by the Spencer and Lobster mountains and on all sides by beautiful white sand beaches. Only four miles, dead water, from the Penobscot side of North East Carry, Moosehead Lake, this lake is very easily reached, and the many ideal camping places around its shores make it one of the favorite side trips for the many parties who every season make the Allegash, East and West Branch river trips. Many parties, thus having side-tripped into Lobster, have decided to spend their time there rather than go on as per schedule.

Five splendid sets of private camps are now occupied around the shores of Lobster, three of them having been built within as many years, which goes to show how popular this place has become. Chief among these are the palatial camps of John S. Hyde, of the Bath Iron Works, Bath, Maine. The others belong to, and are occupied by Dr. L. F. Donahue, Bayonne, N. J.; Dr. Wm. J. Long, Stamford, Conn.; B. B. Jones, Haverhill, Mass., and Wm. Phillips, Washington, D. C. All of those camp owners are entertaining their families and friends, and the women and children are enjoying life at Lobster fully as much as the men. Vacation days are all too short here.

Here too, may be had trout, togue and white fish fishing, while the old logging roads afford splendid bird hunting, the inlets duck shooting and anywhere deer in abundance—all in their seasons, as contraband is strictly prohibited at Lobster.

GOING AFTER GRIZZLY BEAR

Oscar Ward, Kansas Big Game Hunter, Takes Twelve Horses, Guide and Cook Into Wilds of Canada.

Oscar Ward, of Pittsburg, Kansas, big game hunter of note, is packing his many trunks for an annual pilgrimage into the wilds in search of fur and feathers—with the accent on the fur says the Sun, Mr. Ward's home paper.

Mr. Ward's efforts this fall will be directed against the denizens of British Columbia, and in our imagination we already hear the sound of another drive on Warsaw, and with shut eyes can see the "fur flying" along the banks of the Frazer river.

Our local Nimrod left Pittsburg by way of Kansas City and St. Paul, Minn., taking the Canadian Pacific over the northern route at the latter point. He will pass through Winnipeg and Calgary, and will leave the railroad at Lytton, B. C., Canada, for the forceful reason that the road ends there. The travel inward from Lytton is by automobile for about 50 miles to Lillooet, the little camp where his guide will meet him. There they will rake together their lay-out and take on the cook, who is a Lillooet Indian, and will hit the trail on horseback for the wilds of the Rocky Mountains. The tents and equipment will take nine pack horses in addition to three saddle horses for the men. Their trail will lead some 200 miles in or up from Lillooet, and 30 miles a day is considered fast traveling over the rocky trails.

The hunt will begin about the 1st of September, and though the season is a little advanced for bears, as they usually hole-up in July or August, Ward will have a fair chance at straggling grizzlies or silver tips. The country has been hunted but four years, and this season the guide has not been out with a single party, owing to the war.

Mr. Ward will go in armed with a Grafonola (a pocket-edition Victrola), and two Remington .35 automatics, the best big-game gun on the market in Mr. Ward's opinion, and the kind he has always hunted with. With the former he intends to spring a surprise on the guide and cook, and to give it to them on leaving. With the latter he counts on surprising a few goats, sheep, etc., and give it to them at every opportunity.

RECORD GRAND AMERICAN AT CHICAGO.

Premier Trapshooting Event of the Year Attracts 831 Contestants.

Never before in the history of trapshooting has there been such a gathering of shooters as convened at Chicago for the Grand American Handicap, August 16th to 20th. The previous record was held by Dayton, Ohio, where the same event last year brought out 515 shooters. The middle western metropolis, itself a center of trapshooting enthusiasm, had no trouble in adding about 300 to Dayton's showing, making 831 shooters in all, to step to the firing line.

To handle this long line of shooters, 109 employees were necessary and there was, of course, the usual staff of Interstate Association officials.

Probably the two events which attracted most attention, aside from the Grand American Handicap itself, were the National Amateur Championship on single targets, won by the veteran shooter, Charles H. Newcomb, of Philadelphia, who broke 99 out of a possible 100 targets, shooting Remington-UMC speed shells and the National Amateur Championship on double targets which was carried off by Guy V. Dering of Columbia, Wis., who broke 92 out of fifty pairs of targets thrown, with the same ammunition.

One of the early events which was particularly popular locally was the Chicago Overture, won by H. B. Rehhausen, of North Platte, Nebraska, 98 out of a possible 100, shooting Arrow shells.

Approaching the big event of the meet, R. H. Morse, of Chicago, shooting from 18 yards, broke 95 out of a possible 100 in the preliminary to the Grand American, also with Arrow shells.

In the Grand American Handicap, Dr. C. C. Hickman, of Yeoman, Indiana, shooting from 19 yards, with a Remington pump gun and speed shells, and M. E. Dewire, of Hamilton, Indiana, from 18 yards, shooting the same combination, tied with two others, breaking 96 out of a possible 100, but lost in the shoot-off to Mr. L. B. Clarke, a Chicago banker, who won the event.

In the Consolation Handicap, H. Hammersmith, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, walked away with the winning, breaking 91 out of a possible 100 from 19 yards and 18 out of 20 in the shoot-off, shooting a Remington pump gun and speed shells.

Whoever claims that 1915 is an off year in the shooting sport because of disturbances abroad is mistaken. There have never been more club shoots throughout the country, and this great coming together of the leading spirits in the sport from ocean to ocean would seem to be manifest evidence that trapshooting has such a hold upon its adherents that it is not to be materially affected by outside influences.

INDIAN POINT CAMPS

Reports from Indian Pond Camps, Somerset Jct., M. J. Marr, proprietor, are that the camps are full, and have been all summer. At times it has been necessary to put up camps to take care of the arrivals. Fishing is excellent, and it now looks as if the bird shooting will be the best in years, as partridge are reported very plenty.

Among the recent guests are the following: Dr. B. F. Schreiber, Paul Peil, Miss C. Whiteman, Miss Margaret Schile, Miss Edna Tompkins, Miss Agnes H. Piel, Miss Louise G. BIG CITY BOY IS RIFLE WIZARD

Claims Boy Scout Championship and Breaks Many Records.

Roy Poole, who has been a stage marksman for 18 years, is strong in the belief that practically all American boys possess the germ that makes good rifle shots.

Mr. Poole ought to know, because he has been working with shooting irons practically all of his business life and has observed shooters of all nationalities and ages the world 'round.

Following up some experiments along the lines of the claims before states, Mr. Poole has recently taken in hand Johnnie Hayes, a 12-year-old Staten Island, New York youngster and put him through some preliminary paces with a rifle. Previous to his first lessons with Mr. Poole, Master Hayes had never done any shooting, having been born and brought up within the confines of Greater New York, where there is not much encouragement to the kind of target practice that a boy likes best. But the boy shooter has even thus early shown evidences of exceptional skill. His trainer is so confident of the boy's ability that he has allowed him to shoot clay pipes out of his mouth and fingers' at a distance of 25 feet and has not yet suffered any damage. Young Hayes has already made a record by breaking eight glass balls in the air in seven seconds, these balls being one and one quarter inch in diameter.

Master Hayes has developed so rapidly and has shown such rare promise that he has been allowed to appear before a theatre audience where he performed with such coolness and ability that he will undoubtedly soon be scheduled for a vaudeville tour.

Master Hayes' friends claim for him the title of "Champion Boy Scout Rifle Shot of the World," and maintain that he can easily defend this title against all comers. In doing his phenomenal shooting Master Hayes uses an ordinary Remington .22 repeater, with regular sights and scorns any of the fancy fixings which stage shooters some times affect.

It would be interesting to know whether in the broad expanse of the United States there is a boy scout shooter who has equalled or exceeded Master Hayes' achievements with the rifle.

MANY RECORD FISH ADDED

Grand Masquerade Ball Much Enjoyed--50 Guests Take Active Part.

(Special Correspondence.)

Upper Dam, Sept. 9.—The belated summer days are welcomed and there are fish in the pool, although not everyone can tempt them to take the fly.

I think the fisherman whose smile became a broad grin and everyone congratulates is Geo. F. Brown of Germantown, Penn., who for five summers has day after day cast the fly over the pool, and who never caught the much wanted three-pound fish that would allow him to pen his name on the book of books among the Dam fishermen. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Brown struck a trout that was a joy for him to land and a shout went up from the anglers in the pool as they called, "Brownie has got a record," and sure enough it was a 3-pound, 9-ounce trout and since he has caught a 3-pound, 2-ounce salmon, both with a white tipped Montreal.

Mrs. Wm. B. Fair of East Orange, N. J., is still the "queen of the pool" and with her light rod landed another record, a 3-pound, 4-ounce salmon.

E. F. Van Dusen, the New York angler is still in the ring and since our last report to the Maine Woods, records two salmon, 3 pounds, 7 ounces and 3 pounds.

Another angler who may well be proud, for after three years' trying, Dr. J. W. Harper of Hartford, Conn., has now recorded his first fish, a 3-pound, 2-ounce trout.

Hon. Arthur B. Calkins of New London, Conn., with a No. 6 white tipped Montreal fly records a 4-pound, 1-ounce salmon, and one 4 pounds, 2 ounces.

E. M. Nicholas of Columbus, Ohio, records a 3-pound, 7-ounce trout and four salmon weighing 3 pounds, 5 ounces; 4 pounds, 5 ounces; 3 pounds, 6 ounces, and 6 pounds, 3 ounces.

S. H. Palmer of Bethlehem, Penn., two salmon, one weighing 5 pounds, 12 ounces, the other, 4 pounds, 6 ounces, and his son, S. H. Palmer, Jr., a 3-pound, 3-ounce trout.

E. J. Atlee of Germantown, Penn., landed a 3-pound, 5-ounce salmon. Tom Miner of New York one 4 pounds, 2 ounces, and T. L. Barber, a 4-pound, 3-ounce salmon, and here's hoping Mrs. F. R. Baker of Rumford Point, who is one of the best anglers who comes here and for eight years has failed to land the much desired record from the pool, may do so before October.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miner and their dear little girls who have had such a happy summer in their attractive camp, were on Tuesday called home to New York on account of the illness of Mr. Miner's brother.

Last Saturday evening the dining room was cleared for a grand masquerade ball. The place was completely changed by the decorations, with the many flags and Japanese lanterns and the people were even changed more. The grand march was led by little Daniel Wister and Juliane Miner as Indians, and the little ones all masked represented cow boys, Red Riding Hood, etc., followed by the grown-ups, led by F. P. Marble as Santa Claus and Miss Elizabeth Tummy as a Christmas tree. Mr. Van Dusen was a handsome Scotch laddie and his wife a Dutch boy, Mrs. T. Miner a Dutch girl, Wm. B. Fair took the cake as an organ grinder, and Dr. Gummy shared honors with him. Geo. F. Brown and Mrs. Wm. B. French impersonated George and Martha Washington. Mrs. Brown came as a pair of cards; Walter H. Sawyer was a dandy Uncle Tom, and Mrs. Sawyer a fashionable lady of 1850; Tom Miner acted well the part of Happy Hooligan; Dr. Wister came as Buster Brown, and Mrs. Wister as Mrs. Vernon Castle; Mr. and Mrs. Donald White with Mr. and Mrs. Bly represented the Red Cross Society; Dr. Harper was a fascinating Belle; Miss Margaret Ambrose was a pretty Indian maiden; Mr. Greenia was a perfect Jew peddler; Mrs. Nicholas a handsome court lady and her husband a country Rube; Mrs. F. R. Baker, the lone fisherman; Jack Greenia as a Darkie dude, gave a cak walk and Mrs. Fair was a Japanese lady. More than 50 were in costume, each one being called upon to do a stunt. The waitresses in charge of Mrs. Butler, all dressed in white did well their part of serving ice cream, cake and punch. It was nearly midnight when the dance was over and all returned to their camp saying, "It was the best yet," and Upper Dam is noted for the fine entertainments and jolly good times which all enjoyed.

Mrs. T. L. Barber of South Framingham, Mass., on Thursday afternoon gave a card party, after which the ladies were all invited for tea and a social hour.

Dr. J. W. Harper and his mother have been joined by Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Treat and M. W. Treat of Hartford, Conn., who come to this place for their first visit and are much pleased with the place.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Dougherty of Syracuse, N. Y., after a pleasant month in West Branch Pond Camps at Kokadjo in Aroostook county, where they found good fishing and greatly enjoyed woods life, have returned to spend the remainder of September here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. White of Lewiston were this week joined by Wallace H. White, Jr., and son, Herbert Frye White.

F. P. Marble of Lowell, Mass., has come to spend September with Mrs. Marble, who is a great sufferer from hay fever and finds this place a perfect cure.

Francis L. McLeary and F. Collis Morgan of Philadelphia have been recent guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Wister.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Guillow of Lowell, Mass., have been enjoying a ten days' stay at Upper Dam.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Pettingill and Geo. W., Jr., of Rumford have been visiting with Mrs. F. R. Baker. Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Kennard of Rumford were also week-end guests of Mrs. Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Greenia who have been at Midway camp for several weeks are now in one of the camps near the hotel, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Julia of Lewiston, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Noyes of Boston are at Midway.

Everybody went down to Joe Morin's boat house last evening for a dance and it was a good time they had, and the boat house looked very pretty decorated with many flags.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parson of Youngstown, Ohio, K. R. G. Parsons and John D. Parsons of Harvard College and Albert D. Sturtevant of Washington, D. C., a Yale student, who came as far as The Barker in their touring car have been enjoying life here for the past week.

There remains a larger number of guests here than usual for September and as the pool does not close until October 1st quite a party of fly fishermen plan to reel in September 30th.

NOTES FROM MT. VIEW

Mountain View House, Rangeley Lake, September 12.—Mrs. T. Potts of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Wm. McAdoo and daughter, Miss Eva McAdoo of New York, who have been at Kennebago came to Mountain View to-day for the remainder of September.

Roy S. Barnhart of Grand Rapids, Mich., arrived this week to spend the remainder of the season with his family, who came in May and have greatly enjoyed the summer in one of the log cabins. It is Mr. Barnhart's first visit to this part of the country and he is much pleased with the place his family chose, for the summer.

Mrs. A. E. Nash of Bridgeport, Conn., after an absence of 15 years has returned, accompanied by her nephew, W. W. Blodgett, 2nd., of Pawtucket, R. I.

The many friends of Wm. G. Baldwin of Springfield, Mass., who has spent a number of summers at Mountain View, will be pleased to learn that he is in good health and will soon start for the San Francisco Exposition going via Panama Canal on S. S. Kroonland. On his return he plans to spend the winter in Florida and all hope to greet him at Rangeley next season.

E. W. Snyder of New York came on Thursday to be present at the annual birthday party given in honor of his old friend, A. Montgomery, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Stevens and daughter, Mrs. Colby L. Merrill of Farmington and K. E. Ramsay of Portland were here on an automobile trip this week.

Landlord Bowley is having a little vacation, as he accepted an invitation from H. F. Marson on Saturday to take an automobile trip across country to Augusta.

R. B. Clark of Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the annual comers, who finds this a perfect cure for hay fever, and "the best place I know of for vacation days," he said.

John DeCaster an artist and an angler from London, England, who is spending the summer in America, has been here for several days and expressed himself as greatly pleased with the beautiful scenery of this region.

Mrs. S. S. Sias and daughter, Miss Martha G. Sias of Brookline, Mass., friends of Prof. and Mrs. H. A. Dunham, who occupy one of the cottages for the season, on their return from Kennebago spent most of the week here and went home via the chain of lakes, through Dixville Notch and via White Mountains on Saturday.

Prof. Marshall P. Cram, Miles E. Langley and Stanley P. Chase of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, while on a motor trip, remained here several days recently.

The "Gordon Trio" whose fine music has for two summers been so much enjoyed by the guests, returned home this week, but all hope they will come back another year.

Col. Geo. R. Fearing of New York and grandson, Geo. R. Fearing, 3rd., of Boston and friend, Evans Spaulding of the same city and C. Danforth of New York, who were here in the spring have been here again this week, making the trip in the $10,000 Crane automobile in which the Colonel has twice traveled thousands of miles in Europe.

"Fisherman Hawkins" still does the honors and has brought in the largest fish this week, a 4-pound salmon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Garrigue of Plainfield, N. J., who are now in their fine new camp on the lake shore, Saturday gave a picnic inviting the following guests of this hotel: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stewart Rowlette and son, R. Stewart Rowlette of Brookline, Clarence Dorsett, his daughter, Miss Carolyn and aunt, Miss Ella L. Dorsett of New York, and other friends, making a party of twenty who by motor boats crossed the lake, and guide Geo. Lamb on the shore built a fire and broiled chicken, made "flap jacks" and cooked other good things for this feast out in the open, which all voted was one of the happy events of this season. "Baby Wigton," the little grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Garrigue was "king" of the feast. Miss Dorsett on Wednesday night gave a dinner party in honor of Wm. and Clarence Garrigue, eight being entertained.

Last Friday Benj. B. Bryan of New York in his auto, accompanied by friends from New York and Chicago, with Walter Weld guide, went over to Stratton and made headquarters at Ed Grose's hotel until Tuesday, where they engaged Pearl Fuller for guide. The gentlemen were greatly pleased to find such a good hotel at Stratton and are loud in their praise of the hospitality received. From there they went up on the North Branch where they had excellent fly fishing, catching all they wanted, but killing only a few for the table. They caught several 2-pound trout and the largest nearly three pounds.

Monday morning, 9 o'clock, September 13. "Another rainy day, and now we will play bridge by the open fire in the big parlor," said one lady, but it does not dampen the enthusiasm of the fishermen who are starting off dressed for a rainy day. "I am glad it rains, for I must spend the day packing and if it was pleasant I should find it hard work," was the way one lady comforted herself, as she left the friends knitting by the office fire.

Edward Banneche of New York, who came in June for a two weeks' stay came yesterday for another fishing trip with Walter Wight guide.

As a party of ladies were walking across the carry to Haines Landing yesterday they had a chance to watch a handsome fox only a few rods away and in the afternoon a mink came onto the wharf and played around in front of the hotel.

Next Sunday will be the last mass of the summer at the little church at Oquossoc, "Our Lady of the Lake," but Rev. Fr. T. J. McLaughlin of Farmington, who has charge of this mission will come now and then during the winter. The church services have been largely attended this season. Some Sundays 200 have been present and as many as 15 automobiles, people coming from miles away. The beautiful flowers with which the church was decorated yesterday, asters, phlox, etc., were sent from the garden by Mrs. H. P. Smith a Boston lady, who at their summer home, Camp Nikowosoc, on the shore of Rangeley lake has the finest garden in this region, in which she takes great pleasure and spends many happy hours.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Dickson, who have for the season been at their camp on South Bog Island, returned to New York this week.

Camp Anthony is also closed. Mr. and Mrs. Maximilian Foster and little daughter, "Betty" went back to New York this week.

Among those who left Mountain View this week after a happy summer were Mrs. E. P. Thayer and Miss E. L. Gregory, who have spent many pleasant weeks and friends all hope to welcome them early in 1916. Miss R. A. Witham of Sudbury, Mass., is chaperoning a party of four young ladies from Kansas City, Mo., who came Saturday and are most pleasantly located here while for the first time visiting the Rangeleys.

As there is a larger number of guests now being entertained at this hotel than ever before so late in the season, and others are coming, and those here will linger as long as possible, it does not seem as if October was coming so soon.

Everyone regrets that the Pullman car will be taken off and the change for these autumn days will be most delightful and many would like to linger for the hunting.

ENORMOUS VALUE OF GAME

With the beginning of the hunting season, says the Bangor News, the variety and plenty of the North American huntsman's domain is indicated in a communication to the National Geographic society from Henry W. Henshaw, chief of the United States Biological Survey, which tells of "American Game Birds." Mr. Henshaw enumerated more than 100 kinds of game birds common to this country's preserves among which are 37 kinds of ducks, eight kinds of goose, eight kinds of quail, and five kinds of grouse. While America's preserves are distinguished among the hunting fields of the world for their wealth of game, the writer shows that they are hunted with dangerous thoroughness. He says: "America has always been a paradise for sportsmen, but of late years the number of those whose chief relaxation is the pursuit of game has greatly increased, and to-day there are probably not far from five millions who are interested in the pursuit of game! What this army of five million hunters means to the large and small game of America can better be imagined than described! Modern guns and ammunition are of the very best, and they are sold at prices so low as to be within the reach of all. Added to these very efficient weapons for killing small game, are innumerable devices for killing waterfowl, as sneak-boats, punt-guns, swivel-guns, sail-boats, steam-launches, night floating, night lighting and others."

The varieties of American game duck given by Mr. Henshaw are baldpate, Barrow's golden-eye, black, buff-head, king, Pacific, spectacled and Stellar's elder, fulvous tree-duck, mallard, merganser, red-head, pintail, seaup, scoter, canvas-back, shoveller and teal. Of canvas-back he says:

"The canvas-back, perhaps the most famous of American waterfowl, has purchased its fame at a price. So highly is it prized by the epicure that to-day he who can afford to dine on canvas-back sets a mark of luxurious living. Not that the canvas-back differs essentially from other ducks, but its exceptional flavor is due to the fact that its favorite food is 'wild celery,' a long ribbon-like grass which grows in shallow ponds and estuaries. As the plant roots several feet under the surface, only the diving ducks can secure it and the plebian kinds have to be content with such floating fragments as they can pick up or can steal from their more aristocratic relatives. In Oregon and Washington, the canvas-back lives much upon wapat, a bulb-like root formerly a staple article of food among many Indian tribes, and their exceptional flavor is said to be little, if any inferior to that of the celery-fed canvas-back of the east. Prized alike by sportsmen and by epicure the ranks of the canvas-back have been depleted by the relentless pursuit to which it has been subjected. However, the greater number of these ducks breed far to the northward where they are safe, and under present laws their number should increase to something like their former abundance."

Despite this country's present vast wealth in game birds, according to the writer, they would soon be shot away but for proper protection. As it is, he continues, the number of game birds to-day are quite insignificant when compared to the abundance of former days. Destruction of former breeding places by drainage and, more especially, the relentless pursuit with firearms, are the causes assigned for the falling off of supply. Mr. Henshaw writes:

"The statements of the early chroniclers regarding the multitudes of ducks, plover and wild pigeons almost defy belief. When, in the records of the first part of the last century, one reads of clouds of pigeons that required three days to pass a given point in a continuous moving stream, and again of flocks estimated to contain more than two billion birds, credulity is taxed to the limit. Yet not only one such flock was observed, but they were of periodic occurrence during many years of our early history, and the accounts of them are too well attested to be doubted. As throwing a curious sidelight on the abundance of wild fowl and the hardships to which the slaves of the period were subjected, I quote from Grinnel, who states that in early days 'slave owners, who hired out their slaves, stipulated in the contract that canvas-back ducks should not be fed to them more than twice each week.'"

A high money value is placed on our game resources, Mr. Henshaw states that Oregon values her game resources, consisting largely of game birds, at $5,000,000 a year, while California and Maine each claim their game to be worth $20,000,000 a year, which suggests the enormous aggregate value of the country's game. Mr. Henshaw concludes his communication with an expression of the belief that the government and the people of the country should do all in their power to protect and to bring about a rightful use this rich heritage.

PROBLEMS OF OPEN SIGHTS.

Many hunters have wondered why the open rear sight on a rifle is placed part way up the barrel and not as near the shooter's eye as possible. In fact just the other day I read a letter from a sportsman in which he stated that a certain rifle would be perfect if only the rear sight were placed way back near his eye.

The rifle designer is 'twixt the devil and the deep blue sea on this point. The farther the sights are placed apart, the greater the sighting radius which tends toward accuracy. On the other hand if the rear sight is placed too far back it appears to the eye as fuzzy as a French poodle, and it does not therefore improve the accuracy to any noticeable extent.

The problem is to strike a compromise which will give best results under average conditions. A very interesting experiment along these lines is to cut out some sights from light pasteboard, place 'em on a table lined up with an open window and sight through them at some object a hundred feet or so away, and you will be able to observe for yourself the above mentioned difficulties.

A. E., Milwaukee, Wis.

1. Which powder has the longest range, black, smokeless or Ballistite?

Ans. From your classification, it seems to me that you are a little confused. There are two kinds of powders in use, black powder and smokeless powder. Black powder is the original gun powder made from charcoal, sulphur and saltpetre. All smokeless powders are either nitro-cellulose or nitro-glycerine or some combination of the two. Roughly speaking, nitro-cellulose is produced by treating either wood or cotton fibre with nitric acid in the presence of sulphuric acid, and nitro-glycerine is the result of treating glycerine in the same way with the above named acids. When black powder burns in the barrel, a considerable part of the product of the combustion is solid matter. When smokeless powder burns the amount of solid matter is very small indeed. Nitro-glycerine or nitro-cellulose when used in their natural state are entirely too powerful and ungovernable for use in rifles and shotguns. They are therefore toned down by the addition of various materials which retard their burning qualities. Bulk smokeless powders for use in shotguns are so compounded that when used in the same bulk as the old black powder load will give approximately the same results. Dense smokeless shotgun powders are compounded to produce the proper ballistic results without regard to their bulk. Bulk smokeless powder should be loaded by bulk, that is, by the actual volume occupied by the powder. Dense powder should be loaded by weight only, that is, the actual weight of the charge. From the foregoing description of the properties of shotgun powders, it is not possible to say that any one of the three mentioned will give better range than another.

2. Which is best for the 12 gauge gun?

Ans. Shotgun barrels are the easiest of all firearms to keep clean, and it makes very little difference which kind of powder is used, so long as the guns are cleaned the same day the shooting is done. (3) There is no particular difference in the shooting qualities of the two makes of guns you mention.

4. Is there any advantage in using smokeless powder?

Ans. There are many advantages in using smokeless powder aside from the fact that there is no smoke. One is less recoil and another is that black powder is extremely dirty when compared with smokeless powder and fouls the barrel up so that cleaning after using black powder is a very messy job.

5. The hunting season opens September 7th and the open season for rail or rice hen starts the 6th of September. Are you allowed to shoot these birds on the 6th or must you wait till the 7th?

Ans. The Game Law reads it is "unlawful to kill rail or rice hen between the 30th day of November and the succeeding 7th day of September." September 6th is therefore in the closed season and you must wait until the 7th.

E. M. T., Budsfield, Maine.

Do you consider the Model 14 high power slide action carbine with 18½ inch barrel, .25 calibre accurate and powerful enough for deer, bear, woodchucks, etc. How long should the barrel last, or in other words, how many rounds of ammunition could be used before the barrel wears out, using the factory cartridges?

Ans. Very satisfactory for this work. The length of life of a barrel depends so entirely on the care it receives that it is very difficult to state a definite date for its wearing out. I should say that such a barrel would be good for 4,000 to 5,000 rounds before the accuracy fell off to any noticeable extent, and would undoubtedly shoot many thousand more sufficiently accurate for all hunting purposes.

E. C. H., Waterloo, Iowa.

Can you tell how I can blue a gun barrel?

Ans. I would advise sending it to the makers.

W. B. H., Jr., Corpus Christi, Tex.

1. Please give me a good recipe for removing metal and nitro fouling from a Krag-Jorgensen rifle.

Ans. A receipt for removing metal fouling is as follows:

Ammonium Carbonate, 200 grs.
Ammonium Hydrate, 6 oz.
Ammonium Persulphate, 1 oz.
Distilled water, 4 oz.

A brass bristle brush and a good nitro solvent oil which can of course be obtained from any hardware or sporting goods dealer will remove nitro fouling, i. e., the actual powder residue.

2. Does the U. S. Government sell ammunition for the Krag?

Ans. Yes, but only through the National Rifle Association or the National Guards.

J. D., Empire, Mich.

Is it safe or practical to use high velocity ammunition in the .25.20 and .38.55 rifles not having nickel steel barrels?

Ans. Yes.

E. S., Omaha, Nebr.

1. Will the newly designed "Spotlight" .22 calibre cartridges hurt a rifle barrel in any way when fired in same?

Ans. No.

2. Would you recommend Spotlight cartridges for hunting?

Ans. They have no advantage whatever for hunting purposes.

3. What chemicals are used in Spotlight cartridges?

Ans. The formula is kept secret, but it is probably a flash composition as used by manufacturers of fireworks.

4. What is good for rust in a rifle barrel?

Ans. If a barrel is not badly rusted, the best thing is a good brass bristle brush and nitro solvent oil and plenty of "elbow grease."

5. What is good to keep a rifle from rusting?

Ans. A thorough cleaning and a thorough coating on the inside of the barrel with a good gun grease is the surest way. Some of the nitro solvent oils are efficient, although no oil is as good as a heavy grease.

6. I have a rifle which catches rust in about two days after I clean it. When I get done shooting, I clean it out good with oil. Then I give it a coating of the same oil and set it away until the next day. The next day I clean it inside of the barrel until it shines like a looking glass. The outside gets a good cleaning, too. Then I give it a coating of oil and vaseline. In about two days a thin layer of rust is under the oil and vaseline. I do not clean my rifle when it is cold. I set it by the stove until it gets warm and then I clean it good. I have another rifle which I give the same treatment and I can set it away for six months and it won't have a speck of rust on it.

Ans. You do not say what calibre the rifle is. As you speak above of .22 calibre cartridges I assume it is a .22 cal. rifle. If so, I am almost willing to bet you are using smokeless cartridges. The best way to stop rust when using smokeless cartridges is to stop using smokeless cartridges.

Use lesmok or semi-smokeless cartridges. They do not have the corrosive effect on the barrel that smokeless powder has. This is not in any sense a knock on any particular make of cartridges as all .22 calibre smokeless cartridges have a vicious effect on the barrel. No one has yet succeeded in developing a powder for .22 calibre cartridges which will not have this effect. I would also suggest that you use a nitro solvent oil instead of the one you are now using.

NOTES FROM MINGO SPRINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Mingo Springs, Rangeley Lake, September 11.—At 5.30 o'clock this morning I was called from nod land by hearing someone on the wharf exclaim, "Oh! did you see that big salmon? He jumped out of water. There he is again." Then I remembered it was almost the middle of the last month for fishing, and that one of the best fishermen who comes here was in one of the cabins, and I wondered if he had unpacked his fishing tackle. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. D. Carter of Portland arrived last evening, and Mr. Carter has caught several salmon weighing from 5 to 8 pounds when at Mingo, and that he said, "We are always glad to come back to this, the best place we have found. Mr. Carter came in June and as usual will spend the last of the season here."

The past week several large parties who have been here for weeks returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Cotter of Lynn, Mass., with their family of seven and maids, as happy children as ever spent a summer in the Maine wilderness and who were loved by everyone and will always be welcomed, their chauffeur with their Pierce-Arrow car left this morning. The many friends of this family hope they will spend many summers in the future in the Rangeleys.

Miss Florence L. Hughes and her sister, Miss Elizabeth F. Hughes of Brooklyn, N. Y., who came with the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Russell the first of July, were sorry that their stay could not be extended another month, for no one in this region have had a better summer than this party of eight.

Richard Katz of New York City has joined his family, who have had one of the log cabins on the hill since the first of July and they will remain until the end of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Roberts of Hollowell, while on an automobile trip through the Rangeleys spent Sunday here.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Pretzfeld of New York are among those who have chosen Mingo for the month of September.

A party of three New York gentlemen, Dr. E. T. Thomas, J. A. Hendrick and J. Debois, who came on Wednesday for their first visit to this part of Maine express themselves as greatly pleased with log cabin life in the Rangeleys.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther C. Brown and son, Master Aaron of Worcester, Mass., and Mrs. W. V. Collender of New York, who came in July are enjoying automobile trips over the country and Mr. Brown often spends hours on the Rangeley golf links. On Monday morning Bradford Lambert, with Messrs. Brown and son, Dick Katz and John P. Holman started out in two canoes and went up Hunters Cove, crossed the carry to Dodge pond, then paddled through to Round pond, and took their canoes through the woods to the Logans, where they camped for the night. At several places they had excellent fly fishing, but were a tired crowd after they had shouldered their canoes for the return trip.

Prop. Cde who came from Boston on the night Pullman, arriving here this morning said everybody who could was coming this way and the trains were crowded, every man who could leave business was "coming to Maine for a fishing trip."

RECORD FOR NEWLYWEDS

Big Catches Make in Kennebago Stream.

(Special Correspondence.)

Grant's, Kennebago Lake, Me., September 14.—The scribe hears that there is a scheme afoot to build a row of camps and labelling them "Honeymoon Cottages," to accommodate the bridal couples during the season. This year seems to have been especially favored in that respect for there has been no less than ten newly married couples who have spent at least a part of their honeymoon at Grant's. The latest to come are: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hallett of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Grant of Rangeley. Mrs. Grant, nee Miss Sadie Pickens, is well-known here having been for three years past an efficient aid to the company in capacity of stenographer. Both young couples have the best wishes of the community for a happy and prosperous married life.

If anyone would like to know about fishing on Kennebago river and vicinity let them inquire of Herbert Welch, the popular fish taxidermist at Haines Landing. He can tell them of some record catches, which he and friends have made during the past two weeks. On one day's fishing at the pools on Kennebago river, Messrs. Welch, Dr. F. A. Hayden and Dr. Eastman took over 75 record fish and they estimate that about 200 pounds of trout and salmon were caught and landed by their party. Out of this number all were returned to pool except six fish over three pounds which were saved and appeared on the table of friends who needless to say appreciate the skill of these disciples of Isaac Walton.

Mr. Welch, accompanied by friend, James Cameron, made a second trip this week and visited the pools on the Seven Pond Stream, where he also found big fish in plenty. Three fish that they brought home weighed 9½ pounds.

Master Richard Chute, with Herbert Moore as guide secured a beautiful 4½ pound trout this week, which he sent to H. L. Welch for mounting. To say this young man was pleased would be putting it mildly.

Theodore DeWitt is another of our most skillful anglers. He secured five fish weighing over three pounds and brought in two weighing 3 pounds in one day's fishing. Mr. DeWitt has returned home greatly benefited in health from his second trip to camp this season.

Judge Wm. C. McAdoo and party regretfully left for home Saturday, after a six weeks' stay.

Capt. and Mrs. T. M. Potts, who have been enjoying their first stay in camp, returned home Saturday. "We will see you another season," they said upon leaving.

There is still a large waiting list of people who wish to come, and as soon as a party leaves a camp it is immediately taken possession of by others. The scribe heard the following story in the office as one gentleman was trying to secure accommodations for friends. Landlord Grant regretfully informed him that he had no very desirable vacancies. "But you will put them somewhere, and they'll like it." As the story runs, "A young chappie went into a saloon in a mining town, said, 'And I'd like a little shewry in a thin glawss,' to which the bartender made reply, 'You'll drink whiskey out of a tumbler and you'll like it.'"

Every tent is still occupied, but there is a full quota of hunters yet to make their appearance.

Additions will be begun on a new set of camps this fall so that next year there will be plenty of room.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Gilman and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Garland of Saco arrived this week for their annual summer visit making Mr. Garland's second trip this season.

The partridges were never so abundant as this year and duck seems to be on the increase. A family of wood duck, which are quite rare has been seen near the camps. The white-bodied male was a beautiful specimen and it is to be hoped that he escaped the eye of the gunners and will make the lake his home another season.

Everybody was sorry to have the popular clerk Harrison Amber leave. He is to teach in the Rangeley Grammar school as last season. Mr. Amber has occupied the position of clerk for three seasons now and has made a host of friends.

The woods are beginning slowly to put on their September dress and at no time of the year are the lakes any more beautiful than through the fall months.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Coates of Springfield, Mass., are occupying their attractive camp, Harmony Lodge. This is Mr. Coates' second trip this season.

Miss Lois M. Piper of Fairfield has arrived to open the fall term of school.

J. Blaine Morrison of Phillips and wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Field were visitors Sunday.

Geo. C. Tenmant and James McCarthy with two guides walked from Camp Azcoos into camp on Saturday and spent the night, walking back Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Donaldson are making their annual three weeks' stay in camp.

On September 6th 24 arrivals besides a full house kept everybody on the hustle.

Miss Lillian Pratt of Rangeley has taken the place of Miss Thelma Anderson as waitress.

W. C. Ferguson of Garden City still enjoys the distinction of being high line in camp, with a 5-lb., 9-oz. trout. Mr. Ferguson has caught many good fish and his son, Eric, who is with him is a very enthusiastic fisherman and has also made some fine catches.

Lunching parties is the thing these beautiful September days.

WELDITES BE-
SIEGE RUMFORD

Red Cross Nurses Invited to the Sumptuous Repast.

On Thursday evening, September 9, an army of Weldites under command of Brigadier General Chester Blunt, ably assisted by Field Marshall Fredk. Whiten, Henry Swett, Cleff Maxwell, Harry Trask, Mr. Spanhoofd, Roy Works and Irvin Maxwell, charged through Carthage and Dixfield stormed Rumford Falls which capitulated without firing a gun or without loss of life. The army visited the Grand Opera House and saw Francis X. Bushman and Beverley Bayne go through their dramatic stunts as portrayed on the screen, and after the performance the officers enjoyed a sumptuous repast to which they invited the following Red Cross nurses: Mrs. Leon Blunt, Mrs. Chester Blunt, Mrs. Fredk. Whiten, Mrs. Harry Trask, Mrs. Henry Swett, Mrs. Cleff Maxwell and the Misses Angie Swett, Dorothy and Katherine Swett, Lucille Ladd, Corinne and Marguerite Fales and Miss Trevethen.
The army voted the affair a stunning success and at midnight the rapid fire cars took the victorious company back to the Weld camps. It is rumored that on the following day a great delegation of Weldites will go over to the Falls and see the "Fallstafians" defeat the champion "Portlanders," or vice versa.

NOTES FROM HOTEL EARLEY

(Special to Maine Woods.)
